

State Department Tells of Advantages Of Rural Ag School

Saving Along Many Lines by Combining Several District into Single Unit

In reply to an inquiry requesting information regarding the advantages in the formation of several districts into a rural agricultural school unit, Doris Stack, chief of organization and transportation of the Michigan Department of Public Instruction, writes the Chronicle as follows:

"The following are what I consider advantages or improvements that can be effected by establishing a rural agricultural school district at Cass City:

"1. The tax is evenly distributed in the community for all school purposes.

"2. By organizing Cass City will have a larger area and a greater combined wealth which is important in providing a sound school program.

"3. Expenses that are now incurred in the several districts and managed by a number of school boards, can be converted by a single board for instructional supplies, equipment, and instruction. Every dollar must be saved from needless expense for purposes to promote a better educational program. In other words, there will be a saving along many lines which always takes place by combining several districts into a single unit.

"4. Nonresident pupils become resident pupils which is a positive factor in a good school program.

"5. Reorganization gives all citizens an active share in shaping policies of the school serving the community. It is a fact that the people of the district in which the school is operating and where pupils of the district are being educated in another district, have lost practically all local control. Through reorganization the parents of the children have a part in shaping policies of the school which their children attend.

"Reorganization of schools the size that was proposed at Cass City under similar conditions strengthens the community both economically and socially. There are many other conditions which are approved through reorganization, a sufficient number of pupils and a reasonably large valuation. Better transportation facilities are always provided after reorganization than before with the costs shared by the whole state of Michigan.

"I might add another fact which has been observed throughout the state following reorganization, and that is, programs in agriculture, shop, homemaking have generally been improved."

Harvest Time Is Accident Hazard Time on the Farm

Harvest time is accident hazard time on the farm according to Norris W. Wilber, county agricultural agent.

When grain harvesting machinery, with its high speed cutting mechanisms, shafting, chains and gears, is operated in the rush of harvest, the chances for accidents mount rapidly. It is a season when haste is often emphasized without necessary caution.

Care in the use of harvesting machinery is a good preliminary to Farm Safety Week which will be observed July 25-31. Machinery is one of the big causes of farm accidents.

The first step for safe operation of harvesting machinery is to put it into good condition before the harvest begins. This means that seats, controls, steps, and other features of the machine should be in good repair. Shields or other safety guards must be in place before a machine is taken to the field.

He recommends the following rules:

1. Always stop all machinery before oiling, adjusting or unclogging.
2. Avoid wearing floppy or ragged clothing.
3. Always operate tractors at a safe speed. Start smoothly and slow down for turns and rough ground.
4. Avoid operations too close to the edge of ditches or embankments.
5. Small children are definitely out of place around harvesting machinery.
6. Avoid jumping off equipment before it has come to a full stop.
7. Remember to look both ways as you approach a highway and cross with care.
8. On a highway obey the signs and rules of the road and don't forget to use headlights and tail lights.

Michigan Mirror

By Gene Allenman
"Gene" Black, Michigan's scrapping attorney general, has become the "Peck's bad boy" of the Kim Sigler administration.

The man whom Sigler once insisted was a "must" for his cabinet is now his No. 1 prickly thorn. Because the Republican delegation at the Republican national convention stuck to Vandenberg in the second ballot, hoping to elevate Michigan's national statesman from the United States Senate to the White House, Black is now assailing Sigler for Michigan's "most distasteful political position."

Black says he has been a Dewey booster for years. Recently he sounded a call for a "new and resolute Republican candidate for Governor to oppose Governor Sigler."

The Port Huron attorney, who commutes daily between the state capital and his home in Port Huron, has not indicated whom he would favor for Republican leadership.

Lieut. Governor Eugene C. Keyes, in the meanwhile, is circulating petitions for both governor and lieutenant governor. He says he won't make up his mind until the July 20 deadline for nominating petitions.

State Treasurer D. Hale Brake of Stanton is unhappy over the Philadelphia outcome. He also differed recently with Governor Sigler over the proposed constitutional reforms. Asked about his intentions of running for governor, Brake told a Lansing newspaper reporter: "I have no intention of running. But I wouldn't tie myself up with any flat prediction about being, or not being, a candidate for any office at this time."

Many Attend 50th Anniversary of F.W. Baptist Church

Several Former Members Take Part in Program Presented on July 4

The 50th anniversary of the laying of the first cornerstone of the Novesta Free Will Baptist Church was celebrated on Sunday, July 4, by a large number of people who enjoyed the three services of the day.

Following the Sunday School session, the morning message was given by Elwood B. Braunbeck of Binghamton, N. Y., who spoke on the subject, "Having Lost Our First Love." Devotions were conducted by Donald Marcum of Gordon College, Boston, Mass. One hundred enjoyed a potluck dinner at noon.

The church was filled to capacity for the afternoon program which was more or less informal. The program was presented by people from other localities who were formerly attendants of the church. Included in this group were Archie Carrol of Flint, Rev. Mr. Burgess of Imlay City, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Curtis of Caro, Mrs. White of Hemans, Clark Courless of the Detroit Bible Institute, Mrs. Roy Courless of Caro, John Hicks of Hemans, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Montague of Caro, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pollard of Cass City.

