According to Gerald Young, a member of the Attorney General's office assigned to the case, the request for the stay came from Owen-Gage attorneys.

State Board officials confirmed Monday the Goslin case was appealed Aug. 9. Attorneys for the state have 60 days to file motions, followed by 40 days for Owen-Gage to respond.

Village poised to study treatment plant plans

Plans for Cass City's multimillion dollar wastewater treatment plant expansion should begin unfolding next month, according to Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie.

Village council is expected to study preliminary plans for the new plant during its regular meeting next Tuesday at the Municipal Building. James Hubbel of Hubbel, Roth and Clark, village engineers, will detail the plans for trustees at the meeting.

A public hearing on the estimated $2-3 million project is set Sept. 28, during council's regular session.

LaPonsie explained the village has nearly completed Step one of a three-step program funded in part by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the State Department of Natural Re-how much the facility will cost, the superintendent explained. It depends on which of five alternative plans is finally chosen.

Whatever plan finally gets the official village nod, the result will more than double Cass City's existing treatment plant capacity. Currently, the plant is designed to handle 433,000 gallons per

A new plant's capacity is projected at one million gallons per day.

LaPonsie says the new plant is needed for two rea-

"The existing plant doesn't meet federal clean water guidelines for 1977," he said. The federal government has told us that by June, 1977, we have to either be in expansion or meet the standards."

Another reason is the existing plant's capacity. LaPonsie said the plant sometimes runs over capacity and when that happens, some sewage only partially treated winds up in the Cass River. "The first part of the old plant was built in 1935," he said. "There was an addition in 1956. The main thing is that the plant is old and worn out."

The existing plant will be expanded by at least twothirds, LaPonsie said. New construction will include drying beds, tank rooms, an emergency generating room and office space, along with sophisticated purifying equip-

COST

LaPonsie said both Elkland and Novesta townships are involved in the planning stage. Elkland township has already signed an agreement saying that no village utilities will be furnished outside the village unless the land annexes to Cass City.

The townships won't be contributing any of their money to the project, LaPonsie said. The project will be financed on an 80 per cent federal and state and 20 per cent local basis.

It's expected local funding can be raised through a bond issue submitted to voters.

If the question lost at the polls, the funds could still be raised through court-ordered bonding, since the village is under federal and state pressure to upgrade the plant.

Village Council President Pro-tem Dr. D.E. Rawson said Cass City has supported such bond issues in the past and sees few problems with winning voter okay.

If present plans stay on track, construction could begin in mid-1977, LaPonsie said, with completion about a year later. Once completed, the plant should be able to meel EPA water quality requirements for 1997, he said.

The village's present sewer system should adapt to the new plant, according to the village superintendent. Infiltration (ground water flowing into the sanitary sewer system) is not enough to warrant major renovations, he said.

The plant should be able to handle Cass City's growing population with no problems.

According to the preliminary study, the village jumped from 1,974 residents in 1970 to 2,265 in 1975.

The total is projected to rise to between 2,500 and 2,800 by 1980 and to 3,500 by the year

strange stuff

Recently I called Hubert Humphrey a four flusher for not paying his 1972 campaign debts. This brought me an interesting letter from George Murphy, who used to tap-dance with Shirley Temple.

Murphy was also a U.S. senator for six years, until 1971, a colleague of Sen. Humphrey. I enjoyed Murphy's movie dancing much more than his legislating. Also, I can't help feeling that Murphy's political success probably encouraged Ronald Reagan to move his pompadour out of Death Valley and into the mainstream of the Panama Canal

So it might be possible to prove this would have been a better world if Murphy had stayed in Hollywood. But that would be a cruel answer to his friendly letter, and I don't feel like being that kind of a twirp today. Instead, let us just ponder the implications of what Murphy had to say about the offensive odor which often seeps out of campaign treasure chests.

You'll recall that Humphrey was stung when I accused him of being a welsher for not repaying more than $800,000 he borrowed to finance his hopeless attempt to gain the Democratic presidential nomination our years ago.

He insisted his hands were clean because the money had been lent to his campaign committee, not to him personally. And he added that the money came from his "personal friends who are very well to do and who are not complaining at all over the fact they received a very small settlement on their Humphrey further noted that his generous buddies knew when they lent the dough that "there was the possibility that the committee might not be able to repay.

