

Record Crowds Expected at Home-coming

Day-long Program of Free Events Slated

The Cass City Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the Home-coming in Cass City, expects the fifth annual event in the village to draw record crowds from the community for the one-day event Thursday, Aug. 5.

This year, persons attending the fair will have a day crammed full of free events. As always, the Home-coming committee has planned so that persons in the area can attend without paying anything for the day-long event.

Large Crowd Sees Lions Top Bay City at Park

Sparked by the hitting of Lee Hartel and the pitching of Elwyn Helwig, the Cass City Lions Club roared to victory in a close, hard fought game with Atlas Furniture Friday evening at the Cass City Recreational Park.

A large crowd saw the Lions annex the game, 2-1. The two teams were in a pitchers' battle from start to finish. Both clubs collected only three hits.

Big blow of the game was Hartel's circuit clout into left center field. The drive between the outfielders enabled Hartel to score his round-tripper before Atlas could return the ball to the infield.

The home run was the only earned counter of the game. Cass City scored once with the help of errors in the fourth.

Elwyn Helwig lifted an easy fly ball to right field that popped out of the fielder's glove and Helwig pulled up at second.

Later, the catcher tried to pick

Only at the booths, sponsored by local organizations, and at the rides for kiddies, will it be possible to spend any money at the Home-coming. Rides are priced to cover the cost of securing them in Cass City.

Opening the event will be the larger-than-ever livestock show of members of the FFA and 4-H competing for prizes, ribbons and trophies.

Prizes for the livestock show are on display in the window of Bigelow's Hardware.

At noon, the biggest parade ever held for the Home-coming will march down Main Street to the park. Persons in charge promise more vehicles and more prizes than ever before. Every entry in the bicycle parade will receive a prize.

A feature started last year and retained this year because of its evident popularity, the 4-H and FFA skilled tractor operators' contest, will capture the attention of the crowd at 1 p. m. Six prizes totaling $47.50 will be offered to the winners, including the first prize of $15.00.

Following the tractor-driving contest will be the horse-pulling contest, one of the highlight attractions of the Home-coming.

Andrew Bigelow, in charge of the event, says that there will be just one class of horses in the pull and a top weight limit of 3,200 pounds will be enforced again this year.

While the horse-pulling contest is in progress, the children will be competing for prizes.

Included in activities for the kids will be a pie eating contest, specialty races, cracker eating contest and many other events. The events for the kids start at 2:30 p. m.

A new feature of the Home-coming this year will be a booth for registration of old-time residents who attend the fair.

In past years, visitors report that they came to the Home-coming looking for familiar faces and failed to find any person they knew. Then, after the event was over, they learned that several persons they searched for actually attended the Home-coming.

All visitors will be able to register this year so that old friends will be able to find each other.

At 3 p. m., the undefeated Lions softball team will play an opponent still to be selected.

Martin Awarded Pinney Bank Short Course Scholarship

Frederick Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Martin of Cass City, has been notified that he has been awarded the bankers' short course scholarship given annually by the Pinney State Bank.

The scholarship is awarded by Forrest Strand of Michigan State University.

College. Frederick has enrolled in the general agriculture short course at the school. Previously Frederick received the DeKalb agriculture accomplishment award medal. The medal is given to a senior FFA student in each school in recognition of outstanding scholarship and supervised practice in agriculture.

The wheat harvest reached its peak early this week. When this picture was snapped, trucks were lined up outside of the Frutchey Bean Co. for over a block. With the favorable weather during the past week, farmers harvested practically all of the wheat in the area. Good crops, with no sprout, have been reported throughout the area.

From the Editor's Corner

While we believe the council acted wisely in granting a sewer extension on Garfield Street this week to service the Walbro Corporation and other persons in that area, the move will probably make the ordinance requiring subdividers to pay the cost of sewers to their property useless.

According to the way the law is written, a piece of land is not a subdivision unless it is divided into three or more plots and sold in one year. An owner needs only to sell two plots a year to stay out of the subdivision class.

