

From the Editor's Corner

Memory is a fickle thing. After printing the item about the Schust bakery last week, several older residents reported their recollections of the concern.

Mrs. O. W. Nique says that the Schust bakery was never at the telephone office, but was in the building where Sommers' bakery is today. After the bakery left town, Mrs. Nique said, the building was used as a bicycle shop.

Manuel Krapp and Arthur Steward reported that they remember the bakery at the telephone building. Mr. Steward said his parents bought bread there and Mr. Krapp reports that the building was a drugstore before it was used as a bakery.

Although he doesn't remember the bakery, an interesting sidelight on the concern was furnished by Art Atwell. The Schust family moved from Cass City to Saginaw and established a bakery in the larger city. They prospered and grew until they were bought out by the Sunshine Biscuit Company. The Schust family took stock in the Sunshine Company and today a descendant of the family, Ralph Schust, is near the top of the concern.

4-H Club Members Receive Honors

Three Tuscola County 4-H Club members received honors at the 4-H Club Week program just concluded. For the first time in known history the county will be represented by two style revue delegates at the State 4-H Show in August at Michigan State College. Theresa Werdeeman, Cass City, and Ella Mae Rossman, Kingston, did such a splendid job of styling the garments they made for their clothing project this past winter, that they were given the nod to return to compete for state honors. In all, 39 girls will represent the Lower Peninsula of Michigan, competing with delegates from the Upper Peninsula.

Bill Pike, Fairgrove, was selected to become a member of the State 4-H Service Club. Members were taken into this group during an impressive candle-lighting ceremony Tuesday evening of the program. This is an outstanding honor for any 4-H club member. At this same ceremony Mrs. Preston Karr, Cass City, was taken into the leaders' group of the State 4-H Service Club. Mrs. Karr accompanied the girls as their chaperone.

A delegation of nine girls, eight boys, Mrs. Karr and Albert Bauer, Reese, as chaperones, and Miss Jean E. Gillies, county home demonstration agent, and George C. MacQueen, county 4-H club agent, represented the county at this event. The group joined the Huron County delegation in Caro and shared their bus for the trip. On the return trip, a picnic lunch was enjoyed at a roadside park near East Lansing.

Groups to Study Craft Work

Aluminum, paint and acid will provide a summer activity for several home demonstration groups in Tuscola County. Sixteen leaders gathered at the home of Mrs. Theron Bush of Unionville last week to receive final instruction in the etching of aluminum trays. The group had met the previous week to select designs and prepare their trays under the direction of Mrs. Bush. The etching process was demonstrated at this second meeting and each lady completed a sample tray. These leaders will schedule similar meetings during the summer months to instruct their individual groups in the craft.

Mrs. Bush has been interested in etching aluminum trays for several years and has completed about 25. All but four have been used as gifts.

Former Teacher Slated at Rotary

"Silicones, What They Are—What They Do" will be explained by Mr. Delmar C. Youngs of the Dow Corning Corporation at the Cass City Rotary Club luncheon on Tuesday, July 13.

During his talk the speaker will demonstrate various properties of silicones and he will describe some of the successful commercial applications now being made with Dow Corning Silicones.

Mr. Youngs, who is supervisor of the Silastic Experimental Laboratory at the Dow Corning Corporation, taught industrial arts at Cass City High School from 1934-1938. He joined Dow Corning in 1945 after having served as supervisor of the B-24 Army Mechanics School for the Ford Motor Company during World War II.

Youngs served first as supervisor of the Resin and Grease section of the Product Development Laboratory before moving to his present position with Dow Corning. They applied for their first naturalization papers in Flint in 1952.

Sgt. Smith said that he has been sent to Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., for training. At the time of his enlistment, he had completed his junior year at Cass City High School.

10,000 Broilers in Ten Weeks Aim of Adam Deering Family

It takes 45 tons of feed, good management and good luck to raise 10,000 chicks for 10 weeks to be sold as broilers on today's market, according to Adam Deering, Tuscola County's largest raiser of broilers.

At his farm, on the eastern edge of Gageton, Mr. Deering is raising his first flock of White American chickens for the broiler market.

To raise the 10,000 chicks to broiler size (three and one half pounds) takes 10 weeks and an investment of $14,500 not including labor and feed.

