

Plan Change in Budget Procedure For Fund Drives

At a joint meeting of the representatives of the seven organized community chests in Tuscola County and the board of the Tuscola County United Health and Welfare Committee Wednesday evening, Aug. 17, plans were formulated for the United Fund county committee to become the budgeting organization for all participating members in the county.

The committee would then handle funds for such groups as the Red Cross, Boy and Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Michigan United Fund and others.

According to advocates of the plan, it will have the following advantages:

There will be a more complete knowledge of what is raised in the county for various drives and it will enable the committee to judge whether the county is paying its fair share.

County-wide budgeting and quota distribution will assure that each community chest pays only its fair share.

It is expected that the plan will enable local chest authorities and the county United Fund organization to work more closely together.

M. W. Vance of Caro, who has served on the Michigan State admissions and budget committee of the Michigan United Fund, told how organizations on the national and state level present their budgets and financial statements to the budget committee for audit and admission to the present fund.

Substantially the same plan is to be followed on the county level. However, each community chest will have the right to add to their budget local items they feel are necessary and will have a voice in setting over-all county fund quotas.

After considerable discussion, all representatives of community chests present voted to accept the principle involved, subject to approval of local organizations.

The Cass City Community Chest was represented by Mrs. Wilma Fry and Robert Keating.

No Intentions of Moving Marlette Coach Co. Not Coming Here

The Marlette Coach Company of Marlette has no intention of moving a part of its operation to Cass City in the building owned by the Nestle Co., according to a statement from Gene Atherton, sales manager for the concern.

To check on the wide-spread rumor, the Chronicle called the coach company early this week for clarification.

Mr. Atherton said that he did not know how the erroneous information had spread. He said that he has had several persons from Cass City apply for jobs thinking that the concern was coming to the community.

Early this spring, Mr. Atherton pointed out, we were looking for more space to build 30-foot trailers. But since that time the company has made changes in its plant and is no longer looking for additional space.

"Present or immediate future plans do not call for our company to move all or any part of our operation in Marlette," Mr. Atherton concluded.

Noted Lecturer to Speak in Caro

Hazel P. Dunlop, author and lecturer, will be the guest speaker at a meeting sponsored by the Tuscola County home demonstration groups Thursday, September 1, at the Caro Methodist Church, according to Jean E. Gillies, county home demonstration agent.

Presented by the J. L. Hudson Company Speakers' Bureau, Mrs. Dunlop's theme will be "The Fundamentals of Floral Arrangements." This will be an informative discussion on design and color, with a demonstration in the art of floral arrangements.

Mrs. Dunlop stresses simplicity above all else, and contends that learning the art of arranging flowers is an invitation to discover beauty in the most unexpected places—the road by the door, the nearby vacant lot, or the common kitchen garden.

Mrs. Dunlop studied art, design, music and horticulture in public and private schools in her home state of Indiana. For the past 25 years she has lived in Detroit where her name is well-known in garden club circles. She is the author of the book, "Let's Arrange Flowers," and she has written numerous magazine articles. She has staged special flower shows, and gives as many as 100 lectures a year on floral arrangements, table settings, gardens and silver.

Home demonstration members and their guests will gather for coffee and rolls from 9 to 10 a. m. The program will start at 10 a. m.

Starting next week the members of the Junior Woman's Club of Cass City will attempt to contact everyone in Cass City and vicinity to see if they wish to have their name listed on the community birthday calendar.

A special meeting of the Junior Woman's Club was held last Friday night at the home of Mrs. Chas. Bigelow for the purpose of dividing the town into sections so that everyone has the opportunity of being included in this project. The deadline for putting in listings is Sept. 15. Anyone not contacted may call Mrs. Chas. Bigelow, who is chairman. Others on the committee are Mrs. Robert Schuckert, Mrs. Raymond Whalin, Mrs. John Haire and Mrs. Calvin MacRae.

Urge Proper Health Precautions for School Children

Is your five-year-old youngster ready for school? Proper health precautions are vital, according to the Sanilac County Health Department and the Sanilac County Superintendent of Schools.

Having children's defects corrected before they enter school may make the difference between an "A" student or a failure, they point out.

A visit to the family physician and dentist should be made before school starts.

Immunization against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus should be started at three months and a booster shot given every five years after the initial immunization.

Smallpox vaccinations should be given before the child reaches his first birthday and booster shots given at school age and every five years after that time.

Vassar Eliminates Cass City From Title Contention

Cellar dwelling Vassar all but eliminated the Cass City Merchants from a chance for the 3-Star League championship when they won an upset 7-5 victory.

It was Vassar's third win in 11 starts this year. Cass City now has a seven won, five lost record.

After pitching several good games, Gerald Whitaker was pounded hard and failed to survive the first inning.

The first six men Whitaker faced got on base. Included in the barrage were a triple, two doubles, two singles and a walk that netted five runs.

Carl Kolb relieved at this point and pitched effectively until relieved by Irv Clasenman. The two veteran hurlers allowed only two unearned runs during the rest of the game.

