Oak Bluff Residents Experienced Their First Blackout Sunday Night

London and Berlin have nothing on us now in the way of blackouts for we had our first experience of this late Sunday night and early Monday morning. A Buick, traveling at a high rate of speed, in rounding the curve going into Caseville, left the pavement and crashed into a Detroit Edison pole, breaking it in four pieces, and wrecking the car completely. The electric wires were broken and as a result this entire section was in total darkness for about six hours. How the two occupants escaped instant death is one of the unsolved mysteries. Too much speed and another case of "A fool and his auto are soon parted."

Harold Ballard and his guest, Mr. Thompson, of Detroit and Warren Frye were busy over the week-end getting a couple of ducks blinds ready for the duck season which opens about October 1st. As

Three Suffer Injuries When Automobile Hits Train

Three young men narrowly escaped serious injury when the car in which they were traveling at 12:40 a. m. Tuesday struck a freight train at the Michigan Central railroad crossing a half mile west of Richville. Seventeen freight cars, going at a 10-mile an hour rate, had crossed the track before the automobile had reached the crossing and ran into the eighteenth freight car. One end of the box car was derailed by the force of the impact. Tire tracks on the pavement showed that the brakes of the automobile had been applied 170 feet from the crossing.

Robert Johnson, 20, of Millington, the driver of the automobile, was accompanied by John Farnum, 18, and Clyde Hess, 19, both of Vassar. All were taken to the Caro Community Hospital by Deputy Sheriff Julius Goslin for treatment and were released during the day. All suffered bruises from the accident.

The whole right side of the automobile was badly damaged. The car was carried along the railroad right of way for a distance of 40 feet.

Two Thumb Men Fatally Injured in Auto Crashes

Frank Oesterle of Caro and Charles P. Ball of Kilmanagh Died Sunday.

Frank Oesterle, 65, of Caro was fatally injured at eight o'clock on Saturday evening while walking on the pavement on State Street in Caro when he was hit by an automobile driven by Alonzo Anscomb of Fairgrove. His death came six hours later in the Caro Community Hospital.

Oesterle was walking with the traffic on the pavement on M-81, near the Michigan Central Railroad when he was struck by the automobile also traveling north. The automobile was going at the rate of about 25 miles an hour and the lights of an approaching car so blinded Anscomb that he did not see Oesterle until he hit the pedestrian. Oesterle suffered a broken skull. He was thrown a distance of 40 feet and the car was stopped within 80 feet from the place where it hit the man.

Frank Oesterle, a single man, was born in Ellington Township on August 13, 1867, and has lived in Caro about 20 years. He leaves two brothers, Charles Oesterle, of Ellington Township and Herman Oesterle, of Caro; and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Mackey, of Detroit, Mrs. Julius Hutchinson, of Akron and Mrs. Edward Balch, of Ellington.

Charles P. Ball, 83, of Kilmanagh, while riding with two sons, Dan, of Ypsilanti and Clyde, of Lincoln Park, was killed Sunday afternoon in an automobile crash near Brighton on U. S.-23. Death resulted from shock, Brighton hospital attendants said. The sons and their wives were not seriously injured in the crash. Charles P. Ball is the father of Rev. Glenn Ball, pastor of the Evangelical Church at Kilmanagh. He was enroute to his son's home in Kilmanagh where he resided when the accident happened.

As a rule blunt people come quickly to the point.

It is a discerning individual who is sensible to his own follies.

The administration is discouraging buying on credit—on the part of the individual.

Gossip is the only thing that can feed upon nothing and grow to immense proportions.

Did you ever notice that the people who have the easiest jobs always get the longest vacations?

In the event no one has yet reminded you, we would suggest that the forehanded persons should do their Christmas shopping early.

Nature seems to take care of many things. When a man reaches sixty, as a rule his earning power becomes smaller, his wants also become smaller.

It is with no small degree of comfort that we note that those supposed to be in the "know" predict that no food shortage is in sight in this country. Prices will be higher on a few items but no scarcity is in sight.

Recall when the three cent postage stamp was instituted as a temporary measure? It is still on. It is no different than any other tax. As soon as additional revenue becomes available the spending agencies set about finding ways of spending it.

The common failure among people to praise is noted by a local man who says that as long as he has a good bank account his banker never mentions it, but the moment he overdraws the banker calls to his attention the fact that it is not satisfactory.

We note by one of our exchanges that the poor farm in a midwestern county was closed last week. Our thought in this connection is that the county should take good care of the building and grounds. If things keep up the taxpayers of the community will have to have some place to go.

We don't look with much favor on the advertisements of loan companies that advise people to get a loan on their car or their furniture to take a vacation trip. It may be the line of least resistance these days, but it sounds too much like thriftlessness and shiftlessness. There is too much of that going on without urging it through advertising and tempting the weak.

The war department has awakened to the fact that in some instances army morale is low. One of the things that contributes most to the slipping morale of the young men of the army is the fact that the government is quick to exact its requirements of men in the army but is permitting workers in industry to run wild and is apparently not interested in taking any steps to curtail or control them.

It is reliably predicted that a lot of small plants engaged in the manufacture of civilian goods are doomed to be closed because raw materials used in the manufacture of their products will all be diverted to defense uses. The workers in the plants will be thrown out of employment. This will be most keenly felt by single industry towns. It is predicted that considerable unemployment will develop and exist until the workers in these plants can find employment in defense industry or elsewhere.

A new condition has come into being in many small towns of 2,500 and thereabouts. Most of the young people have gone to the larger centers for employment. As a result the town's population consists chiefly of people fifty years old and older. This has a tendency to make the towns more conservative and less aggressive. There are exceptions, of course, but the towns in which the business is in charge of the older people are not, as a rule, as aggressive and forward looking as the towns which have younger blood in control.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME
by Thornton W. Burgess

MRS. GROUSE TELLS HER TROUBLES

"GOOD morning, Mrs. Grouse," said Jumper the Hare as Mrs. Grouse crept under the low-hanging branch of a hemlock tree where Jumper had been comfortably napping for some time.