The "used to be" Novesta quartet assisted by some of a younger generation presented several selections.

A brief history of the church was read by the church clerk. Five who attended the service—Robt. Brown of Caro, Mrs. White of Decker, Mrs. Celia Palmater and Mrs. Geo. Youngs of Cass City and Mrs. C. R. Montague of Detroit—have all passed the 80th milestone of life and all are enjoying good health.

Elwood B. Braunbeck of Binghamton, N. Y., showed pictures in the evening of the Bible School that he and his wife are attending, followed by a picture of "The Prodigal Son."

The program committee are grateful to everyone who had any part in making the event a pleasant one and especially E. W. Douglas for his tent and chairs.

Farm Bureau to Sponsor Celebration

July 16 is the date of the farmers' home-coming picnic at the Caro fairgrounds, sponsored by the Tuscola County Farm Bureau. Governor Kim Sigler will speak on "The Farmers' Part in Good Government" at 2:00 p. m.

Governor Kim Sigler.

The program of events will start in the morning with an old style buggy parade, some floats, and riding ponies and burros. The Boots and Saddle Club will also ride in the parade. Children's contests will follow and then time will be given for a potluck dinner on the grounds. Tables will be provided. Horseshoe pitching and more children's games will follow the dinner.

Following the Governor's address a softball game will be played and a trailer backing contest will be held, with several additional games. The second big feature of the afternoon will be the horse pulling contest.

There will be a complete line of farm machinery and feeds, seeds and fertilizer, milk coolers, milking machines and cow stanchions on display.

Farmer Blames
Loss of His Arm
On Baler Company

Baler Company says Warnings and Safeguard Measures are Issued But Not Heeded

MONROE, WIS.—Clarence Yum, New Glarus farmer, who lost his right arm in a rotary hay baler, was awarded $36,500 in a suit against the manufacturer but an appeal against the verdict is almost certain.

The baler, a one man operation, rolls hay or straw into a round, compact bale. An eight foot conveyor platform carries windrowed hay into a series of fast moving metal rolls. The hay is rolled up like a carpet and is tied by twine which feeds into the machine. The roll is ejected when it reaches the correct size.

Testimony in the Yum case showed that Yum had encountered trouble with the twine when the machine ran over a thin part of the field and little hay fed into the baler. He left the power on between tractor and baler, got off the tractor and put one foot on the conveyor apron.

He tossed a handful of hay into the rollers. The front rollers, moving at six feet a second, caught his fingers. In a flash his arm had been crushed.

Atty. Edward T. O'Neal of Fond du Lac, counsel for Yum, charged the company with negligence.

"There was omission of safety devices that would have prevented the accident. More, there should have been automatic twine equipment so that the operator would not have to leave the tractor seat."

Yum was warned. The jury agreed, finding that the firm was negligent for having no automatic twine feeder, no "quick stop" apparatus and no protective shield on the rolls of the machine.

Evidence presented by the manufacturer showed that Yum was told how to operate the machine. It was owned by John Erb, New Glarus farm machinery dealer, who was doing custom work for farmers. Yum worked for him and had been warned of the machine's dangers.

A standard safety sign on the machine said: "Never step on machine when in operation."

Company instructions warned: "Never attempt to feed twine under the press roll by hand. If the twine is not fed under the press by the material, throw a small amount of hay at a time to start under the press roll."

Company attorneys declared that the rolls "presented an obvious danger . . . (and) the machine is perfectly safe when the operator does what he is told."

Suits As Old As Power. Engineers testified that an automatic twine feeder, such as cited by the jury, had not been designed. They said they were doubtful that one could be superior to the feeder in use on the machine. They contended that the baler is accident-proof when an operator stands on the ground to toss in the hay.

The present suit is only one of many in which farm machinery operators have been charged with negligence in designing their equipment. The lawsuits started almost as soon as power farming started. Many years ago a farm tractor manufacturer finally changed gear design in the machine after he had been flooded with claims for deaths and injuries. The old gears had caused the tractors to tip over when front wheels hit a bump.

Corn shredders and ensilage cutters have been the subject of many suits. They are the most hazardous machines on the farm. Testimony has shown that no matter how many safeguards are on them, farmers still disregard flashing blades and grab an ear of corn to untangle a jam.

New Jersey Owner Builds "Atom-Bombproof" House

LAKEWOOD, N. J. — Clarence Booth, Lakewood business man, is digging into a hill to build an underground residence that he says will be virtually "atom bombproof." The squat building, one floor above and one below the earth, is being reinforced with thousands of tons of concrete and steel.

The 54-year-old inventor-owner of a machine shop, who designed precision parts for the army and navy during the last war, is deadly serious about the future. He honestly believes he may be the sole survivor should this area be hit in an atom-bomb attack.

