

Caro Man Holds First of Tuscola's Numbers Drawn

Chronicle Prints List of East Tuscola Registrants and the Serial Numbers.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson set in motion the 1942 draft lottery Tuesday at 6:05 p. m., when he reached into a fish bowl and extracted a little green capsule and handed the pellet to an attendant who withdrew from it a slip of paper. The number was 3,485. It was the first of 7,000 capsules to be withdrawn from the famous bowl which was used in the World War I drafts and for the call on the country's manpower in 1940 and 1941 when this nation was at peace.

The second number drawn was 2,850; the third, 4,801; the fourth, 441.

Number 441 is the first which effects the list of 1,767 men who registered in Tuscola County in February. Number 441 is the serial number of Burton Ray McCoom, R. R. No. 3, Caro.

Col. E. M. Rosecrans, Michigan's selective service director, said nearly two months may elapse before first calls to the armed forces are made upon men whose draft numbers were determined by Tuesday night's draft lottery in Washington.

The following list contains the names who reside in the eastern part of Tuscola County registered on February 16 and the numbers assigned to them early in March by the county draft board.

On Thursday, March 12, Mrs. Earl Cook of Caro, Mrs. Hannah Russell of Unionville and Mrs. John L. Bearss of Cass City surprised Mrs. Jacob Messner at her home, corner of West and Pine Streets, when they came with well filled baskets to help her celebrate her 75th birthday. A beautiful birthday cake graced the table. She received many gifts.

Mrs. Messner, a Gold Star mother, is a lifelong resident of the Thumb district.

Jennet Waite was born March 12, 1867, on a farm, three miles east of Cass City and spent her childhood there. She was married to John Stevenson and they made their home in Argyle where he passed away. To this union was born a son, Claude Stevenson, who enlisted in the United States Navy, and died September 25, 1918, in Great Lakes Training School hospital.

In 1901, she married Jacob Messner and he died in 1925.

Mrs. Messner does most of her own work but gets out but little. She is a member of the local Baptist Church, where she was a regular worshiper as long as she was able to attend. She says she stays at home now and enjoys listening to the sermons over the radio.

Former Argyle Couple Are Honored at Family Dinner

A celebration of interest to many in this community was the fortieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Henry of Port Huron, which was celebrated at a family dinner party Thursday night, March 12, in the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Howard, in Port Huron. Mr. and Mrs. Henry were married March 12, 1902, in Minden City and they lived on a farm near Argyle and later near Minden City for 22 years before moving to Port Huron 16 years ago.

Mrs. Henry was born August 21, 1875, in Huron County and Mr. Henry was born June 1, 1875, in Guelph, Ontario. They have three children, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Russell Leeding and Garland J. Henry, all of Port Huron.

Mrs. Henry's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Volz, 88, of Minden City, was among the guests at the dinner.

Successful Revival at the Mizpah Church

Successful revival services were recently concluded at the Mizpah Mennonite Brethren in Christ Church. There were about forty different ones forward for prayer during the meetings, most of them children and young people. There have been eighteen accessions to this church this year, including two who united with the church a short time before the special meetings were held.

Other churches participating in the meetings and benefitting from them were the Decker Methodist Church, the Shabbona Methodist Church, the Evergreen Free Methodist Church, the Lamotte Mennonite Church, and the Riverside Mennonite Church.

The evangelistic party was composed of Rev. G. N. Bridges of East Jordan, who ably preached the gospel from night to night, and Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Bur, who efficiently conducted the singing part of the services and also inspiring rendered special messages in song.

Floods Cause Damage in Three Thumb Villages

The Heavy Rains of the First of the Week Sent Rivers to High Levels.

The heavy rains of Monday sent rivers in the Thumb district to high levels and caused considerable damage in three villages.

At Vassar, water from the raging Cass covered the lower portion of the village. Water stood two or three feet deep in about 20 business places and merchants worked hurriedly to move their stocks to higher shelves. At the Vassar Theatre, seats were ripped out and carpets removed as the water started to rise. Water stood waist high in Huron Avenue, the street connecting the two sides of the river town. Stranded school children were ferried across in ferry boats.

Sebewaing was visited with another flood which inundated the western part of the village and marooned more than 50 families. Beginning about noon Monday, the river climbed about 10 feet as ice jams blocked the mouth of the stream where it empties into Saginaw Bay and piled up at the Pere Marquette Railroad bridge at the west end of town. Many business places on Main and Union Streets were flooded on the ground floors and in basements. Early Tuesday morning, the water had receded six feet. Pilings driven in river bed a half mile upstream last year is believed to have saved the village from a worse flood. The pilings held the ice back until men with pike poles were able to clear the railroad bridge and other ice obstructions near the bay and permit passage of flood waters.

Water in Frankenmuth's streets ran four feet deep, it is reported. The main floor of one of the town's famous chicken-dinner hotels was water covered.

