Sheep Field Day Planned at MSC

A program of special interest to commercial sheep raisers as well as purebred breeders is being planned for the fourth annual sheep field day at Michigan State College, July 17.

The event will be held in the shaded area near the college sheep barn, according to Graydon Blank, MSC extension animal husbandry specialist.

One of the main program features will be a demonstration and discussion on market lamb grading. Those present also will have a chance to grade a number of lambs following the demonstration.

Several purebred breeds will be used in a discussion of types of sheep. A portion of the program will be devoted to the control of parasites and to other sheep management practices.

The program begins at 10 a. m., and the lamb grading demonstration is scheduled for 11 a. m. The Michigan Sheep Breeders' Association, co-sponsor of the program with the MSC animal husbandry department, will furnish roast lamb sandwiches and coffee. Picnic tables also will be available.

New Approach Used By Seed Producers

A new approach to the problem of getting maximum pollination of alfalfa is being tried by Michigan legume seed producers.

E. C. Martin, Michigan State College entomologist, says that many growers are moving four or five colonies of honey bees per acre into the field soon after bloom is well started. The bees are moved from an apiary at least a mile and a half away so the bees will work the alfalfa to a greater degree in becoming oriented to their surroundings again.

Pollination of alfalfa presents a special problem because the flower must be "tripped" or opened by the pollinating insect before pollination can take place. Although some wild bees such as the leaf-cutter bees and the bumble bees are efficient trippers of alfalfa, they are so limited in numbers that they normally only pollinate for a small seed crop.

Honey bees collecting nectar from alfalfa are not very effective in pollination, but honey bees collecting pollen from alfalfa trip the flower fairly satisfactorily.

Since honey bees often prefer to get their pollen from clovers or some other plants, it's important to bring them into the alfalfa field at the right time. That way they will work the alfalfa while looking for some of their more desirable blossoms.

Seed growers who plan to bring bees into the fields for the blossom period should make arrangements with beekeepers well in advance of the date on which they will be required, Martin said. Importance of good pollination lies in the fact that without it, seed production is reduced.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Socialized medicine (you should pardon the term) has been conducted in Michigan for the past 27 years.

But it has never met the vigorous and vocal opposition that usually attends the introduction of any medical plan that opponents can tag with that label.

In fact, few Michiganders were aware of this unique situation and might never have been if the state hadn't hung out a figurative "Help Wanted" sign.

Appropriately enough, the scene of the unusual experiment, if anything extends 27 years can be still called experimental - is Beaver Island, that charming spot just west of the tip of the Lower Peninsula.

Beaver Island has a fascinating history of the unusual. It was there that King Strang established his religious domain and created a political entity that was without equal in Michigan history. Under his iron-fisted, capricious leadership, Beaver Island flourished.

But political rivalry that erupted into a pitched battle ended his royal career and the population of the island began slowly to dwindle. Today there are only about 300 year-round residents although the island is each year becoming more popular as a tourist attraction and its summer population zooms.

It was in 1925, when there were about 1,500 persons on the island, that diphtheria struck with a vengeance. Appalled at the toll of the disease, the Legislature established the unusual medical set-up.

A physician was engaged on a Civil Service arrangement. He was allowed to collect whatever fees he could (incomes are low on Beaver) and the State paid him a salary. Today he receives between $5,500 and $6,500 from the Michigan treasury.

Dr. Russell Palmer, who has held the post for 25 years, is ready to retire and Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, is looking for a successor. "We need a physician who will provide his own home and medicines and will take care of the islanders and visitors at a minimum salary," says Heustis.

He calls the arrangement "the private practice of medicine with a state subsidy." He points out that "the island is being developed more now as a tourist attraction and the people of the region feel that the absence of any physician on the island would be a serious drawback."

The island's main contact with the mainland is by ship although airplane service is offered - technically - all year 'round. Winter flights often have to be cancelled because of the weather.

So, if you know some physician who, in Dr. Heustis's words, "likes the outdoors and doesn't mind being somewhat isolated and held down in one spot," refer him to the state health commission.

