U.S. Farm Labor Supply Declines Mechanization May Ease The Situation

Latest surveys indicate a continued decline in farm workers in the country, as shown in the accompanying chart.
However, the farm labor problem will be eased somewhat by more progress in mechanization and technology.
For the next few years the armed forces will continue to take some men from the farm as well as business and industry. In addition, high-paying jobs in metropolitan areas will continue to attract workers from agriculture, but the situation won't be particularly different than in the past 15 years.
During the past 15 years workers employed on farms have decreased steadily due to gains in farm mechanization and new farming methods. However, new farm output records have been set with progressively fewer farm workers.

Output per man-hour and per farm worker in 1952 were reported as the greatest on record—and 1953 may bring a new high.
According to recent report wage rates paid farm workers probably will rise less than 5 per cent this year. Last year's rise was 7 per cent.
Rises will be different in particular areas, governed by the loss of farm workers to industry, the armed forces, and normal changes in demands.
Agriculture authorities see the continued decline in the number of farm workers through 1955.

WINDSTORM INSURANCE
THE ONLY PROTECTION AGAINST WIND DAMAGE
AGAINST most of the common hazards of life we can at least exert some elementary precautions. But wind is a frightening foe. There is so little you can do to protect your property.
There are, in this country, an average of 140 destructive WINDSTORMS annually. No section of the country is immune. So you cannot be sure that YOUR buildings are on "the safe side." Even structures of wind-resistant construction, such as brick, concrete or steel, may suffer heavy damage when they are so unfortunate as to lie in the path of a violent tornado.
BUT—and this is important to remember—you need not meet a tornado, or even a cyclone, to sustain sizeable damage. There are lots of little winds that can throw you for a big loss.
SO, the only really safe course—the course that will give you a feeling of serene satisfaction—is to have ADEQUATE WINDSTORM PROTECTION. THE COST? So little it is sure to prove a pleasant surprise. Especially is that true when you pause to reflect on the possible cost of not having WIND PROTECTION.
BE SAFE, and insure with us; the oldest and largest company of its kind in Michigan, and the second largest of its kind in the World.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Charges that the stubbornness of one man, the leader of one committee in the state Senate, is holding up a solution to Michigan's tax problems are being whispered, and none too quietly, in the Capitol.

The man is George N. Higgins, Republican from Ferndale. He holds a key position in the money raising machinery of the state as chairman of the Taxation Committee. While no attempt is made here to judge either the motives or the wisdom of Sen. Higgins' actions, there can be no doubt that his consistent refusal to consider any bills except those which his committee favors, has confused the taxation picture and aggravated many members in the Legislature—including several important Republicans.

Time will be the best judge of the correctness of the Senator's stand.

Most recent maneuver of Sen. Higgins was an effort to sell a new tax plan to the Legislators. There is no indication that the proposals will garner enough support to become law. It is called a tax on "adjusted receipts" and was hurriedly put together for Legislative consideration. A press conference called to explain the tax measure, found those who tried to interpret it unsure of their facts and admitting that many adjustments would be required before the tax program would be practical and fair.

There are at least two sides to most arguments and this tax situation is no exception. On one hand are those who cry, "politics." They claim that if Higgins would report on the Walter Hill corporate profits bill, it would stand a good chance of becoming law. But the corporate profits tax has been advocated for years by Governor Williams and its passage would be a feather in his political cap. The senator, who is able to stop the bill by virtue of his chairmanship of the Taxation Committee, has not been able to find another tax program popular with the Legislature.

This puts Republicans in the "hotseat" and provides much campaign ammunition for Democrats. They follow the Governor's lead on taxes, "If anyone has a sounder program than a corporation profits tax, let them come up with it." Some GOP Legislators are not happy about this unenviable position, particularly in the House.

Redistribution of present taxes is the real, long-range aim of Senator Higgins, say his advocates, who refer to the Princeton report on Michigan's tax situation. This report, published after many months of study by tax experts, claims that Michigan's basic problem is the Constitutional earmarking of tax monies. Many legislators agree that this is correct, but most observers also add that the problem of correcting the situation is politically impractical. The plan would require many local governments to raise taxes to a level equitable with the remainder of the state.

