More Meat for Year Is USDA Prediction

The average American may eat even more meat and poultry in 1952 than in 1951, if advance production figures are any indication.

According to a forecast of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, meat production this year may be large enough to provide an average of 144 pounds per person as compared with 141 pounds in 1951.

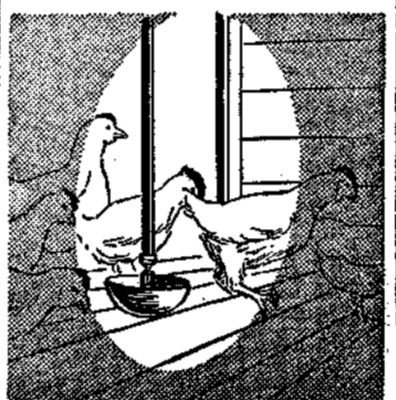

Most of the meat increase will be in beef and veal. Much of the step-up in beef will be in medium and lower grades, although some of it probably will be in the better grades from grain-fed cattle. Veal consumption per person in the country last year was a 19-year low of 6.7 pounds.

The amount of lamb and mutton eaten by the average American is expected to go up slightly, as is production. Last year consumption of lamb and mutton was the lowest on record—only slightly over 3 pounds per person.

A little more pork may be on the market in the first few months of 1952, but production for the last part of the year may be somewhat smaller.

Increased production may cause a slight price decline in some lines.

Waterers

One of the big headaches in the chicken house is the waterer. No matter how careful the producer, some is always spilled, keeping the floor and litter damp. This headache can be eliminated if the waterer is suspended over the droppings pit. Water when splashed over the sides drops into the pit.

Dairy Heifers Can Be Raised Economically

The University of Nebraska reports recent tests prove dairy heifers can be raised satisfactorily from birth to two years of age with as little as 500 pounds of grain. In the place of grain the animals were fed all the high quality alfalfa hay they could eat. The scientists emphasized, however, that the limited grain rations experiment was successful only because of the high quality forage fed.

When Culling Herd Check Calf Weight

Check the weight of calves when deciding which beef cows to cull and which to keep in the herd, Michigan State College beef specialists advised State beef producers this week.

They point out that the cows you keep in your herd should wean marketable calves and the calves should show satisfactory weight for their age if the cows are doing the kind of a job they should. Otherwise it may pay you to cull the low producing cows and replace them with ones that will make more money.

The MSC animal husbandmen also cite research that show that a cow's period of highest calf production is between the ages of four and eight years. When cows get to be nine or ten years old they usually drop down to the production levels of two- and three-year-olds. So it's a good idea to closely check the calf yields of these older cows for possible culling.

Corn Planting Rate Affects Total Yield

Many farmers wonder about the rate of planting for a corn crop. They know that planting more seeds will result in a greater number of plants, but they wonder if total yields will be as high.

Some recent studies at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station shed some light on this subject, says E. C. Rossman, farm crops researcher at Michigan State College.

Results from rate of planting studies conducted for two years show that corn yields went up about 50 per cent when the planting rate was doubled. Stands increased from about 9,700 plants per acre to 19,400 plants per acre.

Ears were smaller in size at the high rate of planting, Rossman said, but the larger number of ears offset the decrease in ear size.

Simple Tricks with Curtains Add Much Charm and Beauty

By Erta Haley

String Bows

Dainty string bows are a favorite trimming feature of the season's shoes. Here they are seen on an open-toed, but closed heel shoe done in black suede, but may be had in brown suede or blue calf as the wardrobe dictates.

ARE curtains at your windows used just to have something there, or do they add the interesting note to the room?

One of the most inexpensive ways to decorate any room in the home is to provide a bright accent with curtains, a cheerful note or something so lively as to start conversation just as soon as someone sees your curtains.

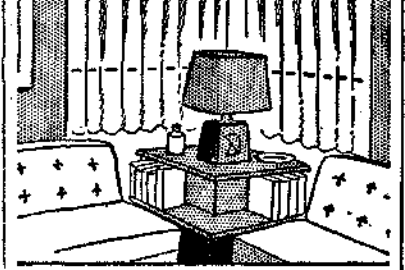

Just in case you think curtains haven't changed much, just look at some of the new designs and colors which are available, to say nothing of the new styles in curtaining. All rooms in the home have been exposed to the new things in curtains—kitchens, living and dining rooms, entrance halls, bedrooms and game rooms.

Just as refinishing furniture can improve it, so can curtains be used to hide any number of construction faults in windows. They can enhance the view if you have one, or replace a poor view just in the way the curtains themselves are treated.

Remember the days when curtains were mostly white or ivory? These are sometimes used, but the use is quite different from what it used to be. Curtains have plenty of color and design now, and they can be used to bring out room colors by harmonizing or accenting them.

There are even certain types of prints available which will help to carry out furniture or decorative themes. These, used in curtains, can often be the most effective note the room has.

When rooms have sufficient color and design interest, then add no more conflicting accents, and use plain sheer curtains.

Sheer curtains refresh corners...

Study your rooms and see just what kind of curtains they need. Once this is decided, you'll have fun getting together just what's needed.

