Community Club Fetes Local Athletes

Twenty-seven members of varsity teams at Cass City High School were royally entertained by Wally Webber, freshman football coach at the University of Michigan, and the Cass City Community Club Tuesday night at the school auditorium.

Coach Webber regaled the audience with humorous stories and stressed the importance of athletic endeavors in the school curriculum and told of the value of the necessity of team play for best results in contests.

From the Editor's Corner

Bob Darmody, 13, of Cass City won the annual race to see who spots the first robin in the village. He saw the arbor of spring at his home on Houghton Street Thursday morning, Mar. 11.

In answer to many questions and phone calls, we pass on to readers the latest information regarding Anrod, the screen factory which is purchasing the former Cass City Tractor Sales building and will move to Cass City.

At the present time, work is under construction on the floor of the building. Al Krueger, owner of the concern, has announced that he expects to be operating by the middle of April.

It is possible that the factory would have been here sooner, but Mr. Krueger was seriously ill earlier this year and was forced to be hospitalized for an operation.

Coach Irv Clasmann paid the price for victory after his cagers swept three games and the district class "B" basketball tournament last week.

After the game, his players turned on all the cold water in the showers and carried him in, clothes and all, for a complete dunking.

Coach Clasmann said early this week that he thinks that the dunking gave him a cold from his actions, as he recounted the incident, we believe that he figured it was worth it.

Three Victories Recorded in Title Trail

Cass City Wins District Tournament

Cass City was as good as they had to be in three district tournament class "B" games Thursday, Friday and Saturday and emerged as champions of the district for the second straight year.

Playing what many observers called their worst game of the season, the Red Hawks narrowly won their opener Thursday against North Branch, 63-60.

On Friday, the Hawks won easily from Caro, 58-45, and followed with their championship an early lead faded in the opening quarter when the Hawks were able to convert only three of 20 shots.

After the intermission, the Hawks proved again that the season's record sometimes means very little in tournament play.

In the third period, normally Cass City's worst all year, the Hawks netted 24 points and hit 11 of 23 shots. North Branch also connected with regularity and added 14 points to their total, although they trailed at the end of the period, 51-46.

The Hawks managed to hang on to their lead and the victory, despite North Branch's 14-12 edge in the final stanza.

Caro Game. Against Caro the Hawks were a different team. The Tigers opened the game with a surprise controlled ball offense in an effort to halt heavily favored Cass City.

The plan backfired as the Hawks combined close checking with good rebound work to forge into an early lead. Once ahead, they controlled the game and Coach Irv Clasmann was able to use his reserves during part of the third quarter and all but two minutes of the final period.

The Hawks led Caro at the half, 31-18, and were in front, 47-32, at the three-quarter mark.

The reserve squad almost held their own with the Caro varsity as they scored 11 points while the Tigers netted 13.

Cass City's scoring was well divided among 10 players. Among the starting five, none were below five points and Don Simmons was high with 11 points.

Bad Axe Game. Bad Axe, fresh from two upset defeats over Vassar and Sandusky, went into the finals primed to make it three in a row and a district title.

But the Hawks turned back their challenge. Bill Tuckey turned in his best game of the season in the victory. For the first time this season, the Hawks' best rebound man led the team in scoring. He netted 15 points and helped the Maroon and Grey capture their share of the rebounds from the taller Bad Axe quintet.

Cass City went into a 14-8 lead at the end of the first quarter and was ahead at the half, 25-20, but it was not until the end of the third quarter that they forged into the front by a comfortable margin and fans began to make plans for a trip to Flint.

Bad Axe used a drawn-in defense and the Hawks were unable to hit with their usual accuracy from outcourt. Their poor percentage in the first half kept the Hatchets in the game.

When Cass City went into the fourth period, they held the ball in the center of the floor and made the Huron County five come out to meet them.

When they did, Clara and Foy worked in for short lay-up shots that rapidly pulled Cass City farther ahead.

The Hawks' ability to cash gift tosses helped them to annex the Bad Axe game and the tournament. They hit 21 of 32 tosses in the championship tilt and posted a .675 average for the three games.

Officers Elected at Final Meeting of Craft-Study Club

Miss Grace Chisholm, who taught one and a half years at a Standard Oil camp near Maracaibo, Venezuela, entertained members of the Craft and Study Club at the final meeting of the organization this season, held in the Home Economics room at Cass City High School Monday.