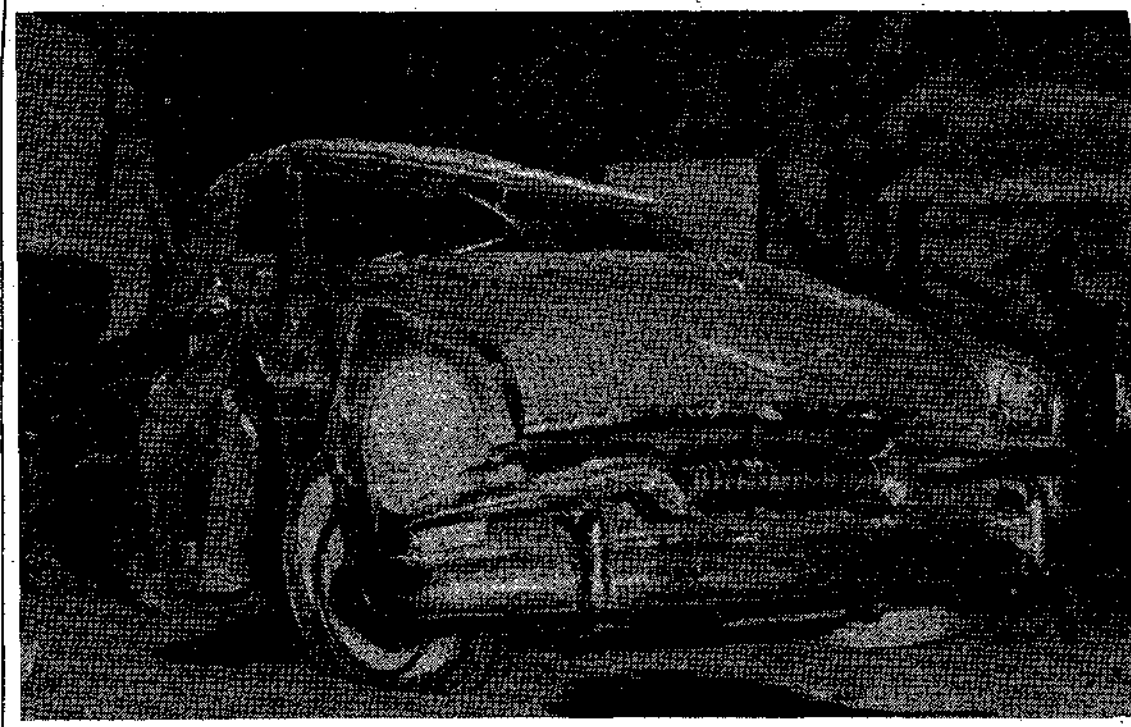

But the Merchants could not recover from the first inning barrage.

In their half of the first inning, they scored once on a hit by Kolb. In the sixth, they added three runs on a walk, hits by Chet Dorland and Bird and a Vassar error.

Joe Kilbourn, Kolb and Mike Yedinak accounted for the final Cass City run in the seventh as they banged out hits.

With the season drawing to a close, Kolb continues to pace the Merchants at the plate with a robust .396 average.

Sunday Cass City plays Richville, whom they must defeat for a spot in the play-offs. The game will start at 2:30 p. m. at the Cass City Recreational Park.

COMPLETELY WRECKED—This is the automobile that was involved in the accident that took the life of Charles Hempton and severely injured Ronald VanAllen. The car was declared a total wreck by garage authorities.

Ronald VanAllen Recovering

Hempton Killed In Automobile Wreck

Charles Hempton, 19, was killed and Ronald VanAllen severely injured in an automobile accident Saturday evening on M-81, near Ellington.

Mr. Hempton died Sunday afternoon at Pleasant Home Hospital from injuries received in the crash. Mr. VanAllen is in Caro Hospital where authorities said that he will recover.

Mr. Van Allen is suffering from concussion, shock and abrasions on the arms and legs. Wednesday morning he was still in a semi-conscious condition. Authorities expect him to recover full use of his limbs.

According to police reports, the Hempton car was traveling southwest on M-81 when it overtook a car driven by Bruce McCrea traveling about 50 miles per hour in the same direction.

While attempting to pass, the side of the Hempton car hit the rear of the McCrea automobile. After colliding, the Hempton car rolled over.

Because of the serious condition of Mr. VanAllen, police have not ascertained who was driving the Hempton car.

Mr. Hempton was born in Greenleaf Township November 26, 1935, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hempton. He graduated from Cass City High School in 1953.

He was employed as a machine operator at Pontiac Motor Car Company.

Surviving, besides his parents, are: two sisters, Mrs. LaVerne Elliott of Owensdale and Miss Carole Hempton at home, and a brother, Walter, at home.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at Little's Funeral Home. Rev. S. R. Wurtz of the Evangelical United Brethren Church officiated.

Burial was in Elkland Cemetery.

FHA Committee Approves Sixteen Loans in County

Approximately 16 loan applications from Tuscola County farmers were approved during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955, by the Farmers Home Administration county committee, setting County Supervisor Alger R. Hanson said this week.

Loans approved total $33,505.00. Credit has been advanced to buy equipment and livestock needed to place small farms on an efficient operating basis, for other operating expenses, and to buy and improve family-type farms. Funds have also been advanced for soil and water conservation purposes and to meet emergency needs.

All loan applications must be approved by the Farmers Home Administration county committee before funds can be advanced. Members of the Tuscola County committee are George W. Foster of Mayville, Harry Russell of Gagetown and Bruce Ruggles of Kingston.

