

Richard Warren Speaks at Annual Father-Son Banquet

"Put forth a little extra effort for success," Richard Warren, professor of animal husbandry at Michigan State College, told Future Farmers of America members of Cass City and their fathers Monday night at the Cass City High School auditorium.

Speaking at the FFA annual father and son banquet, Mr. Warren told the guests that FFA is an organization that demands a little extra effort and pays off for its members.

The boys and their fathers were also given a glimpse of what the animal husbandry course is at college. Mr. Warren explained what the course offered at Michigan State College and added that books were supplemented by experimentation at the college farms.

He concluded his address by extending an invitation to persons present to come and visit him at MSC and said that he would be happy to show the college to any boy who visited.

The meeting was opened Monday by the chapter officers who presented the opening ceremony of the club.

Two boys from the FFA chapter furnished musical selections as part of the after-dinner program. Roy Wagg played the guitar and Dean Kritzman sang.

A toast to the fathers was presented by Bob Wallace who said that boys are looking for more than a chum in a father and added that he wanted a person to lean on for advice and sympathy.

Don Wallace, Bob's father, gave the toast to the sons and stressed the need for understanding and a close relationship between father and son.

The meal for the banquet was prepared by the FFA mothers, Miss Flynn and her FFA girls.

At the present time there are 51 members of the Cass City chapter of the FFA.

They include: Seniors, Graydon Agar, Dick Auslander, Mason Cook, Edward Cutler, Bill Dorman. Concluded on page 10.

Cass City Debaters Lose in First Round Of District Tourney

Cass City's debating squad was ousted in the first round of the district debating tournament Feb. 23 at Farmington when they bowed to Farmington's debaters.

The Farmington squad went to the finals of the tournament before bowing to Northville, who enters the regionals by virtue of its split decision victory.

According to debating coach Otto Ross, there were six teams in the debate. In the opening round, St. Clair Shores lost to Northville and Melvindale defeated Romeo.

In the second round, Farmington drew a bye and met Northville, who had defeated Melvindale in the second round for the championship.

Judges were Dr. Bernard Knittel, Michigan State College; James McMonagle and Dr. John Dehman, Wayne University, and Dr. Sattler and Alfred Storey, University of Michigan.

From the Editor's Corner

First robin reported in the Cass City area was turned into the Chronicle last Thursday when Harold "Shorty" Greenleaf said that he spotted one that day.

The coroner's inquest—a strictly American justice procedure—has been criticized by many noted authorities. Many states have abandoned the procedure. In the Ezra St. Clair case Tuesday, the inquest proved to be a valuable money-saver for the state and brought out pertinent facts that may have remained hidden until the time of the actual trial.

The testimony of Irene Freeman and Ethel Pettinger was one of the most important in the case. They were called almost as an afterthought—the state had rested its case until Dr. H. T. Donahue suggested that the nurses might have something to add to the case.

When both nurses testified that they could observe no traces of drinking on Mr. St. Clair, it pointed out that he must have become intoxicated after the accident. This testimony cleared an obscure point and helped to free Mr. St. Clair. Cases of this nature helps to justify the existence of the coroner's jury in Michigan.

Standard Version of Bible Films Shown At Gavel Club

Members of the Cass City Gavel Club viewed films explaining the new Standard Revised Edition of the Bible Tuesday evening at their regular meeting held at the New Gordon Hotel.

The film explained the background and work that scholars put into the new edition of the Bible, told about new manuscripts uncovered and deciphered and told why certain passages in the Book were changed.

In the business meeting preceding the film, presented by Harry Little, program chairman, club members named a softball committee for 1953. Alden Asher is chairman and Dale Kettlewell and Larry Roberts are committee members.

Club members set March 17 as ladies' night at the club and announced that Alex Taylor, assistant sales manager for U. S. Rubber Corporation, would be the guest speaker for the evening.

Members Sign for 1953 in Chamber Of Commerce

President Herbert Ludlow announced today that about 45 members have paid their 1953 dues in the Cass City Chamber of Commerce. The 45 is about half of the expected total.