Fine Response Here in Victory Book Campaign

Members of the Cass City Library Board were much pleased with the response of people of this community in the recent Victory Book Campaign. Two hundred ninety volumes were provided by persons here and the library board delivered the books to the Bay City Public Library, headquarters for this district.

The books go to the smaller service units of the country's armed forces who do not have regular libraries.

Lucile Anthes and Theron Bush Marry

A lovely wedding was solemnized at 5:00 p. m. Wednesday, March 18, in the Walter Anthes home, when his daughter, Miss Lucile Margaret Anthes, became the bride of Theron Howard Bush of Unionville, son of Mrs. Louisa Bush Uhl, of Unionville.

In the presence of 50 guests, the Rev. Stanley P. Kim, pastor of the Salem Evangelical Church, Cass City, read the vows under an arch of cedar boughs and white bells arranged before the large window of the living room.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Grey Lenzner of Bad Axe sang "Oh, Promise Me," and was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Schenck, who also played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party took their places.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Anthes, as maid of honor, and both wore street length dresses of poudre blue silk crepe and wore corsages of rosebuds.

Roland Eckfeldt of Unionville attended Mr. Bush as best man. Immediately following the ceremony, a three course dinner was served, a color scheme of poudre blue and white being used. The table was beautifully decorated with a tiered wedding cake, bouquets of roses and poudre blue lighted tapers in crystal holders.

Mrs. Maurice Joos and the Misses Irene Hall, Grace Gilbert, Vera Lounsbury, Ruth Tuckey and Lil.

Rotarians See Old Mexico Pictures

Rotarians were given an opportunity to see a portion of the wonders of Old Mexico through moving pictures taken by Curtis Hunt and Robert Keppen on their recent trip to that country and exhibited by these two members at the club's luncheon at Hotel Gordon Tuesday. Cathedrals, public buildings, wonderful displays of flowers, scenes of native life and bull fights were among the subjects covered by the screen pictures. The photographers served as narrators.

Happenings in Thumb Towns and Villages

Items Gleaned from Reading Columns of the Chronicle's Exchanges.

Construction of a one-story, low cost grade school building to replace the one destroyed by fire at Bad Axe, December 31 is being planned by the board of education. The new structure will utilize the basement and walls of the old building, according to plans. Both the basement and the lower part of the sturdy fire-brick walls were undamaged by the flames. The new building, which will suffice until after the war, will be a temporary structure, and will cost about $10,000, according to estimates.

Residents of Vassar Township were urged by health authorities to tie up their dogs and muzzle those on a leash, to avoid the possibility of an outbreak of the dreaded disease of rabies. Twelve Vassar residents are now being treated for the prevention.

Land owners of Oliver Township in Huron County are asked to sign petitions which will be presented to the Oliver Township Board, asking that body to present the proposition of purchasing a fire truck to provide fire protection for property in Oliver Township, at the spring election, Monday, April 6.

"There may have been two sides to the recent controversy at the Peck High School, but there is only one side—a bad side—to an episode that took place at the high school Tuesday night," says the Peck Times. "During the time that Superintendent Ralph G. Peterson was attending a meeting at the school, all of his four tires were slashed with a knife. State police were called and a thorough investigation is being conducted. This may be a federal offense under the tire rationing law. For the name of the town and for the good of the school and every citizen of this community, it is hoped that there may be an early solution of the case."

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wurtz called at the home Monday afternoon in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary. Since their marriage, they have resided in Windsor Township and Pigeon.

Friends Honor John McLarty on His 90th Birthday

Always Leaves the Table a Trifle Hungry; Cake and Pie Are Banned.

Open house was held Sunday in the home of Mrs. Zora Day, north of town, in observance of the ninety-third birthday of her father, John C. McLarty. A family dinner was served at noon and open house for friends and relatives from 2:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m. was held. Mr. McLarty's birthday was Saturday but the celebration was on Sunday.

Mr. McLarty was born in the Township of Aliborough, Ontario, and was united in marriage with Miss Anna Munro. In 1877, he came to Michigan and purchased 40 acres of land from Mrs. Fred Lee in Novesta and was obliged to clear a space to build a house. He later added 80 acres to his farm. Mrs. McLarty passed away in 1881 leaving a son, Grant, then three years of age.

On October 23, 1883, Mr. McLarty married Miss Sarah Jane Dickson of Novesta. A few years later they began work in the Kalamazoo State Hospital. After 23 years in state hospital work, they returned to Cass City in 1910 to their farm, one-half mile north of town. Mr. and Mrs. McLarty still own this farm but the last 10 years have lived with their daughter, Mrs. Day.

Mr. McLarty is very active, never worries and anticipates celebrating many more birthdays. He has always enjoyed good health. He follows no particular standard of health rules except that he always leaves the table just a little hungry.