At a recent committee meeting when the agency's lending policies were reviewed, Mr. Hanson pointed out:

1. No loan is made to a farmer who can obtain adequate credit at reasonable rates and terms from other private or cooperative credit institutions.
2. Borrowers are expected to refinance their loans with other lenders as soon as they are in a position to do so.

He added that the assistance borrowers receive in record keeping, budgeting, and preparing financial statements helps develop their ability to handle and make good use of credit. Also, the equipment, livestock and improved land and buildings farmers acquire through the Farmers Home Administration loans improve their position when they apply for private credit.

Coach Yedinak stressed that the physicals are for all boys, including those who did not receive invitations to practice.

He said that the reason that all boys who indicated they wanted to play football did not receive invitations was that ninth graders will be coached during the school day again this year.

Coach Yedinak said that any boys who failed to sign and now wish to compete should report Saturday when they will be issued uniforms.

Kids' Day Brings Record Attendance At Tuscola Fair

Annual Kids' Day at the Tuscola County Fair Tuesday, August 23, at Caro was a howling success as this 74th staging of the fair at the Caro fairgrounds broke attendance marks for the second straight day. The grandstand was filled to overflowing for the Tuesday matinee and 10 prizes were awarded to visiting children by the fair management. Marilyn Louks, Route 2, Mayville, rode off with a new girl's bicycle; Tommy Eskeleson, Route 2, Cass City, was top winner among the boys, receiving a deluxe boy's bicycle.

Judging was completed today in the Fine Arts Division of the Arts and Hobbies Department. This new division, instituted at the Tuscola Fair for the first time this year, has been drawing enthusiastic capacity crowds since the fair opened. Robert C. Korte, a Caro serviceman stationed at Kinross Air Base in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, was adjudged Sweepstakes winner for 1955, collecting three firsts for oil paintings, plus "best of show" for his portrait of an Indian princess. This marked the first public showing of Korte's artwork, and Mrs. Grace Hogan, prominent Michigan artist from Bad Axe and judge for the event, stated she had never seen so much basic talent in a first showing.

Correction

In the story of the denied divorce decree, in a case between Clara Frances Bulla and John C. Bulla, the second paragraph read: "The court said that neither party had shown that they were suited to care for the minor child involved and that no benefit to the child would come from a divorce."

This was in error. What the judge did say was that both parents were guilty of misconduct, as he denied the decree.

Iowan Pioneered Early Weaning Salesman Now Owns Going Feed Business

With early weaning of pigs becoming widely adopted as one of the most significant developments in modern livestock management and production, an Iowan with 16 years' experience in pig weaning has compiled a handy list of hints for farmers and hog raisers planning to convert to this new method of increasing pork production and thereby insuring a higher cash return on their investment in hogs.

P. J. Geerling, of Waterloo, first conceived the idea of early weaning—a dry feed instead of a liquid milk-substitute—in 1939, but he couldn't interest any of five companies for which he had worked as a feed salesman. In 1940 he opened his own feed firm and began to experiment with various dry feeds. For 10 years he met with failures, his early-weaned pigs weighing less than conventionally weaned pigs.

In 1950, he found the answer by adding aureomycin, to his dry weaning feed. His gains shot up to 30 pounds, substantially over the 8-week national average. After thoroughly testing his meal on Iowa farms, he put the product on the market in 1953.

Here's How To Start Early Weaning Plan

Interested in starting an early weaning program? Here are P. J. Geerling's recommendations, based upon 16 years experience and first-hand tips gleaned from 1,000 case histories of Iowa farmers:

At 10 days to 2 weeks creep feed the early weaning meal away from the sow.

Early weaning program success requires plentiful supply of clean, fresh water near the feeders.

At 3 weeks either take the pigs away from the sow or sow away from the pigs. Divide pigs according to size so smaller pigs can feed together. Use one 8-hole feeder for each 20 pigs, or one feeding space per 2 pigs. You may put the weaning meal in pans supplementing feeder for first few days as a practical aid.

With good supply of water available, pigs eat more feed and get the fullest benefit from vitamins and antibiotics scientifically built into the feed.

Heat lamps over bedding or near the feed are necessary to keep pigs warm in cold weather.

Weaned at 3 weeks, each pig should consume about 10 pounds of the weaning feed. At 6 weeks start self-feeding shelled corn and meal on the side in separate feeders.

At 6th or 7th week pigs should be wormed. Early vaccination is also recommended.

Barn Cleaning

Modern dairy farming is typified here as manure drops into sprayer located in basement of barn. Push-button barn cleaner automatically drops refuse after it is collected and farmer simply opens the door and drives to the fields to distribute his load. Modern dairy barns such as this one can be cleaned as often as necessary, with little manpower.

For every fact we learn from textbooks one of our forebears had to burn his fingers to gain the knowledge.

Many a voter has come to the conclusion that political promises are just as frail as New Year's resolutions.

Sow Wheat After Fly-Free Date

Disregard of the "fly-free date" in sowing wheat may cost Tuscola County farmers serious losses in their wheat crop next year, according to Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent. He reports cases where farmers in Lower Michigan lost as much as 90 per cent of their crop this past season because they did not heed the "fly-free date" for their area. The "fly-free date" means the date after which danger of damage from the fall brood of the Hessian fly is practically removed.

