

Monday Opening Night for Cass City Softball League

The 1951 softball season gets under way in Cass City Monday at eight p. m. when Alwars face Decker at the Municipal Park here in the first game of a twin bill that pits Baker-Urquhart against Church of Christ in the nightcap at 9 p. m. Most teams have been practicing for two weeks or more in preparation for the opening games.

This year there are eight teams in the league. Besides the teams competing opening night, four other squads will start their quest for the championship on Wednesday. The eight p. m. game will pit Western Auto against Baldy's and the nine p. m. contest will be between Deford and Ellington.

Altogether 56 games will be played this summer during the regular season. The schedule calls for 14 games for each team between opening game Monday and the end of the season, August 19.

Players' contracts were distributed Tuesday night at a meeting of sponsors, managers and captains at the Municipal Building. Players have until the start of the fourth game to sign with the teams of their choice for the rest of the season.

Pre-season predictions of competent observers place Baldy's Sunoco, Deford and Baker-Urquhart in the roles of favorites. Baker-Urquhart are defending champions and figure to be strong again this year. All three teams are loaded with pitching talent that figures to hold the opposition to a minimum of runs.

After the regular season, a play-off will be held in the last two weeks in August, with the final games scheduled September 1.

Hawks Stopped by Millington in Bid For County Title

The Cass City High School baseball team lost the county championship last Friday when they dropped their final game of the season to Millington, 5-1, at Caro.

The loss put the Hawks in the runner-up position in both the Upper Thumb Conference and the county. They lost a crucial game to Elktion earlier in the season to miss an opportunity to cop the conference toga and their defeat Friday cost them the county championship. Before Friday's loss, the Hawks were undefeated in county competition.

Millington defeated Cass City with rallies in the fourth and fifth innings. In the fourth they scored twice on three hits. A single, triple and another single were the blows that set up the counters for Millington.

In the next inning, Millington scored three times with the help of some sloppy ball handling by Cass City.

The Millington pitcher, Mossner, opened the frame with a single. An error at second base put men on first and second. The next man bunted and when no one covered first all hands were safe and the...

Committee Votes to Change Name of Local Library

At a joint meeting of the village council, the township board and members and representatives of the library board, it was decided to call the library the Cass City and Township Library. For many years the Woman's Study Club maintained the village library. In 1938 it was turned over to the village which has maintained the library and given a small amount yearly to its support. Until the time when the state sales tax was diverted to the townships, the village library received a substantial grant from the state, based on the population of the township. According to the present law, libraries must receive, from the government unit which it serves, an amount of money equal to or greater than three tenths of a mill on the equalized valuation of the township.

In 1949, 1950 and 1951, the city council voted a substantial increase in the annual grant to the village library. In addition, the village provides a building, lights and heat. In April 1951, the township voted to give yearly the remainder of the amount necessary for the library to qualify for state aid.

The last library report showed 942 registered borrowers and 4553 volumes loaned during an eight months period, the library having been closed for four months. Since the Cass City and Township Library will be open daily it is hoped it will serve a greater number of persons. The new schedule, put into effect May 21, is as follows: Monday 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.; Tuesday through Saturday 3 to 5 p. m. and Saturday evening 7 to 9 p. m.

James Bauer was named president of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce for 1951-52 in a special meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night in Cass City.

Bauer was one of the four new members of the board of directors elected by the members of the Chamber of Commerce to serve on the Chamber's board. Besides Bauer, Clarence Gregg, Herbert Ludlow and Harry Little were named to the board. They replaced Howard Ellis, Lloyd Bryant, Fritz Neitzel and Ernest Schwaderer.

The terms of Bryant, Ellis, and Neitzel have expired, while Schwaderer resigned from the board. The two years of his unexpired term are being filled by Ludlow. The other three new members of the board were elected for three years.

Of the three new members of the board, two were elected as officers of the Chamber of Commerce. Besides Bauer as president, Ludlow was named treasurer for the year.

Other officers elected were Joe Riley, vice president; and Delbert E. Rawson, secretary.

After the election of officers, the board began planning for the second annual home-coming in Cass City.

Committees were appointed and President Bauer expects to have a schedule to present to the Chamber of Commerce for approval in the near future.

Many regarded the home-coming, as one of the outstanding achievements of the organization in its two years of service here.

