High point men for Cass City were Tom Schwaderer 15, Gil Schwaderer 13, Eugene Kloc 12, and for Sebawaig Dale Gerow 19 and Ben Rocha 11.

Two Tuscola Boy Scouts Register for National Jubilee

Two Tuscola County Boy Scouts are the first to register in the Valley Trails Council for the National Jamboree at Valley Forge.

Scoutmaster Harold Oatley of Cass City sent in the first registrations for Scouts in his troop, 194 of Cass City. The troop are selecting the boys to attend the jamboree on a rating basis. The Scouts are all having the opportunity to compete for the honor by their participation in troop events, advancement, and generally for being an outstanding Boy Scout. A part of the cost is being paid by the troop committee. This troop has a good plan that will give two of their most active Scouts an experience of a life time.

Ray Flenor, chairman of the Cass City troop committee, is going to the National Jamboree as an assistant leader. Two full troops are going from the Valley Trails Council under top leadership to represent this area. From this good beginning, it looks as though Tuscola County will be well represented at this high light experience in the life of a Scout.

No, They're Still Charging for Paint

On page 10, there is printed an advertisement of the Albee Hardware and Furniture which offers Flatlux oil paint at $0.00 per gallon. This, of course, is an error for such a good product should not be without a price.

The advertisement was designed by the manufacturer so the dealer could insert his price in place of the $0.00. One of the printers overlooked putting in the proper figures and, of course, the error was discovered after that part of the Chronicle had all been printed. The ad appears again on page 8 and with the $3.60 per gallon in its right place.

Charley Scoots Across Ice

If you're out by the Bay one of these winter days and see something scooting across the ice, look closely, because it may be Charley McCaslin and his motor-driven ice sled.

Charles A. McCaslin is 68. He has lived in Cass City about fifty years and has been a barber here for forty-six.

He worked out the idea of a motor-powered ice sled quite some time ago and built a model five inches long out of baling wire. He never seemed to find time to build the actual full-sized vehicle until last summer, when Charley secured a gasoline engine and began building the project he had thought about so long.

The frame of the sled is of 1 1/4 in. and 1 1/2 in. gas pipe and it has three runners, four inches by forty-five inches, which Charley made of white ash. The runners are fastened to the frame with a hinge-joint, so they will run over rough ice and not be broken. The front runner is fitted with a steel skate about twelve inches long so it will bite into the ice and facilitate steering.

Charley worked out a very clever idea for driving the sled over the ice by using an 18-in. plow coultter. He used a special grinding wheel and ground teeth on the circumference of the steel coultter, then hung it on a hinged frame at the back of the sled frame. Two springs pull the swinging frame downward and hold the wheel against the ice and at the same time allow it to swing upward in case it hits an obstruction or rough ice. Power from the 1 1/2 h. p. gasoline engine is transferred to the coultter by a V-belt and bicycle chain and sprocket arrangement. The V-belt is fitted loosely and has an idler-wheel that acts as a clutch. To run the sled, a lever is moved and the idler-wheel tightens the V-belt. This causes the coultter to turn and the teeth dig into the ice and push the sled forward.

A hand throttle, mounted on the bicycle handlebars used, regulate the speed of the sled from five to twenty miles an hour and the rider sits on a motorcycle saddle. The weight of the sled is about two hundred and twenty-five pounds and except for the welding, Charley did all the work himself.

4-H Junior Leaders from 20 Counties at Meet

Three-day Training Conference Was Concluded at Caro on Saturday

Junior 4-H Club leaders from 20 southeastern Michigan counties concluded a three-day training conference at Caro Saturday, February 11, and journeyed home inspired with ideas and methods for doing a better job of community service.

During the series of meetings at the Wilber Memorial 4-H Building, the 42 young people (a boy and a girl from each county and an extra boy and girl from Wayne) had the experience of hearing, seeing, and practicing community leadership. They were divided into four competitive groups; reds, blue, greens and yellows, for the purpose of organizing demonstration teams, practicing parliamentary procedure and planning 4-H Club programs. Each one had certain responsibilities, such as presenting a demonstration before the group, acting as a chairman of one of the sessions, or directing recreation at one of the two evening parties.

Tuscola County's delegates to the Junior Leader Training Conference were Mary Monroe of the West Mayville 4-H Club and Fred Neville of the Almer Center 4-H Club. Caro. Mary and Fred will be prepared to assume new leadership responsibilities in their 4-H clubs as a result of their experiences last week. They will also be called upon to assist in meetings and in recreation at county 4-H Club meetings.

Much emphasis was placed upon the qualities and responsibilities of good leadership. Rev. Winston W. Thomas, of the Kinde Presbyterian Church, spoke to the group on Thursday evening following their dinner at the Montague Hotel, on "Leadership in Your Community." The young people conducted a formal discussion on "Responsibilities of a Junior Leader" during the first afternoon session.

"What Is a 4-H Demonstration?" was the subject of a talk by Floyd Hicks, Macomb County 4-H Club. Concluded on page 12.

Thousands Attend Rites for Bishop Murphy Saturday

The Catholic Church that the Most Rev. William F. Murphy, bishop of Saginaw, had served for more than 40 years honored him in death Saturday.

A ranking United States primate, Edward Cardinal Mooney, of the Detroit archdiocese, officiated at the solemn, pontifical requiem held Saturday morning at St. Mary's Cathedral in Saginaw for the 64-year-old head of the Saginaw diocese.

A second leader of the Catholic hierarchy, Samuel Cardinal Stritch, of the Chicago archdiocese, praised the memory of the man who, for 12 years, has guided some 100,000 Catholics in the area in things spiritual.

More than a dozen bishops, headed by the Most Rev. Moses E. Kiley, archbishop of Milwaukee, over 200 monsignori and priests, some 200 Catholic nuns, scores of Catholic seminarians, and hundreds of the laity attended the funeral rites.

Hundreds more, unable to crowd into the diocesan cathedral, stood quietly outside its purple-draped portals. The church seats an estimated 1,100.

A 200-car funeral cortege conducted the bishop's casket to the small plot in Mt. Olivet cemetery reserved for diocesan clergy. More than 8,000 persons witnessed the brief burial services conducted by Cardinal Stritch.

O'Rourke's Open New Restaurant On M-53 Highway

The grand opening of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd O'Rourke's new restaurant at the intersection of M-53 and Gagetown Road (four miles east and four north of Cass City) is set for Saturday and Sunday, February 18 and 19.

The new restaurant will feature country style dinners, hot or cold sandwiches and light lunches and will be open every day from 10 a. m. to 1 a. m. Pies, cakes and rolls will be homemade and ice cream will be available, with future plans including fountain service.

The building was put up in less than three months by Fay McComb, Cass City contractor, and has a 24 ft. by 40 ft. dining room, a modern kitchen and two rest rooms. The dining room is finished in knotty pine and has fluorescent lighting. It will accommodate sixty people now, but will be furnished to take care of ninety-six.

The restaurant is heated by a gas-fired circulating-air heater and bottle gas is used for cooking and to heat the steam table. The steam table is part of the modern equipment in the kitchen and is used to keep food warm so a patron's entire dinner will be hot when it is served, even though it may take some food longer to cook.

The kitchen is built with two service openings, one for waitresses to get orders from the kitchen and the other for dirty dishes. With this arrangement the waitresses never have to go into the kitchen and have no traffic problem when serving customers or are clearing away tables.

The new restaurant will be available for wedding receptions, anniversaries and other private dinners with advance reservations.

The O'Rourke's live on Gagetown Road about a half mile from the restaurant and are former owners of the Home Restaurant in Cass City.

Co. Dairy Herds Have Outstanding Results in Jan.

Seventeen Percent of Cows Tested Produced 50 Pounds or More of Butterfat Each Tuscola County dairy herds belonging to the dairy herd improvement associations have again shown outstanding results during the month of January testing period, according to Loren S. Armbruster, county agricultural agent.

