

Cass City District Nears Its Quota in the War Loan Drive

Purchases in Novesta and Elkland Townships Pass the $167,000 Mark.

With Tuscola County as a whole just slightly past the halfway mark toward its quota of $1,557,000.00 in the Third War Loan Drive, the local committee for the Elkland and Novesta Township territory announce that purchases here have, up to Wednesday night, passed the $167,000.00 mark. The local quota is $183,100.00.

"Although the job is not yet done," says Willis Campbell, local chairman, "our community leads the county in the showing made thus far. Practically all of the larger purchases have already been made, we think, so the remainder of our quota must be filled by a larger number of $25, $50 and $100 bond sales. Personal calls by our solicitors have not yet been completed, so we know there are more purchasers to be heard from. The remaining $16,000.00 will require the equivalent of 160 individual purchases of $100.00 each. That is still a lot, of course, but I am sure our community can and will do it. We have 200 to 300 boys from this locality in the armed services, and we want them all to know that we here at home are 'Backing the Attack.'"

Clarence Bougher, county chairman of the U. S. Treasury War Finance Committee, released the following figures which show the bond sales in the districts up to September 21:

District	Quota	Sales
Akron	$69,170.00	$31,437.25
Caro	441,200.00	156,402.50
Cass City	183,100.00	137,043.75

Burt A. Elliott to Retire as Rural Letter Carrier Oct. 1

Burt A. Elliott completes 30 years as a rural carrier on Thursday, Sept. 30, and will be retired on pension on October 1.

He commenced his duties as letter carrier at Kingston before automobiles became the mode of travel for mail men. Back in 1913 and for several years later, Mr. Elliott traveled with a horse as motive power and a buggy or cutter as a conveyance. When the going was "tough," he made his 28-mile daily trips on horseback.

After seven years at Kingston, he was transferred to Cass City where he has served for 23 years. Here his route has varied in length over the years, from 30 to 62½ miles a day. All in all, his travels have totaled around 300,000 miles in the 30 years.

Mr. Elliott's parents gave him a second name of Alpheus, a Bible character. However, that middle initial of "A" could have stood for Accommodation to his patrons, for he has gone out of his way to render a service hundreds of times. This goes also for folks not on his rural route. Patrons have always found him congenial and courteous.

Mr. Elliott has always been interested in music and in church work. Each Sunday morning for a long period of years, he has had a group of interested boys below teen age in his Sunday School class.

He plans to enter defense work in Bay City following his retirement from the mail service.

Saturday Wedding in St. Pancratius Church

Miss Elsie Lobb of Novesta chose white slipper satin for her bridal gown for her marriage Saturday, Sept. 25, to Pfc. Roy William Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, formerly of Novesta but now at 4297 Fifteenth Street, Detroit. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Fr. John Bozek in St. Pancratius Church in Cass City at eight o'clock in the morning. The attendants will be Miss Eileen Lobb and Paul Lobb, Jr.

The wedding dinner will be served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lobb, Sr., four miles south and three miles east of Cass City, and in the evening a reception will be held in the home of the groom's parents in Detroit.

Pfc. Brown is a member of the U. S. Marines stationed at Camp Kesney Mesa, San Diego, California, and has served overseas at Guadalcanal. The couple will live at El Toro, California.

Tin Pickup in Tuscola County October 4 to 9

Towns Will Have Curb Pickups; Rural Schools Are Collection Points.

The next pickup of tin for Tuscola County has been set for the week of October 4 to 9. The method of collecting will be the same as in previous pickups. Each town will have a curb pickup; schools will be collection points for rural districts. County or state highway trucks will transport the tin to Caro.

Regarding preparation of cans:

1. Wash and remove labels.
2. Cut both ends. It is best not to cut out the ends entirely, as by leaving the ends attached it eliminates many loose pieces.
3. Flatten.

"We should like to caution about other scrap in tin can collections," say collection officials. "In the past we have found all kinds of articles, scrap iron, rubber, brass, and even old shoes. We do not like to be 'choosy,' but what we want is tin and more tin, tin cans and tin roofing. Condensed milk cans are very desirable but are hard to prepare. Open one end enough to clean; then by holding ends of can over fire, the top and bottom will become unsoldered so that they can be knocked off."

