MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

The advantages of being in debt will soon be described by factions in government who take a long range view of the state's operating deficit. And, surprisingly enough, there are some sound reasons why a government deficit is of less importance than one in your family finances.

For one thing, they say, the estimated $65 million deficit is really only a bookkeeping figure. For example, the state orders a building to be constructed at a cost of $5 million with completion in two years. That $5 million immediately shows as having been spent. Actually, it is not spent, is not due, and couldn't be paid because the service had not yet been performed.

Then, with Michigan's poorly devised earmarking of state funds, it is easy for one state account to run into the red and show a deficit, while other accounts have an over supply of money which cannot be used to balance things up.

A deficit, particularly of the "manageable" variety, is a great advantage, it is believed, in riding herd on a legislature which might otherwise be inclined to spend a surplus frivolously. Dr. William Miller, one of the two Princeton tax experts who analyzed Michigan's financial condition, remarked in a speech, "That Michigan could go on living quite nicely forever with a $40 million deficit of the type it now has".

Trick is to turn the deficit liability into an asset in an argument which will help hold off the present legislature from making new tax laws. The idea is that people, faced with the possibility of paying new taxes, can more easily be sold on changing the Constitution to remove many of the earmarking provisions in this way, Michigan will end up with what is generally considered a fairer, more efficient tax system.

If no tax action is taken this session, don't be surprised. Legislators might make signs like coming up with something, but many of them (unofficially) would like to wait until after June 1, the end of the state's fiscal year, to see what conditions look like with all the records compiled. While there exists some pressure to come up with a tax program, there exists terrific pressure from every direction to "tax the other guy". This leaves the legislature in the middle, wondering whether to alienate one group severely by taxing, or leave a much larger group only a little annoyed that the problem has not been solved.

Most legislators agree privately that the Princeton report is sound economically. But politicians shake their heads at the political aspects which force many of them to support legislation which would reduce state spending in local areas where it is now being unfairly and unwisely distributed. If the problem can be solved by a referendum vote of the people changing diversion provisions, all legislators would be taken off the hook. No one should be amazed that Michigan's deficit problem, which is really more a political problem than one of finance, should seek a solution.

Little support was forthcoming for a bill in the Senate designed to change the dates to Monday of all national holidays except Christmas and New Year's and provide the public several more long weekends. The bill is back in committee and has little chance of passing this session. Its sponsor, Sen. Don Vander Werp, had the blessing of Labor and Industry and the active backing of the tourists' associations in proposing the changes. Similar changes are being submitted to 42 state governments this year, part of a national plan to be consistent in holiday celebration.

Only reason Senator Vander Werp could see for the lack of interest among other Michigan senators is a sentimental one, or the tendency to "leave things as they are". If the proposal gets the backing he hopes to get from the common man in Michigan, he is confident that next time around, the bill will become law.

All Michigan drivers will be affected if a proposed bill becomes law. For one thing, it sets the date of each license expiration to coincide with the driver's birthday. This provision alone is expected to save the state $30,000 annually, for notices reminding drivers to renew their licenses will no longer be sent. They will be expected to remind themselves when their birthday anniversary arrives.

A more important provision of the new law will set up a department in the Secretary of State's office; require complete files showing histories of moving traffic violations and accidents. Rate structure for licenses will be changed. A new license will be $3 for three years and $1.50 for each subsequent renewal. Chauffeur licenses will be $2; minor's restricted licenses, $1.

Tightening of driver licensing operations is guaranteed by traffic safety experts to reduce by one third the number of traffic fatalities in a year, so this bill will receive close study by legislators.

Time may be money, but a bill collector won't be satisfied if you promise to pay him in time.

FARM DIGEST

Even this late in the planting season, there's a feeling of uncertainty among farmers over what to plant. And it's easily understood why some of our friends feel this way.

One crop which has been good in the past and has the earmarks of being profitable again this year is sugar beets. If your soil is well-suited to sugar beets, you might like to consider these points:

- Beet sugar price increased 4% this past year, while prices of other crops dropped from 8 to 20%.
- Beet sugar is the highest in 30 years. And because beet growers share in the retail profits of beet sugar, this looks like another high profit year.
- A good labor supply is promised virtually eliminating this problem.
- Tonnage has been consistently increasing during the past 10 years.
- Over 900 mechanical beet harvesters are available to Michigan beet growers to take theaches out of beet harvesting.
- Delivery conditions at the plants have been greatly improved. Long waits are a thing of the past.

Yes, it looks like another good year for sugar beet growers. It will pay you to carefully consider this highly profitable crop. Your local fieldman will be happy to visit with you, to assist you in formulating your plans.

Modern in every respect except it has only one telephone!

Why does a one-floor house need an extension telephone?

Because one centrally located instrument is too far from either end of the house, or the basement. There are many steps to take every time the phone rings.

With a main telephone at one end of the house and an extension telephone at the other end, perhaps in a bedroom, you have greater convenience, privacy and protection.

The extension telephone costs only 3 1/3 cents a day, or a dollar a month, plus tax. Why not try an extension telephone for a few months and see if you don't agree. Call our Business Office.

