

School Population Increased 12% Here In Last Four Years

Frank Weatherhead to Teach Journalism at M. S. C. for Two Weeks

The number of persons of school age—5 to 19 years—in the Cass City school district, officially known as Elkland District No. 5, has increased 12 per cent in the past four years, according to the school secretary, Mrs. Florence Brown, who has taken the school census in this district since 1937.

In 1946 the number was 417; in 1947, 435; in 1948, 466; and in 1949, 468.

Kindergarten students who have or will attain the age of five years by Nov. 1 will be eligible to enter that grade when school opens next September. Regulations to secure school aid from the state have set the Nov. 1 date. Previous to this year, the local school has deferred the "five-year-old" date to Jan. 1. Kindergarten enrollment the coming year is expected to be higher than that of 1948.

Assisting in the serving of ice cream, cake, sandwiches, tea and coffee were Mrs. Frank LaValley, Mrs. Merrill Birdsell and Mrs. Byron Fox, all of Caro.

The music was furnished by a trio from Snover—Robt. Hunt, Ray Hilborn and Earl Roberts, and a mixed quartet consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hilborn, Mrs. Ivan Bayes and Earl Roberts. The twin granddaughters of the McQueens, Judy and Janice Bayes, also sang two numbers.

Class of '29 Tell Of Their Activities Of Last 20 Years

Reunion Dinner and Program Enjoyed by Classmates and Teachers

A huge plastic cake with electric candles and a background denoting the 20th anniversary decorated the stage of the high school auditorium when members of the Class of '29 gathered here Saturday evening for a reunion. The cake was furnished by Clifton Heller of Howell, a member of the class.

The Golden Rule class of the Evangelical United Brethren Sunday School served a very delicious dinner at seven o'clock at tables made attractive with flowers and favors featuring the '29 and '49 theme.

The invocation was given by Roy Anthes and following the meal, Glenn McCullough acted as program chairman and welcomed the faculty, classmates and guests. The committee in charge of plans for the reunion were introduced. They were Helen Hower, Luverne Battel, Maynard McConkey, Harry Bohnsack, Leslie Lounsbury, Glenn McCullough, Roy Anthes, Ed Greenleaf, and Clark Helwig.

At a short business session in charge of President Fred Brown, the class decided to have a 25th year reunion on the third Saturday of June in 1954 at Cass City, with Clifton Heller as chairman and Virginia Day Bufo as secretary.

Clark Helwig was introduced as master of ceremonies.

Six beautiful baskets of flowers were dedicated in memory of six departed classmates, Warren Schenck, Fern Benkelman, Wesley Young, Marguerite Henry, Harriet Tindale and Marian Livingston. These were presented Sunday morning to their families. Tribute was paid to Harry Bohnsack and Angus McLeod who served our country in World War II.

Members of the faculty and class were called on for short talks concerning their activities in the past 20 years and some memories of school days. Some members that were unable to attend sent letters and these were read as the roll was called.

The faculty members present were H. W. Holmes, Ivan Niergarth, Willis Campbell, Esther Tarnoski McCullough, James Lewis, Geraldine Dykehuizen and Eleanor Bigelow-Heath. Those unable to attend were read as the roll was called.

Oatley to Serve as Program Director At Camp Rotary

Harold Oatley, local high school teacher, left Sunday for Camp Rotary, north of Clare, the summer training center of the Valley Trails Council of Boy Scouts. He will serve as program director of the camp, giving general supervision to the activities planned for several hundred Scouts who will spend a week or more at the lake.

It has been arranged with Central Michigan College of Education for three residence credit courses to be offered at the camp, and President Charles L. Anspach of the college has appointed Mr. Oatley to the summer session faculty to serve as instructor. Many of the young men working on the camp staff are college students from Central, Alma, Michigan State, Wayne and Albion, and the opportunity to earn college credits helps make the post attractive to the type of man needed for effective boy leadership. The courses will be in education and sociology, at the second and third year levels. It is expected that the camp setting will make the courses more valuable than ordinary campus training, since the young men will have many chances to practice the methods and principles they are learning.

Mr. Oatley stated that fourteen Cass City Scouts have already registered to attend Camp Rotary the second week in August, and that he hoped others will be able to join the group before that time. Robt. Mann, junior assistant scoutmaster, and Dick Wallace, senior patrol leader, will lead the campers from Troop 194.

Red Cross Chapter Starts the Swimming Program at Cass City Pool on Friday, July 1

Actually speaking—and what language is more understandable in the good old summertime—the youngsters of Tuscola County will, in the three months ahead, have a safe and happy summer or its opposite, depending on whether or not they have a safe and satisfactory place to swim, under the protection and guidance of trained leaders. It is worth noting that the peace of mind of their parents will also be considerably affected thereby.

Strangely enough, the youngsters of the cities and metropolitan suburban areas stand a better chance, for the most part, of having an aquatically happy summer than do their country cousins. Planned swimming programs and adequate swimming facilities in the form of protected beaches and supervised outdoor and indoor pools are now to be found in or near the cities, while most of the rural and small town youth have only, still, the unsafe swimming hole, pond, or river.

This handicap can be largely overcome, if the rural community pleases, by means of planning and a certain amount of work.

To this end the local chapter of the American Red Cross started its water safety program in 1946, following a survey made in the schools by W. Emerson Scott, who was at that time executive secretary of the chapter.

At that time 6,000 questionnaires

77 Pastoral Changes Made by Detroit Conference

Methodist Membership Increase of 2,341 the Past Year Is Reported

Rev. and Mrs. Howard Watkins returned to Cass City Sunday evening from the Detroit conference of the Methodist Church held in Flint. Mr. Watkins was appointed for his second year as pastor of the local church.

A membership increase of 2,341 during the past year was reported Saturday by the Detroit conference. The boost brought total membership in the six-district conference up to 140,755. The districts are Ann Arbor, Detroit, Flint, Marquette, Port Huron and Saginaw-Bay City.

Total income for the conference during the year was $864,408, it was reported, and the net balance was $10,333.

The conference has gone on record in support of the United Nations but opposed to the North Atlantic security alliance on the ground it increases tension between this country and Russia.