After granting the sewer on Garfield Street, it would seem that future councils will be bound by precedent to grant sewers to others who want the service as long as they stay unclassified as a subdivision as defined by the ordinance.

This may not be as bad a practice as it would at first seem. When the law was passed, its purpose was to keep private owners from profiting at the expense of the village.

At the time the ordinance passed, the village received no revenue from their sewer system. In the near future, if present plans are followed, there will be a charge for the use of sewer in the village—between 80 and 90 per cent of the revenue now taken in from water.

True, it is about 50 per cent more expensive on the average to install a sewer than it is water, but all the cost of the sewer system now, and in years past, was an expense to the village.

Because water was revenue producing, there never was a charge for bringing this service.

Lions Win Two Close Games in Caro

The Cass City Lions scored two more victories in the Caro Softball League this week but were forced to the limit in both games before annexing the decisions.

Monday, the Lions whipped Booth's Furniture for their tenth straight win, 5-2.

It took a three-run rally in the final inning to clinch the victory. Booth's took an early one-run lead in the second when Al Brinkman rapped off a long home run off the slants of Elwyn Helwig.

Hits by Dean Hoag, Maynard Helwig and Leroy Hoag in the third pushed across two runs for Cass City. Booth's came back to tie the game in the fifth and threatened to salt the game away in the sixth.

They loaded the bases with nobody out, only to have Helwig retire the next three men and leave the runners stranded.

Pairings for Tennis Tournament Set

Pairings for the tennis tournament to be held at the courts at the Cass City Municipal Park have been posted to the door of the bathhouse at the swimming pool, Dick Wallace, recreation director, announced this week.

He said that persons entering the tournament should check the list to find their first round opponent and then make arrangements to play as soon as possible. Winners of the first round should post their results on the chart at the bathhouse, Wallace said.

No Charge for Extension

Village to Furnish Sewer to Corporation

Following an hour of heated discussion, the Cass City Village Council voted Tuesday to extend a sewer west on Garfield Street without cost to property holders in the area.

The decision means that the Walbro Corporation, moving into the village in August, will not have to pay for the extension of the sewer. Other property owners can have sewer and water privileges by asking the council for them.

The sewer will be extended about 400 feet. On a motion by B. F. Benkelman and with the unanimous approval of the council, the sewer will be extended until it reaches a depth of five feet below the surface.

Sewer in the area can only be put in that far. Home owners beyond that point will be forced to install septic tanks because the ground is too low to be serviced by a sewer line.

The discussion Tuesday revolved around whether or not the property owned by the Cass City Development Corporation and other property owners in the area could be classified as a subdivision.

The ordinance in the village concerning the matter reads that the land must be divided into three or more plots in one year to be classified as a subdivision. Since this was not the case in the area under discussion, the council felt that a sewer extension was possible.

If the land were classified as a subdivision, the property owner pay 100 per cent of the cost of extending a sewer. Then, after the property is developed, 30 per cent of the cost is refunded to the owner.

In another sewer discussion, the council decided to survey the Garden Center subdivision to place on record just how far it would be possible to place a sewer in the area and to authorize septic tanks for property owners past that point.

Gagetown Soldier Praised for Work In Air Force

S/Sgt. John R. Downing, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Downing, Gagetown, was commended recently for his work with the Headquarters Seventh Weather Group.

A letter written by Lt. Col. Robert B. Hughes, Mr. Downing's commanding officer, said: "I wish to extend my sincere appreciation to you for the outstanding manner in which you have performed your duty while a member of this organization. You have accomplished those duties in a superior manner despite the fact that no Statistical Services Officer has been available for supervision during the past year."

"This organization has obtained 100 per cent reporting efficiency for the past four months, which is a direct result of your achievements and reflects a great improvement in reporting efficiency for any comparable period in 1953. ### Rotary Club to Canvass Township To Get Out Vote

Cass City Rotarians will again canvass Cass City and Elkland Township in an effort to secure a heavy vote for the primary elections Tuesday, Aug. 3.

The club decided to send its canvassers through the area prior to the election at its regular noonday luncheon meeting held at the New Gordon Hotel Tuesday.