The Chamber of Commerce, which has grown each year since its inception here, has been responsible for many town-wide projects that have aided the growth and welfare of the village.

Among the varied programs carried out under the auspices of the group are the Christmas decorations, spring clean up days, Cass City Value Days, home-coming and many others.

The board of directors said that they would like to complete the 1953 membership campaign in the near future so that officers and members of the board of directors can be elected for the new year.

Novesta Voters Hold Caucus in Deford

Voters at the Novesta Township caucus, held Saturday in Deford, nominated officers to be presented at the spring election.

Archie Hicks was nominated to succeed himself as supervisor and LeRoy Kilbourn was renominated to the treasurer's post.

Other officers named include: Horace Murry, clerk; Harold Chapin, highway commissioner; Mack Little, member of board of review; Rinerd Knoblet, justice of the peace; Arleon Retherford, health officer, and trustees, Warren Kelley and William O'Dell.

Presbyterian Church To Change Hours

Due to requests and a recommendation brought before the Session of the First Presbyterian Church, Cass City, the hours of the Church Sunday School for all age groups will be from 10:15 to 11 a. m. and the Church Service of Worship will be from 11 a. m. to 12 noon. The change in hours will become effective Sunday, March 15.

The change was decided on after consideration had been given to the proposal by the Session and teachers and officers of the church school had given a vote of readiness to co-operate in the change.

The congregation of the church was invited to sit with the Session in an open discussion of the present status of the Sunday Church School and the new change is aimed primarily at strengthening that organization which has been exceptionally weak in youth and adult enrollments.

Churchmen pointed out that the lack of enrollment is due to the present late hour for Church School which followed the regular service after all the children's departments had been dismissed.

Parents are advised that extended Sunday School sessions will provide, as at present, for the nursery class for three-year-olds, the kindergarten and primary departments to be held during the church service period. The junior department will also be held at this time, if parents desire it.

Plans for facilitating the change will be discussed at the Lenten Family Night Supper March 9.

Guinther Hits Peak To Lead Hawks to Tournney Victory

Little Stan Guinther saved the best game of his career for the opening round of the Class "B" district tournament Wednesday night to spark Cass City to an 83-65 victory over Caro at the high school gymnasium.

Stan collected 23 points to lead the Hawks in the individual scoring race and helped open up the Caro defense as he sank several buckets from outside the foul circle.

Guinther was closely followed in the scoring race by Tim Burdon who scored 22 points and Bob Wallace who collected 18.

A Caro player, brilliant Don Hoyer, led all scorers for the evening as he netted 29 points from his center's position. Willard Dickerson helped his teammate with 18 counters.

For the first half of the first quarter, it was an exciting ball game. At the end of four minutes of play, the score was knotted at seven all. But by the end of the period, Cass City had opened a big margin and then coasted to victory.

Using the fast break to advantage, aided by Guinther's shots from outside, the Cass City quintet rolled for an amazing 22 points in the next four minutes. They led 29-13 at the end of the first period.

The Caro squad had moments when they looked as if they might possibly make the game close. But Cass City seemed able to turn on the pressure when it was needed.

For instance, in the second period, Caro bounced back to level the margin at 35-23 with three minutes left in the first half, only to see the Hawks find the range and open a 44-28 margin at the end of the second stanza.

By the end of the third quarter, the only question remaining was the size of the final score. Cass City had moved into a comfortable 24-point lead at the end of the period. The score was 68-44.

As the fourth quarter opened, Coach Irv. Clasenman started using his reserves. Guinther was the first to leave and the other regulars soon followed. During most of the final period, the Cass City club was composed of first team reserves and boys who had played most of the year on the second team.

Junior Study Club At Keating Home

Hawks End Season With Easy Victory Over Vassar, 80-53

The Cass City Red Hawks built an early lead in the opening two quarters against Vassar Friday evening and then coasted to an 80-53 victory to finish their 1952-53 season undefeated in conference competition.

