

Community Paid Tribute to Nation's Departed Heroes

Addresses Were Given By Rev. M. R. Vender and Chester Muntz

No warmer nor more sunshiny day could have been desired for Memorial Day than the weather man handed out Tuesday. Business streets were lined with flags and many residents displayed the national colors.

Tribute to departed heroes who made the supreme sacrifice for our country's cause was paid by a large concourse of citizens at Elkland cemetery in the afternoon. Many of these came from distant points to attend the exercises and mingle with friends.

The parade from the business section to the cemetery was the largest and most impressive in many years. A color guard headed the procession with the beginners' band next in line. Then came members of Cass City's veteran groups followed by the junior high band, Boy Scouts and Cubs and Girl Scouts, Brownies, with the senior high school band completing the line of march.

Wm. Profit, Elkland Township supervisor, presided as chairman, and the program was opened by selections by the high school band. Rev. Howard Watkins gave the invocation.

Chester Muntz, recently elected commander of Cass City Memorial Post, V. F. W., representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, two veteran organizations in Cass City, was the first speaker. He said:

"We are assembled here to pay tribute to the men and women of our community who have served in the United States armed forces—our neighbors who have fought in defense of this country—and for preservation of our way of life.

"Those men and women are worthy of far greater recognition than mere words or markers. The sacrifices they made and the deeds they performed shall be written in history, and shall remain alive in our memories for generations to come. We express sincerely our pride and gratitude for the tasks they fulfilled.

"We have come here to honor these men and women of our community who went forth as the strength of our flag. They were the United States Armed Forces on land, sea and in the air. Some of these did not return. They are the honored dead whose resting places are found in many foreign lands and waters around the globe.

"These American defenders left our schools, our shops and our farms to take up weapons against the foe. They left their peace-time pursuits with confidence in their hearts and assurance upon their lips. They were aware of the dangers before them, yet they responded without hesitancy to the call of duty.

"These are the men and women in whom we entrusted all our faith. They are the ones for whom we toiled and prayed here at home, to help make their efforts victorious, so they might return and live with us in lasting peace and security.

And in this troubled world of ours today, we hope and pray that their sacrifices were not made in vain."

Subversive Activities and Subversive Inactivities.

In the address of Rev. Melvin R. Vender, a veteran of World War II, he said in part:

"Obligations do not mean very much any more! So said a chance acquaintance with whom I conversed not long ago. If this charge or observation is true it is a rather serious state of affairs.

"Is it true that obligations do not mean much any more as we look at the American home? The number of broken homes is outstanding. Juvenile delinquency is at an all time high in frequency and in

Four Grandchildren Of Mrs. Striffler to Be Graduated in June

Mrs. Wm. D. Striffler, who was 80 years old last September, is very happy to have four grandchildren graduating from high school this June. They are Joyce Fry of Cass City, Doris Southworth of Elkton, Marjorie Orr of Pigeon and Foster Striffler of New Baltimore.

Mrs. Wm. D. Striffler, a former resident here, has spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Edward Gardiner, in Plymouth and on June 1 went to Sunshine Beach to spend the summer months with another daughter, Mrs. Robert Orr.

JOHN MUNTZ BUYS THE FIRST CASEY JONES STAMP

John Muntz, who has been a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers since 1904, had the privilege of purchasing the first "Casey Jones" postage stamp at the Cass City post office last week. The stamp was issued by the postal department honoring railroad engineers and firemen of America.

Cantatas and operas differ in that a cantata is a musical drama sung without costume, scenery or action, while those things are present in an opera.

Class of '25 Holds Silver Anniversary Reunion Saturday

On Saturday evening, May 27, the senior class of 1925 returned to their "old stamping" grounds to attend a twenty-fifth anniversary reunion. Twenty-three out of twenty-nine members were present together with their wives and husbands and guests.

Forty-five were in attendance and were seated at tables beautifully decorated with flowers in silvered covered vases and hand-painted figurines stood graciously on the tables. These decorations were in charge of Fannie Day Hutchinson. The Golden Rule Class of the Evangelical United Brethren Church prepared and served the banquet dinner which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

George Dillman, president of the class of '25, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced Mrs. Nellie Young and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Campbell as guests. The class song, with a new verse and chorus written by Ellen Newberry, was beautifully rendered with soprano voices prevailing and roll call was answered by members present. The song and roll call was recorded and it is planned to send records to those members that were not able to attend. The class thanks Harold and Evelyn Wells for this cooperation.

Supt. Willis Campbell spoke briefly, followed by each of the members who introduced his wife or her husband and gave a brief life history.

Mary Striffler Gardiner read messages from absent members and gave the class statistics. The group closed the meeting by singing an old song, that, as seniors in 1925, seemed to be so popular with them, "The Quilting" degree of crimes committed. A judge in one of our courts, in sentencing a 17-year-old boy a few weeks ago said, "I ought to be sentencing the boy's mother instead, who failed in her responsibility in home training." (Circuit Court Judge James Breaker, Jr., of Ann Arbor).

"Is it true in its application to church, and fraternal institutions and in the matter of citizenship that obligations do not mean very much any more? That obligations or responsibilities are taken lightly, that promises are made with tongue in cheek, or made with mental reservations? "It seems to be true that many evade responsibility, or shift it to others. We let 'George do it' and then how we love to criticize.

"We hear and read much these days about 'Subversive Activities' by aliens in our midst, or by some who have pledged allegiance to the United States. By definition subversive means: 'to block or hinder, to undermine, or to overthrow.'

"We are more or less familiar with the types of subversive activities that we read about in our newspapers, or hear about over the air. I want to suggest what I conceive to be activities which by definition are at least indirectly and ultimately subversive comparatively, and sometimes to a commensurate degree, I fear, in effect.

"Are not party politics subversive in effect when such are placed ahead of national welfare, or are detrimental to world peace?

"Isolationism and selfish business and trade interests at the expense of world reconstruction and peace must be classified it seems to me as subversive! Racial discrimination and the work of any individual, group or institution that thwarts the operation and growth of democracy in the home front, or creates suspicions and doubts about it abroad surely, according to definition and results, are subversive to Communism and hence subversive to the best interests of the United States, and the world in ultimate effect. What grieve this is for the Propaganda Mill of Stalin!

"Then, too, we have what may be termed Subversive Inactivities. When citizens fail to use the ballot and measure up to their obligations, much could happen in America. Any strong, well-organized minority group, we are told, could swing most any national election. Failure to keep informed as citizens, and to use our ballot or influence for constructive measures of community, national or world weal must be classed as subversive inactivity for such can be very detrimental to the common good.

"To sin by silence when we should speak," said Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "makes cowards out of men, and the few who dare must speak and speak again to right the wrongs of many."

"In the sixth century B. C., the prophet Obadiah said to the Edomites (neighbor cousins) who stood apart from giving aid in a time of crisis to their neighbor state, thus allowing a common enemy to destroy Jerusalem and the Temple, and enslave the people, declared: 'In the day that you stood aloof you were as one of them.' (The enemy). I say very candidly that by some of these activities and inactivities, which have been mentioned, comfort is given to the enemies of democracy and our beloved nation and are hence subversive.

"We indeed need a higher sense of moral and civic obligation if America is to fulfill the high destiny which her power, position and opportunity afford.

"We have an obligation to the dispossessed and war victims of the world. Our surpluses which we so blandly and blindly destroy or allow to rot could be such a power for humanitarianism and peace purposes, afford Russia a great talking point. What must the hungry people of the earth think of a nation that calls itself, democratic, peace loving and Christian that practices and allows such a fallacious situation to exist and to recur?

"Russia as many concede has taken the initiative from the West in the winning of the minds of men, and the spread of her political and economic domination. Says Barbara Ward, 'It would take a bold man today to say that the western world has a clear strategy for countering the propaganda lead which Russia has taken from us in the cold war.' (Atlantic Monthly, May).

"We have an obligation to continue to work through and support the United Nations. We need to have a peace department at Washington as well as a war department.

"Two world wars have not brought us peace, but only less democracy, less freedom, and multiplied and intensified problems. War must be outlawed. The McMahon and Tidings resolutions in the Senate bear study and support as major sensible, positive and constructive means toward peace.

"Someone has said that 'all we learn from history is that we do not learn from history.'

"We would do well to heed the counsel of our first President, George Washington. 'Let us as a nation be just, observe good faith toward all nations, cultivate peace and harmony, and to give to all mankind the example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and goodwill.'

"Finally, we have an obligation to our beloved dead. Today we honor their memory. We will only measure up to our obligation to them, and to our God supremely, to our homes and nation and world when and if 'we here highly resolve to dedicate ourselves afresh to the unfinished tasks, to the laying of the beams of justice and peace on the earth which will bring the better future into birth.

"For in the day that we stand aloof (or perpetuate these subversive activities and inactivities) 'we are as one of them'—the enemies of America and peace.

Taps Are Sounded.

The exercises were closed by the firing squad, taps sounded by two band members, and the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

The use of the public address system of the Gavel Club carried the voices of the speakers to all who desired to hear. This convenience was greatly appreciated by the audience.

Just to Be Sure

Two expert pickpockets were strolling along the road together. Every now and then one of them would stop, take out his watch and look at it.

His companion began to get annoyed.

"I say, Jim," he said, "what's up with you? Why d'yer keep looking at your ticker? Ain't it going, or something?"

"I'm not looking at it to see the time," said the other; "I'm looking at it to make sure that it's still there."

NO FOOLING!

Dealer: "This vase is over 2000 years old, sir."

American Millionaire: "Oh, yeah. Don't try to pull that stuff over on me. It's only 1850 now."

