Rawson Lost Hair in Initiation as He Crossed the Equator

"Up until the Navy Department released the information (day before yesterday) that we were not in Pearl Harbor, we have not been permitted to write," says Ensign Ralph W. Rawson, son of State Representative and Mrs. Audley Rawson, in a letter written to his mother and dated March 19, at Auckland, New Zealand.

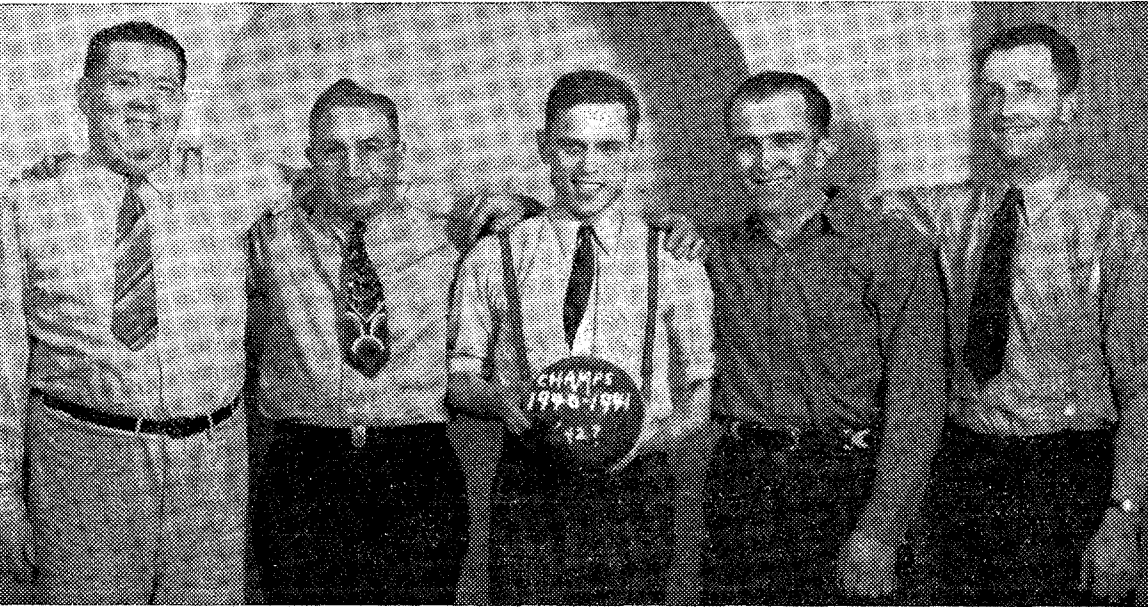

"We have been here three days and leave tomorrow. I haven't heard from you since February 1, so I'll appreciate it all the more when I do get your letters.

"The hospitality which is being shown our sailors rivals the best in the world. There is no sheep in wolf's clothes because they admit that they are furthering their own end by being nice to us. We have been at sea for all except seven days since February 4.

"I sunburned myself a little when we crossed the equator. During the initiation as a 'shell back' all my hair is cut off again, so I'm a plebe all over again in appearance. It will probably be grown out again before I see you, however."

Local School Band Makes Long Strides

Local Group Were Given "A" Rating at the County Band Festival.

Working with unusual diligence, the Cass City High School Band, under the direction of Charles Keene, has been making noteworthy progress the past few months. This improvement was emphasized recently at the County Band Festival when Professor Keith Stein awarded Cass City an "A" rating.

Professor Keith Stein, who directs the woodwind sections at Michigan State College, made the following comments regarding the Cass City band's performance: "Nice work... Intonation excellent... Unusually fine attention to details of contrast... Very musical playing from all sections." These remarks have had an inspiring effect on the entire band.

The music department has added two French horns, played by Jean Muck and Bonnie Mark, and would like to add a bassoon, alto clarinet, and more French horns after the spring concert, scheduled for Friday evening, May 2. Featured at this concert will be the University of Michigan woodwind quintet, recognized as one of the best university quintets in the country.

At present, the 52-piece concert band is making preparations for its May 2 performance. The junior band is rapidly acquiring its basic fundamentals, and will soon be ready to supply material to fill vacancies caused by graduation.

