2,000 People Expected At Farm Bureau Picnic on August 9

Two thousand people are expected to attend the annual Tuscola County Farm Bureau picnic on the Caro fairgrounds Thursday, Aug. 9. Final arrangements for entertainment were made at a meeting in Caro on Friday.

The high point of the program will be Lieutenant Governor Vernon J. Brown's address in the afternoon. Immediately following will be the added feature of a greased pig catching contest for boys from 12 to 16 years of age. The pig will be a registered Hampshire and will be suitable for a 4-H club project.

Other features include a buck rake demonstration, a saddle horse parade, pony races, bicycle races for children, softball games, horse-shoe pitching and various other contests.

Special prizes to be given during the afternoon will be a yearling steer, bridge lamp, walnut bookcase and numerous others to be presented as compliments of various business firms.

Fuel Oil Users Advised to Order Supply at Once

Fuel oil users of Tuscola county are advised by their local War Price and Rationing Board to order their fuel oil at once so that all available local storage may be used. It is common knowledge that the nation's transportation facilities are heavily burdened. This is particularly true of those needed to transport fuel oil for civilian use. Many tankers have been diverted to carry the heavy oil shipments to the Pacific war front and some tank cars, also formerly used to transport the civilian supply, are now needed to take military supplies to the West Coast. This transportation situation makes it far more important this year than ever before that all local storage facilities be used. The consumer can help greatly by having his household tanks filled at once so that the dealers' tanks and those of their suppliers may be refilled soon in order to replenish consumers' supplies later.

It is also pointed out that the Petroleum Administration for War, which allocates the civilian fuel oil supply to the Office of Price Administration for rationing, recently stated that there can be no more fuel for civilian home heating next winter than there was last year. The Army and Navy use home heating oil for diesel oil which fuels landing craft of all kinds, tanks, tractors, half-tracks and bull-dozers, submarines and other small naval vessels. Distillate is blended with industrial fuel oil to make Navy Special fuel for larger ships of the fleet such as battleships, carriers, cruisers and destroyers. Fuel oil users who have their ration coupons will be helping themselves and the home front war effort by ordering their fuel oil now. Consumers who haven't received their rations should apply to their Local War Price and Rationing Board at once.

The Elmwood Missionary Circle will meet Thursday, Aug. 9, with Mrs. James Peddie.

Body of Missing Elmwood Farmer Discovered Monday

Clinton Vader and Alvinza Robinson, while drawing hay from a field near the Gerou farm, seven miles west of Cass City late Monday afternoon, discovered the body of Arthur Gerou, 63, hanging with his feet 15 feet off the ground in a large maple tree in a pasture lot on the Gerou farm. From the condition of the body, officers believe Gerou had been dead about a week.

The body was removed to the Huston funeral home in Caro and interred in the Ellington cemetery Tuesday morning. A funeral service was conducted that afternoon at the cemetery by Rev. E. Ray Willson, pastor of the Caro Methodist church.

Mr. Gerou disappeared from his home Monday night, July 23, after neighbors heard the discharge of a shotgun at his home. Sheriff Julius Goslin investigated that night but found no trace of Gerou nor his gun. Two days later the weapon was found leaning against a tree in the farm yard. A posse of neighbors headed by the sheriff searched the territory in the vicinity of the Gerou home but failed to find the body. Coroner Lee Huston said that Gerou had acted strangely before his disappearance and said it was a case of suicide.

Arthur Gerou was born in Ellington township Apr. 5, 1882, and has resided in Tuscola county since that time with the exception of three years, 1908 to 1911, spent in Detroit. In that city, in October, 1911, he was united in marriage with Edna Wedlake. Mrs. Gerou passed away April 28, 1945.

Surviving Mr. Gerou are two sons, Cpl. Ira Gerou of Robins Field, Ga., and Everett Gerou of Dearborn; two daughters, Mrs. Charabell Patterson and Miss Mildred Gerou, both of Detroit; a brother, Miles Gerou of Cass City; and a sister, Mrs. Fred Shafer of Caro.

New Program of Farm Loans for Servicemen

A new program of farm loans to Tuscola county servicemen returning to agriculture was announced today by John McDurmon, county supervisor of the Farm Security Administration. The loans, entirely separate from the GI Bill of Rights transactions, are made under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, which FSA administers, and provide 40-year, three per cent credit to experienced farmers who cannot arrange satisfactory credit elsewhere. Mr. McDurmon emphasized that the loans would be made only to veterans with satisfactory farm experience and training. The qualifications of applicants will be approved by the County FSA committee of three experienced local farmers. On the Tuscola county committee are Floyd E. Werde, man of Cass City, Henry Lane of Fairgrove, and Stansbery L. Hess of Vassar.

"Veterans with the necessary experience and ability will find these Farm Tenant loans highly satisfactory," Mr. McDurmon said. "The long repayment term, the variable annual repayment feature and the advice and guidance available through the county office and the county committee combine to make these loans an effective way of helping servicemen re-establish themselves on family-type farms here in Tuscola county."

The County FSA committee will study the veteran's application and also the farm which he proposes to buy with the loan. The committee must satisfy itself, Mr. McDurmon said, that the farm is priced at its agricultural value—that is, a price which the farm's income at long-time average prices will be able to repay.

"The committee will be a double-barrelled protection. Not only will its members make sure that the veteran is protected from 'get-rich-quick' land sharks and real estate promoters, but it will also try to keep a serviceman with more enthusiasm than experience from tying himself up in an enterprise too big and complicated for him to manage successfully."

