

Cass City board o. $2.1 million budget

The Cass City School Board approved a $2.1 million budget for 1976-77 that was up $100,000 over the previous year, at the annual meeting and budget hearing held Monday at the high school.

The budget shows a deficit for the first time in recent years. If estimates prove accurate, the school would end the year $35,742 in the red.

Supt. Donald Crouse told the board and interested residents that some of the increased cost was for unemployment that the school now has to pay for the first time.

For the first time revenues are expected to pass the $2 million mark. Local revenue is expected to generate $902,858, the lion's share of $20,933 coming from personal and property taxes.

State revenues will generate some $2.2 million, according to the budget. Last year total revenues were just under $2 million.

HOT LUNCH PROGRAM

While a deficit has been promised in the general fund, the school is making money on its hot lunch program.

Figures released by Dr. Edward Scollon at the annual meeting showed that the program had netted a profit of $9,581 for the year, which is about 8 per cent.

There was no change in the prices charged last year and Crouse said that none was anticipated this year. The hot lunch program does owe the general fund $5,000 and it is likely that the money will be repaid.

The board is on record as not running the hot lunch program for a profit or with a deficit. However, because the amount of surplus government food available each year varies, figuring the amount to charge is difficult.

$100,000 ADDITION

The slight deficit in the budget didn't deter the board from proceeding with plans for an addition to the Willis Campbell Elementary Building or repairs of the school's track.

Crouse told the board that a 3,000-square foot addition would probably cost the district about $100,000.

The board authorized architects Harman, Tibedeau, Wedge and Associates, Inc., to draw designs for the addition.

The school will pay $6,000 for the work, including 12 on site inspections, if the building is built and about $500 for preliminary work if the addition is not built.

The cost to the taxpayer for the building is expected to be one mill ($1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation) for one year. Using a complicated State formula, it is estimated that 60 per cent of the cost would be State funded and the remainder raised with the local tax.

The board also approved spending an estimated $1,000 to place tile in a gravel bed around the track at Cass City Recreational Park.

After considerable discussion, a plan suggested by Crouse involving the use of a backhoe was adopted. Alternative plan was to hire a tiling machine.

Another school building project was not approved or disapproved by the board. The Tuscola Intermediate School District requested the board to vote on whether it would approve the building of a skill center for the county.

Most trustees felt that more information was necessary before any commitment could be made. The county turned down a proposition for a center several years ago.

Owen-Gage board turns aside bond revote petitions

The Owen-Gage School Board turned aside petitions calling for a new bond referendum during its regular meeting Monday night in Owendale.

The board refused to act on the documents reportedly bearing 391 signatures and calling for a revote of the $1.675 million bond issue designed to finance a new high school building.

Supt. Ronald Erickson told the board and about 25 persons who attended the meeting the petitions could not be accepted.

"There cannot be another vote," Erickson said. "We cannot even resubmit it (the bond issue)."

Erickson based his stand on a ruling by Attorney General Frank Kelley last June in which he says approved bond issues may not be resubmitted.

Erickson said the ruling settles the question.

During the reading of the petition, Erickson said even though 391 district residents had signed, another 746 signed an earlier petition to retain the district.

Jeri Kretschmer, chairman of the Owen-Gage Citizens' Committee, questioned school attorney James Schouman on how long the district would have to bear legal costs incurred from dissidents.

"An irresponsible minority can cost us money," Schouman said. "They haven't been abusive yet, but if further harassment continues, they can expose themselves to legal action such as suits for damages."

"The board could authorize action against those who actively interfere with the operations of the school district if it's done out of spite."

Schouman said Owen-Gage citizens have formed a consensus that they want to keep their school district and that they've been successful.

"You've stood up to the bureaucracy and said to them 'you must obey the law,'" Schouman said.

The petitions were filed two weeks ago—the same day the Municipal Finance Commission approved the bond issue.

RULING "FLIMSY"

Kenneth Voelker, spokesman for the dissidents, said Tuesday he is still optimistic that the bond sale can be stopped.

Voelker called Kelley's bond issue ruling "flimsy", claiming it attempted to draw a parallel with Michigan and other states.

He said his group remains convinced it can stop the sale with a court injunction if necessary. Voelker maintains the bonds cannot be sold until the prospectus is approved by MFC.

The board okayed publication of a bond sale notice at Monday's meeting. Erickson said the bonds should be let out by Oct. 27 and be ready for sale so that all territory is back in the district before taxes are levied.

Only one parcel—the Ellenbaum transfer—remains outside the current Owen-Gage boundaries.

Last week, the case was moved from Huron County to Ingham County Circuit Court where a ruling is expected soon. It is unknown whether Judge James T. Kallman, who has ruled in Owen-Gage's favor in three other cases, will also hear this case.

There are five judges in the Ingham Circuit, Schouman said. He added it is unlikely another judge in the same district would rule counter to Kallman's precedent.

In related action, the board granted Erickson authority to set debt retirement millage. A figure isn't available yet, he said, pending action on the Ellenbaum parcel.

BUDGET

Owen-Gage trustees approved a budget of $654,400 for the 1976-77 school year, down nearly $14,000 from last year.

Much of the cut is reflected in reduced instruction costs. This year's costs are estimated at $413,955, down from the $428,202 the district actually spent last year.

Erickson said the drop was caused by not replacing two teachers who resigned at the end of last year.

Overall elementary school costs were set at $204,620, up nearly $13,000 from last year. Total secondary costs are set at $209,335.

Local revenues should total $556,800, State aid, including transportation, special ed and drivers' ed revenues, should reach $51,100. Title I and CETA monies are estimated at $45,500.

The district will carry over a deficit of $24,017 from last year.

Erickson's salary for the 1976-77 year was budgeted at $17,900, with high school Principal James Barr receiving $16,985 and Gagetown Elementary Principal William Britt receiving $14,750.

Erickson said the budget figures are tentative, pending the signing of contracts with teachers. Negotiations are still in progress with no hint of how far apart each side remains.

Richards defends attendance policy

Russell Richards told the Cass City School Board that he felt the new school attendance policy was proving effective.

Speaking at the regular meeting of the board Monday evening he said that absenteeism had dropped from 35 to 40 a day or 5 to 5.7 per cent last year to 31 to 33 a day or 4.4 to 4.7 per cent this year.

The new regulations require parents to phone excuses to the school or have the students charged with an unexcused absence.

Mrs. Joyce Lane is one of the parents objecting to one of the provisions of the new regulations. It calls for the reduction of one grade mark for each unexcused absence in a six-week marking period.

She feels this is too harsh and wrote the American Civil Liberties Union of Flint about it. At first the Union said it was unconstitutional but in a letter written last week, the spokesman, Harold C. Ford, said that he was mistaken and the rule was not in conflict with existing law.

He also said that the law had not been tested and said that penalizing a student academically for a disciplinary infraction may be violating the "due process" of the 14th amendment. The board accepted without comment the principal's report.

AGAINST PROPOSAL

The board also heard Bob Gengler, a teacher at the school, say that the Cass City Teachers' Association as well as administrative personnel were against proposal C on the ballot.

In other action the board, meeting in a session closed to the press and public, decided that Ms. Karen Wallace's request for payment of expenses for a course she audited be paid if a condition is met.

What the board wants is a release from the Cass City Teachers' Association saying that if payment is made it will not be regarded as a precedent.

Teachers auditing a course attend but receive no credit.

One item on the agenda was cancelled. Representatives of the junior class were to have requested permission to hold the prom and banquet off school grounds but the reps failed to appear.