Whatever you choose to call it, it's a room that adds pleasure to your daily life. And a room like this can be made a part of YOUR home. You'll find a million (more or less) desirable things about it, and you'll be agreeably surprised to know that the average monthly payments for this much-used improvement are only $11.47. Extra! Man Eats Dog Food! "He must be crazy," you say. Why? Dog food is edible and it is certainly cheap. "But," you insist, "price isn't everything." And you're right—it isn't. While it may be possible to save a few cents a month by buying cheap, tough, inferior cuts of meat, the saving is lost if ONE purchase is so poor you can't eat it. When you buy quality meat, you take no chances. You get full nourishment value and full enjoyment. For a REAL bargain try tender, flavorful, nourishing beef patties from our quality stock. WE PROTECT OUR MILK... by Electric COOLING. John Lindow using his 2-can cooler. There are twelve Guernsey cows producing milk the year around on the John Lindow farm, 600 Freer Road, Chelsea, Michigan. Mr. Lindow says that before he got the electric cooler, he spent as much time trying to cool his milk as he did in milking. Besides, he was never satisfied with makeshift cooling. This 2-can electric milk cooler has been in use for five years. It reduces the milk to 45 degrees quickly—keeps bacteria count low and eliminates the risk of rejections. Mr. Lindow says that he wouldn't be without it because it saves so much time and worry. About a cent and a half buys all the electricity needed to cool a ten-gallon can of milk below 50 degrees and keep it protected until it goes to market. Ask your farm implement dealer to show you the type of electric milk cooler you should have to protect your dairy profits. Or call the Edison Farm Service man. THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY. Nabs Skunk by Tail
Mrs. Ted Fraser of Elm Creek, Neb., can sympathize with the man who got the bear by the tail. When she caught a skunk in her chicken house, knowing a skunk cannot function as such when his tail is held captive, she grabbed him by it, swung him boldly aloft and started in search of her husband. She couldn't find him. Realizing what would happen if she let go, she shifted him hand to hand until her arms tired. Finally finding a length of baling wire, she twisted it around the skunk's tail, suspended him from a fence, got a gun and shot him.

Room Fountain
Homeowners can now have a real fountain on their living room tables, a fountain that is not only decorative but also raises the humidity where furnaces have left the air uncomfortably dry. When plugged into an electric socket a fine spray shoots a few inches upward and falls back into the bowl. The latter, made of aluminum, will be obtainable in a variety of colors. The fountain is not attached to any faucet. When a pint of water is poured into the humidifier in the morning it will operate a full day without replenishment. While the fountain plays, a soft musical tinkle of drops is heard.

Loss of Color
Loss of the natural color in fruit products often means the products have lost dietary values, according to Dr. M. A. Joslyn of the University of California college of agriculture.

'Midnight Ride of Paul Revere'

The yet-unborn American republic faced a vital crisis on April 18-19, 1775, when Paul Revere made his famous midnight ride from Boston to Lexington. Above are shown dramatized scenes from his ride to warn Middlesex villages that the British were coming. The noted portrait of him (lower right) was made in later life when he was a silversmith.

Growing School Bus Routes Put Heavy Load on Road Commissions; Need More Funds

Continued consolidation of school districts in the rural areas of northern Michigan is forcing the county road commissions to steal maintenance and improvement money from county highways in an effort to get the school buses through on schedule in winter storms and spring break-ups. A. L. Burridge, Cadillac, consulting engineer for 10 northern Michigan county road commissions, has reported to Dr. Louis Webber, executive director of the Michigan Association of Road Commissioners and Engineers.

Burridge declared that it cost $80 per mile, or $20,000 for snow plowing alone on 250 miles of rural roads used by school buses in Wexford County. Buses are increasing at a rapid rate, he stated, and the school districts, he asserted, seldom stop to comprehend what it means in extra road machinery, materials and labor to provide service for school buses in periods of snow, ice, frost upheaval and spring rains.

Since 1919 the school districts of Wexford County have been reduced from ten to four, and the bus routes have lengthened from four or five miles to sixteen or twenty, so that four districts now serve all the pupils in the county.

