convinced that many war plants are over-manned with draft-age workers, that management is trying to hedge as much as possible against anticipated draft losses that women can replace most men and do the job just as well.

On management's side you hear this complaint: Organized labor is limiting production, compelling workers to slow down, and is indifferent to frequent absences by workers. "We can't win the war on a 40-hour week," officials · insist.

According to two British labor leaders who recently visited a number of American plants, the average American worker is not aware of the danger confronting the democracies.

Arthur Stace, editor, Ann Arbor News, makes this observation:

"While paying the highest tribute to the magnificent physical establishments connected with the job of building weapons, the two visitors observed that the average American war worker seemed to lack the sense of urgency that motivates British workers to allout production.

"Still more recently, an American reporter in Britain contributed a somewhat similar observation. His account did, however, emphasize a slightly different aspect of the situation. It related that after having lived together under the pressure of bombs and under the threat of imminent attack, the British had acquired two valuable qualities: steadfast national solidarity and a willingness to sacrifice. In the face of perpetual danger, the nation has drawn closer unity there might bring us closer together and individuals have lost together in belief. a large part of their reluctance to

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT-Matthew 18:15-17; Acts 1:8; 2:42; 6:1-4; 11:27-30; 13:1-3; GOLDEN TEXT—As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.—John 20:21.

The church is the greatest institution in all the world, with the most The evening evangelistic service widespread membership and influence. That is true from a purely Myers' Quartet in charge. The secular or worldly standpoint. Then when we realize that here is more than a human organization, for it is in fact a divine organism; that it is the means through which God and Saturday, there will be afteris now manifesting this power tonoon prayer meetings in the baseward men, we see the supreme imment of the church, beginning at portance of understanding the 2:30.church and our relationship to it.

This week we stress the mission of the church. We note seven things.

I. Holiness of Life (Matt. 18:15-17). In a time when general standards of decency and honesty are low, and no one wants to be his brother's keeper, the church needs to be reminded that part of its mission is to inaintain holiness in life and the relationship of one to another. Notice that man's attitude toward his fellowman is first a matter for personal attention, then it becomes of real interest to the church, and if no response is found there, the offending individual is excluded and put in the hands of God. Be sure to observe that all this is done to

"gain" or win him back, not for revenge or in bitterness. II. Witness in Divine Power (Acts 1:8).

The witness bears testimony to that which he has experienced, and in the case of Christian experience

he is assured of divine power in carrying out his sacred task. The world would have laughed

(and possibly did) at the idea of a small group of bumble believers making the gospel effective simply by telling others about the Saviour -- but it worked, because God's power was in it. III. Unity in Faith and Practice

(Acts 2:42). The early church had not yet been split up by the philosophies of men and the vagaries of doctrine, which have since divided God's people. It was His purpose that His people should be one in Him, something we should recall before we divide them just to promote some theory of interpretation. Unity is not only a matter of belief, it must reach into the practice of daily life. They were steadfast not only in doctrine, but in communion and prayer. A bit more IV. Service, Spiritual and Social (Acts 6:1-4). The church rightly put the emphasis on the spiritual. The leaders Patterson reported 700,000 differidatino request of the War and Navy Departments and Maritime Commission, lowered the minimum age for women employed in war industries from 18 years to 16 years. The war agencies stated the contlnued inclusion in war contracts of the 18-year provision would "impair seriously the conduct of government business by retarding essential production....." In ordering the change, Secretary Perkins ruled that a contractor shall "keep on file a certificate of age showing that every girl employed by him is at least 16....no girl under 18 shall be employed for more than eight hours in any day, or between the hours in any one day, or between the hours of 10 p. m. and 6 a. m., or in any way contrary to state laws governing hours of work " Any woman worker under 18 must granted a specific luncheon period of at least 30 minutes.

with an stamp, "December 7, 1942"?

Frank N. Isbey, Frank Murphy's choice for manager of the Michigan State Fair, who is chairman of the Michigan war savings committee, invites Michigan citizens to "remember Pearl Harbor" by buying an extra bond between December 1 and 7.