Agent Ballweg says that entomologists have found the "fly-free date" remains practically the same for a given area every year. For Tuscola County the fly-free date is September 15.

Ray Jones, extension entomologist at Michigan State University, lists five recommendations to wheat growers for avoiding fly damage during the coming season:

1. Plant after the "fly-free date." 2. Avoid, if possible, planting wheat following a crop of wheat, rye or winter barley. 3. Delay planting seven to 10 days after the "fly-free date" if wheat must be planted on land following wheat, rye or winter barley.

4. Avoid tillage practices that leave stubble or volunteer wheat exposed in fields or near fields to be planted to wheat.

5. Use the plow rather than other machinery for preparing land to be planted to wheat. Careful turning down of stubble is essential.

Seed Lawns Now For Best Results

Time of seeding is very important in getting a good lawn turf started. Assistant County Agricultural Agent Don R. Kebler points out that lawn grasses establish easier and better in late summer than in the spring.

Carter Harrison, farm crops specialist at Michigan State University, lists some reasons why fall is a better time than spring to seed the lawn: Seedlings made from August 15-25 have little or no competition from weeds; fall rains generally begin in early September and temperatures are going down about that time.

Grasses grow best during cool, moist weather and Michigan gets that type of weather more often in September and October than in any other period.

Preparing the seed bed, leveling and seeding can better be done in the August dry period and before the fall rains begin. Grass seedlings may not get enough growth before winter if seeding is delayed until the rains start. Dry weather will not hurt the seed but the seedlings should be watered often after they begin to grow.

Kentucky bluegrass does best on soil that is high in both organic matter and fertility. Red fescues do better on red and brown clays, on sandy soils and in shady areas.

If you're in doubt as to the type of seed to use, try a 50-50 mixture of bluegrass and fescue. If the soil is high in fertility, the bluegrass will predominate and if the soil is low in fertility, the fescue will predominate. Use one to two pounds of seed per 1000 square feet. As a tip for even distribution, divide the seed into two equal portions, then seed one portion in one direction and the other portion in the opposite direction.

For fertilizer, use 10 to 20 pounds per 1000 square feet of 12-6-4 or any other high nitrogen fertilizer. Put it on just before seeding and rake it in lightly. Also rake the soil slightly after the seed has been sown to assure sufficient coverage.

Complicated mixtures with redtop and ryegrass as nurse grasses will start faster than the desired mixture alone. However, the nurse grasses become coarse and competitive once they are established. So it is advised to use the desired grasses alone and be patient in watching for the seedlings to appear. Look for them after two weeks or three weeks following the seeding.

Low Wheat Yields Keep Costs High

Good Soil Building Methods Approved

Like any other businessman, the farmer must receive a profit return on his investments, if he is to remain in operation. The wheat farmer who suffers low wheat yields is comparable to a landlord putting up with a boarder who refuses to pay for his keep. In the case of low wheat yields you get little or no return because costs of production eat up all the profit.

You couldn't run a boarding-house if tenants failed to pay their rent—and the farmer can't make a living raising crops that fail to pay for themselves and return a profit. The farmer who tolerates poor yields is a bad businessman, to say the least.

But low yields can be turned into high yields and higher profits where soil building methods are used, including the use of balanced fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

As yields go up, costs of production naturally go down. This means a higher net return for the farmer, even though prices may decline.

F. W. Smith, Kansas State College agronomist says that for high yields and rapid growth, wheat needs plant nutrients in quickly available form from the soil. To get those high yields, Smith advises farmers to have their soils tested and then follow recommendations by their state colleges for the use of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer.

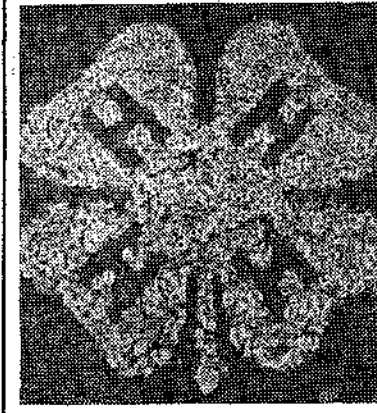

Increased Population Won't Up Farm Profits

By 1975, economists foresee the population in the United States increasing to more than 210 million people. On the surface this would appear to be far more than enough to eat up the surpluses of today's agriculture, and bring about higher prices for available farm products.

Yet the rise in the need for agricultural products isn't necessarily going to mean higher prices for America's farmers. New developments that increase farm production along with the need for farm products may indicate, say the experts, that controls will be needed for a long time to come. In fact, they conclude, farm prices will have the tendency to fluctuate even more widely than now as the economy grows. In the future, a small change in production will result in bigger farm price swings than now. Therefore production controls will be even more important than at the present time.

Developments that increase farm production will increase the downward trend in farm prices by adding to the supply of agricultural goods already placed on a limited market. The economists feel that new agricultural research should be directed toward developments which will reduce costs while boosting the output.

4-H Clover

This giant 4-H clover was photographed on the lawn of the administration building at Kansas State College. Most of the 1,300 Kansas 4-H club boys and girls attending the 31st annual 4-H Roundup posed for the picture. The college photographer processed enough pictures to give each delegate a print before the Roundup ended.

TIP TO MOTORISTS

Motorists who contemplate passing every car on the road should bear in mind that they may get only one chance.

When a man gets swamped in a speculation schemes a lot of wreckage comes to the surface.

