not regarded as too strong. Last year, Cass City swamped the Elkton eleven, 46-0. Whether this year's team is as good as last year's undefeated squad will not be answered until after the season has been completed. Certainly, the competition will be stiffer. Last year, Cass City faced only three class "B" schools -Bad Axe, Caro and Vassar. This la play last week and will be out year, only Elkton and Marlette are class "C" schools and Marlette is nearly at the "B" level. Although several new boys are in the line-up, the new varsity gridders have had part time experience in other seasons. At right end, Cass City has the experienced Tim Burdon, who was an outstanding end on the championship team of 1951. At left end, either Graydon Agar or Bill Zinnecker will get the starting nod. They will replace Bob Wallace, Roy Wagg' has won a spot at right tackle for the opening contest. He saw limited duty last year.

Don Bartle will open the game at right guard and either Jerry ball teams Friday, while Elkton is Little or Arleon Kelley will be the left guard. Don Tuckey will handle the important pivot position.

Besides Wallace at left half, the backfield will probably have Stan Guinther at right half, Stanley Beach at fullback and Clinton Esckilsen calling the signals.

The Hawks lost one player in pre-season practice. Jim Evans broke his left leg when blocked on for the season.

According to Athletic Director Irv Claseman, there have been no complications to the injury and Jim is recovering. Other members of the squad are in good condition for the opening game.

Tonight's tilt is a non-conference affair. The Hawks enter conference competition Friday, Sept. 26, when they play Bad Axe at the local field.

Another step forward has been taken in the battle to comply with the Water Resources Commission's order for Cass City to control stream pollution in the Cass River. At a special meeting held recently at the Cass City Municipal Building, members of the village council, representatives from Nestles Company and the village's engineer solved the waste disposal problem of the Nestles' plant. A plan submitted to the State Health Department has been approved by that organization and will result in the revamping of the waste load. The project is expected to cost the company $7,000. Meanwhile, Hubbell, Roth and Clark, the engineering firm emlage's waste disposal system as ordered by the Water Resources Commission. Plans are due before the Health Department not later than January 1, 1953. It is impossible to tell, according to Mr. Hubbell, how much it will cost to make the system here adequate. Only a rough estimate can be given, Hubbell stated, and added that the cost could range between $60,000 and $100,000. When completed, the system will handle a village up to 2,500 persons and no factories. If present plans of the council are completed, sometime next year the project will be put before a vote of the people so that general obligation bonds can be issued to cover the cost of the work.

Village President Clifford Croft pointed out that general obligation bonds carried the lowest rate of interest and would be the cheapest

If the voters turn down the project, it will only mean an added delay in the work. For, if the voters do not approve the measure, it will be taken into the courts and previous experience has shown that the village will be forced to issue the bonds for the project.

New Processes Developed To Desalt Sea Water

Two new processes that make vast quantities of sea water suitable for agricultural and industrial 9:30 a. m., worship. World-wide use hold promise for far-reaching Communion. Sermon by the pastor: benefits for the nation's farms.

One method, under consideration by the Freeport Sulphur Co., desalts sea water by a kind of chemical separation called ion exchange The other makes sea water fit for mining sulphur, a mineral essential to the manufacture of fertilizers, insecticides, steel, rubber and hundreds of other items used on the farm.

The desalting process promises to open up arid lands to settlement and cultivation. It comes at a time when fresh water supplies are limited in many areas. While still a relatively high cost operation, it offers a short-term solution to farmers seeking relief in periods of drought.

The sea-water process to extract sulphur is being used in Louisiana in an area 35 miles from the nearest source of fresh water. It consists in the controlled heating of the water and in removing most of the oxygen which causes corrosion. Special controls prevent the breakdown of chemical elements that form scale.

In the desalting process, sea water is passed through a series of electrically-charged membranes or filters. Two streams emerge, one nearly pure water, the other brine.

As an example, one corn belt farmer used his welder to construct the inclined plane, portable eleva ter shown in the above picture. The conveyor, which has a large hopper at the ground end, is operated by a M horsepower electric motor.