Booth is building his refuge 287 feet above sea level, highest in this area, and in such a manner that atomic bomb blast waves would wash across the top without causing injury to the building or its inhabitants, he explained. Glass-like tile has been installed as insulation against radioactivity, and the structure has an airtight locking-door system.

The building will be one solid block with a slanting roof to collect rain for storage in an underground tank as a water supply. An electric dynamo has been installed in the substructure to yield current for heating and cooking in emergencies.

Bank's Burglar Alarm Cries Wolf Too Often; Police Moan

HOLLISTER, CALIF. — The burglar alarm at the local Bank of America branch has gone off so many times lately — because of short circuits — that Hollister's police mention it in the same breath with the old "cry wolf" fable. Lest any itinerant safe-blowers get the wrong idea, Chief of Police Roy McPhail has told his policemen publicly that they're still to head for the bank on the double when the alarm sounds, even if it's just to call bank officials to "turn the thing off."

Drunkometer Installed

A drunkometer, a chemical device registering alcoholic content in the blood, has been set up on the bay bridge at San Francisco for testing the sobriety of drivers. Drivers suspected of being drunk are given a balloon to blow up and the air in the balloon is then forced through the machine to determine the amount of alcohol in the blood. If the meter registers over .15 of 1 per cent—the equivalent of more than six ounces of whiskey or six bottles of beer—the man is too drunk to drive.

Cradle of Semitic Literature

The kingdom of Ugarit—which was destroyed by fire and disappeared some 13 centuries before the beginning of the Christian era—produced the oldest known Semitic literature from the Mediterranean region of the Near East, preceding about 1,000 years the flourish of the Old Testament writings. It was located adjacent to Palestine and Phoenicia, in what is now northern Syria, on the coast of the Mediterranean opposite Cyprus.

Blind Section Hand Uses Wife's Eyes To 'See' His WorkYoung Woman Began Working On The Railroad During The War Period

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Mary Alonge, who stands over five feet tall in men's work shoes, admits that her job as a section hand with her blind husband is the best work she's ever had.

A broad grin lights up Mary's round, smudged face as she tells about her work of cleaning out box cars at the Rock Island dump yards here. Shoveling dirt, unloading whatever debris has accumulated in the cars, wielding a pick in cold weather to loosen frozen ground, all are part of an eight hour daily shift for Mary, who's been employed here for five years.

Working constantly beside the young woman is her husband, Joe, tall, slender and dark, who needs her with him because of failing eyesight. Physicians who have examined Joe have given no hope that his sight will ever be improved.

"If he could see better, he would be doing something else. Well, we both work," commented Mary.

Since a railroad yard isn't exactly the place for frills, this stocky woman wears men's overalls, a leather jacket and an old wool scarf tied around her head.

Mary began her job during the war, when all the railroads, desperate for help, first began hiring women as laborers. Her husband, who had been rejected by the army because of his almost sightless eyes, was employed at the yard doing piecework. One day Joe's boss came around and asked him if his wife wanted to work.

Mary went down the next day and "never quit." There were about 40 women in the yards then, cleaning tracks and doing other labor formerly done by men. Most would quit or lay off when cold weather came along. Today, only one other female worker, a switch oiler, is still there.

Mary and Joe each earn 94 cents an hour, which brings their week's income to $90.24. And they are saving as much as they are able—what with doctor's bills and increased prices—so they can buy a little house. They have long dreamed of it.

Money Grows On Bushes, Not Trees, This Woman Discovers

BICKNELL, IND.—Mrs. Oscar Finkle often heard the sarcastic phrase, "Do you think money grows on trees?" but she never thought she'd see the day when she could truthfully answer, "No, it grows on bushes."

Walking home from the grocery she spotted a $20 bill on a bush. Amazed, she started picking and soon had $35. But Mrs. Finkle didn't keep the money.

It was part of a cached nest egg which a neighbor buried under a flower pot for a vacation trip. The wind blew the bills away and they caught on the bush.

Girl's Plea To Marry Slayer Saves Him From Death Chair

NASHVILLE, TENN.—A 20-year-old girl who pleaded for permission to marry a killer before he went to the electric chair saved her sweet-heart's life.

Gov. Jim McCondy commuted the death sentence of Daniel Budzynski, 19, to 99 years of imprisonment. But he sternly disapproved a marriage between the convict and Jeanne Lucas, a Pittsburgh Sunday School teacher.

Miss Lucas was undismayed. "There will still be a wedding," she said.

Budzynski was to have died in the electric chair with Richard Reilly, trigger-man in a holdup in which a Beale street merchant was killed in Memphis in 1946. Reilly still faces the chair but McCord is considering his case.

Miss Lucas showed up in Nashville accompanied by Henrietta Budzynski, Daniel's sister. They borrowed $300 from a Pittsburgh grocer to come here and make a desperate plea for Budzynski's life or, failing that, obtain permission for Miss Lucas to marry him before he went to the chair.

Italians Claim Depth Record For New Midget Submarine

MILAN, ITALY.—A midget submarine designed by Pietro Vassena reached a depth of 1,329 feet in Lake Como, a son of the inventor said. It was believed no crew was aboard.