Pastoral assignments for the coming year were made on Sunday, the closing session of the five-day conference. The announcements were made by Bishop Marshall R. Reed. Seventy-seven changes were revealed.

In the Port Huron and Saginaw Bay district in which Upper Thumb churches are located, the following changes were made:

Port Huron District — A. P. Rickard, Algonac; Ralph Winn, Brown City; Walter Mollan, Elkton; E. J. Harris, Kingston; Everett Smith, Lapeer; P. M. Cargo, Marine City; J. P. Pumphrey, Marlette; F. M. AUTO TRAFFIC IS RE-ROUTED TO THE BALL PARK

Andrew Champion, a patient at Pleasant Home Hospital for several weeks, was scheduled to be taken to his home on East Main St. last night (Thursday). It has been requested that traffic to the ball park be made by way of the street directly east of the schoolhouse, or use the street running one block north of Baldy's Sunoco Station and then east to the ball park. Autoists following these directions will help greatly in lessening the noise which would be prevalent in passing the Champion home on East Main St.

Completed and returned to the Red Cross office. Of those who completed the forms, 3,008 of school age could not swim; 1,039 reported they could swim but 871 indicated they wanted to learn to swim better. A very high percentage of those who reported they could swim were youths living in the greater Cass City Community where an outdoor pool has been in operation for several years.

Interest and participation in the Red Cross water safety program has grown year by year. For this reason the chapter board decided to conduct the program again this year.

Classes will start at the Cass City pool next Friday, July 1, under the supervision of Charles Hunt, a certified Red Cross instructor. Classes will be started at North Lake Tuesday, July 5, providing arrangements for use of the dressing rooms there can be completed by that time.

Caro youth interested in enrolling in classes should see the director of the summer recreational program; those of the Mayville area should do likewise there; S. M. Glaza should be consulted in Millington; the summer recreational leader in Vassar should be seen by youth of that area. Persons of the Cass City community may see Mr. Hunt at the pool July 1.

Michigan Mirror

By Gene Alleman.

More than one million people—men, women and children—can't be wrong!

Fishing in Michigan has become "big business". Nearly one-third of the million plus fishing licenses to be issued in 1949 will go to non-resident tourists. Fishing and Michigan are one-and-the-same to several hundred thousand summer travelers.

All of this is timely. Saturday, June 25, opens the traditional bass and pan fish season on lakes otherwise closed to year-round fishing.

This point bears emphasis for the legislature permitted the state conservation department, beginning in 1947, to designate 20 lakes for year-round fishing. The latest lake on the experimental list is Hess lake in Newaygo county. Anglers may fish at any time, summer or winter, for bluegills, sunfish, perch, rock bass and calico bass.

The 1949 legislature weighed evidence submitted by fish management experts and voted to liberalize the rules still further. Effective Sept. 23, the six-inch size limits in pan fish will be removed. The legal limit continues at 25 in any combination per day. The bluegill and sunfish season will be lengthened one month, ending March 31 instead of Feb. 28.

Why this change in thinking on conservation of fish?

Year-round fishing and removal of size limits are complete reversals of the sportsman's traditional attitudes.

The answer is simple. "We have reached that stage in believing that continued stocking of young bass, perch and bluegills is not the answer to better fishing," says F. A. Westerman, chief of the fish and fisheries division, state conservation department.

"Our lakes appear to have a considerable reserve of catchable fish, not taken by present inefficient methods of angling. Our populations of warm-water fish are still not being taxed to their limit to produce. Fishermen can still take more of the crop of warm-water fish, at least of the pan fish."

The idea that fishing can be improved if more fish are removed from the lake is one of those things that confound the sportsman. At first, it doesn't seem to make sense. Then the fish management expert brings in factual proof. Tests show that most lakes have countless thousands of the young game population is so great that fish have trouble growing up to adult size. Stunting follows.

What counts is the availability of food and protective habitat. Brush shelters are placed along the shores of lakes. Trout streams have been improved by planting of 50,000 white and red pine, mountain ash, hawthorne, rose multiflora and willow. These were planted primarily to provide shade and to prevent erosion. This work is financed by 40 cents out of fisherman's licenses fee.

To provide access to fishing lakes the state has acquired nearly 380 fishing sites, 261 on lakes and 118 on streams. Some land was obtained due to tax reversion; others were purchased from private owners.

Because fish ladders at dams have not proved to be entirely satisfactory, the department has transferred thousands of walleyed pike and rainbows to power dam ponds above.

Dams to provide trout ponds have been built in southern Michigan at Spring Creek near Pontiac, Sylvan Creek in the Waterloo area, and a tributary to the Dowagiac River near Summerville.

Noxious fish, such as carp, have been removed by netting them in 15 lakes. The waters then were stocked with trout.

While the bass and pan fish prospects are steadily improving, the brook trout continues to present a problem. The pressure is greater than ever, as more fishermen turn to fly casting. Overfishing is depleting the trout population in Michigan streams.

Year around fishing for pan fish, now on a limited and experimental scale, offers the best hope for better fishing in the future.

Michigan lakes contain more pan fish today than 50 years ago. If properly managed, they may continue to attract thousands of summer visitors to Michigan and to provide healthful recreation for Michigan residents.

Hospital Fare in 1873

Hospital patients did not "fare" any too well before 1873, the year that marked the origin of professional nursing in the U. S. According to the American Nurses' association, the diets of the bedridden 75 years ago consisted mainly of tea, whey, and gruel—which the nurses themselves had to make. Today's hospital meals are planned by dietitians and prepared by skilled chefs.

Stain Removal Kit at Home Saves Time, Money Renewing Dresses

By Ertta Haley

JUST HOW MUCH do you know about removing stains? Or, do you just ignore them and hope that the cleaner will get them out of your favorite dress or that the stain on the linen napkin will come out in the wash?

Many stains can be removed rather quickly and easily if you know just what to do when the material is stained. A tragedy can be averted with prompt attention and your favorite dress or linen can be saved.

It's impossible to remember what you should do for all stains, but you can probably remember the common ones and give them prompt attention. Otherwise it's a good idea to clip out the tips I'm giving you, tack them on the kitchen or laundry room wall, or better still, in your stain removal kit, and then you'll know just what to do when the time comes.

