Notice to Parents.

Several complaints have been made to the Village Council that boys in the 10 to 15 age group have been breaking windows in untenanted buildings, breaking street lights and committing thefts from parked cars and other petty misdeeds of the nuisance types.

None of these things are very serious except in what they may lead to later on. Parents are requested to cooperate with the council by giving a little more supervision to their children so that nothing serious develops.

We also wish to call to your attention that the use of air rifles and sling shots in the village limits are prohibited by village ordinance.

Clothing Response Has Been Splendid

The National Clothing drive will end next Monday.

"The response on the part of the people in bringing in clothing has been splendid," said Rev. M. R. Vender, local general chairman, "and the cooperation of the total committee has been superb. French Children Have So Little, Americans So Much, Writes Chap. Mosure from Overseas

The following letter headed "Somewhere in France" and written by 1st Lt. Chaplain Dudley C. Mosure, former pastor of the Cass City Methodist church, was received recently by the Chronicle:

It is spring time in France, and here as there, life is alive and beautiful. Spring comes earlier than it does in Michigan. The wild flowers that grow along the road are much like our own violets, arbutus, trillium, and the common dandelion. As we have walked into nearby villages, along age old paths, all of us have gloried in the beauty of earth and sky. God and the ages have given us so much that is rich in beauty here that it seems incredible that not far distant man is engaged in mortal combat.

I have seen where war has been, and it is not a pleasant sight. One can scarcely conjure the terrible destruction that war leaves in its wake until he sees it with his own eyes. If our people at home could see but a fraction of the suffering and destruction which war has caused, I am sure that they would not be nearly so hasty in their criticism of foreign people, nor would they desire to strike from their war duties.

The little that I have been priv-

Juniors' Banquet Will Be Held on Thursday, May 3

The junior class of Cass City high school is busy preparing for the leading social event of the school year, the annual banquet and dance in honor of the seniors, which will be held on Thursday, May 3. The "Fiesta" of old Mexico will furnish the decorative scheme for the school gym and the theme for the banquet program.

The evening's festivities will begin with a 6:30 dinner for juniors, seniors and faculty members. The ladies of a local church will prepare the food and it will be served by 25 sophomore girls. A banquet program will follow with Robert Foy serving as toastmaster. At 8:45 the junior prom will get underway and dancing will continue until midnight. Joe Abbenante's orchestra of Saginaw will furnish the music. Alumni and friends of the school are invited to attend the dance.

Chickenless Dinner A Great Success

As a result of a three months' Sunday school contest between the Ellington and Cass City Nazarene churches about 120 people from the two groups gathered at the high school here Tuesday evening, Apr. 24. The dinner was prepared by the Cass City church as the penalty for being beaten in the race.

Original plans called for chicken but the scarcity of that meat necessitated a change to roast beef. However, no one seemed to mind.

Both churches attribute the steady growth in their Sunday schools to the contest which was decided on a percentage basis of increase over the December average of 1944. The church schools now run quite consistently in the three number bracket.

After the dinner, a program of group singing and short talks was presented. Featuring the speaking was an interesting and informative discussion of the newly designed and organized Nazarene Boy and Girl Pioneers by the Rev. Milton L. Bunker, field executive of this work in Michigan. The keynote of the Pioneers is to give a strong four point emphasis to the lives of boys and girls. Mr. Bunker stated in part, "If we emphasize only the spiritual and forget the mental, social and physical characteristics, we are producing a lopsided youth. However, the spiritual is still the prime factor in any life."

The food was prepared by the mothers of the students and served by members of the junior high.

Those attending the banquet were school board members and the teachers in the department. Concluded on page 5.

legged to see while here, I shall share with you. The reaction of the people to life is also interesting, and I shall endeavor to write for you the details as they have impressed me.

Thus far I have come in contact with two distinct types of French people. One, the French peasant, the other the cosmopolitan person of the city and larger town. They are as different as day is from night. Perhaps that is because on the continent modern civilization has not penetrated the rural areas as it has done in America. But in spite of the outward differences, I have observed that human nature is much the same whether among French or Americans. For example, the other day I had occasion to travel to a city some distance away to interview a Red Cross field director, and while passing through a village my driver stopped for a few minutes and the little French children along the street came up to our vehicle. They were perfectly normal children; children just like our own, except that they appear to be starved for affection. Some of them put us to shame for their English was much better than our French, and in no time at all one of the little boys had scrambled

Starmann Five Won 2nd Schedule In the City League

Same Group Was the Winner in Roll Off with Auten Five April 25

Starmann's team, composed of F. Pinney, W. Miller, M. McLellan, G. McClorey and Captain Starmann, won the second schedule of bowling when they defeated Johnnie Czerwicz's team in three straight games on closing night. The Parsch team had an equal chance to tie but lost two of their three games to Knoblet's squad and were thereby eliminated but finished in second place. Reid's team also ran into trouble and lost their series to the fast moving Kolb pinsters.

The roll off for the league championship was held on April 25 and the Starmann group defeated the "Chuck" Auten team, winners of the first schedule of games. Auten's team is made up of Kolb, Greenleaf, B. Ross, Dewey and Capt. "Chuck."