Vegetables for Victory

With spring making its official debut on March 21, thousands of amateur gardeners are being encouraged to take an active part in their country's war effort. Victory gardens, inspired by the need to promote home vegetable growing, are the No. 1 war assignment for gardeners in all parts of the nation. The enthusiast pictured above is typical of the many youngsters who will do their bit to step up food production.

Although canning profits will be higher in 1942, due to the prospective high price of vegetables, smaller and more intensively cultivated gardens are recommended. Possible difficulties in securing containers for canning, shortage of farm labor and high prices of certain seeds are factors which will determine the size of garden plantings.

The Victory garden isn't a recent development. Pictured above is a War garden—1918 version. The first World War saw many inexperienced city dwellers attempt to work up vacant lots or back yards where there was little chance of success. The 1942 Victory garden drive is being directed largely toward farm families and suburban dwellers who have both land and experience available.

Three Factors Rule Care of Rubber

Elastic fabrics, household gadgets rimmed with rubber and any other home equipment of which part is rubber needs extra care these days against the three principal enemies of rubber.

Members of the home economics extension staff at Michigan State College suggest homemakers remember that heat, light and oil or grease are these three factors, according to the federal bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The higher the temperature, the more quickly rubber gets weak, cracks, becomes sticky. Sunlight is especially harmful because it combines the destructive action of both heat and light. And rubber, left in contact with oil or grease for long, swells and becomes weak.

Rubber used in elastic fabrics, such as foundation garments, is more easily damaged by oil and grease than other kinds of rubber. If these garments are worn next to the skin, the body oils may cause them to weaken unless they are washed frequently.

Rubber goods can be kept clean with warm water or with water and soap. Any kind of soap will be safe on articles made solely of rubber. But if the garment is part fabric, a mild soap protects the fabric. Rubber articles or garments should be dried in a cool or only moderately warm place, never near a radiator, stove, or hot pipe. Direct sunlight is harmful. If a garment with rubber in it needs ironing, it should be pressed as lightly as possible.

"Never dry clean any garment that has rubber in it," warn those who know. "But if you can't get oil, grease, or tar off rubber with soap and water, a dry cleaning fluid will remove them. Sponge the rubber lightly with the fluid. Even in stubborn cases, never leave rubber in fluid more than 2 or 3 minutes. Be very careful of the rubber while it has the fluid on it, because it is weaker and tears more easily. Carbon tetrachloride is recommended as an efficient fluid. If you use any other dry-cleaning fluid, be sure it evaporates quickly and leaves no deposit as it evaporates. Never use gasoline motor fuel."

Rubber should be stored in a cool dark place. If the storage space is not dark, wrap the rubber in thick paper or put it in a covered box. Try to store the article in as natural a position as possible. If you must fold it, dust the surfaces that come in contact with each other with talcum powder or cornstarch.

Removing Stains From Glass

Old decanters and jugs frequently have unsightly incrustations. If these stains are obstinate, the decanter should be filled with tepid soapy water containing a little borax and let stand several hours. If this does not do the work, crushed eggshells should be added to the solution and the whole shaken to provide friction.

Before Painting
Before painting finished and unfinished metal parts of machinery, such as cast iron, it is most necessary that it be given a thorough cleaning. Rust should be removed with emery cloth or sandpaper and kerosene, and all traces of oil and grease should be removed by washing with washing soda or some similar grease cutter.

Four Good Horses Can Work As Six

Michigan farmers are taking stock of available horses and mules to do some of the farm work in 1942 that can't be done by power machinery steel that has been diverted to armaments.

In fact in a recent sale conducted by the Michigan Horse Breeders' association in the livestock pavilion at Michigan State College, five horses were purchased for milk delivery routes in Lansing and others went to Saginaw for similar service.

Draft horses respond like race horses or athletes. In health, and conditioned by work and exercise, a horse can do 50 per cent more than usual for days and weeks if necessity demands, it is pointed out by R. S. Hudson, superintendent of the farm and horse department at the college.

"Even now before spring farm work becomes steady, a farmer can begin conditioning the work horses," says Mr. Hudson.

"One phase involves feeding. A horse or a mule at work needs a pound of grain and one and one-fourth pounds of good quality hay for every hundred pounds the animal weighs. A 1600 pound draft horse should have 16 pounds of grain and 20 pounds of hay daily to keep in fit condition for heavy work.

"The exercise conditioning should begin immediately even on such chores as hauling manure or wood, grading roads or draining and grading feedlots."

Animals should get out in sunshine, Hudson advises. Although shelter from cold winds is advised, animals get in condition better when allowed to range. Horses should be out on good bluegrass pasture by May 1 in southern counties and in other areas by May 15, but not permitted to fill up with lush grass if the horses scour. Pastured animals at work may sweat more but to no harm if they have plenty of salt and water.