PAPER MULCH

Much of your success in transplanting small trees depends on keeping plenty of moisture around the roots for the first few months. One way to assure this is to mix plenty of peat moss with the soil and then place a large square of tar paper on top of the ground around the tree, as illustrated. This helps to slow evaporation of moisture from the soil.

Be Careful When You Buy Equipment

The return to a buyer's market in farm machinery is one bright spot in the farmer's world today. Once again he can get his choice of makes and sizes of machines better engineered than ever before. Reports are coming in that some individuals are shopping 30, 40 or 50 miles away from home for "bargains." But are these bargains as good as they appear to be? Is it wise for a buyer to push his advantage as far as he can?

No, not in the long run. With increasing mechanization and manpower shortages, the farmer must lean more and more on his local implement dealer. He has a big stake in helping you farm efficiently.

The advantage of having financially strong near-by dealers will mean more to you than $50 or $100 saved on original prices. Providing, that is, your local dealer conducts his business as he should.

Have Agreement with Dealer

When a new tractor or other implement is purchased, the farmer should make it plain that he expects quick repair and parts service. It is a dealer's responsibility not just to sell you new machines, but to help you keep them running properly for their entire life.

Keeping a complete parts department calls for a big investment. And this investment normally yields a low income because it has a slow turnover. The "cut rate" dealer seldom bothers himself about keeping a good parts and repair service.

The service man should not leave until he has instructed you completely on the care, adjustment and maintenance of the new implement. All protective shields should be in place. You should be fully warned of its hazards, and know how to operate it safely.

But that isn't all. The dealer's responsibility is a year-around proposition. He should have skilled men available to come to your farm and make quick emergency repairs.

Cooperate with your local dealers all you can. If they're failing to meet your needs in some way, tell them about it. Give them a chance to improve.

Anticipate your parts and implement needs well in advance. Get your major repair work done during off seasons.

Spend Money Wisely

Every year farmers are laying out more and more cash for operating costs. A large chunk of this goes for machinery. This money spent at home strengthens home businesses. It will turn over several times and help support many neighbors.

Local businessmen pay taxes that help build better schools for your children. They and their employees help support churches and other community functions.

Farmers Work Long Hours

Farm operators put in a longer working day than do hired hands, a recent survey indicates. Owners average a little less than 11 hours a day, while hired workers average a little over nine hours.

Grazing Statistics

Recent studies show that a cow grazing on five-inch pasture eats about 125 pounds of herbage per day, enough to produce 40 to 50 pounds of milk with 4 per cent butterfat.

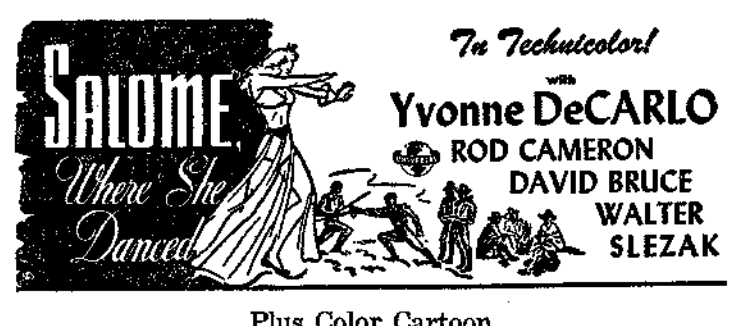

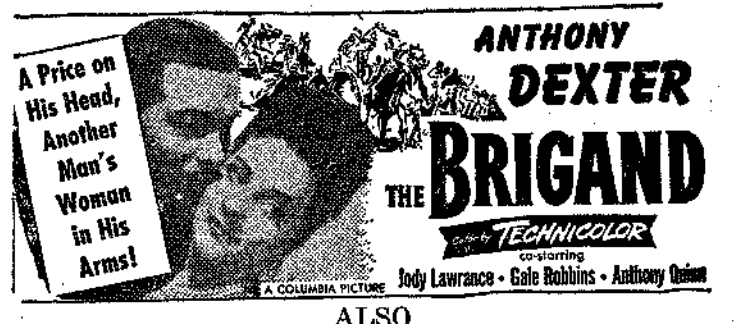

Fault-finding is never insincere—that's why it is so hateful.

Growing in Popularity

For the dairyman who wishes to start into registered cattle at a minimum of cost, the Red Dane breed offers that opportunity.

The Red Dane dairy cattle are a new breed in this country and were started 12 years ago on a long time lease program set up by the Bureau of Dairy Industry and A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman, Michigan State College. The Red Danes proved themselves in Denmark for meat utility and for high milk production. They are a heavy breed as the Red Dane bull D-559 at MABCI, weighs over 2100 pounds. D-559 has a USDA proof on 46 daughter-dam comparisons, the daughters averaging 8482 pounds of milk and 358 pounds of fat. D-559 is sired by a proved bull and out of a Red Dane cow who has 5 records averaging over 400 pounds of fat. There were over 5,000 first services during 1951 to Red Dane bulls kept by MABCI. Red Dane cattle are in great demand in Michigan and there is a waiting list of buyers. Third generation Red Dane females can be registered in the American Red Danish Cattle Association. All females must have Dairy Herd Improvement production records. Area inseminator-managers include Lynn Spencer of Northwest Sanilac ABA and Richard Ross of Cass City ABA. Insurance records show that the average woman weans better than the average man—but not so much.