A commemorating date of Dec 7 will be stamped on each bond purchased during that period, if the purchaser requests it.

Within twelve weeks after enlistment, 300 Michigan volunteers in the U.S. Marines will be on their way to battle, presumably in the southern Pacific war zone.

This fact, together with the 167th anniversary of the founding of the Marine Corps, prompted a group of chain store executives in Detroit to arrange a Christmas party in San Diego for the Michigan lads.

Each youth will receive a box containing cakes, cookies, cigarettes, razors, belts, etc.

Cooperating companies are the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, Sears Roebuck, Kroger Grocery & Baking Company, S. S. Kresge, and Cunningham Drug Stores.

Repeal of war time for Michigan the most western state to be within the eastern time zone, is a good bet for the 1943 state legislature. Campaigning candidates found this pledge to be a vote-getting weapon in bidding for farmers support. The last legislature repealed the advanced war time, only to have the governor veto the bill. Streamlining the state legislative job into two annual sessions, instead of the biennial seige at Lansing that usually goes well into May or June, is one of the objectives of Governor-elect Harry F. Kelly.

Other governors have had similar dreams-economy in government, for example-and it remains to be seen whether Kelly can deliver the goods.

It is his conviction that an annual budget would be more efficient. Hence the annual session proposal.

who had gifts for ministry of the be diverted into social service. Too many in the church have failed at that point. Even the good may be the mortal enemy of the best. At the same time the early church did not neglect social needs. Men were appointed to care for them.

In all too many instances the modern church has failed to minister to the social needs even of its own people and has weakly (and one fears gladly) turned them over to social agencies. What a pity!

It proves faith by works. It translates the gospel into a language an unbelieving world can understand. VI. Obedience to the Holy Spirit (Acts 13:1-3). God has certain plans for the work of the church in the world, and be sure that they are no small or indifferent plans. His mighty agent in bringing His will to pass in the world is the third person of the Trinity, the Holy Spirit. If the church will respond to His guidance and be subject to His control, the work of God may go on unhindered. But just there, Christian friends, the church has most ingloriously failed. The early church was directed of the Holy Spirit to set apart Paul and Barnabas for the work of missionaries and evangelists. Knowing as we do the marvelous results of their ministry, we shudder at the thought of what might have happened if the church had disobeyed the Holy Spirit that day!

more important is our own need of fellowship with God's people.

Fighting Forest Fires

the three "v's" have an important bearing on their intelligence quotient, for good, well balanced food makes both child and adult fit for whatever the day may bring. A poorly nourished body isn't receptive to learning exposure, nor is it capable of meeting the intensive requirements of physical or mental work.

Lunches should pull no punches. Just because they are compact, and it's difficult to have as much variety and hot food as when you are preparing the lunch in your own kitchen, is no reason for skipping over the lunch lightly, in the hope you can make up these shortages at dinner. This meal in the middle of the day should take care of a third of the day's food requirements and as such is not a matter to be considered lightly.

Yes, it's a challenge, homemakers! You may bake the best cake in miles around or turn out a roast that's proud to behold, or a dessert that's purely ambrosial, but if you don't put up a lunch that your child or defense worker husband eats with gusto, you won't get my vote for excellence.

Now, let's get to work! Sandwiches are a standby, but let's make them something more than peanut-butter and jelly or cheese between a couple slices of bread.

There are many reasons why electricity is cheap. Our power plants are more efficient than they used to be. Our customers have helped to reduce prices by using more electricity — for better lighting, for cooking, for heating water, for dozens of jobs. We have learned how to do our part of the work better, have thought of many plans to save time and money, like the two-way radio sets for our trouble crews, and so on.

So there have been repeated rate reductions_right in the face of rising prices for almost all of the things which we have to buy to make electricity. It is a record of good service and of lower and lower rates, of which we are very proud.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE HEMLOCK TREE

When hope goes out, despair comes in, And then the battle's hard to win.

D⁰ YOU know the meaning of the word despair? It means the feeling that there is no hope, not the least bit of hope. It is a dreadful feeling. Bobby Coon knows all about it. It is a feeling which makes you want to let go and not try any more, or else do something very desperate, which means something which you would never think of doing if you had any hope at all.

