WOMAN'S WORLD

Fabric Choice Hinges on Pattern
And Use for Which It Is Planned

By Ertia Haley

SO MANY NEW developments have come about in the fabric field, it's a little difficult to begin selecting the right types to use with patterns. Then, too, many women who sew, especially beginners, select pattern and fabric without considering their relation to each other.

Materials may be perfection and dream stuff, but unless you show them off to their best advantage with the proper style, both pattern and fabric lose much value.

One of the best ways to learn how to select fabrics is to handle them before buying, as well as by working with them. If you feel inept at this type of thing, take along someone who knows materials or consult the salesperson who is usually expert at telling you about the goods.

Try to avoid buying material before selecting a pattern. There are several reasons for this. First of all, your pattern gives you a guide as to how much material you'll need. Too much is a waste; too little may be impossible to replenish once you get started in the actual cutting and sewing.

Another reason for buying pattern first is that patterns give a guide as to what types of fabric are suitable for this particular pattern. In this way you can avoid looking at a lot of materials which would certainly be inappropriate to the style you have chosen.

Some patterns need materials which pleats easily; others need those which drape well while still others need a crisp material.

Select fabrics . . .

Select materials which are appropriate to the use to which you're putting them. Articles needing frequent washing should carry the fast color, pre-shrunk or sanforized labels.

Treat Materials
As Directed

It's not as common today as it was yesterday, but it still happens! That lovely dress over which someone put hours of sewing is ruined appropriate to patterns.

with its first washing, cleaning or pressing. Why? Simply, because there was no label to read or it was neglected when it came to cleaning the garment.

Smart women know what they can expect from materials before they use them. Fragile fabrics are not intended to survive hard soap and water tubbings. Some synthetics such as rayon and nylon will not take a hot iron. You'll soon find this out in the attempt,

Be Smart!

For the mature woman, lace continues to be a favorite for an evening dress that is adaptable to ever so many occasions. Designers often turn to extreme simplicity in order to bring out the full beauty of the lace, and add a tiny jacket to convert it into an informal dinner dress as needed. One of the newer touches to such a jacket is illustrated, a long sleeve, cut-away bolero that fits snugly. It is outlined with bias bands or taffeta or some other crisp silk that's used for the foundation slip. These bands may be repeated on the skirt for emphasis.

Maternity Fashion

Dressy for its coloring, and adjustable in its proportions is this maternity dress of turquoise tissue faille with ruby and gold buttons fastening the bodice. The hook and eye adjustment which allows for waistline expansion is concealed by a smart wrapped and buttoned cummerbund.

but why melt and ruin the fabric even in one spot when you could have read the label and found out?

Some materials need steaming rather than pressing, like velvet, for example. Some rayon will wash but need a cool iron and no sprinkling. Some take to a bleach while others are ruined by them. Labels will give all this information. Save the label and put in a place for safekeeping for the life of the fabric.

Irons are good guides to pressing many fabrics as heat indicators give you the right temperatures for different materials. If you are uncertain as to how any fabric will behave, test it before sewing, and see whether you can afford to treat it accordingly.

Fabrics that "handle" well give much satisfaction in their wearing as they will feel comfortable. Touch and hang fabric as you select and see if it feels nice in the hands. Note how it falls or drapes and you will have a pretty good idea of the final result.

Observe Surface of Fabric
While Cutting Pattern

Standing fiber ends are called nap or pile. Velvet, velveteen and terry cloth are examples of pile fabrics. Wool broadcloth and doeskin are examples of nap fabrics while satin is a sheen fabric.

In using any of the nap, pile or sheen fabrics, it's important to cut alike as to the direction of the surface or they will look like different colored materials when put together.

Cut all pieces with the pile, nap or sheen running the same way, which is usually down. If you feel inadequate to doing this, study the placing and cutting directions on your pattern which has a guide for you.

Many of the new fabrics have certain finishes which affect their cleaning, laundering, draping and wearing qualities. After weaving, these are processed to increase their weight or body or to prevent shrinkage or wrinkling. Some have gloss added to the surface, while others are made of water-repellent or moth-proofed.

Inquire into these different aspects when you buy, as they may affect your desire to purchase the material. Fabrics which require special cleaning may, after a few soiling, become too expensive as to upkeep, that you will cease using it. It would have been better to know this and to select some easy material to wash.

Glazed fabrics may often withstand washing, but, of course, they will not keep their shine. If this makes no difference to you, then you can go ahead and use it.

Study the ravel on the torn edge of the fabric. Some materials will be difficult to sew since they ravel so much, and then, too, the edges will have to be bound for finishing.

Lengthwise and crosswise threads sometimes get out of line as the materials are printed and rolled. These should be straightened before cutting or sewing to give a true grain. Clip the selvage, catch one crosswise thread and pull it gently out of the fabric. Cut carefully on this line and you will have one straight end.

Remove Hazards
To Prevent Fire

Although much progress has been made in fire protection equipment for certain rural areas of Michigan, a great many rural fires still result in total destruction. David Steinicke, rural fire prevention specialist at Michigan State College, says late spring and summer usually bring on an epidemic of rural fires.