But you'd better not bandy the phrase "socialized medicine," some people get rather vociferous when that enters the conversation.

With the quadrennial going on at Chicago this week, the average Michigander has been getting an abundant political diet direct from the Windy City via his newspaper, radio and television.

So it's little wonder that another political gathering has been overshadowed by the Republican convention.

It's the seventh annual forum on state and local government on the Michigan State College campus. It won't have as great an impact on the nation as the party convention but its sponsors believe that it's almost as important on the long haul because it creates a better interest and understanding of government at the grassroots level.

It's been just as hot - on the thermometer - at East Lansing as it's been in Chicago and there were moments these past few days when the political temperature soared, too.

The Republican delegates had some explosive topics, FEPC, the international plank seating of contested delegates and - of course - the titanic battle between Taft and Ike. But the Michigan conferees has a couple of their own that were hardly conducive to a cool and academic discussion.

There was the explosive topic of state governmental reorganization with Gov. G. Mennen Williams leading the discussion on the opening day, Monday.

Equally controversial was the Tuesday topic: Reapportionment of Representation in the Legislature.

Both of these issues are certain to be major bones of contention in the coming elections. Two reapportionment proposals will be on the November ballot and voters must make a direct choice. Governmental reorganization will undoubtedly be one of the campaign battle lines and there, too, voters will make a decision even if in a more indirect manner.

Sessions today and tomorrow are scheduled to take up the financial problems of both state and local government and during the next two weeks, students will confer with leaders of every branch and at every level of government and with political science experts.

They'll discuss everything from states rights and decentralized government to the labor movement and two-party system.

The political leaders who attend this conference are influential in their own communities. The conclusions they draw, and pass on to their fellow citizens at home will certainly have an effect on the November elections.

In that way the conference, now overshadowed by the Chicago convention, may become far more important than the headlines alone would indicate.

Two news events have again underlined Michigan's importance in the arsenal of democracy. One was the unveiling of the new T 48 tank by Ford and General Motors that is expected to give the United States the edge on its opponents mechanized striking force.

The other was the visit to the Lansing Oldsmobile plant by Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, former head of the UN truce team at Panmunjon. At the Olds plant he saw the manufacture of the 3.5-inch bazooka rocket that seems to have been more effective in Korea than the efforts of the Admiral's team. A combination of both is needed in Korea, Joy said. "Keep on trying for an armistice and meantime exert military pressure, the only language the enemy understands." That was the recipe he gave capitol newsmen.

Michigan products will help exert that pressure.

There are Miles that Make You Happy

YOU'LL discover a lot that you like in this neat, fleet and nimble traveler the first mile you drive it.

Such things as cushions broad and deep—six-passenger room unsurpassed by any car in America—fabrics rich, soft, harmonious.

As you take it through traffic—breast a hill or two—try it out on back roads—you'll find that you handle Dynaflo Drive* as if you had always used it—your ride is serenely level—and a great tide of power comes surging up as you need it.

This, you will say, is very Super indeed.

But no one-time sample can tell you the deep-down enduring thrill that is yours when you own this great middle series Buick.

How easy it is to park in round-town driving, especially if you have Power Steering.†

How relaxed you and the family will feel at the end of a long day's vacation jaunt—with Dynaflo Drive to let you drive at ease on the open road, without the tenseness of clutch-pushing in traffic—plus a Million Dollar Ride to protect the comfort of the family.

That ride is something to talk about. More than a dozen selected engineering features control roll and wander on curves—snub dip and sway before they get past the frame—carry you over all kinds of roads with lullaby smoothness.

And that Fireball 8 Engine—man, what a docile thunderbolt you'll find it to be! Here's a high-compression valve-in-head that really wrings miles from a gallon of gas.

In other words, all the miles you travel in this Buick are going to make you gladder and gladder that you bought it—for comfort, for fun, for thrill and for thrift.

What are you waiting for? Come in and get your sample today.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series. †Now available on Super as well as Roadmaster—optional at extra cost.

