High School Teams in Classes B and D Will Compete for Honors.

Charles E. Forsythe, State Director of Athletics, notified the Cass City school officials Monday that the Class B and Class D High Schools in this section of the Upper Thumb will compete in the school gymnasium here for district basketball honors on March 6, 7 and 8. This will be the fourth consecutive year that the Class B school teams have come to Cass City for their district tournament games. Cass City's central location in the Upper Thumb and its fine high school gymnasium make it a popular choice with state athletic officials.

Although no definite list of the school teams has yet been received, they will most probably include Bad Axe, Caro, Marquette, Sandusky and Cass City in Class B and Gagetown, Owendale, Uby, Minden City, Unionville and Kingston in Class D.

Orion Cardew of the high school faculty will again serve as tournament manager.

"Where Did You Get That Hat?" Asks Rotary Ann

Probably more than one Rotary Ann exclaimed "Where did you get that hat?" when her better half came home from the Rotary luncheon on Tuesday. If she thought the hat was ill-fitting, she should have seen Auctioneer Willis Campbell wield the big shears and cut several lids that appeared worse to him and for which he received only low bids.

Rotarians were surprised after their luncheon at Hotel Gordon on Tuesday, to see a tableful of their hats brought into the dining room by Willis Campbell and Otto Priekorn and to hear the announcement that the hats would be sold at auction. Proceeds reached a figure approaching $24.00 which went into the crippled children's fund.

I will be a candidate for the Non-Partisan nomination of Circuit Judge for the Fortieth Judicial Circuit, consisting of the Counties of Tuscola and Lapeer, at the Primary Election to be held February 17, 1941. May I ask for your consideration and support?

Wilmot Couple Have Been Married for 63 Years

In the twilight of life, Mr. and Mrs. Asa E. Durkee are spending their declining years in the quietude of Wilmot, a little village in Kingston Township. On the last day of 1940, they celebrated their 63rd marriage anniversary serenely in their home. Usually, their only daughter, Mrs. Arnot Marshall, of Rochester, comes to spend the holidays and anniversary with her parents, but illness prevented her from doing so last month.

Mr. Durkee is now 88 years of age and Mrs. Durkee, the former Mary Erb, is 80. Both were born near Ottaville, Ont., and they were united in marriage near Summerville in that province. After two years of wedded life there, they came to North Branch and 10 years later located in Kingston. In this village, Mr. Durkee conducted a general store for nine years. For 30 years they resided near Wickware, in Greenleaf Township, where they engaged in farming. Seven years ago, they moved to Wilmot to reside near Mrs. Durkee's sister.

While farming near Wickware, Mr. Durkee was injured when he was assisting in moving a barn on the Kirtan farm, eight miles east of Cass City, and he has never entirely recovered from this injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Durkee have always been affiliated with Methodist churches in the places where they have resided.

Cass City High School's basketball team lost to Sandusky last Tuesday night by a 23-15 score. Sandusky's height proved to be their advantage as they kept the locals from getting in close to the basket and recovered most of the balls from the bank board.

Sandusky started off to an early lead and built it up to 12 to 2 at half time. Cass City came back to outscore the Sanilac team the second half, but Sandusky's early lead was too much to overcome.

The Cass City Reserves led all the way to take a decision from the Sandusky Reserves, 29-21. Auten of Cass City and Wagner of Sandusky tied for scoring honors with 11 points apiece.

By BEATRICE WHITNEY
STRAIGHT
(Guest conductor for
L. L. Stevenson.)

I love New York for its beauty; I hate it for its brutality. Unlike many New Yorkers, I don't think of it as a grand and exciting place to live. To me, it is a place to come to on a boat, through the dawn, when skyscrapers loom through the early mist. Then it is a city of promise. But it is not a place to linger long. It is a city to taste and be off—to leave across a bridge; stopping, to look back at the resplendent magnitude of its skyline; listening, to catch its rhythmic, subdued roar. New York at a distance is wonderful—especially at dawn or dusk, the shadowy outlines of its buildings dotted by lights that blink off and on; its rivers, with their ferryboats, and pleasure ships, and wharfs, and sound, and smoke; its bridges, the most beautiful in the world, swinging so eagerly and so gracefully onto the island, approached by a lacework of parkways.