With April designated as Rural Clean-Up Month, he suggests that farm families take a day to remove hazards that cause risk and worry. The Michigan Rural Safety Council has reminded farmers of this program and cooperation has been good in many areas.

Ringold Lady Dora
Garners Extra Star
First Sow Ever To Raise
Nine Champion Litters

America's champion production sow, the most prolific purebred sow in the country, has added still another star to her crown. One hundred and five pigs raised to weaning age is the remarkable new record of this queen of the hog world, the first and only sow of any breed to raise nine production star litters.

To qualify for production registry, conducted by the purebred associations, a sow must raise a litter of at least 8 pigs to a minimum weight of 320 pounds within 56 days of birth. The pigs must be approved breed type, free from fault or defect, and at least half of them must be eligible for registration. The sow gains a star in her breed production registry books each time she repeats the performance. The champion, Ringold Lady Dora, No. 753,056, a Hampshire owned by Meadowlark Farms, Inc. of Sullivan, Indiana, has repeated that performance nine times. Her first qualifying litter was farrowed September 6, 1944. Since then she has farrowed and raised spring and fall litters without a single interruption, and has raised an average of 9.5 pigs per litter. She has farrowed a total of 129 pigs and has raised 105 of them herself.

Her ninth star litter, farrowed this past fall, consisted of 10 pigs, nine of them eligible for registration. They had a litter weight of 369 pounds at the 56-day weaning age.

During that period her breeding and feeding was watched carefully. She was fed a ration consisting of corn, oats, a pelleted dairy product, some meat scrap or tankage, a little bran, and alfalfa pasture or alfalfa meal prior to each farrowing.

Grain-Blower

This grain blower, made on an Illinois farm, is constructed from scrap 14-gauge steel for the case and 1-1/2 angle iron for the frame. It is all arc welded. Grain is fed into the blower by an auger feed.

New Pig-Feeding System
Paying Off for Farmers

A pig-feeding device which might be adopted profitably by many swine raisers has been developed in northeastern California.

The "pig strainer," as it is popularly known, was invented by Jess Steiner who lives in Modoc county near Cedarville.

A new kind of creep, the "strainer" sorts pigs out by size at feeding time.

Here's how it came about: Steiner purchased buttermilk from a creamery at Alturas which he feeds as part of the ration to his hogs. He figured out that it was necessary to feed the pigs according to size, since the small animals had difficulty in getting their fair share of feed alongside the larger hogs.

Therefore, he arranged his pigs at the trough where the buttermilk and concentrates are fed in such a way that, by using creeps, the hogs naturally arranged themselves according to size.

Tree Roots Troublesome
When Invading Sewers

Tree roots mean trouble when they grow into sewers. Costly digging to free clogged drains can be avoided by a simple practice. George Adamson, of the Michigan state agricultural college, recommends use of copper sulfate or blue vitriol in freeing sewers of tree roots that may be causing stoppages.

These moderately fine crystals dissolve easily.

The indications are that the Detroit, Bay City & Western railroad will this summer be extended to Peck, 12 miles beyond Sandusky, the present terminal.

The auction sale of village lots in the Hansberger Park addition Thursday afternoon did not draw a very large crowd but the bidding was good and the lots in this new addition to Cass City brought an average of $99.00 per lot. This property was purchased in early days by Hugh Seed, one of Elkland Township's pioneer settlers, at $8 an acre. He sold it to Hugh Hansberger for $225 an acre.

The board of education has engaged nine of the 13 members of the teaching staff of the Cass City Schools. H. G. Leavens, the superintendent, has been retained at an increase of salary from $1,100 to $1,200. Grade teachers' salaries range from $475 to $525.

Anthony Doerr has sold the Gordon Tavern to Thomas Dalrymple, who expects to take possession tomorrow.

J. D. Brooker has disposed of his interest in the City Block and B. L. Middleton is the new owner. Mr. Middleton's share involves an undivided fourth interest in the property.

Claude Wheeler, who has been employed at the Exchange Bank, will begin work with the Henderson-Ames Co. Monday.

SHORT STORY

Upstream Nemesis

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

JOHN WAS ONLY 29 and already life was bitter. Today, with the rain lashing in his face, wetting the newspapers before he could pass them to customers from beneath the oil skin covering, chilled to the bone, envying those who filed into the subway entrance with their sleek, contented, well fed looks, he hated life. He hated people; hated the world.

"Paypore! Paypore! Wuxtra! Wealthy society woman slays husband and runs off with suitor! Wuxtra!"

Life had been unkind to him. Life hadn't given him the breaks. That's it. It was life's fault. Either you were born into the easy way, or you didn't have a chance. This stuff about fighting your way to the top, overcoming obstacles, being a whooping, self-made success—Nuts! You can't fight when life is against you, when the crowd is way out ahead and throwing dust into your face.

"Rich society woman knocks off her spouse! Buy a paypore, sir."