Ray Briggs of Detroit was a caller at the J. V. Copeland home Friday night.

AMG Rule Set Up East of Rhine

Reeducation of Children Is A Serious Problem in German Areas.

PARIS. — The immediate basic problems of the Allied Military government have been largely solved in the Rhineland, but reeducation of German children, now the most unruly section of the population, and prevention of Nazi adherents benefiting under the occupation must be dealt with in the future, according to Capt. James H. Denison of the United States First army.

Captain Denison, former news editor of the Detroit Free Press, revealed that military government had been established across the Rhine when a "spearhead section" took over the government of one of the captured towns in the Remagen bridgehead.

Many of the problems that have been quickly solved in Cologne were ones that it took some time and energy to solve in Aachen, "test tube" of the AMG, Captain Denison said. Aachen was a blessing in the sense that it gave G-5 a chance to experiment but a curse in that the front line was static for some time after its capture and attention—and criticism—of the entire world settled on the city.

Pressing Problem.

Today the most pressing problem in the Rhineland is the behavior of children from 12 to 16 of both sexes. "Serious trouble," involving cutting in one case, has been caused by these children, in whom Nazi teachings are deeply ingrained. The only immediate solution Captain Denison offered was "a little pick and shovel work."

The second problem, which Captain Denison judged would be even more difficult in the future, centered around business men who had made money during the Nazi regime and consequently were the only Germans able to finance private enterprise in sectors now occupied by the Allied forces.

"Of course they are not Nazis," said Captain Denison. "We haven't met a Nazi since we crossed the frontier. They all protest that they never had anything to do with the party or Hitler."

Captain Denison conceded that it would be difficult to curb the activities of these men, since their property and money were their own and it might turn out that those who profited most in the early stages of American occupation were those who had done the best under the Nazi regime.

"Of course we will watch for them, and try to sift out the Nazis, but it is a difficult job," he said.

Returning to the problem of German children, Captain Denison noted that "Maria Shultz," who German propagandists say was executed by the Americans and whom they are presenting to the Reich as a Teutonic Joan of Arc, is alive and well. Nevertheless, the arrogance and hate that Maria's diary revealed is symptomatic of the feeling of German children, Captain Denison indicated.

Security Basic Problem.

The basic problem of the AMG is security, the captain said, pointing out that military government itself existed to further tactical operations in divisional, corps and army areas.

The one way in which security is preserved is by keeping people in houses. In Aachen at first men were kept in homes all the time, while women were allowed out two hours a day to get water and food.

The AMG in Cologne, largest city yet taken by the Allies, is registering and fingerprinting all Germans for means of identification, Captain Denison revealed.

Security is providing few problems in Cologne. Thus far there have been only 34 cases of violation of military government ordinances and most of these were minor offenses such as staying out after the curfew and circulating within the army area. All three types of military government courts, summary, intermediate and general, have been set up in Cologne and seven of the 34 cases already have been tried in the summary court, which has jurisdiction of fines up to $1,000 or one year's imprisonment.

Marine Division Admits They Are Rugged Outfit

WITH THE MARINES. — Members of the 1st division are not reluctant in admitting they are a rugged outfit, and the Japs will be the first to attest to their power, "The Leatherneck" reports.

But the boys do think someone is overestimating their physical abilities. A recent order concerning souvenirs that had to be turned in by these men included "all 40 mm. antiaircraft guns" taken from the Japs. The guns weigh approximately 3,000 pounds each.

All Cargo Contracts To Be Filled in 1945

WASHINGTON.—Figures from the U. S. maritime commission show that all existing contracts for merchant shipbuilding will be completed this year. However, should the war take a turn for the worse, or should transportation demands be heavier than expected, additional contracts would be let.

Thin Horses

Horses that are wintered out are healthy and in good physical condition but are usually thin and have very long hair. Though they may be fairly fat, they will have long hair. Some extra feed is needed before they are ready to work. Horses that are conditioned are able to convert their strength and energy into full power each day and can even handle an overload during the peak of heavy work. Thin horses cannot do this because they have not strength enough.

Warped Discs

If your phonograph records are warped and slip on the turntable, distorting their tone, stick small pieces of adhesive tape on each face between the title disc and sound grooves. The tape increases the friction just enough to keep each record and its mates from slipping.

Oak Bluff Breezes

Every other year at this time, we have always had plenty of huckleberries in this vicinity for the picking, but due to late spring frosts they were a casualty along with cherries and other similar fruit. However, there are raspberries and blackberries to be found. One finds them in the corners of stony-soiled upland fields, along brush-hidden stone walls that circle meadows and divide pasture land from meadows and woods. Usually there are patches of bramble canes in sun-warmed, sandy ravines, or along the south side of some hilly, sloping wood lot. But to know raspberries at their best, one should go into the woods to a spot where the timber was cut off a few years previously. Here among sprouting young maples, poplars and birches, among rotting stumps and clutter of decaying branches, one finds large patches of canes. Raspberries like shade shelter and moisture. The wild berry is a first cousin to the domestic variety, but where the latter is bold, tall and rich in its lushness, the former is smaller, more slender and modest. Most persons know that the wild variety has a flavor that is different and well worth the extra effort needed in gathering the fruit. But there is more than material results involved. Picking wild raspberries and blackberries in the woods is an anticipated annual outing. It is an opportunity to listen to wrens and warblers, to see the scarlet tanager and cardinal against green leaves and to smell the rich pungent fragrance of the woodland and the wide outdoors in mid-summer. In spite of briars and thorns it's worth the effort.