"Many of the roads in the northern counties of Michigan that are used by the school buses, transporting hundreds of pupils to consolidated schools each day, are not safe to travel," Burridge declares.

Narrow roadbeds should be widened; dirt surfaces should be replaced with gravel or blacktop; snow removal should be more extensive; driving hazards of all kinds should be eliminated, he said, pointing out that funds for these improvements are not now available.

Roads on the snow removal list must be plowed by 7:00 a. m. so that school buses may collect their load and transport the pupils to the schools by 9:00 a. m. At dismissal time the roads must again be open for the buses, and this service, Burridge declared, demands extra equipment which the county road commissions cannot now purchase.

"I believe more money should be made available by the legislature for county road commissions of Michigan, so that school bus routes and rural mail carrier routes may be given proper service and attention. What good are consolidated schools," Burridge asked, "if you can't get the children to the schools by bus or auto? What good are buses to the school districts if they cannot use them on the roads we have in northern Michigan?"

Burridge said a survey by the Department of Public Instruction in 1938-39 showed that of the roads used by 710 school buses servicing 136 rural agricultural schools only 19% were hard-surfaced. Sixty-six per cent, he pointed out, were gravel surfaced, and 15% were unimproved, or plain dirt roads.

Farm Food Guide Printed by M. S. C.

"No family in the world is in better position to have good meals made up of good foods than the typical Michigan farm family. The variety of crops grown within the state demonstrates that."

That is the preface to "Feed the Family from the Farm," a new publication prepared at Michigan State College for distribution in the state by the extension service in agriculture and home economics. Copies are available by writing the Bulletin Room at the college, East Lansing.

The brief bulletin actually includes space for a work sheet on which a family can estimate amounts of principal foods needed, how much of these can be produced on the farm and how much needs to be purchased. Spaces are open for the estimates.

Typical suggested requirements per person include yearly amounts of 92 gallons of milk, 26 to 39 pounds of butter and 5 to 12 pounds of cheese. In vegetables the estimates per person annually call for 120 pounds of green or yellow vegetables, 120 to 150 pounds of potatoes, 100 pounds of tomatoes or vitamin bearing substitutes and 110 pounds of other vegetables.

Poultry products for a year would include 30 dozen eggs and 35 pounds of fowl. Of meat the bulletin suggests 100 to 115 pounds of dressed meat from beef, pork, lamb, rabbit, game or fish, plus 15 to 20 pounds of lard. Fresh or stored fruit would weigh 175 to 200 pounds, plus 30 to 45 quarts canned or frozen.

For sweets, the requirements for a year per person would total 50 to 70 pounds in the form of sugar, honey, maple syrup and sugar used in preserves. Flour and cereals would total 150 to 175 pounds.

Diplomats Get Latest News

U. S. Broadcasts Daily to Agents and Tars Serving in Foreign Parts.

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam's diplomatic corps abroad and the men of his fleet in midocean and in foreign waters are never without news of their homeland and of events going on around them.

The diplomatic service is furnished news nightly by a radioed report from the department of state. The officers and men of the fleet also receive their news by wireless from our navy department.

The two news reports, however, are as different as night from day. News to the officers and men of the fleet is intended for entertainment and information.

In contrast, the ultra-conservative reports of the state department are compiled to inform diplomatic staffs not only what is happening in the United States and throughout the world but to guide them in their duties.

This is a determined effort to beat the constantly increasing censorship that permits only a small amount of accurate, unbiased American news to be printed in a number of foreign countries.

Reports Sent Daily.
The state department news report, averaging 2,500 words daily, is radioed every week day night from the navy's short-wave transmitter at Arlington, Va., near by to Washington. It is copied by navy radio men in 15 distribution centers located, generally, in major capitals of the world. There the reports are re-copied and airmailed to the outlying consular posts.

Several times during the last year when events of great importance occurred on Sundays a special report has been prepared for distribution immediately.

The state department report is prepared by Sheldon Thomas of the foreign service, a fulltime job for him.

In addition, the department reports the press conferences of President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull, secretary of state, in detail.

A spokesman for the department said the press conference reports are emphasized because Mr. Roosevelt and Hull express the foreign policy that United States diplomats are to carry out.