A thousand smackers! Ha! Fat chance! Not when the breaks were against you. A man was a fool to try and buck the crowds when they were against him. Like that guy in the green hat. Look at him, trying to fight his way up those stairs. Didn't the dumbhead know that it was just after 5 o'clock and hundreds of people would be coming down the stairs on their way home?

"Hey, gimme a News." There was a man at John's elbow, looking impatient and irritated. John jerked himself back to earth.

"Sure. Evening News. Here you are, mister. Thanks. Paypore! Wuxtra! Wux—"

John stopped abruptly. A shot had sounded above the pounding of rain and the rumble of traffic. It came from the direction of the stairs. There was a stir, a wild scrambling, shrieks, curses. The sea of humanity came tumbling down, pausing, shrinking away, horrified, staring at something on the ground. John glimpsed the figure lying there, grotesquely sprawled across the steps. He heard the name of Silas Berry mentioned. Judge Silas Berry.

"Hey, Newsy, how about a paper?"

John turned. It was the man in the green hat. John felt his heart pound, then stand still.

"Nice stand you got here, sonny. Must make a lot of dough. Must see a lot that happens, facing upstream like that. Didn't happen to see what occurred just now on the elevator steps did you?"

JOHN GULPED. "I heard a shot. What happened? Was somebody killed? I didn't see a thing. I was selling a paper. Who do you suppose done it?"

The cold light dimmed in the eyes of the man with the green hat. He smiled. A siren sounded. The crowd scattered. John saw Officer Mike Clancey elbowing his way towards him.

"Hi, Johnny! Look, you must have seen who did it, standing here like that. You had a view."

Johnny glanced at the man in the green hat. The man's hand was inside his coat. "Sure," he said. "Sure, I saw it all. It was that guy there."

Then he jumped. He heard the muffled explosion of a revolver, saw Clancey leap, heard shouts and swearing and knew that other cops were coming. Then he heard more shots. He felt a stinging pain in his arm. He felt something hot running down inside his sleeve. Things began to reel. He knew he was fainting . . .

Officer Clancey was bending over him when he came to. "You're all right, kid. Just a scratch. And what a break. That was Moe Consoletti. He had threatened to get Old Silas. They're both dead. And you get the reward, kid. One thousand smackers! Is that a break or is that a break?"

Michigan Mirror

By Gene Alleman

Republican leaders are headed for a showdown with Governor Williams on the latter's assertion that the proposed state corporation profits levy is not a "consumer's tax."

Owen J. Cleary, Republican state central committee chairman, has attacked the $112,316,000-tax raising levy as mere groundwork for "new deal socialism." The average Michigan citizen, Cleary said recently, "is tax-ridden almost to the point of desperation now, and resents being hoodwinked by a governor who tells him there is such a thing as a tax he doesn't pay."

In the meanwhile, Governor Williams hammers away at every opportunity on the theme that Michigan corporations should share some of their swollen postwar profits with the consumer. If corporations decline to reduce prices, which seems to be the contention of the governor's staff, then the government should step in and give the poor consumer a break by financing public services. It is another way of sharing the wealth—all at the other person's expense.

In a recent Michigan Mirror column we quoted Don Weeks, acting director of the state department of economic development. This department is seeking to raise $250,000 in contributions to keep Michigan industry in Michigan and to attract new business to our confines.

Migration of industry from Michigan is not a supposition; it is a fact. After reviewing the names of corporations which had decided to pull stakes and go elsewhere, the Michigan Mirror raised a pertinent question: What were the conditions here that prompted manufacturers to close doors and move away? We wondered whether the state corporation profits tax was a contributing factor. Certainly, the issue should be met squarely; an answer should be found, if possible.

Of the 19 industries listed by Weeks and cited in our column, the governor's staff reports that 12 left the state prior to the time when Governor Williams first advocated the profits levy.

Wonder Drug Makes Pigs Gain Faster

Proof for the claims of the wonder drugs such as streptomycin and their value in swine feeding is shown in the picture above. These two litter-mates got identical rations in a 42-day feeding test at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station at East Lansing. Both weighed 25 pounds at the start. The pig getting vitamin B-12 plus one half of one percent streptomycin with the basic 15 percent protein ration of corn, soybean oil meal, B vitamins, and minerals gained 62 pounds in 42 days. The other, getting the basic ration alone, with no streptomycin, gained only 36 pounds in 42 days.

Scientists at Michigan State College believe the streptomycin acts as an antibiotic, making favorable changes in the intestinal bacteria. Further tests will be made to determine practical ways farmers can use the method to get faster, more economical gains with swine and perhaps other livestock.

Furthermore, 10 of the 19 industries moved to states which already had corporation profits taxes ranging from 4 to 7 per cent, so we are told.

"All of the others moved to states already having a higher total of business taxes than are paid in Michigan. Three nearby states have no corporation profits tax: Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. States with corporation profit levies total 32."

Weeks was prodded by the governor's staff to compile a list of reasons why some Michigan industries had left. His report to Governor Williams is illuminating. Whereas none of the corporations gave the proposed profits levy as a specific reason for abandoning Michigan as a location, many corporations were motivated by an undesirable "labor situation" and a desire to "retrench" from high operating costs.