It's Good News That Irish Linen
Is Coming Into Its Own AgainBy CHERIE NICHOLAS

CHEERIO! Hear the good news!

Shipments of Irish linen are gradually being resumed. Irish linen, a strategic material, has been helping to win the European war. Now that it has come to a victorious end, more linens will be released for civilian wear.

The strength, lightness and dependability of linen have made it an indispensable war material. Paratroopers have drifted down from their chutes by the lightest and strongest linen harnesses made. Linen canvas which does not stretch when soaked with rain has protected precious supplies dumped on the beachheads of France. Miles of strong linen thread have sewed the thousands and thousands of shoes that went marching to Berlin. This war demand explains why no one store in the United States has been able to secure sufficient quantities of Irish linen yardage, handkerchiefs, table damasks, towels, sheets and so on to fill their customers' requirements.

One thing that is certain, however, is that notwithstanding this long period of watchful waiting, the American consumer has not lost her enthusiasm for Irish linens or her appreciation of their beauty and peerless durability. Among the most attractive costumes seen on the beach this summer is the sunbaked dress with its accompanying bolero, both made of Irish linen in the smart fashion shown to the left. Carried out in the sun's favorite yellow, the dress is distinguished by a V-halter neckline and a flattering cuff effect across the bustline. The brief matching bolero makes possible a double career for this smart sun-worshiper. Frocks tailored of pure white linen are also the last word in smart summer fashions.

When it comes to dazzling white accessories such as fashion decrees for this summer, snowy linen plays its most thrilling role. Even the spotless white bag you will need to complete your collection of white accessories presents no difficulty. Just make a slipcover of washable white Irish linen for the dark bag you bought earlier in the season and the problem of keeping your bag immaculately clean and white looking is solved. The girl to the right in the picture did just that adding a touch that tells in way of a hand-embroidered initial.

Women who have a yen for exquisite frost-white lingerie accents have become intrigued this summer with the idea of "make it yourself" collars, jabots, gilets and other neck wear "lovelies" for which they use the daintiest and finest Irish linen handkerchiefs they can find. News dispatches from Ireland report that increasing quantities of linen handkerchiefs are being shipped to the United States this summer.

For a ladylike look that will add class to a career girl's simple daytime dress or suit, handkerchiefs with clip-board borders and hand-rolled hems work up beautifully. You'll need only one hanky to make a saw-tooth collar to wear with a V-neck dress as pictured in the right inset. Just cut into quarters and lay the corners in overlapping points. Finish the cut edge that fits into the neckline with a narrow binding.

For softly feminine styles one should be very "choosy" in selecting handkerchiefs that have reached the ultimate in matter of exquisitely sheer Irish linen and choice needlework. You will take utmost pride in wearing a gilet made of two handkerchiefs as shown in the inset above to the center. One of the lovely Irish linen handkerchiefs is cut in half diagonally across. The bordered edges are joined together part of the way up to make the front of the gilet, being left free the rest of the way to open back into revers. The other handkerchief is used for a most flattering butterfly-wing jabot.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

It's Clever to Have
A Number of Boleros

One of the outstanding fashion highlights this summer is the cunning separate bolero that you can slip on at a moment's notice. A bolero of pink linen worn with your slender black or navy basic dress will look charming. A bolero is ever so easy to make. You can buy just a remnant of linen or gabardine or allover eyelet, and with a good pattern you can seam up a simple bolero in just a short time. Pretty, too, and ever so useful is a little bolero fashioned of black, navy or white eyelet. Finishing off with an inch-wide border or binding of plain material gives an expert dressmaker touch. It's nice to have a white pique bolero on hand either eyeleted or of the waffle type. This will go with most any of your summer dresses. You will find that you can stretch your wardrobe to do double if you have a collection of colorful boleros on hand. They are just the thing for vacation trips too, when you don't want to take too much.

Button Glamor

Buttons here, buttons there and buttons everywhere is a fashion gesture that persists in the summer mode. Attractive buttons impart drama to this charming coat dress made of a pastel spun rayon. These are two-tone buttons patterned as a shaggy flower with their petals tipped in lighter shade. These handsome button originals are feather-light in weight and come in all the new costume colors. For those who make their own clothes, these handsome buttons are just the thing to add a touch of distinction.

Obsequies for May Van Blaricom—Funeral services were held on Thursday, July 26, at the Deford Methodist church for Mrs. May Van Blaricom, who passed away on Tuesday, July 24, after 13 months' illness and suffering from an abdominal cancer.

Julia May McCracken was born in the village of Troy Corners, Troy township, Oakland county, Michigan, Nov. 15, 1880, the daughter of John and Julia McCracken.

She came with her parents to Kingston township, Tuscola county, shortly after the forest fire of 1881; residing with her parents until Jan. 14, 1897, when she was united in marriage with Arthur W. Van Blaricom, also of Kingston township.

They made their home on a farm in Kingston township until 1929 when they moved to Pontiac to become employees of the Michigan State hospital as housekeepers in charge of the employees' dormitory, in which capacity they continued until June, 1944, when Mrs. Van Blaricom was stricken with illness requiring an operation, causing her retirement.

She returned to her home in Deford in August, 1944, after the death of her husband, who passed away following a gall bladder operation which had become necessary while she was also in the hospital under treatment.

She made her home in Deford from August, 1944, until her death where she was visited by many relatives and a host of friends whom she always greeted cheerfully regardless of her pain and suffering. Many floral tokens were received and deeply appreciated by her during her illness.