A stain removal kit is difficult to assemble, and it will save you many hours of worry over stains and probably prevent some very real losses in clothing and linens. Many of the items given on the list can be purchased from the drugist or even grocer. Others are household items which you already have, but they should be placed in a handy kit where you don't have to search for them.

A large tin box that locks is the ideal kit. Or, use any other durable box which you may have. It should be large enough to hold all the items without their getting jumbled together.

Use These Materials In Your Kit

Here are the items to go in the kit which you probably have at home already: absorbent cloths, white blotting paper, medicine droppers and bowls. You also have ammonia, vinegar, baking soda, French chalk or talcum powder, and borax.

Here are items which you'll probably have to buy for the kit: turpentine, benzene, glycerine, banana oil, acetone or nail polish remover, hydrogen peroxide, carbon tetrachloride or another non-inflammable solvent, and denatured alcohol. This alcohol should be labeled poison and placed out of the children's reach. Also, you will need oxalic acid crystals, which should be labeled poison and kept away from children.

If you can find a good rust remover, place that in the kit along with the other items.

Follow These Directions For Stain Removal

Blood stains: If the fabric is

Be Smart!

In planning lovely costumes for warm days ahead, don't overlook the unusual and rich beauty achieved by color contrasts. The colors in a rock collection, gray, yellow, green and rust, were chosen for their contrast in a handwoven fabric of rayon. The design is deliberately kept simple as the best means of playing up the beauty of the fabric and the contrasting colors. Interwoven threads of lurex give a scintillating life to the colors.

There is always a vacant place for the man who works well.

Slimming Panels

Vera Stewart poses white against black Irish linen for a sharply etched effect in this dress that can be worn in town with dark accessories or to the country club with white bag, shoes and hat. Decidedly slimming are the white panels that add height but not width to the figure. New, too, is the cut-out oat measure with linen top, used for the clever handbag.

white cotton or linen, a washable colored or fine fabric, soak the fresh stain in cold water, then wash in lukewarm suds. For a stubborn stain on cotton or linen, soak in salt water (¼ cup salt to two cups water). Hot water should not be used until at least part of the stain has been removed as it may set it. For a non-washable fabric, use an absorbent first, then sponge with cold water.

Candle wax stains: For all fabrics, scrape off excess wax, then place between blotters and press with hot iron. Sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

Chocolate or Cocoa: For cotton or linen, dip fabric up and down in hot water; wash in hot suds. Bleach any remaining stain with hydrogen peroxide. For washable colored fabric, use lukewarm suds and carbon tetrachloride sponging. For non-washable material, use the solvent.

Coffee or Tea: Pour boiling water from a height through the stain (stretch fabric over a bowl). Bleach with hydrogen peroxide. For fine, but washable fabrics, sponge with warm water, apply glycerine if stain remains, let stand ½ hour and rinse well, then wash in lukewarm water. For non-washable material, sponge with carbon tetrachloride, then apply glycerine (warm), then sponge with warm water.

Remove Cream, Egg

Meat Stains

Cream or Ice Cream: For cottons, linens and washable fabrics, soak or sponge in cold water. Wash in warm suds and rinse well. Non-washable fabrics must be treated with carbon tetrachloride, then sponged with cold water.

Egg or Meat Juices: For washable materials, soak in cold water, then wash in hot or lukewarm suds, depending upon fabric. Use carbon tetrachloride on non-washable materials.

Grass, Grease and Ink Stains Removable

Grass: Rub with fat or cooking oil if cotton or linen, then wash in hot suds. Bleach remaining stain with hydrogen peroxide. For fine fabric, wash in lukewarm suds, treat with dilute alcohol and rinse well. For non-washable fabric, sponge with benzene or dilute alcohol, testing fabric to be certain the chemical will not affect the color of the fabric.

Grease: For cottons and linens, rub stain with soap, then wash in hot suds. If stain remains, sponge with solvent. For washable fine fabrics, sponge with solvent, then wash in lukewarm water. For non-washable material, sponge with solvent, treat with absorbent or place stained part between blotters and press with warm iron.

Ink: Soak in cold water if cotton or linen. Apply vinegar and bleach any remaining stains with oxalic acid solution (two teaspoons crystals to one pint water). Rinse well, alternating with diluted ammonia. Or, soak in soured milk and wash in hot suds. For fine fabrics, use solvent. For non-washable materials, use French chalk or talcum, work into stain and repeat until removed.

By Robert Kitchen

At the end of the last meeting for the summer, 14 boys had been registered for Camp Rotary at Clare. The scouts will leave Cass City the 6th of August and come back the 13th.

The scouts presented a gift of an air mattress to Marshall Sowden, who has been a patient at the University Hospital at Ann Arbor. The freshman class and the scout troop pooled their money to buy the present. The presentation was made by Dick Wallace, who is freshman president and senior patrol leader. This was Marshall's first meeting attended since September, 1948.

There was also a court of honor when Ray Fleenor gave Jack Militzer Second Class rank and merit badges to Marshall Sowden and Robert Fritz.

Mr. McConkey explained to the scouts about their softball schedule. The scouts play on Mondays and Thursdays at 4:30 p. m. Half of the games are played at Cass City.

With the absence of Scoutmaster Harold Oatley this summer, the scout business will be handled by Keith McConkey and Ray Fleenor.

Hold Cooperative Fly Control Program

A cooperative fly control program is being planned for Sanilac County this summer by the Sanilac County Planning Committee and the County Extension Office with the cooperation of Ray James, Michigan State College extension specialist in entomology, according to Albert Hall, county agent.

Every individual is asked to cooperate by doing the following things:

1. Do away with fly breeding places.
2. Get rid of all sewage and garbage.
3. Screen flies out of buildings.
4. Use fly traps to catch them.
5. Use the right insecticide to kill them.

We all know flies are one of our worst summer pests. Ray James points out that flies are continuously being hatched in hot weather and in order to eliminate the fly a continuous program of sanitation, screening and spraying is necessary.

He pointed out that people in all areas must do this in order to rid ourselves of flies.

A future news item will discuss the different types of sprays and dusts to be used in combating flies; how much to use, when and where to use it.

Use of Lime

When it is decided that lime is needed, use two tons of finely ground lime per acre on heavy clay soils and not more than one ton per acre on sandy soils.