Dad Had A Good Line

A little boy who was late for Sunday school had to stand up before the class and explain the reason for his tardiness. "I tried to go fishing," he said, "but Daddy wouldn't let me."

"You're lucky to have a father like that," the teacher remarked. "And I suppose he told you why you shouldn't go fishing today?"

"Yes, ma'am," the little boy answered. "He said there wasn't enough bait for both of us."

Naval Engagement

Concerned about her husband in the navy, a young wife sent a note to her pastor. It reached him as he ascended the pulpit, and read: "John Anderson having gone to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safety."

Looking over it hastily, the minister read aloud, "John Anderson having gone to see his wife, desires the prayers of the congregation for his safety."

Nourishing Desserts Build Family Health Just as Other Foods

THIS DESSERT at your home something that's used just as a filler, to take up that empty space at the close of a none too hearty meal? Or, is it well designed to do its share of assuming some of the nutrients should belong in the balanced diet? If you can't answer the question, then look to the desserts of the past week. If they were all starchy foods lacking in fruit or berries, milk and eggs, they are not being planned with the health of the family in mind.

It's all very well to serve cakes and pies, but desserts should also include plenty of fruits and milk and eggs to be truly health-building. When youngsters skip their milk, refuse their eggs or turn thumbs down on breakfast fruits, include these in luncheon and dinner desserts.

Nourishing Desserts Build Family Health Just as Other Foods

hour or until firm. Serve with partially frozen whipped cream.

Toasted Pears
(Serves 6)
6 large fresh pears
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup melted butter
¾ cups corn flakes
Sauce:
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
1 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Peel, halve and core pears. Dip at once into lemon juice in which sugar has been dissolved. Dip in melted butter. Roll in crushed corn flakes. Arrange cut side up on a shallow baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°-375°) for 20 to 25 minutes, or until pears are tender but not soft. To make lemon cream sauce, beat confectioners' sugar into the sour cream and flavor with lemon juice.

Fruit Marlow
(Serves 6)
½ pound marshmallows, quartered
1 cup strong hot coffee
1 cup whipped cream
1½ cups fruit cocktail, drained
Dissolve marshmallows in coffee in top of double boiler. Cool until mixture begins to thicken. Fold in whipped cream and drained fruit cocktail. Pour into sherbet glasses and chill.

Caramel Baked Apples
(Serves 6-8)
6-8 medium apples
¾ cup seedless raisins
3 tablespoons enriched flour
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup water
¾ cup orange juice

Wash apples and core. Pare about one strip around top. Place in deep baking dish. Fill centers with raisins. Combine flour, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in butter with pastry blender or fork. Add walnuts. Sprinkle crumb mixture over apples. Pour over water and orange juice. Bake uncovered in moderate oven (350°) one hour, basting occasionally. Serve with cream.

Fig Bread Pudding
(Serves 8-10)
2 cups dry bread crumbs
1 quart hot milk
¼ cup sugar
1 cup chopped figs
¾ tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup melted butter
3 eggs
Salt
¾ cup chopped nuts

Add crumbs to hot milk and set aside to cool, then add all other ingredients and pour into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake at 325° for one hour.

Apricot-Marshmallow Betty
(Serves 6-8)
1 pound (3 cups) quartered dried apricots, cooked
5 cups toasted white bread cubes
1 pound (about 16) marshmallows, quartered
1 cup liquid from apricots
1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter

Alternate layers of apricots, bread cubes and marshmallows in greased 6x10-inch baking dish. Top layer should be bread cubes. Heat apricot juice to boiling; add lemon peel and juice and butter; pour over. Bake uncovered in moderate oven (350°) about 35 minutes. Note: Add four cups water to dried apricots, cover, simmer tender.

Stewed pears will take on a festive touch if you serve them with chilled custard and then top with meringue, browned until golden.

Mix some herbs with bread or cracker crumbs before breading veal or other meats.

Fried sausages are just as good with fried pears as with apples. Fry the pears in the sausage drippings just as you would the apples.

Smart garnish for a fish dinner uses tiny red beets, cooked and chilled, served in salted sour cream.

Nourishing Desserts Build Family Health Just as Other Foods

THIS DESSERT at your home something that's used just as a filler, to take up that empty space at the close of a none too hearty meal? Or, is it well designed to do its share of assuming some of the nutrients should belong in the balanced diet? If you can't answer the question, then look to the desserts of the past week. If they were all starchy foods lacking in fruit or berries, milk and eggs, they are not being planned with the health of the family in mind.

Apricot-Marshmallow Betty
(Serves 6-8)
1 pound (3 cups) quartered dried apricots, cooked
5 cups toasted white bread cubes
1 pound (about 16) marshmallows, quartered
1 cup liquid from apricots
1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter

Alternate layers of apricots, bread cubes and marshmallows in greased 6x10-inch baking dish. Top layer should be bread cubes. Heat apricot juice to boiling; add lemon peel and juice and butter; pour over. Bake uncovered in moderate oven (350°) about 35 minutes. Note: Add four cups water to dried apricots, cover, simmer tender.

Harold Walker and Miss Cowan Wed

Baskets of red gladioli and white carnations and lighted candelabra formed the background for the ceremony at the altar of the First Presbyterian Church at Decker-ville recently when Miss Frances H. Cowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Cowan of Decker-ville, spoke her marriage vows to Harold L. Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Walker, of Argyle. Rev. Paul Heberlein read the double ring service before about 300 relatives and friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown fashioned along colonial lines. The fitted bodice had a net yoke edged with wide chantilly lace, in an off the shoulder effect. The full skirt ended in a long train. The front hem of the skirt was shirred in scalloped effect to show lace inserts. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held in place with a headband of orange blossoms and she wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Catherine Johnston in a gown of aqua organdy was maid of honor. She wore matching mitts and coronet and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Janice McMahon of Cass City, cousin of the groom, in white organdy over bittersweet satin, was bridesmaid. Her tiara and mitts were also of white organdy and she carried yellow carnations. Gerald McLean was best man for the groom and was also assisted by Harold Cowan. Walter Lanning and Wendell Whitman seated the guests.

Mrs. Harleigh Merriman played the wedding march and accompanied Mrs. Paul Heberlein when she sang "Because" before the ceremony.

Mrs. Cowan chose for her daughter's wedding a navy blue dress with white accessories. Mrs. Walker wore a gray and maroon print dress. She also wore white accessories. Both mothers had corsages of deep pink rosebuds.

A reception was held at the Pleasure Dome at Port Sanilac for about 600 relatives and friends. The young couple's honeymoon was spent in a trip to Niagara Falls.

Guests present at the wedding from Cass City were Mrs. James McMahon and daughter, Janice, and Mr. and Mrs. John Jans.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker are employed by the Johnson Milk Co. and are making their home near Decker-ville.

Do It Every Time!

The grizzled old beggar had chopped his quota of stovewood and the kind lady had admitted him to the kitchen for her meal. She was an inquisitive person, and while the tramp made away with all the food placed before him, she set up an endless line of questioning.

"And what was your occupation before you fell into this sad plight, my man?" she asked.

"I was a sailor, mum," said the bum between mouthfuls.

"Oh, a sailor. Well, you must have had some exciting adventures then?"

"That I did, mum. Why once, mum, I was shipwrecked on the coast of South Africa, and there I came across a tribe of wild women, who had no tongues."

"Mercy!" exclaimed the inquisitive woman. "Why how could they talk, then?"

"They couldn't, mum," replied the man, reaching for his hat and the last piece of bread on the plate. "That's what made them wild."

NO ALIBI

WE'LL SUFFER, KATE!

Young Husband: "This pie is burnt. Send it back to the store."

Young Wife: "I didn't buy it. It's my own cremation."

Family Row

"I married a widow with six children. I had five myself by my late wife. We had been married four years and our union had been blessed with three more, and the other day my wife came in hurriedly and said, come into the yard, quick! for goodness sake, hurry! there is a terrible row going on, and I said, 'what is it?' Well, she said 'your children, and my children are whipping our children.'"

Now He Knows

A mother was taking her young son for a ride in the car. On their way home, the lad asked: "Mother, where are all the infernal idiots?"

"Why, Son," she replied, "they only happen to be on the highway when your father is driving."

What's The Use?

"Do you think a man should tell all his thoughts and actions to his wife?"

"That would be a waste of time. She already knows all his thoughts, and the neighbors keep her informed of his actions."

Correct!

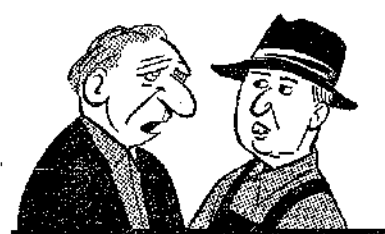

"There is direct and indirect taxation. Give me an example of indirect taxation."

"The dog tax, sir."

"How is that?"

"The dog does not have to pay it."

THAT'S WHAT HE MEANT

"If there were three crows on a fence post and I shot one, how many would be left?"

"Two left."

"I'm afraid you don't get the point. Let me repeat the joke. There were three crows on the fence post; I shot one. How many would be left?"

"No. None would be left, because if I shot one, then the other two would fly away."

"Isn't that what I've been saying? Two left."

Trees Planted By Washington Still Standing

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sixteen trees still standing at George Washington's Mount Vernon estate are undoubtedly among those planted by Washington himself. This has been announced following the application by Mount Vernon families of "detective methods" to history to determine the announced fact.

Robert B. Fisher, horticulturist at Mount Vernon since 1946, says it is virtually certain that 16 trees in an exhibition area near the mansion date back to about 1785.