The chicks themselves cost $1,650 and facilities to handle them eat up the rest of the investment.

For the large flock, Mr. Deering erected a 40x200 foot brooder house that has 8,000 square feet of floor space.

Inside the brooder are four 175,000 BTU gas space heaters with air conditioning attachments that hold the room at constant temperatures.

Nearly all feeding and watering is done automatically. Feed is tossed into a large hopper which is connected to an endless chain that moves throughout the building. Water is placed in containers automatically, but some hand watering is done each day, Mr. Deering said.

Mr. Deering is off to a flying start in the first three weeks of raising the chicks. His loss has been remarkably low. The state record for loss in the first week for a flock the size of Deering's was 57 birds. The Deering family lost just 42 in the first week.

The rate of gain for the chicks has been good. While the Chronicle reporter was at the farm, three chicks were picked at random and weighed one and one quarter pounds each.

In their short life of 10 weeks, the chicks will never leave the brooder house. Each of the chicks will consume about nine pounds of feed before reaching about three and one half pounds when sold.

Mr. Deering said the chickens will go to Detroit, Zeeland and St. Louis markets. They will be sold live weight and the family estimates that they will sell for about 27 cents a pound.

The Deerings buy all of the feed for their operation—the largest in Tuscola County and one of the largest in the Thumb area.

Although it takes only 10 weeks to complete the growing cycle, Mr. Deering said it will be possible to raise only three or four sets of chickens each year.

After each set of broilers is dispatched to market, the brooder house must be cleaned, disinfected and allowed to air for one or two weeks.

When he entered the broiler business a few weeks ago, Mr. Deering entered a business that he always wanted to be in.

Before purchasing his first flock, he took short courses in poultry management from poultry pharmaceutical concerns.

Stuart Little will receive the "God and Country" award at the Presbyterian Church Sunday for compiling 168 hours of service stenciling Sunday bulletins, annual reports, posters and other services and showing evidence of Christian and character growth.

According to Rev. Melvin R. Vender, pastor, who will present the award, Stuart enrolled and began work for the award March 12, 1951.

Rev. Vender reports that he had been punctual and dependable while he was serving the church and followed an exacting schedule.

The award is granted by the church and approved by the national council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The award is one of the highest in scouting. Scouts who earn the award are authorized to wear the "God and Country" emblem over the left breast pocket at the left of the Eagle Scout badge. If the Eagle Scout badge has not been earned, the emblem is centered above the flap of the left breast pocket.

Rev. Vender said that Roger Little, brother of Stuart, received the award four years ago.

Evans Reunion Held Monday

Women of Farm Bureau "Adopt" Korean Child

The Farm Bureau women through local community organizations and the Tuscola County women's committee have sent $120 to the "Save the Children" Foundation for the sponsorship of a Korean youth named Il Wong Im, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyo Shin Im, Seoul, Korea.

Il Wong is eight years old, has two brothers and a sister and is enrolled in the third grade of a primary school. He likes to play games and is good in drawing.

He has hopes of becoming a doctor and works hard in school to obtain good grades.

He and his family live in North Korea and fled south after the Communist regime was established in the north. After the war broke out, their house, including all of the properties and belongings, was burned. They took refuge southward and were admitted to a refugee camp. After the conclusion of the cease-fire talks, his father returned to Seoul and pitched a tent for a home. He has no job but sells his labor on the street and gets a little money from time to time.

His income is far from sufficient to support a family of five including himself.

The payment for the sponsorship is to cover the cost of mailing and handling quarterly packages to the youngster for a year's time. Packages are sealed and prepared in New York and are not opened until they reach the child. The Federation guarantees the safe delivery and good condition of each package. Packages are packed to include commodities which would be essential to the child at the time of arrival. Such items include soap, toothbrush, toothpaste, blankets, material for clothing, ready-made clothes, shoes, notebooks, pencils and playthings, including a ball and coloring books.

Mr. McDonald showed pictures of the country, people and well-known battle sites in the area.

The slides illustrated McDonald's interesting commentary about the country and the American forces in Korea.

New officers for the Rotary Club were in charge of the meeting for the first time Tuesday. New President Fritz Neitzel received the gavel from Bob Schuckert, retiring prexy of the organization.

Parsch's Store will open Thursday afternoons.