Starmann's team ran up their highest totals of pins for the season on their last night of bowling and the count was 2585. McCulloch's team registered the highest single game of 955 pins for the season. Landon encountered no trouble at all from the rest of the bowlers in the league and his individual average of 182 was nine points above the runnerup. Ludlow and Reid each finished with an average of 178 yet Ludlow accumulated a few more pins to give him the second place.

Five bowlers managed to place on the weekly honor list and Glen McClorey was high with his total of 576 pins. This count gave him the over average prize for three games. Walter Miller rolled 566, Landon 563, Wallace 555, and Juhasz 555.

Tuscola Annual Achievement Day Well Attended

A good attendance for their annual Achievement Day held Tuesday, Apr. 24, at Fairgrove marked the close of another year for the 28 Home Economics Extension groups of Tuscola county. This year's meeting was held in the auditorium of the Fairgrove high school with the Fairgrove group hostesses for the day.

The morning was spent in setting up and viewing the exhibits which were many and varied. A movie, "Kids Must Eat," was shown to illustrate the nutrition lesson. "Planning Meals from Abundant Foods." From the lesson, "Streamlining the Kitchen for War," there were spice racks, half shelves for dishes, drawer divisions for silverware and kitchen utensils, knife racks, illustrations of proper working heights, and devices to correct improper heights. The third lesson, "Homemade and Remodeled Furniture," was illustrated by several pieces, including a completely remodeled bedroom suite, chairs, tables, brick book shelves and other articles of furniture. The fourth lesson of the "Time Savers in Home Sewing," was well exhibited with pressing boards, basting boards, arm pin cushions, different types of buttonholes and seam finishes and dif-

Your 1945 Garden Good Practices Produce Better Paying Yields

EVERY Victory garden should be tailored individually to the family it is expected to feed and to the space available for gardening.

In planning the 1945 garden every gardener will do well if he looks over the experience of the past year or two and tries to meet more nearly the appetites and food preferences of his own family. If any crop went to waste because the family did not care for the product, it is good gardening to omit it entirely in this year's planting or to cut it down to what the family will use. Use the space saved to grow something that is in demand.

First of all in planning the garden, a plot of land suitable for a town, or even a country garden, must be in the open where it can get direct sunlight at least six hours a day with no obstructing trees or buildings.

The plot must be well drained. A rich, deep sandy loam free from debris is the best all-purpose garden soil, but such an ideal is rarely found. Unless a soil is of such character that it can be spaded in the spring into a loose crumbly condition, it will be difficult to work, if not definitely unsuitable, to vegetable growing. Land that is nearly level is best because it is easier to work and is less likely to be damaged through washing by heavy rains.

Convenience of the garden location is more important than might be supposed. It should be as close to the home as a suitable place can be found because the garden needs some attention almost every day. Even when it is too wet to plant or cultivate, the gardener should see it every day or two so as to follow all developments and know in advance what work needs to be done. Timeliness is a surprisingly large element in a successful garden.

There is no one "right" way to arrange or plan a home garden. The gardener is urged to consider his own needs, the climate of his locality and his own particular garden spot in planning and arranging his garden. Conditions and details of methods of growing plants differ so widely over the country that it is impossible to give a uniform plan of growing vegetables that would fit all sections of the country.

A garden much longer than it is wide is generally more convenient to work. It matters little whether the rows run north or south, east or west, but on a sloping area it is important that the rows run across the slope, not up and down, so that rainfall may be held on or in the soil, instead of running down the sloping rows, carrying away the soil.

Plan Garden To Suit Needs

The most successful gardener plans his garden well in advance. A good sized sketch or map of the plot should be drawn, preferably to scale, so that the time and space each crop will occupy can be set down. Particular attention should be made to replanting. For instance after harvesting beans, turnips, beets, carrots should be sown. The idea is to keep the ground constantly producing until frost.

Most gardeners are prone to plant too much of early crops with the result that some are wasted. A succession of varieties or of plantings will give a much longer period of harvest from the same total amount planted.

Particular care should be taken that tall growing crops like corn or tomatoes will not shade the smaller crops, such as beets or radishes. Then perennial plants, such as asparagus, rhubarb and various savory herbs, should be kept together at one side of the garden where they can be conveniently handled without interfering with the portion to be plowed or spaded each year.

Where there is any great variation in the composition of the soil in different parts of the garden, it will be advisable to take this into consideration.

If a part of the land is low and moist, such crops as celery, onions, and late cucumbers should be placed there. If part of the soil is high, warm and dry, there is the proper location for early crops and those that need quick, warm soil. Permanent crops, such as asparagus, should be located where they would not interfere with regular cultivation.

French Children Have So Little, Americans So Much, Writes Chap. Mosure from Overseas

upon my knee and was asking for "sewin gum." Chewing gum was of course what he wanted. Another little fellow wanted a pencil. The little fellow took the gum, broke it in two and voluntarily divided it between them. Well, we went through our pockets and found only one lead pencil. The pencil created a slightly greater problem. One little boy immediately wanted to break it in two, but finally we persuaded him to share it with his comrades, and he seemed perfectly willing to just that. I could not help thinking: a stick of gum and a lead pencil! How little it took to make those little French boys happy. They as a group have so little and back home our children have so much.