Seventeen per cent of the cows tested or 212 out of 1260, produced 50 pounds or more of butterfat. A registered Holstein four year old cow owned by George Foster of Postoria led the association with 95 pounds of fat from 2317 pounds of milk. Another registered Holstein, three years of age, from the Albert Kern herd from Reese was second with 1995 pounds of milk and 90 pounds of fat. Third place was captured with 86 pounds of fat from 2295 pounds of milk by a registered Holstein from the Caro State Hospital Farm. Edward Karr of Cass City took fourth place with a grade Holstein which produced 2070 pounds of milk and also 85 pounds of fat. Others are as follows: Fifth, John Horst of Akron, with registered Holstein with 84 pounds of fat; sixth, Mayville Yokom Stock Farm with 82 pounds of fat from a registered Holstein; seventh, grade Jersey from Ed Golding's herd of Cass City with 80.5 pounds of fat; eighth, Alton Reavey's registered Holstein of Akron with 77 pounds of fat; ninth, 76.7 pounds of fat from Holstein from John Horst farm; and tenth, a grade Holstein that produced 76.3 pounds of fat belonging to Grover Laurie of Cass City.

The top herd average for January goes to the 10 cow registered Holstein herd of Albert Kern of Reese that averaged 1332 pounds of milk and 52.6 pounds of butterfat. Lou Gussell's registered and grade 9-cow Holstein herd was second. Concluded on page 11.

School Problems Told to Rotary Club on Tuesday

Probable Increased Attendance in Future Will Make Housing Still More Difficult

The need for better facilities for caring for the increasing number of students in the local schools was presented by Supt. of Schools Willis Campbell and Frederick Pinney, a member of the board of education, to the Rotary Club at its Tuesday luncheon at the New Gordon Hotel Restaurant.

At present there are 426 grade children and 352 high school students, a total of 779. To accommodate this number it has been necessary to utilize, in addition to regular class rooms, the basement of the Evangelical United Brethren Church for the kindergarten, a teachers' rest room for the 4th and 6th grades, part of the original home economics room for the second grade, and two rooms on the third floor built for high school recitation rooms for the 3rd and 5th grades. The average number in each room is 33 students.

Next year it is anticipated that there will be 400 students in high school, the largest number in the history of the school, and within three years the kindergarten crowd will be considerably larger than at present which, with a probable increase in the grades, will make the problem of housing still more difficult.

With greater facilities needed, the situation may be solved with a new building. Plans have been considered for the erection of a new school building a block east of the present school to house the kindergarten, and two divisions each of the first, second and third grades to relieve the overcrowded condition. In the event such a project is approved by the board of education, a special election to raise the money by a bond issue will be necessary. The last bond on the present school building will be retired next year and there is $14,000 in a school building fund in the school treasury.

The present enrollment of the school shows 349 resident pupils and 430 non-resident. One hundred sixty-seven non-resident grade pupils pay a tuition of $31,730.00 and 263 high school students $62,462.50 which totals $94,192.50. This sum is $31,823.50 over operating costs for this group.

The board of education are in office to carry out the wishes of the people of the community and will welcome helpful suggestions.

A similar consideration of the school problem was discussed at a recent gathering of the Gavel Club and the matter will be presented at a Woman's Study Club meeting in the near future.

Dr. P. A. Schenck was program chairman at Tuesday's meeting of the Rotarians and luncheon guests included D. N. Protzman of Elkton, Al Granzow of Highland Park, and Ed Riley, Carl Kinsey, Carl Palmer and A. B. Quick, all of Caro.

Albin Stevens presided as chairman of the caucus, Mrs. Wilma Fry was clerk and Howard B. Ellis and Keith McConkey, tellers. Caucus officers were sworn in by M. B. Auten.

Hundreds Seek King of Beggars' Secret Writings

MONTAUBAN, FRANCE.—More than 200 people went to the village of St. Pierre, near here, to mourn at the grave of Joseph Cheroux who died at the age of 88.

Why? They didn't come simply out of respect, or to mourn him—no, they came also in hopes of obtaining his memoirs, the fabulous "book of beggars," and they offered his relatives fabulous sums for it.

"We should have loved to sell out to the highest bidder," said Charles, the eldest son. "One man was ready to pay 200,000 francs—roughly about $700—for a copy. Alas! The trouble is that we, ourselves, cannot find the manuscript. The old man hid it somewhere and we don't know where to look for it."

Reticent About Fortune

Charles was reticent about the fortune which the old "papa" had left, but he admitted that his father had died a rich man. Most of this money came from beggars in France, Holland and Belgium, and consisted of fees paid to "Papa Cheroux."

Joseph Cheroux, the "king of the beggars," possessed that inventive genius, combined with an extraordinary ability for big scale organization, that makes men captains of industry. Fifty years ago he decided to apply his great talents to the organization of the begging fraternity.

Cheroux did two things for his profession: He offered new methods of begging, for a small share in the earnings, or a substantial fee; he also compiled the first "Directory for Beggars"—a fat volume with the names of many thousands of rich "donors" in western Europe and Britain.

Cheroux invented over a hundred new tricks for street beggars. Look at the poorly dressed man, carrying a heavy suitcase. A small boy accompanies him, holding his hand. He stops a passer-by and asks, in the broad dialect of the countryman, how he could get beds for the boy and himself for a shilling. He came to the city this morning, and had his purse stolen by a pickpocket at the railway station. The little boy nods his head, and believes: "I'm hungry, daddy." Believe it or not several pounds a day can be made with this little act.

Favorite Trick

Even more successful, according to Cheroux, was his "match trick"—prerequisites: An old man or woman, poorly dressed but clean and neat, and a box of matches. At dusk, in one of the "good" streets, the old beggar lights a match and looks along the gutter.

Alas and alack, she has dropped a coin, a half crown piece that should have paid for her supper and the return fare to a distant suburb. Kind hearted people try to help her find the coin. They dip into their own pocket to console the distressed old being.

Cheroux's cynical suggestion to his clients: "Most people are busy-bodies—they will ask you what you are doing when they see you light your match. Take many boxes."

Law Making It Difficult On Woman Doing Kind Deed

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—The law is making it plenty tough on Mrs. Nelson Dinkle, who only did a kind deed. She found six calves roaming along the highway near her farm near Seymour. She had no facilities for the calves, so put them in her own chicken yard hoping the owner would come get them.

The law relating to estrays—valuable animals, not wild, found wandering from their owner—says that Mrs. Dinkle must care for the cattle for one year. Then she can sell the calves, deduct the year's upkeep cost from the proceeds and turn the remainder over to the county.

The law says she must do other things, too. She must report to county officials her findings, get the value of the calves appraised and have a public notice published for three weeks.

Mrs. Dinkle said she had no way of caring for the calves and hoped the owner would see the ad she ran in the paper and come and claim his livestock.

Burglar Much Frustrated After Seen In Restaurant

WASHINGTON.—Because he was spotted about 4 a.m. pounding away at the safe in a restaurant, a burglar experienced a mortifying series of vexatious frustrations.

When police arrived at the restaurant he scuttled for the rear exit but couldn't find it. He climbed to a skylight and smashed his way to the roof, but the drop to the ground was too far.

He crawled into the bedroom of an adjoining apartment, but the occupants woke up and chased him downstairs. He crouched in a closet and the officers found him.

Then came the final blow. When he stood up, his pants fell down. They were weighted with $8.10 in small change stolen from the restaurant.

The want ads are newsy, too.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

Ed. Valleder — Farm Editor
Station WBCM Bay City, Michigan

Seed Buyers Beware.

Dinnie L. Clannahan of the Crops department, Michigan State College is concerned lest farmers plant the wrong varieties of seed on several northeastern Michigan crops.

We had a visit with Dinnie in the county agent's office in Standish the other day. In buying alfalfa seed, says Dinnie, even 99 percent purity is a risky proposition. The other one percent could be mustard seed and 20,000 mustard plants per acre would certainly produce an inferior hay crop.

Agricultural experts are urging farmers to buy their grass and legume seed early this year. There is a nation-wide shortage of those two kinds and prices are bound to go higher, also quality decrease by planting time.

Oat Varieties Important.

Several mid-western states have reported serious damage to oat crops from new diseases. Dinnie Clannahan says that Michigan farmers can be reasonably sure of a good harvest if they stick to Eaton or Kent varieties.