In 1850 Benson J. Lossing wrote in a book: "I have before me the original plan of these grounds (Mount Vernon) made by Washington's own hands. It is very carefully drawn, the exact position and name of every tree to be planted are laid down."

Plan Disappeared

This plan has disappeared, but the book contains reproductions of portions of it. With this the Mount Vernon authorities have been able to locate the exact spots where Washington planted trees of various types. Today some trees of this type still are growing at these exact spots and are of the size they would be if Washington, or his slaves, planted them.

Washington was a tree-lover. His diaries contain scores of notes about trips he made to nearby Virginia forests to mark especially beautiful trees for transplanting to the mansion yards; of specimens or seeds obtained for him by such people as Thomas Jefferson, or of orders he had given his plantation staff concerning tree planting.

"It is always in one's power to cut a tree down, but time only can place them where one would have them, after the ground (ground) is stripped of them," he wrote in 1795 from Philadelphia to his manager, William Pearce.

He also told Pearce that as a general rule whenever a field was to be cleared, some single trees or clumps were to be left.

May Have Planted 42

Some students believed as late as 1932 that around 42 trees dated back to Washington's time, but only the 16 now are included in the "undoubtedly planted by Washington" class.

"It's entirely possible that General Washington himself took a hand in the actual planting of some of them, at least he probably stood by and directed the work personally," Fisher says. "That is certain because of the interest he showed in the estate, the evidence of which is in his diaries and other writings."

The 16 trees consist of two white ash (Fraxinus Americana), one American elm (Ulmus Americana), one hemlock (Tsuga Canadensis), four American hollies (Ilex Opaca), two honey locusts (Gleditsia Triacanthos), two Kentucky coffee bean trees (Gymnocladus Dioica), one Linden or Lime (Tilia Glabra), one white mulberry (Morus Alba), two poplars (Liriodendron Tulipifera).

The discovery of some old photographs eliminated many trees from the list that up to that time had been designated "Washington planted."

These are wet plate photographs taken at about the same time of the Civil War, showing trees near the mansion.

Navajos Remain Relaxed As World End Predicted

AZTEC, N. M.—Sixty thousand Navajos didn't bat an eye at a medicine man's prediction that the world was going to explode before next winter.

But 300 white neighbors rushed down to buy extra copies of the weekly Aztec Review, which carried the prediction, and discuss it excitedly with their neighbors. The prediction came from an elderly, unidentified medicine man who noted that the ants and squirrels had not bothered to store food for this so-far mild winter. As a result, he concluded that next winter would never arrive.

His exact prediction was that Shiprock, a huge volcanic slab which can be seen for miles across the desert, would "blow big ship blow, go high in air, fall down on white man and John Collier." Collier was commissioner of Indian affairs under the late President Roosevelt.

The medicine man said the white man was to be punished because of his treatment of the Navajos (which once drew a congressional investigation) and because "the white man lives crazy-like."

The tribal leader indicated a few Navajos would survive the desert holocaust he predicted, and that he would be among them. But he held out no hope for any of his white brethren.

Townfolk who plant crops half by Indian lore and half by seed catalogs indicated they were impressed by snapping up 800 extra copies of George Bowra's Aztec Review.

"However," the editor Bowra, said, "nobody's been impressed enough to offer me his bank book, house or farm yet."

It Worked

A burglar was one night engaged in stowing a good haul of plunder in his bag when he was startled by a touch on the shoulder, and, turning his head, he beheld a venerable, mild-eyed clergyman gazing sadly at him.

"Oh, my brother," groaned the reverend gentleman, "wouldst thou rob me? Turn, I beseech thee—turn from thy evil ways. Return those stolen goods and depart in peace, for I am merciful and forgive. Begone!"

And the burglar, only too thankful at not being given into custody of the police, obeyed and slunk swiftly off.

Then the good old man carefully and quietly packed the plunder into another bag and walked softly (so as not to disturb the slumber of the inmates) out of the house and away into the silent night.

DON'T WASTE ANYTHING

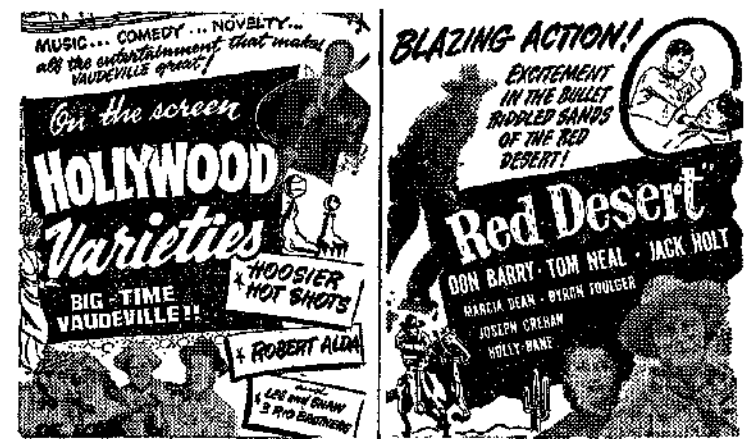

Said the mountain guide: "Don't go too near the edge of that precipice; it's dangerous. But if you do fall, remember to look to the left, you'll get a wonderful view!"

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

Sound Mind Makes a Sound Body

TODAY'S PIECE is inspired by a woman who lives in Flushing, New York, and who requests that we use only her initials, L. B. Mrs. L. B.'s husband has been ill a long time, not down and out, but always feeling bad. Eventually he developed nervous indigestion (which usually comes from worry). Months after months he frequented the doctors' offices, trying first one and then the other. He got no better; if anything, he was consistently getting worse. Finally, he consulted a chiropractor who gave him treatments for a couple of months. But still there was no improvement in his condition. He said he could see that he was not only not improving, he was steadily becoming a chronic invalid.

Then one day Mrs. L. B. read a list of books in a newspaper that doctors recommended for nervous patients, patients suffering from nervous disorders of any kind. She went right out and bought some of these books. Why, they didn't seem in the least like medical books. Instead they were just "common-sense books." But she read them, and she persuaded her husband to read them. This wasn't difficult to do for he was like the proverbial drowning man grasping for a straw. He was sick of being sick!

What particular thought do you think carried through for Mr. L. B.? Just this: To live one day at a time, and not to worry about the past nor to take heed for the future.

"Why, when he started that course," says Mrs. L. B., "he at once began to improve. He became less nervous, he discarded the idea newly developed that he must have heart trouble, and he even enjoyed playing with our six-year-old son whose noise and activities so recently had unnerved him."

"In an amazingly short time my husband was completely cured. I hope our experience may help some of your readers whose trouble, though maybe unknown to them, is purely mental. We have found to our great benefit that when the mental attitude is right little will go wrong with the physical self."

Mr. and Mrs. John McKichan of Pontiac were Decoration Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Karr.

Misses Betty Townsend, Barbara Fort, Una Dewey and Donna Hildinger enjoyed a vacation at Mio from Saturday to Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Wood and children, Chuckie and Sue, were guests of Mr. Wood's mother, Mrs. L. I. Wood, from Sunday to Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hurt and children, Marvin and David, of Lansing spent from Friday until Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Bowen.

Mrs. H. M. Willis had as callers on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Willis of Caro and visitors on Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Willis and son, Gordon, of Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. Wm. McLean and daughter, Flora, spent the week end in Detroit. While there they attended the wedding of Betty Anne Smith, daughter of Mrs. Esther Smith, formerly of Cass City, and Kenneth Raymond Herlet in St. Andrew's Methodist Church in Detroit on Friday, May 26. They were also guests at the reception in the church parlor, immediately following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Corpron of Caro, Nev., left Monday to return to their home. Mrs. Corpron has spent four months with her sister, Mrs. Milton Hoffman, here, and with other relatives and friends in Michigan. Mrs. Corpron had spent two weeks here. A native of California, he was visiting the East and Michigan for the first time. Monday night and Tuesday they spent with Dr. and Mrs. B. K. Pierce at Coldwater and will visit Yellowstone National Park and other places of interest en route to their home.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Grace Burkhardt of Berryville, Ark.: "I remember when you could buy a big heart-shaped cake and a big cake with a little picture pasted on it. I guess it was just sweetened paraffin and it wasn't very good, but there was surely a lot of it for a penny."

Mrs. Verna Nelson of Meigs, Ark.: "I can remember going to the mill several miles from our home with a sack of wheat and bringing back large, heavy sacks of flour."

From Clara Weppeler of Cassopolis, Ok.: "I remember when my mother cooked soup from meat rinds, grease and lye from wood ashes mixed with some bought lye. She not only made soft soap but she had soap we used for household purposes. We never bought bar of laundry or toilet soap until 1907."

From L. B. Berchauer of LaCrosse, Wis.: "I remember the deep snow Illinois used to have, 60 years ago. Around the warm wood stoves on those cold nights we ate apples and popcorn, popped in a wire pepper over the hot coals in the stove."

From Mrs. Mary Stewart of Chicago: "I remember when grocery stores had several large, black, japanned tin boxes with various sizes - cooking, gumdrops, green tea, English breakfast, Swiss milk. Ten cents worth lasted a long time."

Proper Milk Cooling Necessary for Grade Warm Milk Excellent For Bacteria Breeding

Milk must be cooled properly in order to be classed as Grade A. Unsatisfactory cooling can make good pasture, a healthy herd and observance of all health and management rules look mighty sick.

To preserve quality, milk should be cooled to 50 degrees or lower soon after it is drawn. Milk is cooled in one of three ways on the farm: by water, ice and mechanical refrigeration.

Electric milk coolers are thermostatically controlled and use from 25 to 30 KWH per month to cool 10 gallons of milk per day. Even they, however, might be improved.