For Blood Donors

Milk is an excellent food for blood donors. It contains riboflavin, pyridoxine, and casein which are needed for hemoglobin regeneration.

Melvin R. Vender officiated at a double ring ceremony at seven o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church. The couple spoke their vows in the presence of the immediate families and some close friends.

Preceding the rites, Joseph Horvath, uncle of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white moire taffeta. She wore a fingertip length veil, which was held in place by a tiara of net. Her arm bouquet was of white roses, centered with an orchid corsage.

Miss Cecilia Brown attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore an aqua dress similar to the bride's gown. Her arm bouquet was of

Double Ring Rites Unite Young Couple

At eight o'clock Saturday evening, June 18, in the Immanuel Congregational Church in Oxford, Miss Shirley Louise Roost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin D. Roost, of Oxford and Mr. Keith Jay Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Russell, of Cass City solemnized their marriage with a double ring ceremony. The pastor of the church, Rev. H. B. Johnson, read the rites before a large assemblage of friends and relatives.

To the nuptial strains of organ music provided by Warren Beach of Port Huron, cousin of the groom, the guests were seated in a beautiful setting of all white flowers, white orange blossoms and white peonies predominating. The family pews were marked with large white bows and lighted cathedral candles were placed at the altar and at the back of the church.

Mrs. Warren Beach of Port Huron sang "I Love You Truly," "Because," and "O Promise Me."

To Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus the bride entered on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a rolled collar and a lace inserted neck. The long capped sleeves ended in a finger length point. Tiny satin covered buttons ended at the fitted waist. The full skirt formed a long train and the lace finger-tip veil was heart shaped and topped with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses, red throated lilies and ferns. She wore a matching gold locket and bracelet, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Barbara Kessler of Oxford served as her sister's matron of honor, wearing a floor-length blue taffeta gown with a large bow at the waist in the back. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of sweet peas and carnations and she wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bride.

The bridesmaids were dressed in gowns identical to that of the matron of honor. Miss Doris Roost of Oxford, sister of the bride, wore a rose color gown; Miss Joyce Roost, another sister, chose aqua; and Miss Vera Fellmann, cousin of the bride, was in pink. Their flowers were sweet peas and carnations and they wore pearl necklaces, gifts of the bride.

The bride's little niece, Darleen Kessler, two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kessler, was the flower girl. Her floor-length dress was of fine lace and made of fine lace and an orchid bow was in her blond curls. Little Harold Best, who carried the rings on a square satin pillow, was dressed in a white suit with a black bow tie and black slippers.

Mr. Kenneth Russell of Cass City acted as best man for his brother and the groomsmen were Mr. William Beardsley of Oxford, a friend of the couple. Ushers were Mr. Frederick Darbee of Cass City, brother-in-law of the groom, and Mr. Kenneth Kessler, brother-in-law of the bride. All had white carnations.

The bride's mother and the groom's mother were attired in gowns of flowered navy blue silk with white hats and accessories. Pink carnation corsages adorned their shoulders.

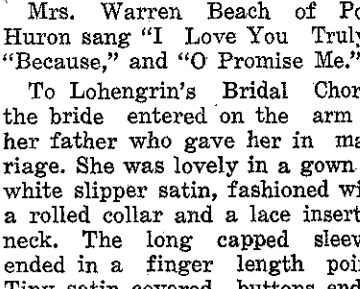

The bride's going-away costume was a green suit with white accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Pythian Castle Hall in Oxford which was beautifully decorated with flowers. Lunch, consisting of coffee, tea, ice cream and cake, was served with Mrs. Margaret Fellmann and Mrs. Jessie Roost of Oxford, aunts of the bride, pouring. Mrs. Carl Becker served the bride's cake and Mrs. Watson Spaven, the groom's cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell left immediately on their honeymoon, touring northern Michigan. Upon their return they will reside on their farm, located one mile west and one and a quarter north of Cass City.

Before her marriage the bride was honored with two showers. One was given by Mrs. Harold Best and Miss Vera Fellmann and another by Mrs. Dick Brown and Mrs. Roy King.

Mrs. Edward Gingrich Died in Bay City

Mrs. Edward Gingrich, 61, died early Monday at her home, 500 Sixth Street, Bay City. Death was caused by coronary thrombosis according to coroner William A. Trathan.

Mrs. Gingrich had lived in Bay City three years after residing near Cass City on a farm for a number of years. She was born in Canada and was a member of the Nazarene Church. She was the daughter of Frank Foetter, of Detroit, and the late Mrs. Catherine Foetter.

She leaves her husband, Edward; three sons: Harold, Roseville, Dale, Cass City, and Raymond at home; one daughter, Mrs. Stanley Endershe, Bad Axe; one brother, LaVerne Foetter, Detroit; four sisters, Mrs. Alma Lotter, Mrs. Pearl Witmer and Mrs. Elmer Schlabach, all of Detroit, and Mrs. Luella Gingrich, Cass City; and six grandchildren.

Marketing Meets Planned for Fruit, Vegetable Raisers

Meetings on problems of marketing Michigan fruit and vegetables are being planned by Michigan State College officials in horticulture and agricultural economics. According to Dr. H. B. Tukey, head of the department of horticulture, these local meetings will consider marketing problems on many crops and dates will be announced by county agricultural agents.

A. B. Love, agricultural economist who leads the extension project in marketing research and consumer education, will head the group of economists discussing the marketing conditions. Horticulturists will discuss and demonstrate packaging, grading and handling methods.

Dr. Tukey says early meetings for strawberry growers showed high interest by producers in their marketing problems. In recent years, grower interest has been predominantly in production with the war needs calling for more. Now producers are facing old problems of surpluses and the call for better marketing methods.

In some vegetable products, researchers find that out of every dollar spent by the consumer, 75 cents goes for handling the product from farm to consumer. That leaves, they say, only 25 cents for the original producer.

"There must be meetings at every cross road of fruit and vegetable growers to study handling and marketing just as carefully as they study better production methods in years when they were pushed for more production," Dr. Tukey commented.

Michigan Foods Good Buys in July

Homemakers who are interested in buying foods that are plentiful and therefore good buys during the month of July will have a number of foods from which to choose.