Eggs Make News.

A nation-wide drive is underway to get folks to eat more eggs. The poultry business is the number two source of income for Michigan farmers. Egg prices have dropped sharply since last fall. Heavy egg production and the lowered government support price have contributed to this price drop. The mild winter has been instrumental in causing biddy to over-produce.

According to the boys who draw up the figures, there are three hens to every man, woman and child in the U. S. The hen population is up six percent over last year (440 million layers) and these same hens are averaging 170 eggs per year against 139 in 1941.

Hatcheries Report Poor Business.

There is a definite lag in the purchase of baby chicks. With today's prices there's no inducement for the farmer and his wife to expand their poultry operations. However, the consumer is enjoying the benefits—his egg prices being the lowest since 1942. We've talked with operators of local hatcheries and they say that poultrymen are not bringing in the volume of early orders. The chick started now is usually the one that brings the most profits. . . both in meat and early fall eggs. The Department of Agriculture forecasts that 1950 egg prices will not average more than one-sixth lower than last year. The Government took four percent of the total egg production off the market in the support program in 1949. Under the new support levels, it is reasonable to assume that even small quantities will be purchased for storage this year.

Consumers Call the Turn.

Just a year or so ago, we had congressional investigations over high prices . . . Meat, butter and egg prices were a national scandal. The American farmer has brought up production of these items to the place where they are the best buys in food. It remains the responsibility of the homemaker to serve more of these abundant farm products in order that the farmer can profitably continue to produce them.

Only by all of us joining in to "eat an extra egg a day" tomorrow and for weeks to come is the U. S. going to be able to keep up to the bumper production job its hens are doing. We can eat well and still have reasonable farm prices . . . if we fail to remove surpluses from the market, farmers will discontinue operations and shortages and high prices will again prevail.

Early New England women bleached their sheets by spreading them with sour milk and putting them in the sun.

Treasure Maps Laid to Acts Of Pranksters

PHILADELPHIA. — The yen to prospect for buried pirate treasure is definitely on the up-trend, according to evidence available hereabouts. Men with mine detectors roam New Jersey and the shores of Delaware bay bear signs of the correctness of the conclusion.

So far as anyone knows, no one has come up with any buried coins or ingots or jewels, but digging is going on apace. The only portent of anything buried has been an old iron pot or some other unmarketable find. However, that hasn't dimmed the lure of pirate gold and the searchers continue on undiscouraged.

Dr. Henry C. Beck, an expert on pirate lore, is of the opinion that the men who are lugging the mechanical detectors around have about as much chance of locating treasure as the plain pick-and-shovelers of 250 years ago. In fact, Dr. Beck is rather cynical on the subject, for he adds that the chance he mentioned is practically no chance at all. There is, he said, no record that anyone anywhere has ever recovered any pirate gold.

Cites Boy's Example
He advises the hunters to follow the example of Joseph Dowling Jr., 11, and wander the Jersey coast with the idea Joseph had—"just looking for things."

Joseph is the Philadelphia boy who brought home what amounted to a peanut bag full of 18th century coins (gold content uncertain) and a pile of buckles and cuffs.

"But as for the buried treasures of Captain Kidd, Lafitte, Teach or any other buccaneers whom fact or romance brought to these shores," Dr. Beck advises, one might as well forget it.

The reason is simple. Kidd, Lafitte, Teach and the less notorious pirates thought too much of themselves to bury their wealth.

"By far the greatest number of them did not die on the gibbet," he said. "They vamoosed from the business after they'd made their pile and went to various other parts of the world, where they lived out their lives in ease."

Nevertheless, reports of buried treasure persist. One reason, Dr. Beck thinks, is that even as now the world of buccaneer days had its practical jokers.

Franksters Busy
"They'd drop maps with the familiar skull and crossbones in places where they would be found," he said, "and then sit back to enjoy the uproar."

One such hoax led to the first large scale treasure hunt Dr. Beck has been able to trace. It occurred at Cape May, N. J., in 1701. When the hunters learned they had been fooled, they saw to it that the pranksters were jailed.

If any pirate gold is to be found hereabouts, Absecon island would be a likely spot, Beck concedes. Unfortunately, the island is now occupied by Atlantic City and the best beach front sites for digging are under ton upon ton of resort hotels.

The Absecon Islanders of the early 18th century were themselves practicing—if land based—pirates. Pirating was their industry. Their only equipment was a donkey and a lantern. On stormy nights ships beating their way along the coast would be misled by a lantern tied to a donkey's tail. The donkey would be prodded along the beach in the direction of Brigantine shoals and the ship's master, having no other bearing, would be lured by the light on the shoals.

New Medical Series Tests To Be Given at One Time
NEW YORK.—A shotgun hunt to find and halt diseases the average person is unaware he has seems like the next major step in health preservation.

The shotgun hunt will be a quick series of tests at one time to check for tuberculosis, diabetes, anemia, some kinds of cancer, and heart diseases. It will take from 15 to 30 minutes.

At present such hunts are made separately, like firing single bullets. These hunts find thousands of people who have the disease which is being sought. These are sent to their physicians for early treatment that they may save lives.

Tying the tests together, in a shotgun approach, was described to the American Public Health association by Dr. Lester Breslow, chief of the chronic disease service, California state department of public health.

Even a simple battery of tests could probably spot 20 to 25 people with an unsuspected, significant disease out of each 1,000 examined, he said.

The first trial with multiple tests was made in San Jose, Calif., on 945 workers in four industries. Each got a chest X-ray, blood test and urinalysis. It took 15 minutes for each worker.

Thirteen were found to have unsuspected tuberculosis, diabetes, or diseases of the heart, blood vessels, or kidneys. Another 16 were found to have diseases that had been diagnosed before. However, some of these persons had stopped getting treatments.

LOCAL CHURCHES TO PARTICIPATE IN A NATIONWIDE APPEAL

Local Protestant churches will take part in a nationwide relief appeal embracing over 100,000 congregations of nineteen major religious bodies, in the U. S. A. The campaign, called "One Great Hour of Sharing," will culminate on Sunday, March 12, when the participating churches will take up offerings for their work with displaced persons, refugees, and general relief needs in Asia, the Middle East, and Europe.

An extensive national organization for the promotion of the united appeal includes both church representatives and outstanding lay leaders from all over the country. Harper Sibley, prominent business man and church leader, has accepted the position of national chairman of the campaign which will be conducted by Church World Service, Inc., of which he is president.

The relief appeal, which is using all means of mass communications, is being sponsored by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, the American Committee of the World Council of Churches, the United Council of Church Women, the United Christian Youth Movement, the United Stewardship Council, and the United Church Canvass.

This appeal will be made in Cass City through local church circles only, by those churches cooperating in this appeal through denominational channels.

Broadcasts of "One Great Hour of Sharing" will merit attention and announcement of times and radio channels will be made by the participating churches.

Agronomist Claims America Could Feed 200 Millions

MILWAUKEE.—According to one expert in the field, America has nothing to worry about in the matter of feeding its rapidly-increasing population. Firman E. Bear, retiring president of the American society of agronomy, said that this nation can easily feed a population of 200 million.

"We need have no fear whatever of any lack of capacity to feed ourselves permanently in accordance with our desires," he said. Continuing, he pointed out, "all we have to do is make continuing use of the abundant resources at our command."

To step up food producing for an estimated 200 million persons by the year 2,000, Bear said the nation could:

Irrigate from 23 to 31 million acres of arid and semiarid land, perhaps using distilled sea water for some projects.

Drain 18 million acres of swamps. Increase yields per acre of corn, wheat and other crops by use of fertilizers, chemical insect killers and disease control and better varieties.

Increase soil conservation. Increase milk production by use of artificial insemination and of hormones to stimulate conception, mammary development and milk secretion.

Raise the annual fish catch by 50 per cent by the construction of fish ponds and tripling their yield of 200 pounds per acre with proper management.

Use more efficiently the energies of the sun, water and atom.

Hems of Hockey Skirts Change Little in Years

JOHANNESBURG.—Six inches is the measurement which links 40 years in the history of women's hockey, according to Mrs. F. Connor, a veteran whose playing days date back to the early days in South Africa.