The peasants or rural people are very thrifty. Through the centuries they have learned to till every foot of ground. Nothing is wasted. The trees along the highway, the orchards, even the woods are cleaned of all dead wood and underbrush. This excess wood is gathered in bundles of faggots or corded and sold as firewood. Fuel is a great luxury here. Even on cold raw March days the windows in the country dwellings are open, for I suspect that there is no fire inside. The little bit of fuel that each family has is conserved for a more needed time. Many of these rural people wear wooden shoes, because leather is difficult to procure, and besides they tell me that the wooden shoe keeps the cold and moisture of the ground from the foot much better than does leather.

Of course now one seldom sees a civilian car along the highways of France, yet people continue to be on the move. Most of them get to their destination by walking. Walking, I am told, is a universally accepted art here on the continent. The custom is spreading to our ranks too for even now, my friends and I think nothing of starting out on foot at dusk for a nearby village. Five, seven, or ten miles, no one thinks anything of walking such a distance.

One of the greatest pleasures I have lately encountered is to walk into the village at sunset, listening to the birds sing their evening song, and inhaling the sweet scented air in the evening air, and finally finding myself in the quiet village chapel just as the bells toll; then reverently kneel for an evening prayer.

I love America! The day I come home will not be too soon, but I sincerely feel that in our haste, in our mechanized frenzy, we have lost something of the beauty of life's solitude. Many of us, somehow, are recapturing that over here.

As people walk the highways, some more fortunate will ride in a two-wheeled buggy or carriage. Their horses are splendid indeed. Most of them seem well groomed and cared for and fancier breeds all have their tails cropped. Many people, even elderly women and men, will ride wherever they are going on bicycles, or in some cases tandem. But not all travel is so convenient, even as gauged by European standards. I saw folk along the highway trudging under their packs and bundles, when suddenly along came an object which I thought I would never live to see. There was an old, old woman, too frail to walk on the journey. She might have been any one of our grandmothers, and they had loaded her in a wheelbarrow, and one of the men of the household was wheeling her down the road. Only God knows how far that pitiful group had to travel.

In the rural areas of France, at least where I have been, I have felt that the people were less dissatisfied with the German rule which has been imposed upon them these past years, than are those in more densely populated sections of the country. I feel that this is true because in the country it was more difficult to regiment the people and to systematically starve them. As on our farms at home, it is always easier to get something to eat, no matter what the reverses, than it is in metropolitan areas. This year though, if the peasant farmer has a successful growing season, he ought to be able to raise fine crops.

I have watched them plant and it is interesting to see a man sowing his grain by walking along and "broadcasting" it. Many of their methods of agriculture are still like those of centuries ago. In one field you may see several teams of horses, which by the way are hitched up differently from ours. They are always a bit ahead of each other. Instead of a span of four horses, there is a lead horse and the other three follow along. The farmer never drives them as we do, but walks in front of the lead horse and leads the whole group. Then in another field or along the road carrying a cart bearing some produce, you will see a yoke of oxen. The whole scene whether in the country or the city, takes you back one, two, or three hundred years. Yet at the same time there is the occasional cinema or movie, the tramway or street car, and overhead the most modern of all, the airplane.

In rural France, the wealthy land owners have been able to accumulate great wealth, and in many cases they live in splendid chateaux. Their land is farmed out to tenant farmers. These people constitute a great percentage of the peasant class. In parts of rural France one of the characteristic features is for the barns and houses to be built of either brick or stone, while the roof is thatched. Even on many of the great landed estates, the farm buildings are so constructed. The chateau, on the other hand, is a beautiful building with elaborate woodwork, beautiful glass chandeliers, and exquisite marble fireplaces.

It has been my good fortune to visit Paris and the city of Reims. The famous Cathedral of Reims is a real gem in architecture. As we visited it and paused for prayer before the high altar, our hearts palpitated with the knowledge of being in the place where for many years the kings of France have been crowned. As one turned and gazed upon the famous Rose Window, his sense of perception was vastly accentuated by the striking beauty there.

After talking to a number of French civilians, I have come to the conclusion that the better educated French people believe that our presence here is necessary for ultimate victory and for the liberation of France from Germany. On the other hand, there are always those people whose viewpoint is limited, and who do not understand the situation as it is, who resent the presence of any foreign people. I had occasion to talk to a young French woman at the Red Cross who is a French girl. I asked her if any of the people resented our being there, and she definitely told me that she did not and that none of them did. Her own father was killed in a bombing raid which had to be done in order that our troops might liberate the country.

The French cities which I have visited are interesting indeed. They are a contrast between the old and the new. The ages are entombed in the sacred walls and knaves of cathedrals like Notre Dame and Reims, while just across the way modern buildings like that of the French War college and the United States embassy are to be seen.

