

Plumbing Code May Be Required Here

The village's attempt to get out of the plumbing business may result in a simple plumbing code for Cass City, according to a discussion held Tuesday evening at the regular monthly council meeting at the Cass City Municipal Building.

The council had invited all local plumbers to attend the meeting Tuesday. Only Walter Finkbeiner was present.

President James Bauer asked Mr. Finkbeiner what he thought about having plumbers handle the cleaning of blocked sewers in the village.

Mr. Finkbeiner explained to the council that because there is no plumbing code in the village, many homes have three-inch cleanouts and pipe with 90-degree bends. He said that sewer cleaning rods won't work in these places. Rather than have to explain this to customers, he said, I have been telling them to call the village.

With this situation prevalent, he added, I do not see the justification for purchasing the necessary equipment.

Trustees said that they would be glad to consider a plumbing code as drawn by the plumbers.

With this in mind, they asked Mr. Finkbeiner if he thought he could get the rest of the plumbers together to discuss the matter. Mr. Finkbeiner said that he would try.

The council then discussed the price charged for cleaning blocked sewers. Depending on the time required, the village charges about $1.50 to $3.00 for each call.

Although no change in price was set at the council meeting, it seems certain that the cost will be substantially increased if the village is forced to continue in the plumbing business.

Village Engineer C. L. Burt reports that the work is taking a man from needed village work in the summer that cannot be replaced.

President Bauer said that if the village must do the work, the cost should cover the addition of a man to the village crew.

Final action on the program will not be taken until the plumbers of the village decide on a course of procedure.

Favorable Ore Samples Taken at Mack Little Farm

Basil Sherlock reported early this week that his drilling crew has struck favorably appearing "black jack" zinc on the Mack Little farm, south of Cass City.

The rich-appearing ore was struck at 27 feet. Mr. Sherlock said that to be commercially profitable, zinc ore must assay $10 a ton. Samples from the Little farm and from the Fred Knoblet farm have averaged about $16.36 a ton.

Mr. Sherlock said that drillings may be conducted for a year before his company, Howard Engineers of Detroit, can tell whether there is ore in sufficient quantities to be worth mining.

He said that if tests continue as favorable as those presently being taken, his company would build a grinding and smelting plant in the area.

He said that his company at the present time has a gold mine in Utah... the only other mining venture the company is presently connected with.

Frank Schobert Hits Cow in Crash Thursday

Frank Schobert, 40, of Cass City, escaped injury at 6 o'clock Thursday morning when he hit a cow on M-81, about a half mile west of M-53.

Mr. Schobert reported that a calf ran across the road and he slammed on his brakes to avoid hitting it.

He succeeded in avoiding the calf, but rammed a cow that followed the calf across the road.

Both animals belonged to Brewster Shaw of Cass City. The cow was injured and was destroyed.

The State Police Post at Bad Axe, which investigated, said that Mr. Schobert's car was damaged on the right front fender and right side. Damage was estimated to be at least $350.

Mr. Schobert was traveling at about 50 miles per hour when the accident occurred, police said.

Report Bean Crop Fairly Good in Area

Despite dry weather this summer, the bean crop in the Cass area is averaging from 18 to 22 bushels an acre, according to farm authorities.

The crop has been clean with not over an average pick of three per cent. The only trouble farmers have encountered this year has been with green beans.

Prices have fluctuated during the week, reaching as high as $7 per bushel and were $6.75 Thursday. Continued on page 12.

$1.75 Per Foot to Property Owners

Curb and Gutter Cost Set by Trustees

The perplexing curb and gutter question in the village was finally solved Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the council held at the Cass City Municipal Building.

Trustees set the cost of the work to property owners at $1.75 per running foot. The trustees acted after plans were presented by Andrew Bigelow and Warren Wood.

The cost to property owners is based on a percentage of the actual cost of the work. Curb and gutter placed in the village on Main Street this year cost the village $2.75 per foot.

This type curb is the standard type used by the state and will withstand heavy usage. It is heavier than curbs now being erected in neighboring communities and material alone costs $1.20 per foot.

In 1954, Marlette was installing curb and gutter for $1.25 per foot and Bad Axe for $1.60 per foot, trustees reported.

It is possible, trustees feel, to use a less expensive curb and gutter on streets that do not receive the traffic that Main Street and Seeger Street do.

BUILDING STEADILY - Workers have progressed rapidly in recent weeks erecting the building to house the Cass City Manufacturing Company, Cass City's latest addition to its industrial growth.

Although delayed in starting, the building is scheduled to be turned over to company authorities by Oct. 15.

From the Editor's Corner

We believe you'll like R. L. "Bob" Bassett who is scheduled to take charge of the Cass City Manufacturing Plant when it opens here around Nov. 1.