Cass City failed to play one of their better games of the season, although there was no doubt about the outcome by the end of the first half.

The team failed to pass and shoot with the precision and accuracy that they had shown in many of the previous games this year.

Some observers thought that the lack of high caliber opposition may have made the team look bad Friday.

Cass City controlled both backboards. Although they missed numerous tries from the field, the effective rebounding enabled them to cash shots from close in.

With the tip-in shots and a couple of buckets from outside the foul circle, Cass City ran up a 14-point lead in the first quarter. They netted nine tosses from the field and added eight charity heaves for 26 points. Vassar could connect for only five field goals and two free shots in the period.

The Hawks' production fell off slightly in the second stanza. They rang up 20 points, the Pioneers cashed in for 11. Tim Burdon and Russ Foy carried the scoring load in the quarter. Foy netted nine of his 14 points in the period, while Burdon was credited with 10. The high-scoring center led both teams from the scoring lane with 33. Concluded on page 10.

Open Court Case to Decide Validity of Townships' Votes

The opening guns in the legal battle to decide the validity of votes cast in Elkland and Indianfields Townships were fired Wednesday in the circuit court at Caro.

Tuscola County Prosecutor Bruce White filed a motion for dismissal of the case and Kenneth H. Smith's petition to intervene was granted by Judge John Libbers.

Granting Smith's request simply means that he is the new lawyer for the wet forces.

Judge Libbers set Wednesday, March 11, as the date the lawyers will argue the motion for dismissal.

School Authorities Discuss Community College in Thumb

Members of the Boards of Education of Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties gathered at the Cass City High School to discuss plans for establishing a community college in this area.

The community college is designed to provide opportunity for continuous education for persons who wish to go through the 14th year and will take care of educational needs of adults whose formal schooling may have been interrupted and provide service to those who seek to continue education throughout their adult years.

Students who attend the proposed community college would receive college credit for their work, according to Superintendent Willis Campbell.

At the present time, plans for the college are still in a formulative stage and no definite action for a community college has been decided upon.

Community colleges have been recently established in Alpena and Traverse City and each school had 71 students in its first year of operation.

Community colleges do not have separate buildings but are usually located in the school in the community where they exist.

FARM DIGEST

Last week we talked about the amount of tillage time it takes to produce a crop of sugar beets as compared with other crops. Today, we'll proceed to harvest and then show you a simple chart which proves sugar beets do not take an undue amount of man hours to raise.

Nearly a thousand beet growers in Michigan prefer to do all their own work in sugar beets, including harvest. This is certainly an admirable quality. But because sugar beets lend themselves to mechanization, and because harvesting takes place in the slack work season, a harvester can convert time into important money. Today, with mechanical harvesters and an ample labor supply, you can put more acres into beets. You can do so profitably, too, because beets fit into your farming program perhaps better than any crop you can grow.

A mechanical beet harvester converts your time into money and puts an end to the back-breaking "lift, pull, top, load" method of hand harvesting. Even without hired help, you can harvest an appreciable number of acres easily.

Now, here's the little chart of data I mentioned. It was supplied by Michigan State College and Ohio State University and shows by actual average figures just exactly how sugar beets compare with other crops in required man-hours of labor.

Required Hours of Labor Per Acre By Crop

	Wheat	Corn	Navy Beans	Soy-beans	Sugar Beets
Seedbed preparation	3.6	3.6	3.6	3.6	3.9
Planting and Fertilizing	.7	.7	.8	.8	1.2
Cultivating	—	3.0	4.5	3.7	3.5
Blocking, Thinning, Hoeing	—	—	—	—	Hired
Harvest	1.0	2.0	6.0	1.0	Hired
Hauling	1.0	2.0	.3	1.0	Hired
Totals, MSC	6.3	11.3	15.2	10.1	8.6
Comparison, OSU, data	5.6	10.0	—	6.1	7.5

MSC figures by L. R. Brown; OSU totals by R. H. Baker. After looking over the table above, I think you'll agree with me when I say, Sugar Beets certainly do not require an excessive amount of the farmer's time.