Many of the store fronts in French cities are very modern, making one think of our shopping districts at home. The people who frequent the streets are dressed in varying costumes. There seems to be no norm. Some will resemble the well dressed people at home, while others will have every garment they can find covering their bodies. This is quite understandable when one considers that for several years most of the people have been laboring under the most trying circumstances. As Dr. A. L. Warnshuis in his articles, "The Church is Still the Hope of Europe," in the Michigan Christian Advocate of Mar. 15 said: "People lack the most simple necessities!" and then spoke of the Protestant minister in Paris being so grateful for such a little thing as a bar of soap. I find that his observation is perfectly true. Things that we consider as absolute necessities, people here do not have. I almost feel criminal when I eat the candy ration which is given weekly to the American soldier through the Post Exchange, for I know that the children in the nearby village have not had a taste of candy for many a day. I think many of our soldiers feel that way and not a few consistently share their candy ration with the French children.

In Paris and Reims I have seen French civilians so desperately hungry that they have literally stood by our G. I. garbage pails and laded out the food we have scraped off our plates. I have seen women come begging for a sup from our cups of coffee, and in the face of such destitution I am sure that there is no American soldier who would refuse the cup, even though it meant to deprive himself.

When we are called upon to share our plenty with these people who obviously have so little, it is certainly the task of the Church and of Christians everywhere to do their utmost.

I must tell you about my first Easter service on foreign soil. It was a rainy, cold, gloomy first day of April. The mud under foot was very much in evidence, so naturally there was no dress uniform among our troops, only the sordid drab of an American field dress. Quite some contrast with the beauty of highly decorated churches and freshly groomed civilians who come to worship on Easter Sunday morning back home. Yet under these abnormal conditions, I felt a strange sense of loyalty on the part of my men. There was a deep sincerity and a desire to be in Holy Communion with God on Easter day, just as every man present knew his mother, his sister, or his wife or sweetheart would be doing back in the states. At the appointed hour of ten o'clock, church call was given and our men filed into the barren and somewhat cold ward tent to attend Divine services. The tent was soon filled and a number of men were standing. At the front of the congregation my assistant had arranged our altar. We used a packing box which sat on the bare ground and around it was draped a clean white sheet. On the improvised altar was placed the portable Chaplain's altar which the Methodist Commission on Chaplains has given to every Methodist chaplain. There was the red plush of the background set off by two lighted candles in silver candlesticks with the silver cross in the center. On the altar the Elements of Communion were present, covered by the white linen which you ladies of the Methodist church so graciously sent me. The service was ready to begin. We used Easter hymns and read the Easter story finishing with the story or account of the two strangers who journeyed along the road to Emmaus. Following the prayer, a meditation was given by the chaplain. At the close of that part of the worship, it was announced that we would observe the Sacrament of Holy Communion in sacred memory of our present and living Lord. An opportunity was given those who did not wish to participate to leave, but no one left. Every man in a spirit of deep reverence stayed. We sang a Communion hymn and read the ritual service, and then gave the invitation to come to the table of the Lord. I think that this Communion service was the most impressive one that I have ever attended. In fours and fives, and with dignity, the soldiers moved quietly forward and before the altar of their God received the elements of bread and wine. All during the service, we had the soft music of the church hymns played by a Seventh Day Advent soldier. It was truly a service where all men of all Protestant groups met on a common ground and before a common Lord. From Lt. Colonels to Privates there was no distinction as we came to the altar of our Lord, for here we feel the need of His divine guidance and His beneficent love.

I do not subscribe for a moment to the theory that there is a great turning of the men in our army to religion. But I will say that for those men who have in their childhood been in Sunday school and in church, for those men who have come from Christian and Jewish homes, I feel that the good influence of former days is much in evidence here. When the going gets tough and loneliness and fatigue engulf them, they do not forget to turn to the faith of their fathers. It is here that a chaplain who loves men and has something of the compassion of Christ, can do a great deal of good.

Nursing Bottles
The film left on nursing bottles by hard water can be eliminated by putting a teaspoon of borax or baking soda in the water used to wash the bottles. Rinse thoroughly. Lime water, too, is good for sweetening and cleaning baby bottles.

Graze Closer
Sheep are excellent weed destroyers and eat a greater variety of plants than do other livestock. Because of the construction of their lips, they are able to graze closer than are other animals.

Hide Under Slips
Insect pests may hide under slip covers. So, at least once a month take off covers to see that all's well and brush and clean.

Cornstalk Disease
Farmers are warned to keep their cattle out of corn fields where moldy or smutty cornstalks may be present to prevent losses from the cornstalk disease.

Important Crops
Four crops, tomatoes, sweet corn, green peas and snap beans, make up about 90 per cent of the total amount of the important commercial crops processed in 1944.

Apple Storage
In houses without furnaces, apples can be kept rather successfully in the basement. If the basement has a furnace, then it is better to leave the apples on the back porch until freezing temperatures occur.

Raise Nuts
California produces about 40 million pounds of almonds. Washington raises most of the filberts, also known as hazel nuts.

Pleat Marks

As an extra precaution against pleat marks in pressing, slip strips of paper under the folds. Use the same trick to prevent marks when pressing seams, darts, facings, pocket flaps and neckties. Pin pleats only if they refuse to behave otherwise. But it's better to pin than to risk losing the original crease. To avoid pin marks, press only enough to set pleats; remove pins; go over hemline lightly once again. When pleats are in groups, let first group dry in position before pushing off board to make way for the next.

