

MICHIGAN AND THE OLD NORTHWEST.

Coastal tribes had reported vast inland seas. Champlain founded Quebec, 1608.

In 1612 Champlain had sent Etienne Brulé to live among Huron at Lake Simcoe.

While enroute to Huronia he discovered Lake Huron at French River mouth.

Brulé's journey from Quebec was difficult. In 1615 Brulé crossed Lake Ontario.

gether shows that they are putting everything they have into every pitch. Mac McCullough's team rolled a 2450 count and were held to a two-game win as Dillman's team furnished too much opposition in one of their games to cheat Mac's pinners out of a clean sweep. Incidentally the McCullough totals were the second highest rung up this season and nothing but hard luck keeps this Scotchman's team near the bottom, when their actual pin fall of 22,776 is tops in the league and four pins better than the Landon team have accounted for.

Jimmie Gross is the captain of the team that holds the highest honor for any three game series and 2,492 pins is their record. The Francis Fritz squad are recorded as accumulating the most pins for a single game and 879 is the count to beat. The Landon team are in second with 877 and Kolb's mappers are 873.

Teams winning the weekly prizes were McCulloughs, who took the three-game overaverage, and Landons picked up the one game prize. The individual prize winners were Junior Root with a three-game overaverage, but the one game overaverage had to be shared between Kinnaird and Martin as they both rolled one game, getting 77 pins over their average.

Four bowlers managed to make the honor list by their bowling during the week and the first three mentioned are hitting it for the first time, namely, Ludlow with 550, Doc Miller's 553, and "Irish" Kinnaird's 565 pin count. The fourth on this list has registered his name for the seventh time in the 10 weeks of bowling since the season opened and his team is holder of the No. 1 spot in the league standings. Lest we forget he managed to string together games of 200, 255, and 175 for a 630 total which is runnerup to Carl Kolb's recent count of 650 pins.

Bowlers who clicked in with better than 200 scores are Landon 255, Kinnaird 233, Doc Miller 218, Martin 215, Ludlow 215. Guy W. Landon, Sec.

Wishing You a Happy, Good Old-fashioned Thanksgiving

We are thankful that we live among the people of Cass City and vicinity. Although at the moment many of us may not be in what you might call a particularly thankful mood, seeing as how the picture of peace is not as perfect as we'd hoped and planned for.

Yes sir, there's plenty of flaws in the situation we had anticipated would follow the war's ending.

Perhaps we expected too much . . . too soon.

We must realize that a nation geared to the terrific speed of wartime activity cannot shift its gears too suddenly.

Let's be as patient as possible and thankful for things as they are, being confident conditions will gradually improve.

WE'RE THANKFUL AND DEEPLY GRATEFUL TOO, FOR THE FRIENDLY COOPERATION OF OUR CUSTOMERS. THEY'VE REALLY BEEN SWELL.

So our wish today is that you'll have much to be thankful for, good health and an appetite for plenty of turkey.

our people want to forget the war. They are fed up with brass-hat military personalities. They don't want to listen to war heroes either, particularly the fellows who are commercializing on their patriotic service. They don't want to hear about the problems in Europe, in Japan, or elsewhere. They want old-fashioned entertainment, lots of laughs. They want old-fashioned talks about their own business. Why? Wake up, mister, the war is over!"

A Michigan congressman recently confided to a friend that pressure from the "folks back home," who want their sons brought back at once from Europe or the Pacific, is simply tremendous.

"You have no idea," he said, "of the heavy volume of mail I have been getting from fathers and mothers who can't see any reason why the government should keep their boys in foreign lands, now that the war is over."

We accept as valid his observation that the post-war public today is "hellbent for a return to normalcy, come what may." But we believe it is largely an emotional letdown—part of our readjustment in changing from war to peace.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, home last week from Europe, voiced an appeal for international cooperation and for finishing the job. "I believe in international cooperation," he declared. "There must be international cooperation. We must seek out those who are our friends, who think as we do and live as we do, and find every way possible to eliminate war—the grimmest tragedy there is."

"I have noticed that many people—newspapers, radio commentators and others—have been saying that we have not succeeded in indoctrinating soldiers for the job they are now doing (occupational duty to restore order, police the aggressors, encourage democratic living) as well as they had been indoctrinated for war."

Eisenhower was quoted by reporters as blaming this state on the clamor of Americans to get the fighting men home. "We all want them home," the general said. "But we have a big job ahead, a tremendous job."

To which we might pose this question: Have we really won the war yet? Must World War II be continued, later on some year, by World War III?

What happened after the last war—World War I?

Let's glance at our history. For a year or two after the Armistice in 1918 (just 27 years ago) prices were high and business was good. Return of soldiers helped to build up an excess of available labor. With war orders cut off and European countries too poor to pay cash for their usual purchases, agriculture and many industries accumulated a large supply of unmarketable goods.

Employers were faced with a rather familiar situation: The worker's demand for higher wage rates in order to maintain his wartime "take home" income and the economic necessity of raising prices to cover added production costs.