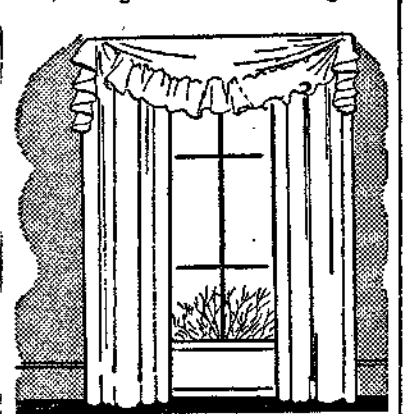

Use Unusual Treatments For Sheer Curtains

Sheer curtains aren't always perfectly plain; neither are they always feminine and ruffled. Today's trend shows interesting effects obtained by treating sheer curtains almost as draperies.

Take, for example, the room with a large corner window. If you need the light or don't want to close out the view, then sheer curtains are an absolute essential. But, you may say, the room is a living room, and you want something really appropriate.

Sheer curtains for this type of corner window may be strictly tailored. Pinch-pleat them at the top and place on traverse rods so they can be drawn easily. Use closed or open, as desired. Curtains treated in this way should be luxurious for they have no draperies "to help them out." Pinch pleats should be full; have hems at least five inches deep.

High ceilinged rooms usually need a valance at the windows to help cut down the disproportion of the room. Even though the windows may just be average length, they can be made more effective if you use tailored curtains of sheer material, falling to sill or floor length.

At the top, drape generously with a ruffled curtain to give the effect of a valance, though the curtains themselves may be perfectly straight. This is a very effective way to treat windows in old-fashioned houses as well as rooms in which there is sufficient color and design interest elsewhere in the room.

Draperies may be used with sheer curtains, but they should be full and generous. If they cannot be because of the expense involved, it's far better taste and much more good sense to spend the money on sheer curtains and make these like drapes, pleated and full, placed on traverse rods.

Novelty Curtains Have Many Uses

Need curtains for your bathroom? Plastic is frequently an excellent choice because it will withstand the constant dampness of the room, and the curtains will not wilt.

Curtains for the bathroom can match the shower curtains if they're used. In fact, in a small bathroom, it's best to have them not only of matching material but also in style. Tailored shower curtains naturally call for straight curtains.

If the room is not strictly tailored, ruffled curtains may be used, tied back, as in cottage sets.

Both the shower curtain and the curtains can be made from plastic material bought by the yard, especially if you like the shower curtain especially long and generously full.

There was a time when kitchen curtains had to be organdie or one of the other sheer materials, and preferably in white. Now that color has been introduced more strongly into the kitchen, curtain materials have a wide range.

Let's suppose that your kitchen is Early American in theme or has an informal peasant theme. What would be more appropriate than some colorful chintz or one of the peasant prints which are often done on natural or gray-white linen? Here, then, is the ideal choice.

If the kitchen has a gay informality and you want a clear view of the outside, why bother with curtains at all? You'll find that a piece of colored ruffie through which you run elastic can be placed to go all the way around the window, thus giving you the color accent and the freedom of view desired.

Solve Window Problems With Clever Curtains

Rooms with small windows can probably use all the light they can get. Curtains, rather than drapes are the answer. Sheer curtains on double rods will answer the purpose nicely, especially those which are tied back in hour glass fashion.

Views outside the window cannot easily be changed, but you don't have to look out! Treat windows like this with pretty curtains and you can have as nice a picture as you want. Figured lace panels are excellent for living and dining room windows. You might have an attention getting cornice and some striking pattern in the drapes hung at either side to complete the effect.

Informal living rooms with windows, bedrooms and kitchens, too, can have the outside view blocked with gathered sheer curtains. You might try use of three or four rows of these, with the bottom edge piped in a solid color that goes well in the room.

Windows which show nothing at all on the outside, especially those which look right at the wall of another house can have tailored curtains in good colors. Take a cloth of good texture and add some vertical stripes of bright color, and use these at the windows.

Candy-striped curtains are good in many rooms, whether these are tailored or feminine. A girl's room may have trothy organdie bedspread and dressing table. What could be lovelier than red and white candy striped curtains, tailored, but still a good contrasting note to all the femininity?

Children's rooms are excellent with tailored, striped curtains, too. You might select several colors in stripes and sew these on solid-colored material.

Let Remnants Make Attractive Curtains

How often have you gone out to buy material and then found something later in the home which would have served the purpose as well? Too often! Check your stock at hand first and see if old things can be converted to usefulness.

For smaller curtains you're certain to find material unless you've just started housekeeping and have no remnants at all. Good portions of sheets, linen towels, crash, men's shirts and many such items can be cut and used for short curtains.

Trimnings may be needed, but these are certainly less expensive than buying everything new. Shirring in different colors is available to make the task easier, and so are rick-rack, ruffling, bias tape and ribbon for stripes.

Cold Frame Is Still Best Garden Helper Most Valuable Space In Any Garden Area

The most valuable 18 square feet in any garden area is that which is covered with a cold frame.

It began as a pit, some thousands of years ago. Today it is an enclosure, partly below ground, with a protective covering which admits daylight.

