Two persons were fined and State Aid Money

The Tuscola County Clerk's office announced this week that advance state aid money will be distributed within the next few days to Elkland and Kingston townships.

Elkland Township will receive $35,000 and Kingston Township will receive $15,000.

Welfare Offices

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors okayed the breaking of the Social Welfare Department and the Bureau of Social Aid into two separate departments this week, at the October meeting of the board in Caro.

Each department will have a director and the director of social welfare cannot be a member of the Welfare Commission.

The director will be appointed by the Welfare Commission supervisors.

At the present time the county pays $1,800 a year towards the salary of the director.

How much more the new system will cost the county is not known. The two bureaus were established from the combined bureau because of the increasing work load for both departments.

Road Commission Sprays 51 Miles Of County Drains

The Tuscola County Road Commission reported to county supervisors this week that they had sprayed 51 miles of county drains at a cost of $8,383.99.

The amount is an average of $164.40 per mile. The report indicated that the spraying has resulted in a satisfactory kill of brush in the drains. The commission also reported that they had spent $741.15 for the repair, maintenance and operation of Vanderbilt Park. Supervisors had authorized $1, 900 to the commission for th project.

Marshall Well

The oil well on the Neil Marshall farm, north of Gagetown, will produce at least 60 to 70 barrels of oil daily, according to R. C. Lentz of Muskegon, one of the owners of the well. Mr. Lentz said that the well will likely be a good producer for quite a few years. Just how much oil is in the pocket is not yet definitely known.

Wednesday evening the drillers were pouring salt brine into the hole prior to sending an electrical pole into the hole to determine the extent of the oil at the well.

The drillers struck oil at 3,424 feet. Mr. Lentz said that the depth was relatively shallow. Another of his wells in western Michigan was sunk to 7,200 feet. With the Marshall well established, Mr. Lentz said that he would drill others in the near future. Just where the next derrick would be erected, he declined to say. Mr. Marshall said that the lease he signed with the company calls for him to receive one

SHORT STORY

Reference Letter

By Sally S. Eads

CORINNE stood at the front door, watching for the postman. Surely this afternoon, she would get a letter from her cousin Bill Craig in answer to one she had written to him asking for reference on Dallas Cowan.

In the living room, she could hear her father grumbling to her mother about what to do with the two hundred hillside acres, Uncle

🗨 - Minute John had left to them. "I can't quit | Fiction my business and undertake to farm that land," he was saying.

"Oh, well, quit worrying," her mother advised.

Her father put on his glasses and picked up the newspaper. And Corinne's mind went back to the letter she was expecting and Dal-

She had known Dallas for more than six months, and he had begged her almost from the start to marry him. "Give me a chance to make you happy, Corinne. You know I love you," he had told her. "I believe you, Dallas," she said, "but let's wait until we're

'But I need you, now, to encourage me and help me to find the chance I'm looking for. I'll make good. I know I will." he had coaxed. He had sounded insecure and young, but she believed in him, and she loved him. The very thoughts of Dallas gave her a thrill that nothing else ever had. She only wanted the assurance from Bill Craig that Dallas was all she thought he was, and Bill wouldn't let her down.

"Here comes the postman!" yelled Corinne and darted out the door to meet him.

"Here comes the postman!" yelled Corinne and darted out the door to meet him. 'Here's the letter I was expecting," she told the postman. She held it for a minute, remembering what the girls at the Farm Bureau office had said about Dallas: 'He's a lazy dreamer. Doesn't like his office duties." Well, she knew better. He only needed a chance to fulfill his dreams.

We shall see what Bill she told herself.

"Dear Corinne," the letter beban. "So you're in love with Dallas Cowan? Yes, we were classmates in college, both majoring in agriculture. I hate to say this, Corinne, but the boy's a dreamer. He just wanted to sit and stare out the window, dreaming of apple orchards in bloom, with bees humming among the bloom. He couldn't or wouldn't get that dream out of his head. Otherwise, he's a nice fellow. Sorry, I couldn't give Dallas a better recommenda-

Corinne's eyes were blurred with tears. She set down in the porch swing and the letter slid to the floor. Just then, her father came out and seeing the letter and thinking it might contain bad news, picked it up and read it. Then he laughed. "Daddy, are you crazy?" Corinne

"No, no." He thumped the letter and laughed again. "Here comes Dallas Cowan." He hurried to meet the young man. "Son, I hear you're a potential orchard man. You dream of having an orchard of your own. Is that right?" Dallas' face turned red. "I have read a lot about orcharding, and I want an apple orchard. But I haven't the money to pay for the land, or trees, or the bees for pollenation," he confessed. Daddy slapped Dallas on the shoulders. "Boy am I lucky! I understand you and my daughter want to get married. Well, I have inherited two hundred acres that is just right for an orchard. I will give you folks this land for a wedding present, and will add money to pay for eight thousand trees and two hundred hives of bees. But, son, it will mean work."