In 1909, skirts were worn six inches above the ankle; now they are worn six inches above the knee. Regulation uniform then was a white shirtwaist, a tie, and a dark, flared skirt.

Energy from Sun

Water on earth absorbs about 40 per cent of the sun's energy falling upon it. Although most of the energy expended in evaporating water cannot be recovered, the amount theoretically recoverable is about 54 times our total energy requirements.

That Got Her

A SUBURBANITE was sitting at his window one evening when he casually called to his wife:

"There goes that woman Bill Jones is so terribly in love with."

His wife, who was in the kitchen, dropped a cup she was wiping, hurtled through the door, knocked over a lamp and a bowl of goldfish, and craned her neck to look out the window.

"Where?" she panted.
"There," he pointed, "that woman with the tweed coat on the corner."

"You idiot," she hissed, "that's his wife."

"Yes, of course," he replied smoothly.

ALWAYS THE SAME

His health wasn't any too good, so the eastern city-dweller went looking for a place to live in the Southwest. In one small town in Arizona, he approached an old timer sitting on the steps of the general store. "Say," he asked, "what's the death rate around here?"

"Same as it is back East, bub," answered the old fellow, "one to a person."

NOTES

TUSCOLA COUNTY EXTENSION OFFICE

The board of directors of the Tuscola County Dairy Herd Improvement Association have tentatively planned to hold their annual meeting on March 14 and are in the process of securing Prof. George Weaver, head of the college dairy department, as their main speaker. Tester reports and election of directors will also be held.

The annual meeting of the Tuscola County Federation of Farmers' Clubs will be held on March 2. The all-day event, which includes the business meeting in the morning and a program in the afternoon, with a noon dinner served in the Caro Methodist Church, will have representatives present from the 15 active farmers' clubs in the county. The program committee has Paul Miller, extension specialist in rural sociology, engaged for the main address.

The 4-H forestry and conservation program of the county received strong support from the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District board of directors at their January meeting. Reid Kirk of Fairgrove, who was reelected as chairman for another year, announced that the district directors appointed a committee to make plans for giving awards of recognition for the outstanding 4-Hers in various projects in forestry and soil conservation. Chairman Kirk also stated that the district will give an equal number of trees free for those purchased by 4-H members for their forestry project.

About 35 interested livestock men met in the Caro courthouse last Wednesday for the annual livestock marketing meeting. Lyman Bratzler from the animal husbandry department of Michigan State College, pointed out that millions of dollars are lost every year due to injuries incurred to livestock while en route from farm to market. Bratzler also strongly recommended lighter and less lardy hogs, be produced to meet the present demand. Agricultural economist D. H. Stark, also from the college, stated that the present outlook for feeding steers, hogs and lambs appears very favorable. President Loren Ewald of Unionville and Secretary Alvin Smith of Caro were reelected for another year. These two officers and Milford Culbert of Fairgrove, John Graham of Caro, and Norman Kurpsel of Millington were elected as delegates to represent Tuscola County at the annual Michigan Livestock Exchange meeting to be held March 11 at the Olds Hotel at Lansing.

Statement of Hydrogen Bomb Issue

New York—A strong protest against the manufacture of the hydrogen bomb by the United States is made in a statement issued by John Haynes Holmes, Minister Emeritus, Community Church, New York; Clarence Pickett, Secretary, American Friends Service Committee; Paul Scherer, Professor, Union Theological Seminary, New York; Kenneth S. Latourette, Professor of Missions, Yale University; Frank Wright, Dean of School of Education, Washington University, St. Louis and 25 other leading Christian theologians, ministers and educators. They express the belief that "the moral prestige of the United States suffered a heavy blow when by a unilateral decision this nation launched atomic warfare on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945" and warn that "the moral standing of our country, especially among the masses of Asia and Africa, will be undermined almost beyond repair if we now proceed by another unilateral decision to launch the terror of hydrogen bombs on the world."

The signers contend that "the atomic bomb did not bring safety" and the production of hydrogen bombs "can only represent a further investment in insecurity."

Suggesting that "the stalemate in which the negotiations between the Soviet Union and the United States have long been stalled and the suicidal armaments race... will not yield to ordinary measures" the statement declares that "for Christians and the Christian Church... the issue posed anew by the hydrogen bomb is not primarily whether the United States can afford to run the physical risk of being subjected to atomic warfare, but whether it can afford the spiritual risk of slaughtering other peoples in atomic warfare, of losing its soul in the hope—probably vain—of saving its skin."

Geiger Counter. The Geiger counter used to detect A-bomb blasts is a vacuum tube housing a gas-filled stainless steel tube. A fine wire in the tube catches minute atomic rays and gives the alarm.

MICHIGAN Motoring

Have you a teen-aged boy or girl in your family? Do they drive the family auto? If so, stop—right now—and ask them to join you in looking at the above sketch.

Ask your son or daughter how they'd feel if they were in the place of the boy in the sketch—looking at two cars which have collided—and knowing that he is responsible for the accident—the damage—and the injury to the passengers riding in these cars?

They don't like the idea, do they? And neither do you. But it could happen to your family—and it will, unless each one of you resolves to drive safely and carefully every day in the year.

Youngsters like to "show off"—they think it's fun to "let 'er out" to the fastest possible speed. But the boy in the sketch has learned that actually it's no fun at all. The very first time for anything at all!

Talk it over with your children. Make sure that they understand why driving caution is so necessary. Make sure they realize the need for every driving rule—and obey every rule.

Don't put off a discussion of safe driving with your children. Do it now—it may save a life!

John J. Bozek officiating. Following the ceremony, a breakfast was served to the bridal party in the American Legion hall and at four p. m. dinner was served there to a large company of relatives and friends. The dinner was followed by a reception and dancing, attended by 200 from Detroit, Bay City, Saginaw, Owendale, Gagetown and this vicinity.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor-length white satin gown. The sweetheart neckline was outlined with seed pearls and a tiara of seed pearls held in place the net finger-tip length veil. She wore a single strand of pearl beads, a gift of the groom. Her flowers were fashioned to form a good luck emblem and were of white roses and carnations. Mrs. Vera Diaz of Bay City, sister of the groom, was matron of honor and wore dusty pink satin. The best man was Anthony Garcia of Bay City, cousin of the groom. Other attendants were Miss Amelia Peno of Cass City who was groomed in light blue satin and Miss Natalia Salas, sister of the bride, who was dressed in a gown of fuchsia colored satin. The flowers of the attendants were pink.

Other attendants of the groom were Louis Salas, brother of the bride, and Alex Reyes of Owendale, his brother.

The bride has been employed in the hospital at Pigeon and the groom operates a shoe repair shop here. They will live at Owendale for the present.

500 Hear the Dow Male Chorus

An attendance of over 500 rallied at Caro High School auditorium to hear the Dow Male Chorus on Saturday night, Feb. 11. The Tuscola County Farm Bureau women sponsored the chorus.

Elden Smith, speaking for the women, opened the evening activity by introducing Dr. Vosburgh and his chorus. A total of twenty-five numbers was presented by the chorus in group and trio. This was the first appearance of the chorus this year.

The Farm Bureau women realized no profit from this concert but felt it a worthwhile project, bringing the chorus to Tuscola County.

A banquet for the chorus was served in the basement of the Lutheran Church at 5:30 p. m.

Static Electricity. Static electricity from a man's body was blamed for a fire in an Indianapolis paint factory. When the man opened a lacquer thinner valve, flames shot out into the room.

Geiger Counter. The Geiger counter used to detect A-bomb blasts is a vacuum tube housing a gas-filled stainless steel tube. A fine wire in the tube catches minute atomic rays and gives the alarm.

High Button Shoes were "quite the thing" more than 25 years ago . . . when the protection contained in some farm fire insurance policies was designed . . . modern farms and modern farming demands modern farm fire insurance policies . . . you need coverage on personal property when such items are off the premises, also protection on hay and grain in fields, to name but two of the many modern coverages in the Pioneer Policy, issued only by Pioneer Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lansing, Michigan.