We met him for the first time Wednesday. Bob seems to take an interest in the village. He remarked about the improvements to Main Street and the several additions to business places in the community. "I am a small town boy myself", Mr. Bassett said. He explained that he was brought up in Dundee, Michigan, and is glad to come back to small town life.

Only thing troubling the new manager at the present time is finding a place to live... a complaint that gets more common constantly as Cass City continues to grow.

In the very near future, tickets will go on sale for the first fall meeting of the Community Club. The members in charge hope that sellers will canvass their areas promptly so that they can tell how many tickets can be sold to the public at large to fill the gymnasium. The meeting will honor Dr. F. L. Morris and a capacity crowd is assured, they said.

Wives of members have been invited for the special program, first of its kind sponsored by the club.

Ronald Phillips, band instructor at Cass City High School, announced this week that the 1953 Rose Bowl movies of the Michigan State University marching band will be shown at the school gymnasium Tuesday, Oct. 4.

In addition, a movie of all football formations made by the MSU band will be shown.

Admission is free, Mr. Phillips said, and any interested person can attend.

Calvin Keilitz, 33, of Caro, was found dead Sunday afternoon in his car, parked in a wooded area four miles southeast of Caro. A hose led from the exhaust through a rear window.

The body was found about 4 p. m. by a group of five boys who called the Tuscola County Sheriff's office in Caro.

Dr. H. T. Donahue, coroner, investigated with Sheriff William Tomlinson and Deputy Putnam. The coroner pronounced the death a suicide. No inquest will be held.

New Plant Will Begin Production by Nov. 1

A new 80 by 80-foot building is nearing completion and will be turned over to the Cass City Manufacturing Co. by Oct. 15. R. L. Bassett of Detroit, who will manage the plant here, said Wednesday. As soon as equipment can be installed, the plant will swing into operation. Mr. Bassett expects to start operations on or before Nov. 1.

The company will produce auto parts and assemblies when they first open. However, Mr. Bassett said, one of the reasons we are opening here is to attempt to diversify our production.

We hope to start manufacturing a household product soon after we are in full production, Mr. Bassett added.

The plant will start with about 25 to 35 employees on the payroll. However, the company expects to expand rapidly. They have purchased nearly eight acres in the Cass City Development Association's site in southwest Cass City and the building is constructed so that the plant can be expanded in any direction.

An addition can be erected while work is uninterrupted in the present building. When completed, the wall can be removed and the addition becomes an integral part of the original building.

Mr. Bassett said that all of the help in the new plant will be hired locally. Owners of the Cass City Manufacturing Company are also owners of a similar business in Detroit, operating under the name of Cleary-Shevin Manufacturing Company.

The Cleary-Shevin Co. has a profit-sharing plan for employees and Mr. Bassett said that a similar program will be in operation here as soon as it becomes practical to do so.

Entire cost of the new building and the land is being paid for by the new company.

$1,583.95 DeWitt Bequest Received Here Tuesday

The Cass City Village Council accepted $1,583.95 from the estate of Laura A. DeWitt Tuesday for use in the park or village, as specified in her will.

The money was the first payment of a total of $3,000 and interest left to the village by Miss DeWitt. The remainder of the bequest will be made to the village within five years.

After a brief debate, trustees said that they would make no decision until after the first of the year.

New public restrooms or a shelter at the park was discussed, but no action taken. Trustees felt that considerable investigation should be made to decide how the money should be spent.

Alert Hawks Convert Breaks to Victory

Cashing in on two breaks, the Cass City Red Hawks scored a touchdown in each of the second and third periods Friday to defeat rival Caro, 12-2, at the Cass City Recreational Park.

It was the first home game and the first conference tilt for the Hawks who had opened the season with an easy non-league victory at Elkton.

Alert defensive play by Jim Ellis was responsible for the first Hawk score. Lanky Jim picked off a Caro pass in the flat and scampered 45 yards to pay dirt. There was five minutes and 32 seconds left in the half.

Moments later, Bill Campbell, who was a bruising elusive runner for Caro all night, took the ball and scampered 45 yards to a touchdown, only to have the tally nullified by a clipping penalty.

The Hawks scored their last counter in the third period when they recovered a Caro fumble on the Caro 13-yard line.

Jack Clara ran for two yards and Bob Walpole picked up another yard. Clara made it a first down on the two-yard line with an eight-yard pick up and Quarterback Jim Johnson sneaked over for the score. The try for point was again missed.

Cass City dominated the first half. Several sustained drives were halted by penalties. The Hawks were penalized 105 yards and lost another 87 yards in yardage gained that was nullified.

The Hawks chalked up a total of 10 first downs, while the visitors racked up eight, and made 221 yards rushing to Caro's 145.