Since a referendum is required to change the tax diversion amendment, Sen. Higgins is reported as trying to set up a choice for voters. They would choose between repealing tax diversion or continuing a new tax.

For this reason the Senator, considered by many to be among the most conscientious of Legislators, has consistently fought for a tax program that effects many voters and with a termination date in 1955.

But Sen. Higgins has had much advice from automobile corporations in drawing up tax programs. This fact has generated suspicion not only of Legislators who favor a corporation profits, but some of his own supporters as well.

If you, the newspaper reader, are confused about the legislative problem of state finances, you're not alone.

State Treasurer D. Hale Brake recently pointed out in an article written for "Inside Michigan" that state officials have been guilty of making "apparently conflicting" statements on state finances.

Much of the confusion, he points out, arises over interpretation of bookkeeping figures. When a state official says publicly that the treasury has $38,000,000 in the general fund and hence no emergency exists, he really means to say that "there was $38,000,000 in the general fund that day, but of that, $28,112,529 was restricted and not available for general use."

Treasurer Brake pointed out that the state was $65,000,000 in the red last June 30 (1952) and that this figure was arrived at by "balancing our general fund commitments against our liquid assets in the general fund."

He added: "This will be regarded as rank heresy by financiers, but as a practical matter, a manageable deficit in a government is not too bad. It promotes economy, discourages waste. A surplus, on the other hand, is dangerous in that it promotes spending and makes economy extremely difficult."

In repeating this observation, which we made several weeks ago, we believe it only fair to emphasize that the state treasurer is a responsible public official and that the views so given as his own and should be evaluated accordingly. It has always been the policy of the "Michigan Mirror" to report Lansing trends as they exist and to let the readers be the judge.

Area Study Meeting Attracts 45 at Reese

The May 13 Area Study meeting at Reese was well attended with forty-five persons present.

The several committees met and worked on projects or tabulated questionnaires which have been gathered throughout the area. The transportation committee has replied on a safety questionnaire on the number of children which need special education.

The building and population committee made a report on a visitation trip which was made by six members of the committee on Monday, May 11. A similar trip will be made next Tuesday and from eight to 10 rural schools will be visited.

The program and curriculum committee discussed the material sent to them by the several high schools that visited the Area Study meeting of April 29 at Mayville.

Coffee and cookies were served to the group. The cookies were made by the girls in the home economics department and were especially good.

The next meeting will be on Wednesday, May 27, at Millington. Again, we wish to invite the public to the meeting, especially the public of the Millington area.

Cooked Garbage Will Avert Swine Disease

Cooking garbage which is to be fed to swine is the newest step being advocated by federal and state authorities for controlling vesicular exanthema in hogs, says Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola agricultural agent.

Ballweg cited the 27 cases of V. E. in 10 Michigan counties since last Oct. 5. The outbreaks cost the state $11,756.81 besides the share contributed to matching federal funds.

Dr. Glen W. Reed, Michigan State College extension veterinarian, says that 26 out of 27 cases of the disease in Michigan were in garbage feeding establishments. The other one was traced to the feeding of scraps, which also are garbage.

Now, Macomb, Wayne and Oakland counties are under federal quarantine because of the disease.

Dr. Reed says that proper cooking of garbage fed to hogs can eliminate losses from V. E. and can aid greatly in the control of hog cholera. Garbage containing raw meat scraps, he adds, can spread other damaging diseases such as foot and mouth, Newcastle disease in poultry, swine tuberculosis and erysipelas.

(A law requiring the cooking of garbage to be fed to livestock was introduced at the current session of the Michigan legislature.)

Farm Sanitation Aids In Better Rat Control

The only sure way of eliminating rats on the farm is through a program of sanitation, says Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola agricultural agent.

He says poisoning is not the only answer. Farms must be rat-proofed to do the job completely.

Don W. Hayne, Michigan State College zoologist, says poisoning has its limitation. Poisoning, he explains, reduces the rat number but makes it easier for the remaining rats to survive. And rats are prolific—more so when there are fewer rats.

With a program of sanitation, however, the zoologist says, the farm's ability to support rats is very low.

Sanitation includes cleaning up refuse as well as ratproofing. County Agent Ballweg says grain bins can be ratproofed by putting sheet metal or heavy hardware cloth around them and screening ventilators. New bins should be planned so that they are rat-proofed.