It is not anticipated that there will be trouble securing the permission.

County tax bill hits $10 million

Tuscola county's total tax bill should crack the $10 million mark for the first time in history, county Commissioners learned Tuesday as they got their first look at the 1976 tax allocation report prepared by the Equalization Department.

As the long budget session got underway, the picture brought few surprises. Increased valuations and higher allocated taxes are in the works.

The new year's county property tax bill totals $10,084,826, up by $1,112,073 from the 1975 total, a 12 per cent jump.

At the same time, valuation stands at $286,482,299, up by a little over $11 million from a year ago or about 4.6 per cent.

Commenting on the report, County Equalization Director

Mac O'Dell said the increase in valuation was less than the rise in total taxes due mostly to the added county bridge millage and special voted millages in the individual townships.

The 12 per cent rise does not mean everyone's property tax will jump by that figure. What it does mean is that more dollars will be flowing into county coffers.

Individual increases depend on the township and the value of the property, O'Dell pointed out.

Locally, Elkland township's share of the tax burden was set at $695,215, an increase of $14,556 from last year or just over two per cent. Other townships weren't so lucky.

Ellington township saw its share of the tax burden jump a whopping 25 per cent to $201,013—up from last year's $160,546. It's the second year in a row the largely agricultural township has taken it on the chin.

Last year, Ellington residents saw their share of the county tax load jump by 23 per cent.

Kingston township also saw its share jump by double figures, up 13 per cent. This year, Kingston township's share of county taxes was set at $254,792, compared with $223,723 last year.

Novesta township residents will have to shoulder 10 per cent more of the county's tax load. Its tax bill was hiked to $191,372, up from last year's $172,665.

Elmwood township, which took a 17 per cent hike on the chin last year, got by with only a five per cent increase this year. Elmwood's tax bill was set at $310,705, up from $295,710 last year.

VALUATIONS

Two area townships, Elkland and Elmwood, actually recorded slight valuation drops in 1976.

Elkland's value was set at $19,748,700, down $102,600 from last year. Elmwood township's valuation was placed at $8,704,700, a drop of $84,800 from 1975.

O'Dell said the decreases were due largely to value lost when the state shifted to the Single Business Tax. In the switch, personal property values were removed from local assessments, he said.

Ellington recorded a nine per cent jump, climbing to $5,417,400 from last year's $4,928,200.

Novesta township's valuation was set at $6,029,400, four per cent higher than last year's $5,726,600.

Kingston township's valuation increased four per cent to $7,041,970, up from last year's $6,747,350.

Elkland township's share of tax money to help operate county government was set at $82,944, with $19,748 in voter-approved county bridge millage.

The Tuscola Intermediate School District is scheduled to receive $30,253 from the township in special education millage, up over $10,000 from last year, thanks to a voter-approved millage request earlier this year.

Elkland's share of operating expenses for the district will drop by $20 from last year's total to $2,836.

The township's share of the ## Fire does $20,000 damage

Fire believed caused from an overheated woodburning stove did an estimated $20,000 damage to the Gary Wills home on Gilbert Road, eight miles northeast of Cass City in Sanilac county, early Friday morning.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the blaze was spotted shortly after 7:30 a.m. by Mrs. Wills.

Jezewski said the fire gutted the upstairs portion of the home, burned several holes through the roof and did extensive structural damage.

The house also suffered heavy water damage.

Jezewski said the fire either started from sparks from the chimney or an overheated smokestack on the stove.

Firemen from Uby and Bad Axe assisted in fighting the blaze. They remained at the scene nearly three hours.

No one was injured. The home was reportedly insured.

There must be a thousand persons or more who will take in one of the Billy Graham Crusade meetings at Pontiac Stadium that start Friday.

Several church buses will make the trip and at least one caravan of cars.

Add this to the eight full bus loads that the William O'Dells have arranged and you come up with an impressive total.

Incidentally, in case you have been wondering, the trips arranged by the O'Dells were non-profit for them. A labor of love.

Gremlins placed a newspaper clipping on my desk telling that the Old Farmer's Almanac predicts that it will be a long, extremely frigid winter in these parts.

I don't know for sure who dropped this piece of intelligentsia on my desk but if you asked me to guess I'd say her initials were Dorothy Phillips, the Chronicle ad staffer who half-believes those predictions.

Because the mail wasn't delivered Monday I had a copy of a letter written to Principal Russell Richards before he received the original.

Mine was hand delivered Monday, the day the post office was closed. It concerned the rules on absenteeism at the high school. Richards reported about it to the school board Monday night and said that he hadn't heard from the American Civil Liberties Union as expected.

Surprise! I was able to hand him the copy of the letter that he probably received the next morning.

Regular readers will recall that we boasted recently about new machinery installed at the Chronicle.

Let me bring you up to date. It arrived and it took nine factory servicemen (and five weeks) to get it running. This week the bugs were finally ironed out.

With this beautiful machine the work was a snap. Right? Wrong.

With less to do than in an average week, the entire staff was tearing its hair and as Betty Ball, our resident composing expert, summed it up: "Slow, slow, slow," she said. So much for the computer age.

Jim McCoy, head honcho at TV-3, called me Saturday morning to see if the video tape replay of the Cass City-Vassar football game was better than the replay of the Cass City-Sandusky game that I knocked in this column of trivia. It was, it was, I told him. You'll never know how hard we worked to make it happen, said genial Jim.

The new lights helped, McCoy explained, but it wasn't the entire problem. I didn't ask him to tell me more. I've never been able to understand why a faucet leaks or a drain plugs, let alone what causes a TV picture to go blah just when I want it most.

John Alvin Bulla, 22, 6777 Kelly Rd., Cass City, faced arraignment Tuesday in Tuscola County District Court on a breaking and entering charge.

Bulla was arrested early Saturday evening by Cass City Police and Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies in a cottage on Crawford Road, southeast of Cass City.

According to a police report, Bulla was allegedly discovered hiding under a bed following a search of the cottage. He reportedly surrendered at gunpoint.

Cass City Patrolman Donald Miller and Deputy Phillip Malloy made the arrest.

Police were reportedly led to the scene by a nearby resident who telephoned authorities.

Bulla was placed on $2,500 bond by Judge Richard Kern. Pre-proliminary examination was set for Oct. 18, with preliminary exam Oct. 27.

Two other area men also face court examination on charges of marijuana possession and open container violations.

Scott William Fox, 19, of 4506 W. Sanilac Rd., Snover, and Rodney Allen Gerstberger, 19, of Decker Rd., Decker, were each placed on $250 bond and ordered to appear Oct. 18.

The pair was arrested by Tuscola deputies who spotted their parked vehicle on M-24, about three miles south of Caro.

Officers allegedly found an open whisky bottle and seven plastic bags filled with marijuana inside their car. The arrest was made shortly before 11 p.m.

ANTENNA DAMAGED

James McCoy, Caro, reported a "dish" antenna, part of his cable TV installation located at the south edge of Cass City, was damaged by shots from a .22 caliber rifle fired sometime in the past two weeks.

Cass City Police said five holes were fired through the antenna from an easterly direction. Chief Gene Wilson said Tuesday no suspects have been apprehended. McCoy said it would take about $400 to repair the antenna.

VANDALISM

Cass City Police reported two trucks parked behind the Quaker Maid store Sunday were damaged by stones.

Windshields in both vehicles were heavily damaged, police said. The trucks are owned by Leo Talaski, Ubyly, and Ryder Truck Rental of Detroit.