U. S. Views Reflected.
The report of the conferences includes representative questions asked by newspaper men of the President and secretary of state.

The state department's news service was inaugurated in 1935 when war clouds began to gather over Europe and the Far East. At first the service went to four points—Paris, Berlin, Rome and Geneva. When the test proved successful, the service was enlarged to include far-off cities as Moscow, Calcutta, and Victoria, South Africa.

The navy department's news report is forwarded from its Arlington station at 2 a. m. daily. By sending it at this time the men of the fleet get to read the bulletins when they report for morning duties.

The report includes every subject considered of interest to the fleet personnel.

Uncle Sam Generous to Owner of Burned Money
CAMDEN, N. J.—The federal government co-operated to provide one pleasant touch to Camden's $2,000,000 fire in which a paint plant and 63 homes were destroyed and 10 persons died.

One of the householders recovered a tin box containing the ashes of charred money. The box was sent to Federal Reserve experts in Washington.

The experts notified the owner they had "only" been able to identify $381.61 of the money which went through the terrific heat of the blaze.

That was fine with the owner. She had thought the box contained only $329.

South Carolina National Forests to Be Improved
COLUMBIA, S. C.—The U. S. forest service is expected to follow an expanded four-point program in South Carolina national forests this fiscal year.

The program will include erosion control, further construction of recreation areas, fire fighting and setting out of new trees.

Tree planting, ground cover planting, gully work and terracing will come under the erosion control feature, according to plans outlined to state foresters by regional officials.

Two new recreation centers with extensive lakes and picnic areas are to be constructed in Abbeville county and in Pickens county.

Big Year Seen by Seer; European War to Be Ended
BATON ROUGE.—The coming year will be one of the most noteworthy in modern history if Dr. Louis Gersham Benjamin's predictions come true.

End of the European war, discovery of a cure-all for the earth's diseases, merger of "the nine great religions," and recognition of a playwright "greater than Shakespeare" are among the events Dr. Benjamin has forecast.

JUSTICE COURT
William Fisher, 17, and Walter Petzold, 23, both of Millington, were arrested on the charge of the larceny of chickens from the Milton Kilbourn farm at Millington. State Capitol, Lansing—If you want to find out who won the election, page 4 Soloman.

Michigan's ballyhooed bipartisan government wasn't changed much by the popular vote. That state administrative board, about which the politicians fussed and fumed, remains the same.

Four Republicans—Vernon J. Brown, Eugene B. Elliott, Harry F. Kelly and Herbert K. Rushton.

Four Democrats—Murray D. Van Wagoner, Frank Murphy, Theodore I. Fry and G. Donald Kennedy.

Two state administrative offices were at stake. Democrat Kennedy rolled up a plurality of about 48,000, while Republican Elliott triumphed by 38,000. It was just another way of saying that Michigan, perhaps more so than the average Mid-west state, has enough independent-minded citizens to swing political fates either way at any election.

It again emphasized the record. No governor has succeeded himself during the past decade. Democrat has followed Republican with distressful regularity, and vice versa.

Soft Gloves Since the democratic strategy called for wooing of Republican voters in order to elect Kennedy, Governor Van Wagoner, deftly avoided a frontal assault on Republican ranks. The maneuvers to date have been skirmishes, calculated not to outrage the enemy.

In this kind of political courtship, the governor wore diplomatic soft gloves. Because the spring campaign was so devoid of pressing issues, almost like a parlor game of tiddle-de-winks, Republicans had to take the offensive in injecting life into a somewhat listless contest.

Every state highway sign and every state highway map were changed since the November election to carry the name of the Democratic nominee-to-be, long before the state convention ratified the Van Wagoner-picked state ticket.

The Loser Wins While Smith possessed a record of engineering achievement that has merited national recognition, having managed a county road organization receiving 1940 national honors, (he is also a former deputy state highway commissioner) the fact remains that he is not widely known outside of Wayne County.

Smith presumably will continue to earn $15,000 a year as engineer-manager at Detroit, while Kennedy draws $7,500 as state highway commissioner. Could it be possible that Smith, who was virtually drafted as a party nominee, will be doubly better off financially as a result of the April 7 vote?