Efficient Grass Feeding Builds Profitable Herds

Grass-fed cattle going to market with a moderate finish may never top the market, but nine times out of 10 they make the stockman most for his investment. Grass-feeding is the natural way to grow cattle, livestock specialists believe.

A major line between the soil and man's food, grass can be grazed directly, made into hay or silage. It offers a year-around supply of forage or feed for your herd. Cattle are able to convert forage into beef most effectively if the producer manages his range wisely and efficiently.

Cattle are selective in their grazing, choosing the best smelling and tastiest grasses. Ideally, there should be a succession of new growth which will supply adequate amounts of desirable forage over a long grazing period. In many areas this can be done by growing pasture mixtures, or in rotating permanent pastures with cultivated grasses.

A cow can hold from 120 to 180 quarts in its four stomachs. To fill them she will eat 100 pounds or more of green grass each day when the pasture is good. She also requires from 10 to 15 gallons of water. The producer should keep these facts in mind to gain the best and most efficient use of his pasture.

Ballweg, county agricultural agent.

Farrowing Jacket

Here is a way to cut down the death rate at farrowing time. It eliminates much of the danger of pigs being crushed by the sow. The sow is placed in the jacket or pen for farrowing and left there two or three days after pigs are born. Sow is fed in front and pigs nurse from pen alongside. It is simple and easy to construct.

Not Menial Tasks

A common belief that part-time jobs are the menial jobs in the nation's scheme of things and that full-time jobs are the ones which command both respect and large incomes is not altogether true. Forty percent of professional and technical men and women, over 50 percent of the nation's salesmen and saleswomen and 35 percent of all clerical workers do not work in year-round, full-time jobs.

Modern Work

Modern factory work in general is more varied and meaningful, and less arduous, than the laborer's work of a hundred years ago, but the complexity of modern production does require special effort by management to explain the meaning of the job.

Short Supply Metals

Uncle Sam is particularly anxious to grubstake prospectors who are on the trail of certain of those minerals for which this country is virtually dependent upon foreign sources. Last year, the U.S. produced only about eight per cent of the manganese needed in the making of steel.

An ELECTRIC Milk House Water Heater Speeds Up Dairy Chores

Milk house chores are easier for Henry L. Hewitt because he has plenty of hot water... And you need a lot of hot water when you farm 430 acres and have a registered milking herd of 42 Holsteins. Mr. Hewitt gets his hot water at very low cost because he has taken advantage of Edison's low combination rate for two electric water heaters: one in the milk house and another in the farm home.

How about your hot water needs? Remember, cleaner utensils keep bacteria count low and milk sales high. For additional information see your plumber, equipment dealer, or Edison Farm Service Advisor.

Question Corner

WHAT ABOUT SWINE ERYSIPELAS?

Q: How serious a problem is swine erysipelas?

A: It's one of our worst swine diseases. It has now spread to every state and causes animal losses of millions of dollars.

Q: Why is erysipelas hard to control?

A: Because it is very contagious and easily confused with other diseases.

Q: Does it affect only hogs?

A: No. Erysipelas has been reported in colts, calves, turkeys, sheep, and even parrots. Human beings can also contract it, so every precaution should be taken in handling infected animals. In man, the disease is called erysiploid.

Q: What are the symptoms of swine erysipelas?

A: They may include scaly and sloughing skin, swollen joints, arched backs, lameness, high fever and unwillingness to move unless forcibly aroused. In the acute disease many pigs may die. In the chronic disease, pigs which survive are unthrifty, and unprofitable for market.

Q: If the herd is infected, what can be done?

A: An accurate diagnosis should be obtained at the first sign of this disease. Sometimes it resembles other "look-alike" diseases.

Q: Once identified, what precautions should be taken?

A: Strict sanitary measures should be applied immediately to keep it from spreading. Immediate vaccination, isolation of affected hogs, prompt disposal of carcasses, cleaning and disinfecting of pens are important.

Q: What steps can be taken to avoid future outbreaks?

A: In areas where the disease has become a problem, many authorities recommend that pigs be vaccinated as soon as possible after farrowing.

