in variety and novelty is made up for in color, serviceability and pattern interest, to which add the clever self-fabric manipulation by designers, who are displaying utmost resourcefulness in creating stunning fashions out of simple dependably wearable materials.

Not all fabrics are available these days. Silk is about out of the picture and supplies of velvet are limited. So it is up to wools, rayons and cottons to rise to occasion, which they have most gallantly, taking care of the situation beautifully throughout every phase of fashion. Especially noteworthy is this year's output of rayon fabrics which includes weaves that tune to every fashion demand from sturdy made-for-hardwear types to dressy and glamour

An early fall star is spun rayon gabardine. This fabric is being used for intriguingly tailored sports dresses and suits, in soft pastels and bright shades. Spun rayon flannel is also a popular fall and winter fabric for dresses and soft tailored suits. It is especially chic in chalk stripes and plaids. Incidentally light-background plaids are newest and are preferred this year,

Blends of spun rayon and wool in dress weights are being used for moguls predict this will be a favorite those warm dresses done in pastels | for those moments when you want and high shades, which so definitely fill a winter need. The outstanding dressier rayons are mossy crepe, rayon faille, moire and jersey. Strictly in the running as to style are the drape dresses, which make striking color contrast their theme. Centered in the group is a rayon faille frock that's one of those sophisticate - simplicity types that young girls adore. It's the sort that will make your GI Joe's heart go double time. The lowcut square neckline is the very essence of flattery. Its flared skirt is grace itself and the three-quarter sleeves call attention to your pretty hands. It is perhaps smartest in black but you'll love it in a delectable color, too. Rayon failles are also important for dressmaker suits made eye-appealng with sparkling jeweled buttons. While limited in quantity there are some dressler rayons shown with "pattern interest." These include jacquards especially smart for dressy blouses and evening wraps also mattelasses and moires and some very lovely pastel brocades for waistcoats.

A dressy junior style done in young and gay jersey is pictured to the right. It is starred with gold namheads for glamour. The fashion plain wool and crepe dresses. This year's rayons are especially designed for good service. Many of the fabrics are washable and have been tested for color and other qualities. The best way of finding out about washability and other service qualities is to look for informative labels on dresses and fabrics. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Belts of Medieval Splendor Stylish

Belts have become a theme of high importance. They are being so richly bejeweled and embroidered they reflect a look of medieval splendor. When you wear one of these luxury belts with your simple black dress you need not another trimming accent. In the new collections you will come across such eye-intriguing types as the belt of purple velvet that is embroidered with gold thread and tiny white pearls, a scroll work being applied in gold kid. Colorful stones with gilt embroidery give to a black suede belt a precious antique look. Beauvais embroidery is a young way of adding dressiness to colored suede belts. A cummerbund style in bright green has a pink and green floral motif. Of course these belts come in the luxury class but any woman or girl who can sew and has creative talent can buy a simple velvet, ribbon or suede belt and enrich it with intriguing emproidery and various artful accents.

Sweater Dress New

A fashion that is eminently practical and goodlooking and is heralded as carrying an air of style prestige is found in the new sweater dress which just recently made its appearance in the fashion scene. From all signs the sweater dress is black skirt with a long-torso jacket sweater done in gray and white knit. Throw a handsome fox stole over one shoulder.

National Farm Life Can Be Made Secure

"One of the fundamental needs of agriculture is to have a succession S. at the home of Mrs. John of the same family on the same land throughout succeeding generations, Mrs. Joseph Grappan of Detroit according to H. C. M. Case, University of Illinois college of agri culture. In making that statement, Case said that he was thinking of the good of the individuate the community and the nation.

One of the major problems of agriculture is the movement of capital and earnings from the country to the city. In a period of ten years, approximatley six and one-half million people go from the country to the city during normal conditions. The costs of their education, the inheritance of farm property by city dwellers and collection of rent from a farm property by city dwellers make a heavy drain on the land. This situation also makes it difficult for young people remaining in the country to secure a foothold as farm operators and eventually to become owners of farm property.