Her last hours were brightened by the presence of her son-in-law, Maurice E. Kelley, C. M. 2/c, who had been stationed in the South Pacific for the past two years, and who arrived on a 30-day leave in time to cheer her. His return was hastened by the Red Cross for which she was expressly thankful.

She is survived by a son, Foster J. Van Blaricom of Highland Park, Mich.; two daughters, Mrs. Maurice Kelley of Flint and Edna M. Sadler of Deford; five grandchildren, Clinton Perry Sadler, Richard V. Sadler, Keith A. Sadler, Mona May and Donna Fay Sadler. She is also survived by two brothers, David McCracken of Detroit and Frank McCracken of Highland Park; two sisters, Mrs. Leonard Patch of Highland Park and Mrs. Claude Cameron of Prescott, Arizona; and numerous nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, a brother and a sister, and two children, Reid A. and Beulah M., both of whom died in infancy; and a granddaughter, Doris Jean Kelley, who also died in infancy.

Interment was made in the family plot in Novesta cemetery beside her husband and infant children.

Services were conducted by Rev. H. C. Freeman, pastor of Deford church, where Mr. and Mrs. Van Blaricom had been members for several years. Nephews of the deceased acted as pallbearers and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kelley sang two selections.

Year-Round Hatcheries

Though most of the chicks — 60 per cent — are hatched during March, April and May, some hatcheries operate the year round, and a farmer can buy chicks at any time he wants them. This is largely because of the broiler business.

Early Subs
The first submarine ever to be employed in war was built in America in 1776, according to Encyclopedia Britannica. This early submersible of the American Revolution, called the "Turtle," attempted unsuccessfully to sink an English ship by fixing a gunpowder charge to the ship's bottom. Another example of early American ingenuity in submarine warfare occurred during the Civil war. In 1864 the Confederate ship, Housatonic, was sunk by a torpedo fired from the bow of a Union submarine. In this case the submarine itself and its nine-man crew were lost when water came in through the hatch.

Bitter Flavor
Bitter flavor in milk may be caused by stripping a cow up until just before freshening, by contamination of bacteria which live in open seams of milk utensils, by holding cream too long or not cooling it promptly enough, or by cows eating certain weeds.

Timber Industry
Beyond the thousands of its saw-mills, the South now sustains 48 great pulp mills. Most of these have been built since 1920. Now that practical methods have been developed for pulping hardwoods as well as pine, the wood supply in the South is sufficient to sustain a pulp capacity twice its present volume. The pulp industry in the last quarter century in the South has advanced from a basis of 400,000 cords of pulpwood annually in 1920 to 6 million cords annually, a 15-fold increase which again may be doubled.

Trucking Terminals
Though trucks in the United States today are hauling about one-fourth as many ton miles of freight as the railroads, serving many of the 54,000 communities that lack rail connections, the industry has developed few union trucking terminals. One was established in Indianapolis 25 years ago; other such terminals have been operating at Newark, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati.

Public Savings at Record High in '44

40 Billion Dollars Tucked Away in Past Year.

PHILADELPHIA. — Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public put away 40 billion dollars during 1944 in bonds, banks and sugar bowls. That's 120 billion dollars they have saved in the last four years.

Last year the largest amount of savings went into currency and bank deposits which increased by 17 billion dollars. Government bonds rose 15.5 billion dollars. And the rest was invested in the following manner: 4.4 billion dollars to equity in government insurance; 3.3 billion dollars to equity in private insurance; and 900 million dollars in savings and loan associations.

The figures were compiled by the Securities and Exchange commission.

This unprecedented liquid savings, according to the SEC analysis, is 10 times as large as the savings of the last full prewar year of 1940. And, for two and one-half years, it means the public has been saving close to 25 per cent of its income.

"At the time of our entry into the war," the analysis said, "accumulated savings in cash and deposits and government securities were already at the highest point in history."

Since then, such accumulated savings have shown an increase of 125 per cent. On December 31, accumulated savings of individuals amounted to 95 billion dollars in cash and deposits and 53 billion dollars in government securities.

One of the more significant developments in savings, according to the analysis, is the increase in consumer indebtedness, other than mortgages, amounting to 300 million dollars.

"This change from repayment of old debt to incurrence of new debt reflects the fact that the bulk of installment debt previously incurred for the purchase of automobiles and other durable consumers' goods has already been paid off," the analysis said.

Can't Get Teeth in Fight If Left in a Foxhole

WITH THE MARINES.—It's difficult for a marine to get his teeth in the fighting if he loses his bridge in a foxhole or has his plate drop out at a crucial moment during a Banzai charge. That's why mobile dental units are found close to the front, where everything from an ordinary filling to oral surgery or new teeth is available quickly.

S/Sgt. Larry Schlenker, a USMC combat correspondent, sends "The Leatherneck" a description of such a unit operated by Lt. (Dental Corps) Albert F. Mastrod of West Chicago, Ill., who served in France as a marine in World War I.

The entire lab is mobile. Dental chairs, machines, tools, and a small casting furnace can be carried in half a dozen small boxes, and set up quickly when it is time to go to work. The quality of the work is equal to that which could be provided Stateside, and attention is paid to looks as well. By operating close to the front lines, Lieutenant Mastrod and his men have enabled marines to stay on active duty and get their dental troubles taken care of as soon as they appeared.

Indian Warpath Leads Straight to Plants, Army

WASHINGTON. — The war has brought the greatest exodus of Indians from reservations that has ever taken place, according to Indian Commissioner John Collier's annual report to Interior Secretary Ickes.