After Death-free Holiday

Two Die in Wrecks On Area Highways

Although Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties all escaped a fatal traffic accident over the holiday week end, accidents on Tuesday took two lives.

Richard C. Wass of Lansing was killed in an accident on M-25, west of Wisner Tuesday when the convertible he was riding in swerved out of control and rolled over.

The car, driven by Robert Farver of Saginaw, turned over in the middle of a straight highway after swerving in the middle of the road.

Farver suffered a fractured jaw and right arm, broken ribs and cuts on the face.

A third passenger in the auto, George Sheridan of East Lansing, suffered a fractured skull in the wreck.

In Sanilac County Tuesday, David T. Spencer of Detroit skidded on the wet pavement near Marlette, hit a tree and was killed.

Spencer was returning from a fishing trip at Port Austin that he had delayed until after the holidays because of dangerous road conditions.

ABA Directors Meet Tuesday

Tuscola County dairymen, board of directors and inseminators of artificial breeders' associations of Michigan Artificial Breeders' Cooperative, held a clinic on June 29, according to Quentin R. Ostrander, assistant county agricultural agent at Caro.

Representatives of five cooperative organizations active in the county from Cass City, Kingston, Millington, Vassar and Unionville ABA's were present for the discussion.

Plans were made to have an exhibit representing these organizations at the Tuscola County Fair.

A review of the value of rich inheritance proved sires and a demonstration of hereditoscope was made by Extension Dairymen A. C. Baltzer, Michigan State College. This demonstration brought out the fact that the genetic values of milk and per cent test are beneficially accumulated in dairy cattle when a sequence of proved sires is used as offered by Michigan Artificial Breeders. Such an accumulation of rich milk values finally increases the profit in the dairy business, said Professor Baltzer.

Bad Axe Grain Co. Fire Clearly Visible in Village

Flames clearly visible in Cass City devoured four buildings of the Bad Axe Grain Company Tuesday night at 11 o'clock.

Destroyed were two elevators and two warehouses within less than two hours, causing damages unofficially estimated at over $250,000.

Fortunately, grains and material in the buildings were at the lowest point in the year as the company was in the midst of an inventory period prior to the wheat harvest.

Fred Milligan, who lives northeast of Cass City, was in the village at the time of the fire and saw the flames. Thinking it might have been his barn, he rushed towards home. After finding it was not on his property, he followed the flames to the village.

Fire departments from Bad Axe, Harbor Beach, Pigeon, Kinde, Uby and Elkton prevented the fire from reaching the bean elevator to the west, another elevator to the east and the company's offices to the south.

The four burned buildings were erected about 35 years ago by the company. The bean elevator, which was saved, was built about 50 years ago.

We're Ready For Tomorrow

Yesterday's railroads made today's America possible.

Without today's railroads tomorrow's America hardly would be possible.

Yesterday's railroads enabled America to become a single nation spanning a continent—our amazing America of today.

Tomorrow's America will be as dependent upon railroads as it was yesterday. A greater America is unlikely without railroads capable of caring for its vast, vital, growing traffic needs.

Today these railroads are preparing for tomorrow's task. They have poured billions into their plant—no adaptable mechanical, technical or scientific detail that can make them adequate for the nation they must serve has been left out.

America and its railroads are marching hand-in-hand to meet tomorrow.

The cost of next year's milk production will depend on the quality hay put up now, either as dry hay or as green silage. Here are some do's and Don't's on hay crop silage:

- Do (1) Put up hay crop silage for summer drought-time feeding. A fast growing practice, (2) If you feel that you must use a conditioner, consider sodium metasilphite, a powder easy to apply. Will cost around $1.00 a ton of silage. (3) Put in the bottom one fourth of the silo dryer then the rest—seepage comes from weight above squeezing out the moisture. About 10% of the seepage moisture is food nutrients. (4) For an emergency crop, sow peas and oats. One bushel each. Ensilage when oats are in late-milk, early-dough stage—pods of peas % developed. Tried out at MSC in 1953.

- Don't (1) Don't put the crop in too wet or too dry for wintertime feeding. Use the squeeze test. (2) Don't wilt the crop for summer feeding. And cut it fine. (3) Don't depend on commercial "bacteria" preparations. (4) Don't add salt—enough to do any preservative good makes silage too salty to eat.