One attempt to do this is illustrated in the accompanying photograph. It shows a farmer setting a timer to operate an extra agitator on a conventional cooler. By means of this special equipment, he starts building up the ice bank in the cooler the minute the milk cans are immersed. There is no waiting for the escaping heat from the milk to set the cooling mechanism in action.

Small Acreage Farmers Practice Conservation

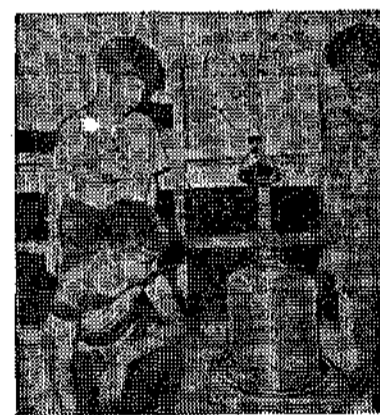

Small-farm operators are beginning to change their belief that soil conservation is a luxury they can't afford.

Thousands of small farms are now practicing all-out soil conservation with exciting results.

Back in the 1930's, a farming magazine recalls, farmers were told to cut down on corn and small grain. The idea was to keep more of the land in grass and most of the rest in hay crops most of the time.

After giving soil conservation a try, thousands of operators of small farms have now concluded, the magazine finds, that one can raise more of everything. Some have doubled production in just a few years under soil conservation practices.

Broilers Need Water

Broilers need water to put on weight. Laying hens need it to maintain satisfactory egg production. And they need it all year round—winter and summer.

In years past, poultry waterers required almost constant attention during the winter. Often the battle against ice was fought with steaming kettles of water.

One method of overcoming this problem is presented in the accompanying illustration. It shows the installation of a heat lamp over a common type of waterer. The warmth produced is sufficient to keep the water free of ice as well as to prevent litter from becoming wet around the waterer.

Dry Silage Sometimes Contains Few Vitamins

Dry silage, which has been subjected to long-continued, high heat of fermentation, has little carotene of Vitamin-A content left in it. Carotene usually is badly needed to supplement the other ration.

The farmer with several silos to fill should start several days ahead of when the kernels have finished denting to avoid ending up the silo-filling with corn that is "ratte dry" as it is known in.

The want ads are newsy, too.

Marriage Training Is Popular Course For Boys, Young Men

NEW YORK. — Education for marriage and family living, long the primary concern for girls, is being expanded rapidly among boys and young men—largely at their own request. That's the report of Dr. Ernest G. Osborne, professor of education at Teachers' college, Columbia university.

Extra-curricular courses on courtship, marriage and family life are being organized or are already underway at Princeton, Amherst, Rutgers and Cornell, Dr. Osborne said.

In line with this trend, the national committee on work with boys of the Young Men's Christian association have appointed a commission to study ways of "family centering" its programs, providing more education for family life and more opportunities for family activities. Results of the investigation and the commission's recommendations will go to all Y.M.C.A. boys' work secretaries.

Dr. Osborne, who is also president of the National Council on Family Relations, discussed the use of films in family education courses.

He explored briefly some of the difficulties resulting from the self-deception involved in romantic love. He discussed a study of different personality types and how they react in moments of stress. It is essential that the showing of such films be preceded by preparatory work and followed by well-aided discussions, Dr. Osborne said. Pictures that are intended only to raise a problem for discussion can create anxiety and tension in the audience if the difficulties presented are not talked about afterward with a skilled leader in charge.

Developing a feeling of guilt and a sense of sin may be all right in religion, Dr. Osborne said, but his experience has convinced him that such negative feelings create a poor basis for building better personal relationships. It is easy to get across to people the idea that they have fallen down, but it is not very helpful.

Police Find, And Deliver Stolen Gary Owner Sleeps

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — A former New Yorker who had lived here only two months got a sample of the efficiency of Milwaukee police recently.

So impressed was the new Milwaukeean, Adolph Mandl, that he telephoned the newspaper to tell about it.

"Imagine," said Mandl "They woke me up and said my car had been stolen and they had recovered it. I didn't even know it was stolen. Not only that, but they were extremely courteous. Extremely courteous."

Mandl's car had been parked in front of his apartment. The thief lacking an ignition key, tried to start it by crossing the wires. Unsuccessful, he stopped a taxicab driver and asked for a push.

The cabby pushed the car for blocks, but it wouldn't start. Disgusted, the cabby halted. He lifted the car hood and looked at the engine. He saw the crossed wires and concluded that he had been aiding a thief.

He stalled, hoping a policeman might come along.

When Patrolman Joseph Miszewski chanced to come by a few minutes later, the cabby halted him.

The thief ran. The policeman and the cabby couldn't overtake him.

Patrolman Miszewski notified the detective bureau. The license number was checked. A few minutes later, Patrolman Raymond Bednarek and Henry Kublak were on their way to Mandl's apartment.

Supersonic Dentist Drill To Eliminate Much Pain

ST. LOUIS. — Researchers are perfecting a supersonic dental drill that is supposed to be painless, it was reported today.

The new gadget is a device that eliminates the pain of a conventional drill by shooting a stream of gas and abrasive at the tooth.

Air dent first was brought to public attention in 1945 by its originator, Dr. Robert Black, Corpus Christi, Tex. Now hand-tooled models of the device are being tested at college dental schools, including Washington University here.

Washington researchers said that so far results with the new drill had been encouraging. They said some of the voluntary patients did not agree airtent is entirely painless, but most say it is an amazing improvement over regular drills.

The colleges are working to take any bugs out of the instrument before it is put on the market, and to develop possible improvements in the present working models.

The main apparatus of airtent resembles a conventional drill, but it never comes in contact with the tooth.

Another part of the apparatus is a thick rubber hose with a metal mouthpiece at the end. This acts like a vacuum cleaner to suck the abrasive from the patient's mouth.

GAGETOWN

Mrs. Jack Brazzell and Mrs. Ella Livingston of Royal Oak spent Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Anker. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Gillies and Albert Burdette of Port Huron visited the Ankers.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Conner and family of Detroit were Saturday and Sunday guests of Mrs. Daniel Mullin and daughter, Veronica.

Mrs. Ethel Bartow of Lam visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. William Ashmore and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rabideau moved last week to the property on Gage St. which they recently purchased from Clarence King.

Mrs. C. P. Hunter attended the wedding Monday morning of Joseph Hunter in Detroit.

Richard Burdon has purchased a lot on South St. and has the basement started for a new house.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seurynek have their house which they purchased from Zeffery LaClair on South St., raised and are building a basement and making other improvements.

William C. Hunter is building an addition to his home on State St. and when completed will be the Hunter Funeral Home. He is also adding a garage.

Mrs. Mary Mosack went to Pontiac Saturday to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Mosack and with relatives in Detroit.

Dr. Henry J. Shannon of Detroit spent from Friday until Tuesday with his mother, Mrs. Mary Germain. They together with Mrs. J. C. Armitage went to Saginaw Sunday where they visited with Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Abele.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Freeman and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Freeman of Saginaw and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Freeman of Carrollton were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Rocheleau.

Miss Helen Quinn of Detroit spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quinn.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maul of Detroit is spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Anna High.

Harry Denmore, who was in Saginaw General Hospital last week for treatment, was brought home on Friday and is somewhat improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hemerick and Miss M. Burleigh moved to Rose Island last week to spend the summer at the Hemerick cottage.

GREENLEAF

Extension Club—

The Greenleaf Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Charles Bond, Sr., Friday afternoon, May 26. Twelve members and three visitors were present.

Mrs. Bond's daughter, Jeannette Shadko, gave the lesson on "Seasonal Salads" using the notes and lesson sheets which Mrs. Earl Hartwick and Mrs. Ivan Tracy brought from the leaders' meeting at Marlette.

She demonstrated the lesson by using illustrations and making Caesar salad, garnishes and salad dressings. A frozen fruit dessert salad was served with tea and crackers by the hostess.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. George Seeger September 22. "Legal Phases" will be the topic.

Mrs. Michael Shadko, who spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Charles Bond, Sr., and attended a reunion in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the graduation of her class from Cass City High School, returned to her home in Detroit Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Watkins and sons, Wm. and Robert, from Caro came Thursday, bringing a birthday cake to help Mrs. Anson Karr celebrate her birthday.

Visitors at the Clayton Root home from Friday till Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Cole and two children, Kathleen and Robert.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Ellicott of Owendale were Sunday dinner guests at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hampton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mudge entertained at Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klinkman and Mr. and Mrs. Anson Karr.

ELMWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cutler and children of Bad Axe spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Morse.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Kelly of Detroit spent Memorial Day week end with friends and relatives here.

Mrs. Ella Livingston and Mrs. J. J. Brazzell of Royal Oak were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Livingston and overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Habicht.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Evans and daughter of Hazel Park were Sunday visitors at the Harold Evans home.

Control of insects in the home begins and ends with good house-keeping. Insecticides do not give complete control unless breeding areas are cleaned up.

Hunting Fossils May Be Pursued In Own Back Yard

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—Old fossils can be a lot of new fun and the person who has never thought to go exploring to find them is missing a lot of enjoyment. Many may have been stopped by three big hurdles—money, time and technical hurdles—which are always envisioned when stories of exploration and explorers, such as William Beebe and Roy Chapman Andrews are mentioned.

For those, there is a great deal of encouragement in news that you don't have to possess those three things at all to go exploring for fossils because they might be right in your own back yard!

Go back a short space of time—say, a few million years—and see what conditions were in your back yard.