SHORT STORY

Not A Good Risk

By Maud McCurdy

JANET had said, "I'm not going to marry you, George!"

He had bought a run-down mansion at the edge of town, which he'd had converted into apartments.

The place was surrounded by meadows. Janet and George were out on the grounds, looking over the patios, the tennis courts, and the lily pond. There was still space left over for playgrounds of most any size.

This was where the trouble started, Janet said. "Think what this will mean to children who've never had room to run and play."

George looked startled. "We can't take children, Janet," he said. She was astonished. "But this is such an ideal place for them."

George shook his head and Janet flushed angrily. "I don't believe you even like children. What else would you do with all this ground?" She hesitated a moment, then added, "I'm not marrying you, George. You wouldn't be a very good matrimonial risk."

George tried the best he could to defend himself, explaining that children were destructive. He argued, but Janet only looked at him in bewilderment.

"If you feel that way," she whispered, "you really are not a very good matrimonial risk." She left him standing there still trying to defend himself.

George tried to see her. He called her every day at the newspaper office, but she was out. It was plain Janet didn't want to see him again and there seemed to be nothing he could do about it. No matter what he tried, he could not get to see her.

Finally the apartments and grounds were complete. Peter Bolton, his partner, put a full page advertisement in the newspaper.

WITHIN an hour after the paper came out people began coming, prosperous-looking young couples, every one with children. They were excited over the place, anxious to sign leases at once.

George was bewildered. He asked Peter what on earth had he put in the ad. "Only couples without children," Peter said firmly.

George began to feel a little desperate. There was one pretty young mother, with violet eyes, almost the color of Janet's, who said feelingly, "Mr. Hartley, the mothers of this town will call you blessed."

"But I . . . " George started to say a mistake had been made, but was stopped by another young couple shaking his hand and saying, "This is wonderful. It's like a dream."

George was perspiring. He found a moment, and took a look at the ad. There it was in bold type, "Only couples with children need apply."

Leaving Peter in charge, George drove to the newspaper office. Before he could get to the advertising department a reporter button-holed him. "Mr. Hartley, the whole town is talking about what you've done. You've really made news. This will make every newspaper in the state."

George pulled away from him, hurried to the advertising department. A voice said, "Yes!" and a pair of violet eyes looked up and met George's. A quick flush came to her face. "George, they only put me on this desk yesterday and I-I made the mistake, I'm sorry."

George stood there looking at her as if he never wanted to stop. "Look, Janet, I was looking at the matter in a cold-blooded, business way." He drew a long breath and went on, "You didn't make a mistake. I did. The place is just like you said, a natural for children. And they're there already, about a dozen of them with their parents."

"George, you mean that?" Janet asked. "You're not just saying it to get me to change my mind?"

"I never meant anything more," George answered.

"I'm glad," Janet said. "You know . . . I must have had my mind on the children. I didn't make the mistake in your ad on purpose. I really didn't, George, and don't you ever say I did."

George just smiled. The whole office force might be looking, but he didn't care. He bent his head and kissed her.

The want ads are newsy too.

USDA Accepts New Soil Insecticide

Described as Effective Against Rootworms

Growers of corn, peanuts, sugar beets, sugar cane, small grains and similar crops may get economical control of soil insects with Aldrin, a new insecticide.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently accepted the new chemical for registration for use against soil insects, grubs, harmful worms and other burrowing pests, following proof of its effectiveness by many experiment stations.

It is described as being particularly effective against rootworms, wireworms, and white grubs — and in far smaller doses than those needed in previously known treatments. Damage to crops by above-ground insects is easily seen, and until recently has been the primary concern of the farmer. But damage to plant roots by soil insects, while not so readily recognized, is often more widespread and serious.

The new insecticide may be applied by any method available to the average farmer; by mixing with starter fertilizer, with manure, or by broadcasting a mixture on the surface and then discing it in. Treatments vary from a few ounces up to three pounds or so per acre, depending on what pests are being fought, and on other factors. Farmers should obtain competent advice from their dealers before using the new product.

Note the fuller roots, larger ears and straight stalks of the corn grown in soil treated by the new chemical.