David Conzelman of Gilford Road, Deford, reported the larceny of a shotgun, rifle, two diamond rings and household items valued at $593 Thursday, Oct. 7.

Sheriff's officers said thieves entered through the garage and reached through a window to unlock a door to the house.

No suspects have been arrested.

Gene S. Cox, Drayton Plains, reported two fuel tanks and a furnace were damaged by vandals who entered a house he owns near the Deckerville-Phillips Road intersection west of Deford, Wednesday, Oct. 6.

Cox told officers the break-in probably took place around Oct. 1.

No suspects have been apprehended.

Klopps mark anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Klopp of Cass City marked their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday at Good Shepherd Lutheran church. Flowers adorned the altar for the morning worship service, a gift from the Ladies Aid.

A fellowship dinner was held Sunday evening at the church. The Klopps were presented the altar flowers and a cake, which was made and decorated by Mrs. Richard Easton.

The Klopps have a grandson, Peter Kessler, who resides with them. Their only daughter, the late Mrs. Hedy Kessler, died in 1975.

Editor's Corner

I told my wife that she doesn't dare accuse me of being a male chauvinist, the other day after reading Dr. Joyce Brothers' column. That was probably the wrong way to put it. She dared all right. But that's another story and has nothing to do with what's under discussion here.

What I wanted to point out to her and to you is that I may not have been a perfect husband all these years but I tried. I tried.

A frustrated female wrote to Dr. Brothers the other day and complained as a recent widow she is completely lost without him.

Not that we had a perfect marriage, she confessed, but when he was alive I never learned to drive, to pay bills, handle money or go from place to place.

The brute. Dr. Brothers explained that it was the result of the double standard. Women can become totally dependent on men who feel that in order to live up to their role, feel they must do everything for their women. This is just as unfair to the women as it is to the men involved, says the good doctor.

How right she is. Now I've done a great deal throughout our married life to see that my wife won't be dependent on me. After all I let her work in the office and in the home, too. (She'll have to do it all after I'm gone).

While we don't have a perfect marriage either, I'll confess that Dorothy has been fair with me. She lets me keep my allowance each week and bimonthly she lets me know if there is enough money left in the kick to pay the bills.

So I feel that I've really done my bit. But after reading about these dependent wives I've decided that I really haven't done enough.

I can do more. What would happen, for instance, if I'm gone and the sewer gets plugged again? Would she know enough to go down to the village offices and get the "snake" and clean it out? Of course not. I've always done that.

The next time that happens I'm going to lean over backwards to be more fair. I'll let her do it. Then she'll know. Of course I'll be available upstairs to give advice if she really needs it, but that's all. We learn by doing.

That's just an example. When I think about it I realize just how unfair I've really been. There are plenty of experiences she must have to get rid of that lost feeling after I'm gone. Letting the dog in at 2 a.m., fixing flat tires, figuring out why the blasted office furnace doesn't work, cutting the lawn and a myriad of other situations where I've been hogging the whole show.

That's all got to change. I can't go around town having people point the finger at me for ignoring my wife's plight.

Above all I've got to be fair. Even if it means giving up all those things that I used to think were a man's job. Isn't she lucky to have a fair minded husband like me?

"If It Fitz . . ."

Has Ford also lusted?

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The Democrats will demand that all presidential candidates make their impure heartbeats public.

The precedent has already been set. When one candidate makes full disclosure of his financial records, his opponent is forced to do the same thing. If he refuses, he immediately becomes suspect. What is he trying to hide?

Now Jimmy Carter has revealed that he has committed adultery in his heart.

What has President Ford committed in his heart?

The public has a right to know.

Also, now that Carter has allowed a slight peek behind his teeth, he must expect that his heart will be the subject of more detailed scrutiny.

Carter has frankly admitted he has "looked on a lot of women with lust." His candor is to be admired — if it is not a smoke screen.

It is not an uncommon ploy for a sinner to confess readily to minor infractions, thus gaining praise for coming forward voluntarily. And people are so proud of him for honestly admitting that he walked on the grass, they wouldn't think of questioning him about the despoiled maiden hiding in the bushes.

I am reminded of my Catholic childhood when I was taught to beware of "all sins of thought, word, deed or omission." In the confessional, I would feign the priest to the point of absolution, I would so swamp him with accounts of my soiled thoughts that my dirty deeds often sneaked by unnoticed by the crowd.

Naturally, the first question to occur after Carter's initial revelation concerns the identity of the women with whom he frolicked in his heart. Anyone we know?

The public also has a legitimate interest in Mrs. Carter's reaction to her husband's Playboy confessions. A TV reporter asked her what she thought about Jimmy playing around in his heart, and her answer sounded evasive. "Jimmy is a wonderful husband," she said.

Mrs. Carter must beware of being too understanding. She could blow the women's lib vote. After all, she is as human as Jimmy, and there has to be a limit to her Betty Crocker sweetness.

Does Jimmy have carte blanche? Or is he safe from domestic troubles only as long as he confines his sinning to his left and right ventricles, and doesn't stray along the aorta?

And is it only a matter of time before Ladies Home Journal asks the hardest question: Has Mrs. Carter ever committed adultery in her heart?

In the face of her competition Mrs. Carter would be well advised to drop the cornpone generalities and give specific answers to all questions about her impure heartbeats. The woman she hopes to replace, Betty Ford, has already demonstrated she doesn't mind telling the world what she has on her mind. She can be expected to be just as open about her heart.

You probably remember that Mrs. Ford appeared on TV last year and told Morley Safer that she wouldn't be surprised if her daughter had an affair. If she can be that casual about what goes on in her family, Lord only knows what she permits in her heart.

Which brings us to the man on the spot, President Ford. It is Ford foremost who must answer the Democratic challenge. Carter has revealed the sins in his heart. The next move is up to Ford, and he had better move cautiously.

Everyone remembers what Betty Ford told Morley Safer about her daughter. But you've probably forgotten that Betty also discussed Jerry's behavior on that same program. She said she doesn't mind that her husband enjoys looking at pretty girls.

So it is already a matter of public record that the president ogles. Now he must reveal what is going on in his heart while he watches a deep décolletage jiggle along a reception line.

Either that or face the charge of not being a born-again candidate.

Obviously, when Carter opened his heart, he added a new element to political campaigns. The possibilities are fascinating.

Before a candidate reveals his financial history, he hires a sharp accountant. Before he bares his heart, he may hire a doctor for exploratory surgery.

How about a transplant? "Give me a heart without a centerfold, Doc."

County budget nudges $3 million mark

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners gave its tentative approval to a $2,772,459 operating budget for 1977 during its regular meeting Tuesday in Caro.

The figure is 12 per cent above anticipated 1976 expenditures and a whopping 26 per cent higher than last year's approved figure of $2,193,000.

Most of the increases came in probate child care, the Medical Care Facility, the Sheriff's department and employee insurances.

In fact, insurances showed some of the largest jumps. Employees' hospital insurance was budgeted at $91,000 for 1977, compared with only $55,000 this year.

Life insurance increased $700 to $5,000 and social security payments skyrocketed to $80,409 from just $69,370 this year.

Retirement funding will cost the county $126,425 in 1977, up from $121,640 this year.

The Sheriff's department will receive $468,939 in 1977, an increase of a little over $2,000 from this year. The figure is nearly $5,000 less than Sheriff Hugh Marr had requested.

The financially troubled Medical Care Facility is earmarked for $100,000 up $8,000 from projected 1976 totals but $128,794 less than director Don Peterhans had requested.