"Everyone by now must be forcibly impressed with the scarcity of tin by the absence of tin products in all stores. According to latest information, if the war with Japan were to end tomorrow, it would be two years before tin mines would be operating. It, therefore, behooves each and every one of us to do our utmost to help relieve the shortage of this scarce and much needed metal."

"Let's all get together and push this drive. We are counting on you."

Mrs. M. J. Clark Celebrated 94th Birthday Sunday

One of Cass City's oldest residents, Mrs. Mary Jane Clark, passed her 94th birthday Sunday in the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Clarence Burt, where she has made her home for the past two and a half years.

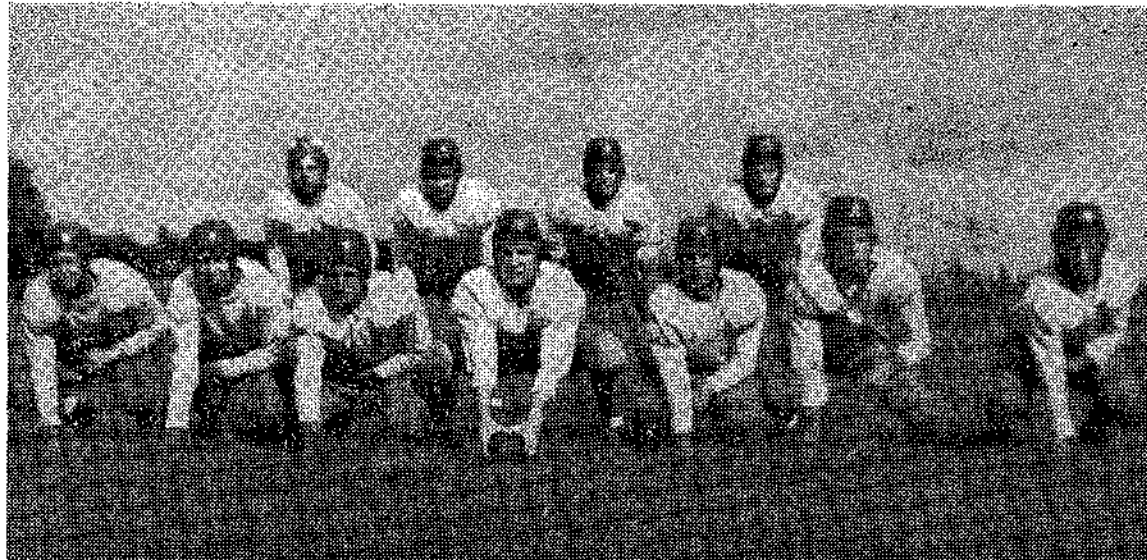

Guests Sunday were her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Dennis, of Keego Harbor, and her grandson and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dennis, and son, Dick, of Royal Oak. Tuesday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dennis, daughter, Jean, and grandson, Jimmy, of Marlette and their son, Lt. MacDonald Dennis, of Lubbock, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dennis of Marlette had dinner with Mrs. Clark.

Cards and greetings from many friends added to the pleasure of the day.

Mary Jane Wells was born Sept. 19, 1849, in Erie County, Pa., and came to Michigan at the age of six years. In December, 1865, she married Orson Burns Clark, who had served under Gen. Grant during the Civil War.

Mrs. Clark has two daughters, Mrs. Chas. Dennis, of Keego Harbor, and Mrs. Emery Webster, of Elberta, Canada, eight grandchildren, ten great grandchildren, and two great great grandchildren.

Start Season's Playing Today

Well, here they are—the Cass City High School football players who start their season's schedule this (Friday) afternoon on the local field.

Cass City High School's football team will meet Vassar here this (Friday) afternoon at the fair grounds.

The latest informal comments from Coach London are that the squad is in top condition and he sincerely believes they are ready for their opening.

Vassar is already one game up on Cass City's eleven in that they played their opener last Friday against Millington.

A great deal is expected of Kettlewell's ingenuity and ability to carry the ball and McConnell's speed and capability as a ball handler. With such an outlook for foot work, there will be little need for an air attack. However, the boys will not hesitate to use their passing game if they see the need.

The opening gun will sound at 3:30 sharp. The Cass City High School Band will play.

Gavel Members Speak Extempore

At the regular meeting of "The Gavel" Tuesday evening, Herb Ludlow and George Dillman were accepted as new members.

