

From the Editor's Corner

On Oct. 15, 1923, the village of Cass City granted franchise rights to the Great Lakes Electrical Company for service to this community.

Since that time there have been three different power companies serving the village. In 1925, Michigan Electric purchased Great Lakes Electric's rights and served this area for 10 years when they were merged with Detroit Edison Company who now serves the area.

On Monday, Oct. 19, village voters will decide whether or not to continue the franchise to the company for another 30 years—a procedure established by law.

When the vote was held for Elkland Township, only a simple majority was required to continue the service, but in the village election a three-fifths majority is required to continue service.

Each Wednesday afternoon someone from the office goes to Caro to secure the news concerning the area from the courthouse. This week we made the trip for nothing. Arriving in the afternoon, a note on the door informed us that the courthouse would be closed Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons for the annual Tuscola County Fair.

Council Briefs

It's official now. In compliance with an order from the Michigan State Health Department, Bud Burt was named as the man responsible for sewers in the village—a job he has had for many years.

The newly resurfaced streets in Cass City this summer cost the taxpayers $7,885.50, according to a final tally submitted by the C. R. Hunt Co., who did the work in the village.

Acting on a plan devised last month, the council has purchased five of the extra water bonds that are still outstanding. Coupled with the one purchased that was due, the village now owes for seven bonds valued at $1,000 each, leaving a total debt of $7,000.

Three complaints received by the village were discussed Tuesday. The first concerned dumping waste oil into the sewer by commercial establishments. The matter is to be investigated.

Vacant lots and other areas with tall, unkempt grass concerned the council Tuesday. Letters will be written to owners in an attempt to correct the situation.

One of the perennial problems in the village cropped up again Tuesday. Dogs are again becoming a nuisance in the village. A check will be made with the dog warden.

Tax collections this year are slightly ahead of 1952, reports Wilma Fry, village treasurer. However, about $2,000 is still to be collected for this year.

Bud Burt was granted permission to attend the annual sewerage convention to be held this year at Kellogg Center, East Lansing, Sept. 21-23. Mr. Burt also attended the convention last year.

When the swimming pool and wading pool close this summer, repair work will have to be done. The wading pool needs an enlarged drain as it now takes most of the night for the water to drain.

The big pool leaks water. In one night, Mr. Burt reports, the level of the water drops about four inches. Approximately 10,000 gallons is lost, Mr. Burt believes, through a leak in the filters.

Fall Breaks Wrist Of Gagetown Lady

A hidden wire resulted in a broken wrist for Mrs. Fred Carson, Gagetown, Wednesday, Aug. 19, when she went into the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cooley, Sr., in search of herbs.

Mrs. Carson and her husband were visiting the Cooleys when the accident occurred. The wire was hidden in some weeds and Mrs. Carson's foot became entangled in it. When she fell, she broke the bones in her right wrist.

The injured lady was taken to Cass City where she was treated by Dr. J. H. Ballard.

Mrs. Carson is convalescing at home and is reported to have been suffering a great deal of pain.

Merchette Bowling League will begin bowling Thursday, Sept. 17.—Adv. 8-28-2

Eleven Lettermen Gone

Hawks Rebuilding for Coming Grid Season

For the first time in several years, the Cass City Red Hawks will open their first practice in an underdog role in conference competition.

When Coach Jerry Raymond greets his football hopefuls Monday, he will be working with a green team that will be without the services of 11 lettermen from the 1952 squad which lost only to Bad Axe.

With just three short weeks before the first game of the season at Elkton Sept. 18, Coach Raymond will have his work cut out for him.

Biggest loss will be felt in the line where almost all of the regulars have departed, with no experienced replacements left to fill the gaps. There are also holes in the backfield, but reserve strength in that department is better.

In fact, the backfield has many candidates. Coach Raymond said that he would likely transfer some of the boys who have played in the backfield to the line.

Among the boys who have been lost to the team via graduation are: Tim Burdon, Graydon Agar, Bill Zinnecker, Charles Hempton, Roy Wagg, Arison Kelley, Don Tuckey, Stan Beach, Bob Wallace and Stan Guinther.

Most of these boys were regulars last year. For the 1953 edition of the Red Hawks, only Russ Foy and Clint Esckilson are regulars back from last year's squad.

Several other lettermen will be on hand to bolster the team. These include: Dean Hoag, Don Doyen, Aaron Lefler and Jerry Little.

Among the boys who have shown promise in previous years, but have never won a letter in football are: Jack Clara, Bill Tuckey, Don Simmons, Dick Donahue, Jim Ellis, Gordon Drouillard and Max Stoutenberg.