Comr. Richard Dehmelt, Caro, a member of the finance committee, said a final solution to the squeeze hasn't been found yet and probably won't until well into the new year.

Last year, state Medicaid payments to the facility were cut by over $2.00 per patient per day.

Care costs for children under probate jurisdiction were budgeted at $126,500, up $8,500 from projected 1976 totals.

Dehmelt said the increase is due to more cases and because many must be sent to detention homes out of the county. He said the county probate court has not been active since the illness of Judge Bates Wills and many cases must be handled in neighboring counties.

Several departments will be faced with living on reduced budgets in 1977. Prosecuting Attorney Patrick Joslyn's request for $71,770 was pared to just $54,682, over $1,000 lower than projected 1976 expenses.

Probably the biggest slash comes in the Cooperative Extension Service. Just $37,791 was budgeted, compared to a projected $58,442 this year and a request for $62,056 for 1977.

Dehmelt said Extension Director Bill Bortel had included two CETA employees in his request, hoping to keep them on the payroll when federal funding expires at the end of January.

Dehmelt said the board decided the workers were expendable.

Once again, no salary increases are included in the new budget. Dehmelt said this gives the board freedom to negotiate with employee unions without locking itself into a figure.

He said increases in salaries will probably be made up from the county contingency fund.

INCOME

Total county income in 1977 is estimated at $2,469,629, including $188,816 in Federal Revenue Sharing monies. A fund balance of $302,830 was added to make the budget balance.

County funding is based on a State Equalized Valuation of $285,734,420 and a tax rate of 4.2 mills for county operation.

Dehmelt said once again a large chunk of revenue sharing funds is needed to make the county books balance.

"I'm worried about these types of things that we have no control over," he said. "I'm also concerned about programs that the state has turned over to us to operate. If we could get rid of three or four of these, I think we could live within our means without any trouble."

While getting a tentative okay Tuesday, the budget must still face a formal hearing Oct. 26 before its official adoption.

It was just two years ago that Tuscola county adopted its first $2 million-plus budget.

Total department requests were $3,035,461.

Area doctors attend dinner

A dinner for the Medical Staff of Hills and Dales Hospital was scheduled Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the large meeting room of the hospital, Dr. H.T. Donahue, Chairman of Medical Gifts, announced this week.

Held in conjunction with the hospital's building fund campaign, the dinner will be an informative session supplying full information on the proposed construction of an Emergency-Outpatient building and the updating of certain areas of the main hospital building.

Jack L. Datti, architect, will be present for discussion and questions.

A non-profit institution, the hospital is dependent upon gifts and pledges of individuals, businesses, and organizations to meet the estimated $500,000 building costs.

The Building Fund Campaign will continue through Dec. 24.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Pet peeves

By Jim Ketchum

It's pet peeve time once again. Time for your harried reporter to throw his annual temper tantrum. Not that it accomplishes anything.

It just lets me blow off a little steam and lets you say either "Sure, I agree" or "What does that dummy know."

Peeve number one: The 55 mile-an-hour speed limit. I think it's great. Unfortunately, nobody else does. We took a little spin to Grayling and back not long ago and I could have sworn I was at the Indianapolis 500 racetrack.

At 55, I passed one car, driven by an old man wearing a hat. You can always tell the slow drivers. They're old men who wear hats. My father-in-law passed along this tidbit just before he asked me if my intentions with his daughter were honorable.

I like driving 55 for a lot of reasons. It's more restful than whizzing along at 70. You get to see a little more of the country.

Your gas gauge doesn't drop as fast and neither does the life expectancy of your car.

Why doesn't anybody else agree with me? I stood at attention and saluted when three motorists drove side-by-side along the I-94 expressway at 55 miles an hour from Jackson to Detroit a few months ago.

They tied up traffic for miles because nobody could go a hundred miles an hour. That's justice.

Peeve number two: Sloppy penmanship. Since my handwriting has deteriorated, I carry a typewriter wherever I go so I can communicate. At the office, I have problems when someone leaves me an important piece of news I can't read.

If you want me to put in something, make sure I can read it. If you can't type it, write it so anybody could read it. Then you're happy when it gets in print and you won't have to chew me out Thursday morning for guessing wrong.

Peeve number three: Telephones. I've told you before about answering the phone and being greeted by "Who's this?" That's probably my biggest peeve, but there are others.

For instance, why do all the long-distance lines from Cass City break down on Tuesday afternoon, when I need the phone the most? Or why, in the middle of an important conversation, do I start getting static that makes the receiver smoke?

And for all this, I get to pay a whooper of a bill each month. Who says the inmates aren't running the asylum?

Peeve number four: Elections. Who cares who wins the Presidential election? The sun will still rise in the east the day after it's all over. There's not much difference in the two candidates anyhow.

With one notable exception, the system has managed to give us reasonably good men who've done a reasonably good job. And with the exception, the system eventually got rid of him.

Thanks. I needed that.

BETTER HEALTH

Lou Gehrig's Disease

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Substituting for the vacationing Dr. Welch this month is Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, former nationally syndicated columnist and Emeritus Consultant of Medicine, Mayo Clinic. These selections are taken from "Dr. Walter C. Alvarez on Health and Life," published by Major Books.)

Anyone who has recently learned to his sorrow that he or a loved one has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis will want to read an excellent article on the subject by Robert G. Dicus in the "Rehabilitation Gazette" (4502 Maryland Ave., St. Louis, Montana 63108, Volume XVI, 1973).

For ten years, Mr. Dicus has fought with the disease called ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease, after the famous baseball player who died of the disease in 1941. Although Mr. Dicus is in a wheelchair, he is able to write and produce motion pictures, support his wife and family and he has just learned to be a computer programmer.

What is wonderful about the article by Mr. Dicus is that he can give much hope to people with ALS. Unfortunately, the picture is discouraging for the person with the disease because the cause is not known and there is no known cure. The doctor may say, "There is nothing anyone can do."

Dicus says, "As a patient, I have come to know that there is a great deal which the patient and his family must do to survive."

ALS generally strikes a man when he is about 50. Twice as many men as women are affected. The patient would do well to have the diagnosis confirmed by two or three able neurologists, but, as Mr. Dicus says, there is no use in traveling around hunting for a cure; this only wastes money, time and energy and certainly there is no sense in giving money to quacks.

One of the first things that the patient and his family can do is to join the National Paraplegia Foundation, 333 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601. This organization is concerned with furthering research and can keep its members informed about any progress that has been made.

Also, families with ALS members have formed the ALS Foundation, Inc., 10212 Noble Ave., Mission Hills, Calif. 91340, which can offer help and advice on meeting some of the problems that come with the disease.

Mr. Dicus warns the patient and his family against becoming too frightened. He says so wisely what I have known for many years -- that fear can kill a person. The person can do things to keep fighting the disease. For example, it is important to eat nutritious foods and avoid infections that can weaken the body. There may come extreme fatigue, muscle cramps, twitching and increasing weakness of the muscles. Some patients have trouble breathing.

It should be very encouraging to people facing ALS to know that Mr. Dicus is still able to work and be productive after ten years with the disease. Perhaps research workers soon will find some clues as to the cause of this strange and distressing disease.

Curiously, although many people know very little about the disease, I read that it is as prevalent as multiple sclerosis (a disease of the nervous system) and four times more prevalent than muscular dystrophy (a wasting disease of the muscles).

Some people wonder if the disease is hereditary and there is some question about this. There are two papers on the subject by Drs. L.D. Kurland and D.W. Mulder of the Mayo Clinic. Years ago, Dr. Mulder, a distinguished neurologist, found a surprisingly large incidence of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in the natives on the island of Guam. The cause there could possibly be much imbreeding in a small population.