In order to provide electric servsce for cribs which might be located at some distance from the barn, the farmer built a portable reel on which he wound about 100 feet of cable. This gives him an 'extension cord" of the proper strength to carry the current needed from a 230-volt outlet in the barn. On the work side of production, he discovered that little more labor was needed to increase his yield. Figuring this out on a dollar and cents basis, labor costs, on a 40 bushel yield, are about 25 cents a bushel, whereas on 100-bushel yields the cost is just 10 cents per bushel -the selling price having taken care of the differential in labor methods employed in following veins of native copper down deep into the earth. The old Nonesuch mine and much of the Porcupine Mountain State Park have the potentials. Calument and Hecla officials do not agree. They say 'Uncle Sam has bought a lemon.' When White Pine is in full op-

That was our conclusion after proof of mining potentials. RFC digging a little for information offered $100 millions on the basis about the 1952 copper boom at Onof the ore findings, together with tonagon and the revived interest

Boom time is returning again millions at 5 per cent from the studying the vigorous competition o Michigan's Copper Country at federal government, while the the revived oleomargerine business

In 1940, butter eaters used 17 pounds per capita. Then came the war years and butter was scarce. Many housewives turned to oleo from necessity. When it became legal to sell colored oleo and the housewife was spared the laborious chore of kneading coloring into white oleo, the per capita consumption of butter tumbled to nine pounds, little more than half of the pre-war figure. Twenty years ago, America used 2.3 billion pounds of butter annually; last year it ate 1.4 billion ounds. Oleo meanwhile went from ess than 2.5 pounds per capita in 1940 to about seven pounds last

Michigan has fared better than the national average because oleo is still a favorite in tenement areas. But you can bet a buffalo nickel that the huge dairy industry of our state isn't going to sit idle and not protect its butter market, a source of economic strength not only to that industry but to all of Michigan.

Michigan pays more federal revenue taxes than any state except New York and Illinois. It's sixth in the number of tax returns filed and seventh in population. Yet the latest Internal Revenue Bureau plan is to lump Michigan with Ohio and make Cleveland the division headquarters. And Michigan doesn't like that one little bit.

Every businessman who deals with Uncle Sam's tax boys—that's everyone from a farmer in Huron County to General Motors in Detroit-fears that Cleveland will be just another sand bar in the channel to Washington. Tax problems will take weeks longer to be leared up, they fear.

"Michigan taxpayers, who file nearly three million returns and pay approximately 1/12 of the total tax collections in the United States, cannot be service efficienty and economically with a District Commissioner in another state,' argues John S. Coleman, president of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, acting as spokesman for all Michigan businessmen.

Add Interest to Dining Room By Treating with Decoration

By Ertta Haley

DINING ROOMS used to be mousy affairs: you put the table in the center of the room, surrounded by chairs, a buffet with a picture or mirror above it and, of course, a rug on the floor.

No longer does the dining room have to be just a utilitarian room used only for meals. It can and should have a special place in the affairs of the family, much more than just a place to have meals.

Thus, new and interesting dining rooms have come into existence. Smartly planned and decorated, a dining room can be used for several activities, and, at the same time, be an asset to the decorative scheme of your home.

If you're planning to re-vamp the dining room, the first thing to do is to stop thinking of it as just the place for meals. Do you need a sewing room? a place to listen to music? a corner for a hobby collection? Dining rooms can, and rightfully so, house one of these special interests.

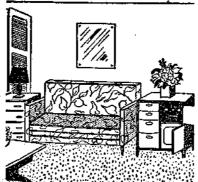

Throw away your old rules for decorating and see how interesting the new ones can make the room. Consider first what you want the room to do, then plan the decorating scheme,

Harmony is essential in any decorating scheme, and continuity in the decorating scheme is important if the home is to have a wellbalanced and agreeable look. This doesn't mean that your colors and furnishings will be the same from one room to the next, but at least there should be a feeling that they are part of the same pattern. After all, they're rooms in the same home, and, more important, used by the same group of people.

The place where your dining room is, in relation to other rooms, should have an important bearing on how it's decorated.