While the Hawks were definitely superior in the first half, the

Chest Drive Slated To Open October 13

Mrs. Andrew Bigelow was named president of the Elkland Township Community Chest Tuesday evening at a meeting of the board of directors at the Piney State Bank.

C. M. Wallace was re-elected to the post of secretary and Robert Keating was named to serve another term as Chest treasurer.

Supt. Willis Campbell was named general chairman of the campaign drive this fall. Elected as co-chairman to handle rural collections was James Mark.

This year, authorities of the Chest say that the goal for the township will be $6,000. A work night for the board and campaign chairmen will be held Thursday, Oct. 6.

Judging by contributions in previous years, meeting the quota will require cooperation from all residents of the area. Last year the Chest drive netted $5,537.20.

It will be the problem of the Chest authorities, campaigners and residents to see that the additional $463 is collected this year, members of the organization said.

As usual, the drive will be started with a kick-off dinner for Chest workers. The board has tentatively set Thursday, Oct. 13, for the affair.

The drive will be conducted until the end of October when all contributions are expected to be collected and reports of workers turned in to authorities.

Rep. Allison Green Gavel Club Speaker

Dick Hampshire, toastmaster for the Gavel Club at its regular Tuesday evening meeting at Parrott's Dairy Bar, introduced State Rep. Allison Green of Kingston who told the group of issues that will face the special session of the legislature. The session is slated to convene Saturday.

Primary issues, Rep. Green said, were conditions of mental institutions, teachers' wages and a speed limit law and traffic in Michigan.

In the business meeting, President Arlan Hartwick appointed Lloyd Vyse chairman of the Christmas decoration committee for the club. Assisting Mr. Vyse will be Fred Withey and C. M. Wallace.

Helen Gamet was granted temporary alimony of $40 weekly from Clifton Gamet. Mr. Gamet was ordered to pay $100 attorney's fees.

Temporary alimony was also granted to Clarice Pritchard from Howard Pritchard. Mrs. Pritchard will receive $20 weekly. Mr. Pritchard was ordered to pay $100 attorney's fees.

In the final case Wednesday, Hildegard Boesnecker was granted a divorce from Walter Boesnecker. Alimony of $20 weekly for care of two minor children and an equal division of property approved.

The tenth annual Huron County Holstein sale will be held Oct. 14 at the Huron County fairgrounds in Bad Axe and will feature animals from Sanilac, LaPeer, Tuscola, Bay and Huron counties.

Fifty-six cattle are expected at the sale. Included are 24 registered cows and heifers, eight service age 4-H Club and FFA sires, eight open yearlings and three calves.

Complete Plans For County-wide Use of X-ray

A fired-up effort to find tuberculosis was launched Monday night at a county-wide meeting in Caro when Mrs. Lucy Miller and Mrs. Robert Gunnell, new county public health nurses, expressed the hope that the coming chest X-ray drive, Oct. 24 through Nov. 4, will be the most effective ever staged in Tuscola County. The campaign is the first major project of the health service.

Forty-five representatives of the County Federation of Women's Clubs and Home Demonstration Groups were present and were asked to set promotional and educational phases of the program. Plans call for the organizations to operate in every town and township in the county.

Thousands of pre-registration cards and educational materials were distributed to local leaders. Plans call for every home in the county to be called. Adults will be asked to cooperate by "signing up for health."

At the meeting, a 15-minute color sound movie, "The Inside Story," explaining tuberculosis, was previewed. This and a film, "Unsuspected," will be available from the county health service at the courthouse in Caro for group showings.

Mrs. Sherwood Rice, Jr., of Gageton, is project chairman for the County Federation and Mrs. William Tonkin, president of the Home Demonstration Clubs, arranged for town and township leaders. The leaders will call on all groups, churches, businesses and industries in the area to push the survey.

W. A. Scott, county school superintendent, will ask children to encourage their parents to be X-rayed. Checking parents and grandparents is the best protection.

Cass City Youth Can Enroll in 4-H Club Work

An opportunity is being extended to boys and girls of Caro, Vassar and Cass City to enroll in 4-H clubwork for the winter project season.

This is the first time that the 4-H program has been offered to urban youngsters as well as rural, according to Bill Muller, county 4-H club agent.

4-H clubs are composed of five or more boys and girls 10-20 years old and dependent on the willingness of local adults to provide the leadership.

Club activities are centered around learning to do useful skills by working on worthwhile projects such as: Home Economics Projects: clothing, knitting, home improvement, school lunch, 4-H club girl, foods, food preservation, family living and child care. Boys Projects: hobbies, arts and crafts, gun safety, camp cooking, archery, trapping, safety. Boys and Girls Projects: photography, flower and vegetable gardening, home landscaping, personal money management and handicraft.

4-H club members are recognized around the world for their superior leadership ability and good character as well as the excellent projects that they develop through clubwork.