Good roughage is the basis of economical milk production. Good quality alfalfa-brome hay and good quality corn silage, plus home-grown grains, will meet the needs of practically all of our dairy cows in Michigan. Only exceptional producers need extra proteins.

Leafhoppers can make a dent in second alfalfa cuttings, reminds Ray Janes, Michigan State College extension entomologist, but this recent wet weather makes it harder to put your finger on the value of leafhopper control. The bugs are expected later than usual this year. They are worse in hot dry weather and do more damage to alfalfa on sandy soils.

If past experience and present conditions indicate a need to spray, Janes recommends using a 25 per cent methoxychlor emulsion. The ideal time is when alfalfa is 6 inches tall and you should use 2 pints of emulsion per acre—with at least 20 gallons of water to spread it. If alfalfa is 8 to 10 inches tall, use 3 pints of emulsion per acre.

Leafhoppers suck the juice out of alfalfa leaves and inject a toxic substance that turns them yellow and cuts quality and yields.

Don't pasture sprayed areas for seven days, cautions Janes.

Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Walters farm about 90 acres in St. Clair County. They are general farmers with a milking herd of 12 cows. They also keep 200 to 500 laying hens, and raise 500 broilers a year.

The Walters keep their farm freezer packed with meats, fruits and vegetables, either home-grown or purchased. Mrs. Walters says she doesn't know how they would get along without it. She finds freezing easier than canning, and loves the convenience of always having tasty food at her finger tips.

You, too, can enjoy better meals and extra convenience the year round with a farm freezer. For full information see your Edison Home service Advisor.

Edison Home Service Advisor, left, shows Mrs. Desmond Walters the latest technique in wrapping foods for freezing. The Walters' 20-cubic-foot freezer is always well-stocked with good things to eat.

Good wiring is always important. So always ask your Farm Service Advisor for his recommendations.

You can bet your bottom dollar on it.

Come next year, or the year after that, you'll be seeing on other cars some of the styling features you see in Buick today.

We expect it. It has happened before. And there is good reason for it—popular appeal.

Take, for example, the car model shown here.

We call it a Riviera. Most people call it a "hardtop."

When Buick introduced this body type in 1949, it was a completely new thing. And it was an instant hit.

Today, Buick "hardtops" outsell all other models in the line. It's the styling America has taken to its heart.

So today you find that every major car maker has his own version of this Buick original. (And we can't blame them a bit. They know a good thing when they see it.)

Maybe you've noticed other such borrowings from Buick.

The diagrammatic sketch shown here lists some of the Buick advances that are now reflected in the styling of other cars—or will be soon.

For you can be sure that the great panoramic windshield first shown by Buick this year will be copied. It's too good to pass up.

And you can be sure that the full rear-wheel cutout now on every 1954 Buick Riviera and Convertible will show up elsewhere in the future. It's a sports-car touch that hits a really popular note.

We're sure of such things.

We're sure because the tomorrow-styled Buick of today seems to be just what people want. Because Buick sales are soaring. Because Buick now outsells every other car in America except two of the so-called "low-price three."

So to you we say—why wait another day to see and drive a new Buick? It's the beauty of the year. It's the buy of the times. And it's a wonderful way to head up the parade.

Drop in this week for a demonstration, won't you?

Fulcher - Kritzman Wedding June 12

Before an altar banked with white gladioli, palms and candelabra, Cleo Ilene Fulcher and Hazen Robert Kritzman were united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony June 12 in the Shabbona Methodist Church. Rev. Louis Caister performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fulcher of Decker. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hazen Kritzman, also of Decker.

The bride selected a floor length gown of Chantilly lace over satin featuring a fitted bodice with a scalloped stand-up collar forming a sweetheart neckline. A pleated panel of nylon tulle down the front of the full skirt formed a redingote effect.

A crown of illusion, trimmed with sequins, secured her fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried white gladioli with lilies of the valley. She wore a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Shirley Kritzman, the groom's sister, was maid of honor. She chose a mist green, taffeta, floor length gown, featuring a fitted bodice with an off-the-shoulder neckline. She wore a matching bardeau and carried yellow gladioli with lilies of the valley.