Take Color Cues From Hall or Living Room

Since dining rooms are entered from a hall or from the living room,

Have dining room serve dual purpose it's especially important to have a related feeling between the adjoining room. Color can, and often is, the tie-in. Colors from the living room or hall can be brought into the dining room by means of walls, draperies, rug, upholstered pieces or dining room chairs.

If the dining room is not separated from the living room by walls, as is often the case in many of the new homes, the rooms can be tied together very dramatically all-over carpeting. However. this is not at all necessary since you may want to separate the one room into two units, so use carpeting only in the living room and a fluted or other interesting type screen to separate the one room

Consider, too, the walls of the adicining rooms before doing something with your dining room. If living room or ball or both are plain then use a bold pattern in the dining room for the sake of accent and interest. There can be a color in the pattern which goes with wall color in living room or hall,

Patterned halls and plain living rooms call for plain or floral stripes in the dining room.

or screen it from living room,

If hall is patterned and living room striped, then it would be too much to have anything but plain walls in the dining room. In this case, the relief of something plain is needed to offset design in the other rooms.

Use Original Combinations In Dining Room Furniture

It's becoming more and more a thing of the past to purchase dining room furniture as a unit or a suite. In some lines you can select a suite and be lucky enough to have it meet your requirements, but often it's wise to buy the pieces ber is that the furniture does not have to match. There should be a tables and chairs do not have to | Sunday. match, and neither do sideboards, cupboards or other pieces.

If you have to economize on funds, your saving can be in the dining room table. You can even paint an old table with good lines of this item.

Dining room chairs, on the other comfortable armchairs from the living room might be used at either end of the table.

Chairs receive hard wear and they should be selected for strength several youngsters in a family, in a leather or plastic that simulates leather, or a good solid color so that it may be readily

The center of interest in a dining room is frequently a distinctive wall piece. Corner cupboards, tall cupboards, hutches, dressers, hanging shelves or built-in wall cupboards usually provide more interest than the usual sideboard, except for distinctly period-type

Another item which is especially useful in a dining room is a serving table, usually placed near the kitchen, or in an inconspicuous spot,

How to Farnish Dual-Purpese Room

If, yours is going to be a dining room which is lived-in as well as dined-in, the dining room should be treated as an extension of the living room. This means grouping the furniture comfortably

For the dining room which is going to serve as a sewing room, plan to have the latter activity near the dining room windows for the light provided. The dining table, or one of the serving tables can be used for a portable machine. If your machine is in a cabinet, arrange the furniture so that this is near the windows to prevent moving.

In place of a high sideboard as a center of interest in dining rooms which are going to serve also as music rooms, you might have one wall of cabinets which will take care of music books and records. Underneath this arrange to have your radio, photograph or combination music unit, with comfortable chairs or a sofa arrangement.

Study in the dining room? The desk or secretary will then provide the center of interest. You might like to have wall bookcases above the desk, and this can be very decorative and attractive.

Families which need a small private sitting room removed from the living room might consider part of the dining room for this interest. This can be a two or three chair or small sofa arrangement with a small coffee table against one wall of the dining room.

Should your dining room seem a bit small when you want to make a dual purpose room out of it, then try to fit a drop leaf table into the arrangement which will save space. It can have leaves dropped to be set against the wall; then, pull it out during mealtime.

Dining Room Furnishings Need Sturdiness

As mentioned above, chairs for the dining room need to be practical, but this applies to other items, too. Your table will serve around a thousand meals a year. It will need good finish if you use place mats rather than pads and tablecloths.

Farming Techniques Have Changed in Last 10 Years

There are 1,300,000 fewer farmers in the United States today than there were 10 years ago, but they produce 25 per cent more foods and commodities.

The reasons for this fact, points out a recent Bureau of Labor Statistics report, is the larger amount of mechanical power put to use in so short a time.

As compared with 1941, farms now have 31/2 times as many combines, four times as many corn pickers, three times as many milking machines, twice as many trucks, and nearly 17 times as many pick-up balers. Power and machines are relieving the farmer in the field and in the barn.

At the same time, there has been a revolution in the farmhouse. Rural electrification has brought light bulbs into nine out of 10 homes, pipes laid in the earth give three out of four families water at the turn of a faucet, and the excess of eight million gas installations on farms enables the farm woman to have any work-saving household gas appliance she desired.