Follow Recipe for Pasture Seeding

Good rains in Tuscola County should be a big help in making summer seedings of alfalfa, says Don R. Kebler, assistant county agricultural agent.

So, seed August 1-20, and the sooner the better. Fields that were summer fallowed to get rid of weeds can be worked into a good, firm seedbed. The same goes for oat or wheat fields that were plowed following harvest.

And if your seedlings in wheat didn't turn out like you expected, you can do the job over to make sure there is plenty of livestock feed for next year.

Farm Crops Researcher Milo B. Tesar of Michigan State University has supplied this recipe for summer seedings:

1. Have your soil tested before seeding to make sure it is near pH 7, sweet enough for alfalfa. If lime is needed apply it immediately and disk in.
2. Firm the soil with a cultipacker. New seedlings do poorly on a loose seedbed.
3. Use six to eight pounds of hardy northern-grown alfalfa seed for short term stands and certified Ranger for stands that are to be left three years or longer.
4. Use 400 pounds of 0-20-20 or its equivalent per if no soil test is available to show exact fertilizer needed.
5. Band seed if possible. If not, broadcast seed behind drill.
6. Always cultipack after seeding in August.
7. Seed alfalfa without a companion crop of oats unless the soil is hilly or when bromegrass needs to be sown with the legume. Seed no more than two pecks of oats per acre if the nurse crop is needed.
8. Don't pasture your seeding this year. That will give it a chance to give high production in 1956.

CARS ARE MY LINE

By H. M. Bulen

There's many a nippy morning any time of year when it's comfortable to have the heater on in the car. The heater, I imagine, is the most comfort-giving accessory they've ever designed for cars. And the improvements over the years have made the front seat as comfortable as the front room. (Remember the old hot water heaters that looked like a radiator big enough to heat a house?).

But sometimes a heater can be dangerous, through no fault of the heater itself.

Always turn the heater off when travelling in heavy traffic. While traffic is standing still, carbon monoxide—which is invisible, odorless and mighty lethal—can enter the car through heater and air conditioning intakes from the exhaust of the cars ahead. When a car is idling, fumes can sometimes enter from your own car.

A good rule is to keep one window of the car slightly open. Sometimes you can smell gasoline, which gives a warning, but carbon monoxide itself gives no warning.

People, I've found, learn these rules of safe driving pretty fast. You almost never hear these days of a man starting his car in a closed garage. It used to be a common accident.

Most of the cars on our lot have heaters already installed to give even more pleasure to one of the greatest pleasures of life, owning your own car. It's one of the extras that adds to the joy, but not the expense, of buying your car at our place.

Are you a Convertible Addict, as am I? We have a beautiful 1953 Chevrolet, Light Blue with Dark Blue Top, two tone blue upholstery. Equipped with Power Glide Automatic Transmission; White sidewall tires, Push Button Radio; Air Flow Heater and about everything else you can think of. A lovely car, cared for by Eldon Johnson of Snover.

If you like the sun and fresh air as I do, you'd like this car. Come in and try it?

If you have a minute I'd like to tell you about it.

Jack Epps and Tim Murphy are two of my best customers. Jack married young, and from all reports had a good wife. He'd turn his head, though, whenever a red-head or a blond walked by. One day he and Tim Murphy were perched in front of my short-order counter when this red-head slunk in. To my surprise, Tim nudged Jack, saying:

"Ten bucks says you're afraid to ask her for a date."

Jack studied the girl for a moment, and caused me to drop three plates when he answered: "You're on."

I didn't even bend over to pick up the pieces. My mouth hung open when he walked across the room, calmly settled himself opposite the lady, and had her smile

"Ten bucks says you're afraid to ask her for a date."

ing within three minutes. A bit later they were on their way down the street.

"That's a low-down trick!" I cried angrily, placing my index finger on Tim's red nose. "You know Jack is married—how many times have you heard him bragging about his lovely wife? Are you trying to break up a happy home?"

"Merely trying to teach Jack a lesson," Tim replied. "Haven't you noticed the way he's been ogling the ladies lately? That's bad. Before this day is over he'll find out it's a dangerous business. He'll be back before you close tonight, mark my words."

He was right. Still holding, I was preparing to shut things down for the night when Jack staggered in. He was as pale as one of my Saturday-night tablecloths, and actually shaking. After placing a steaming cup of tea before him I ventured:

"Don't tell me you ran off the road and killed the red-head?"

"Worse than that," he gasped. "She wants to marry me!"

About this time the door opens and Tim dashes across the room with a bill in his hand. "Here's your ten!" he cried, forcing the paper into Jack's limp hand. "Didn't think you could do it! Reminded me not to make any more bets with you."

Jack just sat there as if he had turned to stone. I tried to tell him about my own home, and how much I loved it, and if it weren't for him I'd be there now. I was just about to chuck him out into the dark street when the front door opened again; the red-head, attired for travel, looped straight at Jack.

"I'm all packed, darling," she purred. Jack gulped. I had to help him somehow.

"You were called," I lied hopefully. "She wants you to pick up some eggs on your way home. Here's a bag—get some out of my ice-box. I know it's too late to buy any."

Gratitude showed in his eyes, like a drowning man when he spots a life-raft. The three of us watched as he chucked eggs into the bag as if they were rocks—then he streaked for the door.