Michigan Mirror

By Gene Alleman

When President Truman and Governor Williams ask for increased government spending at Washington and Lansing, their actions fit logically—as we see it—into an interesting cycle of contemporary history.

It's plain arithmetic in part. And yet it is as illusive as a magician's rabbit or Alice in Wonderland.

We refer to that little understood thing called inflation.

Every dollar you saved in 1939 and put in the bank, or into defense bonds, or an insurance annuity or anything else in fact, is not worth a 1939 dollar today. It is worth only 59 cents.

"What happened to the other 41 cents?" you ask.

Well, part of that might be considered to be a tax we paid to preserve our freedom. The government—and that means all of us—spent money freely to win the recent war. And war is utterly destructive. It destroys material wealth as well as human lives. It led us inevitably to a staggering national debt, now at 257 billions.

Part of the 41 cents may be said to be due also to postwar treasury deficits caused, in part at least, by social reforms—public housing, for example, whereby we, the government, agree to subsidize rents of low income workers.

"Will we get more inflation in the future?"

Roger Babson, the noted economist, thinks we will.

This would mean that our 1939 dollar, instead of being worth 59 cents, might go down to 50 or 25 and even a lower sum. At 50 cents, your 1939 savings will be worth one-half. You would need $2 to buy the same goods that a 1939 dollar would have purchased. At 25 cents your income would have to be four times that of 1939 to come out even!

In a recent statement for the United Press Mr. Babson says that more inflation depends on two things: Whether we have a World War III and whether our free enterprise system is preserved with its attendant high living standards for American workers.

It is significant that about three-quarters of the proposed national budget for 1951 is earmarked "to pay the cost of past wars" and to provide insurance in form of military preparations, against the danger of wars to come.

"What is the annual cost today of our wars?"

Approximately $31 BILLION dollars, as follows: National defense, $13.5 to $14 billions (depending on expenditures or appropriations); foreign aid assistance, $4 billions; and veterans' programs and interest on the war debt, $12 billions. The remainder consists of more than $800 millions for atomic bombs, merchant marine subsidy and other indirect national defense benefits.

There is little doubt that a third world war, with its frightful waste of human resources as well as material wealth, would push the 59 cent dollar down still more. Continual treasury deficits at Washington, regardless of the cause, would have the same economic effect.

Hence the prediction that the average American family may have an annual income of $12,000 by the year 2000—another 50 years in fact—is not fantastic. That is if we get mixed up again in another global conflict or if we continue down the road to socialism.

As we see it, either of these causes would have the same ultimate effect.

The plight of all governments—federal, state and local—today is due primarily to postwar currency inflation (the 59 cent dollar) and secondarily to an emotional belief that we are entitled to a "better world" as compensation for our wartime sacrifices. It is this latter urge, when coupled with a desire for individual and national security, that produces the so-called "swing to the left" right into the hands of the bureaucrats. The state becomes the false hope of salvation.

Inflation is another hidden tax. It takes money away from everyone.

And yet, like the magician's rabbit, it is extremely illusive—hard to believe, hard to grasp.

If more cents are taken from the dollar, due to socialist spending or due to another war, Huey Long's "every man a king" will not be far fetched. We will have a king-size income and king-size prices as well as a king-size debt.

Block "Bleeding"

When it is desirable to apply paint over a previously stained surface, it is wise to apply a sealer first to make sure that the stain won't "bleed" through the new coating. Special compositions are available for the purpose. In some cases, shellac or aluminum paint are helpful.

Woman Has Big Job Watching Gotham Food, Eating Habits

NEW YORK.—How would your other worries compare if you had to worry about the eating habits of eight million people?

That's a thought for women who think they have it tough feeding the family. Mrs. Frances Gannon is the lady who has the job of advising eight million people how to keep eating without going broke.

She is director of consumers' service and research for the New York city department of markets, which means she keeps an ear to the supermarket floor in order to advise housewives properly on food buying.

With a staff of 17, she sees that the world's largest city is fed—both well and economically.

She runs a marketing service, taking reports from food inspectors who make daily rounds of wholesale-food markets, checking prices, quality and supply, and relaying the reports over the city radio station and through newspapers.

It's down-to-earth, practical talk on selecting, preparing and caring for food; trends in wholesale produce and fish markets, plus low-cost menu suggestions and even recipes.

The idea sprang from the depression, according to Mrs. Gannon, when New York markets were glutted with food and the city decided the best way to hold down waste was to educate the housewife.

Judge Assigns U.S. Marshals To Serve as 'Baby-Sitters'

LEXINGTON, KY. — It isn't often that federal men of any sort are stumped by any assignment, but some U. S. deputy marshals here must have cast a wary eye at Judge H. Church Ford.

At first the court session looked pretty routine to two deputies. Then it happened. A mother, charged with using the mails to defraud, came into the courtroom carrying a baby. Then her sister, who faced the same charge, also entered with a small baby in her arms.

Baby-sitting tasks were given Deputies Charles Webb and General Fugate while Judge Ford heard the cases and placed both women on probation.

Modern Soldier Presents Major Psychological Test

MEXICO CITY.—Today's professional soldier is a much bigger problem to the army psychologist than was the doughboy of 1914-1918. While his wartime problems were growing, the folks back home learned to take war in their stride.

These were conclusions in a report on "war psychoses" by Dr. J. Paraire, medical commander at Val-De-Grace hospital, Paris, France, which was read here before an international congress on military medicine and pharmacy.

Dr. Paraire said that not only were the mental difficulties of the modern soldier more complex, but there were more of them. He said there were three times as many soldiers in World War II as in World War I, and 10 times as many were in hospitals with nervous complaints.

"The second world war shows the curious result of an increase of mental disorders among armies and a decrease among the civilian population," he added.

Comparing the two wars, the difference in the type of nervous troubles is striking. The French specialist asserted that hysteria and amnesia (forgetting who one is) had just about disappeared. "In the thousands of sick returning from the fronts we have not found a single 'traveler without baggage,'" he reported.

The modern soldier's troubles tend more to show themselves in urinary upsets and disorders in the sexual organs. Dr. Paraire said this increase in complexity represented "a step in human evolution."

Contraband in a Coffin Isn't Always a Corpse

SHANGHAI — Smuggling is so rampant in Shanghai that a code for coffin control has been promulgated by the security bureau of the people's government.

Tradition says when a Chinese dies his body should be shipped to the ancient family burial ground, no matter how remote from the place of death. Some families cannot afford to send the coffins home, but there is a heavy traffic in coffins nevertheless.

Apparently the custom has been used by some for Trojan horse tactics or smuggling contraband. Henceforth, permits must be obtained to move coffins either within the city or to more distant points. Also a reputable person now must issue a "shop guarantee" to insure the shipper's fulfillment of regulations.

The order said that after three violations an undertaker would be required to suspend business. The order also said that the police had been ordered to make a thorough inspection of all coffins at highway exits and harbor embarkation points.

There are no grounds for divorce which are accepted in all 48 states.

Michigan Mirror

Michigan's state government received $506.4 million in its various operating funds in 1948-49 to finance the various programs which the state undertakes, according to a study just completed by the Bureau of Governmental Research, Detroit.

Such receipts were 67 percent greater than those the state received in 1945-46.

Seventy-two per cent of the state's revenues this past fiscal year came from taxes—such as the sales tax, cigarette tax, corporation tax, gasoline tax, weight tax, intangibles tax and many others.

Revenue from state enterprises, regulatory services, patents and convicts and miscellaneous sources accounted for 14 per cent of the total.

The remaining 14 per cent came from Washington in the form of "grants-in-aid" to help finance those programs which Congress has decided at one time or another that the state or local units should undertake.

With the exception of the charges that the state makes for certain services, all its revenues come from taxes—direct or indirect—levied upon all of us as individuals, consumers or businessmen. In most instances the tax money goes to Lansing.

But $73.1 million comes to Lansing via Washington. That money, nevertheless, is from the pockets of Michigan taxpayers.