"Skippy" the Scallop
 Picture a blazing sun shining on a broad, mirror-like sea. Far below the surface, zooming from one spot to another, is a little organism that closely resembles our present-day scallop. Not to be too scientific, we'll call him "Skippy."

It so happens that "Skippy," being a very active little scallop, reaches that stage in life when his usefulness is over and with one final spurt, gives up the ghost and sinks to the bottom. It isn't long before the shifting silt of the ocean floor has completely covered him over.

Years pass, the silt layer deepens and is compressed by the tons of ocean water above. And "Skippy," once a happy little bi-valve, is but a memory.

Following "Skippy's" demise, after a few million years of course, the broad expanse of sea shrinks to several large puddles, two of which we now call the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. And out of the depths emerges... your back yard. That, in a nutshell, is the whole story. It may sound a trifle fantastic but it is the truth and easily proved. Let's take a look at the stone walk you made last summer, the one from the house to the garage. See that large flat rock about the third one from the end? See the small lump? Know what it is? Right the first time! It's "Skippy."

Field Stone Very Old
 The "Field Stone" used throughout Cincinnati for walls, rock gardens and terraces is the old ocean floor of the Paleozoic and Cambrian ages. One small piece of this sedimentary rock contains thousands of fossilized specimens including "Skippy" and his cousins. You can easily pick out the beautiful sprays of coral, perfect impressions of marine plant life and the fragile skeletons of minute denizens of the deep. Each small fragment is pure exploration for you never know just what you'll find. There is always the possibility that you'll find new secrets concerning these ages of long ago.

The equipment needed for collecting these small fossils is no problem, you can find it in the basement. A hammer, a screwdriver or chisel and one watercolor brush of the cheapest sort, will do. Since this sedimentary stuff is soft, many times you can pick out fine specimens with only a nail file. The brush will come in handy for cleaning the finer details of the specimens. Once removed from the matrix, the fossils can be kept from crumbling with a coat of clear lacquer.

Long Miles Just Routine To Car Road Test Pilots

NEW YORK.—Washington to St. Louis, 806 miles; Dallas to Denver, 803 miles; New York to Atlanta, 875 miles. These distances represent two or three days of tough, hard driving for the "speediest" of tourists.

But for the road-test drivers, such distances are just a day's work. For example, one group of test drivers recently set a record of better than 800 miles per day for 70 days—and that in the blistering heat along the Mexican border that ranged as high as 110 degrees. Fourteen hours every day, six days a week, at speed averaging 60 miles per hour, six cars were pushed over a 200-mile route. The pace was maintained for more than 50,000 miles—a distance equal to five years' mileage for the average family car.

The terrific driving record was made in road-testing performance of a new motor oil developed by Continental Oil company. In a tear-down of the motors at the end of the long run, measurements of moving parts under observation of technicians of the Southwest Research Institute showed no wear of any consequence. In fact, actual measurement with highly sensitive instruments showed the wear averaged less than one one-thousandth of an inch on cylinders and crankshafts. Original factory machining marks were still visible on piston rings.

Another result of the road test was the demonstration economy of operation. Gasoline mileage for the last 5,000 miles was as good as for the first 5,000—actually there was an average difference for the fleet of only 4/100 of a mile per gallon, or 164 feet.

Millions of tiny plants give the Red Sea its color.

Young Parents Urged To Do Baby-Sitting To Gain Experience

NEW YORK.—Young parents could do themselves a lot of good if they did their own baby-sitting, according to Mrs. Sidone Gruenberg, former director of the Child Study Association of America.

She recommended baby-sitting as the best means of gaining practical experience in raising children.

Formerly, Mrs. Gruenberg said, when families were large, a young woman who married had learned something about rearing children from her married brothers, sisters and cousins who had families.

"Nowadays," she continued, "we not only have the smaller family unit but parents who themselves come from small families. Consequently they haven't the know-how of their relatives to guide them." There is some knowledge of child care, but the application is lacking, she noted, adding that the combination of more knowledge and less practical experience "creates a bottleneck."

Mrs. Gruenberg took issue with the attitude of colleges that the answer to preparation for family life comes through "more and more courses." She said colleges give courses today in everything from cooking to ceramics and gardening, but "most courses are boring and not relevant."

Mrs. Gruenberg recommended that parents, particularly those with small families, cooperate more on a community basis.

"Why not ask another family with several children in?" Mrs. Gruenberg suggested. "They might like it, and it would solve the small family problem."

"Housing developments, where cooperative pooling of family resources might succeed, are not anxious for such projects," Mrs. Gruenberg remarked. "A large number of complaints from mothers have come to my attention in housing developments in and near New York that their efforts to start such community projects as with opposition. Management seems afraid, they believe, that if the mothers get together for things like child care discussions they might get together for other things like discussing rents."

Two-Way Suit of Nylon Bars Out Subarctic Cold

WHITE HORSE, YUKON TERRITORY.—A nylon suit with pile worn inside and out—making the suit a two-way affair—has successfully passed extreme cold tests in the subarctic.

Canadian pilots and ground troops were trying out the suits, with which they wear no wool and no underwear.

The wearer first takes off every bit of clothing except socks and boots, then slips into the first suit of nylon pile—pile being like fur or velvet. The first suit has the nylon pile turned inside, next the wearer's body. Then another suit of the same kind is put on, except that on this suit the pile is outside, facing the icy breeze. There's a hood that is pulled over the head. Then the wearer zips up five or six zippers and is all ready for subarctic temperatures.

It's an Eskimo idea. For centuries they've been wearing caribou suits like that. The first suit has the fur turned inside next to the body. The next one has the fur facing the weather. It's light, easy to move around in, quick to put on.

The layer after layer of woolen paraphernalia they ordinarily wear up here is bulky, tiring to work in and time consuming.

Alleged Vision Discovered To Be Only a Water Stain

EL RIO, CALIF.—Hundreds of devout folk in this small Spanish-American community said a vision of the Virgin Mary appeared to them from a rooftop. But Catholic Msgr. Anthony Jacobs said that it was merely a waterstain on the wood.

California highway patrolmen reported a steady stream of traffic into the tiny town. It was estimated that 4,000 persons came to see the reported "miracle."

However, Msgr. Jacobs said that inspection by the Rev. John Fosselman disclosed that the image was a "watermark on the wood in the shape of an irregular oval resembling somewhat the statue of Guadalupe."

The statue of the Virgin Mary in Guadalupe is venerated by Mexican Catholics.

The vision was reported by Manuel Reyes, who is building a house for his mother in this predominantly Mexican settlement southeast of Ventura.

Reyes said he was laying roofing paper on the small building. He climbed down a ladder to get another roll of paper, returned and saw what he said was the vision. He said he could see the features clearly and also see her purple robes.

He spread the word among the townspeople and the crowd began to gather. Some 500 persons live in the settlement. By midnight, the state highway patrol, called to direct traffic, estimated the crowd at 1,200.

On a hunting watch the face is protected by a metal case.

Buckwheat Harvest

A smaller buckwheat harvest in 1949 means fewer winter breakfasts of buckwheat cakes. Although 15 states contribute to the commercial crop of grain, about two-thirds of it is normally harvested close to the New York-Pennsylvania border.

Prince Albert of England composed songs, church music and an opera.

Flying Fox

The flying fox, which is really a huge bat, has the peculiar habit of sleeping while hanging head downward from branches of trees. This winged animal destroys so much fruit that there is an absolute ban on the importation of flying foxes into the United States.

Condition of Land Vital to Economy Good Farming Practices Aid Conservation Work

That the condition of the land and its productivity affect the vigor and vitality of the national economy is a fact becoming more generally recognized by farmers, business men and industrialists alike.

And, according to W. R. Tascher, extension soil conservationist of Washington, D. C., there is a certain point in land deterioration which when reached becomes the principal factor in influencing the nation's economy.

In the United States about two-thirds of all raw materials come from the land for the country's total industrial production, Tascher said. About 80 per cent of all manufacturing plants in this country depend upon the soil for their principal raw materials.

This photo shows the kind of land use and development which is vital to the condition of the soil.

It is obvious, he continued, that scarcely a segment of the nation's economy can assume continued survival without the care of its land resources in such a way as to insure continued adequate production.

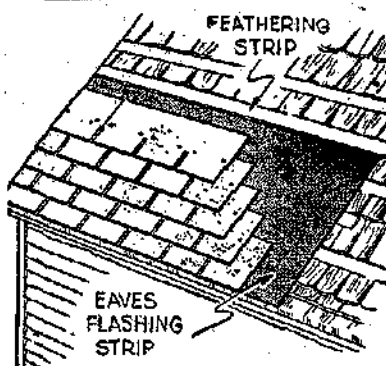

Spud Harvest Study Would Cut Damages

Preliminary work to determine the points in potato harvesting and handling where bruising injury occurs, with a view to developing methods for avoiding such damage, was started in North Dakota last fall. Perry V. Hemphill, associate agricultural economist of the North Dakota experiment station, reports.

A survey was made by the experiment station in cooperation with regional potato laboratory in East Grant Forks. Samples were taken immediately after digging, from the picker sacks standing in the field, from sacks on the truck at the warehouse before unloading, and from the bins immediately after unloading.

It was noted that the percentage of bruising increased during each operation. After digging it was found 11 per cent of the potatoes were bruised, after picking 17 per cent were bruised, after trucking the percentage bruised went up to 18, and after binning 41 per cent were bruised. It was noted an increase of 23 per cent may be due to the binning process alone.

Applying Shingles

In applying asphalt shingles over an old wood shingle roof, first nail down loose shingles. Split warped shingles and nail down the segments. Place beveled wood "feathering" strips along the butts of each course of old shingles. Apply an "eaves flashing strip" of asphalt roll roofing. Use six nails in each three-tab, square-butt.