In 1960, Lieutenant J.B. Green wrote a paper about a family in which ALS showed up in four generations -- in the father, two sons, a daughter, two granddaughters and one great-grandson.

There seem to be three separate types of the disease: (1) the sporadic form, which is the most common type found in the United States and accounts for more than 90 percent of the cases occurring in North America and Western Europe; (2) the familial, or hereditary form and (3) the Guam type, which is the major cause of death among Chamorro people.

Your neighbor says

Mandatory sentences get nod

In the wake of a steadily increasing crime rate, mandatory jail sentences are being advocated by some persons as a deterrent to crime. If a lawbreaker knows he's going to jail, they say, he may think twice.

Esther Buehrly of Cass City agrees.

"You get too many criminals who say if I don't go to jail, I'll do it again," she says. "I think a mandatory jail term might help out."

She says even an overnight stay in jail might help steer some persons away from a life of crime.

Still, she doesn't believe scrapping the probation system totally is the answer either.

"I think you should have probation for first offenses," she says. "But after that, in they go. Anyone can make a mistake the first time, but if they don't prove themselves, then they should go to jail."

Ms. Buehrly is an employee of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Cancer unit plans 'victory dinner'

Plans are being made for a victory dinner by the Tuscola County Unit, American Cancer Society. The goal of $29,000 was passed by more than $3,000 in the recent crusade, according to Mrs. Robert Cassidy, 1976 crusade chairperson.

The executive board of the Unit met recently at the Denmark Township Hall.

Various reports included the treasurer's report which stated that more than $1,000 was obtained from the Walter Hagen golf tournaments and more than $1,400 was received as memorials.

This being the first meeting of this fiscal year, the budget was renewed. Due to the large number of persons being helped at this time, the allotted budget of $2,300 for patient care was not enough. Mrs. Ruth Hoffman explained that of every dollar collected during the crusade, 40 cents goes directly to New York for raw research, and national expenses. As much as 45 per cent can come back to the county. Fifteen per cent goes to the division office of which 9.6 per cent is used for management and special application.

Plans were formulated for the Oct. 25 "Crusade Victory" meeting, preceded by a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and a 7 p.m. potluck dinner. Everyone is invited to attend. Bring food to pass and your own table service to St. Francis X Cabrini Catholic church in Vassar. A program is being planned.

Jim McCann on the Issues

ON TAXES—"State government is going to have to tighten its belt in order to pay its bills without raising taxes."

ON UNEMPLOYMENT—"State government must provide additional tax credits to businesses wishing to move into or expand in Michigan, thereby creating more jobs."

ON SENIOR CITIZENS—"Additional tax credits must be provided to our senior citizens and other fixed income groups to help them live in an inflationary economy."

ON CRIME—"Drug-related crimes, especially against property, are on the rise in rural areas. We're going to have to crack down hard on the manufacturers and pushers of drugs."

Jim McCann knows that what people are telling him is right. But, most important of all, Jim McCann will work... work hard at finding solutions to those problems.

Notice to Beagios Pizza Customers

We originally planned Beagios Pizza to be not only a good place to eat, but one that the local youth could play pool.

However, in the past 6 months, there have been pool tables damaged, table tops ruined and the carpet completely destroyed with cigarette burns by the youth.

Since we do not and will not provide baby sitting for those who should be old enough to respect other people and other people's property we therefore must alter our original plan.

On Oct. 11 and 12 Beagios Pizza will be closed to replace the carpet and tables and redecorate. At this time all coin operated machines and pool tables will be removed and we will no longer allow the youth to loiter on the premises.

We apologize to our past and present customers for the actions of those who have caused us to take the above steps. Our aim is to serve as good a product as there is available and a nice place in which to consume it.

Even tho chicken is no longer available at our Cass City location, we are replacing it with our steak sandwiches and submarine sandwiches, upon reopening Oct. 13, 1976.

We wish to thank those who have continued to patronize Beagios Pizza and look forward to seeing you again.

Yours truly

Legal use of snow studs cut this year

Only motorists whose cars are equipped with radial-ply tires will be able to use studded snow tires legally on Michigan roads this winter, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The only studs permitted in radial-ply snow tires are known commercially as Perma-T Grippers, and they can be used only during those periods set by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation.

North of a line from Mason to Arenac counties, the approved studs are legal from Oct. 1 to May 1. Below that line, they are permitted from Nov. 15 to April 1.

The legal Perma-T Gripper studs contain tungsten carbide fragments in a soft matrix and cost an average $5 to $6 per tire installed, Auto Club states.

Motorists are advised not to use radial-ply tires in combination with bias-ply or other type tires. Mixing tires could cause a car to go out of control, Auto Club states.

Michigan motorists traveling state roads with illegal studs or with legal "soft studs" outside the set time periods are subject to a fine of up to $100 and/or a jail sentence of up to 90 days, Auto Club warns.

It is the practice of Michigan State Police to extend to out-of-state motorists traveling Michigan roads the same privileges for studded tires permitted in their home states, Auto Club notes.

Studs are illegal at any time in the adjacent state of Wisconsin and in the Canadian province of Ontario. Five other states in which studs are totally banned are Hawaii, Illinois, Louisiana, Minnesota and Mississippi. (Minnesota permits out-of-state motorists with studded tires to drive on its roads for 30 days.)

LOOK MA - No hands. With the use of this giant boom workers had little trouble placing the new lights on their foundations. It proved to be the easiest part of the job at Cass City High School football field.

Lakers to test Cass City Friday

Last half rally pushes Hawks past Vassar

Cass City will have to play more than one half of the football game Friday if the Hawks expect to chalk up a win over big, rough Lakers, said Coach Roland Pakonen this week.

The Laker game marks the beginning of the nitty-gritty of the 1976 grid. The "easy" part of the schedule was completed last week when the Hawks defeated Vassar, 19-6, for their third win in four outings.

When the Hawks face the Lakers it will be homecoming time for their hosts and that figures to make them tougher than ever.

Not that the Lakers were any soft touches before. They've lost to Caro and Bad Axe, the cream of the Thumb

B Conference this season, and the team lists 12 players 185 pounds or heavier.

It looked as if Cass City were going to lose two in a row in the first two quarters against the Vulcans.

The visitors dominated the game. They rolled for a touchdown and substantial yardage during the first two periods while Cass City was able to garner only a first down by a penalty and had the ball for only 14 plays in the first half.

The turning point came with a minute left in the first half.

Vassar had already capped a drive of 37 yards with a touchdown on a 30-yard jaunt by Daryl Albrecht and moved to the Cass City 8 with a first and goal.

Three plays later the ball was on the one-yard line and a dive through the middle was stacked up and Cass City left the field behind by 6-0 instead of two touchdowns.

While Cass City was completely dominated in the first half, the Hawks took control in the second.

One of the reasons for the surge was a 34-yard pass from Jeff Hartel to Tom Dorland that gave Cass City a first down on the Vassar 29.

In the first half three good passes were dropped by Hawk receivers, one that would have netted a touchdown.

Three plays later Clarke Haire dashed off tackle, faked the secondary and went 20 yards to score. The total drive covered 72 yards in 7 plays. Gary Warju's kick for extra point was good and Cass City led 7-6 with 5:54 remaining in the third quarter.

Neither team was able to mount a sustained drive after that.