Fruehauf Trailer Company, for example, left Detroit for near Cleveland "in apparent resentment over some labor situation and in dissatisfaction with its local tax assessment."

"Crest Industries moved in 1948 from Detroit to Edgely, South Carolina, to get into a lower-priced labor market and to accept substantial local inducements."

Likewise, the Detroit Pneumatic Tool Company left Detroit for Utica, New York, "to escape wage pressures of the automobile industry" and to consolidate its Cleveland and Detroit operations at the new Utica plant.

Business Week on April 8 said Michigan manufacturers were concerned over the prospect of rising taxes, state and local, and over the pressure of high labor costs as set by automobile makers in contracts with the UAW-CIO. Non-automotive manufacturers are at a cost disadvantage, said Business Week.

Personal comment: The long costly strike of the UAW-CIO against the Chrysler Corporation is no advertisement for Michigan as an ideal manufacturing state. If automobile costs are increased further through pension agreements and other benefits, will still higher costs serve to attract new industry to Michigan? Or will the costs tend to encourage Michigan industry to leave?

Governor Williams contends that corporations will pay his proposed $112,000,000 increase in government spending out of their profits. The consumer will not have to pay. The levy would be an added cost absorbed by business.

Retort by G. O. P. Chairman Cleary: "New deal socialism!" Take your choice.

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

LEADERS of the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman . . . upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have brazenly rejected them. They represent that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good . . .

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good..."

PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT
Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation . . ."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

We are publishing this and other advertisements to talk to you at first hand about matters which are important to everybody.

EXHIBIT TO CONCLUDE CHICKEN-OF-TOMORROW PROJECT ON MAY 12

Fifteen Tuscola County 4-H club members and Future Farmers will conclude their Chicken-of-Tomorrow broiler feeding project with an exhibit of their best specimens at Caro on May 12, according to 4-H Club Agent Byron E. Carpenter, who made the announcement in behalf of the county youth chicken-of-tomorrow committee.

The committee met Friday and made plans for winding up the thirteen week poultry project. Club members and future farmers began their projects by getting 100 or more baby chicks the week of February 6. Accurate feed records have been kept and on May 10, all chickens will be weighed at the members' farms under the supervision of chicken-of-tomorrow committeemen.

Chicken-of-tomorrow feeders will be required to make an exhibit of at least 15 of their best cockerels. They will bring in their exhibits on Thursday, May 11, and the birds will be dressed that afternoon at the Caro Poultry Plant. The following morning, Friday, May 12, birds will be taken to the Striffler Garage salesroom where they will be judged.

On Friday afternoon, following the judging, some of the prize chickens will be sold to the public.

A farmer on his first visit to New York came out of the Grand Central station into the confusion of Forty-second street, and after standing somewhat bewildered for a few minutes walked over to a traffic officer and said, "Mister, I want to go to Central Park." "All right," said the officer. "You can go this time, but don't you ever, ever ask me again."

Red Hawks Lose First Game to Vassar

The Cass City High School baseball team got off to a bad start of their baseball season, as Vassar High beat the local crew 6 to 1.

It was simply a case of too much pitching against the local boys. Bieleine, Vassar pitcher, threw a four-hitter to the Hawks.

Eugene Kloc, Tom Schwaderer, Lee Hartel and Barb Kapala got the hits for the local boys.

Score: Cass City 1 0 0 0 0 0—1 4 0 Vassar 2 0 0 0 4 0 x—6 7 2 Batteries—Hartel, Shad and Bird; Bieleine and Cobb.

PLANS FOR MASS X-RAY SERVICE IN TUSCOLA MOVE AHEAD

Intendents will serve as area chairmen.

Miss Abbott previewed the survey to members of the board of commerce meeting at Caro on April 20.

Tuberculin testing of all school students in the county will begin May 3. Tuscola County teachers, called on to administer the simple test, will be instructed on the testing procedure in an institute at the county courthouse on April 28 at 3:00 p. m. Dr. Lloyd Savage, Caro health officer, will conduct a demonstration of the test.

Declaring that "Tuberculosis is everybody's business," Miss Abbott pointed out that "TB is not primarily a disease of youth. Contrary to popular belief, the disease now strikes hard among older people, especially among men over 40 years of age."

"The prevention of tuberculosis," she said, "depends on every individual acting to protect himself and his family from the disease. Tuscola County residents will have the opportunity for action when Christmas Seal dollars bring the portable X-ray equipment here in May. We hope every adult will extend intelligent cooperation by getting a chest X-ray."

Interest in the coming survey has been aroused throughout the county. In Caro, art students made TB posters which were displayed at the merchants' show, April 10-14 and again at the 4-H Club achievement day on April 14. A large Michigan Tuberculosis Association educational exhibit was also set up at the fairgrounds during the merchants' show.

TUSCOLA COUNTY EXTENSION OFFICE

Surpluses! This time beans. A strong advertising campaign on a national basis on the consumption of beans is about to begin. National Bean Week will be held from April 27 and carry through to May 10. The Michigan program is being carried on in cooperation with the Michigan Bean Council, the Michigan Bean Producers Association (of which the Tuscola County organization is a member) and the Michigan Bean Shippers Association.