That means, he says, that a farmer must plan ahead if he is going to store grain properly.

Zoologist Hayne says that Warfarin is recommended poison for use on the farm. It should be mixed with corn meal rolled or ground oats, or powdered sugar and vegetable oil for best results.

Take it Easy

Don't kill yourself the first day in your vegetable garden, cautions Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agricultural agent. A full day of bending, squatting, tugging and hauling may be rough if you haven't kept in condition over the winter.

Let the heavier jobs go until you're limbered up—he passes along some good advice from David G. Steinicke, Michigan State College health and safety organization specialist. If tools are in good repair, and sharpened up to do a job, the work will be easier. Getting them in shape is a good light job to warm up on.

One of the wonders of the world is a man who gets a lot of money without letting a lot of money get him.

It's easy for a man to lead a woman to the altar—to maintain the lead from then on is more difficult.

SHORT STORY

In A Man's Boots

By James Harsh

JOEY CASSIDY would do almost anything to get the boots in Pop Smith's store. He looked down at his own, worn, almost pathetic pair of once black boots, now covered with dust, heels twisted comically to one side.

The hot sun hung over Devil's Ridge, making it like a nightmare in the middle of the day. The street burned cruelly up through the holes in the old boots. He'd even steal if need be, he thought to himself. And he reckoned he'd be the only fifteen-year-old thief in the jail house if he got caught.

He turned reluctantly from the store window, took one more, long look at the high yellow topped boots with the dark green butterflies neatly engraved in the front. He'd be back to get them, he vowed. He'd get the money somehow. He'd ask his dad down at the livery stable; maybe he'd loan him the money and he could pay it back... someday.

He crossed the street, stopping suddenly as two horsemen came down the main drag of Devil's Ridge. The man with the cold, dark eyes almost cut Joey down as he rode past him, thundering to a halt in front of Pop Smith's store. He was followed by another man who stayed near the horses. Joey watched the man with the black eyes enter the store. Joey continued across the street where his pinto was tied. Just as he mounted the little mare, he heard a gun shot. He looked in the direction of the sound just in time to see the man hurrying out of the store. He was carrying a heavy sack and the yellow boots.

Joey looked up and down the deserted street for help; the heat had driven all the towns people indoors. The sheriff's office was down at the other end of the street. He decided to go after the boots. He waited until the two men rode out of town, then he cut his pinto out in the direction of the dust that rose on the horizon. He'd just follow the dust, he reflected. It would stop soon, and when it did he'd take the money and the boots back to Pop.

The two distant riders crossed the river and stopped at Old Ben Foster's ranch. Joey followed them across the river, stopped his horse just short of the main gate, and continued on foot, wondering all the time if they were going to rob Old Ben.

He saw the horses tied outside the bunk house with the heavy sack strapped to the saddle. But the boots weren't there. He walked cautiously up to the horse and untied the bag. He opened it and found to his surprise, a sack full of cartridges and a new .45 Colt revolver. It was loaded and there was one shell missing. He pulled back the hammer and strode toward the bunk house.

He opened the door and saw the man with the cold eyes sitting on the cot trying desperately to pull on one of the yellow boots. His face was red with rage and the perspiration beaded his leathery forehead.

Joey leveled the .45 at the man. "Drop 'em, mister!"

The cowboy looked up. "Tarnation, boy, put that gun back before you blow the place to pieces."

"I see you steal them boots and this gun from Pop Smith's store," shouted Joey in boyish anger.

"You mean you saw me buy these things from old Pop."

"Don't go denying you drilled Pop. I heard the shot from outside," said Joey still pointing the gun.

"I shot her into the floor to see if she worked proper." The man said producing a receipt of the goods purchased. Joey looked at it and blushed. Feeling more than a little foolish he handed the man his gun.

"I guess I wanted those boots so bad I plumb lost my head." He turned to leave. "Sorry."

"The cursed things don't fit me. I was in such a hurry to leave I didn't try them to size forehead." The man with the black eyes handed the boots to Joey. "I reckon a boy with as much spunk as you should size up to a pair of man's boots."