Coach Raymond said that among the candidates for the team are about 11 boys who have fairly good size and weight. With a green squad, the mentor said that he would be well satisfied if the squad could win half of their games this year.

The Hawks will use the "split-T" offense this year. In 1952, the team used both the single wing and the "T." The "T" was used in late games last season.

Local Boy Receives Radar Training

Pvt. Clarence Schneberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Schneberger of Cass City, after finishing eight weeks of signal corps basic training at Camp Gordon, Ga., has been transferred to Army Ordnance at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, where he will have fourteen weeks of schooling on the radar phase of T-38 Sky-sweeper. He will receive further training upon completion of this phase of school.

Before entering the service, Pvt. Schneberger spent a year and a half in radio electronics and television schools in Detroit. There he received a first class FCC license and a television technician's diploma. He then entered General Motors school but was inducted into the army before completing a course in radar.

After arriving by plane at Fort Monmouth, his parents and wife spent the week end with him.

Personalized Account Given

Local Scouts Describe Trip

Besides the time they spent at the Jamboree Camp in California, Cass City Boy Scouts took many excursions and visited many historic spots in the West, according to the reports of the boys themselves.

Tuesday noon, at the regular Rotary luncheon meeting at the New Gordon Hotel, the scouts appeared in person and gave a personalized account of the points of interest on their trip. Ray Fleenor, who accompanied the group, acted as moderator as the boys each told of a phase of their trip.

Fred McConkey started the discussion rolling, when he told of the scouts' excursion through Glacier Park, Montana. By bus the boys traveled so high in the mountains that when they got off they held a friendly snowball fight. Other points of interest, according to Fred, were a church they visited and an Indian powwow.

The boys left their special train for a brief excursion through Seattle. Jerry Perry told of a trip on the S. S. Sightseer through government locks and a bus trip through the business and residential districts. Jerry said that the group also took a firsthand look at the Washington State University campus and its football stadium.

After leaving Seattle and going through Portland, Oregon, Jack Perry took the floor with a resume of the sights of San Francisco. A bus tour of the city showed the boys the famous Market Street, Jack said, and at San Francisco they visited the largest salt water pool in the world.

All the boys enjoyed their stay at the Jamboree Camp and Ronnie Fleenor told of the activities while there. "One of the worst things about the camp," Ronnie said, "was the dust and hills, that was a headache to everyone at the camp."

Ronnie went on to tell of the trading posts, swap tents, bus tours and other activities that comprised the days in the camp.

Mr. Fleenor added that the boys did all their own cooking while in the camp and said that the Cass City contingent caused no trouble during the whole trip.

While waiting for the train to return home, the scouts received

Dale Kettlewell New President Of Gavel Club

Dale Kettlewell was named the new president of the Cass City Gavel Club at an election of officers held Tuesday evening at the club's regular meeting at the New Gordon Hotel.

Mr. Kettlewell will take over the reins of the club from Jack Esau, retiring president. Mr. Esau gave the club a review of the activities, telling members what was accomplished and what was left undone.

A complete slate of officers was named Tuesday. Besides the president, three other officers were filled. Herb Ludlow was named the new vice-president, replacing Ben Benkelman at that post.

New secretary for the club is Gilbert Albee, who takes over his duties from Fred Withey. The treasurer's post went to Lloyd Vyse who replaces Fred Auten.

Dr. B. H. Starmann was program chairman and the discussion was devoted to projects that could be improved in the village. Discussion topics included a retail division for the Chamber of Commerce, a welcoming committee for new persons entering the village and conditions of village streets.

In the business meeting, a report indicated that the Gavel Club broke nearly even on its softball program this summer. A final auditing is expected to reveal a very slight deficit.

Owendale School Ready to Open Monday Morning

Supt. Henry Moes announced this week that Owendale Community Schools will swing open its doors to students for the 1953-54 school year Monday, Aug. 31.

According to Mr. Moes, the school has taken on a new appearance this year. Two new classrooms have been added and ten classrooms have been redecorated in pastel colors while the students have been taking their summer vacation.

Other changes in the school include a new IBM electronic classroom bell system with gongs in the hallways and on the school grounds.

Sometime in September the students will also have the use of 50 new lockers that have been ordered. A new school bus, with a 50-passenger capacity, has also been purchased by the board of education.

The whole school has been completely washed and waxed in preparation for the new year.

Besides having the school in tip-top shape for the coming year, Supt. Moes said that the teaching staff is complete for the year.