When I turned to give the red-head a piece of my mind I was startled to see Tim with his arm around her.

"Permit me to introduce Marylyn—my wife," he grinned. "When I told her about our friend's roving eye she suggested this little skit. Marylyn, you see, is an actress. Nest, wasn't it?"

I agreed—naturally. Jack stops in every day, as usual. Never looks around much though—just straight at the menu. And once in awhile when he doesn't realize I'm listening, he looks to himself, real contended-like.

Most people know when they have said enough, but few have enough self-control to put the lid on.

The man who spends his time telling what he is going to do after he gets there usually never arrives.

In a double-ring, candlelight ceremony in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Caro, Miss Mary Jane Lessman was united in marriage to Lt. J. g. Norman Adam Baguley Saturday, August 20, at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Otto Neuchterlein performed the rites before 200 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lessman, Decker, are the bride's parents. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Irl Baguley of Caro.

The bride chose a floor-length, strapless dress of embroidered nylon tulle with bouffant skirt of nylon tulle over satin and topped with a redingote of embroidered nylon tulle, the skirt edged with a border of embroidery. The gown featured a fitted bodice with Peter Pan collar and wrist point sleeves. An imported lace mantilla from Lisbon, Portugal, gift of the groom, completed the bride's ensemble. She carried white roses. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Robert Gibbey, and Mrs. Alton O'Connor, also a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore identical waltz-length dresses of mint green nylon chiffon featuring bouffant skirts, shirred bodices and Grecian necklines with matching headbands. Both carried bouquets of white daisy mums.

Sharon O'Connor, the bride's niece, who acted as flower girl, was dressed in yellow.

Wedding guests came from Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, Marlette, Decker, Canada, Lansing, Caro and Cass City.

The groom's attendants were Lt. J. g. Robert E. Lane of Rhode Island as best man and David Stader, Leonard Wilson and Keith Baguley, the latter two brothers of the groom, as ushers.

Mrs. Lessman wore a pink linen duster dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses and white mums for her daughter's wedding. The groom's mother chose a yellow linen ensemble with white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses and mums.

The church was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and palms. Roger Parrish was the vocalist.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church parlors.

When the newlyweds left for a week's trip in northern Michigan, the bride was wearing a gray duster ensemble with pink accessories and a white orchid corsage. The couple will live at Quonset Point, Rhode Island.

The bride is a graduate of Cass City High School and Northeastern School of Commerce. The groom attended Caro High School and the University of Michigan.

Wedding guests came from Bay City, Saginaw, Detroit, Marlette, Decker, Canada, Lansing, Caro and Cass City.

MACKINAC BRIDGE WIRE AND ROPE IN THE MAKING

It's going to take fifteen thousand leagues of wire to bridge the Straits of Mackinac. Highly specialized techniques and experiences are being drawn from a century of wire-making know-how by American Steel & Wire Division in fabricating the 46,000 miles of wire products for the suspension bridge being built for the Mackinac Bridge Authority there.

Above are scenes from that U. S. Steel unit's Trenton, N. J., plant, where the steel wire for the two 3,362 foot long main cables as well as for the 368 vertical hanging suspender ropes are being made.

Upper left: On this wire drawing equipment, almost 1,300 feet of special high carbon rods are reduced 70% in diameter and elongated over three times original length in just 5½ minutes.

Upper center: Here are actual size cross sections of rod and wire showing diameter reductions after each drafting operation. Twelve thousand, nine hundred twenty wires of finished size on right, will make up each main cable.

Upper right: Protective armor of silver bright zinc has been applied to wires to protect them from weather and rust.

Lower left: Taking the stretch out of a suspender rope with 235,000 pounds of pull. This compacts the rope and removes structural elasticity so the rope will not stretch when installed on the bridge.

Lower center: A closeup of a rope under tension in the plant's "prestressing" beds.

Lower right: Break-testing suspender ropes. Specifications call for each rope to have a catalog strength of 235 tons—the tester adds over 100 additional tons to see how much more the rope will take. (At 350 tons it broke—note that two of the six strands still remain intact.)

Driver license reforms are in the making to weed out incompetent motorists from Michigan highways.

The state already patrols the streams of traffic with police and, on summer holiday week ends, adds a force of National Guardsmen to the assignment.

But Secretary of State James M. Hare figures Michigan should go back farther for two reasons: to prevent accidents before they happen and to keep bad drivers off the highways.

The driver license administration was established as a separate unit in the secretary of state's office two years ago for that purpose and it has all but failed.

Hare and his staff have no control over the way a local license examiner runs his office.

"We can recommend and educate, but they can—and sometimes do—give licenses to anybody," he said.

A man with cataracts on both eyes, who couldn't read a newspaper because of poor vision, got a license.

Epileptics, those with other mental illnesses and some who were physically incapable of driving a car—all were given an official sanction to drive on Michigan highways.

Hare's lack of control over local license examiners, who are often given the job by local officials because they cannot get other work, sometimes takes on aspects of the assinine.

One examiner notified Hare that he was going on vacation, but assured him he would leave his license records and forms at a service station where attendants could issue licenses.

The original idea of the driver license administration was to tighten up the ranks, permit only qualified and trained examiners to pass on licenses for drivers.

Hare's regional inspectors have done a job, but their work is wrecked by a lack of control over the local examiner.