Keith E. Fulcher, brother of the bride, was best man. Leland Fulcher, brother of the bride, and Dean Kritzman, brother of the groom, were ushers.

Mr. Donald Borg was vocalist and Mrs. Borg, pianist.

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a navy blue dress with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a two piece forest green dress with white accessories. Her corsage was also of white carnations.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Evergreen Township School auditorium. Yellow rose buds decorated the bride's table, which was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake.

After a Northern Michigan honeymoon, the couple will reside in Saginaw.

SHORT STORY

Dancing Slippers

By F. L. Rowley

MYRNA HUNTER was a dilly. At least every man in Hillcrest thought so. Even the women, under pressure, had to admit it. No one had ever heard of Myrna winning any quiz contest, but a girl just can't have everything.

Curly Ellis and I were chatting quietly in his little shoe store one afternoon when the place was brightened up considerably by Myrna's coming in for a pair of slippers. Dancing slippers, they had to be of the latest gold-tinted leather.

"These'll catch you a husband in no time," said Curly jokingly as he held up a pair of sparkling beauties that looked like doll shoes.

"Oh I do hope you're right Mr. Ellis!" said Myrna without even raising her eyebrows when she spotted the price tag.

We saw Myrna the following Saturday. She charged Curly as if he had been instrumental in saving the mortgage on the old homestead, planting a big kiss on his reddening cheek — and right in front of several wide-eyed customers, including me.

"What's up?" said Curly falling over a footstool.

"Those darling slippers!" Myrna chortled. "Just like you said. In two weeks I'll be Mrs. Lester Phelps. Isn't it wonderful?"

"Is it?" said Curly dubiously. Neither Curly nor I had ever heard of Lester Phelps. I think we envied him though. Myrna was a real doll.

"The police let him go last week," Myrna went on.

"The police!" Curly and I exchanged glances.

"Oh, it's not at all like it sounds," said Myrna. "You'll simply die when I tell you what happened."

"It's possible," said Curly running his finger round inside his collar. "What happened?"

"Well Lester — you don't know Lester; he lives in Shelbyville — Lester called at our house Saturday night to pick me up for the dance. He had a new car. I knew it was new because the old one had a rack for bobby pins and when I noticed it was gone I looked around and sure enough — new car. So I said 'Your new car is beautiful, Lester,' and Lester smiled. I guess he thought I wouldn't notice a little thing like that."

"Things went along fine until we reached the top of the hill near Kelly's Junction. Then a policeman tried to run us off the road. Lester stopped the car and said some pretty nasty things to the policeman. I didn't blame him either — not at first anyway. But when the policeman proved that the car Lester was driving had been reported stolen I became worried."

"The policeman said that I could go back home or go to the station with Lester. It was a terrible decision to have to make. Finally I said 'I will stay with Lester.'

"Lester said a lot of wonderful things about loyalty and how he would spend the rest of his life making it up to me, but all the while I thought he was a smooth-talking car thief. When we got to the police-station I let Lester do all the talking.

"Imagine my surprise when Lester's father came in from Shelbyville a little later with the sheriff. It seems that Lester had bought a new car — just like the one he had used for the dance that night. He had parked on the lot next to the bank, and had taken a car that looked just like his. 'I was sure surprised to find the key in the ignition,' Lester said. 'But I didn't realize my own car keys were in my pocket. That's what happens when you have a new car — you don't even recognize it!'

"This is all very interesting," said Curly. "But where do the dancing slippers come in?"

"Why, don't you see?" asked Myrna rolling her big blue eyes. "Kelly's Junction is three miles from my house. I couldn't possibly have walked that far on a wet night — not in dancing slippers!"

Poor Housekeeping Causes Accidents Littered Barn May Result in Injuries

Safety experts report that a lot of farm accidents could be prevented if farmers were as concerned about good housekeeping in their barns as their wives are about the appearance of their homes.

And, when it comes to preventing accidents, good housekeeping around the barn is probably more important than keeping the house spic and span. Farm safety specialists advise against waiting for the "Spring house cleaning" urge in making barns safer for everyday chores.

If the alleyway or other work areas are cluttered with sacks of feed, stools, carts and other obstacles, find a safe, out-of-the-way place for them, they advise. Forks, scrapers and other barn-cleaning tools belong in a safe storage rack, not stuck over beams.