This is what prompted ex-Sen. Murphy to enter the debate. In his letter, Murphy said he would not "lean too hard on a nice fellow like Hubert Humphrey as I am sure there have been many other campaigns which finished in the red and left unpaid bills." But Murphy did have a pointed question about the fund-raising tactics used by Humphrey and many other "nice fellows" who might be

Murphy asked: "Has it been the custom for politicians to 'borrow' funds for the campaign, then at a later date announce that there are no funds available to repay the loan, and the campaign committee goes out of existence, then is it legal for the person who made the loan to write this off as an uncollectible bad debt, thereby taking a tax credit for the amount involved? I do not know whether or not this has actually been done, but I have heard rumors beginning back in the days of John L. Lewis and Franklin Roosevelt that this had become an accepted practice. If it is so, I believe this is one tax loophole which should be closed."

Murphy suggested that I should "pursue and examine" this matter and perhaps tighten that alleged loophole around some well-known necks. He must think I'm an investigative reporter rather than a lazy columnist. I don't have time to dig through perfumed garbage. I have to take my grandehildren to the

Besides, Murphy admits suspecting the fraud since the 1930s. He was a U.S. senator for six years and he is still in Washington as director of something called American Cause. George is a heavy man with access to velvet closets. Why has he never found out for himself whether a lot of his old buddies are tax cheats?

Oh well. It's probably a job for the most experienced investigators, anyway. The FBI will probably tackle it as soon as it gets a new director. I understand the appointment will go to Shirley Temple.

I really did take my three grandchildren to the Detroit Zoo. It always depresses me to see animals in cages, but my wife insists it is educational for kids. So, under marching orders, there I was last week, back at the zoo for the first time since 1966. That was the year it was agreed we'd better quit taking our own children to the zoo for fear we'd never get them back out. The zoo has hit upon hard times, along with the rest of the city, and needs help feeding the animals. Clubs, school kids and other groups have been urged to "adopt" some bears or monkeys or whatever. If I agree to buy dinner every day for an ostrich, for instance, the zoo will reward me by hanging a sign near the ostrich, saying I am its father.

Which is fine. But it doesn't do anything for the 200 grounds which are as littered as the freeways, with scraps of paper growing on every bush. The place is 10 times dirtier than it was 10 years

GUIDANCE AND COUNSELING

The school guidance program is designed to assist students who have personal and social concerns, and to help students design academic programs to meet their individual needs and abilities. College admission and financial aid assistance is provided for students interested in continuing their schooling after graduation. One of the programs designed to benefit both the student and the community is the co-operative education program. Under this program, some students are placed in on-the-job work situations for part of each school day. Students and parents who desire information concerning guidance programs are invited to contact Mr. Cleland or Mr. Dillon at the high school or Mrs. Vickers at the Intermediate School.

Twelve	14,590	14,591 - 22,770
Each Additional family
Member	860	1,340

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced meals and milk. In addition, families not meeting these criteria but other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of income, special education expenses due to mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses may apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases, foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, it should contact the school. In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national

Under the provisions of the policy the school principals will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Donald Crouse, Superintendent of the Cass City Public Schools, for a hearing to appeal the decision.

Partially-built area house

labeled 'hazard' by county

Tuscola county building authorities have moved toward condemning a partiallycompleted house on the outskirts of Cass City owned and advertised for sale by a Minnesota-based firm.

Building Code Administrator Paul Lefler told the Chronicle this week the home, about 60 per cent completed, can't be occupied.

"I've never seen anything built like this in my life," Lefler said. "There aren't enough adjectives in Webster's dictionary to describe Lefler said the house, located along West Street south of the village limits, violates building codes governing foundation construction, supports and flooring.

"It's definitely a hazard," he said. "There's evidence that someone's gotten in there and caused damage. The house is unsafe. It's a wreck."

Lefler said an inspection made Wednesday, Aug. 18, showed the foundation was improperly built and is beginning to separate. He said cement blocks were never mortared together. Instead, they were stacked and a Following his inspection, Lefler posted no occupancy signs on the house. He indicated the structure must be "made safe" by boarding doors and windows to prevent anyone getting inside.