Michigan state government paid to its local units of government 61.2 per cent of its total revenues in 1948-49. Most of this "aid" came direct from Lansing—having been raised by statewide taxes. But a portion of such aid was funneled through Lansing from Washington to the local units of government. During the past four years well over one-half of the state's revenues are distributed back to local units.

Local units of government—cities, villages, townships, school districts, counties and other special districts—and many citizens sometimes forget that this money which is "given" them by the state can come from only one source—TAXES.

TAXES regardless of what government collects them or which one in the final analysis receives them to expend are paid by all of us who receive an income.

Every dollar spent by government is a dollar the citizen does not have to spend for himself at his own choice.

SHORT STORY

Benny Wises Up

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction
BENNY got a big kick out of eavesdropping on the sheriff. It smacked of adventure and the wild life he loved. He got a bigger kick when he heard Sheriff Conrad mention Slick Dearborn.

Slick Dearborn was the smartest outlaw with whom Conrad had ever had to contend. He was Benny's idol, for he represented the dangerous freedom of which the boy had always dreamed. One day three weeks ago Benny had seen Slick in the Faraway Saloon, and something about the worshipping look in the youngster's eyes had attracted the outlaw's attention. Benny had been almost speechless with gratitude when the outlaw spoke to him. They had a long conversation, and when it was over Benny knew a sense of importance that was almost the fulfillment of his dreams.

Ear glued to the side of the building, Benny held his breath while Sheriff Conrad and his deputy, Joe Hicks, carried on their low-voiced conversation. At 4 o'clock that afternoon Benny drew rein in the secret canyon where Slick was hiding. He gave the secret whistle that he and the outlaw had agreed upon, then waited breathlessly.

Minutes passed and nothing happened. Benny moved down the canyon ways and whistled again. Suddenly two men emerged from behind a boulder. One of them was Slick Dearborn. Benny shouted at them.

"Slick, I just heard the sheriff and his deputy talkin'. They found out it was you who held up the bank last week, an' they know you're hidin' up here an' they're comin' to get yuh."
"You come with us," said Slick shortly.
"Nemmine keepin' guard," Slick called, and the other outlaw slid back to the ground. "We gotta get out of here and git fast. Kid, did anyone see you leave town?"

At four o'clock that afternoon Benny drew rein in the secret canyon where Slick was hiding. plumed from the saddle. A second shot followed, and Slick's mount went to its knees.

S LICK SWORE VIOLENTLY as Benny crawled up beside him. "You damned little rat! Thought you said nobody followed you out of town?"

"Honest Slick—" "Shut up!" Suddenly Slick seized him around the middle and leaped out of plain view of the two coming up the canyon. The pair reined in, holding their fire as the outlaw, using Benny as a shield, began shooting rapidly.

Sheriff Conrad and Joe Hicks, sensing the bandit's purpose, flung themselves from the saddle and scurried for shelter. Benny suddenly understood the purpose he was serving, suddenly knew that Slick was using him as a means of protecting his own hide.

"Slick! Slick! Lemme go. They'll blast me down in cold blood!" "Shut up, you rat!" Slick brought the barrel of his gun down crushingly on the boy's head. Benny gasped, struggled feebly, then went limp.

When Benny opened his eyes he found Sheriff Conrad and Joe Hicks bending over him. "Feeling better kid?" "Ye-es. I'm all right. Where's Slick?"

"Taken care of," Sheriff Conrad eyed Benny intently. "Listen, Benny, you better get home before your maw begins to worry. You can say you helped us run down Slick Dearborn. Fact is, you did. When we saw you talkin' with him three weeks ago we figured somethin' like this, which is why we did some talkin' so you could lead us to where he was."

"Gosh!" said Benny. There were tears in his eyes. For the first time in his life he realized what a perfectly swell guy Sheriff Conrad was.

Sterling Harris To Head County Red Cross Drive

Sterling Harris, manager of the Gamble's Store in Caro, has consented to be fund and membership chairman of the Tuscola County Chapter of the American Red Cross for 1950, according to an announcement made by chapter chairman, Lewis Garner, of Vassar.

Having been co-chairman of the 1949 fund drive, Mr. Harris will bring to the 1950 drive, which will be conducted during the month of March, the valuable experience gained last year.

To assure a successful fund and membership drive in the county in 1950, Mr. Harris will introduce many innovations of an educational nature. To start the solicitors off full of vim and vigor, he has secured the promise of cooperation from a Tuscola County resident who is an ex G. I., who had the misfortune to be taken as a prisoner of war by the Germans, and who was compelled to work in the coal mines and endure untold hardships, suffering, and privations. This ex-G. I. will tell his story at a mass meeting of all workers. He will tell them what the American Red Cross did for him and what it meant to him while a German prisoner of war. He will also relate what the county chapter has done to assist him in his problem of rehabilitation to a useful civilian life. He will also be available to the solicitors for mass meetings if the campaign bogs down and the fund raising begins to get tough.

Mr. Harris also wants to dispel the mistaken thoughts or beliefs of people that the funds contributed to the Red Cross may not be properly expended. He feels that widespread publicity in the raising, allocation, expending, and accounting of the funds is necessary to offset the remarks made by some overzealous solicitors in other recent county fund raising campaigns, who insinuated that the books of the Red Cross are not audited nor subject to an audit. He wants it emphasized, all statements made to the contrary notwithstanding, that all expenditures made by the local chapter are made only after being voted by the county committee, that the books of the county chapter treasurer are audited once a year by a competent auditor, who is in no way connected with the Red Cross. After the local audit, the books and the report of audits of each county chapter are then subjected to a review and a thorough analysis by a representative of the Area Red Cross Office located in St. Louis, Mo.

The books of the National Red Cross are audited by a nationally known firm of auditors and finally subjected to a review by the military who are acting as representatives of the United States government. A report of the national audit is on file in each local chapter office and is available to examination and inspection by any individual who might desire to see the same.

Mr. Harris feels that this procedure and these requirements, as established by the board of governors of the American Red Cross and the United States government, assures the contributing public that their contributions are properly allocated, expended, and accounted for, to the same degree that depositors of banks are assured that their deposits are fully protected, as banks must meet the requirements of state and national laws and regulations.

Red Cedar Uses
For over 100 years the western red cedar of Washington and Oregon has been logged and turned into shingles and lumber, and sold as round stuff for poles and piling. Western red cedar is used for boats, cabinet work, small boxes, drain boards, flumes, gutter, foundry patterns, hothouse framing, rowing shells and chemical tanks and vats.

Is American Public School Education Worth the Cost?

IRA DEAN MCCOY, M. D.

Ira Dean McCoy, M.D.

According to figures released by the United States Office of Education, the school population of the United States is again increasing; by 1954 the elementary schools will have added another 2,000,000 children to the rolls. Since the outbreak of World War II, American public schools and equipment have deteriorated markedly. Nearly 6,000 schools have been closed because teachers were not available, and, in 1947, 75,000 school aged children received no formal education whatsoever.

Confronted with startling facts like these, The National Education Association and many well-meaning friends of education cry for more money for education; more money to build new buildings, and more pay for teachers.

The statement that democracy cannot function without a literate electorate is true. However, the achievements of education cannot be measured in terms of money alone, despite the attempts of many people to do so. The question at hand is whether the public education now offered American school children is first of all adequate, and, secondly, whether it is worth what it costs the taxpayers today.

For more than seventy years, the cost of American public school education has been increasing. Requirements for the teaching profession have gradually stiffened; better and more expensive school buildings have been provided; additional services have been included in the educational process; more children have been kept in school for more years. However, during that seventy years, life expectancy has increased over fifteen years and the country has made scientific progress unparalleled in its history. Education, of course, is the backbone of progress.

The disinterested observer cannot avoid the conclusion that many of the difficulties faced by the public schools are not financial, but rather the results of various erroneous concepts of the educational process. In our materialistic civilization, it was to be expected that emphasis would fall on bigger and more elaborate school buildings.

As early as 1930, the total value of the property and endowments of the public schools was estimated at more than six billion dollars! In many communities the school building has become a show-place, proof that locality X has more social standing than locality Z. In some communities more is spent for janitorial service in the schools than for teachers' salaries. This does not mean that clean, well-kept buildings are not important, but an over emphasis on appearance has added thousands of unnecessary dollars to the cost of American education.