Teachers are: Supt. Moes, Eli D. Hoies, principal and coach; William Root, music; Mrs. Helen Baker, vocational home economics; Leland Warschewsky, agriculture; Charles Ellis, social studies;

Looks Forward to Visit

German Exchange Youth to Spend Year in Cass City

Klaus Schulze, 18, a German youth coming to Cass City under the urban teen-age exchange plan, will spend a year in this area to observe American life and study the American system of government.

Sponsored by the Cass City Rotary Club, the youth will make his home for the first few months with Supt. and Mrs. Willis Campbell.

Arrangements for Mr. Schulze to spend time in other homes in the community are now being formulated.

He will come to Cass City highly recommended by educators and authorities in Germany. Remarks about his personal habits, school work and educational background range from good to excellent—with the majority of the classifications reading excellent.

Although Mr. Schulze has not yet graduated, he has a reading and writing knowledge of at least three languages—French, German and English.

He writes that at school he is chiefly interested in languages, natural science, mathematics and technical drawing. Mr. Schulze goes on to say that he is especially interested in experimenting with electrical things but has no opportunity for the work outside of school hours because of the expense involved.

The young student is also actively engaged in sports in Germany, holding a third class certificate of the German lifesaving society and a position as a youth leader selected by the town council. He is also interested in tennis and gymnastic work.

Because he has been such an outstanding student in Germany, he often earned extra money assisting boys with their school homework and helping them through school.

Perhaps no better commentary on his ability can be made than the report of the field exchange of persons officer in charge of his application. The officer said, "He is an excellent youth leader, enjoying semi-official employment by the city in this capacity. He is quick, bright and intelligent and expresses himself clearly and understandably. He is quite mature and has an excellent knowledge of current events and world affairs."

.... He has a good understanding of the purpose of the exchange program and speaks good English. He is very active in sports and very fond of outdoor life."

Mr. Schulze is looking forward to his arrival in Cass City. At the present time, he is in Michigan waiting to be sent to this area.

Following on the heels of last month's crackdown on dirty alleys, the village council at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the Municipal Building, decided to eliminate U turns on Main Street in Cass City.

The crackdown will be the council's answer to a problem that has long perplexed authorities in the village.

Drivers coming to corners and swinging around in a steady stream has long been a traffic hazard in the village. An attempt to curb the situation was made when certain streets in the village were posted previously.

The only result of this attempt was to send the drivers down another block to make the turn.

However, council members feel that prohibiting U turns anywhere on Main Street, together with adequate enforcement of the law, will solve the situation.

So that Constable Steve Orto can enforce the law, ordinance number 39 will be amended to include a provision making the U turns punishable by law.

In addition, every corner within the village limits on Main Street will be posted against U turns.

Persons in Novesta Township evidently approve of the service given by the Detroit Edison Company.

In a special election held Monday, to determine whether or not they wanted to continue to receive service from the company, voters cast 47 yes votes and not a single no vote.

There were 48 votes cast Monday but one was void because of improper voting procedure.

The 48 votes represent a bigger turnout than was recorded in Elkland Township when they voted on the same measure recently.

One farm auction is listed in this week's issue of the Chronicle. John Zabinski will sell his personal property at his farm, one mile south and one and one-half miles east of Cass City on Saturday, Aug. 29.

The notice continued, "... should the investigation disclose that the rates being charged the consuming public are unjust, unreasonable or oppressive, the Commission will fix rates that are just and reasonable."

It also stated that the General Phone Company should "show cause, if any there be, why its present schedules of rates and charges pertaining to services performed wholly within the State of Michigan, should not be vacated and set aside and why it should not be required to file schedules of rates and charges which shall eliminate any extraordinary profits or unnecessary and unreasonable elements of expense and be in all other respects non-oppressive, just and reasonable rates."

Carl Nye, manager for the company in this district, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Carl Nye, manager for the company in this district, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

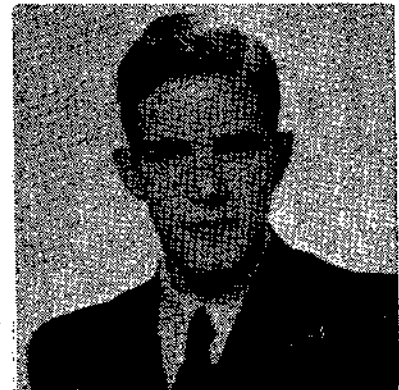

The long battle over the telephone rates charged by the General Telephone Company of Michigan took a new twist recently as the Michigan Public Service Commission ordered the company to appear before its members and show cause why its present rate schedule should not be abandoned and new lower rates inaugurated.