Although born here, I do not, like most native New Yorkers, have a composite picture of the city that merges the impressions of various ages. I left here when I was 11 and I have a picture of the city in which my childhood was spent. Later, I came back for a year; and I have a picture of the city in which I was a busy and serious young student. Away again, and now back to live outside of the city; and I have pictures of a New York to which I dash on hurried visits and for rushed appointments. Usually, they are in connection with the Chekhov Theater studio at Ridgefield, Conn., where I live and work as assistant director, as a teacher of talented young drama students, as an actress; the most thrilling and, to me, the most important experience of my life.

This New York offers no leisure hours to wander as one pleases. New York can become, threatens to become, a horror—until one stumbles upon some wonderful person, some funny little shop of a specialist in wigs, or costumes, or shoes, or some of the many things needed for stage productions—maybe a secondhand shop full of marvelous things, hard to tear one's self away from; an auction sale; a quaint shop in Chinatown or on the Bowery.

Except on Sundays. Then it's a different New York. New York on a Sunday or a holiday is a city of great dignity, of peace, calm and beauty. One can walk instead of run. One can choose what one will do, and do it slowly. One can enjoy the moments instead of longing for the end.

In the winter, though, New York is at its best. The lights are brilliant in the cold. The keen air is fresh and clean. Plays, music, movement—yes, the winter is its time.

And the early spring. In Central park, the tulip trees; the many nurses and the children; the dogs and their funny masters, so incongruous; foreign old men with their tiny top hats on the round pond in the park, their pride in the beautifully fashioned little ships that collide or pass so gracefully in the light.

The drive along the Hudson river, on the edge of the island, looking over to the busy Jersey shore and the towering Palisades, is as fantastically lovely as the views from the bridges.

New York today differs from the picture that lingers from my childhood—a city that held the magic of flying spears and disappearing ladies at the opera; red and yellow whirligigs that whistled in the wind; the man who sold the colored balloons, the circus, roller-skating and fighting with my brother.

Nor is it the New York of my student days. I loved the evening stillness of the park. I loved the trolleys, their slowness; people's faces; the crooked little streets of Greenwich village; restaurants, a different country each night, sitting and talking and relaxing after meals; the elevated looking into people's homes, imagining the hundreds of lives being lived behind those walls.

New York! Its beauty makes me almost forget the brutality that tinges my love with hate.

Fads and Fancies

Girls, wouldn't you love a cunning little turban with a cluster of color-bright crochet flowers posed gaily atop? To this add a neckpiece formed of the same crochet flowers also a muff made entirely of single-stitch crochet bordered with a fringe of the wool yarn in multi-color to match a bouquet of knitted flowers pinned to the muff. It is easy to make and tremendously smart and chic, we assure you.

Glitter embroidery with nail-heads is latest whim for evening glove and slipper sets. The long gloves are embroidered up to the elbow with the nailheads and the slippers repeat the same process of ornamentation. Ambitious women whose clothes budget does not include these expensive sets are embroidering their own suede or satin gloves and slippers.

NYA TO SECURE EMPLOYMENT FOR YOUNG FOLKS HERE

ministration in 1935. Each county is allotted a quota in proportion to the number of unemployed youth in the state. This unemployment is designed to better a youth's chances of obtaining a job in private industry. Attesting to the soundness of the program is the fact that an average of 500 youth left the NYA rolls each month for private employment during the past year, and they attributed much of their success to work experience gained on NYA projects.

Reason for the record NYA employment this year is the additional money appropriated by Congress in the interest of national defense. This supplemental appropriation has resulted in expansion of the NYA program in the state, and by January 15 there will be 20,000 youth on NYA out-of-school projects, Kaye reports.

The expansion has enabled the NYA to lower the eligibility age which will permit a limited number of youth 16 years of age, out-of-school and unemployed, to benefit from the advantages of NYA employment. Youth in this age group must be referred by local school superintendents who are acquainted with the needs of young people in their communities. The maximum eligibility age for NYA employment is 24.

Types of work on which these youth are employed include highway, road and street improvement; improvement of grounds around public buildings, work in educational buildings, construction of social and recreational buildings, construction of airport buildings and facilities, construction of recreational facilities other than buildings, conservation, clerical assistance, public health and hospital work, library service and book repair, recreational leadership, sewing, nursery schools, homemaking, workshops, and resident work experience centers.