She explained the climate and topography of the country and illustrated her lecture with slides.

According to Miss Chisholm, the climate in Venezuela varies from tropical heat to biting cold in the Andes Mountains.

The large majority of the population lives in the north and northeast section of the country. Here, Miss Chisholm said, the climate is mild and farming fairly productive.

Among the exports of the country, the speaker said, are oil, cocoa, gold and asphalt.

She said that the oil industry in North Venezuela is hampered by lack of labor, very hot climate and poor sanitation. In spite of the handicaps, Miss Chisholm said, the industry is growing.

Truck Loses 2,500 Pounds of Milk in Accident Friday

Slippery roads and snow cost the Michigan Producers Dairy of Sebewaing 2,500 pounds of milk when their tank car slipped into a ditch on M-53, near M-81, Friday, Mar. 5.

According to authorities at the dairy, a chain broke when rescuers attempted to pull the tanker back on the road.

When the chain broke, the truck turned over on its side. To right the vehicle, the men were forced to drain most of the milk out onto the ground.

It took wrecker service men about seven hours to put the truck on the road.

Sticker Campaigns in Cass City - Gagetown

Villages Elect New Officers

Sticker campaigns were run in both Cass City and Gagetown village elections Monday, as citizens of both communities flocked to the polls to elect candidates for various offices.

Sticker candidates in Gagetown failed to defeat candidates on the ballot. The results were reversed in Cass City, when C. R. Hunt was named a trustee with 134 sticker votes.

In Gagetown, Lawrence Cummings defeated sticker candidate Sherwood Rice, Jr., 57 to 33, and Hugh Corner failed in his bid for trustee when he received 28 votes from stickers.

In Cass City 164 persons voted. Complete results of the Cass City balloting were: president, James Bauer, 155 votes; clerk, Wilma Fry, 159 votes; treasurer, Wilma Fry, 157 votes; assessor, Harold Jackson, 158 votes, and trustees for two years, Leonard Damm, 149 votes, Ben Benkelman, 155 votes, Edward Baker, 27 votes, and Mr. Hunt, 134 votes.

In Gagetown, 96 voters went to the polls. Six ballots were spoiled.

The complete Gagetown results: president, Lawrence Cummings, 57 votes, and Sherwood Rice, Jr., 33 votes; clerk, Harry Kehoe, 89 votes; treasurer, Anna Kehoe, 90 votes; assessor, Fred Kenyon, 86 votes, and trustees for two years, William Hunter, 75 votes, Richard Burdon, 70 votes, Donald Wilson, 66 votes, and Hugh Corner, 28 votes.

Five Cases Tried In Circuit Court

Five cases were heard in the Tuscola County Circuit Court before Judge Arthur M. Bach Tuesday and Wednesday.

In the lone case Tuesday, the court granted a request by the Friend of the Court to modify the decree in the case of Florence Levis vs. Ray Levis.

Custody of two minor children was taken from Mrs. Levis and given to an aunt, Mrs. Walter Clouse, of Vassar.

The court ordered alimony of $20 weekly for care of the children and ordered each of the parents to pay $10 of the total weekly cost.

In the opening case Wednesday, the court granted a petition to dissolve the Detroit, Caro and Sandusky Railroad corporation. John R. Gray is the sole owner of the railroad corporation.

Roy Fleishmann was found guilty of contempt of court for failure to pay alimony. His sentence was suspended on his promise to pay $25 by March 15 and make regular payments of $25 plus $15 more until back alimony is paid.

Mrs. Jeannette McNinch was found guilty of contempt of court when she removed funds from a joint bank account while an injunction had been issued freezing the account.

She received a suspended sentence when she disclosed that the money had been transferred to another bank and not disposed of.

In the case of Theodore Dorics vs. Julia Dorics, temporary alimony was set at $34 weekly.

The court dismissed the case and denied a divorce decree of Vance Porter vs. Lorraine Porter when testimony revealed that both the plaintiff and defendant were equally guilty.

Completes Term

Board Commends Laurie

Grover Laurie, chairman of the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors, thanked the members of the board for their fine cooperation while he served at the head of the organization, at the one-day March meeting held Wednesday at the courthouse in Caro.