One way of meeting the situation is by means of father-son partnerships on the farm, Case offered four specific suggestions, each based upon a well-kept system of records regarding kinds of father-son arrangements which may be made to facilitate the young man getting a start on the farm:

(1) Where the father owns all the land, equipment and livestock, and the son supplies only his labor. The Miss Joan King, daughter of Mr. common arrangement is to guarantee the son hired-man wages, but if a given share of the farm income agreed upon by the father and son exceeds the amount of wages then he receives an additional amount at the end of the year.

(2) Where the father is a tenant and the son contributes only labor. The plan is similar to the first one in so far as the son is guaranteed a going wage, but he receives a cor respondingly larger share of the income received by the father because his labor will amount to a larger proportion of the contribution to the farming operation than it would if he also owned the farm.

(3) Where the father and son oper ate a farm jointly. If the son lacks capital, he can give his father a promissory note and pay interest on his share of the investment of the operating capital, which would put him in the status of a tenant with his father. Under this plan, the father would receive the landlord share of the income from the farm, but in addition the father and son as equal tenants would divide any additional earnings between

The army air forces training aids division, of which Col. George W. Pardy is chief, arranges for distribution of training aids as soon as they are developed and proved practical. These aids range from plastic mockups (models) to graphics (posters) and from intricate machines to three-dimension weather maps. New training aids are being devised constantly. They come in from almost everywhere, from training fields and from men who have gained their knowledge in actual conflict. These are evaluated and if they are new and have merit, are passed along as quickly as possible. Of course there are specimens of Dec. 21. these aids at No. 1 Park avenue. Hits are recorded automatically. Whirling sky and landscape so heighten the effect that it seems quite like an actual engagement even to the noise of the plane and the guns. Then there's the "celestial navigation trainer." The student, if it is a day, sees the terrain over which he is passing, or looking upward, sees the sky with stars if it is night. So he learns to plot a course. Long before he gets into an actual plane, he knows what an instrument panel looks like and what is the job of each instrument. He can listen to the engines and tell if they are synchro nized.

The gyro compass doesn't remain a mystery long to the student. An over-size mockup lets him see the works and a small, but exact, gyro illustrates the principle. As for enemy planes, he learns to spot them through a kit containing plastic small scale but exact models which are kept constantly up-to-date. By means of a projection machine, slides of planes are shown on a screen for varying lengths of time. There are also views from various angles so that the enemy may be spotted from any possible position even if seen for only a fraction of a second. A fixed gunnery deflection trainer teaches the student pilot the amount and direction of "lead" to use when firing at an enemy plane. . . .

Much more, all interesting, was shown to me. But I must pass on to the pictures. One especially lingers in memory. It shows what can happen to a human hand left bare for only one minute in the subzero temperature of the stratosphere. Any student seeing that never would forget to wear gloves when high above the earth. One thing I learned is that in the Arctic, a beard is a liability-it gathers moisture which means a frozen face. Another interesting series of graphics shows what happens to an airman when he reaches a re-distribution center. He may be sent back to combat. He may be made an instructor. He may be placed in an entirely new job. Those posters stress that, though a man may have been maimed, he can still be a productive and happy member of soclety. The motto is significant: "The Army Air Force takes care of its

Colonel Pardy and those working under him like to think of Air Forces training aids as life savers. To learn to fly, a student still must go into the air. But if he has a comprehensive knowledge of airplanes, now to fly them and how to fight in them before he goes into battle, he has a much better chance. The first World War developed a number of wonderful fliers. But many a potential hero washed out-because of

It's easier to iron curtains on a well padded wide table top than on the usual ironing board. Remember that a good way to get uniform stiffness for your curtains is to dip all those from one room into one batch of starch. And if they are tie-backs they will keep their shape better if you let them hang a few hours or overnight before tying back.

"The explanation is simple. A burn is just like any other wound. It has to be kept clean, and salt water keeps it clean," he declared. The special solutions of salt water are applied in two ways, by saturating lightweight dressings, or by having the burned man bathe in a tub filled with the water. The burns are first cleaned with white soap and plain water.