Foremost development in the program during the past year has been the swing toward the national defense theme. Realizing that industries expanding because of defense orders would be requiring new workers, the NYA has geared their program to provide youth with experience in production situations so they will have a better chance to obtain these jobs.

N. Bigelow &amp; Sons Offer New Service

New floor surfacing equipment is announced by N. Bigelow & Sons as a new feature of their business. Mr. F. A. Bigelow of the company remarked, as he discussed the added equipment, "The Handy Sandy is a portable type floor sander, absolutely dustless, quiet and very easy to operate. Floor sanding is no longer such a big job as it was when it meant having a crew to operate huge, expensive machines. The Handy Sandy weighs only 72 pounds, easily carried in an automobile. Almost anyone can operate it to do an excellent job of re-moving old varnish or paint and dressing down the floor to a perfect surface."

N. Bigelow & Sons offer their new portable sanding machine for rent. They invite inquiries and volunteer to demonstrate this new equipment at their store upon request. It eliminates long hours of back-breaking scraping by hand.

Modern Women Are Adopting Home Sewing as Their Hobby

ARE you among the thousands of enthusiastic women who have taken up home sewing as a hobby? Not only is this a fascinating pastime but it has been proven that the "make your own" venture is a profitable and gratifying one. It yields big dividends in style, quality, and money saving, and gives a feeling of general satisfaction in the matter of self expression and accomplishment.

One of the chief rewards home-sewing offers is that the money saved "in the making" enables one to buy the best in materials. Women who make their own pretty frocks and blouses rejoice because they can afford to be "choosy" about the materials they use. Perhaps no other argument is so frequently stressed as this: "Making my own clothes, I can afford the best of materials."

Even if you are a beginner, you'll find it easy to reproduce smart couture touches in your wardrobe with the aid of modern equipment. The tucks, gatherings, and darts that distinguish current fashions are within easy reach of amateur sewers. Modern sewing machine attachments have put all these dressmaker details at command of the most untutored novice. Even if you have never sewn a stitch you can learn to do a professional job by spending a few afternoons in the sewing center in your community.

The illustration presents several easy-to-make models. The daring charm of the gown shown to the left belies the simplicity with which it is made. The pattern is delightfully free from complications and your sewing machine will whisk up the seams in the gored skirt in a jiffy. It's no trick at all to make the sectional joinings of the midriff and bodice with flat seams that flatter

The rustling romantic evening gown of moonbeam blue rayon moire centered in the group is a good style for beginners to undertake. Should you possibly encounter a puzzling move, a few hours spent at the sewing center will clear the way that leads to a professional looking job.

When it comes to a glamorous evening dress that's easy to sew, the model of printed crepe to the right is just that. The hood adds an air of mystery. When you don't want it to shelter your curls you will find that it folds into a lovely soft collar. It is one of the noted cover-up dinner frock types that are definitely high style this winter. Its fashion points are legion. The long bishop sleeves and the cummerbund that hugs your waistline all bespeak outstanding style details. The waist and skirt are separate, so repeat your costume in various combinations, and change about.

Perhaps the most fun and satisfaction of all lies in making up a wardrobe of pretty house frocks of lovely wash materials. You will find the day-long dress in the inset gives you a grand start in sewing. Fitted and flared with touches of white lace ruffles at neckline and sleeves, this type frock is ever so flattering. Use the ruffler attachment to your machine for the beruffled neckline. The little hemstitcher gadget will achieve picot ed slits for the ribbon-run beading at the neckline.

Pastel plaids and vividly striped taffetas are ideal materials for evening wear. For daytime wear there are exciting new clan plaids, gay corduroys, jersey of sleek rayon weave or warm "comfy" wool type. A fashion "must" is the dress of spun rayon or sheer wool in pastel shade made classically simple, depending on effective jewelry and colorful accessories for "last word" chic. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Winter Housecoat Gains in Elegance

New fashions for leisure hours are, many of them, as elaborate as your favorite evening dress. They are designed with sweeping skirts, slim waists and gleaming metal embroidery. Even when your budget is limited, it is possible to choose a housecoat or lounging robe that has fashion significance.