The inventor said the previous record depth for a submarine was 453 feet. The son said his father had given no details of the test. The submarine is called the Vassena C3.

The sub with Vassena and another man aboard reached a depth of 771 feet. The submarine is 25 feet in length. It was designed to go to a depth of 2,625 feet.

Road Directions

A TRUCK driver, in a hurry to get to his destination, missed a turn in the road. He ran across a farmer's yard and straight into the kitchen of the house, where the farmer's wife was cooking a meal. She looked up briefly, then nonchalantly went on stirring the stew on the stove. The truck driver, somewhat confused and embarrassed, managed to blurt out:

"Can you tell me how to get to Hagerstown?"

"Yes," answered the woman calmly, "straight past the dining room table, then turn right beyond the piano."

Perjury Deluge

In a certain mid-western court a man was suing the local traction company for injuries allegedly received in a streetcar accident. The truth of the matter was that he had actually received his bruises when his auto collided with a telegraph post. And this had happened a full mile from the streetcar line.

The plaintiff's witnesses swore to the facts of the accident, and things were going very nicely for him, when one of their number was suddenly beset with an attack of conscience and during a recess repaired to the judge's chambers and confessed to the frame-up.

The judge rushed back into the courtroom with fire in his eye, determined to make an immediate public revelation of the perjurers. But he was brought up short in his resolution when the traction company's attorney suddenly produced three witnesses prepared to swear that the plaintiff was drunk when he boarded the streetcar.

OPPOSITES REPEL

Easygoing, indifferently educated Sam Jenkins married a school teacher, a precise, extremely erudite woman of decided opinions, and it was soon evident that they would never hit it off very well together. "I guess," commented one friend of the unfortunate Sam, "that you are overcome by your wife's powers of diction."

"Not at all, not at all," rejoined Sam. "What's got me licked is her almighty power of contradiction."

YOU CAN'T WIN

The National league's redheaded "Dusty" Boggess injected sound reasoning into his profession during an exhibition game. A batter who was wearing glasses became somewhat annoyed at the way Boggess was calling strikes on him, and when the count had reached two and nothing he removed his glasses and offered them to the umpire.

Boggess gratefully accepted the glasses and adjusted them to his eyes. On the next pitch, he belted: "Strike three—you're out!"

Later he admitted frankly: "I couldn't see the ball with the batter's glasses on, so I concluded that he couldn't see it with his glasses off."

Little Archie was served a variety of pie which he found most delectable.

"What kind of pie is that?" he asked his mother.

"Why, that's lemon meringue pie," his mother replied.

The youngster went next door to tell his friend, Chester, about it. In a little while he returned.

"Mother," he said, "what did you say is the pie's middle name?"

Mosquito Fighters

War-time research has produced a host of new and highly potent insecticides for mosquito control, many of them actually or potentially dangerous to man and other forms of life, and most of them inadequately tested. Before these powerful chemicals are used they should be carefully studied by research workers to determine whether they are safe to use, in the opinion of Dr. W. H. Martin, of Rutgers university.

Cumulus Clouds

Cumulus clouds, rounded white masses which often resemble a flock of sheep drifting across the sky, are usually a sign of good weather. But during the warmer part of the year and most of the time in the tropics, cumulus may sometimes build up into great towers of cloud which become cumulonimbus, or thunderheads, discharging showers of rain and sometimes hail.

Effective Weed Killer

Chemical known as 2, 4-D has become our most important chemical herbicide. It has already changed the farmer's method of dealing with weeds. It is highly selective; does not kill all plants, and is most effective, generally on broad-leaved ones. This enables one to kill weeds in lawns or pastures, also in certain field crops without hurting grass or crops.

Driveways on Farms

Correctly planned farm driveway is essential to the safety of the farm family. Each year among farm people more than one-third of the accident victims result from motor-vehicle mishaps. The driveway is a serious hazard on many farms, and it is important to make it as safe as possible.

OLIVER TO START SECOND CENTURY WITH NEW TRACTOR LINE

On June 30 the Oliver Corporation of Chicago marked the beginning of a second century of service to American agriculture with a completely new fleet of farm tractors of advanced design and new features. At the centennial celebration held in Battle Creek, farm and business leaders, Oliver dealers and distributors, Oliver executives and government officials participated in a review of the organization's 100 years of activity and witnessed the unveiling of the new tractor fleet.

The new Oliver fleet includes tractors with gasoline, diesel and distillate burning engines. The new tractors will be made in Row Crop, Standard, High Clearance and Industrial types. The new models shown at the centennial celebration were known as the "66", "77" and "88", and offer an interesting comparison to the old 1903 Model Hart Parr which was brought to Battle Creek from the Museum of Science and Industry for the occasion.

Among the many features of the new tractor line is an independent running power take-off. For the first time in any American-built tractor, the operator will have full power at the take-off independent of the ground speed. This is said to be a decided advantage in combining, baling, and spraying operations, for example. With the new Oliver tractors it will be possible to stop at given points throughout the orchard for a sufficient time to spray a given area and move to the next stop, with the independent running power take-off furnishing power at all times.