"Oh!" exclaimed Mrs. Grouse, looking very much worried and rather frightened. "I didn't know that anyone was here. I beg your pardon. If you don't mind, I'll rest a few minutes and then I'll try to find some other hiding place."

"No need of it! No need of it at all, Mrs. Grouse," replied Jumper

Jumper nodded. He had heard the "Bang! bang!" very clearly.

politely. "There is plenty of room for both of us here. It is a good hiding place. I use it a great deal. You seem to be worried about something, Mrs. Grouse. With plenty to eat and no family cares this fine fall weather you ought not to have any worries."

Mrs. Grouse sighed heavily. "True, perfectly true, Brother Jumper," said she. "I ought not to have any worries. I don't believe Old Mother Nature ever intended I should have, no special worries, any way, at this season. This ought to be the glad time for everybody, but nowadays it seems to be the sad time for many of us. Did you hear that terrible gun a little while ago?"

Jumper nodded. He had heard the "Bang! bang!" very clearly, and that was one reason why he was sitting so close under that hemlock branch. Mrs. Grouse suddenly spread her beautiful fan-like tail. There was a gap in it on one side where two feathers were missing. "I lost those when that terrible gun went off," said she, "and it's a wonder that I am here at all to tell about it. If I hadn't managed to get a tree between me and that terrible gun before it went off I probably would be dead this very minute! Worried? I should say I am worried!"

There was a world of sympathy in Jumper's soft eyes as once more he understood. "It's getting so that I'm losing my appetite," continued Mrs. Grouse, "and this is the very time when I should be putting on flesh so as to be in the very best of condition for the winter. I'm sure Old Mother Nature wouldn't allow it if she could help it, but it seems that this is one thing which she cannot help. It isn't right! It isn't fair! Just as if I didn't have worries enough the rest of the year! It's bad enough to have to be on the watch all the time for Reddy and Granny Fox, that fierce old robber the Goshawk, Hooty the Owl, and Old Man Coyote. Why, I need eyes in the back of my head to keep out of their way! In the winter I must work hard to find food enough to keep me from starving. In the spring there is my nest to worry about, and all summer long a big family to watch over and teach to take care of themselves. If anybody ever needed a rest and had earned it, it is I. But here it is, the one season in all the year when there should be nothing to worry about, and along come these hunters with terrible guns, and I don't feel safe a minute while there is daylight. I tell you—listen! Isn't that someone coming this way?"

Jumper peeped out. "It's a man with a gun," he whispered.

Poor Mrs. Grouse shivered and looked more frightened than ever. She half spread her wings as if to fly. "Sit still," whispered Jumper. "Sit perfectly still. He doesn't know we are here, and he won't if we make no noise."

Operations On Elderly Individuals

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WITHIN a very short space of time I had three elderly patients undergo operation, two for gallstones and one for an enlarged prostate gland situated at neck of bladder. All three made good recoveries despite the fact that their ages were 72, 74 and 79, respectively.

Dr. A. W. S. Hay, Winnipeg, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, states that the expression "too old for operation" is heard too often; that age is not a question of years but of the physical and mental condition of the patient.

"No one can say of a man of 75 that he is too old for operation until one has studied that patient not only from the standpoint of the disease to be removed but also from the general standpoint. And without making such a study, one is not justified in condemning the old gentleman to continued misery by refusing surgical aid solely because of the added risk due to his age. A death rate of 10 to 30 per cent is very much less to be dreaded than months or possibly years of misery."

Favorable Conditions. Of course, most elderly individuals should not undergo operation to remedy slight defects or discomforts but there are conditions which cause misery and suffering which can be corrected with a great degree of safety under hospital conditions.

What operations may justly be advised for elderly people? Dr. Hay names the following groups:

1. Emergencies (to save life from immediate danger).
2. Operations where the patient can make his own choice between trying to withstand pain, such as gallstone colic, by use of quieting drugs, or by operation.
3. To overcome some severe physical disability such as a large hernia (rupture).
4. Malignant disease—cancer.

One fact that has been brought out by investigations into the results of operations on elderly patients is that in "emergency" operation the death rate is not greatly higher than it might have been in younger patients having the same conditions present.

Heart Symptoms On Slight Effort

TWO things can cause the heart rate to increase while you are at rest: holding your breath or getting nervous about the increase in the rate.

Sometimes you find that after an effort that is really not severe—parking your car, or other effort—you are breathless and wonder if your heart is failing. The cause of your breathlessness is not due to the mental and physical effort of parking your car or lifting an object but because you "held your breath," breathed in no air and did not breathe out the already "used" air in your lungs.

Army medical officers are finding that a number of recruits are afflicted with "heart" symptoms on slight effort. These symptoms are called "effort syndrome" (combination of symptoms) which consists of nervousness, exhaustion, discomfort in left side of chest, palpitation, giddiness and breathlessness on exertion. Most of these cases are due to nervousness and the balance due to lack of oxygen.

Middle and long distance runners and swimmers learn to regulate their efforts so that so many strokes or strides are done between breaths. A 100-yard runner or swimmer takes a deep breath before his race and takes no further breaths till the race is over or the distance covered.

The point then is that while the pulse rate should, under ordinary circumstances, be at 72 to 84 at rest, holding your breath or nervousness can send it up to over 100 beats. Similarly, breathlessness can be due to nervousness and holding the breath.

A cold in the head or eating too much acid food can likewise cause an increased heart rate and breathlessness due to inability to get enough oxygen to the lungs, or too much oxygen is being used to burn up acid foods.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—I am worried about my weight. Everything I eat seems to make me fat. I am not a heavy eater. I eat nothing but fruit until dinner in the evening.

A.—Your best plan would be to eat a good breakfast and a light lunch and dinner. You can thus work off the breakfast during the day. Taking the big meal at night gives you no chance to work off the fat. Try this for a month and cut down on all your liquors.

10,000 Yankees Are With Allied Forces

Eagle Club Head Tells of Boys in All Uniforms.

LONDON.—Ten thousand Americans, most of them under 25, are fighting with Britain and her allies, Robert Hutchinson, chairman of the American Eagle club, said.

The Eagle club is a sort of super-canteen for Americans on this side of the Atlantic and for other forces. It is maintained by private contributions, plus profits from low prices charged the troops.