The salt solution is called a "hypertonic" solution. That is, it exerts an osmotic pressure greater than that of the blood serum, the matethrough an open wound such as a

ADULT EDUCATION CHURCH PROJECT

Concluded from page 1. evening, Nov. 12, at eight o'clock. The gatherings will be informal in character, and men, women and young people of the church and community will be welcome. "West of the Date Line," published by the Friendship Press, deals with Christian pioneering in the Pacific area, providing a historical sketch of the political, social, economic and religious life in those areas. Problems in these areas profoundly affect the war situation and will have a large bearing, according to how they are settled, upon world order or peace. With a million or more of America's sons "West of the Date Line" and probably more who will be sent there, families with sons, daughters or husbands and fathers, or sweethearts "over there" will, along with others, who wish to keep abreast in Christian culture as it affects the social and political life of the world, and in turn is affected, enjoy sharing in the review and discussion of this challenging book and subject. The presidents of the Guild and the young adults' Fellowship club give their endorsement to the project along with the Women's Missionary society, supported by the session or elders.

"They Braved the Pacific" and "Peoples of Island India" will be reviewed Sunday evening by Mrs. M. R. Vender. On Sunday evening, Nov. 19, Arthur Holmberg, representing the session and men of the church, will review the chapters, "Here the United States Took Responsibility," "France in Asia" and "Thailand Under Test." Concluding chapters, Nov. 26, "Down the Malayan Bridge" and "Today and Tomorrow."

Bee Pollination

The usual recommendations for the pollination of bees seem to call for one colony to the acre of fruit to be pollinated. The weather so affects results, however, that often more bees would justify their cost, whereas under favorable conditions even the prescribed number probably exceeds actual requirements.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Hold Up Your End

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"I fretted about being a household drudge, and that made George cross, and our children heard a great deal that was quarrelsome and unpleasant."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

F YOU are one of those women who feel that they have made a general mess of matters, that your life up to this point has been one long mistake, misunderstanding and failure, then remember that we can always start fresh from where we stand, that it is always possible to look our affairs honestly in the face, make a plan that includes everybody and everything, and begin again.

This is a good time to try it, because life just now is at a low ebb for us all. The incredible dreadful thing has happened; the world is at war, and all the money and all the manpower we have are smashing civilization to pieces on a score of battlefronts. Our hearts are sick with longing for our boys, with prayers for them; our home life is disorganized and changed. Nothing is as it was, and from buying a new car to buying three shirts for the new baby, we can't get what we

Se, since things are bad, make them a little worse by getting your own problem ready for solution. We all hate to do it. We hate to pay old bills, to forgive old wrongs, to change old ways. We hate dullness, we Americans, staying at home instead of floating all over the highways; discussing brown points with our friends instead of cutting into great thick red steaks; putting up jam or fruitcake for Christmas instead of buying things in shops.

Good Credit Important. But it's going to be that kind of a period, and believe me, it will be one of the most interesting of your life if you determine that in 1944 you will live well under your income, pay up your bills to the last penny and be able to face whatever the future holds confidently. There is a family in our town that has paid off about three thousand dollars in petty debts in the last 18 months. They own their own home now, and while the big salaries go on they are planning to buy some modest bits of rentable property, so that when the war is over, if the girls marry and have babies, the older couple can offer them holidays in anxiety. Yes, that's what these years might easily mean to you and yours, if you use them wisely. The woman of whom I write is one of the mothers whose boys won't come home; she is carrying a deep load of sorrow as she plans for the postwar world.

the old home, help them get started,

and live themselves without money

"I wish I'd known," she said to me the other day, "that it was so simple to solve the money problem. We had plenty, all those years, for George never made less than about $50 a week. But I was younger, and extravagant, and the children needed so much. I fretted about being a household drudge, and that made George cross, and our children heard a great deal that was quarrelsome and unpleasant. They tried so hard to avoid trouble, to keep us friendly-I see that now.

"Just before Pearl Harbor we began to talk divorce; we were all miserable and upset-looking back, it seems so sad to me, for if I could have Hugh back, just for a few hours, he'd never have one moment of inharmony at home to remember. Our darling one boy, he was 18 just one week after Pearl Harbor and in the navy one week after that. He went away in January, was lost at Coral sea. For awhile it seemed to me as if I never could enter his room again, but now we've all shifted about, so that the association is slowly dying away.

War Makes Mother Wiser.

"Now there's plenty of money, for our girls of 18 and 16 are both in the production line, and I earn my are something to come home to!"