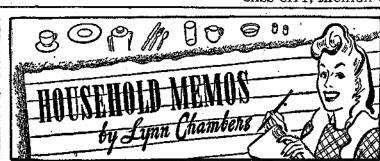

Farm women who at one time worked from daylight to dark are finding themselves with much leisure time on their hands because of these advances.

Aztecs Loved Flowers Despite the cruel and warlike characters of the Aztecs, they loved flowers and wove them into chaplets which they wore in tribute to their gods. Statue of Xochipilli, ancient Aztec god of beautiful, fragrant flowers, was adorned with floral carvings. And the spartments of Montezuma, mighty emperor of the Aztecs, were filled with exquisite cut flowers.

Treating Clothespins

If your clothespins have a tendency to give away long before their time, treat the pins, while new, to make them last longer, Place in a basin of boiling water and washing soda for 30 minutes, rinse in cold water and let them dry in the sun

Between-Meal Snacks Should Help Furnish Several Nutrients

DO YOU HAVE a snack habit Do you take a break during the mid-morning, mid-afternoon or just at bedtime, a break to raid the refrigerator or explore the cookie jar? What about the man of the family tious snacks which round out and supplement the day's menus. Snacks afford the opportunity of adding some of the important nutrients to the diet which may be difficult to obtain during meals, especially when you have active. growing children or a busy husband all of whom require a large nutritional package to maintain health.

It's a good idea to include milk important nutritional food. Just serve it a bit differently, and you'll find it in great demand. Add some flavoring to make it more appetizing, some iron in the form of molasses, or egg.

Here are some special sugges-

1. Molasses Banana Milk Shake: mash 1 medium fully ripe banana until smooth. Add 2 tablespoons molasses, few drops of vanilla and 1 cup cold milk. Shake and serve.

. Molasses Egg Nog: Beat 1 egg yolk. Add 2 tablespoons pure, dark molasses and 1 cup cold milk. Beat 1 egg white until stiff with a few grains of nutmeg and salt. Fold into milk mixture. Serve at once.

3. Foamy Molasses Shake: Mix 2 tablespoons molasses with 1 glass milk and add cinnamon, nutmeg or allspice to taste. Shake until foamy.

Fruit and milk with some ice cream, perhaps, is ideal when a high calorie snack is required after some busy activity. Here's a recipe which is sufficient to serve a half dozen people: Banana Milk Shake (Serves 6) 4 cups milk bananas, mashed 2 tablespoons lemon juice

½ teaspoon cinnamon

Dash of salt 3 tablespoons sugar 1 pint vanilla ice cream Combine ingredients in a mixer or a bowl and blend thoroughly.

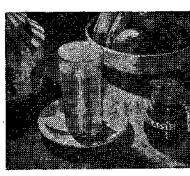

Here's a partified drink which the small fry will adore. It makes a good substantial beverage and will serve for a party with plain cook-

Peek-a-Boo Maple Punch

(Serves 6) % cup maple-flavored syrup 14 teaspoons cinnamon 1/8 teaspoon salt

6 cups cold milk 1 pint vanilla ice cream Chocolate bits Maraschino cherries Whole cloves

Blend maple syrup, cinnamon, salt and cold milk, using a rotary beater. Pour into chilled glasses or mugs. Dip six round ice cream

Milk is an almost perfect food and molasses is the second richest source of available fron. second only to liver. What could be better for a healthful snack than the combination of the two? The blending of flavors gives a delicious beverage at snack time.

balls. Make a face on each one using chocolate bits for eyes, maraschine cherry slices for mouths and whole cloves for noses. Spoon remaining ice cream into glasses and top each glass with one of the ice cream faces.