Hutchinson and Mrs. Hutchinson, known as the father and mother of the Eagle club, say they knew hundreds of the volunteers from the United States by name and thousands by their faces.

"The largest number is with the Canadians," said Hutchinson. "But you find American boys everywhere."

A number of those in England were caught in German invasions of European countries and finally made their way to London.

"We meet them in the 'Free French' and even in the 'Free Rumanian' forces," said Hutchinson.

"We particularly need a dormitory for these boys," Hutchinson said. "We close early and have to turn them out into the blackout."

Hutchinson said many persons had the idea the life of a soldier in this war was comparatively easy.

"I know better," he said. "I have seen them come in here after being bombed out, after operating anti-aircraft guns and after working with bomb damage until they are tired, dog tired."

The Eagle club is the one place in wartime London where an American can buy a hamburger for less than 10 cents and coffee that tastes American.

Sugar Industry in South Was Born in Old Kettle

BATON ROUGE, LA.—An old iron kettle, blackened by the many fires over which it has hung in the past 200 years, rests on the campus of Louisiana State university as a memorial to the man who made Louisiana's sugar industry possible.

Indigo was the money crop when the French planter aristocracy owned plantations that stretched for miles along the bayous and lakes of southern Louisiana at the end of the Eighteenth century. Jean Etienne de Bore was no exception.

De Bore was born in the Illinois section of the Louisiana Purchase territory. At the age of four he was taken to France by his parents where he received his education and later married into large colonial holdings.

He returned to New Orleans with his wife about the time of the French revolution and established his plantation on what now is a part of Audubon park near the city limits.

There he engaged in the planting of indigo. When a blight, however, wiped out the indigo crops, De Bore and the other planters were faced with bankruptcy.

Many planters already had tried to granulate sugar from cane juice, but their experiments failed time after time. De Bore, overriding the protests of his wife, decided to have a fling at the sugar business.

Former Cripple Starts New Club for 'Shut-ins'

WATERLOO, IOWA.—In gratitude for freedom from the crutches which she had to use for 12 years before being cured, Vivian Brown, 25, has organized a Shut-in Club which now has 225 cripple members.

When her last operation left her cured she was free to pursue her own activities, but she said she couldn't forget all the crippled children whom she had lived among in hospital wards, so she started the "Ship of Joy." Members live in all parts of the nation.

Since its start the group has purchased and distributed 12 wheel chairs, 10 radios, two typewriters, and many gifts to shut-ins. The club has a library of 100 jig-saw puzzles and 300 books.

Silent Message

This London girl wears a "Victory V Chapeau" to do her bit in the "V" for victory campaign now prevalent in all conquered and unconquered sections of Europe.

Don't take my WORD for it!

FRANK COLBY
MONTICELLO

Thomas Jefferson's famous house.

Bird's-eye view: Monticello stands on a mountaintop in the Blue Ridge three miles from Charlottesville, Va.

Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, and third President of the United States, was the sole architect of the house which he desired to be "a thing of symmetry and taste."

Jefferson's ancestral home, Shadwell, burned to the ground in the winter of 1770. He saved nothing but his cherished "fiddle." Monticello, already begun, was hastily completed.

Monticello is Italian for "little mountain." The house is now preserved as a historic shrine.

Jefferson's likeness and a bas-relief (bah-ree-LEE-ef) of his famous house are to be found on the new "Jefferson" nickel, the United States five-cent piece of latest mintage.

The name Monticello has two accepted pronunciations: First choice: MAHN-4-SELL-oh Second choice: MAHN-4-CHELL-oh

INTELLIGENCE TESTS

Here is a test involving a yardstick in which there have been set several tacks with rather wide heads. These tacks are at the 7-, 12-, 18- and 26-inch marks, with one each also at the beginning and the end.

Allow three minutes to answer the questions below:

1. How many different distances are there between these tacks, taken by twos in all possible ways?
2. Which tack is exactly halfway between two others?
3. One certain number of inches, greater than four and less than 13, does not occur between any two of the tacks. What is that distance?

(Public Ledger—WNU Service.)

Answers to the Above Test

Land Measured by Walking

Back in 1737, land in Pennsylvania was measured by how far a man could walk. The proprietors of Pennsylvania obtained from the Delaware Indians a grant of land extending into the back country as far as a man could walk in a day and a half. Three fast walkers were hired who covered about 65 miles.

Lily of the valley pips which have been chilled in storage will develop flowers in 15 days if placed in moss and water in a shallow bowl. They are the most fragrant of the easily forced bulbs.

Wisconsin's recent authorization of a uniformed traffic patrol marks the completion of such action by all 48 states of the Union.

The sloth, said to be the laziest animal in the world, hangs from the branches of trees, feeding on shoots, foliage and fruits. The animal's anatomy is such that it can only hang. It has no defense weapon, but is camouflaged by the coloration of its hair, which is covered with a minute green algae.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

Seen Around the Town: Robert E. Sherwood, who wrote the Pulitzer prize play, "There Shall Be No Night," halted on Fifth avenue by a gushing gal who insists that he must autograph his book for her . . . and when he takes out his pen, she shows a copy of "Out of the Night" under his nose . . . Phil Spitalny in a jewelry store ordering 35 good luck pins shaped like hour glasses for the girls in his orchestra . . . He calls them "hour charms" . . . Andrew Kostelanetz and his petite wife, Lily Pons, taking a stroll in Central park in the cool of the evening . . . Bess Johnson, radio actress, buying an entire box of mechanical dogs from a street vender . . . and later winding them up and turning them loose in NBC's dignified corridors . . . A car double parked on an express street and a crowd waiting to see a cop pounce on the driver . . . One loiterer wants to give odds it's a woman . . . It is.

Larceny Notes: Dishonest patrons cause a $200,000 yearly loss to the telephone company in inserting 5,200 slugs into the slots of pay telephones . . . Slug users also defraud the city out of $83,750 a year by slipping them into turnstiles of the three city-owned subway systems . . . The B. M. T. system is the largest loser with 900,000 slugs a year . . . The I. R. T. system, despite protective devices on coin boxes, takes in 600,000, and the Independent system, 125,000 . . . Owners of coin-operated vending machines also lose heavily through slugs and foreign coins with no value . . . A sailor who went to sleep in Battery park woke up to find that his false teeth had been filched . . . and a man who dozed off in a subway station lost not only his shoes but also his trousers . . . Honest town, New York.