When Bobby Coon, looking down from his hiding place near the top of the young hemlock tree in the Green Forest, saw that the hunters knew by the barking of the dogs that he was in that tree a terrible fear clutched at his heart. Still he did have a little bope. He knew by the way they walked round and round the tree that they couldn't see him. The branches of the young hemlock were thick and the light from Mistress Moon made the shadows very black. It was where the branches were thickest and the shadows were blackest that Bobby was hiding. So as he watched the hunters walk round and round, all the time looking up, he knew that they couldn't see him and in spite of his terrible fear a little hope began to grow in his heart.

But when at last Farmer Brown's Boy began to climb the tree hope went out and despair came in. If Farmer Brown's Boy kept on his way to the top he was bound to find him. Bobby knew that. And what could he do? Nothing. Just nothing. Anyway that is the way it seemed. Of course he might jump to the ground, but there were those dread-had chosen a tree a little nearer to other trees so that he could have crossed from one to another. But there wasn't a tree near enough to this one for him to do that. Nearer and nearer came Farmer

Brown's Boy. Bobby's heart seemed as if it would pound to pieces with fright. He felt so hopeless. He kept still as long as he could. Then, almost without knowing what he was doing, he began to climb down. Yes, sir, Bobby Coon began to climb down. You see he just could not sit still a second longer, and as he couldn't go up he had to go down. Up went Farmer Brown's Boy and down came Bobby Coon. One was on one side of the tree and one on the other. Was Farmer Brown's Boy going to be stupid enough to let Boboy Coon pass without seeing him? Bobby almost held his breath! as he got so near that he seemed to be looking right into the eyes of Farmer Brown's Boy. He knew then that Farmer Brown's Boy did not see him. There was no doubt about it. Bobby didn't know whether to go on or to stay where he was and fight as best he could if Farmer Brown's Boy tried to hurt him. He drew back his lips so as to show his teeth, his sharp, white teeth, and he started to growl. And just at that very minute he saw something in the eyes of Farmer Brown's Boy that made him change his mind. He didn't know why, but somehow he had a feeling that Farmer Brown's Boy didn't want to hurt him and didn't mean to hurt him. Bobby kept right on down one side of the tree while Farmer Brown's Boy kept on up the other. Bobby waited until he saw a chance and then softly dropped to the ground and ran. He knew it wouldn't be long before those dogs found his tracks and it wasn't. But it gave him time enough to reach and climb another tree, a great chestnut that would not be easy for the hunters to climb.

Farmer Brown's Boy looked very foolish as he climbed down from the young hemlock tree to join the others. At least he tried to look foolish as the other hunters made fun of him for letting Bobby Coon get away. He wouldn't for the world have them suspect that he had joined them in their hunt so as to save Bobby Coon. No one would have guessed it to have seen the eagerness with which he led the way to the tree at the foot of which the dogs were now barking.

The Repeal Amendment

The prohibition repeal resolution was passed by the senate February 16 and by the house February 28. 1933. President Roosevelt took office on March 4, 1933. The resolution was sent to the secretary of state on February 21, who immediately sent copies of it to the governors of the states for ratification or rejection by the convention method, as provided in the Constitution. On December 5, 1983, it was adopted by 36 of the 48 states---three-quarters of the entire number, when the amendment became effective. President Roosevelt proclaimed adoption of the amendment on this date.

from which quality cream and butter is made. Object of straining milk on the farm is not so much to improve its appearance as to remove extraneous matter that may have fallen in during the process of milking. Authorities are agreed that straining should be done immediately after milking so as to remove particles which might dissolve if left in the milk for any length of time. Of the three types of strainers most commonly used on farms, the so-called "cotton disc" filter is by far the most efficient for removing sediment from milk. Filter cloth or cotton will remove 21% times as much foreign matter as cheese cloth and four times as much as a wire strainer. The drawing above gives a pretty good idea of why this is so. In addition, milk and dirt tend to become lodged in the meshes of the wire cloth where they serve as a cream.