While the new, Oliver-designed independent engine power take-off will have many obvious advantages for combine, corn picking and field ensilage harvesting operations, harvesters will hail it as the solution to rear mounted windrow harvesting where tractor is driven in reverse. The new Oliver will permit stopping without interrupting the flow of power to the driven machine. Since the driven machine will continue to operate, time, the most critical element in the harvest of any produce, will be saved.

Stupendous Pains Give Hollywood Colossal Headache

Screen Actors' Guild Estimates That Half of 8,000 Members Are Unemployed

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—Beset by dwindling foreign markets, declining receipts at home box offices and uncertainty as to how the supreme court will rule in a federal action to compel the studios to dispose of their theater outlets, Hollywood today has something to cry about.

The disclosures of Communist activity in Hollywood and the progress made by television are contributing to the state of jitters prevalent throughout the movie industry—from top producers down to janitors.

During the prosperous war years major studios were averaging 50 productions annually. The average now is between 25 and 30 and many old films are being reissued to pad exhibition schedules.

Employment of technicians, part and full time, is off 30 per cent from a peak of 18,000.

Studio ledgers were deep in black figures for 1947, the 125 million dollar net profit being one of the biggest ever recorded in one year. And favorable dividends on film shares thus far in 1948 are a reflection of 1947's earnings. But these current dividends are illusory as far as the current state of the industry is concerned, and a sharp drop in 1948 profit figures seems inevitable. The effect of the loss of the British and other European markets will not be shown until this year's bookkeeping is completed.

Europe Shows Hostility

The major studios have usually counted on breaking even by their film showings in the United States and reaping most of their profits from exhibitions abroad.

But when the British insisted on a 75 per cent tax on profits of American movies shown in England—a virtually confiscatory levy—Hollywood decided to ship no more films to that country. Continental countries, such as France and Belgium, have also shown hostility toward American pictures, amounting in some instances to boycotts. And most of the market in Russia's vassal states has been lost, those Soviet satellites specifically banning films featuring certain stars because those stars are unfriendly toward the Communist party line.

The movie theatre box office take is off between 15 and 25 per cent in this country as compared to a year ago.

Engineers "Shoot" Chickens At Airplane Windshields

WASHINGTON.—Jet-propelled chickens are being used by the Civil Aeronautics administration in experiments to develop airplanes which can collide with a bird without suffering serious damage, CAA officials revealed.

CAA engineers have developed an air gun which "shoots" chickens at aircraft windshields, landing lights, and other vital exposed parts. The tests seek to develop windshields and landing light lenses which will not break when a duck or a gull strikes a plane in flight.

The CAA has completed a survey which shows that the scheduled airlines on a year-around average can be expected to collide in flight with about eight birds a week.

"However, several unexplained fatal crashes involving commercial aircraft have occurred in which this cause was suspected. Numerous records of fatalities and aircraft crashes resulting from bird collisions exist in military aircraft operations."

The tests with the jet-propelled chickens are being financed by the aircraft manufacturers, according to the CAA. The chickens are "electrocuted," put in a flimsy bag, loaded in the air gun, and "fired" at the airplane at flying velocities.

Businessman Owes Uncle Sam Seven Million In Old Taxes

BALTIMORE, MD.—An internal revenue agent called on a businessman and said: "You owe the government seven million dollars. Have you got it?"

Hyman H. Klein's answer was "no."

A short time later $5,581,201 in tax liens were filed against Klein for 1944, 1945 and 1946 income taxes; $492,471 against Klein's wife, Gertrude, for the same years, and $1,040,304 against H. Harvey Co., Ltd., a liquor importing firm of which Klein is president, for excess profit and income taxes for 1945 and 1946.

"Bug Catchers" Unsuccessful
Mechanical "bug catchers" do not catch enough of the right kind of insects to do any good in control of cotton insect pests, according to an entomologist, who reports that the machines collected large numbers of insects but the many beneficial insects offset the good that should have resulted from collection of injurious species.

SHORT STORY

Call Of the Road

By I. DE LA TORRE

HIS sneakers raising puffs of dust, Billy raced down the path to the lake. Now he stopped, snatched an overhanging branch and clung to it, gasping for breath. After a backward glance satisfied him that the little white schoolhouse no longer showed through the trees, he jerked up his black trousers and shuffled on.

"School!" he mumbled to himself. "I'm sick of it! And if Ma puts on any more crying acts when I talk about quitting, it just ain't going to do her any good. I could fake my age and join the Navy to see the— Nah! too much orders to take. Maybe I'll just drift around, free like a kite."

A thin column of smoke rising from the clearing caught his eye.

"Fanny time for anybody to have a fire on the beach," he told himself and dashed across. The two men crouching over the fire turned around as Billy approached. Both wore shabby clothes, and their faces looked as if untouched by water or razor for weeks.

"You — you tramps?" Billy blurted.

The two men looked at each other and the one sitting on an overturned lard can answered.

"Yeah, we're burns. What you doin' here? Ain't yuh supposed to be in school?"