Dallas looked at Corinne, hopefully, and back at her father. "I shall enjoy the work, sir, but Corinne hasn't said yes." Corinne stood up, smiling through tears, "I'll say YES right now," she told him. And when she thought Dallas would take her in his arms and kiss her, he said, "Darling.

ONE GOAL ONLY

In some cases success has been brought about because no allowance was made for anything else.

LOSES HIS CHANCE

The man who looks before he leaps often gives the other fellow a chance to get in ahead of him.

You may have read of the drunkometer test they use in some cities for drivers suspected of having a few too many. The driver breathes into a balloon and the police test his breath for alcohol. A certain percentage of alcohol and . . . you've had it. And no chlorophyl gum can help you.

Most people know about a similar test you can try on a used car (not that our cars look drunk, mind you, but it's a similar idea.) Almost everybody watches for smoke from the exhaust, but I find a lot of people really don't know what they're looking for, or why.

When you're browsing around a used car, race the engine a few times and watch the exhaust fumes for blue smoke. It's the blue you want to look for, not gray or black. What does it all mean? The car that billows blue smoke is burning oil. Eventually, it will require a ring job, as all cars do sooner or

It's not a sign of anything fundamentally wrong (the driver in the breath test can be sobered up pretty quickly.) If you like the car in other ways it will still be a good buy.

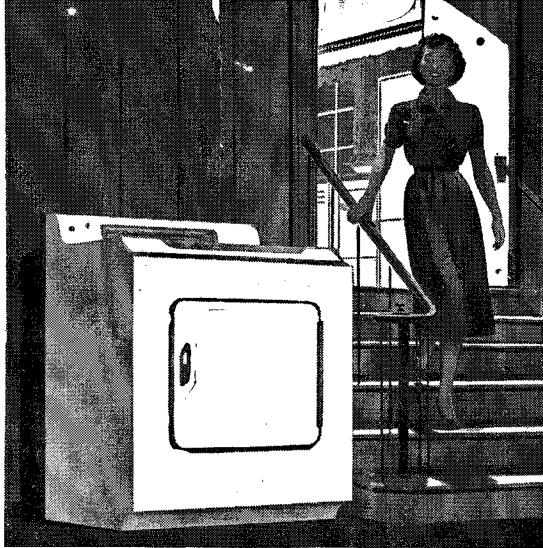

We didn't have any blue-smokers on the lot the last time I looked. When you're shopping around, though, I hope you'll ask to be shown everything you want to see, ask the things you want to know-poke around a little yourself to make sure.

Take a car out on the road and drive it the way you'll be driving your own. You do that much for a pair of shoes, we want you to get the "feel" of your new-used car, too.

Content Higher Cost Increase Less

Than Other Products While the cost of all goods and services used in farm production has increased by 132 per cent since 1935, the average cost of plant food in the form of commercial fertilizer has gone up only about 12 per cent over the same span of years. Official reports of the U.S. Department of Agriculture show that the cost per ton of commercial fertilizer increased by 51 per cent from 1935 to 1953. In the same period, however, the average plant food content of a ton of fertilizer

Florida, world's biggest phosphate producer, contains enough phosphate to last 500 years—five billion tons. With a boom-line as high as a two story buildout phosphate that will be dumped into the path of high powered hydraulic guns, pumped into flotation plants, heated pulverized and shipped. Biggest users are the citrus industry and tobacco growers.

also has been increased by nearly 35 per cent. Thus the increase in the average content of active ingredients has largely offset the higher cost.

Farmers today are able to buy plant food in the form of commercial fertilizer at a price which is very little more than they were paying at a time when the country was just emerging from its most disastrous depression. Even when the increase in plant food content is ignored, the average price per ton of commercial fertilizer has increased far less than the prices of other commodities and services used in farm production.

One reason for the relatively small increase in fertilizer prices has been the tremendous expansion in the use of fertilizer. Nearly five times as much plant food was used by American farmers in 1953 as in 1935, and total tonnage of fertilizer was nearly quadrupled. The fertilizer industry was relatively small in the 1930s, but today is one of the major segments of the American heavy chemical industry.

Say 'Carrier' Cattle Respond to Treatment

Veterinary research workers may have found an answer to the problem of "carrier" cattle which continue to be reservoirs of infection after they recover from a balfling malaria-like disease. American Veterinary Medical Association quotes a report by research workers in Kansas and Louisiana concerning studies on eradicating the carrier state in cattle which recover from anaplasmosis. In the past, infected cattle NW14 of section 14, Ellington which survived the disease could still spread it to healthy animals.

The report said prolonged treatment of infested cattle with certain special antibiotics not only brought about recovery, but also eliminated the "carrier" stage. Thus these cattle could be kept in the herd without fear of spreading the disease.