While Aldrin's approval as a soil insecticide is new, it has been known for several years as a highly efficient and inexpensive surface insecticide.

Specialists Predict Egg Prices to Remain High

Poultry specialists predict egg prices will remain high during the winter of 1952 and outline a few pointers for increased production.

They urge use of an all-pullet flock. Pullets lay more eggs than old hens and a good pullet flock coming into production this fall will give you the advantage of usual good fall egg prices.

Dry quarters will mean more eggs and will prevent waste of feed, so good insulation and ventilation are important. A balanced ration will save feed. Prompt removal of birds that are not producing will save feed and increase profits. Control lice, mites and rats to improve the health of birds.

Using light to provide a 13 to 14 hour working day for the hens is a cheap way to increase production. Keep nests clean, provide plenty of nests and gather eggs three times a day to avoid broken and dirty eggs and, thus, market a better product.

Walk Through Gate

Here is the answer for a walk through gate for a barbed wire fence. Three extra posts, a few boards and two hours of your time are the essentials. The 2nd nailed across the top takes the place of two braces. Located at convenient points on your farm this type of gate will save time and prevent that business of getting down on the ground and rolling under barbed wire.

Set Dates for County 4-H Fun Festival

Tuscola County 4-H club members will have an opportunity to exercise their talents at the 4-H Fun Festival, Friday evening, July 18, at Vassar High School Auditorium at 8 p. m.

Approximately 40 acts of various types are already entered in this event. The talent is classified into five groups: Vocal, instrumental, acrobatic, dramatic and novelty. Judges will choose the top two acts in each group; from this number they will then select a winner and an alternate to compete at the district eliminations at Michigan State College August 11 and 12.

This is part of the 4-H Rural Arts and Recreation programs sponsored on the national level by the U. S. Tire and Rubber Company. The Tuscola County 4-H Council is sponsoring this event jointly with the Shafer Tire and Appliance Store of Caro, the local U. S. tire representatives. Proceeds from ticket sales will be used by the 4-H Council to help further and enlarge the 4-H program and its many opportunities.

The public is invited to attend and not only lend support to the performers but also to the county 4-H program. A rehearsal by all contestants is scheduled for Saturday morning, July 12, at 10 a. m. at Vassar High School. This will help for the development of better stage presence and organization.

Kingston Girl Wins Achievement Honors

Barbara Ruggles, 17, Kingston, and a member of the Kingston Willing Workers 4-H Club, was chosen along with six other boys and girls to assemble her achievement booth at the State 4-H Show in August.

This honor was achieved after having successfully weathered the competition at the State 4-H Club Week program held recently at Michigan State College, stated George C. MacQueen, county 4-H club agent. The achievement booth program is one that represents the harvest of 4-H club work. The event calls for the construction of a booth that is judged mainly on the theme selected, neatness, balance and composition, along with the interview which reveals the true worth and development by the individual from the 4-H program.

At the State show, Barbara will compete with two members representing the Upper Peninsula, two from the Gaylord area and the six others from the Lower Peninsula.

The Kingston girl was also accepted into the State 4-H Service Club, an older youth group. Later she was elected as secretary of that group. Mrs. Fred Black, Akron, was also accepted as a 4-H leader into this organization.

Norine Cramer, Akron, was another from the county who participated in the program. She presented a fine talk on her experiences at the 1951 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. Dan Davis, Vassar, was selected as cheer leader for the Health II group. Pat Sheridan, Fairgrove; Joyce Donnelly, Cass City, and Jim White, Silverwood, assisted with the citizenship ceremony, Thursday morning.

The Tuscola County delegation consisted of Barbara Ruggles, Kingston; Barbara Baranick, Vassar; Delores Dudek, Kingston; Shirley Haske, Reese; Norine Cramer, Akron; Wave Socier, Unionville; Ruby Lou Horwarth, Fairgrove; Marcelene Jacques, Caro; Lois McMullen, Mayville; Joyce Donnelly, Cass City; Lynn Staples, Clifford, and Carol Irish, Akron; Dan Davis, Vassar; Bill Zinnecker and Jack Gallagher, Cass City; Chris Warack, Gagetown; Pat Sheridan, Fairgrove; Clarence Tacey, Fairgrove; Kenneth Pike, Caro; James White, Silverwood, and Raymond Schlattman, Mayville.