Hodgson to Speak at Grass Day Program

The many advantages of a good grassland program will be stressed by Ralph E. Hodgson, Assistant Chief of Dairying for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who will speak at the Saginaw grass day program on June 18.

Assistant county agricultural agent, Byron E. Carpenter, in announcing the choice of speaker, says that Dr. Hodgson will give an informative talk based on his work with the Bureau of Dairy Industry. He is well known in dairying areas and has served the dairy industry more than 20 years. He received the Borden Award for research in dairy production in 1939.

Grass Day will be held at the Matthew Borsenik farm, located 1 mile west of Brant, Michigan. Dr. Hodgson's talk will be part of an all-day program of tours, demonstrations, and displays on production and utilization of high quality forages. It will be given just after the lunch hour.

Dr. Hodgson believes that dairy farmers throughout the United States could maintain the present level of milk production, and also produce milk at lower cost, by feeding their cows more high-quality roughage and less grain than they now feed.

Roughages can be produced cheaper than grains, he points out. He places great emphasis on making of grass silage. Not only is grass silage an excellent, palatable feed, but permits harvesting the crop almost independently of the weather and getting the crop off the field shortly after it is cut. Silage-making equipment will be demonstrated at the Borsenik farm. Agent Carpenter urges all Tuscola County farm families to "make a day of it" and attend the Grass Day on June 18.

General Smith and Colonel Baker were walking down the main street of the army camp and, of course, met dozens and dozens of enlisted men. Each time the colonel saluted, he'd mutter under his breath, "And the same to you."
Curious and a little irritated, the general asked, "Colonel, will you tell me why you persist in saying that?"
And the colonel answered, "I was an enlisted man once myself and I know what those joes are thinking."

"Farm products," complained the customer, "cost a good deal more than they used to."
"Sure, they do!" agreed Farmer Jones. "When a farmer has to know the botanical name of what he is raising and the zoological name of the insect that eats it, and the chemical name of what kills it, somebody's got to pay."

❖ LET'S TALK IT OVER ❖

History.

The history of farming is the history of mankind. When you come right down to facts, food and clothing are the only things absolutely essential to human existence. World politics from the beginning of time have been largely controlled by the need of food . . . those that have it . . . and those that do not.

Blame the Farmer.

When food prices get too high, when our economic teeter-totter gets out of whack there are those that point the finger of high costs at the farmer. As we've tried to prove many times . . . this is not so . . . neither is it possible for farmers to conspire to fix prices.

Tradition.

There is a very interesting sidelight that helps to explain our present situation in Agriculture. It goes back to the time that our ancestors arrived as colonists in this new world. About the time of the Revolutionary War, it took 96 farmers to support themselves and four others not engaged in Agriculture. The four were the citizens engaged in trade, professions, manufacturing and government.

Seventy-five years ago, 80 farmers with their new steel plows and reapers were able to provide for 100 persons and so 20 could live in the cities. Then came the great series of inventors with their modern machinery that made the modern city possible. Not only were machines developed which gave the city dweller employment but many new "mechanical slaves" were brought to the farm so that more of the country folks could move to the city. And so today, less than 17 farmers with their modern equipment can provide for themselves and the 83 of us who live in the city.

New Wonders.

The implement manufacturers have in their warehouses or in the blue print stage the equipment which will make it possible for five working on the farm to support 95 of us working in the city with the food and fiber we need.

The new mechanical hoe, on the market for the first time this year is a graphic example of the great strides made in labor saving devices. The "mechanical hoe" or down the row thinner, used in sugar beets, will cut spring hand labor in half. The harvest labor problem was licked several years ago.

First and Last.

In spite of this coming 95 to five ratio, we are still dependent on the soil and its workers for our very lives. We who live in the city are dependent upon farm surpluses for what we eat. No farm surplus . . . no city. The farmer produces the basic needs of man. Production beyond the basic needs of himself and his family is the surplus which makes the city possible. The farmer may scratch out a bare living for himself long after the city man has died of starvation.

The first man was a farmer and the last man will also be a farmer. So . . . not only our food depends upon the farmer's surplus but our commerce as well.

Farm surplus is used to buy 40 percent and more of the articles of commerce. The rural people constitute by far our greatest single market for the products of labor.

On the basis of this logic it is then accurate to assume the farmer is the most important segment of our national economy.