Parents interested in enrolling their youngsters in 4-H clubwork this fall should phone Caro 330, or write the county 4-H club agent's office in Caro.

Pasture Top Feed For All Cattle

But Young Calves Need Extra Roughage

Pasture is an excellent feed for cattle of all ages—but very young calves cannot eat enough of it to meet their requirements for rapid growth.

Yearling heifers can make satisfactory growth on good pasture and will need little or no supplementary feed except access to salt and minerals. But heifers under a year of age will need some grain, and very young calves will need extra roughage.

J. D. Burke, extension dairy specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture says it generally is best to keep calves born after January 1 in the barn on a full feed of good-quality hay and 4 to 5 pounds of grain.

You can let the calves run on pasture near the barn, Burke says, but they should be free to return

Very young calves need extra roughage and grain, access to shade in hot weather if they are to grow rapidly.

To the barn when weather or insects begin to bother them. You can shift heifers to pasture gradually after they are six months old.

Heifers of all ages need free access to salt, a mineral mixture and plenty of water and shade. Short or scant pastures will require supplementary feeding of roughage and grain.

You must keep your heifers growing at a normal rate if they are to reach full size by the time they are two-year-olds. Too often farmers tend to overlook this point during the pasture season.

For normal growth, Holstein heifers must make an average daily gain of 1.5 pounds, Brown Swiss 1.4, Ayrshires 1.3, Guernseys 1.25, and Jerseys 1.1.

Ten Commandments for Premium Quality Wheat

Grain harvesting and home storage methods often make the difference between little or no profit and good returns.

T. R. Robb, Wyoming extension entomologist, lists the wheat farmer's ten commandments for higher yields of premium quality wheat—harvested and sold:

1. Let grain ripen before combining.

2. Don't combine too early in the morning, too late in the evening, or too soon after a shower or rain.

3. Plan ahead that everything will be ready for full-scale operation in the warm part of the day.

4. Adjust the combine to prevent excessive cracking of grain, to thrash cleanly, and to avoid loss of grain from running too fast.

5. Clean combine of old grain before harvesting new crop.

6. Do not store wet grain in large bulk.

7. Store grain in clean places, free of old grain and old livestock feeds.

8. Clean storage bins and keep them free of all insects.

9. Never, under any circumstances, place new grain on top of old grain.

10. Make it impossible—by screening and rodent-proofing all openings—for birds, poultry, mice and rats to contaminate precious grain in bins.

Do these things and you will reap higher returns from less waste and premium prices for high quality grain.

One of the simplest ways of venting an outdoor drum which is mounted horizontally is to drill two ventholes just under the rim. Fuel will then flow freely and overhang of rim will prevent moisture from entering through the holes.

It's a little strange that some of the self-made men didn't take time to do a first class job.

A boy's best friend is still his mother—and if he comes home late enough he may find her.

After you pass a good resolution promptly nail it down.

COYS ARE MY LINE

By H. M. Bulen

A few years ago the coy comedians began making jokes about the fact that some women's charms weren't all theirs. The word "cheaters" used to mean a pair of glasses. It came to mean something entirely different. We could no longer believe in the old adage that "Figures don't lie."

There's something called "padding" in the car business, too, although it's not nearly so pretty a picture. Some car dealers still use it, and it just goes to prove the other half of that old adage: "Liars sure can figger."

A customer comes in and asks: "How much will you give me for this old car of mine on a new one?" Let's say that the new car he wants costs $2500 and his old one is worth $1500.

The "figgering" salesman says "Why, we'll give you $2000 for that charming heap of tin of yours on this sparkling new $3000 job." The sad part is that "padding is pretty successful unless the customer forgets his pride and does some figuring too.

In the above example, you'll notice, it still cost the customer $1000, no matter what the salesman said. And the customer could then boast to his friends how good a salesman HE was, how he passed off his old klunker for 2000 bucks.

The danger with padding is that a salesman schooled in the big city rules of what's called "hard sell" will inflate the customer's ego just enough by adding $200 to the trade-in value (offering $1700 in this case) but still will add the $500 to the new car price.

The customer, lost in a pink cloud of joy at getting $1700, falls for it. His protection, obviously, is to make all his decisions on the basis of how much EXTRA he has to pay over the trade-in price. That's the important figure, and that's the figure you'll get from us without any $300 falsies thrown in.

Misfortune has seemed to never end for the Ralph Lewis family of Deford. For nine months there has not been a single week in which the doctor has not been summoned to their home for one serious accident or illness, the final blow being the death of their son, Dennis.

Twenty-five Years Ago.

Fire destroyed the barn, tool shed, farm machinery, hay and grain, three horses and a bull on the farm of Wm. Zinnecker in Novesta Township Friday afternoon. The loss is estimated at $7000 and is partly covered by insurance.