Right now is a good time to take a look at the ladder or stairs to the haymow, since you'll be using them more often in the months ahead. All rungs should be sound and fastened well.

Chances are, too, that you could see a lot better if you cleaned the cobwebs and fly specks from light bulbs. If you're still short of light after cleaning bulbs, let's face it, you need to put in extra lights. You will find that a little time spent on better housekeeping in the barn will make your work easier and save time for you in the future when time will be one of your most valuable assets.

Vermiculite Being Used Widely in Weed Control

A mineral with widespread uses in the building industry is today helping many insecticides and weed killers do a better job for farmers and gardeners alike.

This mineral is vermiculite, which readily absorbs and carries many liquid chemicals, converting to an easy-to-handle granular form.

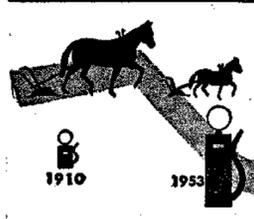

In North Carolina, the mica-like mineral has tamed prophylactic dieldrin, a highly volatile killer of nematodes (root worms). Carried in vermiculite, the chemical is simple to apply with ordinary spreading equipment, instead of by costly and difficult methods formerly needed.

Vermiculite makes it easier to use phenyl mercuric acetate to kill crab grass and 2, 4-D to kill broad-leaf weeds. Gardeners just sprinkle these vermiculite carried chemicals directly from the box, or from a lawn spreader. Cumber-some spraying gear is unnecessary.

Vermiculite is slated for use this year in at least one fertilizer insecticide. The insecticide carried in vermiculite will be aldrin, for corn root worms, or dieldrin, for potato wire worms.

In other farm and garden uses, a nine per cent chlordane solution in vermiculite is now commercially available to control lawn beetles and cinchbugs. Heptachlor and dieldrin carried in vermiculite are being used by a large Midwest university to control onion maggots.

Horsepower

In 1910, there were 1000 farm tractors and 25 million horses and mules on U. S. farms. Today, there are well over 4 million farm tractors and only 5,636,000 horses and mules many of which do not do farm work. Only a few decades ago, agriculture was primarily a hand operation; today only a few crops—such as tobacco—resist the steady advance of machinery.

The mistaken are to be pitied, but not so much as those who mistake ambition for ability.

Scientists Aim to Cut Food Waste

Scientists at Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station are turning their guns this week on anything that wastes food—on the farm, in storage, in transport, in display and in sales.

The research and education program in farm marketing authorized in May by the legislature, with funds available July 1, is starting. Coupled with research will be a Cooperative Extension Service program to carry the marketing and consumer information into the field.

The $160,000 authorized for marketing research will be dovetailed into existing projects at Michigan State College to add to results. The hope is to give Michigan better diets at lower costs and give fairer returns all down the line—for farmers, processors, wholesalers, and retailers.

If everything turns out perfect, here are some things that will come from this marketing research project:

Farmers will send leaner meat to your table; and better flowers for the centerpiece will come from florists. You will get good fruits in the spring from Michigan instead of just a glut of them for a few weeks at harvest time. You'll pay less for shipping and save backaches on handling evergreens for your yard. You'll have tender frozen blueberries, lower-priced beans and dairy products that keep longer. If you are a farmer, you'll find better markets for your farm woodlot cuttings.

Too often the social climber gets into the soup trying to get into the swim.

The man who lives constantly within his income will have heirs who will bless his memory.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

was the drive announced by the Michigan Committee for Better Schools. This plan, which came out of Detroit as a means to benefit metropolitan school districts, met with approval of virtually no group or individual in educational circles. In fact, some of the strongest language heard in many years concerning school problems, was used by administration heads.

Prentiss M. Brown, widely respected for his contributions to Michigan civic projects, was listed as chairman of the Committee for Better Schools. Many critics of the plan expressed surprise that Brown "was sold a bill of goods" and believed that he did not understand some of its more subtle implications. It was Brown who revealed that the program would be dropped.

A Michigan "Seaway Plan" will be discussed at a series of meetings of the House Marine Affairs Committee. The first session will be held in Port Huron on July 17. Representatives from 17 port cities will be invited.