The report, just released, says 55 per cent of the able-bodied Indian men between 18 and 50 are in the armed forces or war industries. In addition, more than 10,000 Indian men, women and children have worked outside the reservations for varying periods.

Despite the exodus, the report continued, those remaining on reservations have increased agricultural production. The value of agricultural commodities produced on reservations, principally by women, children, and older men, totaled $19,000,000 in 1943, a gain of nearly $2,000,000 from 1942.

United States Carriers Use Five Plane Types

WASHINGTON. — The types of planes now employed in carrier service have been increased to five with the addition of the fast and versatile Chance-Vought Corsair fighter plane, the navy disclosed. First-line carrier planes now include three fighter types, the Corsair, the Grumman Hellcat and the Eastern Aircraft Wildcat; one dive-bomber, the Curtiss Helldiver; and one torpedo bomber, the Eastern Aircraft Avenger.

Navy Will Send Health Force to Assist Greeks

WASHINGTON. — A navy public health unit will sail for Athens soon at the request of the Greek government.

Announcing this, the navy said the 14 man group would seek to curb disease, restore and improve sanitary facilities and "do everything else in its power to ameliorate living conditions among a people crushed by years of enemy occupation."

Painted Furniture The first consideration when you start painting and decorating furniture, is the kind of surface or finish you will have to paint over. Generally speaking, these conditions will fall in three classes, 1. bare wood, 2. a surface in good condition and 3. a surface in bad condition. Treatment for each of these conditions is taken up here. Follow the instructions closely, and you will have no difficulty. As an extra precaution whatever surface or old finish you may be painting over should be clean and free from wax, grease, or any other foreign matter. Remove wax and grease thoroughly with turpentine before you do any painting.

Orange Juice Sliced oranges give more vitamin C than orange juice, and unstrained juice more than strained juice. Strained orange juice contains only from a half to three-fourths the amount of vitamin C contained in the segments, so it is the most extravagant way to use oranges.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Late Dinners: A brand new locomotive fireman, out on his very first run, was responsible for 500 or 600 commuters reaching their homes and waiting wives much past their usual arriving time. When the engineer arrived to take the engine out, he asked the fireman if he had obtained water, it being customary for the fireman to see that the tank is full. The fireman said he had, so the start was made. Some distance out of New York, the engineer made a test and found the boiler practically dry. There was nothing to do but to go to the next station and pull the fire. No water being available there, the train crew waited until a freight came along. The freight engine was detached and pulled the passenger train to its destination. A subsequent investigation showed that while the new man had filled the drinking jug, he had forgotten the tank entirely.

Running Rabbits: Ted Steele, who raises rabbits for the government, gets into the argument whether rabbits, with their longer hind legs, run faster uphill than downhill. Ted holds they run faster uphill and offers as proof a balance trick in which you bet you can jump farther backward from a standing position than the other fellow can jump forward. The only condition is that each must bend over holding the tips of the shoes, with the knees bent as much as desired. In trying to jump forward you hardly get off the floor at all because you are off balance and would go on your head—equivalent to running downhill with shorter front legs. But you can jump backward from six inches to a foot or more depending on practice. That matter being settled General Eisenhower, General MacArthur and the armed forces can go on with the war.

To Have and To Hold: After 1 a.m., many night club employees, such as waiter captains, check room girls and others in the higher tip brackets gather at a mid-town east side restaurant which remains open all night, usually all congregating at one big table. Accustomed to observing late hours, they hang around a couple of hours or more, and waiters at that table are kept on the jump filling orders in a manner satisfactory to the patrons. Seemingly those waiters would do quite well, since those whom they serve live by tips. But on the true of several just the reverse is true. Instead of receiving fat tips from the tip takers, they are lucky if they get anything at all, the general rule being to walk out without leaving something for the waiter. In other words, hands that itch worst for tips cling tightest to them.

Nicotine Notes: Cigarette lines, especially in midtown, are common in New York. Smokers know when certain stores receive their shipments and are on the spot early to get their one package, the lines beginning to form at about 7 a. m. An hour later, some extend for more than a block. Usually, there is a cop on hand to preserve order and thus a part of New York's police force spends its time riding herd on smokers. Also many a clerk is late to work these mornings because of lining up for a cigarette supply. Incidentally, many dealers work off less popular brands by displaying them and none others on the counter. Regular customers, however, get what they want, the hidden brands being known as "stoopies" because the dealer keeps them under and not on the counter.

Safety First: Knowing the cigarette situation in New York, some forehanded outsiders bring their own when they come to the city. The other afternoon, a prosperous-looking business man from Kansas City registered at one of the large mid-town hotels. Having been assigned a room, he asked for a safety deposit box, a not unusual request especially on the part of business men. But instead of putting a lot of valuables into the box, the Kansas City man opened his grip, took out three cartons of cigarettes and carefully locked them up.

End Piece: Back again to waiters: Because of the manpower shortage, a number of large establishments have hired waitresses. The waitresses get along all right with the men waiters, especially if they are passably pretty. There has been somewhat of a breakdown in discipline however, as waiters, despite the vigilance of captains, will congregate in corners to talk with attractive coworkers. But there is not always peace and harmony. The other evening, the prettiest waitress in a certain dining room came out of the kitchen crying. When a captain asked her what was the matter, she sobbed, "The chef slapped me in the face with a fish."

Russian Girl Singer Is Puzzled by Yanks

MOSCOW. — Shril whistling and stamping of feet burst forth as a Russian girl finished a song at a concert for released U. S. prisoners of war at Odessa.