The meeting Wednesday marked the end of Mr. Laurie's service as chairman of the board. Members of the board commended him for his outstanding work during his term as chairman.

In other business, the board decided to take no action at this time on the blood procurement program in the county.

Bills for the month were okayed at the meeting. Supervisor Howard Slaughter from Tuscola Township is ill in a Saginaw hospital and did not attend the meeting.

The meeting was originally scheduled to be held Friday, but weather forced a postponement until Wednesday.

Elect Officers for New Corporation Wednesday Night

Members of the board of directors of the Cass City Development Corporation elected officers for the year in a meeting held Wednesday evening at Brinker Lumber Company in Cass City.

President and chairman of the board of the corporation is Clifford Croft. Other officers are: vice-president, Joe Riley; Herbert Ludlow, secretary; James Gross, treasurer, and Harry Little and Luke Tuckey, custodians of land and property.

In addition to electing officers, the group started to formulate bylaws for the organization. When these are completed and other necessary incorporation work is complete, the work will be presented at a general meeting of stockholders for approval.

Girl Scouts Erect Window Displays

Girl Scouts and their leaders have erected displays depicting their work at Hulien's and McConkey's Jewelry in Cass City as part of an observance of Girl Scout Week.

The windows have examples of the girls' handiwork, uniforms, motto and flags. Each has numerous cutouts showing scouts in their various uniforms.

Maps in the displays show where scouting is active today.

In the display at McConkey's, the scouts have erected girl scout and American flags. The girl scout uniform is predominant in both exhibits.

Storage Warehouse Roof Collapses Here

Heavy snow on the roof of the buildings formerly occupied by Leppke Distributing Company in southwest Cass City caused a section of the roof to collapse this week.

The building was housing farm machinery equipment belonging to the H. O. Paul Company in Cass City. Unofficial estimates put the damage at about $1,000.

To the Voters of Tuscola County: I wish to announce that I will be a candidate for re-election to the office of County Treasurer on the Republican ticket at the primaries to be held August 3, 1954. Your support will be greatly appreciated. Arthur M. Willis.—Adv.

Cass City Grads Finish Courses at MSC Friday

Besides the area youths named last week who graduated from a Michigan State College short course, two other boys from the area were also among the graduates.

The two boys, graduates from Cass City High School, are: Jack Gallagher and Archie McLachlan.

Mr. Gallagher completed a course in dairy products after attending MSC on a scholarship given by the Pinney State Bank.

Mr. McLachlan has completed a two-year course in general agriculture. He was the toastmaster at the banquet preceding the graduation exercises.

In addition, Mr. McLachlan has been selected to receive the Caulkins scholarship for a course in general agriculture at MSC. He was selected for the scholarship by the dean of the agriculture department of the college. If he accepts, he will enter the school as a full-time student next fall.

State Police said Mrs. Husband lost control of her car when she drove close to the ditch to avoid an approaching car.

She is suffering from bruises of the left arm and chest and shock, according to hospital authorities.

Experts to Fight 'Black Bean' Threat

War has been declared on the "black bean" threat to Michigan's 90 per cent share of the nation's white navy bean business, reports Alfred P. Ballweg, Tuscola County agricultural agent.

A team of Michigan State College specialists, headed by Dr. Kenyon T. Payne, head of the farm crops department, and including Dr. Eldon E. Down, developer of the famed Michelite bean, has offered its aid.

Dr. Down, whose Michelite beans are grown by an estimated 90 per cent of the bean farmers, thinks the "intruder" that is discoloring beans may have developed from a cross with a garden variety grown nearby.

The slight discoloration slips by some growers and may even escape the eagle eyes at the elevators, according to C. L. Taylor of Saginaw, Michigan Bean Company field superintendent. But it shows up at the canneries with a distinct purplish or "black" color on cooking.

The mixtures have been found in a few well-defined areas, according to Dr. Payne. He said that one cannery had rejected several carloads of beans because of the off-colored mixtures.

The Michigan Crop Improvement Association also is very interested in the situation, according to Ballweg, because they are certain growers could wipe out the "black beans" by using certified seed.

Meetings are being scheduled throughout the bean growing area, reports Ballweg, to impress growers with the seriousness of the threat and the value of checking every field and every bag.