The plan calls for each member to take a certain section of the village or township and personally ask qualified voters to go to the polls.

After the business meeting, the group heard Mahlon Vance, district manager for Detroit

Remember! Two Precincts for Elkland Voters

Voters in Elkland Township are reminded that when they go to the polls Tuesday, Aug. 3, the place where they will be expected to vote will be governed by where they live in the township.

In compliance with a ruling by the attorney general, the township has been divided into two precincts.

Dividing line for the precincts is the center of Cemetery Road and Seeger Street.

Persons living east of this line will be required to vote this year at the Cass City Municipal Building. Persons living west will vote in the Elkland Township Hall where all voters went prior to the new ruling.

Members of the Elkland Township Board pointed out that the division of precincts is in the center of Seeger Street and Cemetery Road. This means, they said, that all persons living on the west side of that road will vote at the township hall and all persons living on the east side will vote at the municipal building.

TACKLE BUSTER—Harvey Fleming caught this giant muskelunge Saturday morning fishing in Black Lake. He reports that he was trolling with his brother, Pearl Fleming, and son, James Fleming, when the fish struck at about 8:30 a. m. The muskie hit a plike minnow and hooked himself through the lower jaw. Mr. Fleming reports that it took about 10 minutes to land him. The giant was captured on a 45-pound test line and was hooked so solidly that the hook was removed with pliers. The fish weighs 23 pounds, is 43 inches long and has a girth of 19 inches. It was the only fish taken in the two days the men were on the lake. The fish is not a record for the Fleming family. Seven years ago to the day, Pearl Fleming caught a muskie in the same lake that tipped the scales at 28 pounds.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Stunning news of Blair Moody's death brought renewed public interest in the primary election Aug. 3.

It was a tragic loss to the Democratic party. One that was felt deeply and personally by many party leaders.

It was also a loss that presented some practical political problems.

There seemed little choice. Patrick V. McNamara, Moody's only primary opponent, seemed almost certain of nomination.

There was some talk about a possible sticker candidate, but Gov. G. Mennen Williams refused to make any statement about this subject for several days after Moody's death.

Michigan law is not clear about such cases as Moody's. According to one section, the Democratic State Central Committee could pick another candidate and order his name pasted over Moody's on the ballot. Another section mentions that voters can write in names.

Relations between Williams and McNamara had been formal, almost to a point of being stilted. In early stages of the campaign McNamara had accused Williams of making a "vest pocket" candidate out of Moody. He had made bitter statements about favoritism by Democratic Chairman Neil Staebler. He has been associated with AFL and has remarked pointedly about "the present ADA, CIO boss and egg-head leadership."

Democratic leaders gave silent thanks that their relationship with McNamara had improved since the caustic comments at the beginning of the campaign. Their problem would have been infinitely more complex if the relationship had been one for open warfare as exists in the Lieutenant Governor race.

"The first I knew about it was what I read in the papers," said the Governor when asked about the report that Moody had tried to withdraw from the race because of ill health.

The story was quickly and vehemently denied by Blair Moody, Jr. He said that his father wanted nothing more in life than to continue the campaign and that he never considered withdrawing. Neil Staebler said: "The inference that Moody wanted to withdraw from the senatorial race and was prevented by party leaders is completely untrue. It defames the integrity of a great senator."

Harmony in the Republican camp, on the other hand, was so much in evidence that the campaign could be considered dull. As one Capitol reporter put it: "All of them are in favor of good roads, good schools, lower taxes, etc. I don't hear much talk about how these things will be paid for, or specific steps candidates expect to take."

This is a new situation for Republicans who consider they lost several elections because such vigorous campaigning took place in primaries that the party could not unify itself behind the winning candidate.

And it presents different problems. Much less campaign money has been made available to candidates than in other years. "Everyone seems to feel it doesn't matter which of the men is nominated," said a GOP figure. "They don't see much advantage to backing any of them now—or risking the support of one who might not win the nomination." Expectations are that once the primary is over, much support will materialize.