"Sure. Just taking a vacation today," and Billy grinned, pleased with his wit.

The big man who had just spoken picked up a twig, snapped it and threw it on the fire.

"Hey, Joe," he grunted to his companion, "what yuh say dink kid joins up wid us?" He put his hand on the boy's shoulder.

"You mean go around tramping with you?" Billy broke in.

"Yuh know how tuh ride rails, kid?" Joe inquired.

"Sure — sure I do," Billy wasn't as certain as he sounded, but from what he had seen of "riding the rods" in the movies it looked easy enough.

The first tramp picked up a rusty can and with the aid of a stick propped it in the center of the crackling twigs. He was still poking it into position as he drawled out, "Hey, Joe. Member Horsey Sinder? Just heard other day he lost his leg ridin' onnah Santa Fe. Trackman followed up his blood fer ten miles."

"Mike, wouldjah ast dah kid tuh gimme his shoes? Mine's ain't got 'nuf sole on 'em tuh grind up fer chewin' tobacco."

"Mine?" Billy cried. He held one foot forward for them to see. "These are my only school shoes and I—"

"Yeah — yours," Mike snarled. "Yuh ain't goin' tuh school no more, is yuh?" He started to stand up but Joe motioned him down. "Aw, lettem have 'em. He'll be wearin' noospapers 'round his feet soon 'nuf. We got 'nother forty below

"You mean go around tramping with you?" the boy asked the man.

winter of las' year an' no doubt dah remains of muf toes'll get frozen off."

MIKE grinned broadly and picked up his stick to poke the can. "Chow's on!" he called to Joe.

Billy leaned over and peered into the can. "What—what is it?" he stammered.

"Stewed pig tails," Mike drawled. "Ain't often we got such luck as tuh get such good eat'n as that, do we Joe?"

"Yeah, 'member dat time we couldn't get nuffin but fish heads otha dah garbage palls? Musta been time wasn't much meat 'round."

"Here, kid," Mike was proudly holding up the can. "New members foist. Gobble it down when it's still good'n hot, boy."

"No — no thanks. I—I—" Billy's lips clenched together and his hands went instinctively over his mouth. He shook his head and fled.

Mike dropped the can, threw back his head and laughed until he sank to the ground exhausted. His companion wiped a laugh-tear away.

"What did you do, Mike?" he panted. "Broil our worms?"

Mike nodded. "The fishing was getting terrible, anyway." He rose wearily off the ground. "Come on, let's look for the canoe and start home. And please remember, dear brother, that it's your turn to take mother to a fish dinner at the Seafood Grotto."

To all these rumors Governor Sigler is unperturbed.

"The people elect the lieutenant governor," he said, following his return from Philadelphia. "If they elect Keyes I'll try to get along with him as well as any human being."

"My big problem is that a part of the administrative board wants to be governor and use every means to advance their own political ambitions."

Black, Keyes and Brake are members of the administrative board.

Sigler said he thought Black should "spend more time helping to get things done than in popping off to anyone who will listen."

One thing is sure: "Gene" Black doesn't give a whoop what happens to him politically. He finds life at the state capital very distasteful.

Following the 1946 election, he sought to get an expense account for room and board at Lansing, maintaining that such was due him under an ancient statute.

When Auditor General Muri Aten refused to honor the claim, he promptly began the daily trek via a state-owned automobile from Port Huron and Lansing. His 1947 legal practice at Port Huron was lucrative.

He feuded with Lansing newspaper correspondents over release of public information and was spanked publicly by Governor Sigler.

He recently charged that Michigan automobile dealers were in cahoots with the state Republican command, contributing huge sums of money for the 1948 campaign.

All of this has been irritating to the Republican state central committee and to Governor Sigler. It is quite unorthodox for the attorney general of a reform administration to hint boldly of finagling in high places. Black has done just that.

Governor Sigler told Associated Press managing editors at Higgins Lake that he refuses "to bring himself down" to the level of his feuding colleague, Mr. Black.

"Mr. Black is a nice fellow personally," said Sigler. "But he has a peculiar complex. He has swung in many directions."

"I do not feel the same way Black does. Should I criticize him publicly?"

Whether Sigler does or does not, "Gene" Black is very much in the news.

Belts Will Tighten

U. S. agriculture department's American will eat in 1948 as compared with last year: Meat—143-146 pounds against 154 pounds; fresh fruit—143 pound against 146 pounds; vegetables—257 pounds against 250 pounds; sugar—100 pounds against 96.5 pounds; milk and cream—386 pounds against 398 pounds.

Corpuscle or Electron?

Back in the 1890's the physicists were arguing heatedly over whether it should be "corpuscle" or "electron" for the smallest particle of negative electricity, also a vital component of the atom itself. Dr. G. Johnston Stoney, Irish mathematician, finally won the decision. Hence, modern-day electron, electronics and electronic age.

Glacier national park, on the line between the United States and Canada, is one of the greatest public preserves in the world. It has an area of approximately 1,500 square miles.