Cabbage heads the list of plentiful foods collected by the Production and Marketing Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture. Fresh and frozen fish will continue plentiful. Fryers from farm flocks and layers culled from flocks will contribute to the chicken plenty.

Fresh berries are added to the list of plentiful by Michigan State College horticulturists. Cherries, raspberries, blackberries and strawberries will add color and freshness to your July meals. Besides these Michigan fruits, California plums will be plentiful.

Processed fruits in good supply include peaches, mixed fruits and apricots. Honey completes the list.

Eggs, particularly grade B, will be especially plentiful and can be used to good advantage for scrambling and cooking purposes. There will be lots of cottage cheese for your summer salads.

Dried beans and peas and peanut butter will contribute to your protein requirements. Heavy supplies of Irish potatoes and canned corn will be on the vegetable list.

KEEP ALERT FOR NEWCASTLE

Newcastle disease continues to be a menace to the poultry industry according to H. J. Stafeth, head of the department of bacteriology at Michigan State College. He advises poultry raisers to keep informed of the vaccination opportunities and be ready to immunize flocks when local conditions make it advisable.

The disease has been found in most sections of Michigan in widely scattered localities.

State experiment stations and veterinary scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are studying disease prevention and control measures.

Tragic Interlude

TWENTY YEARS ago a certain girl went off on a motor trip with a college friend; she was 19, the boy-friend was 22. Both were living on money sent by self-denying and hardworking parents, month after month, so that the girl and boy might acquire a real education, culture and the benefits of social contacts in a wider world.

The motor trip lasted five days. For those five days, and they weren't by any means days of unclouded happiness, the girl threw away her honor. It seemed fun to register as Mr. and Mrs.; it seemed fun to spend his last $19 of allowance and the $10 she had borrowed from a sorority sister on the delights of little wayside meals and overnights at the picturesque motels of Southern California. A "motel" is an informal one-story hostelry, and at many of them guests are not too closely questioned as to age or relationship.

This girl was a sensitive, well-bred, proud young thing, who came to me a few months after this brief interval ended, half-mad with self-contempt and shame. No, she was not going to have a baby; the escapade hadn't left that scar.

Tortured with Remorse

But she was writhing under the burning misery of knowledge far too old for her 19 years. Knowledge that the boy hadn't taken the affair seriously at all. Knowledge that what she had thought a generous surrender had only been a cheap yielding to his casual importunity. Knowledge that many of her college associates suspected what had occurred, and the nicest of them couldn't help showing that they didn't like it—or her.

When a telegram came from a sick mother this girl returned gladly to her Iowa home. The boy had long since shown his complete indifference and was taking another girl about. Our girl—call her Anne—felt a deepened shame when she realized that he was the sort of boy who might under certain circumstances boast of his conquests.

Well, she went home and became a domestic angel. She saw her mother through a long illness, kept house for an adoring father and two small brothers, filled to the brim her obligations as daughter, sister, friend, and eventually wife and mother. She married with dignity, with position and modest wealth, and with true love. Her husband never has had a suspicion of her early mistake.

Can't Escape Selves

So what? What's the moral? The moral lies in Anne's own heart. Every cheap, dishonest, vulgar careless thing we do in youth is stored away in our consciousness and in our characters. We can't escape ourselves, even though we escape everyone else. Probably the arrogant boy who made love to her 20 years ago hasn't suffered; he was made of coarser clay. All colleges have scores of boys of this type; unscrupulous, attractive, sure of themselves and neither knowing or caring what results from their love affairs.

But Anne is finely constructed; she is sensitive to her fingertips. Her daughters are 16 and 9 now, and there is a son in between, and all their lives their mother has been building their characters with talk of self-control and purity and goodness. And in all these years, back in her own consciousness, has been the knowledge that somewhere in the world there lives a man who knows just how weak and gullible she was when she was a girl.

No man, in the honorable and conscientious beginnings of his business life, likes to remember that when he was in high school, he used to slip his hand into the pockets of coats hanging up in the schoolhouse hall, and take what he found. No man likes to remember the time he lied flatly—and successfully!—about cheating in the finals in his Freshman year.

The chance that got him out of a disgraceful night-club raid, while the other fellows had to face the publicity and scandal of it, isn't anything to be proud of, in later life. These ghosts of past follies and young sins rise to haunt us and to jar our self-respect and sense of security in later years.

This is so of all school-day mistakes. Untruths that got someone else into trouble. Small thefts and forgeries. The abandoning of friends when one might make a safe escape from trouble and leave them behind. Cruelty to a devoted mother.

Never Again

THE little village shop did not seem to be doing very good business, and the customer, who had been chatting with the owner, thought he would make a helpful suggestion.

"What you want to do," he said, "is to advertise."

"Advertise? Not I!" "Why on earth not?" asked the customer. "I did once," came the reply, "and it darned near ruined me."

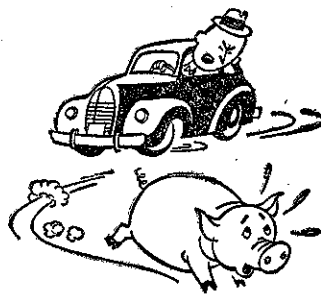

"Ruined you?" gasped the customer. "How on earth was that?"

"Why," responded the shopkeeper, "folks on coming in and buying things until they nearly cleaned me out!"

SHORT STORY

Magic Month

By DYER WILSON

HELEN AND ANDY weren't laughing. They were sitting in metal chairs which were placed at right angles to each other, instead of side by side on the glider, and the glow in their eyes was replaced by anger.

"The trouble is you have no ambition!" Helen was saying as her wide set gray eyes flashed signals. "You act lazy!" The long curls were given a toss as she got to her feet.

Andy got up too. He gave her the one sided smile he'd brought home from war with him and shrugged his heavy shoulders. Andy had blond curls, too—tight to his well shaped head and the merriest of hazel eyes. "You can say that again," he told Helen. "I act lazy, do I?" He thought: Well, that's that and I'll re-enlist and get as far from Hyville as possible.

When he got home the radio was playing five and he wound one leg over the chair beside it. His mother came into the room and said, "aren't you going to look for a job today, son?"

As he worried for an answer the announcer interrupted the program to tell about a soap contest. "Five hundred dollars for first prize," he said, "just tell in twenty-five words why you like Sudzy-Soap best!"