Entertainment for the evening was extemporaneous speaking. Sealed envelopes which were numbered were given to each member and as the number was called, the member opened the envelope and on a slip of paper found the topic on which he was to speak.

The club accepted an invitation from the Rotary Club to meet jointly with them next Tuesday evening in the dining room of the Baptist Church.

Oatley Tells Rotary About Boy Scouts

Howard Oatley, the new Boy Scoutmaster, gave an interesting address on Boy Scouts at the Rotary Club luncheon Tuesday. He commended Hugh Munro, who has served as Scoutmaster, and his staff and members of the troop committee on their excellent cooperation and supervision of the local troop. He said that Rotary members would do a greater service to the youth of the community if they signified a willingness to take a personal interest in the boys, spend time with them, and extend their friendship, rather than lend their financial support, important as the latter may be.

Mr. Oatley told the club the origin of Scouting in England in 1907 and of its growth in the United States since its introduction here three years later.

Harvest Festival Party Honors the Kirn Family

To show their esteem for their pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. S. P. Kirn, and family, members of the Evangelical Church held a harvest festival party Friday evening in the basement of the church building. The room was appropriately decorated for the occasion with autumn flowers, corn stalks and pumpkins.

The Kirn family experienced a genuine surprise. They had been invited to be guests at the Homer Hower home at a chicken dinner that evening. A telephone call brought them back to town, a little early perhaps, to find upon arrival that nearly a hundred of their church members had assembled in their honor.

During a short program, the following numbers were presented: Concluded on page 4.

Only with great difficulty was he able to jerk his foot loose, leaving his shoe, sock and part of his toes. Unable to make himself heard, he crawled on his hands and knees to his house where Mrs. Remington was canning, unaware of the accident.

Mark Poison

Poisons should be kept separate from medicines and foods and out of the reach of children. Moreover, it is wise to mark poison containers so that they will be positively identified even in the dark. A clear label and pins stuck in the cork will warn the unwary of danger.

To break bread at Zheshebe Min-
is with Chase Salmon Osborn, Michigan's world famous Iron Hunter and its oldest living ex-governor, is a memorable experience, never to be forgotten.

In company with his son, George,
and his daughter, Ethel, we journeyed recently from Sault Ste.
Marie to Duck Island in St. Mary's river (Zheshebe Minis to the Ojibways) where Governor Osborn, 84 years old next Jan. 22 and now totally blind, lives humbly and happily. His domicile is of the same mode in which he was born—a log cabin, symbol of the American frontier.

Here is a patriarch, departing in a few days for his Georgia Possum Poke in Possum Lane, who has repeatedly astounded and perplexed a world by a Nazarene's sacred generosity and a naturalist's philosophy of contentment,
a pauper-to-millionaire who once commanded thirty million dollars in cold cash and then, except for an annuity investment, gave it all away!

Our brief visit was not the occasion, however, for quiet meditation and studied reflection by the "Governor," as he still is called,
but rather the explosive out-pouring of a brilliant and versatile mind—dominant and vibrating in a human, gusty force. To meet Chase S. Osborn, today as in the past, is to open a door and be overcome unexpectedly by the enthusiastic embrace of an old friend you have not seen for many years. He exudes an extraordinary warmth of personality, kindled by vitality and seasoned by an abiding love of his fellow men.

Taking a luncheon basket of sandwiches, celery and tomatoes, we proceeded by automobile from Sault Ste. Marie to the Sugar Island ferry and thence over winding island roads about 15 miles finally to the end of a narrow lane.

George and Ethel led the way, down a wooded trail to a bayou in which nestled a small isle, crested by tall pine trees.

Schooled well in the lore of outdoors by their naturalist father,
they noted and identified five golden-winged woodpeckers feeding on the ground and such northern plants as the partridge berry,
sweet gale bush, moose maple,
water hyacinth, June plums,
ground dogwood, and evening
primrose.

A handmade footbridge connects Sugar Island with Duck Island.
Thence you go by rocky trail past a guest tent to the Little Duck, a cozy log cabin workshop where Chase was dictating to his adopted daughter, Stellanova, who is his constant companion and eyes as well as a talented research-minded secretary. Although the eighth Osborn book, "Schoolcraft—Longfellow—Hiawatha," was published only last February, the Osborns are already busy gathering and compiling data for another one.