The order to appear is the Commission's answer to a ruling by Judge Louis E. Coash in the Circuit Court of Ingham County, on July 30, that set aside their rate order dated December 6, 1952.

The company has long been fighting for an increase in rates that would raise the amount of revenue from operating the phone service so that investors would realize 6.3 per cent on their investments.

The proposed increases were turned down in a hectic meeting before the Michigan Public Service Commission Feb. 6, 1952.

In its notice to the company, the Commission said it "will investigate all rates of whatsoever kind and nature charged by the General Telephone Company of Michigan for service rendered as a public utility operating within the State of Michigan; and will investigate to determine whether or not the public is being required to pay

Salem Evangelical United Brethren Church—Corner of Ale and Pine St., Cass City. S. R. Wurtz, pastor.

It is a stupendously amazing, tragic thing that in this day so glorious in power, while we have left no stone unturned to get at the physical forces and their release, yet how little we have done to deal with the unseen world that, I believe, imposes just as much upon our spirits as the external order does upon our bodies. An order which, I believe, is just as crammed full with latent powers as our physical world. How tragic it is that we humans, physically so powerful, should be spiritually so weak and yet with a whole spiritual world at our disposal. "It is required of stewards that they be found faithful (trustworthy)." 1 Cor. 4:2.

A primary requirement of a trustworthy Christian steward is having the right motives, motives to fill the mind and heart with the teaching and the spirit of Christian stewardship. When the steward is faithful to the teachings and obedient to the spirit of stewardship, there are always adequate funds in the treasury and sufficient talents ready. ## MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Do you think politics is dirty? What makes you think the way you do about matters of public importance? Why do you have the opinions you have about your schools, state government, conservation, foreign aid? In short, why do you vote the way you do? What influences your actions in your hometown, your union, your trade association? Where do you get the information that makes you act the way you do—and do you react the way you do because you believe or disbelieve the information you get?

Answers to questions like these are being sought in a study of public information. It's sponsored by the Michigan Press Association, the Michigan School Administrators Association and Michigan State College. The project is being financed by a grant from Kellogg Foundation funds.

"One of the most significant studies in communications ever conducted in the United States," is the description given the project by a world famous educator. Because of the size of the problem, it was decided to consider only one phase at the beginning. Because of the professional stature of school administrators and their natural connection with informing the public, it was decided to set up an experimental study of the relationship between the people and the knowledge they have about their school system. St. John was selected as the site of the first investigation. Tests are now being made. When a method is developed there, studies will be carried out in many other communities. * * * You and your attitudes have a good chance of being probed by one of these surveys since it is expected to cover a three-year period. When methods are uncovered to improve the knowledge people have about schools, it is expected, they can be applied to other fields of public interest. * * *

Sniping at educators has been carried on for years by newspaper editors who charge that school people hold "closed corporation" meetings and adopt other methods to prevent the public from knowing what is going on in the school system. Educators, on the other hand, have directed some blows at editors, too. For years they have claimed that newspapers over-emphasize sensational difficulties in which schools become involved; that they often overlook the solid worthwhile developments. * * *

The "enemy" camps, however, held two friends. They were Otto Haisley, then head of the School Administrators Association and Louis J. Berman, vice-president of the Michigan Press Association. They decided that a joint meeting of school administrators and editors might create better understanding between the two groups. Such a session was arranged by Mr. Berman with the aid of the Michigan Press Association and Michigan school men. It was held in January, 1952, at Grand Rapids. Several hundred educators and editors were on hand. * * *

So enthusiastic was the reception by both groups, and so great were the results that Dr. Francis Chase, of the Midwest Research Center of the University of Chicago, a Kellogg Foundation-supported research group, suggested that still greater benefits might come about if the two associations would unite in an investigation to discover these two points. 1. How people get information on schools. 2. What part newspapers play in supplying this information. "Answers to these questions in education will probably be applicable to other fields," stated Dr. Chase. * * *

Vital effects will be felt by all agencies dealing with the public if results from this study bring even one half the potential visualized by those working in it. The survey has been given an imposing title: Michigan Education Communications Study. Prof. Earl McIntyre, assistant head of the journalism department at Michigan State College, is coordinator. He is assisted by a board of daily and weekly newspapermen, some leading high school superintendents, several department heads at MSC and Dr. Chase. * * *

Dire need to impress the public of facts vital to society is realized by educators who watch the skyrocketing birthrate. They know provisions must be made now if tomorrow's school children are to receive sound educations. School men know the public must realize the urgency of this problem if money is to be voted for more schools. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, foresees two million more residents in Michigan by 1970. Best available figures show that 1952's college enrollment of 94,000 will more than double in the next 17 years. * * *