Ersatz Flowers

For a substitute for flowers, moisten a sponge and sprinkle it generously with mustard and birdseed. It will sprout shoots and resemble an attractive green ball. This can be used as a table decoration when flowers from the florist are not available.

Hampshire Hogs

A Hampshire is recognized as a meat type or a "middle of the road" breed. The breed is noted for large litters, grazing ability, and gentle quality. Packer prefer Hampshires because they produce a high percentage of high-priced cuts. They are also known for their fast growing and quick developing qualities.

Young Iowa Trucker Wins Safety Contest Hauls 7,000 Hogs, 3,000 Cattle a Year

Walter Sellnau, 27, of Charlotte, Iowa, was winner of the seven-month Chicago livestock trucker safety program sponsored by the Chicago Stock Yards in its campaign to reduce the annual national loss of $33,000,000 in meat through safer livestock hauls to market.

Sellnau was awarded $1,000 worth of bonds and merchandise for his outstanding hauling record. Judged the best of 3,985 truckers from 19 states and Canada who participated in the program, Sellnau's seven trucks traveled 80,000 miles to and from Chicago, carrying 7,000 hogs and 3,000 cattle.

A newcomer in the trucker business, he has been hauling livestock to market for only a year and a half.

Sellnau uses care in his livestock hauls. He carries a portable loading chute under his truck for use in farm yards where there is no regular loading chute. He also uses an electric prodder on livestock instead of a whip or club, and places sand and limestone on the floor of his truck to lessen the chances of falling and bruising.

Michigan Mirror News Briefs

With the adjournment of the legislature the political pot has subsided to a mere simmer the large question in Michigan being, of course, the race for the senate next fall. But the gubernatorial picture must not be overlooked.

Republicans have more or less settled on Fred M. Alger, Jr., secretary of state, as their standard bearer in the next election. Mystery shrouds the Democratic position.

Will Williams run? Yes, most agree—unless he gets a bid from Washington. The popular young governor has been clocked as a possible vice-presidential starter. Washington isn't talking—yet.

Business in Michigan has declined. In April sales tax collections in the state totaled $19,529,793, a drop of $1,000,000 from the previous month. Half of the decline was in automobile sales.

After battling through hundreds of amendments to the state budget bill, legislative aides report the total figure to be $306,113,205. Expenditures: $199,916,654, general government; $89,082,394, school aid; $14,679,157, repayment of veterans' bonus bonds; $1,900,000 civil defense, and $585,000, airport matching money.

Lansing, which has the only state-owned airport in Michigan (Capitol City Airport), will get $100,000 for port improvements to be matched by an equal amount from the federal government. Former Governor Kim Sigler, a flying enthusiast, claims Lansing has the nation's second worst state airport.

Saginaw, in passing a municipal income tax on businesses, has stirred up a cyclone of reaction. This may be the answer for funds-starved cities all over the state. But corporations and big businesses already are preparing their arguments against similar action in other areas.

Detroit national guardsmen may lose their gigantic north side armory. Purchased from the federal government in 1948, the 10-acre building was released on the stipulation that it could be reclaimed in case of emergency.

Now the Vickers company may get it back to work on navy contracts. The property originally cost $3,966,000, was sold to the state for $25,000 and would require $1,000,000 to reconvert back to war plant status.

Michigan trout fishermen polled recently favored more stream improvement and approve a larger trout stamp fee to finance added work.

A measure to combat bootlegging of cigarettes has been signed into law. Designed to prevent bringing tobacco from other states into Michigan without paying up the local taxes, the law stiffens penalties by making it a felony in cases of violations involving more than $50 worth of cigarettes.

Senator Homer Ferguson has started a "background" luncheon custom with newsmen in Washington who represent Michigan newspapers and radio stations. Each Thursday they have a Dutch meal in Ferguson's office while he briefs them on background and matters relating to this state.

Deer herd reproduction in critically over-browsed areas may be reduced by 50 percent this spring, according to conservation department officials.

The state civilian defense headquarters has organized 28 100-plane air mobile defense units. The units would supply fast transportation of needed specialists and supplies in time of emergency. Backbone of the set-up is the 5,011 volunteer pilots, 243 airports and 162 aviation schools cooperating with the project.