Delighted by the sound of familiar voices, Governor Osborn greeted his son and daughter affectionately. His laughter was hearty.
He was bronzed as an Indian,

wearing short rubber boots, khaki pants rolled up above the knees which were bare and tanned from sunshine, and a blue denim shirt opened at the throat.

He naps in the daytime and sleeps at night on an Indian-style bed consisting of balsam boughs
and blankets, placed on the ground in the center of a thatched, rustic building which was constructed by his Indian camp assistant, Gibb,
and thence known as the "Gibb-wam."

A second log cabin, called the Big Duck, is used for serving of meals which are prepared by a housekeeper. Duck Island time is two hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

Gibb, the Ojibway, had built a roaring blaze in Salmon Glade, a secluded opening in the woods,
about 25 feet from the river's edge
and a short distance from Little Duck.

We were seated on a log facing the fire, with a long limestone slab
for a table, when the "Governor" arrived. He had been walking gin-gerly down the trail, alone, finding his way by the aid of a tall staff.

"Please remain seated," he said.
Then he sat down with us and with the humility of a worthless beggar asked a divine blessing and voiced a fervent prayer for victory and peace and justice in a war-torn, weary world. It was the emotional cry of a man's soul.

Luncheon with Governor Osborn is not merely an hour of fellowship and a physical refreshing in partaking food. It is primarily a religious experience, the communion of man with his God.

A minute later, Osborn again became the boisterous, buoyant host, exploding retorts at George and Ethel and conveying tender affection to Stella and Gibb. He munched on six pieces of holland toast, topped with arrowroot cookies, and drank a quart of lemonade.
To waste food, even a tiny crumb, is a sin against conservation of nature. So the governor catches crumbs as he eats, holding a cup beneath his chin. Someone tossed the center piece of a tomato into the fire, and Osborn heard the sound and snorted loudly, "Feed it to the animals!" The week before, Gibb had declared a dividend, bringing five nice red squirrels
into camp for dinner.

The Osborn philosophy is this:
The world is a smorgasbord, provided by bountiful nature; take what you need; leave the remainder for others. One day, years ago, he discovered he was a millionaire.
Promptly he set about giving away
his fortune, and today is penniless, except for income of a life-time
annuity.

His mind, still alert, supplies
the "Chase S. Osborn Corner" daily
in the Sault Ste. Marie Evening
News, published by his son, George.
Recently in a letter to Arba N.
Moulton, newspaper editor at Decatur, he expressed the belief that Michigan's Tom Dewey "would accept the nomination for president,
if given to him, without any solicitation whatever, by the Republican convention. When he was a baby, I dandled him on my knee.
His mother and father were and are among my most intimate friends. His uncle was my parner."

Always a crusader for what he believed was right, Osborn is currently interested in correcting the U. S. Bureau of Census which persists in declining to count the Great Lakes area in the state's square miles. The Osborns maintain that Michigan is eighth among the

To all DETROIT EDISON CUSTOMERS

The War Production Board has asked The Detroit Edison Company and all electric utilities to cooperate in a nationwide voluntary program to reduce the use of electricity.

Electricity is cheap and unrationed, and in our Company there is no shortage of generating plant or distribution facilities. But electricity requires thousands of tons of coal per day in its manufacture—besides manpower, transportation and other critical materials. The coal situation is a matter of vital importance to everyone—and when you save electricity you save coal, as well as many other materials needed for war.

Direct savings in lighting and power can be obtained by turning off lights which for a time you can get along without, and by using only essential electrical equipment. No effort need be made to curtail necessary military, aviation and police lighting, or lighting essential to public health—including light for eyesight conservation and safety. Nor will plant protection lighting, transportation, or light for production purposes be affected.

ALL public utilities are included in this nationwide conservation program—gas, telephone, water, transportation—as well as electricity. Your help and the help of all our customers will make the program a success. Here is an opportunity to prove that patriotic self-imposed, voluntary rationing can work. The Detroit Edison Company.

A 3 per cent saving in the Detroit Edison monthly output of electricity will save approximately

While press and public were crying for a tripartite meeting of the representatives of Russia, Britain and the United States, the arrangements for a whole series of meetings were already being made. It was not until almost the end of the Roosevelt-Churchill visit that we learned, first, that the tripartite meetings "on the foreign minister level" had been definitely agreed upon and, second, (which no one then guessed) that a commission was to be formed of representatives of all three powers to discuss the situation arising out of the Allied victories in the Mediterranean in which Russia is so deeply concerned but which, militarily speaking, she has been forced to view from a distance. When we received that news, we were unable to indicate its source.