"Ten million dollars a year should be spent on a building program starting now," says President Hannah, "rather than letting the problem magnify through delay." * * *

If solutions can be found to the educator's problem through the efforts of the Michigan Educational Communications Study, then those who look for big things to result in the world of public administration will not be disappointed. * * *

The masterful screen lover has everything his own way—but in real life somebody generally ups and marries him. * * *

The main objection to the school of experience is that it thinks up a new course every time you get ready to graduate. * * *

SHORT STORY

Without Excitement

By Besse Lecke

WELL, she had spent her two weeks in Florida and now she was on her way home. And other than a good tan, she had nothing to show for her expensive vacation. She had eaten hamburgers and soup for a year so she could have these two weeks but she was returning home without finding excitement on her vacation. Not one unusual thing had happened.

Atmosphere in the club car was a little smoky and anything but quiet, so Susan and her mystery novel decided to move back up the train to her seat. She passed through the club car and the two beyond. Her seat was in the fourth car from the end.

As she opened the door to the little space between the cars, she saw the whole thing. The outside door of the speeding train was open and, framed against the black night and the fleeting countryside, was a man with his back to the door. Terror was written in every line of his white face. Two feet away from him, with his back to Susan, was another man in a gray overcoat and gray hat. She saw his hands move swiftly and the white-faced man screamed as he toppled backward out the door, his hands clutching at nothing. One moment, he was there, the next he was swallowed up in a black pit. Susan gasped, unable to scream, just as the wind whipped the con-netting door shut in her face. Only a second before the door slammed, the man had turned to see her. He knew she had seen him murder a man.

"I didn't die," she said. "No, thank goodness. I caught you just in time."

She fled back down the aisle toward the club car, unable to speak. Half-way to the next car she glanced over her shoulder. The door opened and the man in gray started down the aisle after her. With high heels and the swaying of the train, running was almost impossible.

Somewhere down in her throat, her voice had stuck. She couldn't utter a sound or cry for help. She could just run, while the other passengers hardly took notice.

He was right behind her as she reached the door to the next car. His hand closed over hers on the door knob. They were alone in the tiny space connecting the two cars and the roar of the train would drown any sound she could make even if she could find her voice.

Her heart pounded so hard that she could feel it in her ears and at the base of her throat, choking her. His hand was like a vice as he moved hers from the knob. She jerked around, facing him; seeing his face like a mask, his eyes expressionless, his thin lips drawn back from white teeth.

She had known what he would do even before he jerked open the outside door, but fear had rooted her to the spot. She knew how the white-faced man must have felt before he fell backward into space.

With his hands on her shoulders, he moved her backward toward the open door without speaking a word. Terrified, she found her voice at last and screamed. Her hand found and clutched the edge of the door as she heard a voice from somewhere.

"Let her go, Jackson."

The man spun around at the sound of the voice, lost his balance and fell toward the door dragging her with him. The rest was like a nightmare. Her grip on the door loosened and she was falling outward. She screamed again before she felt the hand on her arm pulling her back as the sleeve of her suit tore. The man in gray was still holding her sleeve as he fell. She came to, sitting in the club car with people crowding over her, exclaiming over her. She picked one face from the crowd.

"I didn't die?"

"No, thank goodness. I caught you just in time. I'm Lieutenant Blake, Miami police. We've been chasing that guy and the one he pushed off the train for weeks. We won't be bothered with them again. I'll get you something to drink, then we'll go somewhere and I'll tell you about it, privately."

She'd never again complain of a vacation without excitement. And romance?—well, Lieutenant Blake was good-looking and, he told her, unattached.

Ladino Clover Makes Good Poultry Range

Ladino is growing in popularity as a range feed for poultry because of its high vitamin A and B content. It also supplies protein and minerals, although not enough to meet the birds' requirements.

Second summer ladino will be better range than first-year and will provide much forage, poultry specialists report. They caution producers to avoid overstocking the range early in the season.

An acre of ladino will usually provide enough range for about 500 pullets.

A good practice is to use range shelters and move them regularly. By moving feeders and water fountains farther away from the brooder house and range shelters each day it will prevent the chickens from scratching bare spots in the pasture.

It is also important to keep the old chickens separate from the young, and follow a rotation plan that will put the flock on clean ground each year.

Ladino, of course, is only one of several grass and legume crops that can be used to help save feed and produce sturdy, thrifty birds.

To give you better telephone service—

We've tripled plant investment in just 10 years!