"I'm trying to think up an entry for the contest, Mom," said Andy directing his hazel eyes up and grinning like an imp, "only I'll have to have the wrappers from three bars of the darned soap."

Andy Tyson tried not to understand that she inferred he had wasted too many afternoons. He made great work of wording his entry and addressed the envelope for mailing.

Habit turned his steps into the corner store where the fellows laughed and teased him about his entry. Half angry again he hurried out of the place and tossed the letter into the nearest mailbox.

In the three weeks that went by he didn't go near Helen nor did he look for a job. One day slipped into the next and a laxness seemed to hold him tight. He was marking time and getting more dissatisfied with every passing hour.

THE NIGHT, a day later, when he got home to find excitement in the very air and Mom holding out a telegram he ripped it open and nearly passed out. SUDZY-SOAP IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE YOU WINNER OF FIRST PRIZE. STOP. LISTEN TO USUAL SATURDAY PROGRAM. STOP. CONGRATULATIONS.

Next day Andy got a job. It was really easy. He felt so good — so proud of himself and ready for anything that came along he just went right after the mechanics job he saw advertised in the morning paper.

Saturday night the whole family gathered for the radio program telling of the contest and the winners.

He ripped the telegram open and nearly passed out.

"But I didn't win," Andy said helplessly when the program was over, "they didn't mention my name and that Robert Amherst won the five hundred dollars."

The door bell interrupted Andy and when the messenger boy gave him a telegram he glanced at it and ripped it open. "HOW DID IT FEEL TO BE A PRIZE WINNER FOR A FEW DAYS? STOP. THE BOYS."

Andy was half way out the door when Helen caught up with him, "where you going?" she asked. "I'll bust those guys in the nose," Andy cried, "of all the dirty, low down tricks."

Helen laughed as she read the telegram. Tears rolled down her lovely cheeks and still she laughed. Andy couldn't help laughing with her.

"If they hadn't done it we'd still be angry with each other," she pointed out, "and you wouldn't have your job—and we wouldn't be planning on getting married."

What a pity that hate has more vitality than a dozen loves.

Reason Enough

ALTHOUGH as big and as strong as the policeman who had arrested him, the man with the close-cropped hair and brutal face allowed himself to be marched towards the police station.

There had been the usual crowd in anticipation of a scrap, but it had drifted away when they saw there was nothing doing. Even the policeman admitted it was the tamest arrest he had made for many a day.

"It isn't like you to go so quietly," he remarked. "What's taken all the ginger out of you?"

The prisoner sighed.

"I've got my best clothes on."

JUST WANTED TO KNOW

One night at a theatre a man who had dined rather too well stood up in his seat in the middle of the play and cried: "Is there a doctor in the house?"

The actors faltered slightly, but the play went bravely on.

A moment later, the same man, still standing, repeated his question.

At this second call another man rose and said "Yes, I'm a doctor," whereupon the other nearly finished off the performance by asking in a tone of great good nature:—

"How do you like the show, Doc?"

Action, Please

Annoyed with the progress of a certain scene, Movie Director Gregory Ratoff jumped out of his seat and threw his hat violently to the ground.

"Get me some ballet dancers!" he roared.

"Ballet dancers?" repeated the bewildered script girl. "The script doesn't call for any ballet dancers."

"I know," thundered the angry Ratoff, "but I'm going to have someone on his toes around here!"

POOR THING

Bill: "Why so melancholy, old man?"

John: "My girl gave me my ring back last night."

Bill: "Well, buck up, there are others."

John: "Yes, of course, but somehow I can't help feeling sorry for the poor girl."

That Did It

A rookie was home on furlough. "What did you have to eat?" inquired his mother.

"Oh a little bit of everything," he replied vaguely.

"What do you mean by everything?" asked mother.

"Oh well, soup for instance," he answered.

Proof Enough

"It appears to me that this man is abnormally lazy," said the officer. "What is your opinion, sergeant-major?"

"Well, I shouldn't like to do him an injustice, sir," was the reply, "but if it required any voluntary work on his part to digest his food he would die from lack of nourishment."

What Kept Him?

The business man signed a new fire-insurance policy and that night his factory was burned to the ground. The company suspected fraud, but had no proof. The only thing the manager could do was to send the policy-holder the following note:—

"Sir,—You took out an insurance policy at 10 a. m. and your fire did not break out until 7 p. m. Will you kindly explain the delay?"

COULDN'T WAIT

Patient: "Since we've known each other so long, doctor, I'm not going to insult you by paying my bill, but I'll leave you a hand-some legacy in my will."

Doctor: "That's very nice of you, I'm sure. By the way, just let me have that prescription again. There's a slight change I'd like to make in it."

Energy spent in getting even is better spent in getting ahead.

White Mice Serving In Chemical Tests

Insecticide Shower Evaluates Formulae

An old-style phonograph rigged up to give a revolving shower bath to a white mouse is helping test new chemicals for effectiveness in stable fly control. The mice are pinch-hitting for dairy cows in making the tests, says the U.S. department of agriculture.

The old phonograph was one that played wax cylinder records. The test mouse is confined in a screen cage that replaces the old record holder. The mouse is rolled around several times under a sprayed solution of the new chemical, and then is rolled under an air stream until dry. The test comes the next day in another cage with 20 stable flies. If as many as four of the flies succeed in attacking the mouse without being driven off or poisoned, the chemical is not regarded as worth a full scale test on a cow. This is the first time white mice have been used in just this kind of experimental work.

Federal entomologists are searching actively for a spray that will protect animals from attack by stable flies and other blood-sucking flies and mosquitoes. Recent experience has proved abundantly how profitable it is for farmers to protect cattle from the torment of "fly time" and thus avoid the summer slump in milk production and gains in weight of animals on pasture.

This search calls for trials of hundreds of chemicals. Many of these are new synthetics.

Soil Protection

AN "UMBRELLA" OF LEGUMES AND GRASSES WILL PROTECT YOUR SOIL FROM PELTING RAINS.

Pelting rains may be a soil destroyer rather than a farm blessing unless your land has a protective "umbrella" over cover crops.