The trend toward slim skirts has had small influence in this group and skirts are as wide as they have ever been. Newness is seen in the colors, the fabrics and the trimming details.

The vogue for spotted furs has brought lounging robes with spotted trimming. The covered-up look inspires long, full sleeves and high necks, as well as skirts snugly fastened with slide fasteners from neck to knee.

Fabrics run the gamut from printed cottons to deep-pile velvets and soft wools. Printed satins and printed wool jerseys are some of the newest.

Single Piece of Jewelry Gains New Importance Each season there are certain outstanding fashion gestures that become increasingly and conspicuously important as the season advances. One such is the matter of wearing a single gorgeous glittering clip or brooch pinned to the bodice of your classic simple daytime frock. Flowery sprays and exotic birds are favored motifs. These are done in colorful glittering stones or sparkling rhinestones and to say they are dazzling mildly expresses it.

Penwiper Felts

The new penwiper felt hats are especially designed for young girls. They are offered in all bright colors from which can be chosen the correct personalized color according to the birth date of the wearer. The jaunty quill is in reality a quill pen and cleverly concealed in the perky bows at the back is a pencil. With one of these hats on your head it's easy to get autographs at unexpected moments. The teen-age adore these novel hats.

Lace Yokes Nowadays the big idea is the simple frock that takes on glamorous accessories. A striking reaction to this trend is found in separate yokes, bibs and revers that sparkle with glittering beadwork.

Lansing—Confronted with a state legislature that is not subservient to his command, Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner, the third Democrat to occupy the state executive office in ten years, has undertaken a challenging task to "make democracy work" in Michigan.

Not mere pious words are these, as expressed in his inaugural address.

Critical days of 1941 demand a closely coordinated effort for national defense. And national defense, like democracy itself, has a way of beginning at home. It requires doing, not talking, to get things done.

In his emphasis on "making democracy live in America" by doing something about it in Michigan, the new governor served effective notice on the Republican majority in the senate and house, as well as the Republican office-holders at the Statehouse, that he expects their co-operation in making state government responsive to popular needs.

Bi-Partisan Control

Today's situation at Lansing is extraordinary in several respects. It is thoroughly bi-partisan. While the Democrats elected a governor, lieutenant governor, and state treasurer, the Republicans retained majority control of both houses of the legislature, elected an attorney general and re-elected a secretary of state and auditor general.

Responsibility is divided whereby each party may raise the hue and cry that the other is responsible for failure of accomplishment.

Phrased in more familiar language, the door is wide open for political buck-passing!

To make democracy work under these circumstances is a Herculean assignment, and it will take all the diplomatic skill of the practical-minded Van Wagoner to achieve even a moderate success.

"Men without jobs, children on crutches don't care for party labels," he cautioned in an appeal for "unity of will, unity of purpose, unity of administration."

The role of a governor battling against a selfish partisanship is one to inspire popular sympathy for Van Wagoner. Therein lies a peril to the Republican leadership, as future developments may reveal.

Four-Point Program

In outlining his ideas about how a democracy should function, the governor presented a four-point platform:

First, "we must do our part in the national defense program."

Because of a previously voiced lack of sympathy for the illegal sit-down strikes of 1937 (declared illegal by the United States supreme court), Van Wagoner may be expected to discourage hastily-conceived strikes in Michigan plants where national defense awards are centered.

"It is the duty of state government and every citizen of the state," he said, "to speed this important work and to co-operate with the federal government so that the defense program may proceed unhindered and unmoored."

He praised labor and management for working more closely together in effective national teamwork.

Second, "we must never lose sight of the real things we are building to defend our traditional constitutional rights."

What are these traditional rights? Freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of religion. Or in other words, freedom of a minority to criticize the majority; freedom of the individual to "believe and speak and write" as he chooses without fear.

As the governor expressed it, we should foster an "active spirit of tolerance for the beliefs of those who may happen to disagree with us."

Social Gains

Third objective of the Van Wagoner program is "to preserve and develop these social gains"—the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively; the right of the farmer to a "fair share of our national income; the right of all to be 'secure from the worst hazards of unemployment, old age and physical disability.'"

Governor Van Wagoner echoed the determination of President Roosevelt to withstand pressure "of many people" to curtail these newly granted rights on the assertion that they interfere with national defense.