When snackers are really hungry, and they're bound to be after playing hard outdoors in cooler weather, serve a hearty sandwich: Cheese and Bacon Double Deckers

(Makes 6) 12 slices toast

1/2 cup butter 12 slices American cheese 6 tomato slices

Fortify the vitamins and minerals in the diet by serving simple fruit juice during snack time. Cooling and delicious, quick-frozen orange juice makes an excellent beverage to serve between meals with assorted cookies.

toast, salt and then top with cheese. Broil until cheese begins to soften. Place two strips of partially cooked bacon on top. Place under low broiler heat until cheese is melted thoroughly and bacon is crisp. You'll need to keep the cookie jar well filled for healthful and nourishing snacks. Try some of these which are new: Mint Refrigerator Cookies*

(Makes 4 dozen) 2 cups sifted enriched flour 1 teaspoon baking powder

¼ teaspoon salt 14 cup butter or substitute 1/4 cup sugar

1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind 1 tablespoons lemon juice

4 to 5 drops mint flavoring 2 teaspoons milk 4 to 5 drops green food coloring

1/2 cup finely chopped nuts Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter or substitute with sugar. Add egg and beat until light and fluffy. Gradually stir in flour mixture. Divide dough in half. To one-half add lemon rind and juice and mix well. To other half add mint flavoring, milk and food coloring and mix well. Shape each half in strip about 14 inches wide, % inch thick and 10 inches long. Slice through center of each strip, making four square strips. Roll each strip in chopped nuts. Place one mint strip next to lemond strip and alternate flavors on top. Press strips together and roll all in chopped nuts. Wrap in waxed paper. Store in refrigerator. Slice thin and bake on greased baking sheet in moderately hot (400°F.) oven about 10 minutes.

Youngsters and oldsters alike give cheers to peanut butter. Here's a cookie which can be made quickly by using a packaged cake mix:

Peanut Butter Cookies (Makes 5 dozen) I package instant white cake

mix 1/2 cup milk 2 tablespoons shortening

% cup peanut butter

Turn cake mix into a bowl. Add milk, shortening, peanut butter and beat thoroughly. Drop from teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet. Bake in a hot (400°F.) oven for 8 to 10 minutes.

LYNN SAYS:

Serve leftover fruit juices like pineapple with other fruit juices for a good dinner appetizer. Pineapple fuice teams well with orange or grapefruit or a combination of both, loganberry, raspberry or grape juice. Gingerbread is a good, old fashioned dessert especially if you spread the warm gingerbread with applesauce and then serve with a fluff of ginger-flavored whipped cream. Leftover chicken? Slice and saute them in butter and then mix in some current jelly and heat slowly until it melts. You can serve this over boiled, fluffy rice. Smoked shoulder butt after being

Temporary Patch

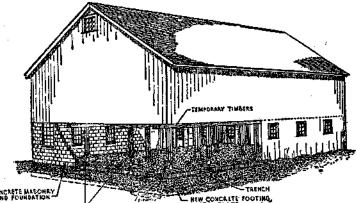

RUBBER WASHER INSTALLATION

A temporary patch, useful in any emergency, can be used to mend a tank, a pail or washtub. a boiler or even a pipe. Materials needed are a self-tapping sorew, a metal washer, and a piece of scrap inner tube. Slide the washer to the head of the screw and then push the point through the rubber. Now drive the screw into the leak until it its tight. This is purely a temporary cure, although it will hold quite a while.

OLD FARM BUILDINGS CAN BE REMODELED TO PROVIDE GOOD LIVESTOCK HOUSING

Installation of a new foundation and floor can give a new lease on life to an old farm building now sagging or leaning into e wind. Often the roof and upper portion of the side walls of these older structures are in good, serv-iceable condition after the rocks or posts used for the foundation have given away.

Some dairy barns are too nar-row to house dairy cattle properly. Or perhaps the old general-pur-pose barn is not arranged for ef-ficient livestock production. Re-arrangement of the interior—or the addition of a new section to the barn with some structural improvements — will provide good livestock housing. When the old sills, framing and siding are rotted away, a new footing and foundation and concrete masonry wall a few feet above grade or up to the plate line can be built. With the use of jacks and timbers, half of the building can be raised and a por-tion of the framing and siding removed. Then in case of wind storms the other half of the building will have some stability.