This & That Dept': Benny Goodman's home up near Stamford, Conn., is fast becoming a reality . . . In the first four days Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" was presented at Radio City Music Hall, it was heard by 71,133 persons . . . and that's more than the total of those who heard it in four years at the Metropolitan Opera house . . . Orson Welles, who once scared the nation with "Men from Mars," was 26 years old the other day . . . To date, more than $31,000,000 has been paid to see "Gone With the Wind" and it's still going strong . . . "Pre-dunked" doughnuts have appeared on the market . . . Flavored with coffee, they are said to be a boon to timid dunkers and to those afraid of spoiling their clothes . . . Coming home from Washington, Lucille Manners noted this road sign: "You're not driving an ambulance—what's your hurry to the hospital?"

Summations: It didn't take song-bird Bernice Parks long to describe to friends in Ruby Foo's Den a new show she had just witnessed: "The curtain was late going up and the audience clapped hands, stamped feet and even whistled. But from the start to the finish of the play there was no more handclapping" . . . One-line description of Broadway restaurateur Arnold Reuben: "It's the place where you talk to your next-door neighbor by telephone" . . . New York short-short by the late Will Rogers, "It will be a fine town if they ever get it finished."

Remarks: When Frank Black told George Tapps that many wild animals charge with their eyes closed, the young dancer quipped, "I know a lot of night club owners who do the same thing" . . . Hildegarde, the chanteuse, tells of a divorce lawyer who's been working so hard of late he goes around the town with dark triangles under his eyes . . . Horace Heidt avers the reason some people go on a big blowout is that their pride has been punctured .

Sporting Note: A Dodger and a Giant fan arguing over the merits of their respective teams in an Eighth avenue drinkery . . . But the bartender averts battle by turning on the baseball scores—and the announcement is that BOTH teams lost . . . The collection of model airplanes in the Hines Airline Terminal grill has been cut one-third because of a recent army edict that only models of outmoded planes may be shown.

At Forty-fourth street and Broadway, a girl went up to a mounted cop's horse, stroked its sleek muzzle and then kissed it on the nose. Despite the fact that the girl was so pretty she could get a seat in a crowded subway car, the horse threw up its head and backed away. And sane folks talk of "horse sense."

War Economy Grips Europe

Italians Return Tin Cans, British Use Soda to Save Sugar.

WASHINGTON.—Italian housewives return empty tin cans much like Americans leave empty bottles for the milkman. . . . Japanese cargo shipbuilders have abandoned steel in favor of wood. . . . New auto tires are disappearing in Europe.

Those and other commercial and industrial quirks have been reported by the commerce department as evidence of economic changes resulting from the war. In addition to new developments abroad for side-stepping shortages of essential materials, there have been reports of several inventions of military importance.

German scientists are reported to be experimenting with a silent airplane engine that would enable bombers to approach enemy objectives at night without detection. Berlin claims were cited, reporting "a certain amount of success has already been achieved" with the silent motors and that such motors were used in the Polish campaign.

Ship Engines Silenced.
"It also is asserted that several ships in operation in the North sea have been successfully equipped with them and that the experiments are being made on both gasoline and Diesel engines," the department said.

German engineers also are said to have developed a new electric express locomotive capable of hauling eight cars at speeds exceeding 100 miles an hour.

Britain has urged housewives to use sodium bicarbonate in cooking fruit to conserve sugar supplies.

German production of metallic containers has been sharply curtailed because of military needs. Many commodities now appear in glass containers.

A metal shortage in Japan has caused the use of wood instead of iron and steel in building small ships for "near-sea" service. Cost of a wooden Japanese ship was reported as being half that of a steel vessel of the same dimensions.

Empty Tins Returned.
In Italy, according to the commerce department, housewives give their grocer empty tin cans for each new one when purchasing canned goods.

E. G. Holt, leather and rubber expert for the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, said it was virtually impossible now for a private citizen of European countries to get new automobile tires. He said reports from abroad told of wholesale stoppage of civilian use of automobiles because of military requirements on rubber and gasoline stocks.

Some new tires are available in Britain, but motorists are urged to have old tires retreaded.

The Italian government has ordered all owners of auto tires and tubes to report holdings, and has notified the public of the government's right to requisition them for military use at any time. Transfer of privately owned tires from one person to another is forbidden.

Engineer Starts 66th Year as Railroad Man

PARSONS, KAN.—John Tierney eased the long Katy passenger train to a stop at 6:10 p. m.—on time—and climbed from the cab, completing the last work day in his sixty-sixth straight year as a railroad man.

Next day, at 5:45 a. m., Tierney, 80, oldest railroader in point of service in the United States, started his regular 314-mile run to Junction City and return.

"This starts my sixty-sixth year," he said, "and I haven't even gotten around to thinking about stopping. This is my life."

Clear-eyed, healthy, Tierney once was described by Matthew S. Sloan, Katy president, as a "typical example of the men who have devoted their lives to making the railroad a safe, dependable and efficient transportation machine."

Red Nails Used to Cure Child of Sucking Thumb

BOSTON.—Fingernails painted a bright red are suggested by Dr. Edward H. Norton as a cure for little girls who suck their thumbs.

He told the Massachusetts Dental society that feminine vanity of the children—even when they were only three or four years old—was aroused by colorful nails.

Declaring the experiment was tried on his granddaughter, he said "the child was delighted and not once since has she put her finger in her mouth."

Lone Male Is Student With 350 Young Women

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Coleman Patterson, only male student among 350 young women at Asheville college, says he finds college life rather interesting.

"It took courage to go alone into a group of 350 girls," he said. "But the girls helped by being consoling and after a while the worst was over."

WISE BOY

Tommy had sprained his wrist and did not want to go to school. "Your hand is bandaged up nicely," urged his mother, "and it won't prevent you from attending your classes."