Chicks Do Better in Clean Brooder

The brooder house is the chick's home, and even a chicken does better in a clean house—but the chicken has no way of cleaning the house. If one expects to grow vigorous, healthy chicks, then he must give special attention to sanitation of the brooder house. That is the suggestion of C. G. Card, professor of poultry husbandry at Michigan State College.

Movable colony houses that are to be used for brooding purposes should be well cleaned before they are moved to a new range. Before putting chicks in the new house, Card advises, again scrub the house, taking out all movable equipment and clean it outside the house.

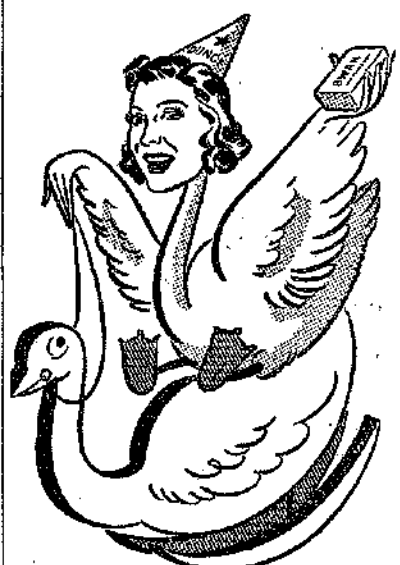

After the house is thoroughly cleaned, cover the floor with good litter and start the brooder stove a few days before the chicks arrive. After starting the fire check the thermometer to be sure the brooder temperature is correct for the baby chicks. A temperature of about 80° on the floor at the edge of the hover is usually correct.

Another sanitary measure is to place the mash hoppers and waterers on low, wire fabric platform.

To prevent rust on a wire clothesline, give it a coat of white varnish once or twice a year, or a couple of coats of white enamel. Wipe a steel clothesline with a little kerosene in cold weather and clothes will not stick to it.

Help is never far away—if you have a telephone! A telephone call will bring neighbors or the nearest fire department. When fire starts, a few minutes, one way or the other, may mean the difference between losing your buildings or saving them.

Besides being priceless in emergencies—the telephone, for everyday use, is worth much more than its small cost. It runs errands, keeps you in touch with friends, helps sell your produce and livestock—brings pleasure to the entire family.

If you haven't a telephone, arrange, today, to have one installed.

LIVESTOCK FEEDERS' TOUR

The annual livestock feeders' tour in Tuscola county is scheduled for today (Friday) when the Otto Monte farm near Fairgrove, the R. L. Robinson & Sons farm near Wisner Corners and the Bach farm near Akron will be visited. A hot lunch and short program is planned for the noon hour at Akron Community Hall. E. L. Benton, extension specialist in animal husbandry at Michigan State College, will be the speaker.

While airplanes roared overhead, hundreds of thousands of Michigan defense volunteers would be at their posts, ready for air raid bombing and fires.

Air raid wardens would scan the skies.

Volunteer nurses would be available for emergency calls.

Fire and police assistants would report for duty.

On the theory that "it can happen here", mobilization of Michigan defense workers on the home front is being considered by state defense officials for a designated Sunday this spring. Civil air pilots would simulate enemy raids. It would be a realistic test of Michigan's readiness to meet thrusts from the air.

Streamlining of the civilian defense program is proposed by Capt. Donald S. Leonard, state commander of the Citizens Defense Corps, who honestly believes that Michigan cities are in danger of attack from the air during 1942.

Taking a sensible viewpoint of the problem, Leonard plans to utilize all existing government agencies in behalf of home defense.

It is the responsibility of each community, he says, to enlist volunteers to assist police and fire forces—as a good example—to meet possible war emergencies.

Instead of bickering about federal and state aid, and otherwise "letting George do it", citizens should cooperate immediately with official authorities in taking steps for defense preparedness. So far, Michigan is far behind in meeting its quota.

Among the likely targets for enemy air raids, it is explained, are the Sault Ste. Marie locks on the St. Mary's river canal, the ore docks at Escanaba, Detroit munition plants such as the Chrysler tank arsenal and the new Willow Run Ford bomber near Ypsilanti.

Fantastic as the idea might have turned to page 7, please.

JUNIOR PLAY READY FOR PRESENTATION

fault dramas attempted in Cass City. The comedy really has nothing to do with George Washington at all. Rather it has for its theme a Mr. Average-City-Citizen whose love for nature, peace, and independence leads him to purchase a deserted house in the country. The dilapidated appearance of the building is implied by his wife, who in her horrible astonishment, exclaims: "Newton! Did I hear you correctly? Do you mean to say you have bought - - - You must be crazy!"

