DRAFT: 4-Fs Spared

Declaring that selective service and the Manpower commission already possessed enough authority to deal with labor problems, Representative May (Ky.) announced that house military affairs committee pigeonholed the proposal to draft 4-Fs into work battalions if they failed to take essential employment,

"We heard testimony by army and navy officials that the manpower situation is critical, but then Manpower Commissioner McNutt told us there is no labor shortage and that new controls are not needed." Representative Costello (Calif.) said.

4-Fs could be influenced into entering essential war work if the army adopted a policy of inducting them for limited service if they remained in unimportant occupations, Representative Costello added.

AUTO OUTPUT: Waits on War

Sitting together in Washington, D. C., representatives of nine automobile companies and top executives of the War Production board huddled over plans for future resumption of civilian auto output, with emphasis on partial manufacture following the defeat of either Germany or Japan. With the industry's manpower situation easing and companies fearing wholesale unemployment when munitions production tapers off, the executives returned to their plants to take under study requirements of materials, space and tools for resuming civilian output, and the time that would be needed to get machinery and set it up.

Although no quotas for different manufacturers were discussed, some executives favored a production of 2,000,000 cars during the early stages.

U.S.OIL: More Seen

Possibilities of new discoveries and more efficient production methods should assure the U.S. of sufficient oil for the future, Socony-Vacuum President John A. Brown told stockholders during the course of a report on 1943 operations of the company, showing a profit of $35,944,983. Besides discoveries from ordinary explorations and wildcat drilling. Brown said, additional crude oil should become available through better production technique and secondary recovery methods. At prices no higher than the average dealers' prices of 1918-22, exclusive of taxation, gas can be produced from coal, Brown declared.

The Republican leaders here conceded their "bad boy" generally from 10 to 14. Even the Bricker group (with the best line on the result), figured at least two delegates, probably four.

Comments of the leaders here naturally were mostly jibes at this most ignominious defeat of modern political history, inasmuch as Willkie claimed he was a candidate of the people against the bosses, the common rejoinder now is that he apparently has more bosses for him fhan people.

The slogan, "Who wants Willkie?" generally went unanswered, without plausible objection, also, the withering score of the Dewey victory, followed by Willkie's withdrawal from the race, was accepted everywhere on high as meaning Dewey will be nominated, without any dangerous intra-party struggle, on the first or second ballot,

But the complete sinking of a popular national figure needs more explanation than this. True, his personal popularity had been impaired by his utterances and tactics. His remark, only half explained, that one of his 1940 utterances was only "campaign oratory" obviously discouraged some support.

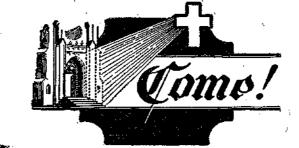

More important perhaps, he refused to support whomever is to be nominated by his own party, and his whole method suggested he was at least equally strong against his Republican opponents as against Roosevelt, if not more so.

Even so, all these facts seem to fall short of the complete significance of the defeat of a national figure who made 23 speeches through a state in which no one else was talking, and then ran last. It seems irrefutable to me that Willkie just had nothing interesting to sell.

WHAT PEOPLE THINK

The people these days are thinking and talking primarily about the conduct of the war, the confusing steps taken by leading world statesmen and what kind of peace we can get out of this confused situation. They are more concerned with taxes for instance than with future Social Security, because taxes hit them now. Time passed him by. znzhznznznznznznznznzhznznznznznz

Sevastopol Besieged

Their retreat across the Crimea ended, German and Romanian troops backed into the historic base of Sevastopol, while Russian forces pressed against the city's outer defenses and their aircraft trained their sights on Axis evacuation vessels in the harbor.

The Russian advance in the Crimea highlighted Europe's warfare. with U.S. and British hombers concentrating, on the continued bombardment of German industries and communications in the west to prepare the invasion path, and Allied forces sparring in Italy for openings in the Nazi guard below Rome.

As Russia laid siege to Sevastopol, other Red forces encountered stiffening Axis resistance in Romania and southeastern Poland, where mixed German, Romanian and Hungarian armies went onto the offensive to launch local counterattacks.

Diplomats Curbed

Taking no chances on the leakage of any military information to the Axis, the British government prohibited the departure of any neutral diplomatic officials from the United Kingdom and also assumed censorship of any of their dispatches.

In taking the extraordinary action which was approved by the U.S. and Russia, the British explained that private industry paid out that any leakage not only might impair Allied operations, but also might complicate relations with the countries whose nationals divulged $8,900,000,000 were indicated. any information.

freedoms to Russia, Poland, et al. were not yet apparent to the people. In short, this is a failure not alone of Willkie, but for the whole thin garment of false liberalism that his vociferous left-wing followers in New York tried to drape around him. They tried, for instance, to divide the country into two camps, saying they were the internationalist liberals, and everyone else was an isolationist, the people of the country just have not divided as directed.

Certainly they have not expressed themselves for any defined policy in any noticeable way.