The Hawks were moving the ball but breakdowns at crucial times kept them from scoring again. The second touchdown came when Vassar tried a long pass which was intercepted by Haire on the Vassar 40. He ran it back to the 10 from where Cass City scored in three plays. Tony Doerr rammed over from the one after Mike Lowe picked up most of the yardage in the three plays.

The final marker came after Vassar attempted a desperation run on fourth and long on their own 32. When it failed, Cass City scored in two plays, both runs by Lowe. He scored from the one with 12 seconds left.

Pakonen said that for the first time this year the defensive tackles played a strong game to help the defense contain the Vulcans.

Haire led Hawk rushers with 75 yards in 11 carries for a 6.8 yard average. Lowe had 46 yards for a 5.7 average.

Dorland caught the key pass and on defense was credited with 16 tackles.

Haire was next with 6 from his defensive safety spot.

Girls roll to 2 easy league wins

Thinclads post first victory

Before this week the hard work of the new Cass City cross country team had been rewarded only in steadily improving lower times for the three-mile run.

Last Friday the rewards were greater. In addition to posting better times the Hawks registered their first win of the season, topping Vassar, 25-30.

Coach Ron Nurnberger said that all runners posted their best times of the year. Steve Richards racked up his third win of the season with a 18:55. Steve Bean placed fourth in 18:11; Chuck Clark, fifth in 18:16; Tim Fortson, seventh in 18:31 and Jeff Zink, eighth in 18:37.

Cass City stepped out in fast company Tuesday, Oct. 5, at Mayville where they finished last among four teams. Mayville won easily and is favored to be the State champion this fall. The scoring was: Mayville, 27; North Branch, 37; Capac, 47; Cass City, 97.

Steve Richards led Cass City with a 16:18.

The Cass City distaff Hawks chalked up an easy 67-30 win against Caro Monday in a home contest.

Lisa Zimba led the way with 20 points, putting on another of her patented performances. Kim Witherspoon added 10 points for the Hawks with Robbie Leslie canning seven points.

For Caro, Nancy Stein led her squad with nine points.

It wasn't a tight game, Coach Kally Maharg said. The Hawks held a commanding 25-5 lead at the end of the first quarter and coasted most of the way home.

The Hawks shot 40 per cent from the floor.

The squad was scheduled to meet Bad Axe Wednesday in an away contest.

Seibert accepts post

Dr. Marlin Roll, Director of the Caro Regional Center, has announced the appointment of Thomas Seibert as program director and clinical psychologist for the transitional adult training unit.

According to Dr. Roll, the unit provides training and care for 84 residents over the age of 25. The program prepares these individuals to advance into work programs and semi-independent living situations.

"I will be responsible for making appropriate programs available to these residents," stated Mr. Seibert. "In addition, I will be serving as unit psychologist. I hope that the dual role will allow me to deal more directly with each individual and their problems. I will be designing appropriate treatment plans and then working on imple-

Roll up those sleeves — swine flu shots are ready

Bruce B. Bragg of the Thumb District Health Department announced last week that plans for the swine flu immunization program have been completed for Tuscola and Lapeer counties.

In Tuscola county the massive effort is expected to attract 31,000 persons 18 years old and older to one of eight locations across the county where the free vaccine will be administered.

The free clinic program starts Monday, Oct. 25, and ends Monday, Nov. 1. Cass City's clinic will be Friday, Oct. 29, from 3 to 8 p.m. at St. Pancratius Hall.

But it is not necessary for residents to wait until the free clinic to become immunized. Health department officials stressed that the vaccine is expected to be in the hands of the doctors for distribution Oct. 15-25.

If residents prefer to attend their private physician there is still no charge for the vaccine but there probably will be a charge for the office call.

At a news briefing last Thursday health officials outlined some of the do's and don't's of the program:

- Do wear a sleeveless or short-sleeved garment. It saves a bundle of time, said officials.

- Do not take the vaccine if allergic to eggs since the vaccine is grown in eggs.

- Do be prepared to visit a clinic at another location if you missed the one nearest your home.

- Don't take the vaccine if you have a fever or within 14 days of receiving diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, smallpox or other flu vaccines.

Actually there will be two types of vaccines issued at the clinics. For most persons 18-60 the vaccine will be monovalent inoculations administered by the jet gun.

For residents over 60, children over three with chronic disease conditions and adults with chronic heart, kidney diseases and diabetes, congenital or severe anemia there will be a special bivalent inoculation. The bivalent vaccine will be administered with a needle and syringe in the traditional manner.

The jet gun will do most of the work. Its advantage is that it's fast and nearly painless.

A health department official described the "shot" by jet gun like a snap from a rubber band.

The jet gun administers the vaccine by injecting it in the pores and between blood vessels.

With the use of the jet gun and plenty of volunteers, officials expect to immunize about 1,000 persons an hour using two guns.

The guns come on lend lease from the State and are passed around to the various counties as programs get underway.

Questioning by health officials and the reading of release forms by patients is completed while residents wait their turn.

There is little chance of serious reaction and none of getting the swine flu from the dead virus. Tests have shown a reaction in about 2 per cent of patients.

The two per cent could have a sore arm or slight fever for 24 hours or less, authorities said.

The vaccine will protect against the swine flu but not against other strains of virus, health officials concluded.

DNR pushes landfill closing

The Department of Natural Resources has apparently given little ground in the continuing struggle over county landfill operations, it was learned Tuesday by the County Board of Commissioners.

The DNR is reportedly reluctant to allow a Vassar landfill owner to continue hauling into his county site. State authorities have ordered H&M Disposal to either meet rigid requirements or close.

Commr. Maynard McConkey said according to the DNR, the owners could haul to a Saginaw county site, to Caro or even as far as Cass City.

"We don't see any crisis," McConkey said. "Everybody will continue to be served no matter what happens."

Bruce Bragg, Thumb District Health Department Director and Ed Kimbree of the DNR appeared before the board to explain the situation.

The health department has been placed in charge of developing a solid waste disposal plan for the county which meets state standards.

Besides budget and allocation business, the board decided to apply for funds under a recently-passed federal public works program to build an animal control shelter.

McConkey said no specific amount has been set. Project costs won't be known until plans are developed.

The shelter will reportedly be patterned after a similar facility built at East Tawas.

In other business, the board okayed $9,500 for Tuscola county's portion of the Thumb Area Commission on Aging's budget for 1977.

The board requested a study of the aging commission's operations in 1977.

Huron and Sanilac counties are also scheduled to contribute $9,500, McConkey said.

CMU enrollment hits 16,004

Central Michigan University's record fall enrollment this semester includes students from each of Michigan's 83 counties, with students coming in the greatest numbers from Oakland, Wayne and Isabella counties. A county-by-county breakdown of CMU's 16,004 enrollment shows that 15,681, or nearly 98 per cent, of the total are from Michigan, with 233 students on campus from 41 other states. Ninety foreign students are attending CMU this year.

A total of 185 students from Tuscola County are currently at CMU, ranking 14th among Michigan counties represented on the campus. Sanilac ranks 23rd with 152 students and Huron County's 169 students ranks 22nd.

It's now or never for Sanilac Petroglyphs, Hoffman says

It's practically now or never for the Sanilac Petroglyph Park project.

That's the opinion of State Rep. Quincy Hoffman (R-Applegate) who last week blasted the Michigan History Division of the Secretary of State's office for what he called "foot-dragging" in the development of the park.

The site, located in Greenleaf township eight miles east and three miles north of Cass City, has been earmarked as an historic park for the last seven years.

Hoffman says nearly $100,000 has been appropriated for site acquisition, structure construction, fencing and parking lot areas.