The lad still held out. He didn't want to go. At this point father took a hand in the matter.

"Speak up, son, let's have the real reason. Don't you know your lessons?"

"I know them, all right," said his heir, "but too many boys owe me a licking."

Gradual Process

"So Mr. Brown is courting you?" "Not exactly, yet. But he is approaching it step by step. The first evening that he called he sat with the album in his lap. Next time he took my poodle dog on his knees and last night my little sister sat on his lap. Tonight I suppose it will be my little brother, but tomorrow I am hoping it will be my turn."

HELPFUL BOY

Sister—What do you mean by talking about me to Mr. Sweetie? Billy—I on'y told him I was sure he'd never get along with you 'cause I couldn't myself.

Mathematical

A mother was very much put out because the teacher insisted on a written excuse explaining her son's absence from school following a severe snow storm. Whereupon the mother sat down and dashed off the following note:

"Dear Miss Kitty: Little Eddie's legs are 14 inches long; the snow was 18 inches deep. Very truly yours, Mrs. Johnson."

Bored Bill

Bill had a billboard. Bill also had a board bill. The board bill bored Bill so that Bill sold the billboard to pay his board bill. So after Bill sold his billboard to pay his board bill, the board bill no longer bored Bill.

That's Different

Manager—What do you mean by arguing with that lady? Let her have her own way. Remember, a customer is always right. Assistant—But she said we were swindlers.

What!

"I must show you my new garters, dearie. Billie says they're the prettiest he's ever seen." "Has Billy made some money?" "Oh, no; Charley gave them to me."

Yes and No

Telephone Inquirer — Is Mrs. Rowdybush at home? Maid—If you is one ob de ladies what's goin' ter play bridge with her, she am. If you ain't, she ain't!

Down to Cases

Lawyer—Now, if you want my honest opinion . . . Client—No, no; I want your professional advice.

AND A PLEASURE

The Lady—I haven't much to offer you.

The Hobo—No apologies needed, ma'am. Any kind of eating is a genuine luxury these days.

Helpful

He—Oh, by the way, the doctor advised me to eat a water cracker before going to bed; said it would prevent my insomnia. Are there any in the house?

She—The only thing in the house approaching a water cracker is the ice-pick.

One for Mother

Effie—Why hasn't Daddy much hair?

Mother—Because he thinks a lot, darling.

Effie (pause)—But why have you got so much, Mummie?

Mother—Get on with your breakfast.

Lonesome

"He's as dumb as an oyster." "How do you know that an oyster is dumb?"

"Because, if it wasn't, it would kick because it didn't have any company in a stew."

Impolite

Jack (in front of dental display window)—I believe I'll get myself a set of teeth like those over there. Virginia—Hush, don't you know it's impolite to pick your teeth in public.

Swan Soap to Be Introduced Here

White, floating Swan Soap, comparable in purity and mildness to the finest, imported "100% olive oil" castiles, has been introduced in markets and stores here recently. It will be advertised extensively as the first really new white floating soap since the Gay Nineties.

Swan Soap was developed by the Lever Brothers Company after extensive laboratory research.

Before making the new soap available to the public, hundreds of tests designed to prove its blandness were conducted by an independent medical laboratory. Under the supervision of doctors and nurses, women and children of all ages took part in these extensive tests—blondes, brunettes and redheads—thick-skinned, thin-skinned—oily and dry. A summary reveals Swan to be as mild as expensive 100% olive oil castiles.

Made with painstaking care, with constant and rigid control during production, Swan Soap introduces a number of improvements over other floating soaps. It suds into a rich, long-lasting lather two times quicker than other soaps of the same type, is a firmer soap, and has a newly developed feature that allows the bar to be snapped easily into two toilet cakes.

Duty Free

Imported hand sewing needles are allowed to enter this country duty free. Shipments are averaging 1,500 needles a minute.

Chewing Tobacco

About 100,000,000 pounds of chewing tobacco were consumed in the United States in 1939.

Puerto Rico Spends

Puerto Rico spent more than $100,000,000 in 1940 for goods purchased from continental United States, according to the Puerto Rican trade council.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Attacks on U. S. Ships in West Atlantic
Termed Acts of Piracy by President;
Orders Navy to Shoot Axis Raiders
In Waters Held to Be Out of War Zone

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

When news was flashed that the U. S. freighter Steel Seafarer had been sunk in the Red Sea, the war came home to more than one family in the U. S. Here you see Mrs. Rose McCade in Jersey City and members of her family eagerly listening to bulletins which finally told them that her husband, Alexander McCade, and the rest of the crew of 35 had been rescued by passing ships.

INCIDENTS:
Piling Up

Incident was piling on incident when President Roosevelt in a radio broadcast heard all over the world declared German attacks on American ships, twice on U. S. warships, as acts of piracy and ordered the U. S. navy to shoot first when sighting any of the Axis submarines or surface raiders in the western Atlantic. The President in vigorous fashion declared for the freedom of the seas and announced ships of any flag would be given protection when plying their peaceful trade in waters which the President maintained were not in the war zone. The incidents, the President stated, were plainly calculated by Hitler as part of his plan to control the seas as well as land areas by a series of aggressions. The President vigorously assailed obstructionists who would hulk the nation with any false thought that with the British navy gone we could possibly be a match against the Axis navies.

To the Greer affair was added the sinking of the Sessna, a former Danish ship, and the Steel Seafarer, an American vessel, the latter carrying lease-lend aid to the British Middle East command.

All but three of the crew aboard the Sessna were drowned, and the vessel, it was said, carried no war materials whatever, solely food and other supplies for the Danish government of Iceland. The sinking took place prior to the Greer affair, and was only announced following the picking up of the survivors.

The Steel Seafarer was sunk in the Red sea, and all hands were saved, but only by their own brisk action in difficult straits. The vessel, according to survivors, was sunk by a heavy-caliber aerial bomb, perhaps an aerial torpedo.

The explosion, which would be heard for 10 miles, tore open the starboard plates of the ship amidships, and sent her to the bottom so swiftly that the captain's boat only left the side two minutes before the doomed ship took her final plunge.

Members of the crew said it was impossible that the boat could have been mistaken for British, for the American flag was flying in the vessel's floodlights, and she was not in convoy, traveling alone.