The hero's devotion to his ideals is so intense that neither the innumerable inconveniences he has to suffer in his rural home, intrusive visitors, or his daughter's romantic affairs are enough to quench his ardor for a house remote from the city. For awhile seemingly serious and insurmountable complications threaten the outcome of the play, but as in all comedies, everything turns out well.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Jap Invasion Bases in New Guinea Strengthen Drive Against Australia; Promised Dominion Status for India Fails to Result in Expected Harmony

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Reports from Australia emphasize the importance of Allied attacks on the Japanese invasion bases of Salamaua and Lae in northeast New Guinea. From Salamaua to Thursday Island, off the northern tip of Australia, the distance is 400 miles. From Port Moresby, the nearest major harbor to the mainland, to Cape York, on the northern Australian tip, the distance is little more than 300 miles.

HAUSIES: On the Spot

Hardly had the battle of Java reached the mopping up stages than the battle for the approaches of Australia had started with rumblings from within the continent that the Aussies were far from pleased with the amount of preparedness they had.

The signal for the beginning of the "curtain-raiser" for the attempted invasion of Australia had closely followed the shut-down of communications with Java, and came at the same time news was received that some 2,000 Australian troops, badly needed at home, were still fighting a hopeless fight on the island of Java.

The spearhead of the projected invasion was apparently to be based on the island of New Guinea, just to the north of the continent and immediately threatening it as the shortest airline flight from the East Indies.

The Japs had landed large forces at Salamaua, Lae and at Finschaven, and had been busily engaged in consolidating these positions as bases of supplies.

This was enough to set at rest any doubts Australians might have had that India and not they were going to be next on the Jap time table. Not only that, but the Japanese, with brutal frankness, had broadcast that Australia was going to suffer the same fate as had the Dutch East Indies.

How much American aid and reinforcement already was in Australia was dubious, and a closely guarded military secret. If we were weak the military leaders naturally didn't want the Japs to know how weak, and if we were strong enough to defeat them, when and if they should land, these same leaders didn't want to warn them off.

The only stories concerning the amount of aid had come from McDaniel, who had written that the town of Perth was so full of American troops that it looked like an American city, and from British Correspondent Harr, whose dispatch had caused an immediate tempest which hadn't gone anywhere at all.

Harr it was who, apparently writing from the midst of an American convoy bound to Australia had said that the "sea was covered with ships" and that "hundreds of America's best fighting pilots" were aboard.

America also was sending men "from the plains states" he added, but gave no hint of their status, whether infantry or air force or tanks.

It was from Australian leaders themselves that the hint came that the continent was ill-prepared. One said:

"It is the plan of the Japanese to attack us before we can get prepared, and before we can receive reinforcements."

Secrecy had muddled the picture for Americans, but certain it was that in going after Australia the Japs were really biting off a chunk which would take a bit of chewing, for they'd find no fifth-column there waiting to be taken over.

MISCELLANY:

Washington: Donald Nelson said he was frankly delighted with the way some factories were changing over to war work, citing in particular a linoleum plant now making guns.

Albuquerque, N. M.: A call went out for 200 women to tend a victory garden. They will accept one male volunteer. He must do the plowing and planting.

INDIA:

Britain's Problem

Churchill had informed Commons, which had been demanding some forthright action on the problem of Hindustan, that nothing could be done now, but repeating his promise of dominion status for India "after the war."

So far this problem was the most trying one facing the British. In Burma they had found what they were up against, with the Burmese revolutionaries joining the Japs, and many of the others turning frankly against all white men.

The British defenders of Burma, cut off by these tactics, had been forced to retreat more and more, and finally, in a daring maneuver, had struck northward, and had smashed their way close to their Chinese allies, and began a "side by side" fight with them in Central Burma.

What Britain feared more than anything was a frank and open uprising of all of India's 350,000,000 people, and to this the best Churchill could do had been to re-offer what had been offered back in August, 1940, and which, apparently, had accomplished nothing.

But this time he went a little further. He told the Indians that the government had adopted a definite plan as to how the dominion status would be carried out, and that he was sending his own right-hand man, Sir Stafford Cripps personally to India to explain it all to them.

India's religious and caste problems were, admittedly, severe, and whether Cripps could dig his hand into India and come out with Britain's little white rabbit remained to be seen.

He was a miracle man in Russia, and a miracle man before Commons. Could he perform a third in this war? Britain hoped so.

TAXES:

Millions Pay

Millions of Americans, many of them making their first trip to Uncle Sam's tax windows, had made their income tax returns for 1942, but only a percentage of them were able to pay the full amount.

At the same time they were aware that 1943 taxes would be much higher, and there were thousands who had a different picture of their family budgets after making their returns than they did before.

In the meantime, in Washington, though some government authorities were against the sales tax as putting the burden on the weak, began serious consideration of some form of sales tax as being probably less painful and more sure of large returns than increased income levies.

The house ways and means committee had taken the bit between its teeth in demanding that treasury officials furnish them with data on the probable yield of some form of sales tax.