Leftover Soap

Sew together two face cloths (wash cloths) with basting stitches on one side. Drop all leftover soap into this bag and use it in the bathtub. Whenever there are pieces to be added, simply open basting stitches and drop in more soap. Then sew up. Every scrap of soap is used in this way. And bath soap is saved.

Child's Health Need Calls for Attention

WITH a record number of diaper wearers in the population and a record shortage of domestic help, the observance of National Baby Week (April 29 to May 5), and of Child Health Day, falling within the week of May 1, focuses attention on the need for teen-agers and grandmothers and even grandfathers to volunteer to take over long or short shifts as baby tenders in all parts of the country.

All training courses for mothers' helpers stress the importance of diaper changing and give basic pointers on proper technique for bottle-feeding and baths. Here are some basic do's and don'ts suggested to help recruits to the baby tending assignment avoid mistakes that beginners often make:

Do change diapers frequently. With each change the skin in the diaper area should be carefully cleansed with special bland oil or dusted with baby powder. Or, after each diaper shift, apply a new baby lotion, containing lanolin with an antiseptic agent added for extra protection.

tion. A dozen changes or more a day usually are needed to keep His Majesty comfortable.

Do fold diapers for a boy baby with extra thickness in front; girl babies, however, should have extra diaper thickness folded in back. Have a pile of folded diapers placed so you can keep one hand firmly on baby while you reach for the replacement.

Do take baby outdoors morning and afternoon on good days if he is well.

Protect Against Colds.

Don't ever let baby get in draughts. Use the carriage hood to protect him outdoors and use a nursery screen for the same purpose indoors.

Do wear a gauze mask tied snugly over your nose and mouth, if you so much as suspect the beginning of a cold.

Don't ever sneeze in baby's face or let anyone else do so.

Don't even hold the bottle so that there's air space between the milk and the nipple. That common error gives baby air instead of the food he needs. The correct angle is achieved when the bottle neck is filled with milk.

Do "bubble" baby several times during the course of the feeding. Bracing his back in an upright sitting position for a moment may be sufficient. Holding him at your shoulder and patting lightly on the back is an alternate "bubble" tech-

Transport Pupils
At a total annual cost of $70,000, 000, 4,100,000 pupils are transported daily in 93,000 buses.

Inclination of the Michigan state legislature to accept Governor Kelly's recommendation that additional state aid for local governments be financed in part by a substantial hike in the state liquor profits may be regarded as a complimentary recognition of the basic merits of Michigan's liquor monopoly system.

The legislators' action is not being taken in any mood of sentiment.

Eighteen months ago a wave of criticism began to rise against the state setup. Consumers were complaining of a lack of supplies under the rationing system; dries were decrying lack of adequate enforcement. Frank McKay, former Republican national committeeman, began a personal crusade to abolish the monopoly system.

Public criticism was growing. One year ago, a two-fisted "no man," General L. A. Kunzig, was hired as business manager. Last December, William F. Edmonson, former city manager of Pontiac, was replaced by John P. Aaron, the governor's personal secretary, as chairman of the commission. These moves were frank admissions that Michigan's monopoly plan was on trial. Critics were predicting dire things would happen by time the legislature met at Lansing.

What happened to cause a reversal of public opinion?

Nothing else that the power of information as gathered by Clarence W. Lock, state deputy revenue commissioner, and Chas. A. Parrish, chief of the liquor commission enforcement division, in a fact-finding survey of six nearby states.

Whether the reversal is permanent or temporary remains to be seen. Michigan travelers who visit New York City and Chicago in wartime years invariably return home with glowing accounts of the abundance of liquor in those cities. But for the most part they say little, if anything, about how much consumers were paying for liquor in those cities.

It was the Lock-Parrish report that emphasized such facts as these: Michigan bottle prices average 67 cents less than Illinois bottle prices and 70 cents less than New York prices. Michigan is a monopoly state whereby government functions as both wholesaler and retailer; Illinois and New York are open states whereby private dealers pocket the profit.

"Even with the wartime 10 per cent increase in liquor prices, as proposed by the state legislature, Michigan bottle prices will average less than those in open states," reports Chairman Aaron.

"Basically, Michigan's system is sound. Our problem is one of control, rather than of revenue. The public must insist upon law enforcement by local governments which receive 85 per cent of the liquor fee revenue just for that specific purpose. We have nothing to hide under the rug, and we welcome the public's cooperation."

Aaron indicated that the state commission had a responsibility in imposing stiffer penalties on law offenders whose licenses are subject to revocation.

INVISIBLE SABOTAGE... Production of highly sensitive instruments for war can be halted by air-borne particles 100 times smaller than the naked eye can see. Some products are ruined by only a slight contamination of the atmosphere. Air that is fit to breathe may not be clean enough for certain manufacturing processes. These tiny particles cannot be removed by ordinary mechanical filters. But cleaning the air by electronic precipitation traps particles as small as one 250,000th of an inch... and even removes tobacco smoke and oil mist. The process is now limited to use in vital war installations, but will be available after the war to hospitals, radio stations, offices, stores, restaurants, and in homes as well.