Overhead Water System Creating Wide Interest

The use of overhead sprinkling systems for irrigated farming has created widespread interest in areas where artificial watering is necessary to crop production.

Among the merits of overhead sprinkler systems is that land leveling—which removes valuable top soil from high spots, is not necessary, and ground ordinarily used for ditches can be utilized for growing crops.

More public benefits vs. state socialism.

That's the top issue of 1950 for both national and state political campaigns, according to battle lines now being formed at Lansing and Washington.

The 1950 special session of the Michigan legislature confirmed the trend on a state-wide basis. Governor G. Mennen Williams struck a note of the liberal crusader when he assailed Republican legislators for "ignoring" the needs of the people. The legislature turned down his proposed $112,000,000 program. Instead government spending was cut approximately $15,000,000.

It is the political thesis of Governor Williams that the Republican party in Michigan is dominated by "special interests," referring obviously to manufacturers and businessmen. In an address before the Michigan CIO convention in Grand Rapids, Williams assailed the legislature for its "do-nothing record." Because legislators refused to levy a stiff tax on corporate profits, Williams concludes that the G. O. P. is subservient to "Big Business" and hence is committed to more consumer taxes.

This stand of the governor—more public benefits to be financed by business—finds an echo in recent utterances of President Harry Truman. The president wound up a whistle-stop speaking tour, promising to continue his fight for middle income housing, federal aid to education, federal health insurance and an improved farm law.

The cost of all these new public benefits would run into many billions of dollars, all at a time when Federal treasury deficits are mounting. The Republican stand, as expressed by Senator Taft of Ohio, is that the Truman program is straight socialism.

Taft says the Republicans are also interested in promoting health, security and housing of the people, but would support financial aid only where absolutely necessary and where it can be done without a strain on the treasury.

While more public benefits become the Democratic offering, national and state, Republicans will condemn the Truman-Williams program as being financially irresponsible, destroying our American freedoms, and otherwise opening the door wide to a "hand-out state."

The governor made a dramatic 11th hour appearance before the legislature on the eve of its recess Saturday, May 20. He appealed to legislators not to reduce government grants to schools, hospitals, the aged and infirm, and other worthy causes.

The Republican reaction was prompt: "Pure politics." "If there are dire happenings, it will be because of administrative failures or attempts to make political capital out of discrediting sound planning to avoid huge new taxes," said Speaker Victor A. Knox, Sault Ste. Marie.

Republican legislators point out that appropriations for the new fiscal year, start July 1, 1950, and that the legislature will return to Lansing in January, 1951, for the regular session. Legislators insist that no one is going to suffer and that appropriations are adequate to meet normal needs.

The will of the Republican legislators to put a halt in the even-higher trend of government spending was re-inforced May 18 when Auditor General Muriel K. Aten compiled a 10-year table of comparative government spending in Michigan.

Education costs, for example, soared from $55.8 millions in 1939 to $169.7 millions in 1949; health, $7.7 to $12.5 millions; mental, $13.7 to $32.5 millions; welfare, $44.9 to $94.2 millions; highways, $34.3 to $108.9 millions. These figures include grants of federal and state aid. Today 78 per cent of state sales tax revenues are now returned to local units—cities, counties, schools, townships.

President Truman and Governor Williams are confident that the people want more public benefits.

The Republicans are equally confident that the people do not want "state socialism." Every dollar of additional government spending must inevitably be paid by the consumer in the form of higher prices, they say.

And so 1950 political battle lines are being drawn. The people must decide at the ballot box next November.

When buying readymade dresses, choose a fabric belt rather than an imitation leather one and be sure that buttonhole stitches are close enough for long wear. Buttonholes should be evenly placed on a double thickness of fabric advises Evelyn Westcott, Michigan State College home economist.

If the President and Vice President of the United States should both die, the Secretary of State an unelected official would succeed to the office.

Erosion Takes Big Toll on State Farms

Michigan soils were subjected to the most devastating erosion by both wind and water the past winter that has occurred in many years, according to R. G. Hill, Michigan State College extension soil conservationist.

As farmers prepare their fields, Hill says, they must remember, "the thinner the topsoil, the lower the crop yield." Farmers should take this into consideration when leveling off the gullies and the wind-blown spots in preparing the fields for planting.

Last year's heavy rain falling on cultivated land not protected by cover crops helped cause the loss of tons of topsoil. Fields located on a slope which were plowed and worked last fall and left bare over winter show the most severe damage, the soil conservationist opined.

A few hours of high winds caused many bare fields to be stripped of their fertility. Hill relates that in many sections of the state, during early spring, it was not uncommon to see regular "snow banks" of soil along fence rows. Adding to the soil conserving problem, is the fact that many grass seedlings failed during the winter. This means less organic matter and plant food for the soil.

Farmers may try to replace lost seedlings on sloped land with cultivated crops. This, Hill thinks, would be one of the worst things a farmer could do. "These areas need to be covered with grass and legumes along with small grains. The application of soil saving practices must become a regular part of every farmer's program to keep soil productive," the conservationist insists.

TUSCOLA COUNTY EXTENSION OFFICE

The June meeting of the Tuscola Soil Conservation District directors will be held on the 5th in the Tuscola County courthouse. The board, in addition to the regular business, will further study the possibility of increasing the nursery line-out bed. Farm planner, Dave Dawson, who replaced Dean Gordon, is now located in Caro.

Warm weather and rains make ideal growing conditions for insects and diseases. Planting disease free varieties whenever possible will help cut down losses. Bean growers might take inventory on last year's crop and not plant beans in the same field if node or stem blight was prevalent. There is no treatment for node blight. Rotation of crops and planting disease free seed is one way to decrease the possible damage done by blight.

4-H Dairy club members and leaders! Save June 13 on your calendar for a county dairy judging tour. We'll make about three stops, see some fine Tuscola County dairy herds, and get some judging instruction and practice. Nevels Pearson, assistant state 4-H club leader, will be along to give assistance. Details of the location and time of each stop will be announced soon. The county dairy judging team will probably be chosen from those attending this tour.

Demonstration and judging contests open to all Tuscola County 4-H members will be the main events at Wilber Memorial 4-H Building June 22 and 23. Demonstrations pertaining to all subjects will compete for county honors on Thursday, June 22. Four-H club members may give demonstrations as individuals or as teams of two or more. Some of the top demonstration teams will be sent to the state contest at Michigan State College in August. On June 23, 4-H club girls who have completed or are enrolled in clothing, canning, and foods projects will receive instructions and compete in judging contests which will determine the county 4-H judging teams in these three projects.

Tuscola County farmers are reminded by County Agricultural Agent Loren S. Armbruster to plan and attend the Weed Control Day on June 7 at Bates Willis farm, two miles north of Vassar at the junction of Vassar Road and M-46.

The blooms of the dandelion and apple tree are being visited rather intensely by our honey bee friends this time of year. No doubt the queens of the hives are starting an egg laying campaign to strengthen their hives before the honey flow starts. Just how important is the honey bee to the agriculture of Tuscola County? Under our present agricultural program, much cropland is being retired from production. We are in short supply of many of our legume seeds. Why not utilize the services of our honey bees for pollination and production of these seeds? According to the Ohio Bulletin 253, "Honeybees Increase Clover Seed Production", honey bees carry out 82% of all pollination. They also are the only controlled method of pollination. Their social order and desire to collect pollen and nectar makes them the best ally man has in carrying on a seed producing program. Many of the clovers vary in their degrees of self sterility and need the honey bee to carry out the pollination processes. Honey and beeswax are only by-products of the most essential process created by nature.

Flying Farmers.
Most every state in the union has a group of farmers who own airplanes and get a great deal of pleasure in flying around the state and country. They are banded together in an organization called "The Flying Farmers." Contrary to what first impressions might be, they are a bunch of ordinary guys who for some simple reason got enthusiastic about air transportation and decided to do something about it.

We first met some of the "Flying Farmers" at the Lee Ferden place down near Chesaning. The college has been using the Ferden farm for field experiments for 25 years. On this particular afternoon a rotation tour had been scheduled and four planes landed in one of the pastures. We got a chance to talk with the "fly boys" and found that they use the Wright Brother invention to good advantage. One young man works two farms. One in the southern part of the state and the other in the upper peninsula. He commutes by plane. Others claimed that only by use of the airplane are they able to take in the many educational features offered throughout the state during the year. They spend minutes en route instead of breaking up a whole day.

We Join Up.

Since that first meeting with the farmer pilots at the Ferden farm, the flying bus has taken a good healthy bite in this direction. During the last two years we have entered a flying school, passed examinations, received a pilot's license and joined the "Flying Farmers." We attended their annual state convention held in Lansing last year and got to know many of the leading lights who are the prime movers of that organization. They are, without exception, first rate, prosperous farmers, who fly for business and pleasure.

Recreation.

There are many functions throughout the year these club members participate in. The most recent was a tour of representative Detroit Industries. For two days they were entertained in the motor city, by various industrial firms. It was a highly successful and informative meeting.

On June 4, these same "Flying Farmers" and their wives will rendezvous at Lost Creek Sky Ranch, five miles west of Mio. The occasion is the Dawn Patrol and Lodge dedication of the building built last fall by the co-operative effort of the FF. Members will fly in to Lost Creek Sky Ranch airport for an early breakfast, attend devotional services in the pine grove in front of the lodge at 10 a. m., and witness the dedication at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mid-West Leads.