Washington Digest

Tripartite Picture Clearer Since Meeting in Quebec

U. S., England, Russia Agreed on Fundamental Policies; Observers Optimistic Concerning War, Post-War Cooperation.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

The ink is now dry on the secret footnotes which appear in the memoranda officially recorded after the long and quiet conversations which took place in the presidential study in the White House when the Allied strategists worked out the end of another chapter in the history of World War II.

My own modest notations, scribbled on the backs of envelopes, and on scratch pads, and written in taxicabs, leaning against a White House elm after a press and radio conference, taken down while the President or other officials were speaking, make a clearer pattern.

Words and phrases take on new meanings, rough sketches are filled out in revealing detail.

The speculation, the criticism, the attacks and the apologies which swirled about the Allied policy toward Russia, for instance, it is plain now was built mostly on half knowledge.

While press and public were crying for a tripartite meeting of the representatives of Russia, Britain and the United States, the arrangements for a whole series of meetings were already being made. It was not until almost the end of the Roosevelt-Churchill visit that we learned, first, that the tripartite meetings "on the foreign minister level" had been definitely agreed upon and, second, (which no one then guessed) that a commission was to be formed of representatives of all three powers to discuss the situation arising out of the Allied victories in the Mediterranean in which Russia is so deeply concerned but which, militarily speaking, she has been forced to view from a distance. When we received that news, we were unable to indicate its source.

The Darlan Question

Another source of bitter controversy which has been allowed to fester was cleared up at the same time. Certain groups in England and America from the very beginning violently objected to the choice of Darlan as the man with whom the Allies dealt in North Africa. There have been two revelations on that score which, had they come earlier, might have cleared the air.

One concerns the Russian attitude—and the Russians certainly ought to lean as far to the left as anyone. It now seems that the Soviet leaders, frankly opposed to Darlan and all he stood for, actually accepted the British and American policy on the basis of an old Russian saying that in matters of military strategy—or comparable situations—it is sometimes necessary to deal with the devil and his grandmother.

A word from the chief of staff revealed in his annual report to the secretary of war is interesting in this connection. He says of the diplomatic preparation before the invasion of Africa: "Should an approach be made to a single Frenchman who proved unsympathetic to our purpose, we risked the slaughter of our soldiers on the beaches of North Africa as well as decisive losses to our shipping. . . . unexpectedly, Admiral Jean Darlan, Petain's designated successor, and commander-in-chief of all French forces, was found to be in Algiers visiting his sick son when our forces landed. He was taken into protective custody and when it was found that the French leaders stood loyal to the Vichy government, a series of conferences immediately followed with the purpose of calling a halt to the French resistance against General Patton's task force in the vicinity of Casablanca."

The Background

Then, on the morning of November 11, the Germans invaded France and Darlan obligingly rejected the pseudo-independent Vichy government and assumed authority in North Africa in the name of Marshal Petain and ordered the French to cease all hostilities.

Just what pressure or argument was used in getting Darlan to yield to Allied wishes has never been revealed or what his motives may have been—they may indeed have been prompted by the devil or his grandmother—but those who knew the inside military expediency, did not quarrel with his action. Death took Darlan from the picture. It did not end the arguments, but since we know now that the head of the Communist state of Russia was able to swallow Darlan, the squeamishness of some of the critics seems a little far fetched.

In the days that followed the recall of the Soviet ambassadors to London and Washington, the outcry over the absence of Stalin at Quebec increased. Roosevelt, Churchill and Secretary Hull were blamed—there was the blow-up over the charges by a columnist who said Hull was anti-Russian.

I talked with Secretary Hull about that time. Whatever his feelings may be regarding communism, he indicated from his remarks to me that Russia was looking sympathetically on the attempts at a joint conference, and a few days later, a high British source stated flatly there was no great divergence of views between the Soviets and the Allies.

Agreement

Both were thoroughly agreed on the necessity of the destruction of Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism, and it was revealed that Marshal Stalin was rising in prestige with the army and that the Soviet army was rising in prestige with the Russian people until it was already on a level with the communist party itself. This seemed to indicate, as Captain Rickenbacker said when he returned from Russia, that the ideologies of the policies and the capitalist nations were growing nearer.