Anaplasmosis is a blood condition similar to malaria in human beings. It has been spreading slowly northward after first being diagnosed in southern areas.

Urouhart, daughter of Mr. and the groom, were his attendants. Mrs. Leonard Urguhart of Cass City, and Mr. Philip Romain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Romain of Caro, were married Saturday morning, Oct. 9, at St. Pancratius Church. The Rev. Father Bernard Kirchman officiated at the service for which the church was beautifully decorated with taskets of white mums and white gladioli.

For her wedding the bride chose a white floor-length gown of nylon lace fashioned with a V-neckline, wrist point sleeves and a skirt made up of tiers of lace and pleated net. Her veil of silk illusion was finger tip length corsage.

The maid of honor, Miss Sylvia Deering, of Deford and bridesmaid, Miss Patty Jane Urquhart, sister of the bride, wore gowns of autumn-red chiffon with matching headbands and carried arm bouquets of pink carnations and pink roses.

Engaged

Mrs. Jean McCarron and Mr. Robert McCarron of Flint announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ann, to Ronald O. Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Warner of Jackson. The couple has set Wednesday, ec. 4, as their wedding date.

Quantity Discount Ups Milk Sales

Test Areas Show Public Buys More

Lower retail prices on any item usually means more sales and a substantial increase in volume, bringing greater profit for the producer and the distributor.

Milk sales in some markets have been increased considerably by letting the housewife do more of the work in milk distribution and at the same time giving her more milk for her money.

The housewife does the work by buying milk in grocery stores and she gets more for her money because she buys in half-gallon or gailon lots. This practice, called "quantity discounts" is increasing. In January three times as many markets reported the practice as reported it in 1951. Two-thirds of the milk sold in Chicago in April was sold in haifgallon or gallon lots, and housewives were able to buy milk for tust a little more than 17 cents a quart in the bigger quantities. The price of delivered quarts was 24

In Chicago, a pace setter in this practice, milk sales have gone up 30 per cent since 1941 and

Giving the consumer a better price when buying milk in larger quantities has increased milk sales considerably in some test areas. Starting in grocery stores, "quantity discount" system has been adopted by some home delivery concerns and could lead to greatly expanded milk con-quantity discounts in stores have resulted in quantity discounts on routes. In May one Chicago distributor was delivering milk in gallons at the rate of 19 cents quart. In Cleveland, where the practice started in 1952, milk sales jumped seven per cent in one year, putting an additional $550,000 into producers' pockets.

Increased use of quantity discounts is an especially good way to increase milk sales from the farmers' standpoint, because farmers get more money from fluid milk

New Crop-Feeding Method is Reported

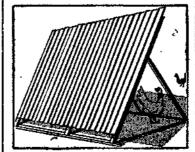

A new method of progressive crop feeding has been introduced under the name of "fertilirrigation," which indicates the simultaneous fertilization and irrigation of crops through a sprinkler irrigation system.

Using high analysis water-soluble plant foods, fertilirrigation promises to hold the answer to the excessive demands made upon soil minerals under pressure irrigation. The method has shown to be efficient and easy to maintain, and it can be adapted to any pressure irrigation system.

The basic unit for fertilirrigation is a simple tank-type flow mixer which quickly and evenly mixes soluble materials to be introduced into the sprinkler system. It is operated entirely by water pressure from the pump and has no moving parts.

This new method has been developed within the last few years by Cliff H. Snyder at his 600-acre Sunnyhill Farms in Western Pennsylvania. Depleted by faulty farming methods and with 200 acres covered by strip mining, the land at Sunnyhill was once worth less than $10.00 per acre. Snyder has brought back the fertility and productivity of the farm until today it is a model farm . . . and in so doing he perfected the system of fertilirrigation.

Check Dairy Heifers For Normal Growth

Now is the time to check up on those yearling dairy heifers to see if they have enough size to freshen when you will want them. Quentin R. Ostrander, Tuscola County assistant agricultural agent, makes this suggestion and gives farmers a yardstick with which to gauge their heifers' growth. He says that yearlings of the larger breeds, such as Holsteins, should weigh about 650 pounds—or have a chest-girth measurement of 60 inches or more.

It is suggested that if heifers find the probate Court on October 20th, 1902, he pr have enough size, their feed during the coming year can consist mainly of good quality roughages. Hay, silage and good pasture will keep them growing.

If they are lagging in growth, some additional grain should be fed to boost them up to par. Those dairymen raising smaller breeds, such as the Guernsey, should have heifers weighing between 475 and 500 pounds-or a chest girth measurement of about 55 inches, adds Ostrander.

An open shed is adequate for housing animals of this age. If they have the size, a good supply of water and a liberal supply of high quality roughage will keep growth normal.

As long as the animals are healthy, they can stand wintry conditions similar to beef cattle.