The year 1919—which would correspond to the fall and winter of 1945 and the spring and summer of 1946—was one of the most violent in American labor annals. Reduction of take-home pay, due to a reduction in working hours, was followed by an epidemic of strikes—more than four million workers being involved in more than 2,600 strikes.

The spiral—higher wages, higher prices—finally precipitated a buyer's strike. Employers were often glad to close their doors because of dwindling orders. Result: A depression from 1920 to 1922. Then seven years of so-called prosperity. In 1929, the big crash. Remember? It was only 16 years ago . . . just 16 years ago.

Thanksgiving Day in Michigan. Unrest everywhere. Industrial strikes apparently inevitable, just as they were in 1919. People tired of the war, yearning for the "good old days."

And yet, underneath these surface manifestations, there as a genuine thankfulness in our hearts. Michigan was spared the destruction and death which visited nearly every part of Europe. No bombs fell here. Thank God for that.

Today, east and west, north and south, are new Flanders fields where poppies will grow. New crosses row by row. Back home, gold stars at windows.

Peace . . . have we really won it yet? Is our job finished, just yet? Let us forget . . . lest we forget.

May Tear Down Fuehrer's Lair

Fear Retreat Might Become Symbol of Nazi Spirit That Ruined Reich.

By PAULINE FREDERICK
(WNU Staff Correspondent)

If you have been to Berchtesgaden since the war ended, you will understand why there is talk of destroying Hitler's eagle's nest perched atop the highest alp in that area, as his house and that of Goering and Bormann farther down the mountain-side were leveled. Only it will be a much harder job.

I have just been to the eagle's nest and I can tell you at first hand why there is some apprehension about it.

The eagle's nest is the retreat der fuehrer had built for himself on a point 5,000 feet high. It is made of the solid stone of the Bavarian mountain on which it is anchored. To reach it, you go up a precipitous winding road. Himmler's Mercedes, with its five speeds forward, in which I was traveling, gave out and spurted steam and water a third of the way up. A jeep that picked me up at that point stopped, too, a little later, but we finally arrived at our destination with the aid of a second jeep.

Tunnel Solid Rock.

You first reach a tunnel more than a hundred feet deep into the solid rock and guarded by huge bronze doors. It leads to a double-decker elevator that rises 500 feet through a shaft bored through the rock to the eagle's nest. The top cage of the elevator—a bronze section with a circular mirror on the back wall and leather-cushioned bench around the walls—was for Hitler. A trap door in the right hand corner as you enter was for the SS men to drop down into their cage below, which was white-washed like a cell. When the elevator reached its destination at the top of the mountain—the SS got out on the ground floor and Hitler entered his living quarters on the first floor. From the view you get at this height, despite the fact that the house itself and the furnishings—what have been left by the G.I. souvenir hunters—are unattractive—is enough to give anyone delusions of grandeur.

I stood on the narrow terrace looking out over the breath-taking scene talking with one of the American guards. It was what he told me that made me realize that some day the eagle's nest might have to be destroyed.

Hitlerism Not Dead.

The guard told me that two SS men had just been arrested up there. That surprised me very much, and I remarked that they might have known there was a good chance of being caught if they came around a place like that. "Why would they do it?" I asked the guard.

His answer startled me. "This is still a shrine to many Germans," he said very seriously.

Then he pointed down the hill to Hitler's guest house just back of his house that had been bombed, too. Germans were repairing it for a barracks for occupation forces.

"The Germans we put to work down there, work as they work no place else—they never lose a second," the guard said. "Why—because they can see the eagle's nest from there."

It is true that it is almost impossible to find a German in Germany who ever admits being a Nazi. From these two incidents, it would seem to be true also that the spirit of Hitlerism is not dead in Germany. That is why the things that remind the people of Hitlerism at the height of the fuehrer's glory may have to be destroyed so they will not become symbols of that spirit which has to be done away with if a new Germany is to come out of the war.

Fire Fighters Are Just That and Nothing More

ST. LOUIS. — Mrs. Ralph Crowder almost solved the problem of getting in the fruit crop.

A large and productive tree in her back yard was laden with apricots. Unable to cope with the harvest herself, she called the fire department.

"There's an apricot tree in my back yard—" she told the fireman who answered the telephone. But the connection was cut off and a few moments later Mrs. Crowder was startled by the arrival of a ladder truck, which roared to a stop in front of her home.

"Where is that tree?" one of the firemen asked breathlessly. When he was told that Mrs. Crowder was offering to let the firemen pick fruit, he shook his head.

"We have no time to pick apricots," he explained. "There might be a fire somewhere and it would not look well for the fire department to be up in a tree picking fruit."

1,345 Calories New Diet Fixed for Reich

WIESBADEN, GERMANY. —

The American military government trimmed the average German civilian ration for the next four weeks to 1,345 calories. The average civilian ration in September was 1,480 to 1,800 calories daily. Normal minimum health requirements are 2,000 calories a day.

Stretching Poultry

When you have a fairly large bird and want to make it go as far as possible, divide the meat into two or three parts when you take it off the bones after cooking. Serve one part cooked in some way and the next day, serve it some other way. Be sure to keep the part chilled that you are holding over, and use it all as promptly as possible.