Ninety railroad section foremen, members of section crews and their families of the Grand Trunk Air Line and Northern Division, gathered at the home of Edward Spencer, one-half mile south of Deford to honor him as he retired after 48 years in railroad work. The last 25 years were spent as section foreman at Deford.

Business places were unroofed, store windows and light and phone poles broken in Caro when a cyclonic wind hit that town Friday. A check up of those who suffered losses indicated that the damage totalled about $20,000.

The ladies' band that was organized several weeks ago is progressing nicely. Mr. Campbell of Caro, who is instructing them is much pleased over their work. The band meets each Tuesday night in the basement of the Presbyterian Church.

Ten Years Ago.

Fred Bears left Sunday for Detroit where he has enrolled in the Detroit Bible Institute, a new institution in that city.

Cpl. Donald Trudell arrived home Saturday evening. He received his honorable discharge after being wounded and having fought in battles in the Aleutians, the Marshalls, Leyte and Okinawa. He was wounded twice in Okinawa and out of 195 in his division. Cpl. Trudell was one of 20 who came back alive.

Excavation for Cass City's $150,000 grade school building will begin within ten days according to Mrs. Ed Baker, chairman of the school board.

Letter carriers of the Sanilac-Tuscola Letter Carriers Association met Wednesday night at the New Gordon Hotel. Robert Knight was master of ceremonies.

The sun turned blue on Sunday forenoon and electric lights had to be turned on because of darkness caused by smoke from forest fires in northern Alberta, Canada.

Harley Kelley was elected chairman of the Kingesta Farm Bureau at the meeting held Monday night, September 18, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Woelfle.

SHORT STORY

Paradise Of Birds

By Scotty Oglefree

JEB HOWELL was neither pious nor eloquent, but he was a good man. Only once while I worked for him did I know him to act vengefully. Then he made use of both piety and eloquence. It came about through Jeb's inordinate fondness for fighting cocks. He had several, and spent much of his leisure in grooming them and pitting them. This last was much deplored by his wife, Martha.

"Only the brute in man," she averred, "prompts him to encourage God's lesser creatures to fight and kill each other." To drive this point home, quite often she would save one of Jeb's roosters from this fate by killing it herself, and cooking it up in a pot of dumplings.

Whatever witchery Martha practised in her cooking, Jeb's roosters in her dumplings had my unqualified approval. At least one who shared this view was Amos Henderly, who preached at the little community church.

Henderly was young and lank, and I suspect, could smell Martha's cooking at a considerable distance. It was remarkable how often his "just happening by" coincided with the demise of Jeb's pets at Martha's hands.

This day Jeb and I had stopped for dinner. As usual he was talking about his roosters, particularly a young new one he had just acquired.

"Wait'll you see Blizzard, Tommy. He's a whiz. His first fight will be tomorrow, and after that I'll set him against any chicken in this county."

As we reached Blizzard's cage he stopped. I knew by his face what had happened. Then ironically, a wisp of breeze brought the odor of chicken dumplings and the jovial voice of Amos Henderly.

After a crestfallen moment Jeb said feelingly "Tarnation!" Then more quietly, "Tommy, it just don't seem right for Blizzard to go that way." Then Martha hustled him into the kitchen, trying to do the same with me.

There was a scraping of chairs, a sense of bowed heads, then Amos Henderly's voice, calling down blessings on "this household and these fine people whose works are evidence of their worthiness."

There was an individual blessing for the "worker in the field," (me, I guess) and a collective one for the land, the equipment, and everything that contributed to the bounty which "bless to their use, and to the use of this, Thy servant." The "Amen" was strong. I knew that Henderly's had lifted to rest squarely on that big bowl of dumplings. Then Jeb spoke.

"Preacher, I'd like to add a mite to that blessing."

The sharp intake of Martha's breath was covered by the preacher's puzzled, "Why, of course! Brother Howell." Again the sense of bowed heads, then Jeb's voice, strong and clear.

"Our Lord; it seems like we've left out one important contributor to this occasion. That's Blizzard, as promised a bird as I ever seen. He had spirit, and fire, and would'a made a real fighter. Now I know fighting ain't your way, Lord, but you'll understand, seein' you're the one made game chickens that way. Besides, Blizzard never done no fightin'. He never had a chance. So Lord, if there's any arrangements up there for fightin' roosters, I'm asking you to remember Blizzard. Thank you, Lord. Amen."

Henderly's reply was a mumble of which I caught only the two last words, "potatoes instead." A minute later Martha appeared in the door with a heaping plate, a bead of sweat glistening high on her cheek.

"Eat all you want of these, Tommy." She said. "There's plenty, and no one else seems very hungry. It might be a long time before we have chicken dumplings again."

If you have doubts about anything give your conscience the benefit of the doubt.

Any man who marries in haste and finds time in which to repent is truly a wonder.