Many rural and urban dwellers will be buying insecticides, fungicides, and herbicides in the very near future. These are to kill insects, fungi, and weeds, respectively. County Agricultural Agent Armbruster cautions users to follow manufacturers' recommendations in applying these chemicals. This is particularly true with insecticides, which can be classed in four categories as follows: (1) Highly toxic-labeled with "Skull and Crossbones" and the word "poison" in red; (2) Not so highly toxic contains the word "warning" and sometimes the skull and crossbones symbol and the word "poison"; (3) Labeled "caution"; (4) no statement of caution or warning necessary. However, the insecticide can be injurious if misused. Read the directions for usage. Follow them to the letter.

Extension Economist of Consumer Education of Michigan State College, A. B. Love, states that if each and every one in the United States would eat one extra pound of beans during National Bean Week, it would do much towards solving the over-supply or surplus bean problem. That sounds like a lot of beans to eat but according to home economists, it supplies good, wholesome food at a low price. Beans are a wise buy in that they are high in food energy, protein, minerals and vitamins.

Did you know that 68% of the T. B. deaths are now among people 40 years old and older? Also, of that age group 80% of the fatalities are among men? Children and adults from all walks of life and all sections of Tuscola County can be examined, free of charge, to have a tuberculosis test taken the latter part of May. Read articles elsewhere in the paper about this "health program of yours." There are no early symptoms of tuberculosis. Take the free test to be safe, or saved.

The Tuscola County 4-H Council board held its spring quarterly business meeting at the Wilber Memorial 4-H Building Thursday evening, April 20. The directors discussed the spring achievement programs just concluded, and made plans to seed the lawn surrounding the building. Other business included discussion of the District 4-H Council, the 4-H movie, "The Green Promise," which will be shown in Caro May 9 and 10, and the selection of 4-H club delegates to attend several camps and conferences in the near future.

4-H Club and Rural Life Sunday is May 14. 4-H members and leaders throughout Tuscola County are urged to attend the church of their choice on this special day. Ministers in some of the churches are making special plans for their services on this Rural Life or Rodeo Sunday. Club leaders and ministers will be receiving information concerning 4-H Club Sunday within the next few days.

The first summer 4-H enrollment arrived at the extension office Monday morning, April 24. This honor goes to the "Progressive 4" 4-H Club, led by Mrs. Glen Gray, Vassar. Members of this club are Beverly and Janet George, Glenda and George Gray, Ronald Nagy and Kay Williams. These early starting club members are enrolled in a variety of projects including food preparation, home furnishing, 4-H club girl, forest ranger, canning, outdoor meals, and saddle horses.

Every 4-H club member who hasn't already seen the picture should try to attend the movie, "The Green Promise," which will be shown at the Strand Theatre in Caro May 9 and 10, advises Club Agent Byron E. Carpenter. 4-H club leaders have tickets for the show and a share of advance sales for "The Green Promise" by leaders will be turned over to the 4-H building fund. The picture is about a farm family and their local 4-H club and club projects. It's a show that is recommended by movie critics for the entire family, especially for 4-H club families. If your leader hasn't tickets, they may be obtained from the county extension office.

ATTENTION! MICHIGAN DAIRY FARMERS!

Two Big Jobs This Year!

Declining prices and surplus . . . plus an emergency threatening all dairying and the entire economy of the state of Michigan . . . call for business action more than ever before by Michigan dairy farmers this year.

To organize for this campaign the American Dairy Association of Michigan has been given the responsibility of raising funds. Dairy farmers support will be given in the ADA Set-Aside for May and June, with

May earmarked for state activity and June for nationwide advertising, merchandising and research.

Working together through ADA—statewide and nationwide . . . dairy farmers are protecting their investment and building markets for a brighter future in dairying.

Further Farm Price Drops Seen Likely

Major drops in Michigan farm product prices are past, but there will likely be another 10 to 15 percent dip before we reach that "solid post-war level" around which prices may fluctuate for several years.

That's the way L. H. Brown, Michigan State College agricultural economist, sees the price situation at this time. His article, "More Price Decline?" appears in the April issue of Michigan Farm Economics, MSC's monthly extension publication of timely farm economic and management topics for farmers.

The average decline so far has been 25 percent from the early 1948 peak. Although a further 10 to 15 percent decline would leave farm prices 75 to 90 percent above pre-war, the parity ratio would drop to range between 75 and 85, the economist says. The ratio for March 1950, was 95.

These predictions assume that present indications of high non-farm employment and income are correct, that the cold war stays cold, and that a price support program will be operating about as effectively as the Agricultural Act of 1949.

Efficient farmers will still prosper following this shaking out and adjustment period, Brown predicts. But they will have to keep "on their toes." It will mean keeping finances on a sound basis, use of capital to take advantage of opportunities to buy stock when low priced, and organizing the farm business for maximum production efficiency.

Humans Get Paid To Serve Science As 'Guinea Pigs'

LONDON.—Come in and have a free honeymoon on the Harvard hospital here. In fact, you'll get paid for it.