Raise Building With Jacks
To raise the building, jacks should be placed along the outer edge of the wall and near interior posts. In some cases it will be necessary to raise or lower the ceiling height a few inches. If the framing is cut beneath the window sill all measurements are made the same distance beneath the plate line. When a new con-crete masonry wall is built to the second floor all studs are cut off flush with the bottom of the sec-ond floor joist. The siding is cut 3 in longer in order to lap over the sill on the masonry wall and extend an inch below the top of the

After cutting off and removing rotted sills and siding, the first job is to excavate for the footings which are built below the frost

Footing and foundation are made with a mushy mix of con-crete, neither soupy nor too stiff. Such a mix can usually be made in proportions of 51/2 gal. of water for each sack of cement when the sand contains an average amount of moisture. About 2% cu. ft. of sand and 4 cu. ft. of gravel are used with this mix.

If the mix is too stiff to place readily less sand and gravel are added. If it is soupy, more sand and gravel are added. Concrete gains strength after setting and so it should be covered with sand or straw and kept wet for a few days to gain more strength. The concrete masonry wall is laid from the foundation to the desired height. For two-story buildings the walls should be 12 in thick and for single-story buildings, 8 in. The above-ground work for dairy farms and other animal shelters can be built with either lightweight or heavyweight concrete masonry. Insulating value of concrete masonry walls is affected by the type of ag-gregate used in manufacturing the block. The warmth of any masonry wall can be increased by filling the cores and painting the inside surface with two coats of aluminum paint and the outside with portland cement paint.

Mixture For Concrete Floors

When exterior walls are completed and the old structure lowered onto the wall, footings for interior post supports are built. After a concrete floor is con-structed (5 gal, water with each sack cement and 1:24:3 mix), the barn will be in good, serviceable condition again.

There are many dairy barns that are too narrow to provide adequate stall length and width for cows. This can be corrected by use of a low-type manger and rebuilding the stall platforms and the gutter. As the size of the alley is reduced, it should be advisable to give consideration to the installation of a mechanical gutter cleaner either at time of remodeling or at some later

When barns are too narrow to make even these changes in the interior, some farmers have solved this problem by building a new one-story section 36 or 38 ft. wide—the recommended width at right angles to the barn. This addition requires rearrangement of cow stalls and installation of doors in the old barn walls.

With this layout the old portion of the building usually provides enough bedding and hay storage, as well as pen space for young

Many types of existing buildings may be remodeled into efficient hog houses, poultry houses or dairy barns. If the existing building is well located on the farmstead and the roof and framing are in good condition, it will pay the farmer to give serious consideration to remodeling.

quality silage, corn should be cut may be safely stored if artificially when the grain is in the hard dried before cribbing. dough stage and when most but not all of the kernels have dented. That's the advice of E. C. Rossman, farm crops department re-searcher at Michigan State Col-lege. He also says that corn should not be picked for cribbing until the ears have dried down to not more than 25 to 27 per cent moisture for the best yield of high quality Corn can safely be picked for cribbing in narrow cribs, about 4 feet wide, at about 25 per cent moisture. When picked and cribbed at a high moisture content, there may be spoilage, especially when ficult to preserve without spoilage. the temperature is above freezing.

For the highest yield of good Corn at 30 to 35 per cent moisture

Back to the silage subject, Rossman explains that if corn is cut when the grain is in the hard dough stage and most of the kernels have dented, the total moisture in the plant will be enough for preservation of good silage. At that time the grain will contain about 45 to 50 per cent moisture and the fodder will contain 75 to 80 per cent water.

Cutting corn for silage before this stage results in less grain in the silage and less total dry matter per acre. If harvested too late, the silage may be too dry and dif-

Livingtook short, quick steps, some took ston of Peoria, Ill. a long, gliding step, others delivered with blinding speed and still others rolled a slow, deliberate town, where funeral services were ball. These were the fellows representing the City League and the Merchants' League. The usual chill in the air was lacking as this season opened. The low scores posted the first week revealed the absence of enthusiasm caused by the warm temperatures. The Cass City Alleys are one of over 6,600 American Bowling Congress certified bowling establishments. These establishments house more than 330,000 teams as of last season. Now the pins have been set down and bowlers all over the country have opened another new season. There will be millions of laughs and thousands of heartaches along the way, but some 1,600,000 old members will look back with fond memories, come next summer, on another winter of fellowship and good clean sportsnanship.