Secretary Morgenthau had taken the position that a sales tax would be not only inequitable, putting the heaviest burden on the poor, but that it would be inflationary.

The great question in Washington among certain congressmen was "who is now poor?" pointing out that the income tax was already taking all that most people felt they could pay, and the sales tax would, though increasing the cost of living, "come easier."

Strong support had come for these congressmen from William J. Schlefelin Jr., head of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, who suggested a graduated retail sales tax to raise about $4,000,000,000 and only a billion more to be brought with increased income taxes.

NAZIS: Need Man Power For Spring Drive

Whether Germany was planning peace or not, London had been hearing reports that the Nazis were seriously short of manpower which was needed for the spring offensive against Russia.

The first indication of this was when the Nazis issued an estimate of losses thus far in the war which was by far the largest figure they had ever admitted, though still far short of the Reds' claims.

The Germans admitted loss of 1,500,000 men since the start of the war, and said that half of these had been lost in the winter on the Russian front.

The report had come out of London that the Nazis now were asking for 3,000,000 fresh troops from Italy, Hungary and Slovakia for the spring offensive.

Soviet authorities claimed that the Germans had lost 6,000,000 men on the Russian winter front alone, of these 1,700,000 killed, 2,000,000 seriously wounded, and the rest missing or prisoner.

Of the new troops Germany was said to be asking for 1,500,000 from Hungary, 1,000,000 from Italy and 100,000 from Slovakia. Rumania was said to have given an army of 1,000,000 last fall, but the Reds asserted that practically all of these had been wiped out.

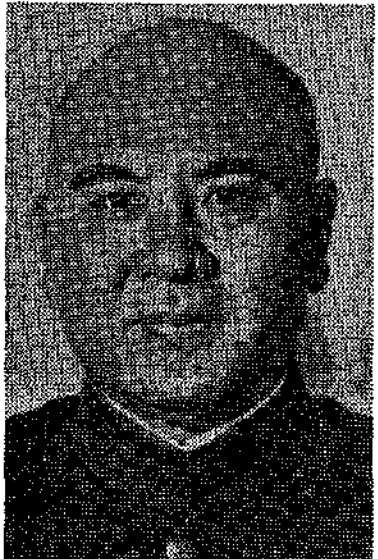

HARA-KIRI: On Bataan

Though there had been little action on Bataan peninsula, there had been a change in Japanese commanders with stoutish General Homma reported to have plunged a ceremonial knife into his own rotund vitals, and General Yamashita, the conqueror of Malaya, reportedly taking over in his place.

In the best tradition of the Samurai, to be replaced by another general as having failed calls for a quiet trip into a secluded room, there to take a swift trip to visit one's ancestors.

No soft berth at a desk awaits the unsuccessful commander in the field. For him comes swift dishonor, and death just as swift, at his own hand. Such is the code of the Samurai.

When General Homma met General MacArthur he met more than a superior general and superior fighting men—he met the end of the road. At the time Yamashita was organizing his forces for the purpose of wiping out MacArthur and thus wiping away his predecessor's dishonor (or of encountering some of his own) there was a huge demand sweeping the country for some definite answer as to why substantial aid could not be sent to the Philippines.

LIEUT. GEN. MASAHARU HOMMA Death... the Samurai tradition.

Accompanying this was some fairly sharp criticism of the administration and its conduct of the war. But in the main the response of the public to the "Send Aid to MacArthur" campaign was rather a tribute to a hero than any suggestion as to how the job might possibly be done.

The President had told his press conference: "You tell me how to get the help there, and I'll send it."

To this poster the answer had not yet come.

MOVING DAY: For Aliens

Pacific coast residents were told that the huge machinery necessary for moving about 100,000 enemy aliens and American citizens of Japanese extraction out of the coastal area was finally complete.

The work of moving them, the government had said, might start any day.

Where they would be sent, there had been little hint, but two sections had been mentioned, one of them in Idaho and another in Colorado.

It was to be a huge task, but with the war going as it had been in the Pacific, white residents of the Pacific coast would breathe more easily when they had gone.

RUMORS:

As the war fronts were extended, so the rumor factories kept turning out bigger and bigger stories.

Widely circulated in the United States had been two of them, first, that Churchill would be out and Cripps in as premier in three months; the other that Germany was about to seek peace with Russia.

Most observers agreed that anything was possible in this topsy-turvy world, but the two rumors had been greeted in England with smiles and disdain.

A Hungry Giant, That's Alfalfa

Michigan leads all other states in alfalfa acreage.

That statement may not be true in the future if farmers fail to realize that alfalfa should be known as a hungry giant that vigorously soaks up certain plant foods not too plentiful in the average Michigan soil.

To prove his warning, a few of the plant food requirements for alfalfa are described by H. C. Rather, head of the Michigan State College crops department.