Of course, there's a catch. The catch is that you are expected to catch a cold and snuffle a week or 10 days for science.

The hospital is in the midst of an elaborate research, financed by the ministry of health, to learn the truth about colds, what starts them and how they can be cured.

So, it offers holidays with pay to persons who don't mind putting up with a little fever. The inconvenience of enduring a nice little controlled cold, of having aches and sneezes charted by eager scientists, hasn't discouraged volunteers.

In three years more than 1,500 persons have agreed to be guinea pigs and what they have contributed to the literature of cold research has filled many fat volumes.

Could Use Chimps

"We could use chimpanzees," hospital officials say, "but they are more expensive to get and support than human volunteers."

Certain conditions are attached to the paid honeymoon or holiday offer.

Volunteers are paid three shillings (about 42 cents) a day and are entitled to a pint of free beer. They live in comfortable, prefabricated apartments with radios and telephones. There is a lot of good food, and for entertainment there are walks in the pleasant countryside, books and facilities for badminton and table tennis.

But the volunteers must keep to themselves. Their colds must be strictly their own private affairs, uncontaminated by wildcat colds or other vagrant diseases they might pick up from outsiders.

Must Remain Aloof

They must not go into taverns, shops or theaters, or ride on buses and trams. They must not permit an outsider to approach within 30 feet.

So strict is this condition that a special technique has been developed to deliver food to the pampered folks who have colds on purpose. A waiter goes to a pre-fab door with food in specially designed containers. He sets it down, rings the bell and runs. The volunteer within must count to 60 before opening the door, and by that time the waiter is expected to be 30 feet away.

For the isolated volunteers it usually is a pleasant fortnight to sit quietly and think about things. It's an ideal opportunity for a couple of friends to get off by themselves. Honeymooners are favored because they are less likely than others to stray around impatiently.

SHORT STORY

Call A Doctor

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

OGDEN TURNED over in bed, muttered, then sat bolt upright. There was a wild, unholy light in his eyes. Great globules of perspiration stood out on his forehead. His hands felt cold and clammy.

For a moment he sat rigid and tense. Slowly he relaxed. Then he switched on the bedside light. Five a.m. In four and a half hours it would be over. He would have entered Mr. Mitchell's office and said, in effect: "Mr. Mitchell, I have worked for you for three years. I am a valued employee and feel that I deserve more money."

And Mr. Mitchell would reply—Well, what would Mr. Mitchell reply?

He got out of bed without waking his wife. It was 5:30 and still dark. He went into the bathroom and turned on the shower. At 6 o'clock, fully dressed, he came downstairs. He put coffee on to boil, set a frying pan over a gas jet, cut open an orange, plugged in the toaster.

Presently he sat down to eat. He ate automatically. Food was tasteless in his mouth.

He left the house without waking Helen. During the half hour it took him to reach the office he was beset by all sorts of terrifying fancies. He grew hot, then cold. He changed his mind twice about approaching Mr. Mitchell. He thought he'd postpone the ordeal. Then he pictured himself coming home to Helen. Helen was proud of him. What would she think if he had to admit lacking the courage to face a common ordinary man like Mr. Mitchell?

Now, there was something. Mr. Mitchell was, after all, nothing more than a common ordinary man. Like himself. Built the same way. Capable of having toothaches and stomachaches and liking his eggs fried only on one side. Just a man.

Ogden tried to picture himself in Mr. Mitchell's position. What would he do if an employee of three years asked for a raise? What? Why, he'd look at the matter coldly, impersonally. He'd add things up and decide whether or not the employee was worth more to him in dollars and cents. He'd try to figure out in his own mind how little he could get away with paying.

Ah! There was something now. If you asked for a raise, act as though you deserved it. Give the impression that the possibility you weren't worth more never entered your head. It was merely a matter of arriving at a figure.

People spoke to Ogden when he entered the office. Then they looked at him curiously. He wasn't the same. He was ill. Or perhaps he had a hangover. He seemed pale. His hands trembled when he hung up his hat. He was sweating. Perhaps he should call a doctor.

At 9:05 Mr. Mitchell came in, nodding and speaking to everyone as he always did. Ogden opened his mouth to reply, but no sound came.

He wet his lips, started to rise, sat down again weakly. Mr. Mitchell's door opened. Mr. Mitchell came out. "Ogden!" he yelled, and his voice had a rasping sound.

Ogden jumped. What had he done now? Certainly Mr. Mitchell acted as though he was going to bail him out. Perhaps fire him. Good. Firing would be a relief. It would settle the whole problem. He could tell Helen that he had asked for a raise and Mitchell had fired him and it was her fault.

Mr. Mitchell was behind his desk when Ogden entered.

"Ogden, I've been thinking about you. You've proved yourself valuable to the firm. That western deal now. You did a good job. You have the sort of stuff we need in this organization. I'm the sort of man who believes in paying a man what he's worth. Now, I need a junior partner. If you're interested I'd like to groom you for the post. You'd start at double your present salary. Then in a year—Hey! Miss Ryan! Quick, a glass of water. Ogden's fainted! Good Lord, call a doctor!"