WHEN JOHNNY COMES

MARCHING HOME We will always be indebted to our soldiers now going through the trials of war. The least they deserve when their fighting is done, is to be greet-ed at home by happy families in a position to help them back to civilian normalcy. If there are debts, quarreling or any other unpleasant conditions in the family, now is the time to get them straightened out. Don't wait until Johnny comes marching home to unburden your troubles on his shoulders which already have felt the weight of more suffering than most civilians will ever be subjected to.

$300 a month, too. We'll be independent when all this is over. But I wish I could have those lost years back, to share George's responsibilities better than I did, to keep expenses down, to keep home the happy place it might have been, instead of the scene of so much worrying and bickering. I wish I could see my boy just once, to tell him how much happier and wiser we are

Life is going to be changed for us all, make sure of that. We are not going to rejoice in an armistice as we did 25 years ago, and go back serenely to the old ways. It has to be a better world, now, a safer place for us all. We will have to assume some of the responsibility for making and keeping it so.

Thousands on thousands making big salaries today will be out of work. Taxes will soar, for we are counting on the care of a million injured men. Anything that you are buying on the installment plan will be badly wanted by someone else, and your failure to pay up promptly will mean that you lose it. To face postwar conditions with a load of debt, to start right in complaining and worrying when the boys come home, will mean being a bad citizen, an American who is dragging down the struggling nation rather than holding it up.

We can do our returning soldiers no greater service than to meet them with good news. The house is paid for; we've bought a little farm; we don't owe anyone a cent. We're all in good health, we've a pound of butter in the icebox, and we're all ready to enjoy the better times with you, when they come along.

Service Men Want Normal Life. Our boys don't want to come home to any troubles or any complaining at all. They don't want to hear any bad news. They'll be tired and demoralized, and sick of troubles. The one thing we can do for them is to be normal, to have serenity and books, good table talk, confidence and affection waiting; to convince them that the towns to which they come home are the most prosperous and contented in the world.

Your share of that, however small, is very important. If you don't do your share, your soldier will have a right to feel badly treated, when he comes home.

So clean house. If the family is quarrelsome, get out of the quarreling habit. If there are unpaid hills, settle them. If there is grief to bear, remember that when he finds you quietly cheerful, more interested in the welfare of the living than in mourning for the dead, his own heart will feel an uplift; he will love you all the more.

Two brothers went out from the house next to mine two years ago; one came home last month. The whole family dreaded his lone return: but after the first moment everything went smoothly, and his leave was a happy one.

"I found out what a dad and mother and sisters I've got," he told me. "Courage and faith and love like that

Dramatic Play on Color This Season

Fashion Requires That You Utilize Best Colors.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It's well to know your colors these days for the greater part of current fashion centers about a dramatic use of the loveliest and most unusual colors that fancy might picture. What with fabrics limited to a comparatively few simple weaves, creators of fashion turned to color as a means of giving to women's attire a new and fascinating interpretation of chic, feminine charm and untold glamour.

It's not only a fact that the new colors are simply amazingly lovely but the way designers are flinging them together in dramatic combinations and bold contrast is simply breathtaking.

One of the big favorites this season appears on the color card as Cherbourg blue. It is really a royal blue that just seems to go with every other color successfully and used with black it is outstanding, Parma blue is another sweetly feminine color that is ever so flattering to most every complexion. Then there's that very new interesting blueberry shade that teams so beautifully with the fashionable fuchsia tones.

Prominent in the fashion picture are the new greens and the way designers combine one green with another green is something to dream about. Scarab green used with deep forest green gives a subtle effect that delights the eye. Many of the new wool suits and coats show this diro-color scheme worked out with high artistry. Citron green also partners well with a darker green. Blouses in lime green are in wide demand. It is said that fuchsia and lime green blouses top the list as to

Important in the color list are a series of yellows, the most outstanding being the new Russian yellow which is one of the featured colors for handsome wool coats. Sweaters in this yellow are smart and crepes in the same shade are selling for dresses and blouses. Victorian white is an exciting new color. It is not really white but is best described as a pale neutral suggesting a light putty gray.

The big emphasis however is on color contrast worked out in triand bi-color dresses and blouses. Also many a black gown gets its flash of color in three and two-color trimmings. Entire sections such as the blouse front or the sleeves or the yoke combine several contrast colors. You will come across most unusual color get-togethers such as a purple suit with which is worn a pink blouse and a lavender-stripe jerkin. You will see on display a scarab green suit with hipline cape which is lined with the new Parma blue.