Purpose of the meetings, according to Rep. Herb Clements, (B-Deerfield) "is to find out what legislation is needed to help develop port facilities in preparation for the St. Lawrence seaway."

Dates for other meetings have not yet been announced, but Clements said the group will meet at each of the following cities: Detroit, Saginaw, Traverse City, Benton Harbor, Bay City, Alpena, Muskegon, Holland, Ludington, Frankfort, Sault Ste. Marie, Escanaba, Marquette, Houghton and Menominee.

A proposal to legalize bingo will be on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Petitions requiring referendum of charity gambling were filed last week by Charles R. MacLean, attorney for the Michigan Association of Nonprofit Charitable Organizations.

If passed, the proposal will enable the legislature to set up legal bingo games, etc. for nonprofit charitable organizations only. At present legislative action along this line is prohibited by the Constitution.

MacLean emphasized that the same law which permits charitable groups to hold lotteries should also specifically prohibit profiteering by "professional" operators. "If any but charitable groups get into this thing," he said, "it'll kill the whole idea for everyone."

A new solution for an old quarrel is being tried at Silver Lake, 15 miles north of Grand Rapids. By mutual agreement summer and permanent residents have agreed not to operate outboard motors after 5 p. m. on Mondays and Wednesdays. This leaves the lake completely open to fishermen.

A meeting has been set for next fall when the success of this idea can be discussed.

Opportunity to a great many people means a chance of getting something for nothing.

Virtue may have its own reward, but the notorious sell their life stories to the magazines.

All men have to make their own way in the world, while many women merely have theirs.

A great number of men will admit they owe everything to their wives, but very few settle up.

Look for Cause of Child's Disobedience

Your three-year-old child simply will not mind! If this is your problem, concentrate on WHY the child does not mind—instead of merely on the FACT.

Approach the problem much as you would the problem of the cake that failed to rise, suggests Mrs. Lennah Backus, extension family life specialist at Michigan State College.

What is the cause? That is really what you need to know. Begin by asking yourself these questions:

Is the child well and does he get enough sleep? Well-fed children have more energy to cooperate and rested children are more willing to take suggestions.

What tone of voice do you use when you ask your child to do something? Is it a request or is it a command? The rather gentle but positive manner usually gets better response than the command.

When asking your child to do something, do you allow time for the request to "get through" to him? Children are sometimes so engrossed that they need a moment to turn from one activity to another.

Just what do you expect of your child? Are the things you ask within his ability—or does he give up in despair and refuse? Is your three-year-old refusing to mind in order to gain attention? If you suspect this is the case, why not plan to give him more of your time and the feeling that he can gain your attention in more desirable ways.

Such questions will help you plan wisely to solve the "simply will not mind" problem, says the family life specialist.

In some countries it is hard to tell whether an election is an election or an insurrection.

Wheat Allotment Sure for 1955

Controls on cropping next year are no longer an "if" question with farmers, points out Alfred P. Ballweg, county agricultural agent.

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson has set the national wheat allotment at 55 million acres—about eight million short of this year's harvest and 23 million less than last year. This allotment, and the individual farmer's share, will remain unchanged even if wheat marketing quotas are voted down on July 23.

The vote will be between quota wheat—with excess planting cash penalties—at a support price between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, or 50 per cent supported wheat—with no penalties. Farmers will not qualify even for 50 per cent price support if they overplant.

Every farmer in Tuscola County that plans to plant more than 15 acres of wheat this year can vote on July 23.

Ballweg passes along this review of the situation from Burnell Held, agricultural economist at Michigan State College:

"Controls on other crops are sure to follow, especially on corn and quite probably on other grain. Marketing quotas are not likely to be used on these Michigan-grown crops but acreage allotments for next year will have some very real teeth. The cross compliance feature, announced by Secretary Benson, will make eligibility for price supports an 'all or nothing' proposition. The wheat producer will still have to stay within his acreage allotment to avoid difficulty. But he won't be eligible for the support price on wheat unless he also stays within his corn acreage allotment and any other acreage allotment he may be given."

"If a farmer has more than 10 diverted acres, he can not shift them into anything but hay, pasture or green manure unless he wants to forfeit all price supports," explains Held. "Close substitute crops would cancel the effects of the wheat cutback."

Michigan farmers will take a sharper cut in wheat than the 11 per cent national average cut—because Michigan had a bigger increase in recent years than the average.