Criticism of our enormous gymnasiums, lighted athletic fields, swimming pools, etc. has been made but it must be remembered these investments serve the adult population as well. This is proper for the more we progress scientifically the more leisure we have and the more and better play grounds we have, the less will be our delinquency. A tired young body does not hunt mischief.

Because education and the construction of school buildings is a public function, educational problems have become increasingly involved with politics. This has nowhere been more evident than in the construction of school buildings, where graft and corruption take a substantial cut in the total appropriations. When additional school appropriations are spent for political graft, the educational system of the United States gains exactly nothing. It seems that graft too often creeps into public enterprises; but Michigan, with few exceptions, has had little graft in construction for educational purposes.

The constant stiffening of requirements for the teaching profession has also increased the cost of education in the United States and the difficulties involved in finding and holding adequate teachers. Unthinkingly, Americans have accepted the maxim: the more training the better teacher, without examining very closely the quality of the training or its purpose. In some teachers' colleges as many as 41 semester hours are devoted to courses in teaching techniques and educational theories. One third of the entire undergraduate work is thus devoted to technical study, and only two-thirds to the subject matter which the prospective teacher will teach her pupils in the days to come. Other teachers' training schools devote half their time to professional courses and only half to study in liberal arts. Young graduates of liberal arts colleges with excellent background in mathematics, history, or literature are forced to attend teachers' colleges for from 6 to 16 hours of credits in "education" before they may qualify for teaching.

It cannot be denied that education appears to most Americans as the avenue to social and vocational success. A college degree does not guarantee to anyone either social or financial success, but the process of obtaining a college degree opens to an individual new ways of life and creates better and greater aspirations. "That for which we desire, we strive for and that which we strive for we usually get."

It is said vocational agricultural training is given to students in the Dustbowl, who race for Chicago the moment they are through school. True, but for every boy who is trained in the field of vocational agriculture and leaves for a job in the city, hundreds are coming back disillusioned to the farm to become successful farmers.

The belief that a good educational system requires attendance by all students in some kind of school until they are 16 or 17 years of age has developed. In too many cities and states, teen-age boys and girls are forced to remain in high school even though it is obvious to their teachers, themselves, and the community that they are unable and/or unwilling to master a high school education. Their continuance in school beyond the point where it benefits them is expensive for the community and creates a difficult problem for the teacher and the school that must cope with them.

This belief is based purely on the dollar and cents involved in education. It is true some children do not profit by a formal education, but a rather large percentage of these children are from destitute or broken families and while the school does not have the complete answer it is true many of these children do adjust themselves and become valuable citizens.

Educators have constantly expanded the meaning of "education" as it applies to the public school system. No longer are the schools primarily concerned with the three "R's"; more and more school time is taken up by vocational and recreational facilities designed to make America's youth "better citizens." Those who believe that the present educational system is worth the cost, believe that it is the job of the school to give complete citizenship training and moral guidance to its pupils.

STANDARDS OF CONDUCT, OF ETHICS, AND OF MORAL AND RELIGIOUS JUDGMENTS IN A DEMOCRACY ARE MORE PROPERLY THE CONCERN OF THE HOME AND OF THE CHURCH. If these institutions are failing in their duties, how can some people assume that the schools can carry the burden? Teachers are after all human beings, like parents and churchmen, and they are no better qualified to carry the burden of inculcating moral standards. Schools must teach history and citizenship, yes, but further than this it is difficult for them to go, in spite of the size of school appropriations.

Basic to the argument is the problem of the proper function of the school. The teaching of the fundamentals—reading, writing, spelling, and arithmetic—is a prime function of the school system, a vital part of making literate citizens. Nevertheless, a shocking percentage of grammar school graduates are deficient in spelling and writing, and are unfamiliar with the commonplace multiplication tables. High school graduates with a smattering of world history, economics, and sociology are unable to handle the English language and lack sufficient simple arithmetic for even routine clerical work.

One must remember in reading this article the writer is a physician—not an educator. I have attempted to list some of the complaints I hear from taxpayers in Michigan. My personal feeling is that education in Michigan is deep in the black side of the ledger and that there are some imperfections in the whole, a great job is being done. When taxes hurt, let us remember we spend more for liquor or tobacco than we do on education. It does seem to me, however, that some system should be evolved in which the non-property holders could be made to pay a share of our school tax.

In spite of alleged wastes, education is a good financial investment. Most of our homes are owned by people who have gone through high school and very few people own life insurance policies who have not at least completed a high school education.

Does education pay? Close all our schools, place all our teachers and educators in concentration camps, burn our text books and in three or four generations we shall be well on our way back to the type of life that existed in America when our forefathers first arrived.

butterfat over 40 pounds per cow and were in the following order: Ben Loeffler of Reese with 45.7; George Foster of Postoria with 44.4; Alvah Hillman of Cass City with 44.1; Henry Opperman & Sons of Millington with 43.3; Werner List of Vassar with 41.6; Elmer Simmons of Cass City with 41.2; and Emil Engelhard of Unionville with 40.3. A grand total of 46 of the 83 herds averaged 30 pounds or more of butterfat.

Of all the cows that completed a 305-day milking period, 48 produced over 365 pounds of fat. A four year old registered Holstein produced 16,258 pounds of milk with 639 pounds of butterfat. This heifer belonged to Werner List of Vassar, who also took second place honors with a five year old registered Holstein that produced 568 pounds of fat from 16,738 pounds of milk. Next was a grade Jersey from the Ottomar Sting herd from Gagetown with 558 pounds of fat. Close fourth and fifth place was the 548 and 547 pounds of fat produced by two Holsteins of the George Foster herd. Other herd owners who had cows producing over 500 pounds of fat in the 305 day milking period were Reynold Johnson of Millington, F. B. Otherson of Unionville, and Harold Blaylock of Vassar.

Mrs. Leslie Honored On 80th Birthday

By Shabbona Correspondent.

The Shabbona church parlor was the scene of a surprise party Saturday evening, February 11, for Mrs. Dan Leslie honoring her 80th birthday and given by her family.

Mrs. Leslie, the former Mary E. Wheeler, was born in Argyle Township, the eldest daughter of A. W. and Mary Wheeler. She had four brothers and two sisters. One brother, Bruce Wheeler, and one sister, Mrs. Maud Kritzman, were present.

Mrs. Leslie was a teacher in the old Proctor school in Evergreen Township and many of the guests were former pupils.

In 1892 she was married to Daniel R. Leslie. They made their home on the Leslie Road in Evergreen Township where their son, Albert, and family now reside. Her daughters are Mrs. Harvey Fleming and Mrs. Hazel Emerick and she has 13 grandchildren and three great granddaughters. All were present except Wayne Fleming, who is serving with the U. S. Navy, in Cuba.

The party was a complete surprise to Mrs. Leslie, who when entering the parlor was greeted with "Happy Birthday" sung by her guests. She was presented with an orchid corsage by her great granddaughters, Barbara, Judy and Nancy Fleming.

The table was centered with a lovely birthday cake, flanked by baskets of red roses—one rose for each year. They were a gift from her family.

A short program was given with Alex Lindsay, Jr., as master of ceremonies. Alex Lindsay, Sr., a close friend of the family, gave some interesting remarks, telling of the country's progress during Mrs. Leslie's lifetime, after which a lunch was served with Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Emerick presiding at the tea table.

Mrs. Leslie was presented with lovely gifts, among them a beautiful housecoat from relatives and old neighbors.

A good old-fashioned visit was enjoyed by everyone. Mrs. Leslie presented each lady with a rose.

Guests were present from Argyle, Port Huron, Caro, Flint, Marquette and Detroit.

Philip Hergenreder Died at Farm Home

Philip Hergenreder passed away on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 12, at his farm residence, 2 miles east and 1 1/4 north of Kingston, after a long illness. Death was due to heart trouble. Funeral services were held at the Marsh Funeral Home in Marquette on Wednesday afternoon and were conducted by Samuel Charlton. Burial was in the Kingston cemetery.