Some 4,596 new teachers will be graduated from Michigan colleges this year as against 1,360 four years ago, but the teacher shortage will continue. Dr. T. Luther Purdom, University of Michigan director of occupational information, predicts 2,000 more instructors will be needed.

Grass Day Features Events of Interest to Local Farmers

Six Grass Day demonstration events for Michigan's lower peninsula are being readied by local committees and county agricultural agents in six regions of the state. The events, sponsored by the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service, in cooperation with other agencies, will be held between June 13 and June 25.

The Grass Day program for farmers in this area will be held on June 18 on the Mathew Borsenck farm in Saginaw County, located one mile east of Brant.

These all-day events are designed to bring to farmers of the state the most recent information concerning establishment, management, harvesting and utilization of high-yielding, high-quality forage crops, officials reveal. Richard Bell, farm crops extension specialist at MSC and general chairman of the state committee, says events will follow a general pattern.

Starting at 9:30 a. m. and lasting until noon, tours will be conducted to demonstration areas of the host farm. Machinery will also be exhibited.

After the noon lunch hour, a brief half-hour speaking program is scheduled. Seeding and hay and silage making demonstrations will be held following.

It marks the fourth year for the Grass Day events which have attracted nearly 60,000 in previous years. Events are moved about among counties in the areas to reach more people.

'Farming' Coach

Adolph Rupp, coach of the national champion University of Kentucky basketball team, studies his crop of hereford heifers with the same sharp eyes that he looks over a freshman basketball player reporting for his first practice. In his program to improve his hereford herd, the 'farming' coach will keep most of the heifers on his first team providing they develop as expected.

New Jersey Farm Prices Behind National Average

New Jersey farmers have gained less from increasing prices than have the nation's farmers, according to Rutgers University agricultural economists.

Farm prices in the state have increased 13 per cent since the start of the Korean war compared to 26 per cent for the nation as a whole. Most important New Jersey commodities are milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

"Some day I'm going to own a Roadmaster"

ONE thing that interests us mightily is the fact that so many people are stepping up, when they buy automobiles.

We've been looking at surveys, and it seems that just about everyone wants a better car than the one he's now driving.

So we know how you feel, and we'd like to help you make your dreams come true.

We'd like you to discover how fine a fine car can be.

We'd like you to stretch out in the room of a ROADMASTER—feel the luxury of its double-depth cushions—stroke the fine texture of its fabrics.

We'd like you to know the proud levelness of its ride—and its gentle obedience to your hand on the wheel.

We'd like to show you the many extras this custom-built Buick provides—at no extra charge when we come to make out a bill of sale.

But above all, we'd like you to experience two thrills found exclusively in ROADMASTERS.

One is the smooth might of its Fireball Engine. The other is the supreme simplicity of Dynaflo Drive, which is, incidentally, one of the many features included in the price.

We try to hold down our enthusiasm in talking about this masterful beauty.

We might claim—you'll find more room—more comfort—more luxury—a smoother ride—more conveniences—more thrill in a ROADMASTER than in any other car in the fine-car field.

But why spoil the thrill of discovery? Come find out for yourself how completely a 1951 ROADMASTER fulfills the dreams of the car you hope sometime to own.

And let us whisper something to you: The cost of making this step to ROADMASTER ownership is less than most people believe.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Adult's Clothing Can Yield Good Materials for Child's Wardrobe

By Ertta Haley

MOST MOTHERS have found that it's expensive to outfit children completely from ready-made clothing, but the cost can be cut if only some of the wardrobe has to be purchased.

Even though you may not have other youngsters who pass their clothing on to younger members of the family, the child's own clothes often have remake possibilities. Clothing from mother and daddy can frequently yield good material for a child's wardrobe.

No child, no matter how small, will be enthusiastic about clothing which is unattractive, and who can blame him or her? Children have an innate sense of styling and color which may come from their being admired in something nice. At any rate, whatever you remake, do it carefully, with a flair for style, so your efforts are put to good purpose.

Fabrics which you draw from old clothing should be clean. If the garment can be laundered, well and good; otherwise, have it cleaned professionally.

Laundered old clothing should be pressed before you start remaking it or you cannot get the material straight enough to use for cutting. Garments should be taken apart at the seams for restyling. If the clothing used is more than ample, save time and simply cut apart at the seams.

After you have the old material out from old clothing, tint or dye as necessary. You may have better looking clothing if you simply add color to faded out clothing, than using it as is, in its washed out appearance.