Today, as Washington looks back on this last visit of Prime Minister Churchill, there is a feeling that not only are Britain and the United States closer in both their war and their post-war aims, but that the possibility of bringing the Soviets into the circle is greater. One reason for this is that certain problems on which there has been disagreement have been met and thrashed out successfully between Roosevelt and Churchill and the way is open to a much more extended discussion with Stalin's representatives.

Meanwhile, the position of Secretary Hull, within the administration, has been greatly strengthened as one after another, he has taken over the functions of all agencies which have any dealings whatsoever with foreign countries. He has placed the question frankly before the President who had to choose between his secretary of state and those who opposed him inside and outside of the state department.

Hull's Position

Secretary Hull's position is this: the policies which I have sponsored and insisted upon have justified themselves. Either my department must have full authority in the field of foreign relations or I will hand in my portfolio.

The President faces, first, a congress which has had time to think over its position, has heard the complaints and received the advice of its constituents. It returns determined to imprint its will on national policy, foreign and domestic. Its texture is and has been for some time strongly away from the so-called new-deal policies, strongly toward the conservative side. Secretary Hull probably stands higher, has more friends, and can exert more influence with congress than any member of the cabinet. The President needs a congress which will stand behind him if he is to carry out the plans for further conduct of the war and the winning of the peace according to methods he believes it is necessary to employ.

And, of course, there is the fourth term ahead, for continuance in office is essential, the President's friends believe, if he is to mold the post-war world.

Secretary Hull is his anchor to windward. This is due to his political influence and also because he and what he symbolizes both at home and abroad, have become inextricably bound up in world negotiations.

And for the President, there is but one objective now—that is, to be the peacemaker as he was the war leader. All else—choice of counsellors, domestic policies, must dovetail into that purpose.

Ammunition Is Assured to Hunters of the State

P. J. Hoffmaster, state conservation director, declares that the war production board and the arms manufacturing firms had assured him that Michigan hunters would have new supplies of ammunition by the first week in October.

Hoffmaster stated that with the left-over stocks from last year, which the dealers now have on hand, and the early shipments of the newly released supplies, Michigan hunters should have an adequate supply of shells by Oct. 1.

This would be in time for all of the Michigan hunting seasons, except perhaps the first week of the migratory waterfowl season, which begins Sept. 25. The small game season begins in the Upper Peninsula October 1 and in the Lower Peninsula October 15.

To the People of this Community:

ARE YOU REALLY AT WAR? What does being at war mean to you? Less gasoline for your auto? Less sugar in your coffee? Higher prices for your food and clothes? Separation from your husband? Sure, it has meant all these things, some serious and some really trivial for a period when your actual safety is at stake.

But has the war meant BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS to you? In many instances YES. The first stage of invasion has already pushed our casualties over the 100,000 mark.

The gold stars which decorate thousands of our homes today are a challenge to the vast majority of us to do our best in the Third War Loan. No good American wants to see one more gold star added to the firmament of glory. We educate our youth for life, not for death. If they die, they die so that we might live. Every extra War Bond you buy today will back the invasion so that the war will be shortened and so that there will be less blood, sweat and tears for you and your friends.

SIX HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES HAVE ELECTED OFFICERS

Concluded from page 1. eighth grades also held class elections recently under the direction of Mrs. Mary Holcomb, junior high principal. Their officers are as follows:

Eighth Grade—President, Harold Whittaker; vice president, Gene Sicker; secretary-treasurer, Manley Fay.

Seventh Grade—President, Irving Parsch; vice president, James Wallace; secretary-treasurer, LaDonna Ludlow.

A new feature in the organization of the high school this year is the setting up of a home room system. Students are divided alphabetically into nine groups, each under the guidance of a teacher in whose room they meet the first quarter hour of each day. It is hoped that this plan will allow for a more helpful and sympathetic relationship between each student and a member of the faculty. The home room organization will also be utilized in the sale of war bonds and stamps, in sponsoring worthy school functions, and in serving generally as the basic unit for all school activity.

The student council, whose members have heretofore been elected directly by the classes, will this year be composed of the six class presidents together with the presidents of the home rooms. The group, which seeks to represent the students in the planning and administration of school affairs, will meet and work under the guidance of Harold Outley, social science instructor and dean of boys.