"To date, nothing has been accomplished," Hoffman said. "I feel this is a result of the Attorney General's opinion of three years ago which took the jurisdiction of historical state parks from the DNR and gave it to the Michigan History Division."

"Since then, there has been continual political bickering while the petroglyphs continue to erode," he said.

Hoffman told the Chronicle this week that unless something is done within a matter of months to save the unique Indian rock carvings, they may be lost.

The carvings, said to be over 500 years old, were largely protected from erosion for many years by large cork pine forests which stood in the area. These forests were destroyed during the Great Fire of 1881.

The highly porous rock has since been battered by wind, rain, snow and ice. Some carvings have already been worn down and may soon be wiped out, experts say.

"They're going to have to do something within the next few months or they might as well forget it," Hoffman said.

At least twice before, Hoffman said he's received assurances from both the history division (a branch of the Secretary of State's office) and the DNR that their feud had been settled and that construction was about to begin.

"We were told there'd be a shelter built in time for this winter," Hoffman said this week. "Well, now we're headed into another winter with no shelter. If they don't act soon, there won't be anything to save."

Hoffman says he's worried about the park's funding being lost due to inaction. "If somebody sees this money lying around not being used, there's a chance it could be reappropriated someplace else," he says.

He claims the delays are political because the park is located in a traditionally Republican area of the state. Secretary of State Richard Austin is a Democrat.

Hoffman maintains another park near Eight Mile Road in Detroit has been constructed which wasn't even on the drawing boards before the Petroglyph plans had been okayed.

"It is a shame that this historic area is being sacrificed because of political haggling between the History Division and the DNR," he says.

"I have long felt the DNR had done a splendid job, however one cannot say the same for the History Division."

Norman Berkowitz, deputy Secretary of State, told the Chronicle this week no politics is involved in the park's construction. He denied other projects had received favorable treatment because of their location.

Berkowitz also denied there is any friction between the History Division and the DNR.

"Both departments are working together on this project," he said. "We approved plans in May but we wanted power built into the building and so we sent the plans to the DNR for modification. We haven't gotten them back yet, but when they are ready, we'll submit it for bids."

Berkowitz agreed it's too late to erect a shelter over the petroglyphs this year but that construction should be well underway next spring.

He said placing a plastic or canvas cover over the rock formations isn't the answer either.

"We've found from past experience that covering them would do more damage than leaving them as they are," he said. "Moisture collects underneath and freezes, splitting the rocks apart."

Berkowitz said $50,000 has been budgeted for the shelter which will include low-level light to highlight the rock carvings. The building will not be heated.

Additional funds are also available for purchasing more surrounding land for the park.

Berkowitz said whether or not the land is purchased, the shelter will be built.

Break-in charge nets Guilds Jackson prison sentence

Louis A. Guilds, 30, Caro, was sentenced to serve from three to 15 years in Jackson prison on charges of breaking and entering. The sentence was handed down by Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Martin Clements during motion day Tuesday.

Guilds will receive credit for 63 days already served.

Four persons were arraigned on separate charges Tuesday. Jerry Lee Bicknell stood mute during his arraignment on charges of breaking and entering and larceny in a building.

An innocent plea was entered and pre-trial examination was set for Oct. 25. Bond was continued at $2,500.

Bicknell was arrested Sept. 7 in Indianfields township.

Rickey Duane Monchilov, 18, Akron, stood mute during his arraignment on a negligent homicide charge. Pre-trial examination was set for Nov. 9 and a $1,000 bond was continued.

Monchilov is charged in the death of David Samuel Gray in an auto crash in Denmark township June 4.

Timothy Howard Conely, 22, Caro, faces pre-trial examination Nov. 8 after he stood mute on a bad check charge. A plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Conely is accused of writing bad checks totaling $162.00.

Terrie Lynn Wright, 22, Vassar, stood mute on two bad check charges and innocent pleas were entered in her behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for Nov. 22 and bond was continued at $2,000.

Report minor injuries in 4 area accidents

Only minor injuries were reported this week in four area traffic accidents.

The most serious crash took place early Tuesday morning when a car driven by Robert Wayne Fox, 19, of Caro, went out of control and ran into a ditch at the Deckerville-Dodge Road intersection.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said Fox was east-bound on Deckerville Road when the accident took place. He was treated for cuts and bruises at Caro Community Hospital and released. The accident took place at 1:30 a.m.

Three persons were shaken up in a three-car accident Wednesday, Oct. 6, on M-81, eight miles southwest of Cass City.

The accident took place when a car driven southwest by Loren Roy O'Harris, 17, of Unionville, struck a stopped vehicle operated by Joann Marie Goodell, 17, of 6200 Green Rd., Galetown.

The impact forced the Goodell auto into the rear of a car driven by Norman Charles Hurd, 23, of 5130 Shabbona Rd., Deford. Deputies said the Hurd vehicle was attempting a left turn into a driveway when the accident took place.

Shelley Lynn Gallagher, 17, of 5284 Koepgen Rd., Cass City, a passenger in the Goodell vehicle, received bruises and a broken set of eyeglasses in the accident. The driver was also shaken up as was Alex Peter Braun, 17, Caro, a passenger in the Hurd auto.

O'Harris, who was uninjured, was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions. Hurd was also cited for defective brake lights on his vehicle.

The accident took place at 12:15 p.m.

Karen Elizabeth Gilmore, 38, of 5932 Rossman Rd., Kingston, was shaken up when the car she was driving ran off Stevens Road, five miles northeast of Kingston, and struck a tree.

Sheriff's deputies said Ms. Gilmore apparently swerved to miss a dog in the roadway, struck the animal and lost control of her car. The vehicle ran off the north side of the road, hitting the tree.

Faye Gilmore, 11, a passenger, was also shaken up. Donald R. Parsell, 22, of Stevens Rd., Deford, escaped serious injury Thursday night when his car ran off Froede Road, three miles west of Kingston, and landed in a ditch.

Caro State Police said Parsell apparently fell asleep behind the wheel and ran into a ditch on the west side of the road. The car rolled over and came to rest on top of the west ditchbank.

The accident took place at 7:40 p.m.

Publicity not in her mind

Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich.

Dear Sirs,

Enclosed is a check for the ad concerning the Aug. 7 reunion.

I am sorry the committee did not provide you with more publicity for that event since so many people asked about it. But we just had such a wonderful time preparing for it and visiting with former friends we didn't give publicity enough thought.

Letters to the Editor

Let's tell full story

October 8, 1976

Dear Editor,

I don't know where you got your information for the accident report in last week's paper concerning our son Bill, who by the way is 19 not 16. It would be better if all details were published. The report failed to mention that Brian LeFever was a conservation officer and that he was driving with his lights out. Luckily no one was injured.

Suppose someone had been walking or had been standing by the car changing a tire. Maybe it is legal for officers to drive without lights but not the average citizen on the road. I have often passed a stopped car on the road without lights but have not smashed into it.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Robert Bader

SCADS OF MONEY

Necessity may be the mother of invention, but progress is the parent of taxation.

County tax bill hits

$10 million

county drain spread jumped drastically for 1976, standing at $4,771.45, more than three times last year's total. Another $2,439.68 is due from the general fund.

O'Dell said countywide totals could change depending on whether or not the Owen-Gage School District successfully spreads its voter-approved building millage in time for the new year.

USE CHRONICLE

Fewer pupils at school

There are 43 fewer students attending school in the Owen-Gage district than last year, according to official "fourth Friday" totals revealed during Monday night's school board meeting.