Crow Repellent

Pop corn is injured seriously by treating it with crow repellent. Experiments on pop corn by the University of New Hampshire extension service showed a difference of between 95 per cent germination with no treatment and about 65 per cent germination in seed treated with crow repellent. On the other hand, with sweet corn the results were just the opposite. In many cases, the treated corn germinated from 5 to 10 per cent higher than the untreated corn. In other words, the crow repellent actually protected the corn seed from injurious soil fungi.

Chemical Research in USSR

Chemical research in progress in the USSR now is influenced not only by that country's immediate needs, but also by large scale projects of long duration in which traditions of the Russian school of chemistry play an important role. Various inducements, such as honors, prizes and contests are being widely employed among Russian technologists and scientists to aid in the industrial program of development.

Pruning Blueberries

It costs from $100 to $150 a year to keep an acre of blueberries pruned properly if the labor must be hired for the job. Pruning is important because the berries grow on the previous season's wood and some of the old wood must be cut out to get a good crop of new vigorous shoots. Cutting away the old wood allows the bush to produce bigger berries.

Washing All-Nylons

Any all-nylon fabric may be washed if the finishing materials, dyes and trimmings, will withstand laundering. If in doubt, test an inconspicuous part of the item such as a hem for color and finishing fastness. Warm sudsy water should be used. Garment should be rinsed thoroughly and hung up away from contact with hot radiators or pipes.

Cutting Sericea

Many farmers wait too long to cut sericea for hay. For best results, it should be cut when 10 to 12 inches high. After this, sericea becomes tough and woody and the leaves shatter badly.

Brooder Light For Chicks

One electric light placed either in the brooder house or under the chick brooder hover will cut out a lot of the crowding that kills many small chicks each year. The light tends to keep the chickens from piling up when they get too hot or too cold, or are frightened. A 15- to 25-watt bulb is all that is needed. If the chickens do not pick at each other too much one ordinary bulb is enough. If there is cannibalism, use a red bulb of a slightly larger size instead of the clear bulb.

Slight Danger Noted In DDT Dusted Corn

Tests of Silage Show Minute Trace in Milk

Farmers are being told to use DDT dust or spray for control of European corn borer. This raises a question. Can corn dusted or sprayed with DDT be used for silage for beef or dairy cattle without danger to the animals, or to people who use the milk?

Tests in Wisconsin showed there was a trace of DDT in the milk of dairy cows fed silage made from canning factory pea vines which had been dusted with DDT. The amount of DDT was so minute, however, that it was not considered dangerous.

On corn, an application of 30 pounds of dust (containing 5 per cent DDT) per acre might amount to two ounces of DDT per ton of silage; that is, if all the dust stayed on the corn, which is extremely unlikely. Even that much would result in only about a gram of DDT daily in the ration of a cow or steer.

DDT toxicity studies at a private research farm indicate no danger to animals from considerably larger amounts. Even so, if any farmer fears a trace of DDT in milk from silage made from sprayed or dusted corn, he can feed the silage to steers, heifers or dry cows.

Twice-Day Record

With a record-smashing total of 1,113.8 pounds of butterfat, Crestview Totilla Susan, purebred Holstein dairy cow owned by Lakefield Farms, Clarkston, Mich., has established a new all-time U. S. butterfat figure for cows being milked twice daily. "Susan" produced close to 1,400 pounds of table butter during the year.

Herds and Flocks

Fall pigs have advantages over spring litters because they are farrowed under more favorable conditions. Sows and gilts have been on summer pasture soaking up sunshine during pregnancy. Iowa State college swine specialists say fall pigs usually come stronger and more pigs are saved.

Turkey raisers are being advised now not to put baking soda or salt in drinking water for poult, because use of these in excessive amounts causes a condition known as "water belly."

Burn the carcass of every animal that dies of anthrax. Don't open the carcass. Soak it with kerosene, cover it with a load of cobs or straw, put a load of manure over them and set fire to the pile. If possible, burn anthrax carcasses right where the animal dies.

Castrate pigs any time after they are a week old. After castration, keep them on clean grass pasture where there are no mudholes, to reduce danger of lockjaw infection.

Caution Urged In Feeding Salt to Poultry Flock

Extra salt will control cannibalism for a short time after it is added to the ration of chickens, according to Pennsylvania State college. Usual amount is two teaspoons per gallon of drinking water. Salt should be fed only long enough to stop cannibalizing, except the small amount contained in the mash. Feeding large quantities actually may prove harmful.

Given Legs, She Walks
Hunting for a House

CHICAGO.—Betty Jean Lampe, who received $3,000 in donations from well-wishers and underwent a series of operations so she could wear artificial legs, is using those legs in earnest these days—walking the streets looking for an apartment for herself and her husband.

The pretty young woman, married five months ago to William Haglund, illustrator and cartoonist, has spent her married life with relatives and has been searching the city for "a place of our own."

The 22-year-old bride, born without feet, underwent several operations a year ago to enable her to wear artificial legs. Her savings were soon exhausted, but newspaper stories of her plight brought donations of $3,000.