Regardless of defense urgency, Van Wagoner indicates that he favors greater spending by the state government for old age pensions, unemployment compensation, crippled children benefits, state hospitals, and public schools.

The Fitzgerald-Dickinson administration emphasized home rule and a local financial responsibility. Van Wagoner's attitude would suggest a return to the conception of a strong centralized state government, and it may presage the opening wide of legislative purse-strings to the possible embarrassment of the executive office unless badly needed budget reforms are enacted during the 1941 session.

In his message to the legislature last Friday Van Wagoner recommended more business-like collection and administration of state funds to prevent the re-occurrence of the $30,000,000 deficit left by his Democratic predecessor, Frank Murphy—who he didn't say so in that many words.

Honesty, Efficiency

Fourth objective of the Van Wagoner platform is this: "The job of putting our own house in order."

Put your own interpretation on this sentence. The governor accompanied it with these words: "Of seeing to it that our state government is honest and efficient and effective."

To many persons the fourth point has partisan implications, arising out of the federal grand jury indictments.

And yet the logic is irrefutable. The governor linked his fourth point to the general goal of making democracy work, and in a reference apparently to the dictator's way of regimented efficiency he observed:

"A democratic government in our world of today just can't afford to be inefficient or ineffective or corrupt."

"Election Is Over"

As Governor Van Wagoner well said, "The election is over. . . . Ours is the sacred duty of working together for the common good."

And therein is a reflection that democracy, if it is truly to be a democracy, must recognize the will of the majority.

Regardless of the Republican victories, the electorate chose Murray D. Van Wagoner to be Governor of Michigan.

Likewise, Franklin D. Roosevelt, although not the choice of a majority in Michigan, was re-elected to serve a third term as President of these United States.

Wendell L. Willkie in his Nov. 11 radio speech summed up the bi-partisan problem in these words: "Let us not, therefore, fall into the partisan error of opposing things just for the sake of opposition. Ours must not be an opposition against—it must be an opposition for—an opposition for a strong America, a productive America. For only the productive can be strong and only the strong can be free."

Few Stayed Home

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

German Airforce Aids Italy in Attacks Upon British Forces in Mediterranean; Munitions Production and Shipbuilding Are Vital Spots in U. S. Defense Work

INVASION:

England Cautious

In contrast to the cheerful, bombless Christmas holiday, London was glum the first days of the New Year. The Nazi airforce had "Coven-trized" the City of London, that district in the central section of the metropolis where financial houses are located.

Thousands of incendiary bombs were dropped. Hundreds of roaring fires were out of control at the same time. The losses were estimated in millions of pounds and the dead could not be counted. Three days later a man wandering into the section asked a policeman the way to Paternoster Row, famous for centuries for its bookshops. The bobby replied: "There is no Paternoster Row, sir."

Mostly the British feared an attack through Ireland. Earlier warnings that the Axis thrust into the Balkans might only be a winter sortie and not a full-dress attack, were being taken seriously.

The actions there were being watched with interest. Germany moved 300,000 troops through Hungary and into Rumania. The Germans were posted along the border of Bulgaria where it was freely announced that as soon as they were in position and the time was ripe, an advance would be made on Salonika, Greece.

Bulgaria was belligerent in talk, but made no move to mobilize for defense or call upon Turkey and Russia for aid. Russia, however, countered the action by lining the border of Rumania with Soviet divisions. The Germans abruptly shifted a part of their force to sit opposite them.

It looked like the real thing. But experts didn't believe it. They believed Hitler was merely protecting his rear in the Balkans in preparation for the attack on England, much as he had protected his flanks when he took Norway before the drive into France.

SIR HUGH DOWDING, air chief marshal of Royal Air Force, predicted as he arrived in Canada, that German air raids will have lost their sting by springtime.

Later came reports that German air squadrons were proceeding to Italy to aid Mussolini's fliers in attacks upon British bases in Libya and on the British fleet in the Mediterranean. It was also believed that the Germans might be used in Italy's campaign against the Greeks now raging in Albania.

Neutral Eire

Ireland is the weak point in the British defense and its ports are no further from Germany than were the ports of Norway. Like Norway, too it has long stretches of unprotected coastline. During January and February, conditions will be favorable for a German attack—the tides will be small, the nights long and the fogs thick to cover embarkation of troops.