Owen-Gage reported 478 students enrolled in school, down from the 521 recorded on the fourth Friday in 1975. Elementary enrollment totaled 229 students, down by 28. Secondary enrollment was set at 249, a drop of 15 students.

The decline has forced the board to close the St. Agatha school building in Galetown. Trustees once again took no action on whether or not to let its lease with the parish expire.

Woman's political role more important — Mrs. Esch

A woman's role in politics is more than just a piece of window dressing, according to Mrs. Olga Esch, wife of Congressman Marvin Esch, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Today's political wife is much more knowledgeable and independent, she says.

"She's not there just to smile," Mrs. Esch says. Mrs. Esch was in Cass City Monday to stump for her husband who is opposing Democratic Congressman Donald Riegle of Flint for the seat vacated by Sen. Philip Hart.

Mrs. Esch said this is her seventh political campaign on behalf of her husband. During the past 18 months, she has campaigns with Esch. During the last few weeks before the election, each is conducting separate campaign trips in order to meet more people.

"In this way, we can redouble our efforts to insure a solid victory in November," she says.

Mrs. Esch said the whole family was encouraged by this week's Detroit News poll indicating Esch has gained substantial ground on Riegle.

"I think it's a sign that our opponent is crumbling and that we're advancing," she says. "The people do see a difference between the candidates."

She sees her role in the campaign as an extension of her husband. "I see myself as another set of eyes and ears for Marvin," she says. "I've been visiting senior citizens homes and I've tried to visit all federal buildings as well."

Mrs. Esch says voters have talked about three main issues—government interference in their lives, jobs and crime.

She says her husband favors jailing repeat offenders. "It's time to let the taxpayer have some measure of safety," she says. "Our opponent voted to let repeaters out. Marvin favors building the jails to hold them temporarily."

In jobs, Mrs. Esch said her husband helped write the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act which has given 175,000 jobs to Michigan. She says it represents Esch's philosophy that government should help the private sector create jobs.

He opposes the Humphrey-Hawkins Full Employment bill which sets the federal government up as the employer of last resort, she says.

Mrs. Esch says her husband is opposed to what she termed "ridiculous" rules included in such legislation as the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA). She said this is an example of government interfering in the private lives of citizens.

Mrs. Esch says her husband can work with the Democratic majority since he has the respect of both parties. "This is something our opponent doesn't have," she says. "Marvin has gotten things done, while our opponent hasn't."

While she sees optimism among many potential voters, she also admits there's much voter apathy, stemming partly from incidents such as the Wayne Hays affair and Watergate.

"I think what's encouraging is that in spite of these things, our country has survived," she says. "I'm very optimistic. There is still great strength in our people."

Mrs. Esch says Republicans still have their principles and that more voters are turning to them for leadership.

Referring to the effect of Richard Nixon on the campaign, Mrs. Esch says her husband was one of the first Republican congressmen who called for a full disclosure of the incident.

She says in spite of what happened four years ago, Republicans can still be a potent force in American politics.

Mrs. Esch's day included stops in Sandusky, Bad Axe and Caro as well as Cass City.

Kent names staff

W. Wallace Kent Jr., candidate for Tuscola County Probate Judge, announced this week the naming of Dorr Wiltse of Caro as his campaign manager and of Dorr N. (Norm) Wiltse Jr., as treasurer.

Wiltse Sr. is a native of Tuscola county and operates an insurance agency in Caro. Norm Wiltse recently retired from the Michigan State Police after 19 years of service.

Kent attended the University of Colorado and graduated from Kalamazoo College in 1965 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He has been a resident of Caro and practiced law in Tuscola county since graduation from the University of Michigan Law School in 1967.

Kent is married and the father of four children.

New open meeting law closes gaping loophole

Who cares if "public bodies" do their business in public? Everybody should. They're doing the public's business and spending taxpayers' money. Voters have a right—and a duty, really—to know what's going on.

Even if they don't want to attend the meeting themselves, members of the tax-paying public should care if their media representatives are allowed into meetings of "public bodies" to carry out their roles as watchdogs of government.

Thus the "hurrahs" came from many quarters when Michigan's new open meetings law won approval. The measure—a lion's share of the credit for which goes to Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing—takes effect April 1, 1977.

A super loophole exists in current law, which requires only that the final vote on a given topic must be taken in public. Discussion of the question can be behind closed doors and never become known to those outside.

The new law requires all meetings of a public body to be open to the public and... held in a place available to the general public... "All decisions of a public body shall be made at a meeting open to the public," the law declares.

There are exceptions, of course, such as chance encounters and social occasions. (Some consider that provision a loophole too, but others point out that it probably would be quite unconstitutional to try regulating the social activities of anyone—public officials included.)

Other exceptions are meetings held to discuss:

Disciplining an employee, public officer or student.

Collective bargaining strategy and negotiation sessions when either party asks for a closed hearing.

Purchase of real estate, up to the time option, purchase or lease is obtained.

Pending litigation, if it is determined that open discussion would be harmful to the public body's legal case.

Review of applications for employment.

Partisan caucuses of the legislature also are exempt.

Mushroom Hassle

Canned imports may present serious problems for Michigan's mushroom industry—no tiny matter when you consider that the state produced about 10 million pounds of mushrooms last year.

Calling the industry "small but unique," Gov. William Milliken explained that South Korea and Taiwan have dramatically increased their exports to this country.

"Canned mushroom imports were 50 per cent higher this July than a year ago, and growers in Michigan and other states faced the very real risk of not finding a market for their crops," the governor said.

President Ford has sent a special trade negotiator abroad to discuss possible voluntary mushroom shipment restraints with officials in South Korea and Taiwan.

Learning Metrics

Liters of milk, kilograms of tomatoes and greenbeans... That's what Michigan consumers may find in their grocery carts in the not too distant future.

The state's Department of Agriculture notes that Michigan is slowly changing over to the metric system, as are all other states in the nation.

But those who may think metrics complicated might think again—about the metric measure they're already familiar with. Take, for instance, kilowatts of electricity, metrically measured skis (and shoes, in some cases) as well as camera lenses and other brought-from-abroad equipment.

Metrics also can help accuracy in the international trade of agricultural products.

Marketing advisor Mansour Bejaoui points out that the most widely known measures—pounds and bushels—are not as precise as metric measures. The bushel, he notes, is commonly agreed to be 2150.42 cubic inches in volume. But its weight ranges from 60 pounds for wheat to 56 pounds for corn and 32 pounds for oats.

New Honorees

The Michigan Highways Hall of Honor, established to cite outstanding contributions to the development of state highway, road and street transportation systems, added four names to its rolls.

They included: Talbert Abrams, a pioneer in aerial surveying for highways; the late Mortimer E. Cooley, the University of Michigan's best known engineering dean; the late William D. Monroe, a leading municipal engineer; and the late Sen. Michael J. O'Brien, the state lawmaker "most responsible for enactment of Michigan's basic highway law."

Inside Plumbin' and the R.E.A.

Just turn on the spigot and the water just comes right out. No pumpin' or primin' to do, either. Same thing with that switch over there on the wall... flip it on and the room lit up like a sun burst. That's what it must have felt like when thousands of farm families first got electricity and plumbing. The R.E.A. lit up rural America and farm families had the first taste of modern conveniences back in the 40's.

Today's farm families enjoy all of the modern conveniences. Farmers participate in local government, belong to service clubs and share many of the same tastes and activities as their city cousins. It wasn't always like that.

The American farmer has worked hard for a long overdue reward.