"Did I do so badly?" she asked in distress. But her face brightened when they told her she was getting the highest form of American army applause and, in fact, the soldiers were asking for more.

Relief but Not Cure Promised for Sniffers

The sniffing season is on its way. While not serious to the individuals it does affect from six to nine million Americans, causing an annual 600 million work-day loss. Ninety per cent of hay fever is caused by ragweed pollen.

Gains toward an effectual remedy have been slowly progressing since 1868 when Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes answered the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's request of a cure, with: "Gravel is an effectual remedy. It should be taken about eight feet deep."

Since that time inoculations and nasal sprays have brought relief to many sufferers. The inoculations, not always effective, are the nearest that science has been able to come to a permanently successful cure.

Elimination Impossible. If all ragweed, pollenized trees, pollen grasses and pollen plants could be eliminated throughout the nation, complete relief would be provided. As this is impossible and because the hay fever pollens are carried great distances by the wind, individual relief still proves to be the most effective measure.

Hay fever is hereditary to some extent, the U. S. Public Health service reports. The Pacific Northwest is the only section of the country completely free of the malady. Northern New England, parts of the Adirondacks, southern tip of Florida, and all territory from the Rockies to the Pacific are relatively free of the hay fever pollen. The pollen is denser in cities, with Indianapolis far in the lead.

Hay fever reaches its peak in the Northwest about August 25, in the Great Lakes states September 1, in the south central states about September 15 and in the far southern states about October 1.

Finely divided metallic salts of copper, zinc and silver have recently proven effective as a relief measure by applying to the mucous membranes with small cotton tampons.

Hay fever should not be neglected. It may develop into pollen asthma, which is even worse, and into sinus trouble or pneumonia.

Coast Guards Were First Called the Cutter Service

While it was not until 1915 that the coast guard under its present setup was organized by congress, the service had its birth on August 4, 1790, when it was known as the Revenue Cutter and Life Saving service.

The second session of the first congress authorized the coast patrol for the enforcement of the customs laws and as an organized armed service for the protection of the seacoast. Originally ten revenue cutters were provided.

Today many of the combat and transport ships are coast guard manned. Members of the personnel have fought at sea and on land in all major engagements.

Handy Chart Helps You Can Vegetables (See Recipes Below)

Vegetable Canning Tips

The surprise point values on vegetables when stocks were beginning to dwindle this year made many a woman vow not to get caught short-handed this following winter. Though it may mean a few hours of solid work, vegetable canning is certain to be worth the time and effort put into it.

Women who have canned in years past find it is just as easy to put up vegetables as any other kind of produce. It is simply a matter of carrying out a few simple rules to the letter.

Selection and Preparation. Young, tender, freshly gathered vegetables are a "must." Any delay from garden to canning kettle gives bacteria a chance to develop and makes processing more difficult. Tough, overripe vegetables give poor results because canning improves no vegetable. If you want prime quality, then can that kind of vegetable.

Preserve the sweet flavor of peas and corn, for example, by picking them yourself, if possible and putting them in the canning assembly line as soon as possible. Two hours from garden to kettle is a rule, not just something that sounds nice.

To achieve best results grade vegetables for size and ripeness. Wash them thoroughly in large containers with plenty of running water. Clean vegetables are freed of much bacteria which the soil itself can carry.

Hot Pack or Cold Pack?

If you have the time, take it to hot-pack vegetables as this saves food and color values and gives a better product in the can. By hot-pack is meant packing the vegetable hot. This consists of cooking the vegetable a few minutes to shrink it (so that it doesn't shrink too much in the jar during processing) and using that same liquid in which it was cooked for the jar.

Many women who can hundreds of quarts do not always have time to hot pack their vegetables, and in that case, they simply prepare the vegetable for the jar and process according to directions.

Preparing the Jars.

Round up the children to help with the canning as best results are achieved when everything moves like clockwork. The day before actual canning starts lay out the equipment—kettles, utility pans for holding the jars while they are filled, knives, pans for washing, etc.

A big job to get out of the way is the jars. All these should be washed in large pans of soapy suds and rinsed thoroughly, made ready for sterilizing the following day. Be sure that jars are checked for jars while they are filled, knives, pans for washing, etc.

Lynn Says

Canning Memos: Don't cheat on processing time by trying to hurry vegetables or fruits along in the water bath or pressure cooker. Time can be saved by having produce or equipment in readiness so that all work goes along on a production line schedule.

After the jar has been packed, press a clean, silver knife all the way around on the inside of the jar to destroy bacteria and air bubbles.

Don't forget to wipe the rim of the jar after packing it with food.

Filling the Jars. To fill the jars quickly, since speed is important to prevent bacteria from developing, lay the jars on a large utility pan, and place it right next to the kettle in which vegetables have been cooked. Ladle in vegetables as quickly as possible. In most cases, add liquid to within one-half inch of the top. For starchy vegetables like corn and peas, leave one inch space at top. Adjust the cover according to manufacturer's directions.

How to Process. As soon as the jars are ready, they should be speeded into pressure cooker or boiling water bath. If you can possibly get a pressure cooker use it as it will save time, give better results. It is the method recommended by the United States department of agriculture. All pressure cookers vary in some way as to the closing of the cover, and it's best to follow directions that come with it.

These, however, are points well worth remembering with a pressure cooker: Have 1 to 2 inches of hot water at the bottom; place jars on the rack; make sure cover is fastened securely; permit steam to escape from petcock for 7 to 10 minutes before closing. Do not count processing time until the meter registers the desired pressure.