How to Re-Use Old Knit Suits

Those little cotton knit suits which your toddler-going-on-two has worn since fourteen or sixteen months of age or earlier will undoubtedly be showing signs of being too small right about now. You'll find that most of them will still fit through chest and shoulders, but they're useless with their pants.

Cut the shirt off the pants at the waist and hem the bottom of it. It may be worn with slacks or overalls for several months in this state. Overalls can be made inexpensively from some of Dad's work shirts, an old seersucker house dress of yours, or even a corduroy skirt.

These little knit shirts which you've converted to "T" shirts for overalls are usually pastel shades which are not as practical for the toddler who gets more soiled. Deep tones such as navy, wine or brown, to which they can be dyed, will be more serviceable.

Overalls and slacks which are worn at the knees can be used again, if they are still large enough, if you place decorative patches on the knees. These can be very clever, indeed, if they're cut in the shape of animals and in a contrasting shade and then sewed to the knees.

Sweaters which have become too short in the sleeves can have these cut off and the armholes bound to prevent raveling with a knit or contrasting binding. You'll then have a slip-over type sweater which keeps tots covered. These are nice to wear over a shirt.

Old corduroy overalls or other pieces of similar material of your own can be made into butcher boy or boxer jackets which are excellent to wear with slacks or overalls, for both boys and girls.

Little Girls' Clothes Require Charming Trim

Your little daughters can look charming in clothes that require little material, and a little bit more of trimmings. It's amazing what can be done with mother's old maternity dresses, robes, lin-

Capelet Interest

White and grey shadow plaid linen has a button-on capelet with a black velvet collar and bow tie to off-set its extreme simplicity. The dress is fashioned with a halter neckline and belted in black patent, and takes simple accessories of black.

gerie, or even with clothes the girl herself has outgrown.

Take, for example, the outgrown dress in a pretty pastel shade. This can be converted into a sundress, or pinafore, if you simply cut off the bodice and restyle it with an apron effect with a bib front. Use straps over the shoulders that continue to a waistband that ties in the back. Cuttings can be used to fashion wide ruffles to edge the shoulder straps.

Old organdie formals or discarded sheer curtain material dyed a luscious pink, blue, aqua or yellow are excellent sources for material if you plan to make a starchy pinafore the little girl can wear for dress occasions, either over a dress or over slip and blouse. Simply use a pinafore pattern that you like and cut from the material as you would from yard goods.

What about those old pinafores which the girl has outgrown? Add an extra inch or two which she needs at the bodice by inserting a band of eyeslet trimming. Then add length to the garment with an eyeslet ruffle at the skirt and she can have another year's wear from it.

Old maternity dresses which you never want to see again have plenty of material in them for gay dresses, especially if they're charming prints. The skirt of one dress has enough material for a two or three year old's dress or two sun suits for a small boy.

Fashion Light Coats From Old Clothes

In-between coats for the children are considered an extravagance to buy, but there's many a day when you'd like them to have something lightweight to wear. You probably have enough material at home for a coat project if you check the sources.

An old lightweight wool and rayon topper, either yours or your husband's would be ideal. Perhaps you have some discarded men's white flannels that are too small or too yellowed ever to be used again.

For yellowed woollens such as flannel, use beige or light blue dye, and you'll have a nice shade for either boy or girl. The collar can be faced with scraps of matching velveteen of the same color.

Brighter shades of old material can be dyed navy blue. Brass buttons and scarlet lining will give you a beloved classic refter style.

Any materials you may use for a coat project will be all or at least part wool, and you can expect some shrinkage when the fabric is dyed. Careful pressing, however, will restore much or all of the loss to the material.

Use a warm iron and a damp cloth over the material when pressing. While drying the material, keep away from both intense heat and cold.

Should the material used have a combination of several types of fibers in it, or if you're not certain just what it contains, it's wise to use an all-purpose dye.

Add New Trimmings To Hand-Me-Downs

If little sister is anything but enthusiastic about her big sisters' clothes which she always inherits, embark on a project of redecorating the old clothes.

Pastel dresses which are faded can be dyed bright shades, and that will give them an entirely new look. Best results are achieved if you dye a bright shade of the color already in the garment, like red for pink, deep, royal blue for light blue and gold for yellow. Of course, you can add blue to a yellow dress and get green, or pink and tan to white to get ice cream pink, etc.