Anyone who can drive a nail, and operate a saw, can build a cold frame. The boards can be cut in the basement or garage...

The above illustration is a practical working-drawing of a standard one-sash cold frame.

suitable size is available. Sash covered with transparent plastic materials will be much lighter than glazed-sash...

The usual practice is to sink the frame into the ground about six inches, and to pile earth around it outside, for insulation.

Higher Production Is Goal of U.S. Farmers

Again American farmers are being called on to turn out high yields of food, feeds and fibers.

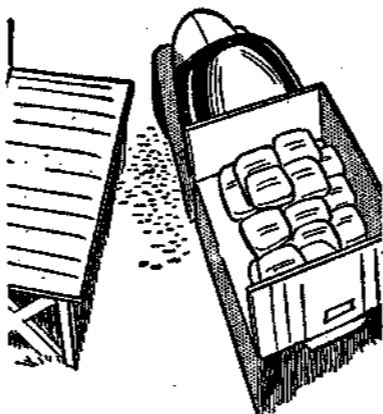

This production is being asked although farmers will have about 200,000 fewer farm workers available in 1952.

Production at the goal level will require increased yields per acre in all major crops.

The task for farmers is made more difficult because their need for fertilizers will be far greater than the supply.

The Department of Agriculture will do all it can to offset these shortages, but such scarcities are a warning signal to the American farmer.

Easier Loading

A farmer handy with tools can make a drop-side to his wagon or truck as illustrated above with a few pieces of scrap iron and a length of pipe.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Michigan began reverberating last week to the thump of Eisenhower drums as various backers in the state trotted out a likeness of the general, began tightening organizations and belts and collecting pledges for funds.

Taft has made a quick visit to the state and Kefauver dropped in to say a brief hello. But this will be the first really full scale drive in Michigan. It is in the hands of Arthur H. Vandenberg, Jr., son of the late senator and now organizing director of the Eisenhower movement.

In Grand Rapids, Arthur's bailiwick, he met with leaders of the statewide Eisenhower committee members and they worked out details. By now the Grand Rapids procedure is being repeated all over the state to collect enough endorsements to tip the scales against Taft, who has been doing rather well in the midwest.

Now there comes speculation on whether Ike will return to this country to campaign. If he doesn't, according to more than one source, he won't stand a chance against Taft. And if Taft doesn't win the nomination on the first vote, predicts these same sources, Grey Horse MacArthur may get it.

A new twist on an old story. Michigan each year is cheated out of from $500,000 to $1,000,000 in cigarette taxes by bootleggers operating between Detroit and St. Louis, Mo. Michigan has a three-cents per package tax. St. Louis has none.

Department of revenue says bootlegging cigarettes is being held to a standstill, at least, through increased activity of its workers and making the offense a felony. Prior to last June offenders usually were given 60 to 90 days in jail. Two men recently sentenced pulled prison terms of five months to five years and nine months to five years.

The revenue department is afraid of the cigarette bootlegging potential. Cigarettes are more profitable ($5,000 per load and two loads a week) and more easier to handle than liquor was during prohibition.

Sen. Alpheus P. Decker of Decker-erville sat the chamber back on its heels when he blasted Detroit as a "hotbed of un-American thinking" while opposing legislation to reapportion the state on a strict population basis. "Perhaps it was a pretty strong statement just at this time," the senator said later. He says now he thinks there has been improvement in Detroit since 1930.

Michigan's mental hospitals are overflowing and inadequate—a fact generally known. But the latest figure from the department of health says they are 22 per cent overcrowded. Some 30,000 patients are under state care.

Detroit is battling over a proposal to substitute the medical examiner system for the coroner set-up now in effect. New York, which has the medical examiner program, says a complete medical investigation of a case costs only $5 and saves the state thousands of dollars in rechecking cases, witness fees and prolonged criminal investigations.

The federal civil defense administration warns Michigan citizens against being taken in by racketeers who sell guaranteed "radiation proof overalls" and the like. FCDA says that even if genuinely protective clothing would be devised probably no one would be wearing it at the right time.

Michigan's birth rate is playing hob with its schools. Some 170,000 babies were born last year as compared with 99,000 in 1940. School officials say they will get 109,000 new pupils next fall while seats are needed already for 108,000 now in overcrowded facilities.

After vowing to the press a few weeks ago that he had been cured of the "politics bug", Eugene C. Keyes has turned his back on his pious resolutions and declared himself in the U. S. senate race. On what ticket? Why the independent-progressive-Republican slate, of course. Keyes' last billboard campaign fizzled miserably.

Michigan taxpayers last year paid out $4,909,900,000 in federal, state and local taxes. This compared with $3,434,010 in 1950, the largest increase in history, according to the department of revenue. The tax load in Michigan has increased 10-fold since 1930.

The emergency commission on defense contracts has moved on Washington in an effort to alleviate the jobless situation in Michigan's industrial areas. Current aims are to set up plans to establish industrial subcommittees to help plants get contracts. All major employers have been asked to submit quarterly estimates on projected employment so the commission and its subcommittees can work ahead to forestall future crises.