Marabout Hat-Muff

Just wait until the fall and winter social season gets into full swing. and you will be seeing the most spectacular showing of feather and fur hats that imagination might picture. The hat illustrated is a forerunner of that which is to be in new millinery. The heart-shaped brim of this cocoa brown felt hat is covered with fluffy marabout, dyed to match. The marabout also makes the big muff that is a companion piece to the hat. There's lots of marabout in the winter fashion picture in way of neckpieces and stoles as well as hats and muffs.

Fads and Fancies

Now that fashion has gone all out for color, various stores are presenting color charts that give you a clue as to striking colorcontrast technique, to guide you in assembling your fall and winter costumes.

Your toes will twinkle in black crocheted slippers with an allover smattering of bronze sequins. These twinkle slippers are ever so attractive and you can get them in bright wool with multicolor sequins as well as black with bronze.

The pendulum has actually swung back to bright red knitted underwear. In the college shops, they are showing panties, pajamas and nightgowns knitted in one-third wool and two-thirds rayon yarn in about the brightest red you ever saw. When this fad gets fully underway there'll be no stopping it.

Farmers are urged to give some consideration to their cattle market ing plans for the remainder of the year. Because of possible market gluts, M. P. Mitchell, at Purdue uni versity, calls to their attention the following points:

1. Low grade beef cattle may be sent to market soon, before western cattle begin to move in volume. This would include cull aged cows of both the beef and dairy types, grazing cattle that are not to be grain fed nor kept for breeding, and, in some cases, surplus breeding cattle that are now on farms in excess of the farm's normal carrying capacity.

2. Although beef cattle prices under the controls now in force may not behave normally, there are good reasons for expecting prices of most grades of cattle, except the better grades of grain fed cattle, to worl to lower levels. This is especially true at the time that markets reach a glutted condition, in late summer and autumn.

3. Cattle now on grain feed probably will continue in a strong relative price position for the re mainder of this year. However cost: of gains in the feed lot are high relative to market values. There is. therefore, not a great deal of inducement for feeders to hold such cattle for further price advances. Grain fed cattle, because of their scarcity, undoubtedly will be less affected by market gluts than the plainer grades of cattle on the market. Grain fed cattle will continue in strong demand.

Parasites Controlled

Phenothiazine, synthetic coal-tar chemical, in less than five years has won first place among drugs used for removing internal parasites from farm animals. Experimental work has proved that this remedy is effective against six species of worm parasites of sheep and goats, four species in cattle, two in swine, one in poultry, and numerous roundworms of horses. In addition it is partially effective against several other parasites of livestock.

B-29 Bases Are Wonder of '44

Likened to Great Wall of China, Egypt's Sphinx And Pyramids.

A UNITED STATES AIRBASE IN WESTERN CHINA .-- When American army engineers began construction of bases for B-29 Superfortresses in western China last January, they were told they would have a vast supply of manpower but little or no modern equipment.

They had to forget power shovels, buildozers, tractors, ditching machines, steamrollers and other heavy machinery. They had only the labor of 440,000 men, women and children who carved the earth with their hands and primitive tools.

Yet, 90 days after the first rice paddy was broken down on one stretch of Chinese farmland, thousands of laborers stood aside to allow superfortresses to land.

Today, a complete network of superbases has been built in the Chinese plains, as a monument to this labor, likened to the effort behind the raising of Egypt's pyramids or China's own great wall.

Monument to Labor.

Just an idea of what conditions were like could be found at one base where five engineers supervised and inspected the work of some 70,000 laborers and the only machine they had was one overworked jeep.

Lieut. Col. Waldo I. Kenerson of Marblehead, Mass., who had built army airfields in South America, was given responsibility for speeding the program to a finish.

Colonel Kenerson said he literally "held my breath" as the first B-29 came in to a landing after a flight "across the hump from India."