Good telephone service is not just a matter of connecting a new instrument for each household that wants one. More telephone equipment must be placed in service all along the line. More wire, more cable, more central office equipment, more toll lines, more employees—more of everything is required to expand telephone service.

Within the last 10 years General Telephone Company of Michigan has enlarged and improved the plant and equipment in back of the average telephone to the extent that plant investment has tripled—from $7,743,000 in 1943 to $23,509,000 this year.

The people whose savings built this plant expect a fair return on their investment. A fair return is essential to the continued improvement and enlargement of your telephone service.

Keeps its value better than any other car!

Used car dealers report that Fords return more of their original cost than any other car—
and there are 41 reasons why:

Take power. Ford's two high-compression engines are real leaders in their class. Ford's the only car in the low-price field to offer you the smooth power of a V-8 engine. And no other car in any field has so modern a Six.

Take build. Ford's one-piece Crestmark body gives you style-setting beauty with rugged "build" underneath. Where many other cars are bolted, Fords are welded hull-tight to keep out rust-causing weather and dirt.

Take ride. Ford's wonderful, new ride reduces front end road shock up to 80%. And Ford's new, more responsive spring and shock absorber action gives you the comfortable easy ride you want without gas-eating extra weight.

Take savings. Ford's economy-minded Automatic Power Pilot saves you money on every gallon of gas. It automatically adjusts carburetion, ignition and combustion to make every drop of gas ("regular" at that) work its heart out.

Take visibility. Ford gives you the "all-around" view you need in today's fast-moving traffic. A curved one-piece windshield, car-wide rear window and large "picture windows" all around make sure you have Full-Circle visibility.

Take drives. Only Ford in its field gives you a choice of a completely automatic drive, Fordomatic, the finest, most versatile automatic you can buy... fuel-saving Overdrive... or easy-shifting Conventional Drive.

Expert Predicts Good Dairy Year

The outlook for dairying in Michigan is an optimistic one for the coming year, says a Michigan State College agricultural economist.

Extension Specialist Dale E. Butz predicts that dairying is likely to be favorable relative to most other enterprises.

"Support prices probably will be lowered next winter," he points out, "but this will not make too much difference in price, since increased demand due to the population increase will nearly absorb the milk equivalent of products purchased by the government this year."

Admitting that the longer-time outlook for dairying is "colored" by the introduction of filled milk products, Butz believes the change there will not be as drastic as some have predicted.

He suggests that the increased fluid sales and the selling of non-fat dry milk will more than offset losses in outlets for fat. There will be a gradual shift in values placed on fat and non-fat solids with the latter taking the greater share of the milk price. This, Butz notes, will come with education and promotion as consumers realize the value of milk.

Butz looks for more emphasis to be placed on evening out the seasonal milk flow through pricing schemes and other means. Federal and state orders will be extended to nearly all fluid milk markets. Quality gradually will be raised so that nearly all milk is of bottling quality. And, Butz adds, the shift from farm-separated cream to the delivery of whole milk will continue.

"For the producer with an adequate size business, good management, good cows and proper equipment," concludes Butz, "the future is always bright. The producer with only three or four cows, inadequate equipment and high costs is in for a rough time."

Seedbed Paving Is New Process

The University of Illinois has experimented with a process of paving seedbeds with a thin layer of heat-absorbing asphalt to insure good seeding. The idea has been tested on blue grass, fescue, ryegrass, redtop, Korean lespedeza, and ladino clover, in addition to small grains.

The University reports that all stands came through in fine shape. The asphalt is a thin dry covering, less than one sixteenth of an inch thick, applied to the soil with ordinary sprayers. It was found to hold lime, fertilizer, seed and soil firmly in place during drenching rains, and also prevented washing out of the seed beds along waterways, banks and terrace outlets.

However, at the present time the treatment is a bit costly—better than $2,000 an acre. If and when the cost is reduced it may come into widespread use throughout the country.

Dairymen Can Solve Eating Problem by Mixing Water-Grain

If your cows take too much time to eat while they're being milked, you can do something about the situation, say dairymen at Michigan State College. The high producers that eat more grain are usually the big offenders in taking their time.

MSC dairymen report that you may be able to solve the problem by adding water to the grain mixture. That is what is being done experimentally with a Brown Swiss herd at the college. It works well. The cows have a lusty appetite for the grain—drinking it instead of lapping it up with the tongue.

Cows ate, (or "drank") the wet mixture in less than half the time they consumed the dry feed. And they let their milk down faster. As a result the Brown Swiss cows went through the milking parlor in much less time than formerly.