Home Accidents in 1947
For the first time in recent years, motor vehicles were deposed in 1947 as the champion accident killer. National Safety council figures show home accidents took 33,500 lives, well ahead of the traffic toll of 32,000.

There'll be no 10 o'clock shadows at Briggs Stadium this season. The world's most modern lighting system brings night baseball to Detroit—the kind of lighting you'd expect in the finest ball park in America.

Bright enough for a batter... yet free from the glare that can cause an outfielder to lose a high fly.

In planning the Stadium's new lighting, engineers worked a double play to insure dependable illumination. In addition to the underground cables carrying electricity to the eight light towers, a standby system of overhead wiring has also been installed.

It's another example of how electricity can be almost as effective—and almost as reliable—as the sun itself.

BRIGGS STADIUM LIGHTING FACTS

- The Stadium's lighting plant includes 1328 1500-watt and 58 1000-watt floodlamp bulbs.
- Wrigley Field in Chicago is now the only major ball park in the country without lighting facilities.
- Tigers have 14 night games scheduled as follows: June 15, July 30 (Athletics); June 18, July 27 (Red Sox); June 25, Aug. 3 (Yankees); June 22, Aug. 6 (Senators); June 30, Aug. 9 (Indians); July 7, Aug. 20 (Browns); July 9, Aug. 17 (Cubs).

Americans Fail to Understand European Recovery Program "Care" Director Claims

"The people of the United States do not understand the function of the Marshall Plan," Paul Comly French, executive director of CARE, told a news conference in New York City recently.

"There is widespread belief that the Economic Cooperation Administration program just passed by Congress will immediately solve all Europe's troubles. Nothing is further from the truth. ECA's long-range program for economic rehabilitation will not mean more food on family tables for from eighteen months to two years.

"Both Secretary of State Marshall and Paul G. Hoffman have made it clear that the people of Europe cannot wait for their economies to be rehabilitated. They need help now, which can be furnished only through American voluntary agencies, and through CARE.

"There is another misconception about the improved European grain crops this year," French explained. "But these improved crops will not put increased rations on the tables of hungry Europeans. They will be used largely to maintain current rations."

"The United States is currently shipping foodstuffs to Europe financed by ECA. Again, these shipments will be used by the recipient governments to maintain rations. They will be distributed through the regular channels, and will require the regular number of ration coupons. The fight this year is to see that rations do not fall even lower. Both improved crops and ECA financed food shipments are maintaining those rations.

"European families and institutions continue to rely upon their friends in America to provide supplementary food. Recognizing this, the ECA has just announced reduction in international parcel post rates to stimulate shipment of relief packages, and, in that announcement, pointed out that packages stockpiled in Europe by CARE, the government-approved, non-profit organization, while not affected by the postal rate reduction, still represent one of the most practical and economical methods of sending relief packages to Europe."

CARE now serves 15 European countries, French said, with food, blanket, woolen, cotton, household linen, knitting wool and baby packages, each of which costs ten dollars, including guaranteed delivery to the recipient selected by the American donor. In two years of operation, the organization has distributed more than five million gift parcels in Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Cyprus, Czechoslovakia, Eire (Ireland), Finland, France, Germany (American, British and French Zones and all of Berlin), Great Britain, (England, Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland), Greece, Hungary, Italy, Netherlands and Poland.

Issues Food Survey to Combat False Optimism

To combat the false optimism, which, he said, has spread in this country, French issued a food and economic survey compiled from on-the-scene reports by CARE's European representatives.

"The National Research Council's Food and Nutrition Board has classified 2,200 calories a day an 'emergency subsistence' diet, 'the minimum needed to prevent serious undernutrition and civil unrest,' he said. "About half the people of Europe do not get 2,200 calories a day. Austria, Bulgaria, Finland, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Germany and Poland are among the countries whose official rations fall short of the emergency subsistence diet.

Piles of trash, discarded machinery or parts of machines and cluttered buildings are all potential causes of accidents that may seriously injure a member of the family or a farm worker. Getting rid of these accident hazards will make the farm both safer and a more efficient place to work.

Hitch-Hiking

Twenty-three states and the District of Columbia have, up to the present time, enacted laws against the practice of soliciting rides from passenger car owners by thumbing or oral pleas. Wild Flower Destruction

In our more populous areas wild flowers are disappearing rapidly. Much of our wild flower destruction is due to advancing civilization, which is beyond our control, but there is one tremendous source of loss that each person can help to minimize, and that is the toll taken by "nature lovers".

Boy Scouts in Conservation

Every year millions of seedlings are planted by Boy Scouts, working with experts. Many conservation agencies—federal, state and volunteer—count upon Boy Scouts and senior scouts to plant hundreds of thousands of young trees every year.

Water Transport of Oil

Transporting oil by water began in the 1880's, when the first Pennsylvania wells began flowing. Oil was moved on flatboats which were steered by poles and floated with the current from the upper reaches of the Allegheny river to the Pittsburgh area. Since then, with the creative dredging of deeper channels, water transport of oil has become an outstanding factor in its distribution.