The results of the first week of powling in the City League were as follows: Team results:

Planes Used to Speed Delivery of Semen

Artificial insemination of darry cows has received such wide acceptance in the highly developed Ozark dairy section that the Missouri Farmers Association has established a shipping schedule by three planes which cover approximately 66 counties daily.

The association's stud at Springfield is composed of 55 of the nation's finest dairy bulls.

The semen is collected in early morning and the airplanes take off with it at 5 a.m. the same day. It takes the planes approimately 31/2 hours to cover three routes of 350 miles each.

The semen is parachuted to the inseminators by a pilot parachute attached to a half-gallon bucket in-

EHURI STASY

The Stick-Up

By MAUDE NORMAN

THE WIND whipped in the open Lar window on Rose-Ellen's flushed cheeks.

"Serves you right, you little fool," she muttered, "for taking things for granted, but he said he couldn't wait to see me and 2 - Minute all the time he Fiction | was still in love with Kate."

She had always loved Steve Wilson and had started writing to him when Kate was too busy with her other boy friends to bother. Gradually the tone of his letters had changed.

Then when he announced he was coming home. Kate's interest had revived, but Ross-Ellen remained confident she was the one he now cared for.

But why, oh why, did she have to be so impulsive and greet him as Running out to her car as she had outskirts, when as she stopped for red light the door on her side of the car opened, a hard round object pressed against her side, a voice grated.

"Move over, sister—fast!" Rose-Ellen opened her mouth but a vicious ish turned the intended scream into a gasp. "Keep quiet, sister, and you won't Rose-Ellen had always pictured bandits, if she thought of them at all, as weazel-faced or beetlingbrowed, flashily dressed. This one looked like an ordinary citizen.,

A voice grated, "Move over sister—fast."

"Say, you're a slick chick," he

"Why did you get in my car?" 'Now, don't tell me you're beautiful but dumb," he mocked. "I got in because I needed a car. I'll tell you the story of my life later. Say, you've been crying, ain't 'cha, What's the matter? Boy friend give you the brush-off?" TEAR gave courage—and inspiration. 'T'm not worrying about him-now," she murmured. "We were always quarreling. He wanted to marry and settle down, but I wanted excitement — adventure. I ran away from him and you came along. Don't you think I should know your name?" "You're so dark and romantic

Basking in her admiration, he was alert enough to grasp her hand as she opened her handbag.

"Whatcha got in there?" "Nothing but powder and lipstick, and my wallet.

"O.K. It ain't that I don't trustcha, Baby, but I gotta be careful."
"Don't be silly," she smiled, busy with her lip-stick and powder-puff. "I'm having too much fun to do such a thing. Will you take me to a real night-club and buy me beautiful clothes like they do in the movies?"

"You betcha-clothes-all the money you want!" She gave me an excited little laugh and nestled against him, firging, 'Faster-go faster."

The car leaped ahead. Suddenly siren sounded behind them. 'Dammit," he swore. "The cops and me with no license.' But I have mine. Pull over and I'll take the wheel. Don't worry, we'll only get a ticket. "No tricks," he warned. "Renember, I've got this gat handy." Rose-Ellen felt the bandit's tense body relax as the trooper handed back her license, then tense again as instead of the expected ticket, a revolver appeared in his hand. She gave a gasp of relief, then heard the trooper's shout as something struck her side and darkness descended. Rose-Ellen held court the next day with Steve, her parents and Kate her admiring audience.

"Thank goodness the bullet just grazed your side," her mother arranged the pillows more comfortably, "and it is high enough that it won't prevent your wearing a bath-

"But you need not have been hurt at all if you hadn't misunderstood when I told Kate I was happy because she told me you loved me."

Steve said. "Tell us, Rose-Ellen," Kate asked curlously, "How did you tip that trooper off?"

"Oh," she answered sleepily, "I knew a State Trooper was stationed on that side road just before Route 135 on the alert for speeders. When I was supposed to be fixing my face wrote 'Help, Bandit' across my driver's license with lip-stick, then coaxed my would-be boy friend to