C. F. Huffman, N. P. Ralston and H. L. Dalton, who conducted the tests and timed the eating and drinking, report the cows that ate the wet mixture seemed more relaxed than others. As a consequence the animals let down their milk a fourth faster than cows eating dry grain. The faster the cows ate their grain, the faster they were milked out.

The dairymen tried various rates of water per pound of concentrate and found that the cows consumed the grain most rapidly when 1.5 pounds of water was added to the concentrate.

The researchers figure that a lot of time could be saved if a practical method of adding water to the grain can be found. They're trying several ideas.

Donna Mae Koenig Weds Paul LaFave

Miss Donna Mae Koenig of Saginaw and Paul J. LaFave of Gagetown were married Saturday, August 22, at 10:00 a. m. at St. Stephen's Church, Saginaw. Rev. Robert J. Pellitier was the officiating clergyman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Koenig of Saginaw and Mr. and Mrs. Hebert E. LaFave of Gagetown are the parents of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown fashioned of lace and nylon tulle with a cathedral train of lace over satin. The bodice of lace featured inserts of net illusion and a Peter Pan collar of lace. Her finger-tip veil of silk illusion was held in place by a cap of net trimmed with a cluster of pearl beads. Her bouquet was a cascade of roses, carnations and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Vern LaFave of Saginaw was matron of honor, Mrs. Patrick LaFave, Gagetown, and Miss Donna Jones of Saginaw were bridesmaids. All wore identical dresses and matching hats of white nylon net. The dresses featured a fitted bodice of white taffeta ending in a bustle bow. Colonial bouquets of red carnations were carried by both bridesmaids, while the matron of honor carried a colonial bouquet of red and white carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Vern LaFave, of Saginaw as best man and Ronald Koenig of Saginaw, brother of the bride, and Patrick LaFave of Gagetown were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Koenig chose a grey lace gown with pink and grey accessories. Mrs. LaFave, mother of the groom, chose a grey gown with black accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pink carnations.

The wedding breakfast was served at the McNiven Hotel in Frankenmuth for the attendants and immediate families.

Mrs. Douglas Don of Caro was soloist and organist. The reception was held at the Moose Club in Saginaw for 400 guests.

The bride chose for going away a cocoanut brown linen suit with matching brown accessories. After a trip through the Western states, they will make their home near Gagetown.

SHORT STORY

The Present

By Henry C. Suter

SINCE Saturday had come around once more, Henry's wallet in due course of events received its weekly quota of plasma. This always caused Henry to feel his tendencies leaning towards generosity. Some gift to gladden the little woman's heart.

Now, what shall he buy her? He pondered over and over, candy, a black nightgown, flowers, a black nightgown, some dainty toiletary, a black nightgown. Surely, that would be his gift, he finally decided.

—a black nightgown. Why hadn't he decided this at first? Since upon further consideration, Henry realized that candy is soon demolished, stockings run, flowers fade, but a black nightgown can be lasting—and since it was black—didn't even need to wash it.

Henry's heart began to beat a little faster now that the decision was made.

As Henry hid himself to the shopping center, he had a vision of the little woman clothed in its awesome texture, exotic, mystifying, appealing. He planned to be present at that effective moment, midnight would be that precise moment. Midnight, when the witches flit across the sky, and the moon even seems to be resting over the sleeping world.

Henry was looking into that same window of the Exclusive Linen Shoppe at the very gown he now intended to purchase, so enhancing, so revealing, it looked like a screen door with filigree upon its top.

At last she found words and tremblingly muttered, "I wouldn't be found dead in this shameful thing!"

He had no sooner entered, and declared his desire to give the little woman a present of some kind, when the saleslady suggested a black nightgown might be satisfactory. Henry agreed this would be quite practicable, not knowing that she had observed him eyeing such an article in the window. She also took what seemed to Henry a long time in gift-wrapping the package. It also seemed hours to him before he could get to the door.

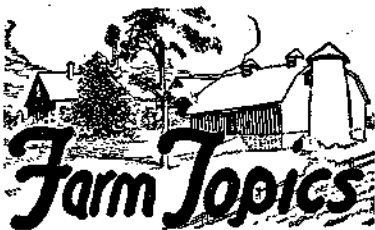

At last he reached home. The dear little woman was finishing the evening chores. Henry quietly slipped up to her side, kissed the nape of her neck and was about to pinch her cheeks. She turned and without a word, sniffed at Henry's breath, thinking he had been taking a shot or perhaps two—but found she had been wrong in her surmising. Of course she realized that it was payday for him, and well, you know how fellows get together over a glass on paydays. But Henry had opened his wallet and paid out into her hand calmly and collected his usual weekly allowance.