Lefler said Tuesday that unless the owners. Miles Homes of Minneapolis, can satisfy state building codes, the house may have to be torn

He said a registered letter sent Thursday, Aug. 19, gives Miles 10 days to respond with a plan to meet code. If they can't do it, they face tearing the house down.

"If the owners don't respond and tear it down, I can order it taken down and bill them," Lefler said. "But I prefer working with them and not having to use taxpayer money.'

After a week of the Republican convention, I'm willing to nominate David Brinkley and Walter Cronkite for President. They made more sense than the candidates, delegates and the band.

I'm also ready to dip my TV set in bronze for holding up under the strain. It did shoot a few sparks out of the back once or twice during the proceedings. It must have longed for Hollywood Squares and Let's Make a Deal.

Conventions do strange things to people. It's like a full moon and werewolves. Sanity is where you find it and most of it isn't on the convention

Republicans. Úsually, Republicans can be sated with a glass of ginger ale and kind words. It used to be the Democrats who calls at their clambakes. Not so long ago, if at least one state delegation to a Democratic convention didn't walk out, the chairman would ask a few if they'd like to leave, just to keep up appear-

This time, the Democrats could have stayed home and held the convention via postcards. It was about as exciting as two weeks in the morgue.

I suppose Americans have to get politics out of their system somehow and a convention is the least harmful way of doing it. Getting that many people so excited on the freeway could turn I-75 into a

Conventions also give candidates, potential candidates and the bellhop a chance to say nasty things about the other party . . . things nobody really means anyway. Republicans blame Democrats for everything from war and inflation to fallen arches and the heartbreak of psoriasis. Democrats resurrect Herbert Hoover's ghost every four years and blame it for the Depression.

When it's all over, few of them remember what the fuss was all about.

Which is just as well. In America, we take this kind of thing out on each other verbally. In some countries, they do it with guns, bombs and

Police said the culprits entered a warehouse at the same time. Chief Gene Wilson also suspects the same juveniles were involved with pushing a railroad car onto the Grand Trunk Western Railroad tracks, triggering flashing signals on Main Street.

Wilson said the signals remained flashing for nearly 24 hours before the car could be moved.

No arrests have been made. Area police generally reported few incidents during the past week.

Oscar Brooks of 6398 Seventh St., reported Saturday 90 feet of chain link fence had been stolen from his residence. The fence was stored beside his garage when the theft took place.

Value was set at $360. Village police also probed a break-in at Cass City Intermediate school early Sunday. Officer Donald Miller reported a window had been broken to gain access. Nothing was discovered missing. Blood stains were also found at the scene, police said. No suspects have been arrested.

Theron Roach of Gilford Rd., Deford, told Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies about $50 worth of shingles had been stolen from a storage shed on his property.

AROUND THE FARM

By William Bortel

There have been many wheat growers asking what happened to the Tecumseh wheat this past season. It appeared as if many growers were somewhat disappointed in Tecumseh wheat in that it thrashed a little harder and the yields were somewhat erratic. However, let's take a real good look at Tecumseh wheat and see what its real merit really is.

Tecumseh is by far the most winter hardy variety of all soft winter white wheats. Four and five years ago when many wheat producers were losing a high percent of their wheat acreage due to winter kill, the growers requested a variety which could withstand the Michigan winters. The variety Tecumseh was selected and looked excellent in the varietal plots these two years next to the other winter soft white wheats. There was nothing left to Genesee, Yorkstar or Ionia and Tecumseh yielded approximately 50 bushel per acre these two

With improved winter hardiness trait of the Tecumseh variety, we definitely must keep this in the front of our minds as we select varieties of wheat for 1976 planting. It is a good insurance policy to have Tecumseh wheat where you have wide open fields and very little or no protection from wooded areas.