Early Commandos
"Commando," according to Encyclopedia Britannica, is a Portuguese word adopted by the Boers of South Africa. A commando was the administrative and tactical unit of military and semimilitary expeditions against the natives. They were the forces of the former Boer republics "commandeered" under the law of the constitution which made military service obligatory on all males between the ages of 16 and 60.

Egg Yolks
The feed definitely determines the color of egg yolks. Green feed and yellow corn control the intensity of the yellow color. A mongrel hen, allowed to run on open range, will produce an orange yolk, while a hen fed very little fresh green feed will produce a lemon-colored yolk. Cottonseed meal over 5 per cent may cause an olive-colored yolk.

JUNIOR HIGH HAS
SPRING BANQUET

Bob Mann asked the blessing and the group was seated. After the meal was over, Gil Schwaderer, the toastmaster, presided. With a few well chosen words, he introduced Clifford Van Vleet, the class president. Clifford told about the activities of the junior high during his two years. In behalf of the eighth grade, he paid a nice tribute to Mrs. Holcomb, the junior high principal, and presented her with a corsage of gardenia and rosebuds.

Those who gave talks during the program were Gene Mercer, Ken Martin, Erma Nagy, Harry Willard and Irving Parsch.

Coach Jack London presented the basketball boys with letters they had earned, and Don Karr was voted the most valuable player. Harold Outley, in his usual pleasant manner, told the boys and girls how much he appreciates working with them.

A clarinet duet was played by Joan Atkin and LaDonna Ludlow, accompanied by Betty Hower. A two-piano selection was played by Rose Gurdon, Maxine Agar, Irene Diaz and LaDonna Ludlow. Roberta Guisbert sang two solos. Vivian Martin, Marie Hutchinson, Barbara Howarth and Elaine Root sang two numbers. A brass quartet, James Wallace, John Krim, J. D. Tuckey and Jerry Fritz, played "Minuet in G."

The success of the evening was due to the fine cooperation of teachers, students and school executives. Roller skating furnished the fun for the remainder of the evening. Nancy Schwaderer, Class Secretary

Yank Soldiers
A Healthy Lot

Taller and Heavier Than Their Fathers of World War I.

WASHINGTON. — Ten million soldiers of this war aggregate 98 miles taller than a similar number of their fathers would have totaled in World War I.

They weigh 46,100 more tons. They are, it is beginning to appear, a healthier lot.

The height and weight figures come from adding up data in a report of the army service forces, office of the surgeon general, medical statistics division, Washington.

This report says that the 1943 inductees average .62 of an inch taller than recruits of 1917. Average height: Present war, 5 feet, 8.11 inches. World War I, 5 feet, 7.49 inches.

In weight this war's inductees average 9.22 pounds heavier. The respective weights are 150.76 against 141.54.

As to the 4-F's.
The nation's 4-F's fall in a class between the present inductees and the 1917 recruits in both heights and weight. The 4-F's are .39 of an inch shorter than their brothers of this war. They are .62 of a pound lighter.

This 4-F height is about midway between the tops of the two wars. But he is almost as heavy as the inductees and almost nine pounds over the 1917 boys.

This greater weight and height trend of the 4-F's probably is significant as an indicator that despite their rejection, they are physically better than their opposites of World War I.

Military evidence is now accumulating that their brothers, the inductees, are really healthier than their father's generation. From several sources recently has come a statement that the better recovery from wounds in this war is due to better health of the men.

Definite Improvement.
Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, chief surgeon, European theater of operations, made this statement in a formal release passed by censor in October this year:

"The physical condition of the fighting men in this war shows a definite improvement over the physical condition of soldiers in the Civil war and World War I. This is due to a large extent to an improvement in nutrition of infants and in public health measures.

"It is credited with having much to do with the ability of soldiers to recover from wounds, but there are other reasons."

These other reasons include such things as improved surgery, plasma, and sulfa.

In the same theater of war, Col. John Gordon, who was professor of preventive medicine at Harvard, writes:

Preventive medicine has been a tremendous factor in cutting down illness and in building strong bodies which can better withstand wounds.

"One of the most helpful aspects in this work has been the vast amount of preventive medicine that has been practiced among and by our civilian population in the United States. This building up of the health level in civilians has been reflected in the state of health of the men when they came into the army."

Develop Jute Cloth for
RAF Airfield in India

H.D.G. SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND, KANDY, CEYLON. — A new, lightweight airfield surfacing has been developed by the Indian jute industry and is now being used on RAF fields in India and Assam.

The new surfacing, called "Bithess," is made of bitumen-impregnated hessian, a coarse cloth made of jute. It is cheaper, lighter and more pliable than portable steel matting. "Bithess" is used as a foundation, to prevent water from seeping up from below in airstrips as a surfacing it has withstood heavy rains.

Belgium Is Planning to Seize Wartime Profits

BRUSSELS. — A 100 per cent tax on war profits will be introduced in Belgium in the next few months to wipe out all gains made by profiteers. It is also understood that fortunes made in the bourse during the German occupation will be confiscated.

