Graduation Exercises for Gagetown High School—

Commencement exercises for the 39th class of the Gagetown High School were held in the high school auditorium Friday evening. Their motto was "Tonight we launch, where will we anchor." The class colors were green and yellow. Baskets of spring flowers decorated the stage.

The seniors marching in single file took their places on the stage while Mary Ann Tenzer played the professional. The Right Rev. Msgr. John McCullough, who gave the invocation, was introduced by Supt. F. F. Fairchild and was followed by the salutatorian, Ann Meininger. A song by Joan Sieland and the valedictory were given by Eleanor Schwartz. Miss Alyce M. Matchalt, class adviser, introduced the seniors. The class will be given by Joan Rabideau followed by a selection by the high school quartette, Betty Phelan, Gertrude Schwartz, Joan Fischer and Eleanor Schwartz. The class prophecy was given by Elgin Rasmussen. Awards were presented to Elgin Rasmussen for citizenship and to Betty Phelan for outstanding scholarship.

Dr. D. D. Welsh, president of Alma College, delivered the commencement address. His text was "Whither Bound." In part he said, "There are three main points for further learning and five marks of an educated person. The first mark is the ability to use correctly and precisely your mother tongue; the second mark is possession of refined and gentle manners; third mark, the capacity for reflection; fourth mark, the capacity to learn more; and the fifth mark is power to do. You are now on your own 'whither bound' to make your own living. The world is waiting for you to make your own living. Here are three acts, especially you, boys, ought to remember, learn to do something the world wants done tomorrow. Learn to do your trade before you get a wife and four children. Learn to do your work well. Do not be a second rater, be a winner. To the girls, Whither Bound, to further your learning, to make a living and to make a life, living for principles, not living for yourselves alone but for others. You have to answer these questions, not tonight, but in the future. I hope for this graduation class of 1949, that your parents will be as proud of you twenty years from tonight as they are now.

Diplomas were presented to Eleanor Schwartz, Joan Sieland, Ann Meininger, James Rabideau, Elgin Rasmussen, Betty Phelan, Joan Rabideau and George Wald by Wesley C. Downing, president of the board of education.

The seniors left Sunday morning for Detroit where they will take a boat to Niagara Falls and Buffalo for a four-day trip. Some of them will remain in Detroit visiting friends and relatives for the remainder of the week.

There are 20 boys and girls, ranging in ages from ten to fifteen.

Projects to be taken are dairy calves, chickens, rabbits, crops, gardening, canning, food preparation, flowers and junior leadership. These 20 children are attempting to complete 52 separate projects. They now have the distinction of being one of six clubs in Tuscola County completing their projects 100%. They hope to hold this same record next fall.