TUSCOLA COUNTY EXTENSION OFFICE

Each year about this time we hear about a few shipments of milk being rejected due to souring, high bacteria count, sediment, or off-flavors. Before it happens to you, Mr. Dairymen, we suggest you check your milk cooling equipment to make sure it is operating properly. Use a thermometer to see that milk temperature is lowered rapidly to a safe level. Also check up on your milking and sanitation practices, to assure the highest possible quality product. Wash cows' udders, control mastitis, change strainer pads for each can of milk, and get each can into the cooler as soon as you have it filled. For more details call or send for MSC Extension Bulletin, "Producing Quality Milk."

While we're on the subject of milk quality, we shouldn't overlook the need to control insects around the dairy barn. Ray Jones, MSC Extension Entomologist, recommends spraying with methoxychlor on cattle and in the dairy barn. For spraying outside the barn, Jones recommends a DDT or lindane spray to control flies.

Spring sown small grains that have to compete with fast growing weeds cannot produce a maximum yield. A chemical weed control sprayed on the grain crop when it is four to eight inches high will kill or retard most weeds, prevent them from competing with the crop and producing objectionable seeds to contaminate the grain at harvest time. 2,4-D is recommended as a spray where there is no legume seeding. In fields seeded to a legume, a dinitro spray should be used. Circular Bulletin 214, "Chemical Weed Control," available at the Extension Office, gives details of spray recommendations for grain and other crops.

Heat For Chickens
The wiring in a large broiler house should be checked before an attempt is made to heat the house with heat lamps. The number of lamps required to heat one of these large houses might put an excessive load on the wiring, creating a hazard.

Selecting Oranges
Choose oranges that are heavy for their size and have thin skins with a fairly-smooth texture.

Hatch Early Pullets
To provide more eggs for late summer and fall, try winter-hatching of chicks. The pullets from these broods will come into production early and be laying at the time when egg shortages normally occur. Prices are higher then, too.

Committees Lauded For Church Pageant

The Pageant, "A Story to Tell," written especially in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Church Vacation Schools in America, was successfully presented at the Presbyterian Church Sunday in the annual Children's Day observance.

The program was successful in spite of the difficulty of poor attendance at rehearsals, boys away on a Scout trip, and necessary changes in the committee due to illness and the pressure of time.

Rev. M. R. Vender, who saw the pageant presented on a large and colorful setting as part of an evening program in the large Taft auditorium in Cincinnati, said, "I was delighted with the local presentation, under the handicaps listed. We had a splendid committee, thanks to them: Mrs. James Champion accepting a last minute assignment as chairman two weeks ago." Mrs. Zora Day, Mrs. Don McLeod, and department leaders were as follows: Junior department, Mrs. Clifford Martin, Mrs. E. G. Golding and Arnold Fischer. Primary leaders, were: Mrs. J. A. Milligan, Mrs. Norman Crawford and Mrs. Don MacLachlan. Annette Pinney acted as organist and pianist of the day.

Joan Holmberg and Richard Wallace acted as narrators and Fred Martin as Dr. Boville, founder of the Vacation Schools in New York City fifty years ago.

Mrs. Ernest Croft, superintendent of the church school and appointer of the committee, could not be reached for comment.

The six scenes in the pageant depicted the dismissal of a local Sunday School class, the call and commission of the disciples, the pilgrims, New York City street scene of idle, restless and semi-delinquent boys and girls, the First Vacation School, led by Dr. Boville in 1901, and closing worship and dedication.

ward Hennessey and grandchildren of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Martin LaGodna and Mrs. Eleanor Spitzer of Marlette, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kehoe, Jr., of Cass City, Mr. and Mrs. Henry LaFave and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kehoe and family.

Beef Grades

Under the new federal beef grades, the prime grade applies to beef previously graded choice, the new choice grade replaces the old good, and the new good replaces the highest-quality commercial.

"Land of Propriety"

Okinawa, scene of World War II's last battle and now an air base for the Korean conflict, was known during the 18th century as the "Land of Propriety." The title was bestowed by a Chinese emperor who considered the island's cultural achievements of the day remarkable.

Miss Anita Benitez of Saginaw spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Benitez.