No man can play "hookey" from the school of experience.

FRUTCHEY BEAN CO.

Let's take a walk around the NEW '56 FORD!

1. We'd like to show you some of the things that make the Ford one of America's finest cars... though it's one of the lowest-priced. Let's start with these long, low lines. Looks like it hates to stand still, doesn't it?
2. Here, on your left, is the inspiration for the styling of the '56 Ford—the famous Ford Thunderbird. Look at those broad, flat hoods, for example. Here is styling that will stay in style.
3. Here's what you ride on. This frame has five cross-members including a special K-bar member up front. It can really take it! By the way, the control arms of Ford's Ball-Joint Front Suspension are angle-mounted to cushion out the head-on as well as the up-down shock of bumps.
4. The new 202-h.p. Thunderbird Y-8 will give you a new lease on driving enjoyment. It's available in Fordomatic Fairlane and Station Wagon models. You can have the "GO"-packed 176-h.p. Y-8 in Fordomatic Mainline and Customline models, or Ford's new 137-h.p. Six is available in any model.
5. Note the deep-center design of this new Lifeguard steering wheel. The wheel rim is over three inches above the post to help cushion the driver in case of an accident. It's a feature of new Lifeguard Design which Ford spent over two years developing... to give you added protection in case of an accident.
6. This Lifeguard cushioning for instrument panel and sun visors is optional. It gives you extra protection when thrown forward in an accident. You may also have optional seat belts to help keep occupants securely in seats.
7. Here's Ford's new Lifeguard door latch. It is another member of Ford's new Lifeguard family. A double-grip locking engagement reduces the chance of doors springing open under unusual strain of impact. Chances of serious injury in accidents are less when passengers remain in the car.

You Can Do Wonders With Wallpaper

This season's wallpapers are so highly imaginative, it would seem they could solve almost any decorating problem. With the homemaker's need for more space, light and a feeling of wide-openness, wallpaper patterns now do much more than make a room lovelier. They do special "jobs" within a room or from room to room. As shown above, the traditional-in-feeling papers can soften the severe lines of modern furniture and give warmth and drama to a dark foyer area.

To give light to small dark rooms, there are increasing numbers of open-spaced patterns on light backgrounds. And, some of the new "trails" designs create a feeling of infinite space. Semi-scenic patterns such as lightly sketched bridges, country buildings, trees and foliage carry the eye far into the "beyond."

There are patterns with rich color accents on softly textured light backgrounds for "blended" room schemes. Also these papers can be used to set apart a special area in the living room for television or for dining.

The tricks with wallpaper are endless. There is so much that wallpaper can do for the homemaker, and so inexpensively, that one well-known home furnishings stylist remarked, "Nothing in the world decorates like wallpaper."

The casket lifted out, both men returned to fill in the empty grave.

was nothing to inherit so they shifted the responsibility off onto the county, and Val got only thirty-five dollars for what he called a "bang-up hundred and twenty-five dollar funeral." However that same day a certain doctor contacted Val in regard to a corpse that he must have at once.

After much haggling, one elderly male cadaver was to be delivered for the sum of one hundred dollars. Mr. Jenkin thought: "A neat profit after all."

At 11 o'clock that night Ruben, who was in high spirits after a couple of snorts of apple-jack, hitched Val's horse to a light spring wagon and Mr. Jenkin in high silk hat drove to the cemetery. After driving the rig into some screening shrubbery, Ruben was set to shoveling the loose earth from the freshly made grave, while Val sat and smoked homespun tobacco in a corn-cob pipe. Soon the lid of the box was bared; opened and the casket lifted out, carried and loaded into the wagon. Both men returned to fill in the empty grave. Val could use that knotty-pine, black, crepe-covered casket again for a neat sum provided it wasn't a county charity case.

Of course, Mr. Jenkin had competition in the black-marketing of human bodies and a rival came that very night bent on stealing from the same grave. Finding himself a little late and the coffin already in the wagon, he calmly opened the casket, lifted the corpse out and hid it in the nearby weeds. He then lay down inside the coffin.

When Ruben finished filling and rounding up the grave to Val's satisfaction they returned to the wagon. Val whispered: "Ruben, see if everything is all right with the coffin."

Ruben climbed into the wagon and ran his hands over the casket, then whispered back: "Boss, the lid's loose."

Val cursed, thinking someone had beat him to it. "Just my luck! Feel inside and see if the old man's gone." As Ruben laid the lid aside his hand came in contact with the supposed corpse. He jerked his hand back like he had touched a red-hot ember, yelling in a hoarse tone: "He's warm, boss!"

Just then the corpse came to a sitting position saying in a deep bass voice: "Yes, and if you had been in hell as long as I, you'd be warm too."

Val ran over Ruben as they went out the gate, but Ruben made a come-back and they were neck and neck as they went into the home stretch.