Philip Hergenreder was born in Kukus, Russia, on Nov. 25, 1871. As a young man he came to the United States, landing in Lincoln, Nebraska, and later moved to Illinois. In 1904, he came to Michigan and settled on a farm 3 1/4 miles north-east of Kingston where he lived until his death. He attended German schools in Russia. His first marriage was with Susan Hergenreder in Russia. His second marriage was on March 13, 1904, to Katherine Thiel at Caro.

Besides his widow, he leaves four children, Mrs. George Foe of Marquette, Mrs. Arthur Hartwick of Deford, Henry Hergenreder of Kingston and Theodore Hergenreder at home; seven grandchildren; three great grandchildren; four sisters, Mrs. Christian Hackel of Peck, Mrs. Bert Geit of Cass City, Mrs. Joseph Hunt of Pontiac, and Mrs. Clinton Beardslee of Caro; and one brother, John Hergenreder of Caro. Two sons, Philip and Jacob, preceded Mr. Hergenreder in death.

S. S. Class Votes to Send Bibles to Japan

The Tri Sigma class of the Evangelical United Brethren Sunday School voted to send Bibles to Japan as a project for the group when they met with Mrs. Harve Streeter Friday evening.

Miss Johanna Hommel conducted devotionals and Mrs. John Sovey supervised a Bible quiz for which Miss Hommel and Mrs. Geo. Bartie were captains. Miss Hommel's side was victorious.

During the business meeting in charge of the president, Mrs. John Sovey, it was decided to meet once a month in the daytime instead of evenings during the winter months. Mrs. Harve Klinkman and Miss Hommel were appointed as a nominating committee to report at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anthes on Thursday, Mar. 9.

Another feature of the evening was the writing of a community letter to B. A. Elliott and son, Francis, who are patients in the Pleasant Home Hospital. Each member present added a few thoughts to the message.

Dissected valentines were matched for partners for a lunch which closed the evening's program.

In the ark with Noah there were four women—his wife and the wives of his three sons.

A total of 587 services were called for by ABA members of the five county associations. Seven new farmers signed up as members and are as follows: Dr. C. C. Bach and Mrs. Helen Birsching of Sebawaing; Harry Tittsworth, Millington; Walter Tacia, Akron; Alvin Smith, Caro, R 4; George Dunham, Caro, R 2; and Louie Franks, Jr., of Cass City. Minister Wets Feet As Plane Breaks Through Thin Ice

A Remus flier and his clergyman passenger narrowly escaped drowning when their taxiing plane broke through thin ice on Horsehead Lake Tuesday, dunking the pair in the frigid water 150 yards from shore.

The pilot, Patrick Schiffer, 24, manager of the Remus airport, said he landed on the northern end of Horsehead Lake in Martiny Township to show the Rev. John Bullock, 36, who was graduated from Cass City High School in 1932 and is now pastor of Remus Methodist Church, "how nicely the ship would taxi on the ice."

Their landing was without mishap, Mr. Bullock told State Trooper William France and Sheriff Howard L. Soper, and they taxied southeast toward the center of the lake.

"Everything went all right," Schiffer related, "until I heard the ice cracking under the plane. I said 'We've got to get out of here,' and I poured the gas to her. Then the ice broke and the ship plunged into the water."

Rev. Bullock, who "just got my feet wet," was the first to leave the plane. He pulled the pilot to safety, but not before Schiffer was "wet to the chest."

The struts on the airplane's wings rested on firmer ice and kept the craft from sinking. Schiffer and Rev. Mr. Bullock made their way precariously across the thin ice and borrowed an automobile from a party of fishermen to drive to their homes.

Later, Schiffer returned to the plane and attached a rope to it to serve as a marker in case it sank completely. The aircraft is owned by the Remus Flying Club, of which Mr. Bullock is a member.

BEAN GROWERS FAVOR COUNTY BEAN ASSOCIATION

Concluded from page 1. Graham, Caro; Elmwood, Harlan Hobart, Gaytown; Fairgrove, Robt. Foster, Fairgrove; Fremont, Ed. J. Uhl, Mayville; Gilford, Don Bradley, Fairgrove; Indianfields, Wm. Carpenter, Caro; Juniata, Joe Hess, Vassar; Kingston, Frank Schobart, Kingston; Koylton, Bruce Ruggles, Kingston; Millington, Norman Petzold, Millington; Novesta, Harley Kelley, Cass City; Tuscola, Elmer Haines, Vassar; Vassar, Dayton Davis, Vassar; Watertown, Don Valentine, Fosteris; Wells, Edgar Ross, Caro; Wisner, Fred Black, Akron.

The bean growers, processors and shippers strongly favored the four points of such an organization. First, to advertise Michigan pea beans; second, to strengthen research work on bean production and varieties; third, to publish regularly a Michigan bean bulletin available free to all members of the organization; and fourth, to protect the bean producers and the bean industry.

The association would have one cent a hundred deducted from all beans sold. This money would be matched, dollar for dollar, by the elevator association. The monies would be used to put into effect the four major points favored by the growers and elevators.

Guests at the meeting included George McIntyre of Saginaw who is a member of the state agricultural commission; Lou Taylor of Michigan Bean Company and who also is a member of the executive committee of the state agricultural conference; and George Schemm, Saginaw County campaign manager. The dinner was financed by the members of the county growers' committee and several other interested bean growers.

Township chairmen are canvassing their areas now. Material including membership books and educational leaflets are available from County Agricultural Agent Loren S. Armbruster's office in the courthouse in Caro.

Several Michigan counties including Bay and Gratiot have reported that almost 100% of the growers have signed up.

agent, on Friday morning. Applying this information, each group presented a demonstration that evening. Other subjects discussed were 4-H project requirements and 4-H records, reports and enrollments.

Nearly one-half of the time was spent in training the junior leaders to be effective recreation directors. This activity was headed by Jane Farwell, recreation director from Dodgeville, Wisconsin. She introduced such varied games, songs and stunts that none were repeated at any time during the conference. Square dancing was the favorite recreation of the junior leaders and several actually called square dances after the first day's coaching. Other forms of recreation included action songs, small group games, circle games and folk dances, team games, quiet games, and stunts.

The conference was under the direction of Assistant State Club Leaders Corrine White and Nevela Pearson of East Lansing. The Sears Roebuck Foundation sponsored this meeting and other similar meetings throughout the state.

Counties from which delegates attended the conference were Bay, Clinton, Genesee, Gratiot, Huron, Isabella, Lapeer, Lenawee, Livingston, Macomb, Midland, Monroe, Oakland, Saginaw, Sanilac, Shiawassee, St. Clair, Tuscola, Washtenaw, and Wayne.

High point men were Tom Schwaderer 13, Lee Hartell 11, and Ken Martin 10 for Cass City and for Elktion Don Cox sank 13, which also was high for the game.

The last home game for the team is tonight (Friday) and will be with Harbor Beach. Tuesday, Feb. 21, the Redhaws will play Vassar, there, and Friday, Feb. 24, they are scheduled to play Caro, also away from home. The two games away from home will start at 7 p. m.

The Cass City reserves also won their last two games, defeating Sebawaing 41 to 28 Friday night and winning over Elktion 36 to 33, on Tuesday.

Will Present Lesson, "Living Together in The Family"

Mrs. Lennah K. Backus, extension specialist in parent education and child development, will be in Tuscola County February 23 and 24. She will present the lesson, "Living Together in The Family," for the leaders of women's extension groups.

Most everyone would agree, says Mrs. Backus, that we need more happiness in families today. Although we lack a measuring stick which would give an idea of just how happy families are, we know that many do experience a great deal of happiness in their relationships together. We know also that other families fail to find any deep or lasting satisfactions.

Of course it is easier to be happy if one enjoys good health and can buy his fair share of comforts and conveniences. But one may possess these benefits and lack the peace and serenity that comes from living happily together. Strain and tension, anger or worry prevent us from getting the most out of life.

Many unpleasant situations in family living can be prevented if we will but plan for harmony as we plan for other routines in family living. Having a plan for living happily together, having a constructive attitude if the plan fails to work, can do much to improve relationships in our homes.