Cross compliance will be in force next year no matter what the vote on July 23, stresses Held. If a farmer overplants corn, he won't be able to get a loan or purchase agreement on wheat.

Another new feature is the over-all quota for the farm—similar to the "soil depleting base" of the '30's. If acreage controls apply only on wheat and corn and a farm has a 10-year history of growing 90 acres of wheat and corn and 40 of other crops, here's what happens:

The combined acreage for wheat and corn on this farm is 55 acres. Add 40 acres of other crops for a total of 95 acres. The other 35 acres must go into hay or pasture, be fallowed or planted to a green manure crop. If another crop is planted, the farmer loses price support eligibility.

Farmers with 15 or less acres of wheat would not pay a penalty for overplanting under a quota. Held explains, but they would forfeit price support benefits. Plantings of more than 15 acres—if in excess of allotments—will carry a penalty of $1.10 for each excess bushel before any wheat can be sold. This penalty would apply even if wheat is fed or given away.

A Hot Tip

By Ona F. Lathrop

I'D noticed Katrina ever since I began eating at The Coffee Cup when I came to town as a cub reporter. She wasn't young any more but she had the nicest smile I've ever seen on a waitress, yet with a sad twist to it. She walked stately and tall like a princess, but she was a glutton for hard work.
"Here, I'll do that," she'd say when one of the other girls started to fill the huge coffee urn or take a loaded tray of dishes. And they let her. Sometimes I thought they imposed on her.
It was, "Hey Katy, will you fill this order for that fussy lawyer?" or "How about slicing the big ham?" And Katy always jumped

"Here darling, let me show you how to fix that," she'd say to do it. But she never accepted a tip. I was sure there was a story in Katrina, and there was, but it wasn't for the papers.
It was when the new girl, Margo Lynn, came that I really began to watch Katy. She took that girl under her wing like a mother hen and after that, all Katy's tips went to her.
"Here darling, let me show you how to fix that," she'd say.
Gwen, the black-haired one, seemed to resent the new girl. She would brush her questions off with, "Hey, what's under that blonde bob? Didn't they teach you anything at Stephens?" And you could see Margo wilt.

I got to dropping in late when I got the courthouse beat. Margo would be eating her lunch at one of the little tables. One day I ambled over. "Mind if I sit here?" I questioned.
"Not at all. You're late. I thought everyone was served." She had a nice smile too. Somehow it reminded me of Katy's. Maybe waitresses were getting more pleasant these days.
"How's it going?" I asked.
"You're new in town, aren't you?"
"In a way. This is my hometown but I've been gone—at school, and around." She nibbled her sandwich daintily.
"Oh yeah. Stephens, I hear. Pretty snazzy school, eh? Did you graduate there?" I couldn't imagine a Stephens grad working in a restaurant, but you never know.
"No. I quit and got married." It was then I noticed the ring.
"What does your husband do?"
I was nosy but it made conversation.
"He doesn't—I'm not married to him any more."
Just then Gwen came by and hissed, "You're wanted up front," and Margo went. I could see the fellow talking to her, dark, with a mean look in his eye. And then I noticed Katy watching them. She looked as if she might boil over any minute, and suddenly she walked to the front. She planted herself between the fellow and Margo who was crying in her wadded-up handkerchief.
"Get out. Beat it. And never come back. She's through with you." And the fellow went.
I stopped Gwen as she went past. "What's all the drama about?"
Gwen glanced over her shoulder to be sure Katy hadn't come back. "I guess that's the fellow Margo was married to—the one that broke her heart—or her spirit."
"Yeah, but what does Katy have to do with them?"
"Katy, you dope, is Margo's aunt. She was putting her through school with her work here when she fell for this guy. It almost killed Katy, but she let them alone until Margo broke it up and came home. Now she's helping her back to earth again."
"Got her a job here with her, eh?" I said.
"Gave her a job, you mean. This joint belongs to Katrina. And let me give you a hot tip."
"What's that?" I asked, all ears.
"Never let Katy know that you know she owns this place. She's just one of us, and she doesn't want anyone to remind her that her people were once royalty in the country they escaped from. She just loves America. She's funny that way."
A hot tip all right. But it wasn't for the paper.