Ware Presides at Area Conference

Jim Ware, Chief of the Lodge of the Order of the Arrow in the Valley Trails Council, presided at the Area Conference held at Camp Rotary last week end. It was attended by 190 men and boys representing most of the scout councils of the lower peninsula of Michigan from Detroit to Traverse City and to St. Joseph.

An honored guest was William C. Morgan of Chicago, formerly scout executive in Saginaw, and known to many in Cass City as a song leader, who is now advisor to the Order of the Arrow for Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana.

The Order is a society of scout campers, whose members are elected by the boys and men in the scout troops as honor campers. Others from Cass City attending the conference were Dick Wallace, Roger Little, Russell Foy, Ray W. Fleanor and Harold Oatley.

A service project is part of the program at each Arrow meeting. The group planted some thousands of pine trees as their major contribution at this conference.

HAWKS TAKE SECOND

by Dean Hoag and Tim Burdon.
In the third, the Hawks added another run without benefit of a hit. Foy reached first on an error, stole second and went to third on an infield out. He scored a moment later when Carson threw a wild pitch.

Cass City scored twice more in the fifth and once in the sixth, but Carson closed the gates in the seventh to preserve his victory.

Cass City collected as many hits as Yale, seven, but committed five errors. The Bulldogs were guilty of two misplays.

Marlette Game.
The final conference game of the year was a slugfest that Cass City won to share second place league honors.

The game was fairly close until the sixth inning when Cass City jumped up with five runs to salt away the contest.

Previous to their sixth inning outburst, the Hawks had collected four runs in the second and one in the fourth inning.

Marlette had kept in the game with a pair of tallies in the second and a single run in the third.

In the big sixth inning, Doyen started the rally by working Vatter for a walk. Evans sacrificed and LeRoy Hoag sent his across with a single. An error in the outfield on a fly by Foy scored LeRoy Hoag and Dean Hoag also reached first on a boot by Marlette. Tim Burdon singled Foy across and both he and Dean Hoag rambled home on a double by Wallace.

Marlette out hit Cass City 8-7, but was charged with seven errors that proved fatal to their chances of winning the game. Cass City also had a poor day afield as they were charged with five boots.

Good Pasture Will Produce More Milk

Good, succulent pastures fill cows quickly and mean more milk. Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agent, says a cow will need about 150 pounds of legume-grass pasture a day to produce 50 pounds of milk. This means 4,500 pounds of pasture per cow per month.

If pasture is short, Ballweg adds, the cow will need one ton of silage, 700 pounds of hay or 475 pounds of concentrates for every ton of pasture lacking.

Contented cows find enough food on a one-acre grazing area and lie down to chew their cud and produce milk. If cows have to spend more time eating, they must travel farther to get enough food and energy is subtracted from milk-producing.

Managers and sponsors together with representatives from the Cass City Gavel Club met Tuesday evening at the New Gordon Hotel to discuss arrangements for the 1953 Cass City Softball League.

The group decided to adopt two new rule changes this year. One of the new rules makes it mandatory for player personnel from each team to live not over 20 miles from the place where their team originates.

The second rule establishes a new commission to handle disputes in the league. A player from each team, a Gavel Club member and the chief umpire will form the committee.

Schedule New Rules For Softball League

Members of the Cass City Gavel Club learned about the rules and regulations of Little League Baseball Tuesday evening at their regular meeting at the New Gordon Hotel.

The pair explained the complicated system that is used to organize the league and explained the buying and trading procedure used in the league.

After explaining the league, Mr. Young and Dr. Sharpe showed movies of the Little Leaguers in action.

In a short business meeting, the club voted to send Jack Cook to Boys' State at Lansing. After adjournment, club members worked at the softball diamond at the Cass City Recreation Park.

Faltering Tractor Spells Lost Money

Improper liquid-weighting of tractor tires can cause more trouble than if it had not been done at all, warn farm service engineers.

Tests reveal that to obtain maximum pulling power against minimum tire wear, tractor tires should be filled with liquid not more than 75 per cent.

The reason for this limit is that an air chamber must remain in the tire to retain the basic principles of a pneumatic tire—that is, give cushioning and longer life through flexibility and resistance to bruising.

Tractor tires 75 per cent liquid-filled still retain a bruse-resisting air chamber that absorbs shock and they retain 93.5 per cent of their wear resistance, 4.5 per cent less than a completely air-filled tire.