Joseph Wald of Detroit spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Wald. His sister, Miss Mary Louise Wald, accompanied him to Detroit Sunday and is spending the week with Mrs. David Durst and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Damsen and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Giroux of Saginaw were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kehoe and on Saturday visited Mrs. Anthony Karner at Pleasant Home Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thiel and family were week-end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Thiel.

Farm Families Know Type Of Home They Will Build

Farm families know the type of house they want to have it, and when they build. But building is more a question of "when" than "if," according to a recent survey of 12 north-central states.

Approximately nine hundred families took part in the survey. They were selected to give a cross-section of the wants and desires of 2,270,000 farm families living in Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

A one-story house with six or seven rooms, a sloping roof and central heating was first choice. The house must have one or more porches, a spare bedroom, a basement or cellar, coat closet on the first floor, a separate dining room, first floor workroom, and a drive so planned in relation to the house that callers will come to the front door.

Most families wanted to have a dining area in the kitchen, but many of them wanted an additional dining room which could accommodate six or more persons.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse for a lawyer not collecting his fee.

Adjust Sprayer for Best Insect Control

Equipment in good condition is just as necessary for insect control as the correct insecticide, report Michigan State College entomologists. Poor equipment will not do a good job of coverage.

Good coverage is highly important and requires enough nozzles and correct pressure. Nozzles should be adjusted to meet the praying and dusting requirements of each crop treated. Needs vary with the crops and should be considered each time a different crop is treated.

The entomologists emphasize that nozzles of dusters and sprayers can be too close or too far away from crops. Canvas trailers can be used with the dust to improve coverage, provided they do not damage the crop mechanically or scatter disease.

Plant Feeding

The idea of feeding plants through the leaves is not new. Sprays applied to the foliage have been tried on citrus and tung trees for a number of years. Usually the sprays are used when a deficiency of nutritional element becomes the limiting factor in the growth of the plant. Under such conditions the deficient element might be applied to the tree as a soil amendment, a spray, a dust, an injection, or as bits of metal driven directly into the plant.

A Beautiful
Long-Time Investment?

We admit that one of the very important attractions of this new Silver Streak Pontiac is its captivating appearance. Nearly everyone says it's a really beautiful car. But if Pontiac didn't have something in addition to its beauty, it couldn't possibly be in such tremendous demand today. That additional something is Pontiac's famous dependability. Talk to any Pontiac owner and you'll hear a wonderful story of months and years and thousands of enjoyable miles with an absolute minimum of routine service attention.

Add them together—beauty, performance and dependability—you'll realize that Dollar for Dollar You Can't Beat a Pontiac—a beautiful long-time investment.

Little Stories about Great Hymns
Jesus Loves Me
Jesus loves me, this I know
For the Bible tells me so;
Little ones to Him belong,
They are weak, but He is strong.

Yes, Jesus loves me!
Yes, Jesus loves me!
Yes, Jesus loves me!
The Bible tells me so!

This is perhaps the first hymn learned at Sunday School. The words, so simple, so lovely, were written by an American woman, Anna Warner, who lived on a Hudson River island. She busily wrote stories and taught Bible classes, but will be forever remembered for this beautiful children's hymn. The pretty tune by Wm. Bradbury certainly helped to make it popular. For half a century, children the world over have loved and sung this simple hymn of a child's faith in Jesus.

Rabies Costly

Dogs and foxes infected with rabies are spreading the disease to large numbers of livestock, according to new reports. In east Texas alone, livestock losses due to rabies were estimated at $250,000 for last year. Rabid foxes were largely responsible for the loss of over 350 cattle, horses, and mules in one section of Georgia in 1949. Other states also have experienced heavy losses.

To Save Duty

There is a pulp mill projected for Sarnia, Ontario, just across the St. Clair river from Port Huron, Mich. The pulp produced in the Canadian mill will be pumped, in "slush" form, in a pipe across the river, and will be made into paper at Port Huron in the United States, thus saving the U.S. customs duty since in "slush" form the pulp can cross the border free of duty, while finished paper would be dutiable.

Salad Dressing

When to add the dressing depends upon the kind of salad that is being served. Since French dressing tends to wilt salad greens, dressing should not be added until salad is ready to serve. One exception to the rule is when meat or a cooked vegetable-mix makes up the salad. When this is the case, many housewives prefer to marinate ingredients in French dressing an hour or two for added flavor.