Truax - Douglas Wed In Evening Ceremony

Tall baskets of white roses flanked the altar of the Presbyterian Church in Homer Feb. 21 for the wedding ceremony at 7 o'clock performed by Dr. George Prentice, when Miss Marilyn Jean Truax of Homer became the bride of Robert William Douglas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Truax of Homer and Robert's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl William Douglas of Cass City. The bride was given in marriage by her father, who escorted her to the altar.

Seven lighted tapers in each of four candelabra and an arrangement of white roses in each window added to the beauty of the setting.

Mrs. Harry Sharrad of Homer was the organist and preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Hugh Ambler of Homer sang Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

The one-hundred and fifty relatives and friends were seated by Maurice McCullough and Gustave Johnson, both of Homer.

The bride chose a Ballerina-length gown of white lace and net over satin with a tight-fitting bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and a bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil of net, edged in lace, fell from a rhinestone trimmed cap and her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. Her arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, was tied with white lace and satin streamers and lilies of the valley.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Carlton Butters of Homer and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Maurice McCullough, also of Homer. Mrs. Butters wore yellow and Mrs. McCullough wore blue. Their dresses were net over satin, fashioned like the one worn by the bride. They wore straw hats to match their gowns in color, and matching satin slippers. Mrs. Butters' yellow carnation bouquet was tied with yellow, and blue ribbon tied Mrs. McCullough's yellow carnation bouquet.

John Douglas from the University of Michigan performed the duties of best man for his brother.

Mrs. Truax chose for her daughter's wedding, a white trimmed navy blue crepe jacket dress with white accessories. Mrs. Douglas selected for the occasion, a mauve dressmaker suit with which she wore blue accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of red roses.

A reception in the church parlors immediately followed the ceremony. A four-tiered bride's cake centered the linen covered table. Also used for decorations for the reception were bouquets of pink gladioli sent by an aunt of the groom, Mrs. John Rockwell, currently in Florida.

When the newlyweds left for a week's wedding trip to Northern Michigan, the bride was wearing a black gabardine dressmaker suit trimmed with red and white piping. Her accessories were red except for a white knitted hat, and she wore a corsage of red roses.

The bride was graduated from Homer High School and the groom from Roosevelt Military Academy at Aledo, Ill.

They are now at home at 309 Burgess St., Homer.

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Douglas, were hosts Friday evening at a rehearsal dinner at Schulers in Marshall.

Look for Testers

Anyone interested in Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing work should contact the County Agent's office at once, says Alfred P. Ballweg, county agricultural agent. A tester training course will be offered at Michigan State College starting March 11 and ending March 20. Older men or men not subject to draft are preferred, says Ballweg.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

The Michigan legislature this week looked to business and industry for $35 to $40 million in additional taxes.

Here is the tax package endorsed by Republican members of the House of Representatives in party caucus:

1. Tax manufacturers and wholesalers one-fourth of one per cent on their annual gross receipts with no exemptions for out-of-state sales. This, by itself, would yield $35 to $40 millions in new revenue each year.

2. Advance the date of the corporation franchise tax to May 15 in order to produce another $35 million for the present fiscal year. (ending June 30).

3. Then recover $10,000,000 from the primary school fund, now paid in state inheritance and gift taxes, while granting $18,000,000 to the schools—a gain of $8,000,000—by re-enacting the used-car title transfer tax defeated last year.

Members of Senator George Higgin's taxation committee were talking of doubling the manufacturer-wholesale levy for the first 12 months in order to retire one-third of the whopping and growing state deficit now approaching the $90,000,000 mark.

Add these together and you get taxes, sufficient to retire the state debt in 1954. With the manufacturer-wholesale tax going down automatically from five to two and one-half mills on July 1, 1954, the state treasury would have around $85,000,000 in additional revenues annually to bridge the gap caused by constitutional diversion of taxes back to local government.