One of the new ideas is to give state officials the power to appoint or fire local examiners and force them to complete a training course before issuing licenses.

"It may come to that," Hare said.

Economy and convenience were the reasons for a drive to recruit a 14-man architectural staff for state government.

For years Michigan has been shelling out fees totaling five per cent of the total construction cost of state buildings to pay architects.

When legislators asked Building Director A. N. Languis how much a project would cost, he could only estimate roughly based on only the sketchiest of information.

"The legislature had to guess and then I was criticized for not staying within the appropriation," he said.

So, the 1955 legislature turned loose $82,000 to round up the staff which Languis said can make pre-preliminary drawings and come a lot closer to the actual cost.

The new staff, he said, can do all the pre-preliminary work and cut out one per cent of the five per cent fee going to private architectural firms.

Languis said a staff in his office could have saved $6,000 of the $6,500 the state spent for first plans for a dormitory at Ionia State Reformatory.

"Eventually, this will save the state thousands of dollars and give us a better idea of projects before they are built," he said.

Michigan now has $100, million in buildings under construction. The total architect's fees are $5, million. With the building staff, Languis figures the state could have saved $1, million.

It may be too late now to keep your house cool during the 1955 summer, but the state health department came up with a two-way idea that can help in the winter, too.

Experts assured people they weren't eccentric if they believed the house was cool during the heat of the day and hot as blazes after the sun went down.

Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, said it happens that way because of "heat lag."

It takes hours for the heat from the sun to penetrate the roof, work down through the ceiling and bounce into the first floor living quarters.

By the time the sun sets, the heat is reflected from the ceiling and it's hot inside and cool outside.

The same principle works in reverse in the winter, he said.

His experts recommend a foil type insulation between the joists in the roof, to reflect the heat and cold back outside which permits families to regulate the temperature inside.

An idea. And it's free, from the Michigan State Department of Health.

BE REASONABLE

A high aim in life is all right, but if the target is out of range the shot is wasted.

NO REGRETS

So work that when you meet the payroll you won't be ashamed to look it in the face.

AGE A FACTOR

Few people think of reforming until they begin to pay penalties for what they have done.

SHORT STORY

In Pink Or Blue

By Len Johnson

H. C. Higgins was the big wheel in the collecting department, shrewd, unwavering and entirely devoted to his detailed reports that he so carefully itemized for the directors. One such report he had just finished, telling his superiors that the collections against Maple Apartments would soon be cleared up. Maple Apartments was a small, dainty building, but cheerful and a paying proposition — up until now. This was going to call for the right man. H. C. tried to picture the set-up . . . a whole apartment filled with single, working girls. They had all gone together in the purchasing of the building, paying so much a month until the title was clear. No doubt, each had a dream when the building would finally be their own—changing the small rooms into homes. H. C. thought of the next report to the directors, and how he'd be able to tell them how he had the Maple Apartments deal on a paid-up basis.

"I've a good mind to put a vacancy sign on this place—every room!"

Higgins read from the little black book: Jim Wilkins—age 29, ambitious and neat. Dependable. Has done very well with female customers of late. Trustworthy (barring that cigar he lifted from my desk).

The next day Jim Wilkins' report was on the big desk. Higgins was a little disappointed—and a little suspicious. Now what on earth did that young upstart mean: THE PAYMENTS WILL BE IN AS SOON AS THE BABIES ARRIVE?

As soon as the babies arrive! Just what was going on down there? This bore looking into! "Where's Tom and Albert and Kenneth and—where is everybody?" he roared at his secretary, for the place was almost deserted.

"They said something about checking up on that Maple Apartments deal."

"All of them? Did they say anything? Tell you anything?"

"Just something about some babies arriving—"

Ten minutes later Higgins burned to a stop outside the front gate of the apartment building. He could see several parked cars, all belonging to members of his staff—male members. With one ear cocked he listened for the sound of babies crying . . . there was silence . . . then came a din from the house as if it were in a state of collapse. There was sawing and hammering; scrapping and chipping—there was deep laughter and high-pitched giggling . . . That was enough for H. C. He tore up the stairs and burst into the room. There were play pens, slides and toys and numerous other unmentionables. And there was Tom, Albert and Kenneth . . . he lost track. The sight of a dozen, jean-clad girls fairly took away his breath. They all looked normal—that is, for single, working girls. . .

Higgins belloyed the first thing that came to his mind. "Well, when are the babies arriving?"

"Tomorrow!" all the girls cried excitedly.

Higgins paced the room, scowling at the pink and blue articles that filled the room. He backed against a freshly painted crib— ("I've a good mind to put a vacancy sign on this place—every room!")

A soft moan came from the girls' section. A cough or two came from the boys' side.

"Now you wouldn't do that would you, Mr. Higgins?" said a motherly voice from an adjoining doorway. "We can explain. All these sweet girls—and myself, got to thinking . . . well, with some of us having days off at different times . . . You see, we thought it would be a nice thing to run a baby-sitting nursery here—give the shopping mothers a break in their day."

Higgins was just plain worn out when he returned to the office. With a contented sigh he dropped into his chair. Leaning forward he took a piece of paper labelled DIRECTORS. He smiled, then wrote: THE PAYMENTS WILL BE CLEARED UP AS SOON AS BABIES ARRIVE.