The best way to prevent liquid from escaping from the jars is to keep the temperature even. It should not fluctuate as this causes the contents of the jar to boil over and overcooks the vegetable.

Cooling Jars

After the jars have been processed according to the table given above, set them on several thicknesses of cloth or newspaper and allow to cool away from a draft. Test for seal when cool and store in cool, dark place.

Some jars need tightening after processing, others do not. Study the directions which come with the covers, as the manufacturer knows what treatment is necessary in the case of his particular brand.

Common Queries.

1. Is it necessary to boil vegetables before using?
Home-canned vegetables should always be boiled before tasting or using, for 10 to 15 minutes.

2. What is meant by non-acid vegetables?
Non-acid vegetables include all vegetables except tomatoes, ripe plantatoes or sauerkraut. Since most vegetables are non-acid, they might contain botulism, a type of bacteria which could be harmful and they require a steam pressure cooker to destroy it during processing.

3. Should salt be added to vegetables in canning?
Salt is usually added in the proportion of 1 teaspoon per quart for purposes of seasoning. It may be omitted.

Save Fertilizer by Liming Acid Soils

Fertilizer is largely wasted if used on highly acid soils, advises Norris W. Wilber, county agricultural agent.

This is particularly true in connection with alfalfa and clover. The right fertilizer used when the legumes are seeded should benefit them and all crops used in the rotation. But it won't help much if the soil needs lime.

Demonstrations conducted by Michigan State college soil science research specialists have proved this, according to Mr. Wilber. A number of farmers in the state have carried on similar tests in cooperation with the college, and the results have been the same.

As a rule fields that were limed eight or 10 years ago are once more on the acid side and should be re-limed to permit fertilizer to work efficiently.

Mr. Wilber stresses that the best way to learn whether soil is acid is to have it tested. Every farmer can find out how to make his own tests by contacting the county agent. Soil testing outlets can be obtained at a very small cost, enabling the farmer to make his own tests at his convenience.

"Much fertilizer could be saved, and crop production increased on many fields in Michigan by testing for acid soils and correcting the acidity before using fertilizer," Mr. Wilber states.

Refreshing Desserts
In summer, especially, serve fresh fruits liberally in place of heavy desserts that call for sugar. A fruit salad topped by a dressing mixed with fruit juice does double duty as a refreshing salad and dessert.

Field Roller
For a heavy field roller, fill two steel oil drums with cement and connect them together on a steel shaft through pipe centers. It works fine on rough ground. When the drums wear off, the cement is still good.

Strawberry Juice
To save the juice of strawberries, wash them before, not after, hulling. Hold juicy fruits like oranges and cherries over a bowl when slicing so none of the juice will be lost as it drips.

POISON IVY—How to Kill It
Kill the outer skin. It peels off and with it goes the ivy infection. Often one application is enough. Get Teal solution at any drug store. It's powerful. Stops itching quickly. Your 35c back tomorrow if not pleased. Today at McCullough's Dr. Drs.—Adv. 7-6-6

Kathleen Norris Says:

Don't Be Someone Else
Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

She never saw the beauty of the rolling waves or the brilliance of the happy crowd of soldiers and sailors and their girls streaming up and down the boardwalk.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

DON'T spoil your life longing for something just because someone else has it. This is a real fault in American women, partly because they have so much, and because their leisure time lets them think about their neighbors.

If life was a little more real for us, if grim necessity more often knocked at our doors, we would be cured of this weakness. The women of the Orient don't know it at all. They drive straight ahead, each one planning and working for the comfort and protection of her own little group, not embittered by the fact that luxury and leisure and all the prettiness of life are denied her forever.

But the days of many an American woman are darkened by constant watching and comparing her neighbor's fortunes to her own. She doesn't appreciate at all what she has—all that matters is that the Browns have more.

For example, I once knew a woman named Sally. She was healthy, beloved, a happy wife and mother. I met her when she had her three small children at the seaside. She and I had rented neighboring cottages for a fortnight's vacation. We were within a block of the shore and all the wild delights of childhood—merry-go-rounds, dog-dogs, popcorn, slides, whirlys, museums and sandy beach—were close at hand. Nobody could call it an aristocratic resort, but it was inexpensive, joyous and wholesome as only the shore can be.

Craved for Luxury Resort.

However, to Sally, the blight was that she had a friend who had taken her child to Tahoe—remote, refined and, in spots, very dull. But Tahoe is fashionable and Santa Cruz is not, and Sally kept comparing the two places until her vacation was ruined by fretting and discontent.

If Sally had been a child, how simple it would have been to say, "Now, not another word about Tahoe or what Nancy is doing. If I hear any more of this nonsense, Miss, you go straight to bed!" But Sally isn't a child, so we had to put up with it. She never saw the beauty of the rolling waves or the brilliance of the happy crowd of soldiers and sailors and their girls streaming up and down the boardwalk. She never smiled when everyone was in the glorious salty surf, clinging to life lines, lying wet and breathless on the float. She didn't brighten when we gathered for a delicious hot breakfast in the coffee shop or took hamburgers and buns down on the beach. Not Sally! Nancy was at Tahoe, where everything was elegant and expensive, so there was no pleasure for Sally anywhere else.

Nancy, as it happens, came back with a bad case of hay fever and her little girl was sent off to camp, but that didn't interest Sally. She continued to remark frequently that she wished the holiday was over.

Ninety-nine women out of every hundred in the world would have thought her crazy. Some would have wondered why she wasn't struck dead for ingratitude, stupidity and blindness.

Had Almost Everything.