In reference to a hard threshing wheat, it was just a few years ago that many growers were criticizing the Ionia wheat because it shattered too much. Growers were looking for a variety which could stand more wind and rougher weather conditions. Harvesting of the Tecumseh is more difficult, but this was a trait bred into the Tecumseh wheat so that it could take more wind prior to

Since there have been many reports of growers dissatisfied with Tecumseh wheat, I thought it would be important to put the facts in order prior to selection of wheat for this fall. Tecumseh is still a good variety of wheat and growers should look at it very favorably along with the other soft white wheat and soft red varieties. The recommended varieties are Ionia, Yorkstar

Clinic. These selections are Another expert, Dr. Wiltaken from "Dr. Walter C. liam J. Curran, reported in a Alvarez on Health and Life,' medical journal of the many distressing things that can published by Major Books), A most heart-breaking occurrence in the lives of parents of some ten thousand infants each year is the "sudden crib death." Commonly the child goes to bed at night happy and apparently normal, and is found in the morning dead. Generally, at autopsy, the doctor learns little or nothing about what killed the child.

Dr. Abraham B. Bergman, professor of children's diseases and of health services at the University of Washington, Seattle, and president of the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death, Inc., has been studying this syndrome since 1965.

Dr. Bergman said that in about 15 per cent of the cases, at autopsy a meningitis (inflamation of the outer lining of the brain) can be found, or a bleeding into the surface of the brain, or an inflamation of the heart muscle. Such findings tend to rule out the presence of a typical sudden infant death syndrome.

Generally, there are no definite findings. The typical sudden infant death occurs usually between one week and twelve months of age. Respiratory tract viruses can be found in a number of the

If an autopsy cannot be obtained, the doctor may learn much by finding with X-rays that there is nothing wrong in the chest. Also, a "lumbar puncture" made in the lower back will show whether or not the spinal fluid is normal; if it is normal this tends to rule out a meningitis.

Sometime ago, Dr. Edward Shaw, a pediatrician in San Francisco, wrote me that he was satisfied that crib deaths are due to the fact that if an infant's nose plugs up, he hasn't yet learned to open his mouth and breathe through it, and it is because of this that

This idea is strengthened by he fact that Dr. James French and his associates in Seattle have found that during the first week of life, a breathes only through his nose, and if the nose is held shut, the monkey may become agitated, but he will not sponstaneously breathe through his mouth. With this comes a slowing of the heart and efforts at resuscitation may become neces-

Generally, any such theory on the part of one researcher in this field brings a good deal of disagreement from other experts who are also studying the problem.

Whatever the cause, crib deaths bring the parents much sorrow, which for years has been made worse by the very distressing guilt re-

What do you like about living in a town the size of Cass City? Mrs. Newell Harris of 4630 Huron St., has lots of reasons for choosing a small town over a large city. "I like the slower pace," Mrs. Harris says. "I like the lack of traffic and rush hours. "There's the peace of mind to let my kids run an errand downtown and know that they will return safely to me. I can let them play in the front yard without being fearful something will happen."

Mrs. Harris says she enjoys Cass City particularly because it isn't far from a large city, yet it's far enough not to have many of the city's problems.

"I think the people are more friendly here," she Mrs. Harris does worry about the increasing crime rate, particularly drug usage among teen agers. "It is on the rise and it is a threat," she says. Mrs. Harris was born and raised near Cass City. She and her husband have two as they saw the black billow of smoke reachin' over the horizon, like a great movin' dark cloud. It was threshing time and that meant plenty of hard work and sweat and a feast spread out almost as large as a corn field. The steam powered threshing machines changed the whole picture of farming back in the late 1800's. Mechanization would make us the largest food producing country in the world.

Today modern farming techniques and equipment have allowed us to continually feed more people per acre every year. Research, education, management and technology have made the American farmer the best in the world.

If there's a better way to plant it, grow it, and pick it, the American farmer will invest his time and money to find out how.

Farming is still . . . the hand that feeds you.

Hartel breezes through

windmill hobby

It's been a long time since but I had some nice windmills area farmers depended on windmills for a constant water supply. But in miniature form, they're more popular than ever, according to Charles Hartel of 6353 Garfield St.

Hartel, 69, has been turning out decorative hand-made windmills in his workshop the past two years and he says he can hardly keep up with production.