Who won the election, anyway? Figure it out for yourself. We can't.

Labor Votes Now that the diplomatic season is over, Governor Van Wagoner is expected to assume a militant role. Six to seven weeks remain in which his administrative program, revealed belatedly, might be salvaged.

Chances of labor legislation were greatly dimmed by the C. I. O. tie-up of the Ford industrial empire, accomplished without a 30-day notice that is customarily required by the state mediation board for employees in plants that are producing national defense supplies.

The prevailing legislative attitude is tinged with resentment of any labor organizing move that delays vital arms production.

Labor leaders point out that the automobile industry, with the exception of the Ford Motor Company, is almost entirely under union agreements, as is the steel industry with the exception of a few medium-sized concerns, and the rubber industry with the exception of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company and a few small plants.

This union expansion, chiefly in mass production industries, has come about during the past five years. Union membership soared from 3,500,000 to over 8,000,000 at the beginning of 1940. The harvest has been rich.

Promises? Labor's mounting influence in the national economy has invited political bargaining. Such is true in Michigan where the C. I. O., for example, endorsed Kennedy. It has also been evident for some time that Governor Van Wagoner was building his fences for re-election in 1942 with a definite bid for labor and farm support.

His generosity in advocating labor measures, which in some cases surpassed anything enacted at Washington, has been interpreted by labor-minded Republicans in the following light: He could put the Republicans "on the spot" by asking more than he knew legislators would grant. He could appease labor with bills, while trying to keep radicals in line by threats of a big stick, such as he brandished in the Consumers Power Company controversy.

This wasn't bad politics from a practical point of view, since he had little to lose. And Van Wagoner is a practical man. But it has prompted Republican advocates of labor reform to question the governor's concern about the working man amid the greatest industrial boom the state has ever seen.

So don't be surprised if Republicans fail to rush to the rescue. With the 1941 election out of the way, folks here are already beginning to think about 1942. Such is the way of politics.

Receipt Acknowledged In his pulpit Henry Ward Beecher once opened a letter addressed to him and on the sheet of paper was written the one word "Fool." WILLOWS SAVE STREAM BANKS

Dense Growth Protects Soil On Curves.

An improved labor-saving method of protecting stream banks with a mat of growing willow shoots has been worked out by the soil conservation service. It is particularly effective where small streams are cutting into their banks at the outside of curves or where streams that normally flow gently rise to destructive heights in rainy seasons. The willows throw up a dense growth that furnishes first-class protection.

The first step is to grade steep banks to about a 45-degree angle. Then cut willow poles and prune them roughly. The poles should be long enough to extend from below low water in the stream to the top of the sloped bank and should be laid about two feet apart the day they are cut to prevent drying. Cover the poles with a 6 to 12-inch layer of brush—using the willow prunings and other brush if needed.

Anchor the brush mat with old woven wire laced together with smooth wire. Set stout posts in the bank and tie the mat down with wires from the posts to heavy stones sunk in the stream below the mat. Provide occasional vertical anchors of logs laid up and down the slope and held by stout stakes.

Poles cut in fall and winter when the willow are dormant will live and in spring will root in the bank and send up growing shoots that form a living mat.

Willows have long been popular as bank protectors, but the new method economizes labor, gets a dense growth with minimum effort, and the work can be done in winter when farm work is slack.

Use Abundance of Nails When Erecting Buildings

In the erection of farm buildings, poor nailing of joints is often the cause of later damage to these buildings by windstorms. Skipping of the number of nails often means increased upkeep costs. A poor job of nailing in the construction or repair of farm buildings and the use of too few or too small nails result in weaknesses at the joints. Many farm buildings are blown down or sag because not enough or too small nails were used in their construction and while small nails do not crack the lumber so much as larger ones, they are not so effective in holding the building rigid.

Good nailing practice consists mainly in using the proper kind, size, and number of nails for each particular part of a wooden structure. In order to get the full strength of the common wire nail under a side-ways pull, it must be driven at least two-thirds of its length into the piece receiving the point if light-weight wood is being nailed. When it is not possible to get this much penetration, more nails should be used because the strength increases directly with the number of nails.