Morning found a sober Ruben and a much wiser Val. After taking time to study the whole thing over they realized just what had happened. Val knew it would never do to try and claim his horse and wagon as grave-robbing was a serious crime. So Val quit body-snatching and went out of the undertaking business entirely.

Attitude of Farm Youth Is Sampled

No, On Drinking; Yes On Attending Church

What are some of the social attitudes of America's young farmers? A poll conducted by rural sociologists at the Pennsylvania University shows they frown on social drinking and advocate regular church attendance, among other things.

The poll, which sampled 2,807 sophomore boys and girls in 74

A sampling of opinion among rural youth in Pennsylvania indicates that our young farmers believe that regular church attendance is a requirement for those who would be community leaders.

different rural high schools, revealed that:

1. Drinking of alcoholic beverages was disapproved by 76 per cent.
2. Regular church attendance was advocated by 62 per cent who felt it a requirement "in order to be a community leader." A total of 49 per cent disapproved Sabbath labor.
3. On Sunday movies, 40 per cent approved, 39 per cent objected, 21 per cent remained undecided.
4. Card playing was approved by 45 per cent, "loafing up town" was approved by 55 per cent, dancing was approved of 67 per cent, and 84 per cent approved the use of tobacco.
5. Divorces in cases where a couple can no longer remain happily married were approved by 56 per cent.
6. Makeup for girls was approval of 63 per cent.
7. High school students should be allowed to spend their money as they see fit, according to 56 per cent.

Research on Fertilizer Carryover Reported

Every farmer who pays off a fertilizer bill naturally wonders just how much of this year's fertilizer will carry over into next year's fields.

It's been a guessing game until recently. Now, agronomists at Iowa State College have conducted research to determine the amount of carryover and have come up with some figures which make fertilizer savings possible.

Nitrogen carryover, the Iowans have found, amounts to 25 per cent on the average. It may be higher following a dry year, or it may be less after a good crop or in sandy soils.

Phosphorus generally has a higher carryover than either nitrogen or potash. The rule-of-thumb figure given by researchers is about 40 per cent phosphorus carryover where 40 pounds of soluble phosphorus is applied, or as high as 60 per cent when 80 pounds or more is applied.

Many farmers apply phosphorus to small grains with the expectation that it will carry over at least the first hay year. Researchers found this a sound idea. Where phosphorus is applied to corn, the corn is followed with small grains and legumes, there will be some carryover and though probably not enough for maximum legume yields.

Potash will usually last two years at average application rates.

Bargain Seed

Buying "bargain" seeds is a practice that often pays off in poor stands and low harvest yields. Even a high price does not always assure quality, either. The safest bet is to always buy certified seed—even though it may cost more.

Some folk's idea of "harmony" is to have everything their own way. Betting is an argument that is convincing only when you win.

WANT AD RATES
Want ad of 20 words or less, 40 cents each insertion; additional words, 2 cents each. Orders by mail should be accompanied by cash or postage stamps. Rates for display want-ads on application.

Michigan Mirror News Briets

Politicians are swapping soap-boxes in Michigan as both parties stack their ammunition for 1956 campaigns.

Eisenhower promised 100 per cent. Laboring folks in Detroit will be bombarded with the idea that Republicans in the legislature have increased workmen's and unemployment compensation benefits.

Conceivably, Gov. Williams could be nominated for the presidency by Democrats and still be the candidate for governor in Michigan.

the two issues died in a State Central Committee meeting. Rep. John Penczak (D-Detroit) said he and others plumped for the $4,000 annual wage floor in the last session of the legislature.

Democrats, prosperous with a full slate of incumbents in the capitol, are wooing the farmer.

All this, while the guessing game reaches new peaks over who will be the candidates.

Whatever is accomplished in the special session of the legislature in October will also have an influence on 1956.

Too many people spend too much time trying to figure out a way to make lots of money without working for it.

The switch in emphasis will have an effect on the 1956 election, both sides claim.

Feikens insists that Gov. Williams will go for a fifth consecutive term and President Eisenhower will try for his second four-year stay in the White House.

The governor, who has been mentioned as a Democratic presidential candidate, is silent on the thought but has done little to indicate which way he might go.

Often a man boasts of the righteousness of his convictions, but still is unwilling to bet on them.

Democrat State Chairman Neil Staebler said the party is whipping together a "state farm program" to show normally Republican farmers that they would do well to vote the other way.

Here's how they analyze it: Potential candidates at Chicago next Aug. 13—except Gov. Williams—will be able to go into the convention, campaign for the nomination, and still hold a spot open back home.

Republicans are wary because the problems have been with legislators for years.

A determined man cannot fail—if he doesn't find a way to succeed he goes to work and makes a way.

Both parties conducted spirited voter registration campaigns in September.