"I started making them because of the chipmunks and ground moles," Hartel said, taking a break from his work one warm summer morning

"I got the pattern of one and just went from there," he says. "I still had the moles, when I was through." Since then, Hartel has been building windmills in three sizes, 3^{1}_{2} , six and eight feet tall. They've been so popular, in fact, that he's had trouble keeping orders filled. People just see them and they're interested," he says. The windmills are made of pine--all hand-made. Each piece must be fabricated on Hartel's saw. He says he uses special jigs to cut the unique patterns for each part. In two years, he estimates he's turned out about 50 windmills and there's no sign he's about to quit. He charges $30

"I was getting $25, but the price of wood and bolts has gone up," he says.

Hartel says the hardest part of windmill making is the wheel. Each blade must be perfectly balanced or the assembly won't turn. The wheel runs on a nylon bushing

The only other really hard part is getting them painted. That's where Mrs. Hartel comes in. She wields an expert's brush, especially on red, white and blue windor of the bicentennial, Hartel agrees the interest in his windmills is due in part to the national nostalgia binge Americans have been on the past few years. But there's a see them run," he says.

Wiese, show that winter wheat planted in early fall was heavily infested with aphids carrying barley yellow dwari virus.

Yields were as low as 20 bushels per acre in severely infected fields. Early planting also subjects the crop to epidemic levels of leaf rust and powdery mildew in some

All of the recommended varieties except Genesee and Yorkstar are resistant to most prevalent races of Hessian fly in Michigan. However, these resistances often fail when field temperatures exceed 80 degrees F in the Records indicate a sharp break in fall temperatures between Oct. 4-10 in Michigan, the period when continental air masses begin to predominate over the warmer gulf air masses. Wheat plantings made just prior to or during this period are more insect and disease free and, therefore, more vigorous. Optimum yields were obtained when wheat was planted during the first week of

To help assure maximum yield in your fields, carefully consider the crop rotation and previous field history. Wheat planted after pasture sod, after hay or in fields which have a high quantity of quackgrass are not good areas in which to plant wheat.

These types of fields are high in organic matter, a condition especially favorable to a complex of diseases called eye spot, straw-breaker foot or root rot, and take-all. The diseases affect the root, crown and-or basal stems of the wheat.

Be sure and soil test fields for lime, phosphorus and potassium requirements before planting. Nitrogen levels should be modest in the fall, but have adequate phosphorus and potassium. Top dressing nitrogen in early spring gives the highest yields.

It is best to plant wheat after navy beans, soybeans, corn (where herbicide use has been minimal), oats or barley. Use varieties recommended by MSU, such as Ionia, Yorkstar, Tecumseh (soft white wheat varieties) or Arthur and Abe (soft red

L. J. Stoeckl dies in Saginaw

Funeral services were held Monday for Leland J. Stoeckl. 44, Sebewaing, who died Saturday, Aug. 21, at Saginaw Veterans Hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Owendale, Aug. 7, 1931, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Stoeckl. He was a veteran of the Korean War.

Survivors include one son, Leland John of Gaines, Mich.; five daughters, Mrs. DeVre Henne and Roberta and Rose Marie Stoeckl, all of Bay Port, Alvertia and Marlene Stoeckl, both of Gaines; two grandchildren; one brother, Walter Stoeckl of Bad Axe and two sisters, Mrs. Henry Sbresney of Marlette and Mrs. Gerald Loeffler of Gagetown,

The funeral was held at Hunter Funeral Home in Gagetown with Rev. Elmer Scheck officiating.

It was too good to be true. Suddenly I found I had the opportunity to visit th land of my dreams — a tropical island! It was long ago when my beloved "rolling stone" uncle visited my home, brimming with stories of the fascinating, delightful South Seas. I had been convinced that life in this land would be a forever-happy thing,

And now the magical moment had come. I found that the sky was, indeed, bluer than blue, the flowers brilliant and fuxurious, the sea clear and everchanging. Yes, it was all this and more.

But one day as I stood on the shore listening to the roaring rhyme of the waves, I realized that I was no happier than I had been before. I discovered that my problems were within me. How could I have assumed that happiness would be guaranteed on an enchanted island?

These thoughts prompted me to return to my church which I had ignored for many years. Here I found my faith was renewed, and I found self-respect and understanding that come from loving God and doing His will. I sensed anew that no man can expect to experience true happiness without Him. Hurry to your church - there to find the ingredients to make your days and your life glad and

Automation cuts costs at terminal

It's common knowledge these days that farming is big business.