Something else is expected to materialize when the primary is over: maneuvering for position of the state administrative board. Candidates for these offices are selected by state convention of each party. Democrats hold their get together in Grand Rapids on Aug. 14; the GOP meets the same place a week later on Aug. 21.

Much speculation can be made about both situations, but the more interesting is the GOP.

Positions open include: secretary of state, treasurer, attorney general, auditor general and superintendent of public instruction.

Owen J. Cleary, present secretary of state, could make another try at the position if he were unsuccessful as a candidate for governor. D. Hale Brake, present treasurer, could do the same. Will Donald Leonard want another post if he loses?

Not to be forgotten is George Higgins.

He is the able senator from Royal Oak who withdrew from the governor's race and announced himself as a candidate for the Republican secretary of state's chair.

Days leading up to the primary are important to political leaders. Candidates tend to be judged more by activities of the final hours. Their conduct before the voting will have much to do with their fate afterwards.

State conventions are often noisy, unpredictable affairs. Delegates can be headstrong or capricious. No one can be sure when one starts what will take place before it is adjourned.

Sheep Breeders' Field Day in Caro

The Caro Fairgrounds will be the meeting place for the Thumb Sheep Breeders on Tuesday, August 3, advises Alfred P. Ballweg, county agricultural agent. All sheep breeders including 4-H and FFA sheep project members are urged to attend this annual event which this year will be held in Tuscola County. The program will begin at 10:00 a. m. with a discussion of various breeds including judging and selection.

The group will join in a picnic lunch during the noon hour. Those attending are to bring own lunch with ice cream and ade to be furnished by the association.

The afternoon program will include a talk by Dr. Frank Thorpe, Jr., Michigan State College veterinary, on "Controlling Sheep Diseases and Parasites." The program will close with a discussion on "How We Handle Your Wool," by Seldon Harvey, manager, Michigan Cooperative Wool Marketing Association, Jackson, Michigan.

Craft - Study Club Meets July 15

The Craft and Study Club met for a picnic Thursday, July 15, with Mrs. George Dillman at the Dillman cottage on Lake Huron. The committee in charge was composed of the Misses Caroline Garety, Laura Bigelow, Katie Crane and Betty Jo Agar. The club presented a gift to Miss Bertha Mitchell, who is leaving town to accept a teaching position in the commercial department at Belding. All those present had a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon. If sunshine had to be paid for many people would swear that artificial light could beat it. A little knowledge is sometimes a dangerous thing—to the party about whom it is known.

Hydroponics Open New Possibilities Science May Answer Our Land Problem

Hydroponics may prove to be the answer to the question of what we are going to do when there is not enough first class farming land left to support our ever-increasing population. Hydroponics is the science of growing crops with chemicals and without soils and the process is now getting a major test in Puerto Rico, a Commonwealth that has long been struggling to produce more food for local consumption and reduce cost of imports. Looking to this method as one of the possible keys to increased food production, the government has cooperated with private mainland enterprise in setting up two hydroponic farms.

Water mixed with more than twenty chemicals (the same chemicals found in good soil) is pumped into the tanks of growing vegetables. Secret of the present day success in hydroponic farming is the fact that growing plants, after they have absorbed the nutrient value of the formula, are drained of the mixture to prevent rotting of the roots.

To grow crops by hydroponics no soil is necessary and rainfall, or lack of it, is not a major factor. Plants are supplied directly with all the nutrients needed for life and growth by means of controlled chemical solutions applied at proper "feeding" intervals. Plant beds of gravel and similar aggregates have been found to be most suitable for growing.

The first hydroponic unit in Puerto Rico was established with private capital. The second unit, now getting started, plans to construct family farm units, each consisting of 25 cement beds, 100 feet long by three feet wide, with flumes for irrigation, cisterns, and pump, gravel and all necessary elements.

The first hydroponic farm in Puerto Rico produces 60,000 pounds of tomatoes for an acre of planting. Harvest begins 75 days after seeding.

Colorado Vets Test Bulls as Breeders

Eighty bulls were tested for their ability to breed during the first three weeks of operation of the Colorado A and M testing laboratory. The testing program is the only one of its kind in the United States and is designed to single out costly, non-breeding beef and dairy bulls. It was started in early April.