The import of the loss was considered trifling, being less than 2 per cent of the lease-lend aid sent to the Middle East so far. That would roughly place the amount of this aid at 50 shiploads. It was a typical general lend-lease cargo.

Two Americans were lost on the Sessna, but in the President's recapitulation of the events for which he intends to hold Nazi Germany strictly accountable he cited five American-owned ships sunk presumably by German action, and at least 65 American citizens who suffered loss of life in the sinking of the American and other vessels.

Many felt that the recent three incidents, coming so close together, might have been the result of an order from Hitler for an "all-out effort" against the American lend-lease campaign, as Hitler might be fearing the effect of an all-winter war with Russia.

In this event, it was felt, he might be afraid that the U. S. would strengthen Britain's hand so much in the interim that a successful military move against the British would be impossible for all time, thus making victory for Germany well-nigh hopeless.

GERMANY:
A Warning

After first stating positively that the Greer was the aggressor in the battle with a German submarine in the waters off Iceland, Germany issued finally a flat warning that all ships, of whatever nationality in her war zones were subject to attack without warning.

This was similar to the warning issued in the last war which brought about the sinking of the Lusitania and a definite American demand for entry into the war.

The state department in Washington at the same time lifted its restrictions and said it would permit American citizens journeying from Britain and the United States to travel on "belligerent ships."

The Nazis said that there was no use talking about a general order to attack American ships. They said the only general order was to attack all shipping.

They added that they considered President Roosevelt's dictum that the Red Sea constituted neutral waters, and that American-flag ships could navigate there was "provocation" and constituted a "provocation" to the Germans and Italians to attack such ships.

SPY:
Thrills in Trials

The expected thrills in the spy trials in New York, in which 16 persons are accused with having taken part in espionage on behalf of Germany against the United States, panned out early in the case.

FBI witnesses revealed that the German spy system had been tricked for months. The G-men built a radio station on Long Island, arrangements having been made through an informer, entirely at the request of the Germans for a quick method of getting information.

For months the station operated, "kidding" the Nazis with false information about the army, navy and air force. However, all the victories of wits were not on the American side. For one witness testified that, thinking to make his German masters happy, he offered to steal plans of the secret American bomb-sight and send them over. His "higher-up" told him:

"You needn't worry yourself. It already is in our hands."

STRIKE:
Halted by F. D. R.

The railroad strike, which had seemed imminent, and which would have thrown the entire defense production structure into a turmoil, was at least temporarily halted by President Roosevelt, who personally set up a five-man mediation board.

Fourteen non-operating unions had voted to walk out September 11, and four days later the big five brotherhoods had decided to quit work.

Legally this put the strike in mothballs for 60 days. The Railway Labor act stipulates that the President's board has 30 days in which to examine the evidence, and another 30 days in which to make its report.

During this 60-day period the workers are under obligation not to leave their jobs.

Way Up North

Map shows the Spitzbergen Islands, also known as Svalbard, in the Norwegian archipelago, successfully raided by British and Norwegian forces under Canadian command.

SPITZBERGEN:
A Coup

Though censorship hid from the public many of the details, the British invasion of Spitzbergen, group of islands close to the Arctic circle, undoubtedly was a coup of considerable industrial and military importance.

It gave the British another base threatening German-occupied Norway, also important coal mines, and more important still, willing workers to go to England and aid in the operation of British mines.

It also freed several French officers and men who had escaped there after the fall of France.

When the British warships hove into the Spitzbergen harbor, these French came out in their small boats, and some of them were seen to kiss the war-painted side of the big transport.

One grizzled captain, former commander of a tank battalion, said:

"For 14 months we were dead men. Britain and Canada have given us new life."

All planned to get back to various fields where they could join the Free French forces of DeGaulle.

The military import of the far north was made obvious in the British commentary on the occupation. Iceland, Greenland, Spitzbergen, Vladivostok, Siberian ports further north, Petsamo, Murmansk—these are the Arctic circle ports which Britain believes vitally important. Most of them are in British hands.

The British have felt the effect of the Nazi control of Narvik, Norway, of Murmansk and other points of that nature, and still did not apparently realize it when the first Nazi victories brought them under German control.

Now they realize that the Far North constitutes a flank against the enemy, and the Spitzbergen adventure was in order to add one more strong point to the list already held. Short sea routes exist up in those regions, and may yet be used in the plans for British-Russian-American trade routes.

MOVIES:
Pro-British?

The long-awaited probe of the movies and the radio as to whether they are carrying on pro-war propaganda brought sparks right from the start.

Senator Nye, leading non-interventionist, appeared as the chief prosecuting witness, and ran slap and headlong into Wendell Willkie, who appeared as counsel for the film industry.

Nye proceeded to list a number of films as pro-British propaganda, and then made the declaration that he had been informed that if Britain lost the war, a number of American film companies would go into bankruptcy.

He painted a picture of these companies desperately making pro-British and pro-war pictures, endeavoring to get the American people to take up the cudgels more vigorously, and thus to "save their bacon."

But Willkie countered by calling Nye's statements "wild and unsupported," and scored a telling blow against the witness when he charged him with "fighting a rear-guard action against the foreign policy of the administration, which the senate on more than one occasion has overwhelmingly supported."

Thus the former Republican presidential nominee in a few adroit words aligned the cause of the film industry with that of the administration.

LENINGRAD:
Battle Technic

The Nazis, admittedly on the outskirts of Leningrad, and officially opening its siege, followed their customary technic of making general sweeping claims, and then being forced to contradict themselves day by day.

They announced that Leningrad was completely cut off by land from the rest of Russia on September 8, and two days later had to admit that this was a premature claim.

WAR ON WEEDS EASIER IN FALL

Chlorates Less Effective in Summertime.

By J. C. HACKLEMAN
(Crops Extension Specialist, University of Illinois.)

You can kill three times as much quackgrass with the same amount of chlorates by applying them in the fall instead of in the middle of the growing season.

Then while the quackgrass is still groggy next spring, give it the final knockout blow.

More recent work indicates that somewhat the same thing may apply to the control of sow thistle, leafy spurge and hoary cress.