It pays to clean up feedlots and other places where cattle can get at small pieces of metal. Many cattle are killed after swallowing bits of metal.

Wait to wash mushrooms until you are ready to use them, which should be soon after purchase, according to Michigan State College home economists. Store mushrooms in the refrigerator in a covered dish.

Schedule Conference At East Lansing

More than 1,500 Michigan women will converge on the Michigan State College campus in East Lansing July 22 for the 25th annual Homemakers' Conference.

The women will be housed in Shaw Hall, new dormitory on the MSC campus, according to Miss Jean E. Gillies, county home demonstration agent. The facilities and faculty members of the college will be available to the conferees, she said.

A special program Wednesday evening will mark the 25th anniversary of these conferences. During daytime sessions, the homemakers will attend classes, hear speeches from nationally known speakers and engage in group singing.

The conference is sponsored, Miss Gillies said, by the home demonstration staff of the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service. Cost for the full meeting, July 22 to 25, will be $20.45 which includes room and meals. Groups may plan to attend just one day of the session, she said. Registration for the conference should be made early by contacting the county home demonstration agent at the courthouse in Caro.

Restricted Feeding Plan Is Outlined

Plan Will Cut Feed Cost in Half, Report

A barnyard "diet" worth millions each year to American farmers is being advocated by Dr. O. B. Kent of Chicago, widely known poultry scientist.

Dr. Kent, research director for the Quaker Oats Company, believes that chickens should scratch for part of their living. Pullets being raised for egg production on the "full feed" method eat too much for their own good, he says.

As much as half the feed cost of growing a pullet can be saved, he asserts, by using a "restricted feeding plan". Pullets raised under this plan need only about 20 pounds of feed, compared to an average of 34 pounds or more on the usual full feed grain and mash plan.

Pullets on the "diet" are fed moderately five days each week, with the accent on more oats and less mash. On the other two days they get no mash and only a few oats. The restricted method could be worth as much as 440 million dollars a year to poultry raisers, Dr. Kent declares.

Pretty Kay Norris demonstrates that there's more than one way to feed a pullet. Big pile of poultry mash at right weighs 34 pounds, the amount required to raise a pullet to egg production state by conventional feeding methods. Small pile weighs only 20 pounds. That's all that is necessary says Dr. Kent.

Dr. Kent says birds grown on restricted feeding have demonstrated better egg producing ability—to the extent of about 1 1/4 dozen eggs per year in tests over the past 12 years.

Tibet Invaded
Northward in Tibet, the invaders from Red China appeared to be entrenched. Peiping announced that a 17-point signed agreement amounted to a "peaceful liberation" of Tibet's three million inhabitants.

Alaska
Alaska is big. Its area of 586,000 square miles makes it twice as large as Texas, almost as large as all the states east of the Mississippi River and—to show how far statisticians will go in these matters—477 times as large as Rhode Island.

ONLY DECISION

"Once," the other answered reflectively. "But it was years ago."
"What was the argument about?"
"I don't remember offhand, but I do recall very clearly that we were putting down a new living room rug at the time and her mouth was full of carpet tacks."

Cork Puller

The dentist in a mountain town looked sympathetically at his patient and said: "I'm sorry, Zeke, that it was necessary to extract your front teeth, but—"

"Hi! It's all right, Doc," lisped Zeke. "Shucks! I learnt to pull log corks with a knife blade when I lost my first teeth."

No Rain

An Indian had attended services one Sunday morning. The sermon had been very loud in spots and the Indian, though a good Christian, was not greatly impressed.

Later, when asked how he had liked the sermon, he said: "High wind. Big thunder. No rain!"