For wall sheathing and roof boards of the ordinary kind, two eight-penny nails at each nailing point are usually enough. In assembling rafters it is well to consider that a severe storm may lift the roof as a whole. Therefore at least three or four nails of the proper length should be used to fasten each rafter to the top of the side walls. The proper number of nails in such places sometimes seem to be more than necessary but they may mean the difference between a wrecked roof or one in place after a storm.

Farmers Prepared For U. S. Defense

Agriculture is prepared for national defense better than any other industry, according to N. E. Dodd, western regional director of the AAA.

Farmers are better trained to produce all the nation needs without damaging the land as was done during the World war, and there is enough food and fiber for every use.

There is enough wheat stored on farms and in elevators to feed the people next year if no more wheat is grown. We have enough cotton in storage for a two-years' supply if we don't raise another bale. And there is a half billion bushels of corn in storage so there will be plenty of grain for live-stock feed.

Figuring Acreage

An acre contains 43,560 square feet or, what is more commonly used, 160 square rods. A square acre measures 208 feet, 8 1/2 inches on each side. A strip of land 1/2 rod wide; 1 mile in length equals an acre. To find the number of acres in a rectangular field, multiply the length by the width in feet and divide by 43,560 or, multiply the length and width in yards and divide by 4,840 or, the length by the width in rods and divide by 160.

Garden Tactics Changed by Corn

Science and hybridization have changed America's sweet corn so much the old-time gardening technique has to be changed by the average gardener.

That's why three varieties and three corn plantings are suggested by Keith C. Barrons, vegetable gardening extension specialist at Michigan State College.

What has happened is this, according to Barrons: The new hybrids ripen so uniformly that in a small home or farm garden the sweet corn season would come and go in a hurry. For a commercial grower, producing especially for market at a canning factory, that is ideal, but not for a home gardener.

So Barrons suggests picking perhaps three of the best hybrids. Two of these could be from the new 10 to 16-row hybrids. Tests on college plots and experiences of numerous market gardeners would seem to recommend:

Early: Marcross C6-13. Second Early: Tendergold, Bancross P 39, Kingscross J9.

Main Crop: Golden Cross Bantam. Late: Ioana.

Barrons suggests one early hybrid, plus another hybrid from the second early group and Golden Cross bantam be used. Seed of each of these should be sown at the time of the first planting and then repeated sowings of the Golden Cross bantam should be made to supply quality corn up until frost.

Market gardeners seeking sweet corn to fill the demand during the few early days before later varieties are available are using Seneca 60 and Spancross. Barrons suggests these only for early use, as their yield and quality does not measure up to others maturing a little later.

Sun's Rays Kill Borers in Open

Plowmanship will pay dividends of fewer corn borers on Michigan farms in 1941. Borers without the shelter of field trash soon curl up and die in the heat of the sun if skunks or birds or other natural enemies of the borers don't gobble them up.

Those are tips from C. B. Dibble, extension entomologist at Michigan State College, who points to an increasing spread of the borers as proof that wise protective measures will be repaid in better crops.

Plow as early as possible and plow to cover up the trash as thoroughly as possible, Dibble warns farmers. He has found from experiments that a borer will emerge even when buried as deep as 18 inches and that three or four borers can find protection from a piece of cornstalk the size of a small finger.

Wide bottom plows are recommended for best coverage. A 16-inch bottom plow is considered the minimum and 18-inch bottoms are found superior to smaller width bottoms. The furrows should be laid completely over and as flat as possible to avoid any fringe of stalks peeping up from between the furrow slices.

Trailing wires help in covering brush. These keep the stalks against the furrow slice. Two or three wires should be attached to each plow bottom and should be spaced to form a sort of web with wires about four inches apart trailing over behind the plow bottom. On horse-drawn equipment the wires often are attached at the jointer, clevis and doubletree. On a tractor-drawn gang the wires are attached to the jointer and on the frame near the furrow.