It is estimated Hitler must establish a bridgehead of at least 50,000 troops, not counting losses, to start an invasion. Losses in such an operation are estimated at three times the number landed, so Der Fuehrer would have to start off with 200,000 troops for the landing alone. If Britain held bases in Eire, the loss estimate would be even greater, and even then the movement might not be successful. But Ireland remains neutral and aloof.

Otherwise on the war front: In Libya, fighting now on Italian territory, the British Egyptian army said it could take the important harbor of Bardia whenever it chose.

Manila reported that it had learned on good authority that 12 German raiders were being armed and supplied in Japanese harbors. A mysterious raider, which ran up the Japanese flag but which Australians said was German, fired on the tiny island of Nauru, a former German possession in the Pacific.

FATEFUL YEAR:

President Warns

The seventeenth month of the war opened against a sombre background. The year 1941 dawned with a general admission that before its close may come the decisive test, not only of the war, but also the American economic system.

America was given a grave report by President Roosevelt in a speech that took the joy out of New Year's celebrations. He said that the danger to the nation is the greatest since Jamestown and Plymouth Rock. He said that Great Britain was defeated the Axis powers would control Europe, Africa, Australasia and the high seas. He said that a victorious Axis would not hesitate to occupy South America and the United States would be living at the point of a gun. He said that already secret agents of these powers are operating in the Americas.

Before the President spoke, he had received uninvited advice from two sources. German and Italian dispatches said that if the President promised aid to Britain by permitting use of Irish ports by American merchantmen or giving Britain stranded German merchantships in U. S. harbors it would be viewed as intervention in the war. From a bloc of U. S. senators, among them Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), came urgings that the President originate a movement for a "negotiated" peace.

He pledged that he would do everything in his power to keep the United States out of the war, declared there was not even the remotest thought of sending troops to Europe, called for defense production to the utmost, hinted it may be necessary to use machinery now engaged in manufacture of luxury goods to turn out armament, and forecast that the Axis powers would not win the war.

Reaction

Throughout the United States the speech was received with pledges of support on all sides, even from personal and political enemies of Mr. Roosevelt like former Gov. Alfred Smith, former Gov. Alf Landon, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.); Senator Austin (R., Maine).

But there was no enthusiasm among the totalitarian powers. Berlin was silent for 48 hours during which time Adolf Hitler went into seclusion and studied the document. Der Fuehrer then replied indirectly. He spoke to his army, not mentioning the name Roosevelt. But he promised his army a victory in 1941. He said God was on the side of Germany and "would not abandon those who were determined with courageous heart to help themselves."

Premier Mussolini was blunter. His mouthpiece, Virginia Gayda, said America already was in the war.

NAMES

... in the news

Ousted—The Overseas Press Club in New York consists of newsmen who are or have been foreign correspondents for U. S. newspapers in the past. There are few active members abroad now, most are back home. The club dropped from its rolls George Sylvester Viereck, saying it objected to his bringing "buntdists and gestapo agents" to its meetings. Viereck, an American, is registered with the state department as the $500-a-month correspondent for a Munich newspaper.

Death—Daniel Frohman, 89, one of America's greatest theatrical producers, died in New York. Agnes Ayres, 42, star of the silent movies and leading lady to Rudolph Valentino, died in Hollywood.

Job—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., 27, was graduated by the University of Virginia last June. Now he has a job as a lawyer with the New York firm of Wright, Gordon, Zachry and Parlin. He and five others asked for jobs through the firm's employment department. All were hired.

Sued—Gloria Jean, the 12-year-old film star, has been sued for $535,000. The action was brought against the child and her parents by a theatrical agent who said he "discovered" her and by terms of a contract is entitled to 10 per cent of her earnings.

Squirrels Get Tough

The squirrels in Carondelet park, in St. Louis, are getting tough. Caretaker James Williams, wanting to sit down, tried to chase one off a bench. It attacked him, biting his neck. Ray Shelton, 12, saw a luscious, ripe mulberry on a low limb. He tried to beat a squirrel to it and got bitten. Charlotte Hanzewski said she was attacked for no reason at all. She was walking along, minding her own business, when a squirrel dashed out from behind a lamp post and grabbed her leg.