WOMAN'S WORLD

Bride Needs Grace in Problems
Encountered Planning Wedding

By Erita Haley

THE BRIDE is a very special kind of girl. She moves in a glowing radiance and loveliness, as though billowed on clouds. However, once wedding plans are actually started, her poise can be shattered like a crumbled eggshell when doves of friends and relatives start telling her what to do about all sorts of things.

First, she must continue to be radiant and lovely. She can do this only by being polite and listening to well-meant suggestions. Then, she must remember that this is her wedding and must please her own dictates, as this is the day she will remember forever.

All advice given concerning the wedding is well-meant. More than that, everyone is sentimental about weddings, and therefore especially sensitive.

If the bride can maintain a light touch, so much the better. If she can keep her sense of humor, so much the better. She should try to see herself from a long way off, so that she can handle the situations easily and simply.

There are many things to think about even if the wedding is to be a small one, so she makes a list of everything, and exactly when certain things such as flowers, cake, invitations, attendants, dresses, etc., must be attended. Follow the list.

It helps, too, if she can have a bridal consultant. In the absence, pick some person, a good friend, but not necessarily a friend of the family, to oversee the details to make certain everything gets done in good time.

Here are Rules Regarding

Invitations, Attendants
You'll make a guest list for the reception and wedding which may or may not be similar. Oil invitations to the wedding must be mailed at the same time. You don't have to address them all at once, re-

Greet friends warmly and cordially member, but hold them all until ready for mailing. There should be no after-thoughts once the invitations are in the mail, so do make your list complete.

If the guest list is to be limited, it's wise to cut down on some of your own friends in preference to those whom mother and dad want to attend. They've been dreaming of your wedding for a good many years, and want to show you off to their friends!

At the most formal average wedding, the most attendants a bride will have is eight. If you have a dozen or so friends you've asked at one time or another, to be an attendant, don't worry! They expect you to stick to a promise. Everyone will understand.

Very special friends can be seated in a reserved pew, with a card enclosed in the invitation. You might also send them nosegays which are like the attendants' bouquets if you really want them to feel special.

Intimate friends are usually attendants, but if the groom has sisters, they should not be forgotten. It doesn't make any difference as to whether the girls are married or not.

Attendants are usually expected to buy their own gowns, so try not to ask girls who cannot afford the clothes. Be considerate, too, in your choice of clothes, and try to pick something they can wear to parties and dances later.

It's exciting, too, when the bride keeps her clothing a big secret. If you decide on mystery, don't even let your maid-of-honor in on the plan.

Receptions Should be Gay and Informal

Since the ceremony itself stars the bridal party and families, it's important that everyone be starred at the reception. It should be as gay as you can possibly make it, and informal, too, as everyone wants to be relaxed and happy while showering the newly-weds with their best wishes.

Skirt Variety

Here's a skirt that gives wonderful variety to the wardrobe because it's made to turn-about and is actually two skirts in one. A gold printed cotton, bright with color is teamed with plain black fabric, each sanforized so there is a minimum of shrinkage, so that one fabric does not shrink more than the other when the skirt is laundered.

People like to be jostled, too, at receptions, so plan one that will pretty well crowd whatever your room will allow.

At many of the current day weddings, the father-of-the-bride does not take his place in the receiving line. He mingles with the guests. However, if he does stand in the receiving line his place is next to the bride.

Proper order of the receiving line is as follows, starting at the right: bride's mother, bridegroom's mother, bridegroom's father, bride, groom, maid of honor and then the bridesmaids. Ushers and best man do not appear in this line, as they will be mingling with the guests.

All guests should be greeted before the receiving line is disbanded. It's also nice to thank people for their gift in the receiving line as you greet them, although you've already done so by letter. It adds a nice personal touch, and also gives you something to say other than a greeting.

Make Ceremony
Of Cake Cutting

After the guests have all passed through the receiving line, bride and groom should lead the way to the table—inside or out—where the bride's cake and punch have been arranged.

Cake cutting is a ceremony in itself. The bride and groom cut it together, from the bottom tier, with a cake knife that has been suitably tied with a white satin ribbon. One of the bride's attendants then serves the cake to the bride who then turns to share it with the groom, in evidence that she shares with him from this day forward.