Beating rains on bare land break the surface soil into small particles. These particles quickly fill the pores of the surface soil. The surface forms a hard crust. Water cannot soak in. Instead, it runs over the surface. The farm land then suffers a double loss. It loses needed moisture for crops and it loses valuable top-soil.

The Middle West soil improvement committee suggests these steps for protecting your soil and giving your crops better use of the rains you get:

1. Use a cropping system that gives your soil as continuous cover as possible throughout the year.
 2. Thick-growing grasses and deep-rooted legumes give the best cover.
 3. Small grains following corn help keep the land protected.
 4. If winter wheat or rye is not feasible, a good covering can be had by mashing down corn stalks or soybean tops.
- Legumes like alfalfa and sweet clover prevent washing away of soil. Their prying taproots open the soil so rain soaks in and is held for crops. Legumes well fed with phosphate and potash fertilizer add life-giving organic matter.

Land Should Be Turned Under for New Legumes

When corn is to follow first year sweetclover, it is advisable to get the ground turned under before the new growth of the legume removes too much moisture from the soil.

This tip comes from D. L. Gross, Nebraska university extension agronomist. He advises, however, not to plow under the clover before new crown shoots get to a length of four to six inches. Earlier plowing may not kill the legume.

It's a lot better to drive your self than to be driven by another.

Persian Gulf's Sea Life Surveyed by Scientist

A collection of more than 5,000 fishes and other sea animals of the Persian gulf has been brought back to the U. S. National museum by Donald S. Erdman of the staff of the Smithsonian institution.

Mr. Erdman carried out a survey of the sea life of this region under the sponsorship of the Arabian-American Oil company. The gulf is of particular interest to biologists because it is probably the hottest body of salt water in the world. Water temperatures in mid-summer reach over 100 degrees Fahrenheit. The gulf might be considered an arm of the Indian ocean. It is exceptionally shallow, however, and is connected with the great sea by a narrow channel.

One result of this is that its water remains much hotter than that of the ocean in general. Consequently its sea life, so far as number of species is concerned, is much sparser. The species which have been able to adapt themselves to the warm water, however, often are very numerous as individuals.

Notable among the fishes brought back by Mr. Erdman are "sea moths." They are little brown creatures with large fins, which spend most of their lives on the surface and look like large moths which have settled on the water. Presumably they live chiefly on small aquatic crustacea.

Notable also are the "fool fishes," so stupid and sluggish that they make no effort to escape, even when a bright light is shone on them at night.

Life Insurance Bought In 1948 Breaks Record

Life insurance in the United States has made greater gains in recent years than in any comparable period of its history. More new life insurance was purchased here in 1948 than the total owned at the end of the year in the United Kingdom, which ranks second to the United States in the amount of such insurance held throughout the world. New life insurance purchased in 1948 in this country amounted to $22.7 billion, bringing the total owned at the end of the year to $201 billion, the highest ever reported and more than the aggregate estimated to be owned in 1940 throughout the world. The total is still less, however, than the annual national income in recent years. United States families bought about as much life insurance in 1948 as the total in force here in 1915.

The number of policies owned in the United States now exceeds 189 million, and the amount of insurance per family averages nearly $5,000, almost twice the 1924 level.

Smallpox Certificates

All American tourists crossing the borders of continental United States for any destination, including Mexico, Cuba, Bermuda and Nassau must now have smallpox vaccination certificates for inoculation within the preceding three years before they can re-enter this country. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, warns. Removing exemptions of returning United States travelers from smallpox vaccination certificates, the new regulation was formulated by the International World Health organization. Concurred in by the United States and a majority of countries, the regulation means that a United States citizen must obtain a vaccination certificate even though the country to which he is traveling does not have such a requirement.

Allergic Animals

Animals, like people, suffer from allergies of various types. Some dogs are unable to tolerate salmon, horse meat, or wheat products, and nearly all species of domestic animals are susceptible to allergic skin diseases. Occasionally, animals get an allergic reaction from drugs, such as penicillin. Most cases of allergy in the large farm animals are traceable to grazing on certain kinds of pastures, including sweet clover, buckwheat, and sudan grass, followed by exposure to bright sunlight. This condition usually is called photosensitization.

Study Vibrations of Jets

An instrument which can measure as many as 300 vibrations per second is enabling engineers to study vibrations of jet engines in flight. The vibration meter, developed in the G-E general engineering and consulting laboratory at Schenectady, registers the amplitude, velocity, and acceleration of the vibrations. The detector itself is a cylinder three inches high and two inches in diameter, which converts vibrations of the engine into electrical impulses.

New Spanish Study Guide

Prof. Olie S. Bandy, head of the Spanish department at Florida Southern college, has recently presented a new type of Spanish study guide to the members of the teaching profession. The study guide emphasizes the oral approach, correct pronunciation, accurate understanding of both oral and written expressions and thinking in Spanish. Grammatical forms and rules are not forgotten, but are taught inductively as the need for such information develops.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

Twenty-five Years Ago.
June 27, 1924.

The village council of Cass City on June 19 accepted the bid of the Taylor Construction Co. of Birmingham, Mich., for constructing the village portion of the paving which will be laid here this season. The bid of the Taylor Co. was $22,795.24. It is estimated that the amount of cement which the village must purchase from the state for the village portion of the paving job is 4,182 barrels. This, at $2.25 a barrel, brings the cement cost to $9,409.50, and the total cost of paving to the village to $32,204.70. The State and County Highway Commissions awarded the state's portion of the paving construction on June 19 to the Taylor Construction Co., their bid being $15,607.05.

George Matzen, a former Cass City merchant, was unfortunate in having a heavy fire loss when the Matzen Woolen Mills of Seattle, Wash., were destroyed early this month. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Mrs. E. H. Pinney, who has been an invalid for several years, passed away at her home here on June 17, at the age of 78 years.

The village council has estimated the village budget for the coming year at $19,434.00. Of this amount, $8,085.00 is for the general fund, $5,100.00 is for paving, $5,049.00 is for interest and sinking fund, and $1,200 for the highway fund.

Miss Violet Gillies of Detroit and her niece, Miss Florence Boonhewer, leave Quebec today for Europe. They will sail on the British liner Mt. Royal for Liverpool and expect to spend three months visiting historic places in Europe. Miss Gillies, a former instructor in the Cass City schools, is now teaching geography in the Cosman school in Detroit.