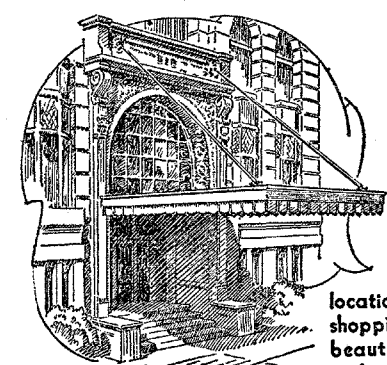

Subsequent seedbed preparation usually works out best with disc and cultipacker rather than the springtooth harrow which brings trash back to the surface.

Matching Hat, Handbag Give Chic Accent to Spring Costume

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU want to be fashion-wise this spring, it is absolutely necessary that you become thoroughly and wholeheartedly accessory-minded. From the very start in assembling your new wardrobe, keep firmly implanted in your mind that accessories, above all else, are cast to play the dramatic role in fashion this season. Do this and you will find yourself safely charted in the right course through both spring and summer.

It is a matter of tradition that a new and becoming hat ever has and ever will prove the most effective first aid in sounding the first joyous note of spring. This season fashion goes the idea "one better" with the insistence that a matching handbag complete the picture by way of adding drama to the occasion. Try the hat-and-matching-handbag-way and you will find that it works like magic in broadcasting the glad tidings of spring.

Note the quartette of fetching hat-and-bag ensembles shown in the illustration. Twosomes of this sort are typically "first fashion" news for spring. At the upper right of the group a navy blue stucco braid beret is shown which claims distinction because of the bright patriotic-colored strips which detail the beret and are repeated in the "nautical knots" which enliven the navy felt handbag. By the way, navy will be tremendously smart again this season.

To the upper left the problem of matching hats and handbags has been eliminated by two well-known American designers. Clear synthetic strips laced through the Howard Hodge hat and the Nat Lewis handbag subtly emphasize harmony of colors and materials. In the popular South American manner the hat of artichoke straw has a high pleated crown of the same flame red felt used for the handbag.

Below to the right black felt and spaghetti braiding is manipulated into a new version of the fashionable off-the-face pillbox with its low-tied bow of the braid, repeated in the laced handbag.

For the handsome hat and bag set pictured on the figure seated, bright green silk petal-shirred grosgrain ribbon is used by Lilly Dache. A matching petal-shirred envelope bag completes this distinctive accessory ensemble.

The supremacy of accessories in the spring mode carries courage and inspiration in the thought that the movement is being aided and abetted by the very highest style-creative talent in all industries that pertain to fashion in women's apparel. The whole trend is to correlate and to co-ordinate costume detail. To this end designers, manufacturers and merchants are enthusiastically working together to co-ordinate color, material and style motif. By way of suggestion when you go accessory seeking, look up the new tiger yellows and browns, the many smart greens, the beiges, Peruvian pink, the new pastel jewel colors, and reds are bolder and brighter than ever.

Main Street Gone From Fashion World

"There is no more Main Street in Fashion," declared Mrs. Wilhelma Cushman, fashion editor of Ladies Home Journal, before a convention of retailers and manufacturers who recently held their spring national shoe fair in Chicago. Mrs. Cushman says she has found in her travels of 20,000 miles in the past that Main street and Fifth avenue meet and now launch simultaneously the same advance fashions.

Declaring that this season "a costume will be made by its accessories," Mrs. Cushman said that bags will be bigger, softer and more colorful. In footwear, the news is of softer shoes. There is a new softness about the leather used. The seamless glove will also be featured this season, she added.

Unusual Fabrics Enhance Dresses

Unusual fabrics frequently add to the attractiveness of evening gowns. A little use of the imagination will often produce satisfactory results.

If you are a smart young person you might consider going to the upholstery department next time you need material for a new evening dress. You will be doubly smart if you choose material with a gray background.

Heavy gray rayon taffeta has great possibilities, as does gray satin with tiny motifs in gold or striped and damask designs. This material is so wide that it takes only a few yards to make a beautiful dress.

Have You a White Elephant?

Maybe you'd like to trade it for a good used radio, a used car, a trailer? Ads in the liner columns of the Chronicle have brought surprising and quick results to many who have tried them. They are widely read. Perhaps among the readers you may be able to find some people who are in the market for that "elephant" you can no longer use.