Now Is the Time to Cull Laying Flocks

Poultrymen with laying flocks have a big incentive to cull now, reminds Quentin R. Ostrander, assistant Tuscola County agricultural agent.

Within the past month, he points out, Grade A eggs have declined in price at Detroit by five cents a dozen, while at the same time the price of heavy hens has gone up slightly.

Extension Poultryman J. M. (Mac) Moore of Michigan State College also emphasizes the necessity of culling. "Every farm flock in Michigan," he asserts, "could have ten per cent of the birds removed without lowering production."

Moore emphasizes: "There are too many hens in flocks that are boarding free—they eat the farmers' feed without paying for it in egg production."

It's mighty hard to stay on top of the heap if altitude makes your head swim.

Better start saving for the vacation trip right now or you'll never get away with it.

Program Slated to Improve Pasture

A county-wide pasture improvement program is slated to start this year for farmers in Tuscola County, announced Quentin R. Ostrander, assistant Tuscola County agricultural agent.

A meeting to explain the program is scheduled to be held in the courthouse in Caro on the evening of March 18 at 8:00 o'clock, Ostrander said.

Present for the meeting will be Milton Erdman, farm crops specialist from Michigan State College. Erdman will discuss different pasture improvement plans and how farmers may participate in the pasture contest.

According to Ostrander, any farmers interested in enrolling in the pasture improvement program should plan to attend this meeting as it will be necessary to set up neighborhood groups for the purpose of judging pasture programs.

SHORT STORY

Masquerade

By Harold Gluck

THE dining car steward was doing his best to keep his temper from exploding.

"You can't go into this diner," he insisted.

"But I don't want any food or service," corrected the young lady. "All I want to do is to go inside and speak to one of the men!"

The steward's orders were to keep all people out of the dining car until the train stopped at Hopeville Junction. But how do you handle a determined miss?

Finally she solved matters in her own feminine manner. She pushed him aside and hurried down to the last table.

"Oh, Fred," she exclaimed, "It is so good to see you!"

Fred Larack looked quickly at the man to whom he was handcuffed.

"Sit down for a minute, Elsie," he said. "You haven't changed a bit in the past five years."

"And you look like a million dollars," complimented the girl. "You always wanted to do something thrilling and dangerous. And now you are with the government. What branch?"

"Sorry, Elsie," replied Fred Larack, "but that is something confidential. How are things back home?"

"Mrs. Wilson remarried. And guess to whom? John Peterson. Remember him? He ran the gasoline station at the edge of town. They tore down the Madison House and built a new library on the lot."

The handcuffed man sitting next to the window was becoming a bit fidgety. Fred Larack looked at him, hesitated, and then spoke.

"This is Mr. Weigand. Killer Weigand they called him in the newspapers. He is going to the penitentiary."

"Please to . . ." and then Elsie stopped.

"Tell me something about yourself," Fred said in effort to break the tension that was developing.

"After we broke our engagement," said Elsie, "I worked for Mr. Fingean in his law office."

"I don't notice any marriage ring. Still single?"

"There will only be one man in my life, and you know who he is," replied Elsie.

Elsie hurried out of the dining car a moment later and the steward rushed up to the table.

"Sorry it happened, Mr. Demarest. Before I knew what was taking place she had reached the table."

"Forget it," said the government agent. "No harm was done."

The steward went back to his post and there was silence for a few minutes.

"Thanks a lot for the masquerade," said Fred Larack. "I don't think you know what this means to me. Just one person in the world I wouldn't want to hurt."

"Well, you can repay me a bit," emphasized Frank Demarest, "if you make one thing clear to me. If a fellow has a girl like that, how does he get mixed up with counterfeits?"

"I wanted a lot of money in a hurry," explained Fred, "and like a lot of other guys, thought there was an easy way to it."

"Suppose you had remained in that small town and married Elsie," asked Frank Demarest. "Do you think now you would be happier?"

"My right arm to turn back the clock. Is that answer enough?" The train was slowing down. The two men arose from the table and waited until the train stopped.

A group of armed men surrounded the two. And Frank Demarest transferred his prisoner to another federal agent.

"Have any trouble with him?" asked one of the guards.