The general rule for killing weeds with chlorates is to apply the chemical during early November at the rate of three or four pounds for each square rod for the worst weeds, such as bindweed, hoary cress or perennial peppergrass and leafy spurge.

Then next April or May this treatment can be followed by a second application to prevent the weeds from regaining their vigor lost by the first poisoning.

Experiments conducted by the university show that two or three pounds of chlorate applied for each square rod in early November are just as effective in killing quackgrass and some other weeds as 8 or 10 pounds a square rod in the middle of the summer growing season.

The experiments also indicate that calcium chlorate is about two-thirds to three-fourths as effective as sodium chlorate.

The cost of two applications is about $30 an acre when the chlorate is used at the rate of 3½ pounds to the square rod for each application.

Chlorates are dangerous as fire hazards, but if the directions are read carefully and common sense precautions are taken in handling them this danger will be avoided.

Swine Fatten Faster
If They Aren't 'Piggish'

Believe it or not, pigs will make hogs of themselves much faster if they do not have to be "piggish."

Elbow room while eating and the right kind of service help swine to make rapid gains on a smaller amount of feed than when they have to eat like "greedy pigs" to get their share of whatever grub is available.

Hog-lot mannerisms of this kind are worthy of the attention of farmers as well as of students of swine psychology, Drs. R. C. Miller and T. B. Keith, of the Pennsylvania State college agricultural experiment station, believe, because of the feed cost involved.

When pigs are fed in groups and allowed to act "natural," they usually require 400 or more pounds of feed in order to gain 100 pounds in body weight, the Penn State experimenters found. In a recent test in which they were fed separately, however, certain pigs gained 100 pounds on as little as 229 pounds of a ration analyzing 17 per cent protein.

Factors other than uninterrupted meals doubtless had a bearing on the economy of gains, Miller and Keith freely admit, but they also are of the opinion that plenty of room at the trough is important. Their tests indicate that a ration of corn, tankage, soybean oilmeal, alfalfa meal and salt is about right for fattening pigs after they weigh 100 pounds if the mixture analyzes around 17 per cent protein. From weaning to 100 pounds, somewhat more protein may be necessary.

Orchard Grass Ally
Of Pasture Legume

The very fact that it does not form sod, which formerly was regarded as a disadvantage, is causing renewed interest in orchard grass as a pasture plant.

The bunched growth of orchard grass, says E. Marion Brown of the bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture, allows for free development of the lespedeza between the clumps of orchard grass. This favors the always desirable partnership of a grass and a legume, with the grass benefiting from the nitrogen which the legume draws from the air. Thus the orchard grass-lespedeza combination has one of the qualities that has made bluegrass and white clover a favored partnership wherever they will grow.

Orchard grass—particularly if well nourished with nitrogen stored by the lespedeza—makes a strong early growth in spring. In summer when the orchard grass is resting, lespedeza is productive.

Grain Storage

Once every two weeks isn't too often to inspect stored grain, warns M. D. Farrar, entomologist working with the University of Illinois. Infested grain may be quickly recognized by its firm surface, musty odor, and warmth at a depth of 12-18 inches. A careful examination will show damaged kernels and other conditions which may be associated with infested grain. Killing of grain insects can be done at a cost of less than a half cent a bushel.

Pigeon Rotary Is Sponsoring Series of Four Lectures

Frank Wilson of Uby, who enjoys a reputation in the Thumb as an informative speaker on western travel and an exhibitor of beautifully colored scenic pictures which he has taken on his trips, was the entertainer at the Tuesday luncheon of the Rotary Club here at Hotel Gordon. Mr. Wilson exhibited scenic pictures of three national parks in western states. G. A. Tindale was program chairman.

James McLellan of Cass City, a member of the draft quota leaving Tuscola county on Wednesday, was a Rotary guest.

Harold Paul, a member of the Pigeon Rotary Club, announced a series of four evening lectures of the Institute of International Understanding which his club is sponsoring next month. The first one on October 2 is by Dr. Walter B. Pitken of New York on "Our World Neighbors"; the next on October 9 is by Eric I. Grimwade on "Our Neighbors in Europe"; on October 16, by Manoah Leide-Tedesco of Chicago on "Our Neighbors Around the Caribbean"; and on October 23, by Dr. Hugh C. Stuntz of Nashville, Tennessee, on "Our Neighbors in South America." Tickets may be purchased from Cass City Rotarians. Lectures are for the general public.

WHEAT OFFER REPEATED.

In the fall of 1932, the Chronicle offered a year's subscription in the Thumb of Michigan to farmers in exchange for two bushels of wheat. The same exchange basis holds good this autumn to those who may care to enter into a similar trade—two bushels of wheat for a year's subscription. Of course, it will be surprising if farmers are as willing to accept this offer as they were nine years ago.

Changing Maids Again

(WNU Service)

Lansing—When the state legislature convenes Thursday, October 9, following its unprecedented recess in protest against vetoes of Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner, Republican leaders will move for another 90-day extension.

That's the betting among well-informed observers at the state capital this week.

The arguments run something like this:

1. Legislative adjournment next month would be tantamount to confession that the Republican leadership "pulled a boner," that the Democratic governor was right.

2. Governor Van Wagoner is showing Dutchman traits of standing fast, unyielding to pressure for a bi-partisan compromise. No deal is in prospect.

3. Republican lawmakers who are in daily contact with the voters back home report cheerfully that the folks on Main Street and the rural routes are not particularly disturbed or critical at the legislature's recess.

"After all, Congress is still in session," so they say. "It isn't going to cost the taxpayers anything to have us available for instant call if an emergency arises."

"Unlike a special session, a legislative recess does not allow payment of mileage for travel to and from Lansing. And anyway, our pay is going to be the same whether we meet for 90 days or 365."

4. Economic problems in Michigan may need legislative attention by January. We may be shoulder-high in a shooting war. Inability of manufacturing plants to get materials and curtailment of automobile production may result in severe temporary unemployment in the state next winter.