New Antiaircraft Gun Is Messing Up Germans

ROME, ITALY, -- An American 90 millimeter antiaircraft gun, which hurls explosive shells at terrific velocity, is being used against enemy troops in Italy with devastating effect, and has proved an ideal dual purpose weapon, the Allied command said recently. This highly mobile weapon, which can be fired at distant targets in much the same fashion as a sniper's rifie, is an adequate American answer to the Nazis' famed 88 millimeter gun. German prisoners told graphically of the terrible effect of its shells on the enemy troops.

An official source reported the 90 millimeter gun, which is called the "Baby Long Tom," because it is a it companion for the 155 millimeter rifle known as the "Long Tom," has been used as a ground weapon since Cassino.

These revealing trends form the interesting subject of two books which we have been digesting in recent weeks. The books are "Mandate from the People," by Jerome S. Bruner, associate director of the Office of Public Opinion Research of Princeton university, and "What America Thinks" by William A. Lydgate, editor of the American Institute of Public Opinions.

by the two authors are social security and free enterprise. The two topics are often linked together in public discussion.

What used to be thought of as "welfare." whereby private citizens assumed responsibility for care of the suffering and less fortunate, has now become "thrift" sponsored by the government in the form of social insurance.

Tests among Republicans and November 7, 1944 Democrats have indicated little difference as to their endorsement of old-age pensions, job insurance, health insurance, aid for students and works relief. The over-all trend varies from 94 to 73 per cent for the above measures.

Joe Doaks has a great abiding faith in the future of America. As such, he has a curious attitude of expecting the government to see that he is fully employed, and to eliminate, or at least alleviate, unemployment. Both presidential nominees were on record in the fall campaign as virtually pledging the government's resources to make sure that Joe Doaks is put to work when the That in itself is an interesting development in our national think-

If you accept the above as being valid—and we present it solely as a premise supported by public opinion polls and both party nominees—then how about the fate of free enterprise? And what is 'free enterprise" anyway?

For some time we have suspected that Joe Doaks wasn't sure himself about free enterprise. Not three Americans in ten are certain of what it means, according to several polls. We assume that government must wield controls to prevent abuse in business, and that business follows practices that are not harmful to the community. To Joe Doaks, government is an invisible guardian.

And yet Joe is cool to the idea government ownership. Only the Communists with their collective totalitarian ideas go that far. We don't want the government to maintain and operate war plants for peace-time production. We have a strong distaste for monopoly; we favor small business.

We see a growing concentration of economic power in the hands of fewer people; we wonder how this concentration can be "socialized" or "equalized" with our plunging into the communist's solution of government ownership.

"Can an economy of huge combines provide a substitute for equity?" asks Author Bruner. Profit sharing? Some form of labor-management co-operation in planning and conducting business? If it cannot and if enterprise is to be limited to the great, then we are rapidly approaching the end of the era of private industry."

This question of free enterprise -the fate of privately-owned business as against government ownership and operation-has been disturbing the thinking of many Michigan business men. They are frankly worried. The same problem exists in Canada today only to a far more critical degree. So we are not alone.

Hence, it is not improbable that as we seek to avoid government ownership, we may gradually increase government's control over business itself. The latter may be the lesser of two evils. "As little government as possible" will then become "as much government as necessary."

American newspapers have a big responsibility to keep their readers fully informed. If our democracy is to act intelligently, the people must have the facts. The primary function of the newspaper is to print the news. What the Democratic nominee said was printed without bias-often word for word as he gave his speech. The Republican nominee received the same treatment.

Letting the chips fall where they may, printing the news as it happens is the fundamental honesty of the American newspaper. That Doctor—Well, you'll find that in some of it may be to you, is being is why this column, disturbing as printed in your home-town news-You and Joe-Doaks have some thinking to do about America's

Cause Food Spoilage

Bacteria, yeasts, and moldsthree types of microorganisms—are the most important and insidious of all causes of food spoilage. They are almost everywhere, yet their presence is often unsuspected until they have caused a food to change color, ferment, or decay. Microorganisms are distributed in all sorts of ways. Some spread themselves by rapid growth; others are carried by the air, by water, by insects and animals, and on the hands and clothing of people.

As a corrective measure, summer pruning may be either of two kinds: shearing branches back to desired length or thinning out to a few stems. Tatarian honeysuckle, lilac, mock - orange, and other large shrubs can be pruned to a single trunk and make excellent small trees. To restrict growth, removeovergrown plants, or trim them, or change their growth habits.