The Flying Farmers organization is a comparatively new thing in Michigan. Some of the grain belt states have memberships in the high hundreds. They take planned trips all over the country in the off season. Last year, the Kansas Flying Farmers made an air junket to Mexico City. They are very proud of their combined accomplishments and the blazing sunflower they paint on their ships can be seen all over the country. It's true that some folks take a very dim view of air transportation. One gentleman remarked to this reporter, "Flying is for the birds." The point we wanted to bring out was simply that farmers are just as progressive and in step with the times as their city cousins. Flying farmers prove it!

Seek Apple Trees To Suit the Buyers

The apple growers' dream of having full production at five to seven years, continuing 20 years, and replacement with a rotation block of new, young trees is the subject of much research.

Dr. H. B. Tukey, head of the Michigan State College horticulture department, and R. F. Carlson, MSC horticulture research scientist, say that considerable progress has been made in keeping present standard apple trees small and getting them into production early.

Growers rely on well-grown nursery stock, good sites, proper use of fertilizers, water, and mulch. But interest still continues in the so-called "dwarf" and "semi-dwarf" fruit trees.

Thus far, reliance for such trees has been on the "Malling rootstocks," 16 in number, which get their name from the East Malling Research Station in England. Rootstocks from these trees are not propagated by seed, but by vegetative means such as stem cuttings, nurse-root grafts, root cuttings, and the like.

To the rootstocks, the desired varieties are budded and grafted. Experiments show the trees develop into a variety of sizes, ranging from a tree no taller than a man to one the size of a standard apple tree.

Tests conducted by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station and reported in the proceedings of the American Society for Horticultural Science involved 18 stock-scion combinations of apple trees on these Malling rootstocks. Included were 180 trees.

The tests show the trees have responded favorably to growing conditions on a relatively light soil over a 5-year-period, including two drouthy seasons.

The trees have grown vigorously and have developed and fruited at about the same ratio as trees of the same type in other locations in the eastern United States.

Picadilly Weepers were the moustache and long, drooping whiskers worn by fashionable men of England in the 1860's.

Michigan Farmers Show High Interest In Grass Silage

Farmers in Michigan are showing an increased interest in grass silage. Karl Vary, Michigan State College agricultural economist, says a survey in nine Michigan counties showed a 300 percent increase in the number of farmers harvesting grass silage in 1949 over 1948.

The most common use of grass silage is to put first-cutting hay and excess pasture growth into the silo and feed it to supplement late summer pastures. However, Vary found more and more farmers using grass silage as a winter feed with good results.

Michigan weather conditions for putting up first-cutting hay are not too good. Under customary drying practices, agricultural authorities find that from 20 to 40 percent of the feeding value of hay is lost each year. About 85 percent of Michigan's hay crop comes from the first cutting.

The farm management specialist thinks grass silage offers a greater possibility of putting up good quality forage under these Michigan weather conditions than under usual haying conditions.

Under usual haying methods, field-cured hay, to be safely stored, should be put into the mow at less than 25 percent moisture. Studies show about 15 to 20 hours of sunshine are required to get hay below 25 percent moisture content. Forage can be put up for grass silage in a silo at about 88 percent moisture, which requires only 1 to 3 hours sunshine.

Demonstrations on making grass silage will be held at the eight Grass Day programs throughout Michigan in June. The Michigan Cooperative Extension Service is sponsoring these all-day programs to help farmers learn more about the harvesting and use of better grasses and legumes in their forage program.

Final Scores of Chicken-of-Tomorrow Contest Announced

Final placings of the Tuscola county youth chicken-of-tomorrow contest were announced today by 4-H Club Agent Byron E. Carpenter, speaking for the county chicken-of-tomorrow committee. Results of the judging of the dressed broiler exhibits announced two weeks ago have been combined with scores given on the business records submitted by the poultry feeders, and reveal that Don Tinglan, Vassar Future Farmer, is still in first place with a score of 87.4. Close behind him in second place was another Vassar FFA poultryman, Harley Tedford, with a score of 85.2.

The chicken-of-tomorrow records were carefully graded and scored on the basis of (1) amount of feed consumed per pound of chicken produced, (2) number of chicks lost per 100 chicks started, (3) average weight of live chickens at age of 13 weeks, and (4) accuracy, completeness, and appearance of report.

The grade given on the chicken-of-tomorrow record comprised 40% of each member's score, the other 60% being based on the exhibit of 15 dressed broilers which were judged May 12 at the Striffler Garage in Caro.

The exhibits of Don Tinglan and Paul Findlay, Reese, were chosen by the judges to be frozen and entered in the State Chicken-of-Tomorrow Contest to be held at East Lansing in August. The other 150 broilers exhibited by contestants were sold to the public in Caro immediately following the show on May 12.

Final placings of other chicken-of-tomorrow contestants were Lloyd Burns, Millington, third; Larry Sevensen, Vassar, fourth; George Gugno, Reese, and Rodney Tulloch, Vassar, tied for fifth; Barbara Bradley, Akron, and Paul Findlay, Reese, tied for seventh; Lyle Burns, Millington, ninth; and Lincoln Gaborik, Mayville, tenth. Other contestants were Glen Bradley, Akron, Betty Cyr, Mayville, and Kathryn Rood, Mayville.

A furlong is one-eighth of a mile.

Colts officially become horses at the age of five years.

Big Mace of House Held Mighty Weapon, But Is Little Used

WASHINGTON, D. C. —Joe Callahan, of Bellevue, Ky., hasn't used it yet, but he is equipped with a mighty powerful weapon. It's the mace, symbol of authority, of the national house of representatives. Callahan is house sergeant-at-arms. Rules of the house, adopted in 1789, point out that his job is "to maintain order under direction of the speaker" and that the "symbol of his office shall be the mace, which shall be borne by him while enforcing order on the floor." One sergeant, apparently, had gotten into trouble trying to enforce order with no mace.

The mace would not be very effective to stop a street-corner battle. In fact, some suspect it would be a handicap to Callahan if he had to sprint up the aisle tomorrow to part two battling congressmen. Its power lies in the fact that it is the symbol of authority of the house.

The mace is 46 inches in height and consists chiefly of 13 ebony rods—one for each of the original states—bound together with silver bands and surmounted by a 4 1/2-inch silver globe, atop which sits a solid maple eagle, wings spread. It's the second mace used in the house. The first was burned with the Capitol by the British in 1814. This one was made by William Adams, a New York silversmith, in 1841. Cost $400.

Our Mace is a survival of the Roman fasces, which was a bundle of rods wrapped around an ax handle and carried as a symbol of authority. The rods signified authority to flog; the ax, authority to behead. The Romans took ideas from Britain and we got the idea from the house of commons.

Ours serves one other purpose. When the house goes into session each day, one of Callahan's helpers places the mace on a green marble pedestal at the right of the speaker's desk. If the house resolves itself into the committee of the whole, he moves it down to a lower pedestal by the desk of the sergeant of arms. Thus a member, by a glance at the Mace, can tell what kind of session he's in.

If a member gets abusive (that is, beyond the bounds of house rules), the sergeant at arms, at the direction of the speaker, is supposed to go after him with the mace. He simply walks up to the member and holds the mace out toward him. If the member refuses to acknowledge his authority of the house, and shut up, he makes himself subject to discipline by the abuse, which can be severe.

Program Hater Takes Radio Station off Air

YORK, PA.—This is a new switch on man's turning the tables on radio programs. The hero of this story didn't bother to turn off his set, he simply went out and turned the station off the air when it presented a program he didn't like.

State police said they wouldn't have cared if the 32-year-old York man had turned off the program in the usual way. But Holmes Gibson, they said, took the entire radio station off the air.

Gibson walked five miles in the rain from his home to the transmitting station of WORK and asked Chief Engineer Merle Miller: "Where are the switches to turn the station off?" Miller told police that Gibson began rushing from switch to switch, turning them off. Miller was right back of him, turning them on again.

The engineer finally gave up the chase, went to a near-by home and returned with a fellow station employee. The two stopped Gibson and got the station back on the air before police arrived.

Retired Chemist Solves Too-Many-Hamsters Problem

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.—M. J. Stuart, retired chemist, and his son, Frank, are experiencing a great relief now that all of their 300 hamsters are gone. They finally passed out the last of the animals to persons who drove from many sections of the state to get them.

Stuart said he had the 300 hamsters on his hands and didn't know what to do with them. They had been given him by a friend who had to leave town. They have been used in laboratory work and the friend had nothing else to do with them.

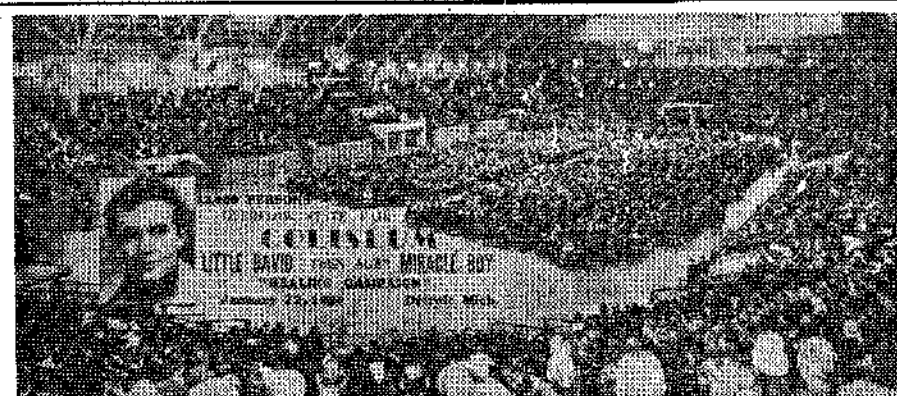

It was the hamsters' fabulous ability to multiply that had the Stuarts worried. Frank figured out that, in theory, at least, the 300 could increase to 11 million in a year.