Trained veterinarians use latest techniques and equipment to determine the general quality of semen. They use this evaluation as one determination of the bull's ability to settle cows. In addition, bulls are given complete physical examinations to determine their fitness as either range or corral bulls. A mobile testing laboratory travels over the state testing bulls and the same service is maintained at the college laboratory.

Record Price

Hillcrest Larry 25, a purebred Hereford bull was sold in the Hillcrest Farms dispersion sale at Chester, W. Va., for $100,000, a new record for all livestock in the auction ring. Shown with the top priced bull are Ralph Fair, Mrs. Fair, and C. A. Smith, son of the late C. A. Smith, Sr., owner of Hillcrest Farms.

Mary Donnelly Reports on Trip

At the request of sponsoring organizations, Miss Mary Donnelly has written a report of her week at the State Conservation Camp near Chatham.

Among 140 Michigan 4-H boys and girls attending the camp were Miss Donnelly of Cass City and Duane Priestley of Akron.

The outing started July 12 when the group was transported to the camp in Michigan State College buses. Highlight of day was a trip across the Straits of Mackinac.

After arriving at the camp, the group found each day packed with activities. Tuesday was soil and water day and the delegates visited an experimental farm where many varieties of crops are raised to determine adaptability to the Upper Peninsula.

Wednesday was forestry day and the group spent the day at the Duke's Forest Experimental Station and Fry's Lumber Camp. The Tuscola County representatives saw the complete lumbering process.

In the afternoon the Field Administration Division of the Department of Conservation staged a forest fire fighting demonstration. A log sawing contest in the evening completed forestry day for the group.

Thursday, the campers saw lamprey weirs and the methods used in the attempt to halt the lamprey growth in the great lakes.

It's the Hit that's writing New History

TAKE a look, if you please, at the car and the styling that are changing historic sales standings. Take a look at the beauty and the buy called Buick—the car that is forging ahead to new sales heights in the 1954 market.

Take a look at the new best seller that has moved into the "Big Three" of the nation's top sales leaders—into that very exclusive circle that for two decades has held only the so-called "low-price three."

For today, as national sales figures for the first five months reveal, Buick is outselling all other cars in America except two of these "low-price three." And each new month firms Buick's new position. It takes solid worth to bring this about—a lot more automobile per dollar in Buick than in other cars. But it also takes the glamorous new tomorrow styling that is Buick today. It takes the highest V8 horse-powers, Series for Series, in all Buick history. It takes the room and comfort and ride and handling that are Buick's proud tradition. And it takes a range of cars to satisfy a wide range of people—with prices that most people can well afford. So you find the low-priced SPECIAL, the high-powered CENTURY, the extra-spacious SUPER, and the custom-built ROADMASTER—the four big reasons for Buick's tremendous sales success. Come in for a demonstration and you'll see what we mean. With the years-away styling of this glamor car, you'll be way ahead at resale time. And right now you're money ahead with the big trade-in allowance our volume sales can bring you. Drop in this week.

Warm Milk HELPS HEAT MILK HOUSE

Electric pump attached to milk cooler does the trick

William Canfield, Oakland County farmer, uses an electric heat pump in connection with his modern front-opening milk cooler. Taking heat from warm milk and well water, it keeps the milk house comfortable in freezing weather.

Mr. Canfield and son, John, farm 160 acres, most of which are devoted to seed corn. They use electricity wherever possible. It powers corn drying, ventilating, conveying, and elevating equipment. It operates water heaters in the milk house and home, providing him and his family with plenty of hot water to make speedy work of dairy and household chores.

Is electricity doing all it can for you? For further information, see your Edison Farm Service Advisor.

Green Pastures for Green Dollars

By Quentin R. Ostrander, Assistant County Agricultural Agent

Watch out for the "summer slump" in the next few days! Now is the time when milk production frequently falls off sharply. The "slump" hits some herds harder than others.

What is the cause? There are two major reasons. One, the yield—or growth—of the pasture falls and there is less feed to graze. Two, mature grasses and legumes do not have as high a feed value.