Discard

Boogy—I know my clothes look terrible this morning, but my wife left them in the middle of the floor last night.

Woogy—She did? Couldn't she pick them up?

Boogy—Not very well. I was in them.

Bigger Loss

"Pull over, mister," said the traffic cop. "You haven't any tail light."

The motorist stopped, got out for a look, and was speechless with dismay.

"Well, it's bad, but not that bad," said the officer.

Recovering his voice, the motorist quavered, "It's not the tail light that bothers me, but what's become of my trailer?"

Combination Utensil

A covered skillet—of heavy material—may serve as a fryer for chicken and chops, or as a Dutch oven. With a special rack, this covered skillet becomes a small surface oven. It can then be used for baking pies, rolls, biscuits, or small cakes.

Good Pasture

Ladino clover and alfalfa plus a mixture of grasses will give a lot of pasture, if the land is in proper condition. Sudan grass grows well in hot, dry weather and can be used in midsummer. Balbo rye and barley make good early spring and late fall pasture.

Henry R. Pattengill delivered the commencement address here Wednesday evening. Miss Carola Fritz was presented with a first year scholarship to any college to be selected as an award for having attained the highest average standing during the full high school course of study. The award came from the Woman's Study Club. The Class of 1914 has 21 members. Rev. J. W. Hamblin delivered the baccalaureate address.

Mrs. L. B. Lauderbach and sons, Leon and Calvin, left Wednesday for Santa Ana, California, where they will make their home and where Mr. Lauderbach has been for some time.

At a meeting held at the council rooms Monday night to boost the fair at Cass City, a committee of five was appointed to solicit donations and a guarantee to support the project. Joseph Dodge, who presided, named the following members of the committee: J. D. Crosby, L. D. Dickinson, J. C. Farrell, Edward Finney and P. A. Schenck.

Edward Dickinson, who has resigned his position as carrier of the mail and express, left Wednesday for Battle Creek where he will be employed by the American Express Co.

Improves With Water

Cotton is the only textile fiber that does not lose strength when wet. In contrast to other fabrics, cotton actually gains strength when exposed to water. Laboratory tests show that cotton is approximately 25 per cent stronger wet than dry. Other textiles show loss of strength varying from 10 per cent up to 65 per cent.

In a few timely remarks by President Clarence Quick, he mentioned that Duncan McArthur has been a continuous resident of the community since 1873, that James Brown, who now resides in Ohio, came here with his parents in 1869 at the age of eight years, settling in the vicinity of the Brown School which was named for that family; and that Sarah Jane Dickson McLeary came here in 1870 at the age of 12 years.

Other "honorable mentions" named included Geo. Fescue a Good Orchard Grass

Fescue grass is superior to most other covers in preventing soil erosion in Michigan orchards, says A. L. Kenworthy, Michigan State College horticulturist. If not properly managed, however, fescue may sap soil moisture and nutrients.

One advantage fescue holds over other grasses is that it will grow on poor soils with little moisture that will not support other types of grass, Kenworthy reports.

The horticulturist suggests a good management practice is to use a crown mulch of straw or hay around the tree in the fescue sod. This mulch holds the moisture where the tree roots need it and keeps the fescue growth from getting too rank. The sections between rows are then growing a good sod of fescue to prevent erosion, but are not sapping the nutrients and moisture where the fruit growth needs them.

Kenworthy recommends whenever fescue cover is used that fertilizer applications for the orchard be increased as much as 50 percent—and that the crown mulch of hay or straw be used around the trees.

ALDERTON CANNOT FORGET THOSE GOOD TASTING MEALS

"An old acquaintance of ours has been appointed to the state department of conservation commission," writes George S. Alderton, a sports editor of the Lansing Journal. "He is Andrew Champion of Cass City. He should make a valuable member for he has long been interested in all types of hunting and fishing and should carry into the commission a practical man's viewpoint."

"At college," continued Mr. Alderton, "we roomed with Champion's brother, Frank, who now resides in St. Louis. Andy bunked with us on occasion, and on Saturdays the three of us would take off on a cross-country bill-posting job. We were always eager to go, for Andy was happy to stake us to meals far and away bigger and better tasting than those of the fare that prevailed at our off-campus boarding house. The best on the bill of fare at the hotel or restaurant was never too good for us or too large for Andy's pocketbook. Hump, we called him."

Coach Paul Smarks Honored at Lapeer

Residents of Lapeer and surrounding communities gathered recently in that city to honor Paul Smarks, high school football coach at Lapeer for the last 19 years. Smarks previous to going to Lapeer served in a similar capacity in Cass City.

Smarks, resigned recently in a fight with the Lapeer school board. His resignation resulted in a two-day strike by students. Smarks took a coaching job at Fitzgerald High School in Van Dyke.

Among the gifts that were presented to Smarks is a new car which was purchased from donations by many of the city's 5,000 residents.

Special Poultry Courses at MSC Early in July

Poultry flock selection and blood testing schools will be held at Michigan State College from July 7 through July 15. Howard Zindel, poultry extension specialist, says the advanced school will be July 7 and 8 and the basic school July 11 through July 15.

Schools are designed to train hatchery operators, flock owners and others in disease control, selection of better breeding flocks and good management practices.

Through such schools, and more hatcheries operating under the National Poultry Improvement Plan, Michigan has been able to reduce the pullorum disease rates. In 1947, tests showed nearly 3 percent of the birds in nearly two thousand flocks as reactors. The 1949 tests, recently completed, showed only 1.16 percent of more than a half million birds as reactors.

Under the turkey breeding blood testing program a similar rate of progress was shown. In 1948 when only 89 flocks were tested there were 2.8 percent reactors. During 1949 a total of 132 flocks were tested but the reactors amounted to only 1.06 percent.

Michigan has made continued progress in its control of diseases and improvement of the type as well as health of baby chicks and poults being sold to farmers and flock owners, Michigan State College poultrymen report.

Rough, Hilly Terrain

The topography of the country over which a car is normally driven has a great deal to do with the rate of tread wear. For instance, a car driven in a hilly or rolling country, over winding roads, will wear down the tread of a tire much more rapidly than in sections of the country where the roads are straight with very few hills and curves.