A family friend or someone helping with the refreshments will then usually take over to serve the cake to the guests, whence they will pass on to receive the other refreshments.

The best man should propose a toast after the bride's cake is cut. It's a good idea to remind the groom so he can be ready to respond to the toast.

If there is to be dancing during the reception, the first waltz which is played should be a sign for the bride that it's for her first dance with her husband.

Close Wedding Reception
With Care and Grace

If the bride has a reception in her own home or in the garden, she will plan to slip away to change from her gown to going-away clothes after the reception has been fully in bloom and everyone is having a good time.

If her corsage for the going-away costume is part of her bridal bouquet, as is the custom, it's a good idea to remind the maid of honor to remove it and place with the going-away clothes.

Many churches and hotels where receptions are held have outlawed the throwing of rice because it does make a mess, as well as being wasteful. In this case, guests can be supplied with paper rose petals and colorful confetti to throw at the bridal couple.

The practice of throwing the bridal bouquet is part of the wedding and it should be done as gracefully and ceremoniously as possible. Staircases are nice for this, of course. As the bride emerges in her going-away clothes and starts down the stairs, she pauses just ever so slightly to give everyone a chance to stop their conversation and gayly and look up at her.

HIGH FINANCE

Esra went to the bank and asked for the loan of one dollar. He paid the six per cent interest for a year in advance. To the banker's surprise, Esra gave him a $5,000 government bond as security. Esra renewed the loan each year. After three years the perplexed banker asked him just what the big idea was. "Well," replied Esra, "It's a lot cheaper than renting a safe deposit box for $10 a year."

Somewhat Confused

A hunter was showing off his collection of trophies to a group of visitors. He was rapturously explaining how he acquired the various exhibits.

"See that elephant?" he asked. "I shot it in my pajamas."

"My goodness," murmured the surprised young lady, "how did it get there?"

There's a Difference

Teacher: "What's the difference between caution and cowardice?"
Tommy: "Caution is when you are afraid, and cowardice is when the other fellow's afraid."

AMEN, BROTHER

The woman lecturer was going strong. "Yes," she cried, "woman has suffered in a thousand ways."

She paused for effect. "I can think of one way in which they have not suffered and never will," murmured a meek little man in the front row.

The lecturer fixed an unbelieving eye on him. "What way is that?" she demanded.

"They have never suffered in silence."

Pottery Psychiatrist

A G.I. asking for a loan was asked what his business was and gave the startling answer that he was a psychiatrist in a pottery factory. Further questioning drew out the information that he took care of the cracked pots.

Four Grassland Tours
Planned for August

Four grassland tours of typical agricultural areas in the United States are being planned for the benefit of visitors from other countries to the sixth International Grassland Congress, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announces. The tours are planned for August 17 to 23.

As now planned the tours will be to New England, the south, the mid-west and the west. Delegates and members of the congress, attendance is estimated at 2,500, will have their choice of tours.

The congress is being sponsored by the United States government and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations and will be held at Pennsylvania State College.

The tours are designed to demonstrate accomplishments in grass farming in this country and Canada, both on actual farms and in research and educational institutions.

ARE YOU INCURABLE?

So you have been very ill a long, long time?

Incurable, do some people say? In more than a half century of honorable service to the needs of the ill and maimed, thousands of patients have turned to chiropractic.

They have come as a last resort. And it is to the credit of chiropractic that many "incurables" have returned to their loved ones in good health.

Miracle men, chiropractors? Not by a long shot. But chiropractors know that your nervous system is the road to good health and must work properly to insure that good health.

A misaligned vertebra CAN and HAS proven to the cause of hundreds of diseases and ailments that have wound up in the incurable column.

Perhaps your troubles stem from a misaligned vertebra that has blocked off the nerve channels supplying life and health to the affected part.

Incurable? See a chiropractor as thousands of others have done. You may get the most pleasant surprise of your life.

See for yourself by calling DR. B. V. CLARK, at 148 W. Lincoln Street, Caro, or phone 370 for an appointment.—Adv.