The measures are expected to be introduced when bonds, stocks, shares and property accounts, now registered by the government, are released from frozen bank accounts.

The tax is expected to produce 50,000,000 francs and will play an important part in the nation's deflation.

Strain of War Cutting
Lives of Home Doctors

ST. LOUIS. — Dr. Edgar G. Balenger of Atlanta believes that two or three years has been cut from the life of home-front doctors because of wartime overwork.

"From looking over statistics on mortality of doctors as published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, I have seen that the mortality rate of doctors left at home has far exceeded that of those in the armed forces."

A FAST LINE

Recently, two army telephone linemen, working from a jeep being strafed by heavy enemy fire, laid a mile of telephone wire in the record time of one minute. This wire was but a fragment of the tremendous amount of telephone equipment going to the armed forces... equipment normally put to civilian use. Naturally, this makes new telephones scarce and expansion of service a slow process. However, with your continued co-operation, we will provide the best service possible.

Merchants' League.
Sam's Tavern team and the Schwaderer's Construction five ended the season in a tie, each team winning 50 of an 84-game schedule. These teams rolled off the tie on Wednesday night, Apr. 18, with the Sam group dominating in every respect and they won the play-off with very little trouble. It was necessary to play but two games of the three game series as the Tavern five swept the Constructionists aside in two straight contests and are declared the champions for the 1944-45 season which they have just closed.
Guy W. Landon, Secretary.

Carpet Sweeper
Don't forget the speed and effectiveness of a good carpet sweeper on your daily rounds. The modern sweepers have brushes which adjust themselves to carpets of different thickness. The wide rubber bumpers protect furniture from scratches and the dust pan lifts right out for easy emptying. Where electricity must be conserved for war production, carpet sweepers can be used to prolong time between vacuum cleanings.

BOY SCOUT REPORT.

A few Scouts under the direction of Troop Committeeman Frank Weatherhead and Assistant Scoutmaster Edward Baker went to Camp Kiwanis near Frankenmuth. It was a training course for leaders. In the group were Scouts Bob Foy, Don Loomis, Dale Reed, Carl Palmateer, Jack Ryland, Jim Baker, Bill Weatherhead and John Kirm.

There was an investiture of Fred Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross. He was conducted by Scout James Wallace and received his badge from Willis Campbell.

The Chippewa patrol won a contest in which they had to tie a taut line-hitch. Billy Burrows was leader.

Jim Wallace and Bob Foy are going to serve as junior staff members. Jim will be hospital orderly and Bob Foy assistant Scoutmaster.

Scouts went to Saginaw to pass swimming merit badges and athletics. They were Jerry Fritz, James Murry Wallace, Charles Goff, Chas. Kercher, Gerald Priesskorn and Gil Schwaderer.

Out-of-Season Breeding

In the production of goat's milk, there is need to obtain a more even distribution of the milk supply throughout the year than is the case at present. To do this, out-of-season breeding must be accomplished. Accordingly, a study was made in which female milk goats were artificially stimulated by hormones, with the result that one-third of them freshened ahead of the regular kidding season. Semen studies, also made during the year, indicated that bucks in good condition are suitable for breeding at all times of the year although less sexual activity was shown during May and June, when does normally are not breeding.

Finishing Facings

Ways of finishing facings differ with the kind of material you have. If your goods are cotton or some other lightweight fabric, turn under the edge of the seam allowance on the facing about one-sixteenth inch, then, stitch. If your goods is thick or non-washable, finish facing by trimming off the seam allowance and stitching ribbon seam binding flat along the edge. Or machine-stitch along the edge and overcast.

Keep Draperies Fresh

To keep draperies fresh, brush often with a whisk broom or clean with a vacuum-cleaner attachment. Or, shake and air them.

Tanks Give Lesson

American tanks are giving the railroads a few lessons that will greatly improve postwar transportation. Introduction of triple-acting hydraulic shock absorbers on tanks proved so effective in easing jolts and improving gun accuracy that today every new tank has them. By cushioning the shock of riding over rough terrain, they keep the chassis level and help keep the guns directed at the target.

Paperboard rings to guard aerial bombs during transportation are saving 200,000,000 pounds of steel yearly.

WHEN you plant Sugar Beets, you are growing a cash crop that not only will pay you a big return—but will pay dividends in following years by improvement in fertility of the land.

For Sugar Beets are beneficial in a crop rotation plan.

The roots of the Sugar Beet penetrate the soil to a depth of from four to six feet. When the main root is pulled, thousands of little rootlets are left in the soil. It is estimated that these will run over a ton to the acre.

When these rootlets decompose, a rich deposit of humus is left in the soil—of considerable value to following crops.

Moreover, the decomposition of these rootlets opens up the soil structure for better aeration and moisture-holding.

Add to this, the fact that Sugar Beets require thorough seed bed preparation and cultivation—which enables you to clean up weedy fields—from which following crops will benefit.

Sugar Beets can use profitably plenty of fertilizer—and the residual effect left increases the yields of crops that follow for several years.