The list of home rooms, together with their teachers and officers, is as follows:

Room 34—Teacher, Mr. Ackerman; pres., Jean Bigelow; vice pres., Charles Auten; sec., Jean Auslander; treas., John Bugbee.

Room 37—Teacher, Mr. Parker; pres., Betty Chapdelaine; vice pres., Newell Dorland; sec., Marion Dodge; treas., Lorelei Doerr.

Alfred Fort has received the following V-mail letter from Sgt. Angus Davenport, whose mail reaches him through the postoffice in New York City:

"Just a note telling you that I am all right, and everything is going fine. How is everyone in the old home town? I don't hear very much from there anymore but hope everything is the best. Say, Al, if you send me the address of your relatives, I might be able to look them up and see how they are. I might be close to where they are. And if you want to send a note to them, I will see if I can help. This will be short but there isn't much room on one of these. So tell the home folks 'hello' and I hope to see them some day soon."

Lt. William N. Spencer of the U. S. Army Air Corps writes his mother, Mrs. Stanley Sharrard, from Grenada, Mississippi, under date of Sept. 9:

WHEN WILL THIS WAR BE OVER?

AFATTISH MAN we overheard in a Pullman diner said it would be over some time during the week of Nov. 11. He'd talked to "a man who knew a man who was high up in the army" who'd said the Allies were planning to terminate the war on the 25th Anniversary of the Armistice.

The fattish man doesn't know.

A woman, who is president of a literary club in a medium-sized town in Colorado, says the war will be over in April, 1944.

This is (we quote her) "just a year after the fall of Tunisia, which is about the time it ought to take us to beat Hitler and clean up on the Japs."

The lady doesn't know.

The fact is that nobody can look into a crystal ball and tell when this war is going to end. Nobody, not even the General Staff, can look at the war maps, survey the disposition of troops, weigh our might against the enemy's might, and tell when this war will end.

There's only one thing we can be sure of—just this one thing:

This war will end sooner if everybody on our side—and that includes you—pitches in and does everything he can to help end it. "Everything" means, among other jobs, buying all the War Bonds you can afford. All.

Your government is asking every citizen to purchase—during September—$100 extra in War Bonds. At least $100 over and above what he has been buying.

Does this sound like a lot to you? Well, the only answer is our men need a lot. A General Sherman tank still costs $90,000; a Flying Fortress still costs $450,000.

You can buy your extra $100 worth, can't you? If you can't, read over every story in today's paper that tells about some soldiers, some sailors, some marines, some merchant seamen dying somewhere in this war-torn world.

And remember—they're dying for you.

Snap Beans

When snap beans are cooked tender, serve them piping hot with some added fat and seasonings. Some cooks like to use butter—heated a bit so it has a nice browned flavor. Others prefer bacon fat—sometimes with bits of crisped bacon sprinkled over the top of the dish of green beans. Still others like to cook the beans with some salt pork or a ham hock—but don't overcook.

Ensign Risks His Life to Save 250 Torpedoed Mates

Stays Aboard Sinking Ship To Aid Others; Credits Stamina as Athlete.

PHILADELPHIA.—Not much has been said or written about the heroic action of a navy ensign who helped save the lives of 250 mates on a torpedoed ship.

Not much has been said because Ensign L. Daniel Dannenbaum, 22, the officer in question, hasn't liked to talk about his work done in the line of duty.

Home on leave, the Bethayres navy man credits the stamina which enabled him to stand waist deep in freezing water on an overcrowded life raft for more than eight hours to the conditioning he received when captain of the Yale swimming team last year. He was also intercollegiate backstroke swimming champion and a member of the intercollegiate medley relay trio.

Saved 250 Shipmates. Ensign Dannenbaum's ship was struck in the North Atlantic by an enemy sub last February, just two months after his graduation from Yale. He was sleeping when the torpedo crashed under the sickbay near his room.

Grabbing his lifejacket, he rushed to the deck and noted the big holes ripped open on the ship's port side. He saw, too, the wreckage piled against the hatch door where 250 sailors and marines were trapped. Hearing their screaming shouts for help, Ensign Dannenbaum cleared away the wreckage with the help of a sailor, then ran to his station on the main deck. When he reached his life boat he found it more than full, with at least 60 men aboard.