Oldest Occupation

The shepherd represents one of the oldest occupations known to man. Archeologists have unearthed evidence that domesticated sheep shared the huts of Swiss lake dwellers, a race that lived about 8,250 B.C. Even then the shepherd's trade was an ancient one—the Old Testament identifies Abel, one of Adam's two sons, as a "keeper of sheep."

SHORT STORY

Fixation On Father

By Richard H. Wilkinson

MR. Harlow sat bolt upright in his chair. The psychology lecturer was saying: "And in the normal family, when the daughter reaches the age of 12 or 13 it is quite likely that her fixation will shift from her mother to her father. They will become great friends. Often this fixation on father will remain until the daughter transfers her affections to a mate. However, if father does not respond to daughter's fixation, the child will, unconsciously, shift back to mother, who, in many cases has resented the original transfer."

3-Minute Fiction

Mr. Harlow rose. He made his way down the long aisle, paying no heed to the annoyed glances of other listeners, gained the outside lobby and paused there, dabbing at a moist brow with his handkerchief.

So that was it! he told himself. So that was the cause of his wife's indignation and wrath and resentment. In his mind's eye the pieces of the puzzle that had troubled him for the past month fell into place. He understood now what had happened; he could see it taking place, step by step. Virginia, his only child had attained the age of 13. She was nearing maturity. Gradually, unconsciously, her fixation had transferred from mother to father. The two had become great friends. Mr. Harlow had been tremendously proud and happy.

Not so Mrs. Harlow. Mrs. Harlow was annoyed. She hadn't understood and presently her annoyance changed to resentment against her husband.

... Mr. Harlow returned late that night. It was not his habit to return home late, but tonight there was a definite purpose. Mrs. Harlow had retired, and 10 minutes after he entered the house his daughter Virginia came in. Virginia had been to a party.

Seeing a light in the living room, Virginia came to the door. At sight of her father sitting there alone she uttered a little cry of delight and bounced upon his knee, with the full intention of providing him with details concerning her evening's activities. Something about the expression on her parent's face, however, restrained her.

MR. Harlow smiled at her in a manner that bespoke faint embarrassment. He attempted to brush something from his coat but failed. Thus having had her attention attracted to the something, Virginia investigated and found it to be a dab of powder. She looked at it and frowned. Looking further she discovered a long strand of blond hair.

Horror filled her eyes, a hurt look, an expression of awe and wonder and incredulity, gradually giving way to something bordering on accusation and scorn. She drew away.

Abruptly she flung her arms about her father's neck and promised him that no matter what happened she would keep his secret.

"Why, Daddy! Whatever—who?" Mr. Harlow interrupted, gesturing airily, saying something about an apology, presently lapsing into a lengthy but rather stupid discourse and ending by stating that it would not be wise or necessary to mention the matter to her mother.

Virginia stared. Abruptly she flung her arms about her father's neck and promised him that no matter what happened she would keep his secret. It would be their secret. Poor mother. She must never know. But he must promise—

Yes, yes. Of course he'd promise. It was all very silly anyway. Just one of those regretful things that would never be repeated.

After awhile Virginia rose and left him. Her attitude brought a lump into Mr. Harlow's throat. But when she had gone he sighed in vast relief. Beginning tomorrow, he knew, his daughter's fixation would be transferred back to her mother. Mrs. Harlow would cease to be irritable and resentful. Harmony would reign once more in the household. And sometime, Mr. Harlow told himself, when Virginia was safely married and away, he would explain it all—and hope that she would understand.

Many Changes in Business Section

Main Street has been getting a face lifting the past few months in Cass City as merchants in the village have been making changes and additions to their business places.

One of the major changes in the skyline of the street will be the absence of the Old Elkland Roller Mills building.

The mill was one of the oldest buildings in Cass City. It is partially torn down now and work is expected to be completed in the near future on the first floor—all that is left of the village landmark.

At the opposite end of the village, William Hutchinson has erected a building for his upholstery shop, while Bauer Candy Co. is nearing the completion of their new warehouse here.

Auten Motor Sales have added new space to their business place with the completion of enlarging plans for their garage.

Townsend's Store is being improved with the addition of the decorative front to the building.

George Andrews, new owner of the Home Restaurant, has started work on his business place and expects it to be remodeled within two weeks, while John West is painting his welding shop.