There is a tremendous national need for sugar in 1945. 135,000 Michigan acres in Sugar Beets is the goal of the U. S. Government.

Marvin A. Jones, War Food Administrator, has promised every possible assistance in supplying labor for the Sugar Beet crop and we share his confidence that all beets planted can be worked and harvested. This labor will also be available for use on other crops. So the best way to assure an adequate supply of field labor in Michigan is to plant Sugar Beets.

Go over your planting plans again and see how beneficial a crop of Sugar Beets will prove. Then decide to devote as many acres as possible to Sugar Beets. You will be performing a highly patriotic service by contracting and planting as many acres in Sugar Beets as you possibly can.

Farm Selection

The most important things to consider in selecting a farm are climate, soil, topography, markets, condition and adequacy of building and improvements, availability of good roads and other public services, and whether the farm will support enough business to enable a family to make a good living.

The world-famous U. S. marine corps observed its 169th anniversary last November 10.

"Oh, well"—I kept saying—"come Victory, I'll buy a new car in a hurry."

"Was I kidding myself! I've just heard it may be two years or more after Victory before I can get one!"

"So I'm plenty thankful to my Gulf man. He said just stick with Gulfpride and Gulflex. They'll help keep me on wheels till 'new-car day'."

Stay With Old Friends PLANT BEANS

During the past three years most of the beans produced in Michigan have gone for military lend lease use. Your old friends at home have had to virtually go without one of their favorite foods—Michigan Beans.

While a large portion of the Michigan bean crop will continue to go, and rightfully should go to the armed forces, considerable thought should be given to satisfying the home customers, for it is they who must and will consume our beans after the demands of the war agencies have gone by the wayside.

It now becomes good business to plant more beans. Farmers should plant enough to supply old customers who have gone without for a long time and also enough to help win the war.

DEFORD DIARY

Whittaker-Phillips Wedding—

The wedding of Robert J. Phillips of Deford and Mona M. Whittaker of Caro took place on Saturday evening, April 21, at 8:30 at the home of the bride's brother at Kingston. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Horace Freeman of Kingston.

The bride chose a gray and pink two-piece dress with black accessories and wore a corsage of pink sweet peas. She was attended by Mrs. Harry Mitchell of Deford, sister of the groom. Her dress was of printed jersey and she also had a corsage of pink sweet peas. The groom was attended by Nelson Whittaker, brother of the bride.

Immediately after the ceremony, a luncheon was served by Mrs. Carrie Patterson and Mrs. Thomas Jollicour of Kingston. The table was decorated with pink and white cut flowers and a beautiful four-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom. Only immediate families and a few friends were present.

The wedded pair are beginning life together at the splendid farm home owned by the groom two miles from Deford.

Obsequies of Thomas Gillies—

The strength of Thomas Gillies had been gradually waning for several months and he passed away Thursday, April 19, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John MacArthur. The funeral rites were conducted on Sunday afternoon in the Deford Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. Horace Freeman. Glenn Towles sang two numbers and was accompanied by Mrs. H. D. Malcolm at the piano.

The body of the deceased was laid to rest in the Novesta cemetery, borne by some of those who had been his neighbors for the past several years—J. Wells Spencer, Duncan MacArthur, Clare Root, Clarence Quick, Percy Reid and George Spencer.

Thomas Gillies was born in Ingersoll, Ontario, June 7, 1859. He was the youngest of three children and is survived by his sister, Mrs. William Humble, of Windsor, Ont., and his brother, William Husband, of Detroit. When Thomas was thirteen months old, the children were deprived of a mother's care by her death, and later he was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gillies of Dutton, Ont.

He came to Michigan in 1882 and was married in 1888 at Bay City to Mary McDonald of Dutton, Ont. Since that time he has lived most of the years in this community. Mrs. Gillies died in 1899. Mr. and Mrs. Gillies were the parents of Wilford Gillies of Pontiac, Mrs. John MacArthur of Deford, and Neil Gillies, who passed away several years ago. The deceased was married to Mrs. Mary Phillips in 1918, and she was taken by death Aug. 12, 1935.

Mr. Gillies was a fine Christian character, a good neighbor, and respected by all who knew him—a fine monument to his memory. There are six grandchildren, Mrs. Ward MacCallin (Nellie), Mrs. Roy MacCallin (Nellie), both of Rochester, P. O. of the 5th Air Force of the East Indies, Robert McArthur G. M., Navy, of Hawthorne, Nevada, Geo. McArthur at home, and Mrs. Peter Westerly (Eva) of Unionville. He also leaves eight great grandchildren and three stepsons, Herbert, James and Melvin Phillips, and one stepdaughter, Mrs. Herman Rock, all of Deford.

Among those attending from a distance were: William Husband, Mrs. Raymond Husband and Mrs. Glenn Corbett of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Woolman of Royal Oak, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woolman of Marysville, A. D. Gillies of Port Huron, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gillies and Mrs. Mary Gillies of Crosswell, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Phillips of Flint, Mrs. Peter Westerly of Unionville, Archie Gillies and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gillies of Drayton Plains, Mr. and Mrs. John Avenall of Millington, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Campbell of Ludington, Mrs. C.