Clean milk is the raw material | food supply for bacteria. Cheese cloth, all too often kept soiled and unsanitary, instead of keeping bacteria out, frequently serves as a source of contamination for the new milk. Cotton strainers, on the other hand, inexpensive as well as efficient, cannot possibly harbor germs because they are discarded after each use.

Dairy experts make the point that while the straining of milk is essential, it doesn't take the place of cleanliness in the production of milk. Cleaned milk, they point out, is never as desirable as clean milk. It is, therefore, highly important for the farmer to take every precaution to see that undesirable matter does not get into his milk, since the bacteria carried on such particles are to a large extent responsible for offflavors, excessive sourness and general decomposition in both milk and

Alaska Scouts Win High Praise Trail Blazers for Landing Of American Forces in The Aleutians. HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DE-FENSE COMMAND. - A rough. tough band of Alaskan scouts, who can go farther on a chunk of dried salmon than most men can go on full field rations, drew praise as the heroic trail blazers for the landing of American forces on one of the Andreanof islands in the Aleutians. The scouts are home now, getting a bit of relaxation by climbing mountains or shooting mountain goats, so their story can be told. They are known officially as the combat intelligence platoon of the Alaska Defense command, but the designation leaves Alaskans cold. Refer to them as "Castner's Cutthroats" and the natives know the fabulous outfit of which you speak. They faced a stormy and treacherous sea at night in rubber boats; they slept on a rocky coast without fires or the protection of as much as a pup tent in the driving rain, and they went ashore on a foggy island when they didn't know but what the enemy might be there in force. Named for Colonel.

"Castner's Cutthroats" got their name from their commanding officer, Col. Lawrence Castner, son of the famed Maj. Gen. Joseph C. "Bull" Castner of the First World war. The colonel, as a veteran Alaskan officer who knows the far stretches of the territory intimately, lauds them as the greatest unit in the army. Beside them, he contends, the Commandos seem soft. The backbone of the platoon is composed of volunteers from the Alaskan back country, both natives and whites. Late in August, after months of training, the scouts set out across Bering sea for their island destination, with homemade boats lashed to the decks of their vessels and rubber boats inside, ready for inflation. Nobody then was sure whether the Japanese might have a large force on the island or a small one, ready to call in the bombers from Kiska. Their boats couldn't even enter the uncharted and tricky harbor. High seas washed over the decks. The homemade boats had failed to stand the trip.

Desperate Battle.

So, in the dark of the niht, the scouts set out in their awkward rubber boats, fighting a wild sea that was running crosswise to their course. The colonel himself joined in the rowing and paddling. It was a desperate battle to reach

Vaccination of Calves Checks Bang's Disease

Because of the war and the desire to step up milk production in ning. line with the Food for Freedom program, dairy farmers have adopted calfhood vaccination as a means of controlling Bang's disease more quickly than they would have in ordinary times. Calfhood vaccination makes it possible for herd owners to replace old, unprofitable cows with heifers immune from brucellosis, or Bang's disease, Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairyman at Rutgers university, reminds herd owners. However, the answer to the question of whether vaccination is the best method of controlling the disease, depends upon many things, Dr. Taylor says. "As an example, U. S. department of agriculture officials point to many farmers who have tried the test - and - slaughter method and have not been able to eliminate the disease from their herds completely," he reports. "These farmers frequently are in communities where brucellosis is prevalent. And in all probability, calfhood vaccination would be recommended.

"On the other hand, a farmer may cellosis in his herd. If he lives in they started their survey. They picked out possible landing field sites and gun emplacements. Some of them covered 40 miles a day. When the troops came in force later they were ready. They showed the soldiers where to build roads and took them to camp sites at a pace some officers complained was too fast for the troops.

NEW DELHI, INDIA.-A warning to United States soldiers that they must not allow the cheapness and plentifulness of Indian servants to ers in the county the annual subundermine traditional American scription for the National 4-H self-reliance, is contained in Round-Magazine, official publication of up, the weekly 12-page newspaper now published here for American expeditionary forces in India and China.