Farm Lands at MSC Used for Research

The "proving ground for Michigan's agriculture" is the term often applied to the farms of Michigan State College at East Lansing where scientists of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station carry on their research.

Byron H. Good, assistant supervisor of the MSC department of the college farm, states that 3,694 acres of land are now owned by the college, making it one of the most ideal college farms in the corn belt.

He explains that as land is acquired, it is cleaned, cleared, drained, fenced, and conditioned by the department of the college farm. It is then allotted to departments for research. At present, 2,656 acres are assigned to this work and 1,038 acres are used as the college campus.

Citing a brief history of the East Lansing land, Good states that the original purchase was 676 acres of land in 1855. From 1900 to 1923, the college added 337 acres which made a total of 1026 acres owned by the college. Additions of land have brought it to the present total of 3,694 acres.

The college farm land now includes 483 acres in permanent pasture and 375 acres in rotation pasture. Several departments cooperate in conducting pasture experiments. Many of the 1,026 animals owned by the animal husbandry and dairy departments are used in connection with pasture demonstrations, Good states.

Harvested crops occupy 1,183 acres and are used to help maintain the college herds. Woodlots take up 230 acres and are under the direction of the forestry department.

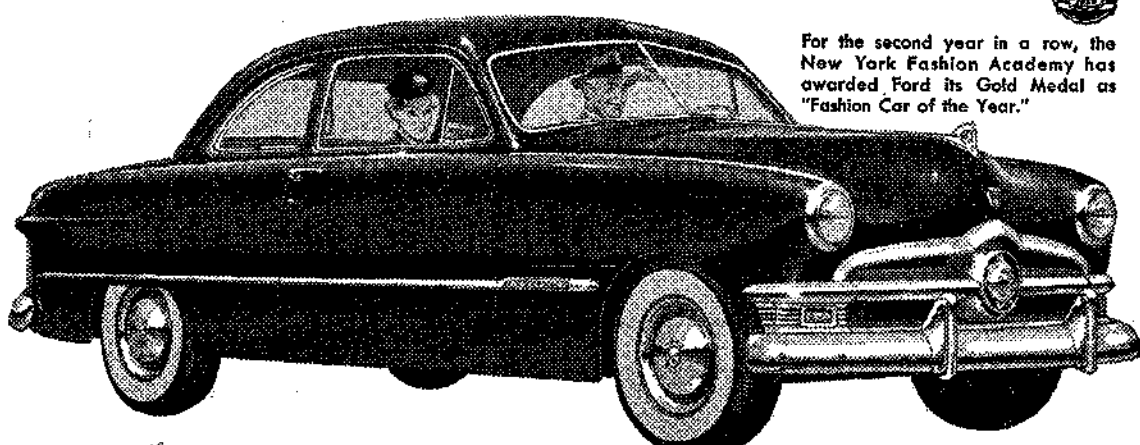

Tracts comprising 395 acres are devoted to research work in crops, soils, botany, entomology, forestry and horticulture.

ALL THAT MATTERED

Miss Green: "I know he's rich, but isn't he too old to be considered eligible?"

Miss Brown: "My dear, he's too eligible to be considered old."

Cream Separators
Cream separators flushed with hot water just before using will separate more cream than when cold.

Alfalfa Seed
Early ordering of alfalfa seed is recommended if you are to get the variety and amount you want.

Feeding Cattle
The chief merit of feeding cattle on pasture is not that it saves grain but that better use is made of the grain.

Snow in New York
Snow has been recorded at some place in New York state every month of the year, a Cornell meteorologist reports.

Farm Fires
An average of 3,500 farm people die each year because of fire.

That Should Do It

A HINT, if properly managed, may be given without offending.

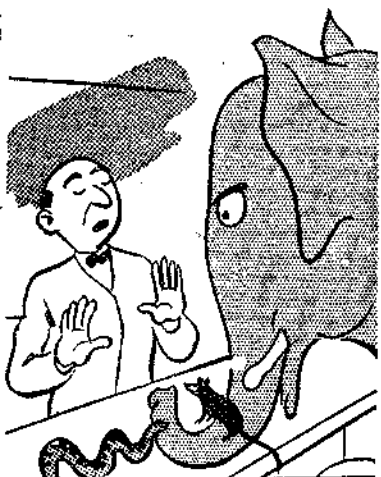

"Are you still bothered by those relatives of yours who come down from town to eat a big Sunday dinner and never invite you in return?" asked Mrs. Smith.

"No," said the unfortunate victim, "they finally took the hint."

"What did you say to them?" asked Mrs. Smith eagerly.

"Nothing was said," explained the other, "but we served sponge cake every time they came."

THEY'LL WAIT

A pink elephant, a green rat, and a yellow snake entered a cocktail bar. "You're a little early, boys," said the bartender. "He ain't here yet."

Squelcher

A miserly man was approached by a friend who did his best to persuade him to dress more in accordance with his station of life. "I'm surprised," said the friend, "that you should allow yourself to become shabby."