Domestically, with taxation at the breaking point upon the great middle class of people, Willkie demanded the Roosevelt recommenda-tions for great increases be doubled -whereas Roosevelt's own party in congress overwhelmingly restricted increases to a fraction of what the

DEFECTS WERE APPARENT

This agitation just did not make sufficient common sense, or prove sufficiently interesting to draw a winning national following. These defects in his plan to elect himself were apparent long before the Republicans of Wisconsin spoke. The best line from Nebraska suggested he might suffer defeat there again at the hands of his former friend, Minnesota's Ex-Governor Stassen, at the time he issued his withdrawal announcement. A rise in the stock of Governor Bricker may ensue. He may hope to get a portion of the Republican organization group, although the rank and file of the party want Dewey. Some organization people still op. pose the New Yorker on the ground that he is "immature or not quite regular enough." The movement to smoke him out however is now more apt to fail.

Only Willkie and Democratic Chairman Hannegan were calling upon Dewey to speak out, although Mr. Roosevelt is not. As only Dewey's enemies apparently wish to draw him into discussion and promises, it seems plain they want him to serve their purposes rather than his own.

麗 If he can get the nomination without having indulged in a fight for it (making enemies), and without political promises, (cabinet jobs, etc.), he will be in the best position of any Presidential candidate in a long time.

It will be the ghost of an earlyday "liberal" who tried—unsuccessfully-to have a gay time in Puritan New England. His name was Thomas Morton and in 1625 he established a trading post near Wessagusset (later the site of Quincy, Mass.) which he named "Merry Mount".

prosper almost immediately. Morton became a prime favorite with the Indians because he traded them two things which they wanted mostfirearms and firewater. By edict of the king, supplying the savages with either was strictly forbidden.

Enjoying this prosperity, Morton decided in the spring of 1627 to have a great celebration. So he invited his Indian friends to a May Day festival. What happened on that occasion at this Colonial "hot spot" is described by Governor Bradford of

"They allso set up a Maypole, drinking and dancing about it many days togeather, inviting the Indean women, for their consorts, dancing and frisking togither (like so many fairles, or furies rather) and worse practices. As if they had anew revived and celebrated the feasts of the Roman Goddes Flora, or the beasly practieses of the madd Bacchinalians." Of course, the tale of such goings-on at Merry Mount outraged the good citizens of neighboring settlements and when Morton declined to mend his ways, Governor Bradford sent the doughty Capt. Miles Standish (whom Morton disrespectfully called "Captaine Shrimp") to arrest him. After various misadventures, including a personal encounter between Morton and Standish and Morton's near escape by the device of getting his guards drunk, the master of Merry Mount was taken to Plymouth where he was given a preliminary hearing and sent to England for trial.

There he enlisted the support of -and smiled!

Comes May Day and thousands of | Sir Ferdinand Gorges, who hated American girls in our schools and the Pilgrims, and within a year Morton was back at Merry Mount, again dealing in firearms and firewater. But during his absence the Puritans had started to colonize Massachu-setts and these stern people were not to be trifled with. John Endicott, founder of Salem. visited Merry Mount. cut down the Maypole and took away all of Morton's winter supply of corn but failed to catch him. However, the lay hands on him. He was given a swift trial, sentenced to sit in the stocks, to have all his belongings confiscated and then banished to England. Later Gorges was made governor-general of New England and Morton planned to come back as his lieutenant. But Gorges' downfall ended that dream, However Morton did return to New England in 1643 only to find a meeting house standing on the place where his men and the Indian maidens had "danced and frisked" together. Again Morton was arrested but the magistrates couldn't fine him because he had already been deprived of all his property. They couldn't sentence him to be whipped because he was too old and halfcrazy, besides. So they sentenced him to prison and there all winter long he lay in chains without fire or bedding. In the spring of 1644 they released him for he was no longer a danger to the morals of the colony.

When he died two years later, with him died the Elizabethan tradition in New England. But 300 years after he erected his Maypole at Merry Mount his name was heard again. In 1927 a native American opera called "Merry Mount," with such stars as Lawrence Tibbett and Gladys Swarthout in the cast, was presented in the Metropolitan Opera house in New York and newspapers of the day described its reception as "the most enthusiastic of 10 years at the Metropolitan." Perhaps the ghost of Thomas Morton was there

Dress-Up! Domestic herbs will dress many a stew and pot-pie into a dish fit for kings. Try a dash of thyme, marjoram and sage, but remember, just a dash! Meat loaves become party-ish if topped with catsup. Meat pies take on color if topped with green pepper rings before serving.

Muffins and rolls made in smallsize muffin tins give distinction to dinners and luncheons. Pieces of leftover fruit atop muffins and breads are colorful.

Vegetables are gay if served in buttercups. Trim crusts off bread slices, press them in muffin cups and toast to a golden brown. Very pretty!

Give these beauty-aids to salads and garnishes: carrot curls are made by slicing carrots thinly lengthwise with a carrot cutter and winding the slice around finger. Let crisp in cold water. Peel cucumber thinly, and run prongs of fork down the length of the cocumber. Slice thinly.

Cucumber in this jellied aspic salad is just the thing to give tartness to a bland meal. Make the salad in a large mold and serve from buffet for real effectiveness.

MICHIGAN MILK PRODUCERS ASS'N

has served them for 28 years

Former owned—Former operated—with no interest other than to get the dairy farmer of Michigan the highest possible return for his milk-this great cooperative has, since its inception in 1916, developed an efficient personnel, a background of capital and equipment, plus a reputation of high integrity.

There can be no common ground between farmers and "labor evangelists," communistic minded unions, or self-seeking reformers - from a common sense viewpoint, these crilics of the ASSOCIATION have nothing to offer but promises, impossible of fulfillment.