A brightly edited tabloid. Roundup features articles designed to help newly arrived soldiers understand the Indian people and their customs. Pointing out that Indian servants are naturally ambitious to make themselves indispensable, Roundup warns United States officers and men:

"Personal servants probably will not be allowed to accompany troops in the field. If you have forgotten how to clean and check your canteen, make your bunk, shine your shoes and do other personal essentials for yourself, you will be the loser.'

Agriculture in Industry By FLORENCE C. WEED

Hops The relatively unimportant bops crop contains hop oil, hop resins and acids, hop tannin, hop bitters and hop wax, but few of these possibilities have been converted to industrial uses. Hops are used mainly in brewing malt beverages where their flavoring and preserving qualities are of particular value. American hops are of high quality but a few individual brewers prefer to import varieties which have special properties lacking in the domestic hops. This makes the market variable and in some years, 5,000,000 pounds of hops have been left unharvested when the price is low and labor is scarce.

The yellowish aromatic substance called "lupulin" contained in hops, has some outlet in medicines. Research is under way to recover certain compounds found in hops which are lost in the brewing process yet might be valuable in other industries. Dyes, tannins, wax and pectin all might be recovered. Even the fibers left after the hop resin is extracted might be converted into plastics as is being done with soybeans.

Hops are like their name in the way they have moved about this country. They were first introduced in New Netherlands in 1625 and came to Virginia five years later.

Guard Livestock Health More research on livestock health. and passing the information to livestock and poultry producers is urged. A report pointed out that livestock losses in the United States, because of poor health and disease, total about 268 million dollars a year. It was also suggested that farmers may be given the facts best through newspapers, periodicals, and the farm press, telling of prac-

Strength Is Growing as Japs' Declines; Russ Smash Nazi Threat to Caucasus; MacArthur Traps Japs in New Guinea

The North African coast was the end of the first lap of their journey to Berlin for thousands of U.S. soldiers who participated in the successful invasion of French North Africa. The above photograph, one of the first pictures passed by the war department, shows a detachment of U.S. troops landing at a picturesque Algerian Mediterranean village west of Oran.

SOLOMONS: Smashing U.S. Victory

Americans had scarcely received the news of the brilliant naval victory in the Solomons which drove the Japs back reeling with 23 ships sunk and 30,000 sailors and soldiers drowned, when additional reports were forthcoming on the sinking of five enemy warships. The second action was the concluding part of a great three-day engagement which routed the Jap fleet from the Guadalcanal area. Shrewd and resourceful Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the American forces, emerged from the battle as one of the outstanding heroes of the war, for it was his audacity and pluck in the face of superior Japanese forces that won a smashing three-day victory.

Jap ship losses in the slugging encounter included one battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and eight troopladen transports sunk; four cargo transports destroyed on the beach near Guadalcanal, and one battleship and six destroyers damaged. Enemy losses in the second engagement were one battleship, three large cruisers and one destroyed sunk.

Naval officials said there was "good reason to believe" that the sinkings reported in second engagement were in addition to those previously recorded.

American losses were two light cruisers and six destroyers sunk. The major part of the sea action was fought directly off Guadalcanal

RUSSIAN FRONT: Reds Show Mettle

The Nazi threat to the Caucasus mountain passes and the Grozny oil fields was lifted when the Russians staged a fierce counter attack in the Ordzhonikidze area which resulted in the annihilation of 5,000 German troops and the capture of 140 German tanks, 70 field guns, 2,350 army trucks and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

The furious nature of the Red assault and the fact that the Russ forces were fully equipped with planes, tanks and other mechanized equipment indicated that this engagement might be the signal for a far-flung counter-offensive all along the Soviet front.

At the other end of the Caucasus front German attempts to break through the Soviet lines near Tuapse were repeatedly beaten back. Meanwhile reports said winter was closing down rapidly over the entire Russian front.

As it had for weeks past, the Nazi front at Stalingrad remained at a stalemate, with German attacks beaten off by the stout-hearted Russian defenders. The industrial city's factory area was the principal target of the Nazis' effort to gain a firm foothold in this strategic Volga metropolis.