"Thank you as a lamb." They put Fred Larack into a car and sped away. Frank Demarest went to the waiting room to wait for a return train. Elsie met him.

"Thanks for everything, Mr. Demarest."

"He'll never know we pre-arranged it," replied the federal agent. "Nor will he ever know you gave us the lead that got him."

A smile always passes for more than its face value.

Personality is the name we give our eccentric ways.

Deadline Prolonged

At a meeting of the 4-H and FFA fat stock committee last Friday, March 5, it was agreed to prolong the deadline for steers to be on feed until April 1. This applies only to the show and sale program to be held at the Caro Livestock Auction Yards in September. It was felt that such short notice had been given about the coming sale that the extended deadline would allow more steers to be secured.

George C. MacQueen, county 4-H club agent, reports that a good deal of interest has been in evidence already.

It is a noticeable fact that many a so-called self-made man knocked off work too soon.

SHORT STORY

Beautiful Thief

By F. L. Rowley

DONALD gazed dreamily across the wide field of sweet-smelling red clover.

Donald sighed. It was a deep, troubled sigh; more like a groan of resignation than a sigh.

A boy of ten shouldn't have a care in the world—especially on such a beautiful day.

Bill Beardon, the hired man, put down the pail he was carrying, wiped his perspiring brow and strolled over to the gate upon which Donald was perched.

"What's up, pardner?" said Bill. "Plenty," said Donald bitterly. "Granny lost her glasses early this morning and she thinks I took them. What would I want with her old glasses?"

"Well," Bill said quietly, "you do collect treasures, Donald."

"You think I'm a thief too, don't you Bill?"

"Gosh no, pardner. I think you're a budding scientist. Just to prove I'm on your side, tell me what I'll help you catch this thief. How's that?"

"You mean it? Gee Bill, you're swell. We'll be real detectives. Then maybe I'll get my bike."

"Your what?"

"My bike," Donald repeated.

"Dad said he'd get me a bicycle for my birthday if I am a good boy while he's away. You know I'll never get that bike if everybody thinks I took Granny's glasses, and Mommy's watch last week, and that piece for your camera, and—"

"Whoa boy! Take it easy. You know I wouldn't tell your father even if I thought you took my filter. After supper you and I are going to get our heads together. We'll catch this crook."

Donald felt better. With gratitude in his heart he followed Bill into the barn to see if he could help the old man. Bill didn't need any help. Donald walked across the yard, then around the house. He decided to look for footprints under Granny's window. The thief, whoever he was, had taken Granny's glasses from the nightstand near her bed.

Not a single clue to be found. Donald sat on a pine stump to think. It was cool on this side of the house. A light breeze carried the sound that city people often mistake for the hoot of an owl—the plaintive cry of a mourning dove. Donald listened. He could see a frisky blue-jay bouncing about among some of the pines.

Then as Donald watched in genuine surprise the tricky little blue-jay darted straight at the house to disappear through an open window. Donald could have shouted for joy. Instead he sat very still and quiet on the pine stump. Sure enough a minute later the thief emerged from the open window with a gleaming object in his bill. Donald wisely remained where he was. His eyes followed the charming thief to its nest in the pine grove. A few minutes later Donald was climbing the tree, hoping—hoping.

And there it was! The whole treasure, his mother's watch, Granny's glasses, and Bill's filter. Donald wasn't sure just why, but getting his hands on that filter gave him more pleasure than anything else. Bill's faith in him was justified. The cache contained many other items. Most of these hadn't even been missed by the Campbells.

The following day Donald's father returned from his buying trip. Donald was trying to figure out just where in the wagon his bicycle might be when he saw Bill and his father entering the pine grove with guns on their arms. He knew at once what they were up to.

"No! No! No!" cried Donald racing after them. "Don't shoot my blue-jay! Don't shoot him—please!"

"He must be destroyed. He's a no good thief," said Donald's father, frowning.

"Please don't shoot him! I'll do extra chores. I'll be good for a month. Why—why, you don't even have to get me a bike."

Donald's mother heard his last remark. She put her arm about his shoulders. She looked sternly at the two would-be hunters. "You wouldn't shoot the poor little thing would you?" she said. "It's a beautiful thief."

Mr. Campbell looked sheepishly at Bill. Bill was scratching his head. "Shucks!" grumbled Mr. Campbell. "Your bike's in the wagon, Donald."