To complicate things, there's a law against freeing the animals because of possible crop damage. Father and son appealed for help—make fine pets for the kids, they said—free.

The pet seekers descended on them today. Some came out of curiosity—and went home with a pair of the small furry animals. Others took singles and some got away with a dozen or more.

"Very likely," reported the Stuarts, "some of the folks will turn up with more than they can handle shortly—but they're off our hands now."

Hadrian (122A. D.) built the Roman Wall in England.

The Rev. ROBERT H. HARPER
Micah's Hope of God's Salvation
Lesson: Micah 4: 1-5; 5: 2-4; 7: 18-20

Memory Selection: Micah 7: 18

MICAH first gives us a view of the conquering church, to which all peoples shall come by and by. We note that men shall beat their swords and spears into ploughshares and pruning hooks, and nations shall learn of war no more. This prophecy is similar to one by Isaiah. Did Micah copy from Isaiah, or Isaiah from Micah? Or did both copy from an older prophecy? We do not know.

War having been done away, men shall be free to develop the arts of peace and the cultivation of brotherhood, under the name and blessing of Jehovah. This is a beautiful picture of a warless world—a picture often seen in the imagination of men, but not yet realized.

The coming of Jesus of Nazareth, it was prophesied, would have much to contribute to the realization of peace. The reader may remember that Micah 5:2 was quoted by the Jewish authorities when they were asked by Herod where Christ should be born, according to prophecy.

The closing portion of the lesson deals with the beauty of God's forgiving love. Upon his repentant children God will have compassion, and he will cast their sins into the depths of the sea. So Micah hopes for salvation from God, even unto the uttermost. May we find pardon at his right hand and grace to help in time of need.

Coulson Blair Died At Standish Friday After Heart Attack

Coulson J. Blair, formerly of Sheridan Township and a resident of Huron County until he reached the age of 21 years, died suddenly at the Standish Hospital Friday. He suffered a heart attack that morning while working at the State Bank of Standish of which he was the cashier and a director.

Funeral services were held at the home in Standish on Monday afternoon, conducted by Dr. Frederick A. Robles, pastor of the Bay City First Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. Russell Sursaw, pastor of the Standish Methodist Church. Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Coulson Blair was born in Sheridan Township July 16, 1890, and at the age of 21 moved from Huron County to Mikado, Mich., where he was employed in the bank there for a short time. He then moved to Turner, Mich., where he was cashier of the Turner bank for a few years.

Due to ill health he moved from Turner to Cass City, where he operated a farm in Tuscola County for four years. In May of 1921 he went to Standish to assume the post of cashier.

He married the former Miss Kathryn Crawford in Cass City on September 27, 1915.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge, and of the Grant Methodist Church in Huron County.

Surviving are his widow; a brother, Haskett Blair, of Bad Axe; two nieces, and two nephews.

V. A. Bird, Many Years Employed by Sugar Co., Died Friday

Funeral services for Vernon A. Bird, 66, were held Monday at 2 p. m. in the Douglas Funeral Home. Rev. M. R. Vender officiated and burial was made in Elkland cemetery. Mr. Bird died Friday in Pleasant Home Hospital where he had been a patient for a week.

He was the son of the late John and Anna Karr Bird, and was born July 7, 1888, in Elkland Township. In September, 1904, at Samia he married Miss Clara A. Randall. For ten years Mr. Bird was employed by the Michigan Sugar Co. and from 1923-1941 he was in California where he was employed as chief agriculturist for the Holly Sugar Co.

Mr. Bird was a member of Verona Lodge, No. 365, F. & A. M., at Bad Axe.

Surviving are his widow; one daughter, Mrs. Fred (Iris) McEachern of Cass City; one grandson, Robert McEachern; and three sisters, Mrs. Ora McDonald of Detroit, Mrs. Hazel Dewey and Mrs. Gladys Silver of Cass City. A brother, John Bird, preceded him in death.

J. A. Nicol, Greenleaf Farmer, Died Sunday

James A. Nicol, 77, life-long resident of Greenleaf Township, died unexpectedly Sunday at his farm home. Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Douglas Funeral Home. Rev. Sergei Moisejko of Uby officiated and burial was made in Elkland cemetery.

He was a son of the late Stuart and Mary Watson Nicol and was born in Greenleaf Township Jan. 29, 1873. On June 5, 1894, at Sandusky he married Miss Charlotte Mills who survives. He also leaves one brother, Wm. Nicol of Greenleaf; and four sisters, Mrs. Frank Turo of Dryden, Mrs. Edw. Richardson of Detroit, Mrs. Anna Pelton of Bloomfield Hills and Mrs. Herbert Hitchens of Sulphur Springs, Ga.

Tuscola Offers Pleasant Locations for Outings

The Eastern and Central Michigan Playtime Book for 1950, 128 pages of articles and photographs advertising Michigan to tourists and vacationists from all over the United States, has the following section on Tuscola County. The book is published by the East Michigan Tourist Association. The possibilities of our own county as a play area for tourists may be overlooked by our own residents.

The Playtime Book says: Tourists motoring through the Thumb territory will do well to tarry a while in this great agricultural region, for Tuscola County stands near the top of Michigan counties in the sale of agricultural products during the summer season.

Hunting for pheasant and duck draws thousands of nimrods annually to the Tuscola area. Pheasant and rabbit populations have been increasing largely through conservation practices of the Tuscola County Conservation Club. Public access to the several fine marshlands off Tuscola County takes the wild-fowl hunter into some of the finest territory in the state.

Pleasant locations for picnics and outings are provided for tourists at camp sites along Saginaw Bay and Cass River. Free tourist parks are open in Caro, Cass City and Vassar. The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors has constructed a large tourist park, open to the public free of charge, on the shores of Saginaw Bay.

A stained glass window at the staircase landing in the Tuscola County Courthouse at Caro, depicts General Cass on the banks of the Cass River, signing the treaty with the Indians, by which they relinquished their titles to the land.

There are other fine trading centers in Tuscola County, including Vassar, which was named for Matthew Vassar (who founded Vassar College) Cass City and Unionville.

Seven Tuscola 4-H Clubs Make 100% Completion Records

Seven Tuscola County 4-H clubs finished the winter project season with every member enrolled completing his or her project, states Byron E. Carpenter, County 4-H Club Agent.

Among the clubs mentioned above is the West Mayville 4-H Club, led by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McMullen, which has completed its third successive season with 100% completions. The West Mayville Club had 14 boys and 16 girls as members during past winter completing 42 different projects. Last summer the club had a perfect record with a membership of 38 girls and boys that finished 71 projects. The club is now two years old and has never had a member drop out or quit a project. Mary Monroe and Frank McMullen are junior leaders in the club.

The other clubs which achieved the honor of having perfect completion records this spring were the Bingham Club with 12 members, led by Mrs. Grover Laurie, Miss Irene Hall, Cass City; and Mrs. Preston Karr, Gagetown; the Gagetown Club, with 34 members, led by Mrs. Esther Werdeeman, Cass City, and Mrs. Millie Monroe, Cass City; and JoAnn Fischer (junior leader), of Gagetown; North Grove Willing Workers, with 13 members, led by Mrs. Florence Gaborik and Lincoln Gaborik (junior leader), of Mayville; South Vassar Club, five members, led by Mrs. Iris Opperman and Mrs. Cora Hammond, Vassar; Unionville Wonder Workers, with 14 members, led by Mrs. Wilfred Sellers, Mrs. Alex Liberacki, and Mrs. Leon Brady, all of Unionville; and Van Petten club, 12 members, led by Mr. and Mrs. Arlye Findlay and Betty Dinsmore (junior leader), of Rees.

Turtle Eggs

Turtle eggs, no tempting morsel for appetites in the United States, are consumed in South America by natives and Europeans alike. Eggs of the lizard species, the iguana, are considered a great delicacy by gourmets.

NEW HOMES

In the next 10 years 6,300,000 new homes will have to be built to house the expanding population and to take care of new families.

SAVE TIRESOME LIFTING by placing casters on a board large enough to hold your wash bucket. When washing, you can then push the bucket around easily.

Soak two pieces of flannel overnight in paraffin oil. In the morning, wring out the oil and wash in lukewarm water and dry. You now have two excellent dusting cloths, one for each hand, and this will speed your daily dusting duties nicely.

If your step ladder has a tendency to be shaky on wood floors, tack pieces of rubber to the base and help eliminate an accident.

Apply a coat of colored enamel to metal wastebaskets which have taken a beating. For wooden baskets, apply a coat of shellac to restore original good looks.

To prevent your dress from getting wet when you do dishes or laundry work, make yourself an apron out of old cloth. The edges may be trimmed with bias tape or pinked with shears.

If the knobs fall off a child's dresser, replace all the knobs with colorful blocks from the child's toys. They'll match and be of interest, too.

Keep a small piece of clean cloth in the pocket of your clothes pin apron so that you have it handy for wiping the laundry line before hanging clothes on it.

Carry a large paper sack along with you in your cleaning basket so that you can empty waste baskets, ash trays and other trash in it as you work. It will save replacing baskets and trays in their rooms.

Farming States
The first 13 states of the Union in terms of large-scale farming are Texas, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, North Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Missouri, Indiana, Ohio, and Wisconsin. Only these each annually report more than ten million acres of land bearing harvests of principal crops.

Turpentine
Turpentine, used so widely in connection with paints and painting, is obtained from the oleoresin of the pine tree. One type, gum turpentine, comes from the living trees. Another, wood turpentine, is obtained from pine stumps and pine wood.