Williams will have to make his decision before going to Chicago and it will have to be public, because the deadline for withdrawing from the gubernatorial race expires before Aug. 13.

Democrats sought to tie the proposed $200 a year salary increase for teachers to their $4,000 minimum wage plank.

Some teachers are working for relatively low wages in Michigan schools and poorer districts are hiring uncertified teachers regularly.

Democrats aimed a major campaign gun at the 80 per cent farm parity, claiming President

Team Work Can Kill Brucellosis

Brucellosis in Michigan can be eliminated, claims Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent. Promising results of a brucellosis eradication program over several years have convinced program leaders the state can be freed of the disease.

Complete eradication of the disease means teamwork between educational and regulatory parts of the program, declares George Parsons, extension dairyman at Michigan State University. "We have never been able to legislate a disease out of existence," he says.

There are four important things people need to know about the disease and its problems: How the cow picks up the disease, what it does to her, how it escapes from infected cows and gets to others, and how it gets from one herd to another. Complete understanding of these problems and wise use of calf-hood vaccination along with constant retesting will be needed to achieve the goal of a brucellosis-free state.

Ballweg lists these facts learned from the long-time testing. A continuous program of retesting cattle for brucellosis will reduce the amount of infection.

If the periods between retests are unusually long the infection rate will increase.

Sufficient funds must be available to operate the program.

Laws are to protect and aid people in their fight against brucellosis. And finally, there must be a continuous education program in high schools, youth organizations, farmer meetings and organizations and colleges and universities.

Dream Boat

By Paul MacMillan

"BUT you've got to, Johnny!" I pleaded. "Daddy said absolutely no, unless you give up this puttering around with speed-boats and get a decent job."

"I've tried," Johnny sounded fierce. "I've tried to give up Dream Boat and settle down to a humdrum job with a future. You know that I just can't stick it. But don't you worry, little mix, Dream Boat'll come in and we'll have it rosy!"

Johnny sounded real confident, but then he had sounded like this every other time he had raced. And he hadn't won one yet. Oh, sure, he had placed in the last two, but Daddy said that was not enough to get married on.

Johnny had told Daddy about the changes he was going to make in the engine so that Dream Boat would win. It didn't sway Daddy. "Absolutely not, youngsters. I'll give you just three months more. If you don't have a real job with

Johnny was desperate, too. "I can't do it, Edie."

Surprise Visitors

By D. L. Alexander

THE young man and woman, followed by the taxi driver carrying two suit cases, passed through the wrought iron gate at the palatial Montgomery home and rang the bell. It was answered by a man in his late thirties, who looked at them inquiringly.

"I am Mrs. Arnold Hudson, Mrs. Montgomery's niece, and this is my husband," the young woman explained.

"We neglected to let my aunt know we were coming, so I guess it will be a surprise to her."

"I'm sorry," the man at the door answered. "The madam has been gone for a week but I look for her back tomorrow night."

"Oh, that's too bad."

"Come right in. I guess it will be all right."

"Thank you. I hope Aunt Hester will return before we have to go back."

The man at the door took the two suit cases.

"Come this way," he directed. "I'll show you to the guest room."

They followed him up the broad staircase to a spacious bedroom. He placed the luggage on the floor and walked across the room to another door. "This is the bath," he explained, as he opened it. "And if you wish anything

"What does this mean?" he asked in a trembling voice.

Sicklers on Train Excursion Trip

Lowell Sickler of Cass City, who spent many years on the Pere Marquette railroad as a trainman, reports that he and his wife recently rode an excursion train from Durand to Battle Creek and back.

It was the fall trip of the Michigan Railroad Club, of which Mr. Sickler is a member, and was scheduled from Detroit to Battle Creek.

Steam power was used on the train, which included air-conditioned coaches, open gondolas lunch car and caboose.

COMING YOUR WAY

Three boats came churning into the last turn. As they swept up to the finish, I saw that Johnny and the two Dryerson boats were fighting it out.

A roar went up from the crowd. Johnny had won the race! And Dream Boat had won Johnny.

I sat down, numb. Working the little diamond off my finger, I said to Daddy, "I'll go see him."

Johnny saw us coming. "Edie," he yelled. "Edie, honey, we did it!" Then he saw Daddy. "Hi, Dad," he said, smiling.

Daddy's face lightened. "Now see here, son. Because you won a thousand dollars in a race doesn't mean that you can support Edie."

Johnny just grinned, and gathered me into a big hug. "The thousand bucks will get us started, Dad. When I beat Jim Dryerson's big new boat he couldn't understand it, so I told him what I had done to the old engine. He offered me a job in his marine depot. A job that will support Edie and me!"

I put the ring back on my finger. Johnny kissed me right in front of Daddy and said softly, "I told you our Dream Boat would come in."