Folks who sit around waiting for an opening are very apt to end up in the hole.

SOLID FOUNDATION

The main advantage with starting at the bottom is that you have something solid to fall back on.

Farm Mishaps Topic At Health Confab

Ways to prevent farm and home accidents and sanitation problems in "boom" towns will be among subjects discussed at the Third Health Conference of the University of Michigan's School of Public Health, scheduled for March 23-25.

Over 60 public health officials and specialists also will consider fluoridation of drinking water, tuberculosis and chronic disease, all problems common to the public health field.

Participants and guests will include Governor Williams, State Senators Creighton R. Coleman of Marshall and Elmer R. Porter of Blissfield, State Health Commissioner Dr. Albert E. Heustis and U-M President Harlan Hatcher. Other such conferences were held in 1946 and 1949.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Michigan's 1954 Legislature, now heading into the home stretch, has had its full share of hot issues.

Hardly a week has gone by since the Jan. 13 opening date that a highly controversial subject hasn't popped up.

First it was a bill to change the name of Michigan State College to Michigan State University. Although a non-political issue, it put many lawmakers on the spot. They breathed a sigh of relief when the bill was sent back to committee for "more study."

On the heels of the MSC-MSU controversy came a hot political issue—Fair Employment Practices (FEPC) legislation. Democrats tried to discharge the House State Affairs Committee from further consideration of the bill but Republicans blocked the move.

When shouting died down, everyone thought FEPC was out of the way for another year. Next day, two more FEPC bills were introduced, one in each chamber of the Legislature. Eventually, the Senate bill was reported out to the floor, and the same arguments heard all over again.

As one Capitol observer put it: "It is just like seeing an old movie over again. The only trouble is that I usually like to wait a little while before sitting through a repetitious performance."

Biggest battle was fought over another non-political but highly controversial bill—one that was reported out after most members gave it up for dead.

In an 11th hour move, the House Liquor Committee tossed out the McCune bill which would censor beer, wine and liquor on television. It immediately pushed unemployment legislation into the background and temporarily took its place in front of the lights.

Tremendous pressure was put on the Liquor Committee to report out the bill. Chairman Edward A. Borgman (R-Grand Rapids) received upward of 1,000 letters a day from persons supporting the bill. Other committee members averaged 500 a day.

When the bill's title appeared on the calendar, House members braced themselves for a flood of mail. The dikes broke!

The McCune bill had support of temperance groups, better known as "dry", and they went all out. It was their first solid issue in several years. If nothing else, the bill gave "drys" a chance to strengthen their organization.

Television stations were slow to move against the bill but once they did, it turned into a battle royal.

Smack in the middle were 100 members of the House.

"If I vote for this bill, I'll lose votes back home," one member moaned. "And if I vote against it, I'll lose votes. I can't win. And this is election year, too!"

Most others felt the same way.

As a result of the MSC-MSU, FEPC, WCTU-TV controversies many lawmakers are wondering whether it is wise to allow any subjects except financial matters to be taken up during the short (or even year) sessions.

There is an increasing amount of talk of limiting even year sessions to a few subjects such as appropriations, taxes and certain judicial questions.

Before 1952, only special sessions were held in even years and subjects taken up were limited by the Governor. At first, everyone thought annual sessions would be a very good thing. But now there are many people wondering.

More and more people at the Capitol are predicting that Gov. Williams will seek a fourth term. Williams, while keeping Republicans guessing on his plans, will find little consolation if he reads about former Michigan governors who tried for a fourth term.

Michigan has had three governors who served three terms: Gov. John S. Barry (1842-46 and 1850-51); Fred M. Warner (1905-11); and Alexander J. Groesbeck (1919-27).

Barry, a Democrat, tried for a fourth term in 1854—the year Michigan elected its first Republican governor—and again in 1860, and lost both times.

Groesbeck went for a fourth term in 1926 and lost in the GOP primary to Gov. Fred W. Green, and again in 1930 but was defeated in the primary by Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker by 4,161 votes.

If he is re-elected, Rep. Andrew Bolt (R-Grand Rapids) is favored to succeed Rep. William S. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) as speaker of the House. Broomfield will give up his House seat to run for the state Senate in Oakland County.