If the manufacturer-wholesale tax, which is frankly a hidden consumer levy, fails to get enough support in the house and senate, then Governor Williams' corporation profits tax has an excellent chance of becoming law. Legislators may dress it up a bit to give it new appearance, such as having the levy apply to unincorporated business and partnerships. But basically it would be the Williams' plan.

Republican leaders feared the so-called Conlin plan, calling for constitutional amendments would provide Democrats with political ammunition for 1953 spring election. Veteran and school votes are numerous. Hence the Conlin plan remained buried in senate committee this week.

Until the constitution can be amended to change ear-marking of state-collected money for use of local governments, the State of Michigan can keep only 26.2 per cent of such funds for its needs. There isn't enough money left in the treasury to maintain public services such as colleges, prisons, hospitals and other agencies.

This ear-marking of tax money for local governments, now totaling about $400,000,000 a year, is the basic cause of the state's unbalanced budget.

This system works to the advantage of townships with 750 receiving so much money from the state that they get along with no local taxes whatsoever. Most Michigan townships get 78 per cent of their income directly from the state.

A similar situation exists in the field of school finance. State aid to local school districts is tremendously complicated; not easy to explain or understand. But under present regulations, certain school districts receive much more help than others. A check shows that the existing formula permits some districts to operate completely at state expenses without local taxes, while others cannot function even with the aid of local taxes. Twelve school districts, for instance, concluded the year with bank balances amounting to five times or more the amount of state aid they received. On the other hand, 27 had no funds at all or had deficit balances.

So it's still too early to say what the final outcome of Michigan's financial mess will be, but it is certain there will be much financial soul searching, political pressuring and wrangling before anything is done.

Michigan again leads all states when it comes to issuing licenses, having sold 1,124,000 in 1952. California is second with some 65,000 fewer, or 1,059,000. Wisconsin and Minnesota are ranked third and fourth.

But after leading the list of states for several years in hunting licenses, Michigan dropped to second place. Pennsylvania ranked first with a reported 1,070,000. Then comes Michigan with 952,000, 18,000 fewer. New York and Ohio are third and fourth.

About 2,833,000 automobile license plates were issued for 1953, only little more than twice the amount of fishing licenses sold in the state.

A bill to give sportsmen state-sponsored life insurance may be introduced in the legislature. Sponsored by Rep. Hugo A. Nelson (R, Indian River), the idea is to raise the price of the hunting licenses to cover death, hospitalization and doctor bills resulting from hunting or automobile injuries on hunting trips. License rates would be increased no more than 50 cents says Rep. Nelson to pay $10,000 for deaths and foot other bills.

Last year 22 sportsmen died of gunshot wounds; about 100 were wounded.

The legislator added that more fishermen drown each year than hunters die, but he would prefer to tackle fishermen's insurance after he was successful with game license hikes.

The Wolverine state was on top in a recent survey to find the state having the highest percentage of home ownership. In Michigan 67.5 per cent of all dwelling units are owned by the inhabitants. New York showed the lowest percentage—57.9. Following Michigan is Minnesota with 66.4 per cent. Indiana, Idaho, Oregon and Utah were closely behind.

Trapper Instructors To Aid Farmers

State trapper instructors, employed by the Michigan Conservation Department, are ready to aid farmers who are experiencing trouble with nuisance wild animals, according to Alfred P. Ballweg, agricultural agent for Tuscola County.

Although most wildlife species generally are of some benefit to man, individual animals sometimes turn "outlaws" by causing damage to crops, livestock or buildings, explains the agent. Destructive individuals need to be controlled. The state trappers will give assistance to farmers in trapping racoons, foxes or other wild animals known to be a nuisance.

State trappers cover several counties. The best way to contact a state trapper is through the local conservation office.

In Tuscola County, the officer to contact is Henry Fredmore. His address is 327 Fremont Street, Caro.