Declaring that he had made a constant effort to keep politics out of the fighting of the war. Mr. Roosevelt pleaded guilty, however, to having permitted pressure to disclose the sinking of an American aircraft carrier 10 days before the November elections. He said he had realized that "if the news of the sinking had been given out two or three weeks later, it would be publicly charged that this news had been suppressed by me until after the election." The result was that vigorous protests had come from commanding admirals in the Southwest Pacific and at Pearl Harbor that military information was being given to the Japs, because they probably had no sure knowledge of the island, which the Japs approached with three strong fleet task forces intent on effecting a landing that would dislodge the heroic American defenders. One of the decisive elements in the battle was the daring of American surface units in steaming directly between the lines of the Jap columns, firing broadsides in both directions. In this phase Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan, former naval aide of President Roosevelt. was killed in action.

While the navy rejoiced in its triumph, it accorded full credit to General MacArthur's aircraft which had originally spotted the Jap concentrations and made repeated bombing attacks on the enemy shipping.

NEW GUINEA: Jap Dunkirk?

Steadily the jaws of the Australian-American trap had closed on the strategic Jap-held port of Buna in New Guinea.

Significant of the importance of the New Guinea drive to dislodge the Japs was the presence in the field of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. While his land forces converged on the enemy positions, MacArthur's bombers had fanned out for widespread aerial activities. On their calling list besides Buna were enemy installations at Lae and Salamaus.

The critical plight of the Jap garrison at Buna was emphasized by the arrival of eight enemy warships in the vicinity. In a grim game of hide-and-seek that ensued between American Flying Fortresses and the Jap vessels, one enemy cruiser and a destroyer were sunk and another destroyer damaged before the flotilla fled. Observers were of the opinion that the Jap warships might have been preparing to evacuate the Jap defenders of Buna.

18-19-YEAR DRAFT: High Schoolers Deferred

President Roosevelt set aside three weeks beginning December 11 for registration of youths who have reached or will reach their 18th birthdays since June 30. The President's order likewise provided continuous registration on their birthdays of youths who become 18 on or after next January 1.

A presidential proclamation hailed the new registration as "advisable to Collapse. insure victory."

FRANCE: Laval Mask Off Pierre Laval could now write his own ticket. Observers believed that ticket would be filled out with orders for greater French collaboration with the Axis. For when doddering Marshal Petain invested Laval with dictatorial power giving him the right "on his simple signature alone to make laws" the immediate fate of continental France was in pro-Berlin hands. Petain's decree simply gave official sanction to what had been an unofficial fact for months. Everybody in and out of Europe knew Laval had been the real boss of the Vichy regime and Petain the figurehead. Now Laval could emerge in his true role. Across the Mediterranean in Algeria, Admiral Jean Darlan continued as the titular head of French North Africa. But no longer had he Vichy's blessing and no longer was he heir-presumptive to Petain's post. Achieving the doubtful distinction of International Turncoat No. 1, Darlan had dexterously cast his lot with the Allies, following the successful American invasion. Previously he had been notoriously pro-Axis. His elevation to second in command to Petain had been a reward for his Axis leanings after the 1940 French the expense of maintenance.

Boise Story Told

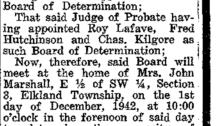

in which she helped sink six Jap warships off Guadalcanal in early October, the heroic light cruiser Boise was undergoing repairs at an eastern American shipyard, after being battered by gunfire, swept by flames and losing 107 of her crew in action. That the Boise would be refitted in time to steam off to war again was emphasized by her commander, Capt. E. J. ("Mike") Moran, and navy officials. The Boise was lead ship of an American naval task force that engaged a Jap cruisertransport force bearing troops for the Southeastern Solomons and bore the brunt of the fighting in which the enemy lost two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and three destroy-

Given up for lost in the battle, the undaunted Boise later joined its companion ships after receiving shell hits in vulnerable places. In the engagement, the Boise fired more than 1,000 rounds of six-inch shells in 27 minutes.