But it is likely that the average person doesn't realize just how big a business it has become.

Investments of a half million dollars or more by farmers are common and many are much, much bigger.

To keep pace the farm service industries have been becoming larger and more complex each year.

None in the Thumb is any bigger than the Thumb Cooperative Terminal, Inc., a farm co-op formed by three cooperative elevators: Elkton Cooperative Farm Produce Co., Ruth Farmers Elevator and Sebewaing Farmers Cooperative.

The terminal, located on M-142, east of Elkton, represents a $3 million investment.

What we've done, say General Manager Wayne Bauer of Cass City and his assistant. Gary King, is made the Thumb farmer competitive with farmers located closer to shipping points.

The reason for this, they claim, is that the terminal can load complete trains and have them ready for export in a coastal port without further handling,

The way it's done is that a contract is signed for a shipment calling for a certain grade of wheat or other farm produce. It's inspected by government officials at the terminal and loaded into cars and the complete train is ready to haul to a port, more often than not, Baltimore. The facility can load nine to 10 rail cars an hour. That's cheaper, says Bauer, and also much quicker. It cuts the time from 40 days to less than two

While all this sounds simple it takes a heap of equipment to make it work. Automatic loading facilities on over three quarters of a mile of siding helps. So does a machine that automatically computes and places just the right grade of grain into each car as called for by the contract. So do two dryers with 11,200-bushel an hour capacity.

To store the produce before shipping the original 400,000 bushel storage capacity is being upped to 1.15 million bushels.

King says that a unique drive-in routing of farmers has made quick unloading of trucks possible. A truck can be handled in about seven minutes with wheat and we were pushing them through in about four minutes during the corn season, Bauer ex-

The Terminal was started in the summer of 1974 and a year later swung into high gear after an open house.

In December of 1975 the cooperative signed the contract that boosted the terminal to its present size.

The terminal is now capable of loading a 65-car train and is as large as any anywhere, says King.

Merchants wrap up 2nd half title

Cass City wrapped up the second half championship of the Thumb Traveling League the way that must have been most pleasing for the team...

before the home folks. The Merchants faced Mayville at Cass City Wednesday, Aug. 18, and walked off with a 4-1 decision behind the five-hit hurling of Rick Reynolds. It was the second time this year that the southpaw hurler defeated the potent Mayville

Wally Hempton started the scoring for Cass City with a home run to deep center in the second. In the fourth Ken Lowe and Hempton singled. Hempton stole second and Lowe trotted home when the throw went into center field.

In the top of the sixth, Mayville scored and threatened to go ahead. With one run in and the potential tying and winning run on base, the tying run was cut down at the plate and Reynolds stiffened to get the next batter to quell the rally.

When Cass City went on to score a pair in the bottom of the inning the game was iced. Henry Cooklin singled, Lowe tripled and Reynolds singled to net the scores. Four players hit .400 or better in league competition. Don Galbraith showed the way with .460 and 13 runs batted in. Hempton hit .421 with 18 RBI's. Ken Lowe was next with .411 and 14 RBI's while Jerry Toner hit .408 and led the team with 17 RBI's.

TOURNAMENT PLAY

The Merchants played in another tournament over the week end. This one was at Bay City. It was divided into division and championship play. Cass City was undefeated in its division, one of 12-5. Rick Reynolds started and was relieved by Helwig in the second. Galbraith and Lowe hit for the circuit and drove in three runs each.

Rick Reynolds came back against Adrian to toss a 13-5 decision. Mike Murphy hit a homer with the bases loaded. Cooklin also hit for the circuit. Helwig, Lowe and Hempton tripled.

Helwig returned to the mound against Ann Arbor and tossed a 5-4 decision. His teammates were forced to come from behind to win. Ann Arbor led, 4-3, going into the last of the seventh. Cooklin was hit by a pitch and Lowe singled. Hempton grounded out to move the runners up. With two on and two outs Toner singled home both runners to win the game. A game against First State Bank of Saginaw wasn't as close. Cass City won behind Reynolds, 14-4. Ron Ouvry hit a homer, triple and double. Toner and Hempton also hit for the circuit.