Both these situations combine to rob the dairy cow of the same quantity of high-quality feed she had in the early pasture season.

Hot weather, flies and other summer complaints also do their part in putting the brakes on milk production—but feed shortage is the big item.

Cows need about 150 pounds of good grass-legume pasture a day to produce 50 pounds of milk. This means about 4,500 pounds or 2½ tons each month. Very few pastures can provide this amount of feed in August. It is possible on lowlands with adequate moisture or with crops like sudan grass.

One ton of grass or corn silage, or 700 pounds of hay, or 475 pounds of grain are needed for each ton of missing pasture. Many dairymen have "canned" surplus grass from lush spring pastures and can feed it out from the silo to bolster the sagging August growth.

It pays to maintain milk output as high as possible in late summer and early fall in two ways: First, prices are usually highest. Second, a higher base can be established for year-around payments.

It will pay to watch pastures and cows closely and make up any shortage in feed and milk by feeding extra silage, hay or grain.

Good pastures are a "must" for low-cost production but they may give a grassy flavor to milk, warns Dr. G. M. Trout, Michigan State College dairy researcher. These grassy flavors—maybe you had trouble this spring—can return in the fall when fall rains make pasture more succulent. They rarely are dry season problems—but straight alfalfa can give an off-flavor in August. This is the time when second cutting stands of alfalfa are often used for pasture.

Off-flavors usually can be controlled by proper management. Leave the cows out for only a short time in the morning, suggests Trout, for a few days. Grassy flavors will disappear by evening milking time. Continue this practice as long as necessary—whether cows are on lush pasture or on pure alfalfa stands. Cows taken off pasture 3 to 5 hours before milking will not have such strongly-flavored milk.

Dairymen who milk three times a day may have some difficulty with grassy flavors, he adds. An experiment at MSC showed that Balbo rye was not so apt to give a grassy flavor to milk as common rye would.

SHORT STORY

Fresh Imp

By Norman Disher

Taffy and I had met at the Lodge on Pinecrest. I'd been down swimming at the Lake and I'd just walked up to the lodge for a cool drink.

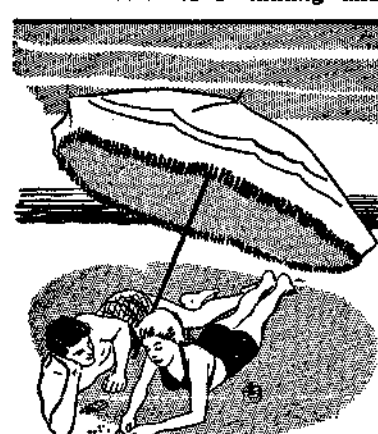

"Hi!" was her pert greeting to me.

"Why—hello!" I exclaimed wondering who this pretty little stranger was that was talking to me.

"Good swim?" she asked looking at my suit.

"Water's great—I'm going back in a minute, care to join me?" I boldly asked thinking this would frighten off this fresh imp.

"Sure," was her instant reply. I was the one who was surprised but off we went down the path to the Lake. We swam the rest of the afternoon then sat on the beach and talked. Taffy was an easy girl to get acquainted with and soon we were telling each other all sorts of intimate things. After a week of swimming and horseback riding, a week of sheer pleasure, we became inseparable. By the middle of the summer we knew we were desperately in love.

We swam the rest of the afternoon, then sat on the beach and talked.

"I'm a little frightened Mike," she told me one evening when we were down by the Lake.

"Why," I asked.

"Well, because I've never really been in love before. You see there's a boy named Roger at home that I've gone with for three years and we were never serious but just more or less of a habit with each other. My feelings for him are just—well, like I would feel toward a brother, but I think he takes our relationship a bit more seriously now. You see, Mike, since I've met you I know what love really is. It just scares me that something might happen to us!"

"You're being silly, Taffy, there's nothing to worry . . ."

"I know Mike," Taffy interrupted, "but I have to go home next week and make sure Roger understands about us. I can't tell you everything but it's just something that has to be done. I didn't want to tell you but I feel I know you well enough now that I can ask you to have faith in me. I'll be back by the end of the week or else I'll write if anything should happen."