A good crop of alfalfa removes two or three times as much potash from the land as most other crops. Alfalfa requires lime. Lime applications may last five to eight years but certainly not for twenty years. It was 20 years ago that Michigan launched an intensive liming program linked with increased alfalfa acreage.

Similarly alfalfa needs phosphorus, a plant food low in quantity in practically all of Michigan's soils. Professor Rather points out. Nitrogen is not a problem, for alfalfa gets its nitrogen from the air where it is abundant.

Some indication of a possible trend in acreage is apparent for this excellent forage crop that now occupies more than a million acres. Rather points out that acreage in Monroe and Lenawee Counties, the first areas to grow alfalfa extensively in Michigan, actually dropped from 1934 to 1939 when the total acreage in the state was increasing by 300,000. Some reduction also occurred in counties such as Jackson, Kalamazoo, Washtenaw, Van Buren, St. Joseph, Barry, Allegan, Branch, Berrien and Hillsdale.

Kansas and Nebraska lost their alfalfa leadership because the plant depleted deep, dry soils of their subsoil moisture and because of destruction by bacterial wilt. Michigan may lose its championship and also an extensive source of good livestock feed because of soil depletion. In addition to periodic liming, Rather suggests applications of 400 pounds to the acre of 0-20-20 fertilizer, sufficient for four or five years, and not in the past 20 years promising greater profit than in 1942.

Singapore is strategically important because more than a quarter of the world's trade passes through the Straits of Malacca.

The problem of proper tire control is a common topic of discussion nowadays. If the rubber shortage continues indefinitely, then we shall see all kinds of rubber that will hold air being used for automobile tires.

Safety-minded drivers will do everything possible to keep their present tires in the best possible shape.

1. Switch the tires every two or three thousand miles from wheel to wheel.

2. Avoid fast stops.

3. See that your tires are inflated properly and regularly.

4. Check your wheel alignment to see that the wheels are lined up properly.

5. Cut down speed.

6. Cut down speed around curves.

Many more rules could be developed, but these are some of the most essential; and if you will follow them, you will have rubber on which to drive your car.

It's smart to drive carefully.

12 Reds Give Lives to Kill Thousands of Foe

STOCKHOLM. — A squadron of Russian living bombs—old airplanes loaded with dynamite which crash on their targets with the pilots still at the controls—sank 12 German ships off Russia's Kronstadt naval base, the Soviet radio said.

The radio report, published here in the newspaper Aftonbladet, said that "the Red army sacrificed 12 old planes, several thousand pounds of dynamite and 12 pilots, but the Germans lost thousands of men and 12 ships and a large amount of war material." The report said a German assault on the Kronstadt area was beaten off largely as a result of the heroism of the suicide squad.

'Nazi' Salute to Flag

WASHINGTON.—Capital school children henceforth will use the regulation army salute in the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Asked if the arm-extended salute was abandoned because of its similarity to the Hitler greeting, Superintendent of Schools Frank Ballou said: "Draw your own conclusions."

appeared three to six months ago, it is entirely feasible today in the opinion of army authorities. Lieut. General Ben Lear, visiting Fort Custer for an inspection, told reporters that enemy bombers could base in the Hudson bay district and easily fly to Michigan.

Equally important in modern warfare would be its propaganda value: The home moral stimulant from such a raid to inland centers of the United States. (Imagine how we would thrill over newspaper headlines of an American air raid on Tokyo!)

The Yankee spirit of '42 is shown by the following public notice on the front page of a weekly newspaper in Wayne county, the Huron County Sentinel at Flat Rock:

"Have you a pail of sand in your attic and also a pail on the second floor of your home to extinguish an incendiary bomb? The village of Flat Rock has sand available for this purpose. Bring pails for sand to police headquarters. Merrel Page, Village Clerk."

Farmers are faced with a severe labor shortage, so warns Dean E. L. Anthony, department of agriculture at Michigan State College.

Anthony says farmers do not apparently realize the seriousness of the situation, caused by selective service demands. The American army in the last war numbered 3,873,888 men on Nov. 11, 1918; today military authorities are talking in terms of a 10,000,000-man AEP.

Michigan workers in industrial defense approximate 400,000 according to George H. Fern, state director of vocational education.

Today's labor surplus, due to conversion of automobile plants, is around 170,000. Within six months it will be replaced by a shortage, and Fern foresees greater employment of women in war plants. The Ford bomber plant at Willow Run is expected to employ 12,000 to 20,000 women.

Vernon J. Brown, state auditor general, recently bought a farm four miles east of Mason where he was born 60 years ago. As the Ingham County News at Mason heralded the event: "After a lot of hard work he has been able to get back where he was 35 years ago (when he abandoned the farm for city life). Last Saturday he bought the old homestead back. He intends to plant the farm to alfalfa, buy a half-dozen bees, and a hen or two and be a gentleman farmer."