It was hours later, and those hours had proven much longer in their passing to Henry, than they had ever passed before. At last came that witching moment—the climax to all of Henry's waiting. The house was quiet. With a benign smile and a full heart of love, Henry brought forth the present and gave it to the little woman.

She was delighted at his consideration and paid a tribute to his thoughtfulness. She gayly unwrapped the silken bands that bound it, and hesitantly opened the cover. A look of astonishment crept across her face. To Henry it was that happy, happy hour for which he had waited so long. She held up the garment by its filmy filigree strands, gazing upon it in amazement.

At last she found words and tremblingly muttered: "I wouldn't be found dead in this shameful thing!"

It has been two years since, but Henry declares it has been the makings of a fine polishing rag for the old jalopy. It never shows the dirt and he is willing to bet his last dollar, just for vanity's sake that nobody else ever cleaned a car with a black nightgown.

Farm Pond Pay In Fun and Money

First Year Will Pay Construction Cost

Farm authorities have been preaching farm ponds to the nation's farmers for several years, pointing out that a never-ending water supply is one of the most important items in agricultural production.

Here is a case history of such a pond. Located in Wake county, North Carolina, it cost $240 to build. It is only seven-tenths of an acre large and is dependent entirely upon surface run-off for its water.

Within a year it provided the farmer with nice bass fishing, but more important it paid for itself. It provided water for spraying an orchard as well as watering 5,000 chickens during a severe drought.

Without the pond the owner would have been in severe difficulties. He could have hauled water for his chickens, no doubt, but he could never have hauled enough to spray his orchard.

In addition, the farm pond furnished a recreation spot for his family and friends with fishing and swimming.

This type of farm pond, if located near farm buildings, offers a water supply in case of fire. Add a hose and pump to the farm equipment and the farmer has a first class fire department in his back-yard.

A farm pond, agricultural experts report, is one of the best investments that can be made on a farm today.

Cattle Marketings Near Panic Stage

According to the U.S.D.A. marketing of cattle almost reached panic proportions last month. Slaughter was up 44 per cent from last year at major markets and marketing of calves was up 38 per cent over the same period in 1952.

At the beginning of 1953, farmers and ranchers had 93.7 million head of cattle and calves, according to estimates. A normal yearly slaughter from such a herd is about 38 per cent.

To date the rate of slaughter is about 24 per cent over the rate of slaughter for the corresponding period of 1952.

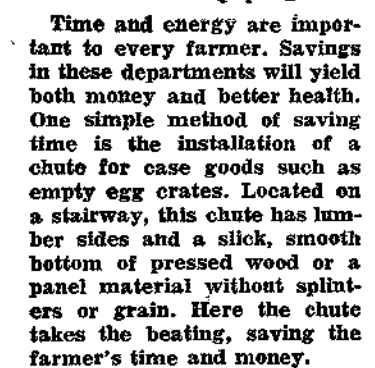

Although prices were considerably lower than last year and the year before, they could have been even lower if pork supplies had not been sharply reduced during the period and employment and consumer buying power were not at an all-time high level.

The U. S. D. A. has indicated in previous reports that the increased marketing trend is likely to continue through June.

Marketing Trend

According to reports from Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois, farmers in those states were feeding 781,000 head of calves in January as compared with 491,000 last year at the same time. This would indicate an increase in the marketings this fall.

Loading Chute

Time and energy are important to every farmer. Savings in these departments will yield both money and better health. One simple method of saving time is the installation of a chute for case goods such as empty egg crates. Located on a stairway, this chute has lumber sides and a slick, smooth bottom of pressed wood or a panel material without splinters or grain. Here the chute takes the beating, saving the farmer's time and money.

Age may affect a prize fighter's gait—but his gate continues to be as good as ever.

Livestock Producers Can Now Receive Special Loans

Special livestock loans, authorized by recent legislation, are now available to eligible farmers in this locality. It was announced this week by John McDurmon, supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration for Tuscola and Huron counties.

Purpose of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's new loans is to provide temporary credit to livestock producers to continue their operations, after suffering economic difficulties caused by the drop in cattle prices, etc.

In each locality, a livestock loan committee appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, considers applications.

Loans may be used to buy or produce feed, pay for grazing permits, rent farm buildings, pasture and feed crop land; replace, hire or repair farm machinery and equipment, build and repair fences, move livestock as to and from grazing places; repair or improve livestock and domestic water supplies, and pay essential living expenses and costs of maintaining farm and ranch buildings.

The trouble with many young folks today is exactly the same trouble old folks had when they were young.