Handle Insecticides With Caution

Even though an insecticide may not bear the "skull and crossbones" label, people should be cautious in handling the chemical, since many substances are harmful even if they are not poisonous.

That's a tip from Alfred P. Ballweg, county agricultural agent. He says that insecticides help fruits and vegetables but they often have the opposite effect on man.

David G. Steinicke, extension specialist in health and safety at Michigan State College, says that people handling insecticides should take special precautions not to inhale vapors or fumes. The insecticides should be labeled at all times and should be put in safe storage where children cannot reach them, Steinicke emphasizes. Here are some of the rules he suggests for handling insecticides safely:

Follow the directions of the manufacturer in handling, mixing and applying the chemical. Always spray or dust with the wind. Wear respirators when there is danger of inhaling fumes. Gloves, long-sleeved shirts and clothing to cover the entire body thoroughly, wash with soap and water after using poisonous chemicals. Store poisonous materials in strong leak-proof containers. Be sure they are out of reach of children or livestock. Thoroughly wash fruits and vegetables to which poisonous chemicals have been applied.

HONOR SOCIETY

fession, has had some opportunity to learn about this field of work by serving two years as student teacher. In addition, he has been student board member and, as a senior, hall guide commissioner. In scholastic achievement, he has offered real competition to the top ranking members of his class.

One of the busiest persons among this year's graduates has been Beatrice Leslie who has made her contribution to almost every activity in progress. Had her school offered more opportunities for girls in athletics, Beatrice would quite likely have been a real star in this field, as she has been a leader in every attempt to give the girls a chance to compete in sports. In both her junior and senior year, she served as a capable home room president.

Bill Martus, secretary of the senior class, has been active in all the major sports. In addition to both home room and class offices, he has made real contributions to the work in the FFA and has been popular as a speaker and a member of dramatic groups.

Col-salutatorian of the class, Faith Parrott has been one of the genuine scholars of her grade. Debating has been one of her prime interests and she has been active as a member and leader in the local chapter of the M.B.C. Faith plans to attend Wheaton College after graduation.

Another aspirant to honors in the athletic field, Marilyn Rocheleau has been a mainstay in attempts to foster interest in sports for girls. An excellent student, she has found a place in almost every activity which her class has entered and has made her influence felt in a score of worthwhile projects.

Colleen Ryan came to Cass City from Wisconsin as a tenth grader. Her friendliness and spirit of cooperation have endeared her to her classmates. Her instructors have found her an able and ambitious student. The qualities she has shown in her high school work should point the way to a high degree of success in nursing, her chosen career.

The field of music education will find an admirably suitable candidate in Eunice Smith, whose work in this area has been unusually successful in high school. Band, glee club, quartet and frequent service as accompanist have all had a part in her activities. She was named home-coming queen for 1952 and was president of her home room and student council member in her senior year.

In addition to the 16 members elected to the Honor Society, six seniors were cited for honorable mention at the induction ceremonies held as an assembly before the student body this week. In each case, these persons had been given serious consideration by the council and were voted deserving of special mention both at this time and at commencement. The list for honorable mention includes: Mary Ann Anthes, Chas. Martinek, Jennie Lis, Annette Finney, Shirley Vargo and Roy Wagg.

Underclassmen who became members of the Honor Society in this week's ceremonies were as follows:

- 11th Grade.
Jack Cook, Phyllis Copeland, Russell Foy, Joyce Little, Mary Jean Martus, Donna O'Dell and Emma Jane Sickler.
- 10th Grade.
Marybelle Bruce, Marjorie Langmaid, Margarita Lopez, Janet Spencer and Theresa Werdeman.
- 9th Grade.
Connie Bartle and Keith O'Dell.
- 8th Grade.
Ruth Ann Agar, Sharon Brown, Kathryn Franks, Barbara Gross, Judy Huff, Sally Hunt, Marjorie Kelley, Elaine Lounsbury and Mary Shaw.

A number of so-called good buys in questionable stocks turned out to be farewells.

career were Uby, Cass City, Filion, Chandler, Kinde, Port Austin and Lansing.

Rev. Allured retired in 1948 and began picking up the loose ends of his hobby and gradually his old skill returned.

To illustrate the skill needed, take a pencil and try to write the alphabet from A to Z in a single line of letters seven-sixteenths of an inch long.

As word of his skill got around, his services became more in demand. Now he has plenty to keep him busy at his drawing board. But, if he didn't, he still has plenty of interests to devote his time to.

He has 20 to 25 thousand stamps in his collection. He is an ardent chess fan and has many other hobbies as well. The former Cass City minister works hard at his retirement.