Cass City was eliminated by Coral Gables of Lansing in the semi-finals, 11-10, in ten

It looked as if it might be easy sledding for Cass Čity as they pounded out a 5-0 lead in the first two innings. That big a lead for Craig Helwig is normally money in the bank.

But Sunday it wasn't Lansing came back with threerun rallies in both the fourth and fifth to go ahead. Cass City tied it again in the bottom of the fifth.

The winners went ahead in the seventh with two runs but Cass City also scored two to tie. The eighth inning was a rerun of the seventh. Coral Gables scored twice and Cass City rallied to tie. Toner singled, Cooklin was hit by a pitch and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Hempton singled them home. In the tenth, Lansing scored again and this time Cass City

School golfers

to report

Friday morn

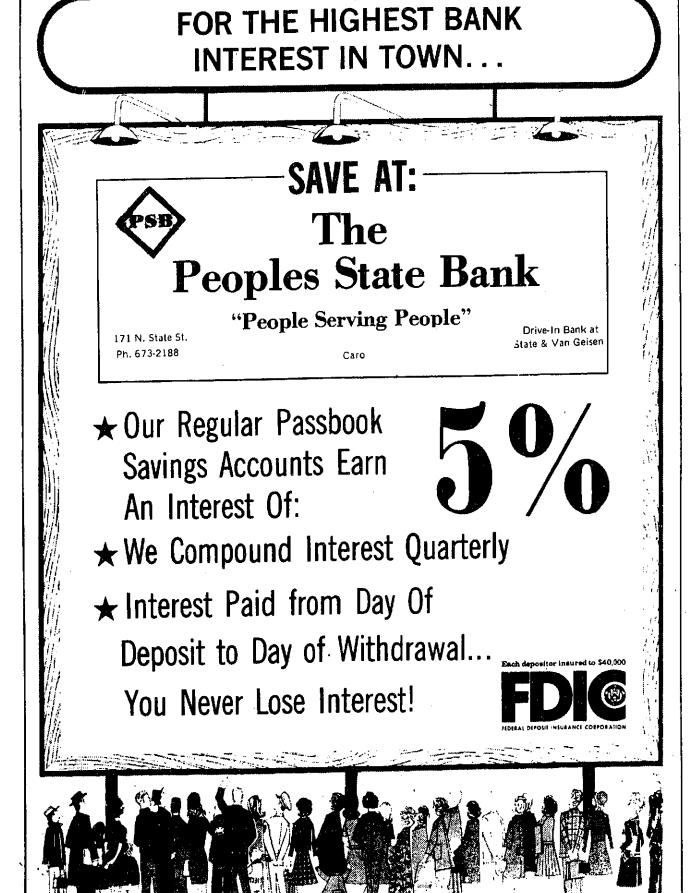

Dave Lovejoy has been appointed the new Cass City High School golf coach replacing Tom Woody who resigned.

The new coach immediately announced that a practice for all persons wishing to try out for the team will be held Friday at 9 a.m. at Rolling Hills Golf Course.

Coaching is not a new field for Lovejoy. He previously Brenda Goslin, CC, 119.8 served as Cass City's golf coach, His last year was 1972 when he coached an all-victorious Thumb B conference title squad.

DILEMMA

Some can't find words for their thoughts — others can't find thoughts for their words.

Lady golfers hold fun day tourney

Rolling Hills Ladies' Golf League held a fun day Tuesday, with 18 players participating in a two-person scramble tournament.

Prizes were awarded to Toby Weaver and Fran Lovejoy for low gross score of 42. Runners-up were Gene Palmer and Michelle Zdrojewski, with a 44.

Linda Marshall and Elaine Proctor received the low putt prize with 16, while Mary LaPeer and Clara Gaffney won the high putts with 19.

Harriet Richards and Kathy Tuckey tied for the longest drive on the eighth hole. Sandy Robinson had the shortest drive on the first

Marge Repshinska and Dolly Taylor had the best poker hand with five sixes. Norma Wallace and Dolores Tuckey had the high gross of The ladies and their children were guests of Harriet Richards for a hot dog roast and swim party following the golf match. Next Tuesday, Aug. 31, a nine-hole handicap tournament will be held. Morning groups will meet at 8:30 a.m. and the afternoon group at Prizes will be awarded for low net, first, second and