For if there are 100 good things for a woman of 30 in this world, Sally surely had 98 of them. Sally had

ENVY AND DISCONTENT

Foolishly longing for what others have blights the lives of many women. That yearning to "keep up with the Joneses" makes life miserable for women who have all the essentials for happiness. If they could only curb their childish envy of other people who may be a little richer, or more fortunate in some other way, they could be much happier.

Sally was one of these silly, discontented women. She had health, beauty, a loving husband, three children, and a middle-class family income. But these blessings were insufficient for Sally. Her friend Nancy could afford to go to an expensive and exclusive resort, for instance. Sally had to go to an ordinary seaside cottage colony. The only difference, as far as pleasure was concerned, was the social ranking of the two places. This distinction, nevertheless, bored into Sally's spirit and spoiled her vacation.

Miss Norris compares the lot of the average American woman with that of the European or Asiatic woman, for whom life is a constant struggle just to maintain existence in a war-torn world. How trivial would most of the American woman's difficulties appear in such a setting!

health, youth, beauty, love, protection and plenty; she had a home, car, water, heat, clothes, food, pleasures, leisure, radio, telephone, gas stove, electric light, Sally had wifehood and motherhood, companionship, responsibility, a keen mind, an active body, bright eyes, good hearing, strong legs and clever fingers.

She had, even in this rented cottage, a comfortable bed and good books to read; she had white sheets and fresh blankets; she had a strip of garden, the sight of great trees, the nearness of that eternal miracle of healing, the sea, and that other miracle to which men have turned since the earliest days of Biblical history—the great line of rising dark mountains. But it is ridiculous to attempt to list what she had and it would be tragic to compare it, detail by detail, with the bitter need that millions of women overseas are facing.

These women, frightened, destitute and desperate, have traveled dusty roads looking only for water first, rest and then perhaps a little dark bread and a few boiled turnips or cabbages. They have reassured terrified children, promised them security, shelter, milk and food, only to have the little feet falter, the little hearts break and the children lie down beside the road to rest, not even rating a grave. They have known that their men were gone forever and with them all the dear old life of home, garden, kitchen, familiar stove and beds and home treasures—never to be found again.

One week with them might turn the mirror around for Sally and let her see not what she hasn't but what she has.

Handle Strawberries Carefully

Strawberries are scarce, so if you are lucky enough to have some on your menu, handle them with care. Do not wash them until ready to serve. Water clinging to the berries starts unnecessary spoilage. If you hull berries a long time before using, they may soften. If the strawberries must be held overnight, spread them on a flat plate and store uncovered in the refrigerator. Don't hesitate to can the berries, though, even though sugar is scarce. Can without it if necessary.

Charming Novelty in New Ensemble Ideas

Designers Flout Old Rules in Original Combinations.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Designers are more intrigued than ever with the match-this-to-that theme. This summer the do-and-dare idea of matching most anything with most anything is being carried out with increasing enthusiasm.

It's surprising what creative genius is doing in working out new ensembles that will impart high style accent to the fashion picture. One of the newest gestures in the present match-this-to-that vogue is seen in a black crepe gilet with an allover patterning done in jet beads and paillettes, the ensemble idea carried out with combs for the hair that repeat the paillettes and beads on the neckpiece.

Stunning with a tailored suit is the ascot in bright plaid taffeta that is matched with gloves made of the same taffeta.

For little girls, bright felt peasant-embroidered suspenders are selling, together with a head-band made of matching felt and duplicating the embroidery.

Head-bands are being featured in stunning twosomes that include a belt to match. Very effective and one that will give charming accent to many a plain costume is a jewel-embroidered suede belt which is teamed with a head-band made of matching felt and duplicating the embroidery done on matching suede.

A newcomer in the jewelry realm is a matching set that includes a dog-collar of pastel pearls together with fancy combs, ornamented with matching pearls. You can get earrings to complete a threesome.

This year you will be seeing smart felt sailors banded with a jewel-embroidered ribbon. In connection with these, milliners are showing jeweled belts to match.

Charming are this summer's print frocks together with parasols of the same print. The parasol-to-match idea is also carried out with de luxe gingham suits or dresses.

A flower corsage to wear at the waistline finds its match in a similar color to wear in the hair. The pretty custom of wearing flowers has been revived, so wear flowers to your heart's content.

Flower-Laden Hats

This summer's flower-trimmed hats have an individuality all their own. There is a tendency toward larger brims as above pictured. Though they may seem bulky, these brims are really airy fairy structures created of billowy masses of the faintest sheers. All this makes a lovely background for the lavish use of flowers as shown above. The ultra-feminine hat at the top sprinkles a puff of organdy with big black and white daisies. The veil is filmy black mesh, starred with chenille dots. Leaf green mesh veiling on a wire frame forms an airy background for the cool pink water lilies with dark green leaves that trim the hat below.

Fads and Fancies

If you are in line for a new beach costume, look up the cunning types that are made up of scarf squares in flamboyant colors and designs.

Above-the-table dresses take on a new lease of life. There's a lot of entertaining being done in these days for furloughed servicemen and this calls for pretty clothes. An outstanding costume in the newer collections tops a narrow black skirt with a simple bodice in pink or pale blue, which is allover embroidered with rhinestones or beadwork in matching color.

Sleeve "separates" are on the way! The newest news of the day is that of the double sleeve. The idea is to slip a detachable long fitted sleeve or one of elbow length under the fashionable cap sleeve. Some of the newest sweaters coming in are made that way. A much wanted item, this of the separate sleeve, for the bare arm problem has been a real one.