In the opinion of Federal Judge Frank A. Picard of Saginaw, the state's liquor commission should exercise more control, not less; the state should gain from the profit, not a private merchant.

As reported by Guy H. Jenkins, ace Booth correspondent at Lansing, the 1943 legislature may get recommendations to this effect from the three-man study commission appointed recently by the governor and headed by Picard.

Curfew regulations for sale of gasoline and oil are expected soon, reports William A. Palmer, director of the Michigan Petroleum Industries Committee. Reasons: Reduced consumption of gasoline, due to automobile and tire restrictions, is inflicting hardships on gasoline dealers; saving of electricity for industrial needs.

In fact, it's just the other way. Today's surplus of refined gasoline is the largest in many years.

A court decision on the civil service commission's interpretation of the new state amendment is expected at Lansing this week. Approximately 2,800 state employees, formerly sponsored by political friends, are involved in whether they were discriminated against by the commission which accepted certain merit systems (state police and state conservation departments, for example), results of examinations conducted in 1937 and 1939, but required them to take competitive examinations.

Elixir of Life

Alchemists of the Twelfth to Seventeenth centuries were popularly supposed to be searching for the "philosopher's stone" by which base metals could be transmuted into gold. Their research, however, was thwarted. The other two objects they had in view were the Elixir of Life, and the Alkahest, an imaginary liquid supposed to be a universal solvent capable of resolving all bodies into their constituent elements.

Here's Some Help In Planning Meals For Lenten Season

Lent, the season when many tighten their belts and gird their morale to resist their favorite dishes, is often the despair of the housewife who wonders just what to serve next. To the rescue come these suggestions for the main courses of at least two Sunday dinners during the Lenten season.

Now's the time to appreciate these canned seafoods so easily converted into tasty Lenten meals. Look at this one—rice and tuna loaf with tender green beans and crisp French dressing, to make up the main course of your Sunday dinner.
To serve 6 you need 1 pound can tuna fish; 1 package rice; 2 No. 2
cans green string beans; 5 carrots;
1 small head of cabbage; French dressing.

A festive salmon star surrounded by snowy white cauliflower, green beans and carrots make up a nourishing and tasty main course for a Sunday Lenten dinner. To serve 6 you need 1 large can of salmon, 2 pounds; 1 bunch of carrots; 1 head of cauliflower; 1 pound green beans.

So There!
"So you are living at a hotel?"
"Yes. The cook got so naughty and domineering that we decided to simply walk out of the house and show her that we could be as independent as anybody."

Maid of Honor?
"Say, old man, I'm in a pickle.
I haven't the price of a ring, and I'm engaged to Miss Flirt."
"Borrow one for the occasion, she'll give it back to you inside a month."

What do you mean by the glad hand?
"Anything," answered Mr. Blue-chips, "that will beat three of a kind."

Taken to Task
Boogy—The more I study about it, the more certain I am that people inherit most of their stupidity.
Woogy—Shame on you!—you shouldn't speak ill of your parents.

Fading
"The more I look at you, dear, the more beautiful you seem."
"Yes."
"Yes—I must look at you more often."

TWO SIDES

"What are your wife's most expensive clothes?"
"A coat of tan. First, she pays to get it on and then she pays to get it off."

Early In
"What business do you think your son will adopt?"
"Can't say, but judging by the hours he keeps, I should say he was naturally intended to be a milkman."

Two Sides to the Story
He—Darling, if I had it all to do over again, you'd be the girl I'd marry.
She—Oh, no you wouldn't.

Good Business
"Don't you love to see the young couples spooning in the park?"
"I certainly do. I sell easy-payment furniture!"

Reduction
Hausfrau—Aren't you making rolls a little larger?
Nazi Baker—Rolls, heck; them's loaves.

HE HAS HIS OWN TROUBLES

Truck Loading Restrictions Are Now Being Enforced

A true harbinger of spring was the announcement by the State Highway Department this week that special truck loading restrictions are now being enforced.

The spring loading restrictions are provided for by law at the discretion of the state highway commissioner during the period from March 1 to May 31. These special restrictions represent a 25 per cent decrease from normal load limits in the case of concrete pavements and a 35 per cent decrease on gravel roads or pavements without a concrete base.

First to come under the special restrictions were all types of highways from the south state line north to and including M-20 and all of the Thumb district, as well as gravel and blacktop roads in the lower peninsula.

Doerr's Restaurant Five went into a tie for third place by making a clean sweep of their three-game series against the faltering Bankers. The Farmers clinched first place by winning two games from the Gagetown Oilers and cannot be overhauled as the schedule closes next week. Two worthwhile totals are the ones rolled by Parsch when he connected for 579 pins and Captain Larkin's 588 count.