"No more room, no more room," the men called out to him as the boat was lowered away. By now the ship was sinking, but fast, he said.

Saved by Coast Guard. "I finally got off the ship with 23 others in a life raft, which was built to hold 10 men," he said. "The water began to seep in over the sides and soon came up to our waists. I took command and placed the men around the raft to level it off so it wouldn't capsize. Some of the men were naturally excited, and I told them that a plane would pick us up shortly, though I never believed it myself. The water was too rough for a plane to land."

Twenty minutes out, Ensign Dannenbaum said, one man died. "Two others died three hours later." The men were picked up by an American coast guard cutter eight hours later. The cutter chased submarines for two days before making for port where the shipwrecked men were put in a hospital for a week's rest.

Find Illness Is Biggest

Drain on U. S. Manpower
WASHINGTON.—The greatest drain on the United States working manpower is not accident but illness, according to a recent survey by the department of labor, the American College of Surgeons and the National Association of Manufacturers.

On the basis of the survey, 92 per cent of the absenteeism in war plants is attributed to illness and only 8 per cent to accidents. Colds and other respiratory diseases are responsible for almost half the reported absenteeism, accounting for 43 of every 100 absentee-days.

Mongrel Dog Honored for Aiding Stricken Bird

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.—A New York State Humane society medal was awarded to Penny, a mongrel dog, who won international praise for his humanitarian impulses. During a sleet storm last winter, Penny brought home to his owners, Mr. and Mrs. William G. McKee, an ice-coated partridge. The dog shared his own food with the bird until it was released this spring.

Mrs. McKee said news of Penny's act had brought laudatory letters from all over the United States, Australia and Hawaii.

First Aid by Sailor

Saves 25 After Crash

LOS ANGELES.—Pharmacist's Mate Vernon M. Floyd, 24, was praised by the navy for saving the lives of 25 wounded marines aboard a transport ambulance plane which crashed in the Pacific.

Floyd became a virtual one-man hospital for eight days, although he suffered serious injuries himself. He prepared an emergency antiseptic, rationed food and medicine, and even improvised a still to supplement the two gallons of water aboard the plane.

Man Toting Bushel of Spuds Asks Police Aid

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—An elderly man carrying a bushel basket of potatoes stopped Patrolmen Charles King and Bernie Hetenhoues.

"I guess I'm going to have to ask for police protection," he told the officers, explaining he was being stopped every few feet by pedestrians inquiring where he had purchased the currently scarce spuds.

STATE PLANNING HAS WIDE SCOPE, KELLY ANNOUNCES

the state into different institutes or clinics based upon the types of interest and the sizes of the political subdivisions. Some institutes will consider the problems of large cities and others those of smaller communities.

"It is planned that regional meetings will be arranged for the industrial and agricultural sections; also one in the northern part of the lower peninsula and one in the upper peninsula.

"A manual is being prepared covering state planning, planning organization, local city and village planning, county and township planning, financial planning, and other related subjects to assist local agencies.

"Limited resources of the state will meet only a small fraction of the needs of the state. Local programs will provide the most good to the greatest number of people. Practically every community has a definite need for some public improvement that has been delayed because of the war, or was never made because of lack of finance. This cessation of public improvements has made possible the reduction of the public debt through-out the state and many public agencies are now in a position to proceed.

"Public improvements for a post-war program should be based upon need established by the willingness of the local agency to furnish funds. The length of the program may be based upon the ability of the governing agency to finance it, and if approved on this basis, outside aid can then be used to accelerate or enlarge the program," Kelly concluded.

DETROIT EDISON COMPANY TO AID IN REDUCING THE USE OF ELECTRICITY

tary, aviation, police lighting; lighting essential to public health, including eyesight conservation and safety, plant protection, transportation and production purposes.

J. W. Parker, vice president and general manager of the Detroit Edison Company, in commenting on WPB's program, said: "The voluntary conservation program gives Detroit Edison customers an opportunity to prove that patriotic, self-imposed voluntary rationing will work. The Detroit Edison Company estimates that a reduction of even 5 per cent a month in the use of electricity would save approximately 11,500 tons of coal and 14,000 manhours for the war. Installed generating capacity of the Detroit Edison Company is ample to meet all possible needs of customers in this territory, but it is necessary to save electricity in order to conserve critical materials and manpower for the effective prosecution of the war."