He hadn't felt as young in years.

To be a good political leader a man must be smart enough to know which way the people want to be led.

BIGGER THAN CARS COSTING $500 MORE

Get the biggest value in town! You get big-car size, big-car beauty and big-car comfort at the lowest possible price when you choose a big 17-foot-long Plymouth.

Even many medium-price cars (let alone the other two low-price cars, which aren't nearly as long, as roomy, as heavy or as handsome as Plymouth) can't match Plymouth for over-all size and value. In fact, you could spend as much as $500 more and still not get a car as big as Plymouth.

So don't be fooled by misleading claims! Compare price tags and you'll immediately see that, model for model, Plymouth sells for much less than medium-price cars and gives you much more car for your money.

Get the biggest deal in town! With sales piping hot, your Plymouth dealer is able right now to give you the biggest, sweetest deal of the year on a new '55 Plymouth. He's ready to offer you a sky-high allowance for your present car—probably much more than you'd expect!

What's more, he'll be glad to arrange quick, easy financing. Better hurry over to see him now.

Water Important To Production

Soils Should Utilize Available Rainfall

Water plays an important part in the production of any crop but it means most to "thirsty" crops such as corn.

Corn is indeed a thirsty crop. In fact, Midwest agronomists say that a 100-bushel corn yield will use up about 2,666 tons of water. So it is important for farmers to keep their soils in shape to make use of every drop of rain.

Water is important to all crops, but is of vital importance to such "thirsty crops" as corn. Poor soils allow water to get away. Fertile soils hold the water long enough to allow crops to get full benefit they need for higher yields.

Actually, many Corn Belt farms are only about 50 per cent efficient in the use of water for producing crops.

Two factors responsible for this situation are:

1—Too much water is permitted to get away. It runs off because some soils are in such poor shape that the surface seals over and won't permit water to soak in.

2—When the soil's fertility level is low, more water is needed to take the nutrients into the growing plants, because the concentration of nutrients in the soil solution will be low.

Soils make most efficient use of water when they are porous, of good tilth and high in organic matter. When such soils get a well-balanced supply of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer, growing crops have the full benefit of all the nutrients and moisture they need for high yields.

Legume Catch Crop Brings Yield Increase

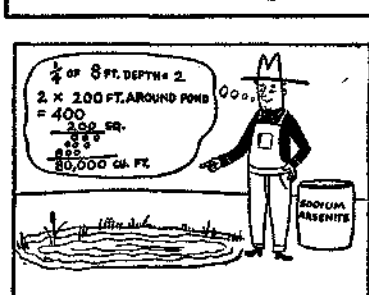

Seeding legume catch crops in oats, wheat or other grain fields has the same effect as putting protein in livestock feeds. The legumes help to balance the "ration" for corn and other non-legume crops.

L. B. Miller, soils specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, reports on a three-year rotation of corn, oats and wheat at the Dixon Soil Experiment Field in Lee County. A legume catch crop seeded with each wheat crop there resulted in a 28-year average increase of 26 bushels of corn an acre, 8 bushels of oats and 4 bushels of wheat.

Miller reported the increases worth more than $50 an acre for the rotation. Cost of using the catch crop, a mixture of legumes, once in rotation is about $5 an acre. So the payoff has averaged about 10 to 1.

To make the most of catch crops, Miller suggests that you supply the soil with needed amounts of lime and other minerals and then use a systematic rotation that includes a catch crop every third or fourth year.

Pond Cleaning

Sodium Arsenite, which is potent as lye and must be handled with extreme care, will clear off pond weeds. A concentration of 4 to 8 parts per million (3 to 6 gallons for each 100,000 cubic feet of water) will kill weeds; it takes 12 parts to kill fish. About half the pond should be treated at a time. Here's a rule of the thumb; multiply one-fourth of the deepest footage by number of steps around the pond squared. Pond 8 feet deep and 200 steps around has 80,000 cubic feet and needs 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 gallons of sodium arsenite.

People who most appreciate the value of money usually are those who have none.

Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan

Gentlemen:

Please send me a couple of copies of your paper. I am anxious to know if Herbie Lenzner and the rest of the boys are still in the land of the living. My time at Cass City goes back to the time when Dr. Deming was a young man and had been out of the army and the Civil War not too many years. My time goes back to the time when Larry McPhail was living as youmester above Marris Clothing Store and I. B. Aute had just built his new house near the school house on Seeds Hill after coming from the East to Cass City. I stopped buying the paper because there were so few names I could recognize. It is a far cry from the time we printed, after supper, hand bills asking that the farmers of the locality gather at a mass meeting to hear a discussion of a new beet sugar factory at Caro. You may not recall it or know about it but from those mass meetings came the growing of small acreages of sugar beets that brought a sugar factory to Caro. At that time, fishing was good in the Cass and East Rivers and all this is prompted by the visit of some Flint people to our section a few days ago. Two weeks before, these people had been at Cass City and had fished the Cass, undoubtedly having fished some of the holes that I fished more than sixty-five years ago. We live here on Lake Norfork with more than five hundred miles of shore line and less than three hundred feet distance from our house to the lake. We have good fishing but lack of strength and energy prevents us fishing often though we can put the boat and motor in the lake in less than five minutes from our house.

With best wishes, I am,

Very truly,
Paul D. Cooper