1942 Campaign

Backgrounding the tug-of-war between the governor and the legislature is the fact that 1942 is approaching fast, and 1942 will bring another political campaign. At the Democrats' state rally at Mackinac Island, the keynote was "Van Wagoner and Brown" for the 1942 ticket. Leaders have taken it for granted that both the governor and senator will be re-nominated. It simplifies the problem for the Democrats tremendously to know, more than a year in advance, who is going to head their ticket.

Likewise, it puts the Republicans at a disadvantage.

G. Milton Kelly, Associated Press writer at Lansing, reports that Republican leaders have concluded that the time between the September primary and the November election is too brief for Republican opposition to a Democrat who is virtually unopposed in his own primary. Eight or more months prior to the 1940 primary, Van Wagoner was campaigning persistently as the conceded party choice for governor. The Republicans' primary battle is history.

The Associated Press correspondent observes: "When the 1940 campaign ended, it was taken for granted in most circles that 1942 would see the party's organization booming (Harry F. Kelly for United States senator and (Vernon J.) Brown for governor. A movement is now under way, however, to draft Kelly for governor, although he has made it no secret that he isn't enthusiastic about seeking that job."

Foreign Policy

Because of the prevailing sentiment in Michigan for non-intervention or isolationism, call it what you may, it is predicted that issues in the 1942 campaign will center on the war to a large degree.

Michigan public opinion was reflected in the near-unanimous vote of Michigan members in Congress, Republican and Democrat, against enactment of the draft and its 18-month extension.

If shooting war is unpopular with a majority of voters in November, 1942, off-year campaign results may hinge on such non-state issues as national defense, foreign policy, conscription, inflation and farm prices.

Wendell L. Wilkie has declared that isolationists will be given all-out opposition at state primaries in 1942. The subject of a legislative recess would be a mere peanut tossing on this turbulent political sea.

Charges that convict labor has been used at Jackson for private purposes are being investigated by the state corrections commission. Labor union officials insist that inmates were employed in construction of a house for Joseph Picard, brother of United States Judge Frank A. Picard, Detroit.

Michigan State Fair at Detroit earned a profit this year. Paid attendance exceeded a half million persons, so reports Bernard J. Youngblood, general manager.

May state departments and agencies hire their own legal counsel? Herbert J. Rushton, attorney general, says "No." Furthermore, he says that lawyers in his department are not under civil service and that dismissed lawyers will be replaced for the most part by Republicans.

A survey made by Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly indicates Michigan is "one of the last states" likely to have gasoline consumption curtailed for defense.

Age of Veneering

Veneering is an art at least 3,500 years old. The finest cabinet makers and designers have used it. A veneer is a thin leaf of beautifully grained wood applied to a panel or frame of cheaper wood. Rosewood, satinwood, curly and bird's-eye maple, walnut and mahogany are among the woods frequently employed.

PICK BREEDING HENS WITH CARE

Physical Form Important
Factor in Selection.

By PROF. C. S. PLATT
(Associate Poultry Husbandman, Rutgers University.)

In selecting breeding hens this fall, consider physical development and breed type as well as egg production during the last 12 months.

One of the best means of measuring the physical development is the body weight of the birds, and in the white leghorn breed no individual that weighs less than four pounds should be considered for breeding purposes, while five pounds should be the minimum weight for hens of the heavier breeds, such as Rhode Island Red and Barred Plymouth Rock.

It is likewise just as important that the eggs the birds have laid have been large enough to sell for the best prices; namely, that they have averaged better than 24 ounces to the dozen, and in addition, have been of good shell color and strong shell texture. These factors of egg quality must receive due consideration in any selection of birds for breeding purposes.

If sufficient breeding records are available, the pedigree of the bird should receive due consideration, care being taken to use hens that have had a good ancestry and whose sisters have shown a tendency to satisfactory egg production. Such a background is an indication of strength in the breeding value of the stock. While it may not be possible to obtain many birds that come up to the standards suggested, still a small pen of such individuals would give much more promise of better stock in future years than a larger pen of birds showing weaknesses of an inherited nature.

Noxious-Weed Seed Destroyed in Silage

Put weedy hay crops in the silo instead of the stack or mow, to stop the spread of weeds.

This is the substance of advice to farmers which T. E. Woodward, of the bureau of dairy industry, offers on the basis of experiments with seeds of noxious weeds buried in ensilage when silos were filled at the Beltsville research center.

Of 26 varieties of weed crop seeds that went into the silo, 23 were killed outright, and the germination of the other three—bindweed, Lespedeza sericea, and American dragonhead mint—was greatly reduced.

Many farmers have burned clippings from weedy pastures and hay from weedy meadows because they were unwilling to take a chance on fouling cultivated fields with the weeds in the manure hauled from the feed lot. When weedy material goes through the fermentation in the silo and then through the digestive process of animals there is no likelihood that weed seeds will be troublesome. The silo and the live stock will safeguard the cultivated fields, and the farmer can safely get out of the weedy material any feed values that exist.

Johnson grass seed was one of the varieties killed completely in the silo, and this suggests that making silage instead of hay may provide a new and safe way of making use of the good feed values of Johnson grass without the danger of spreading the seed to cultivated fields through manure.

Old, Used Wood Is Good as New

Wood taken from old buildings can be safely used for other purposes, according to the U. S. forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis.

Age in itself does not cause wood to deteriorate in strength. If the material is free from decay, insect attack, checks, splits, or other defects, it should be good for re-use for any purpose for which the lumber was originally suitable, the forest products laboratory points out.

The principal cause of damage to wood in buildings is decay and decay cannot occur unless a certain amount of water is present, says the laboratory. In old buildings in which the sheathing, roof boards, floors, and other wooden parts have been well protected from the weather the wood will, in practically all cases, be as sound as when first erected. Wood may darken with age, but it has lost none of its original strength characteristics.

There can be no objection to re-use of lumber simply because it has been in use.

Culling Cows

Probably any time is culling time when a poor cow is being thought of. But now as cows come from pasture their owner should ask a few questions before he turns Bossy loose on a winter's free board and lodging. Diseased-udder cows, shy breeders, and low producers should all be asked what returns they can be expected to make. Maybe an empty stanchion and a full feed bin would mean more profit than a filled stall and an empty feed bin.