I received this news with a sinking, scared feeling inside of me. That I might lose her had never occurred to me and now that such a possibility could happen, could disrupt our love, well, it just frightened me.

Taffy left the following week. Part of me left with her and I had a funny feeling that I might not see her again. She didn't return at the end of the week. I got a letter from her soon after saying that things hadn't worked out the way she'd expected and that she would need a little more time and not to worry.

"Don't worry," I mused to myself. "Don't worry! For the first time in my life I had something worth hanging on to, something in our love that would carry us through anything but now that that love was being held in doubt I began to wonder if I had the courage to carry myself through our first trial. "Don't worry," I repeated to myself. It was like telling a man who was drowning not to worry about it and that everything would be all right.

That letter was the last word I had from her during the remainder of the summer. One hope saved me from condemning her in my mind and that was the fact that I knew she was honest and sincere, that our love was not the result of one more summer romance. I believed with all my heart that whatever she did, whatever had happened, she had a very good reason for doing it.

I returned to school in the fall determined to forget Taffy and to keep her memory from becoming bitter inside me. By the time the following summer appeared on the calendar I had not forgotten her.

Now I was walking up the same path to the same lodge and as I turned the corner I was startled by a figure sitting in the sun in front of the lodge. A freckled-faced kid in blue shorts, a fresh looking imp.

"Hi!" was her pert greeting to me.

Individuals subdividing land under this plan would probably benefit at the village's expense. But in the long run, the village would receive enough new money to offset the cost of the new sewers.

On the credit side of the ledger is the fact that the village would be making it easier for Cass City to expand, a growth that companies such as the Detroit Edison predict will swell Cass City to 2,200 persons or more by 1960.

There doesn't seem to be any doubt that persons in the Cass City area will support fast softball games at least once a week. The exhibition between the Lions and Atlas Furniture of Bay City drew about 400 persons and a gross gate of nearly $80 dollars.

Fans in the area can expect to see more exhibitions this year after the Caro Softball League is finished, although no definite dates have yet been arranged.

Tuesday, Aug. 3, voters in the area will be asked to decide what promises to be a close election in many of the contests. Your vote counts, don't forget to use it.

Tuesday, Manager Al Galvanek decided to rest Helwig and started the game with Dean Hoag pitching and Caro Poultry rapped him for four runs in the second inning. They added one in the third and one in the fourth to account for all their runs.

Cass City was forced to come from behind to win. They netted three runs in the third, one in the fourth and three in the sixth to take the lead.

After they moved one run in front in the sixth inning, Elwyn Helwig pitched the final two innings to preserve the 7-6 victory.

First hit for the visitors came in the fourth inning. Jack Desham pounded a high fly deep over Ron Geiger's head in left field. He was credited with a solid triple.

With one out, Helwig rose to the occasion and whiffed the next two men to retire the side and leave Desham stranded.

Hartel's home run finished the scoring until the seventh. With two out, Helwig walked English and J. Talaga singled. A pair of errors sent English across and put Talaga on third with the tying run.

But Helwig induced Hornsby to pop to backstop Chet Dorland for the final out.

Helwig was in rare form Friday. He walked two and sent 14 back to the bench via the strike out route.

That pitching, with Hartel's hitting, was enough for victory for Cass City.

ARTHUR M. WILLITS TUSCOLA COUNTY TREASURER

Desiring to be of further service to the people of this County, I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Treasurer on the Republican ticket at the primaries, August 3, 1954.

Since becoming your County Treasurer it has been my only ambition to give to the people of this County an honest and efficient administration.

The office of County Treasurer is one of great responsibility and my experience has taught me that its duties are not to be lightly assumed. During the fiscal year 1953, over Four Million dollars was handled thru the records of this office.

My ability and experience is best attested by the fact that the county treasurers of the state of Michigan elected me as their president during the year 1951 and 1952.

My experience is the County's gain. I stand squarely on my record and if re-nominated and re-elected, I promise the same type of service to which you have been accustomed and to which you are entitled.