"But I'm not shabby," said the miser.

"Oh, but you are," said his friend. "Remember your father. He was always neatly dressed. His clothes were always well tailored and of the best material."

"Why!" shouted the other, triumphantly, "these clothes I'm wearing were father's!"

Fair Assumption

Two men, who were visiting a museum, were seen standing in front of an Egyptian mummy, over which hung a placard bearing the inscription: "B. C. 1187."

Both visitors were much mystified thereby.

"What do you make of that," said one.

"Well, I dunno; but maybe it was the number of the motor-car that killed him."

Certainly Are

"Don't you think a real friend ought to feel sympathetic when one needs money?"

"I think a good many friends in such cases are touched."

CLEVER DEVICE

First wife: "How do you get money out of your husband?"

Second wife: "Oh, I say I'm going back to mother and he immediately hands me railroad fare."

Evasive Tactics

St. Peter (welcoming Muldoon inside the Pearly Gates):—"You will find that things are done here on the grandest possible scale. With us a thousand years is but a moment, and a million dollars are but a cent."

Muldoon—"Then, St. Peter, would ye be lending me the loan of a cent?"

St. Peter—"With pleasure, Mr. Muldoon; wait just a moment."

Reduce Small Grain Weeds with Sprays

Heavy infestations of ragweed and wild mustard should not be tolerated in small grain fields any longer, says B. R. Churchill, farm crops research scientist at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station.

Chemical weed killers can eradicate both of these pests, he maintains. If there is no legume seeding in the small grain, 2,4-D at the rate of one-quarter to one-half pound acid equivalent per acre can be used. If the ester form is used, the lower rate is advised. The best time to spray the field is when grain is about 6 to 8 inches high. This applies to both winter and spring grains. Winter grains should be fall sprayed.

Mustard and ragweed plants will have 4 to 6 leaves at this time and are very susceptible to the spray. The 2,4-D can be applied in water, using about 5 gallons of water an acre. Spraying small grains with 2,4-D is very risky if a legume is present.

If seedlings are made, it is safer to use a dinitro spray, carefully following manufacturer's instructions. Spraying should be done when the small grain is 6 to 8 inches high. Spraying at the proper time is important. Alfalfa tolerates this chemical better than true clovers, Churchill points out, but when sprayed at the proper time, stands of red, alsike, and white clover are not seriously hurt. Sweet clover should not be sprayed with 2,4-D or dinitro sprays unless you are willing to sacrifice the seeding, he states.

Fields of grain over-run with bindweed can be sprayed with 2,4-D when the grain is about knee-high, using one-half pound acid equivalent per acre. Some grain injury should be expected and legume seedlings will be seriously injured.

TCA is more expensive but can be used as a spot spray to keep quack grass from spreading. Directions should be followed closely.

It's a proven fact that the person who talks the most is wrong the oftenest.

MAIL BOX CLEAN-UP

National Mail Box Improvement Week is May 1st to MAY
6th. Take a good look at YOUR mail box. Is it something of which you may be proud?

Is the post firmly set? Is the box fastened securely to the post? Is it about 4 feet high?
Are both the box and post painted white? Is your name plainly printed on it? Does the signal flag work? How about the door or lid—does it open and close easily? Is the approach free from weeds, brush, and ruts? Is it possible for the carrier to get off the highway when servicing the box? Is it large enough to hold all your mail?

If your answer is YES, fine.
It is NO, your rural mail carrier would appreciate your getting it in tip-top shape during National Mail Box Improvement Week.

Local Women Among 3,500 Delegates at National Assembly

Mrs. Arthur Moore and Mrs. Earl Douglas, representatives of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Grant and Cass City Methodist Churches, returned last week-end from the nation-wide assembly of the WSCS at Cleveland, Ohio. According to the local representatives, this body of 3,500 women from 48 states represented a group of 1,500,000 members in the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Discussions and inspirational addresses followed the general theme, "Christian Faith for a World in Revolution." The meeting sought means to insure the application of human rights on a world-wide basis. Findings and recommendations of the assembly will serve to blueprint a new international program sponsored by Methodist women in the fields of missions and human rights.

Mrs. Frank G. Brooks, of Mt. Vernon, Iowa, president of the Woman's Division of Christian Service (the executive body of the Woman's Society of Christian Service) keynoting the assembly session Tuesday afternoon, gave an interpretation of the assembly theme and objectives. She said: "Women, especially Christian women, believe there are still frontiers to be crossed. American women have been pioneers in the past and the sense of trail-blazing is strong in most of them. Crossing a frontier, whether it is the boundary line of a nation or whether it leads to new areas of experience and of thinking, involves one in many adjustments."

Guest speakers heard during the session included Bishops G. Bromley Oxnam of New York; Arthur J. Moore, Atlanta; Hazen G. Werner, Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton of New York, president of the United Board for Christian Colleges in China; Dr. Gloria M. Wyner, of New York, secretary of the International Missionary Council; Dr. Harold A. Bosley, dean of Divinity School, Duke University, Durham, N. C., and Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga.
