

From the Editor's Corner

While trying to trace down old records for the story about Main Street that appears in this issue, we drove east of Cass City on M-81 to look at the plaque commemorating Horatio Earl and the first state award road in Michigan.

We were surprised to notice that the plaque was nearly invisible from the road.

The reason is that the trees planted next to the monument have grown so much that they nearly obliterate it.

The trees would add much to the effect of the monument if branches that obscure the view were trimmed away.

Elkland Supervisor Eward Rawson is checking to see whose responsibility the care of the monument is.

If you're one of the many nimrods who liked the any deer season, there probably will be a place for you to hunt after the regular season this fall.

The Michigan Department of Conservation has announced that few hunters have applied for permits for the annual special season in Allegan County, Dec. 1-11, this year.

Landowners get first preference and there is usually less than 100 of these and the remainder of the quota is filled by non-owners.

The quota this year was increased from 1,000 to 1,500 and unless the application picks up, many available licenses will not be used.

Permits are available from the Conservation Department's game division in Lansing.

We expected to have a picture of Main Street before the original concrete was installed. The shot showed horse and buggies and the hitching posts of the time. We thought it would make an interesting comparison.

Unfortunately, our engraver reports that the picture was too old and blurred for reproduction and we had to settle for the picture of the current street.

Drillers Strike Cavern on Mack Little Property

Drillers for the Howard Engineering Company report that they have struck an underground cavern on the Mack Little farm, south of Cass City.

The cave is about 25 feet underground and authorities for Howard Engineering believe that it is a limestone formation.

The company is high on the possibility of finding lead in the formation and Basil Sherlock, company representative, said that the company may dig the site up with a dragline to explore the situation more fully.

Announce Soil Contest for FFA Members in State

The Michigan Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America has announced a 1955 soil and water conservation contest for Future Farmers of America Chapters in Michigan, according to L. W. Kellogg, of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service at Caro, Michigan. The Society is sponsoring this contest in cooperation with The Kellogg Company of Battle Creek.

The closing date for submitting entries is October 15, 1955. However, FFA chapters may report soil and water conservation activities that they have carried out between May 1, 1955 and March 31, 1956.

This is the third year that this program has been in effect. Seventy-two FFA chapters participated in 1954. Two Tuscola County chapters won awards in the 1954 contest. Caro won a gold award and Vassar received honorable mention. To win this contest, a FFA chapter must carry out a variety of soil and water activities under the following headings:

I. Class Activities in Soil and Water Conservation. This includes class instruction, field trips, essays, debates and guest speakers.

II. Chapter Activities in Soil and Water Conservation. This includes judging teams, displays and exhibits, management of school forests, seedbeds and school farms.

III. Participation in Planning and Applying Soil Conservation Practices. This includes soil and water conservation practices on members' farms, obtaining co-operators for local soil conservation districts and complete plans on cooperator's farms.

IV. Cooperation with Educational Program of Soil Conservation District. This item includes work with farm planning groups, attending annual district meetings, operating run-off plots, seedbeds, etc.

V. Advancement of the Soil Conservation Movement. This includes work with 4-H clubs, service clubs, sportsmen's clubs, news articles, radio and television programs, public talks and demonstrations.

Each FFA chapter must substantiate its numerical score by a narrative description and pictures of chapter activities.

Winning chapters will be awarded a two-day trip to a camp in addition to a scroll for the chapter and individual scrolls for the members.

Any Future Farmer of America chapter in Michigan is eligible to enter but entries must be submitted by Oct. 15, 1955.

Entries should be submitted to: Secretary of the Michigan Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America, Room 412, Agricultural Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan.

The game that coaches and fans of Cass City High School regard as the one most likely to decide the football championship of the Thumb "B" Conference will be played tonight (Friday) at the Cass City Recreational Park. The Hawks will face Yale at 8 p. m. Both clubs are undefeated.

Yale has recorded wins over Vassar and Marlette in conference competition while Cass City has league victories over Caro and Crosswell-Lexington.

The Cass City defensive unit was instrumental in bringing the Hawks their 7-0 edge over the Pioneers Friday.

Cass City's scoring drive started late in the third quarter when the Hawks took the ball on their own 27-yard line. Jack Clara dashed 56 yards for a first down on the Crosswell 26. After two line plays picked up only two yards Jim Johnson faded back and hit End Jim Ellis with a pass good for 16 yards and a first down on the Pioneer six.

The drive was halted on the next play when the Hawks fumbled and Crosswell recovered on their own seven-yard line as the quarter ended.

The Pioneers picked up a first down in three plays as the final period started but were halted in the next series. A bad pass from center nullified the attempted kick and Crosswell lost 10 yards on the play. Cass City taking over on the 12.

In four plays, the Hawks scored the only touchdown of the game. Dick Hanby picked up two yards before a penalty cost the Hawks five yards. Clara was stopped for no gain on the next play and Bob Walpole made two yards to make it fourth down and eight yards to go. Clara then called his own number and rammed 18 yards to point.

The try for point was good and Cass City had the 7-0 lead that proved decisive.

Crosswell made few threats to score in the game. Early in the third quarter, Bill Spezia intercepted a pass by Johnson and ran it from his own 45 to the Cass City 38. The Hawk defense was equal to the task as they held the Pioneers to seven yards in three running plays and an eight-yard loss on an attempted pass play on fourth down.

Cass City picked up six first downs in the game and Crosswell counted five.

Gordon Drouillard was outstanding on defense, making 18 of 40 tackles by himself and assisting on several others. Coach Mike Yedinak said. Only four tackles were made by the backfield.

Pair Near Trial In Circuit Court

The last of several legal questions placed before the court by counsel for Kenneth Carlisle and Kenneth Mead was decided Monday in Circuit Court in Caro.

The pair will be tried by jury in a trial scheduled to start Tuesday. Monday Judge T. C. Quinn denied a motion by the defense for a bill of particulars.

Carlisle and Mead will be tried on counts of statutory rape and kidnapping. A maximum penalty of life could be given by the court, if the pair were found guilty.

In the only other case Monday, a divorce was granted to Irene Kosa. Custody of a minor child was awarded to her and $15 weekly alimony set. A property settlement was approved.

COMPLETED—Village officials are hoping that the recently completed work on Main Street in Cass City will last another 31 years... the length of time the original concrete was used in the village.

Pavement Was Installed in 1924

Finish First Major Main Street Repair

The completion of the resurfacing of Main Street this week marks the first time in 31 years that major work has been done on the street.

The concrete that was covered here was installed in September of 1924 at a total cost of $56,582.15 and a cost to the village of $32,204.90. Property owners on Main Street were charged $3.64 a foot for the work. The village bonded for the remainder of the money.

Total cost to the village for the present work was $8,415. The state of Michigan paid the entire cost for the middle 22 feet of Main Street. They shared costs with the federal government and the village for the remaining area covered.

Due to the foresight of Travis Leach, there is a good deal more area to pay for than there is in most communities.

Way back in 1868, Leach was asked to plat the town of Cass City. There was plenty of cheap land all around so he saw no need for being stingy. He laid out Main Street 100 feet wide... insisted on this width despite stringent objections from other citizens.

Since surveyors were hard to come by in those days, his wishes were respected. But old-timers used to grumble that it was just more mud in the spring and fall and dust in the summer to wade through.

Then, according to an old edition of the Chronicle, there were the "wise acres" who ribbed natives about having to "take navigating instruments to find your way across the streets in Cass City."

Records about when the first gravel was placed on the road are vague. An issue of the Tri-County Chronicle in 1902 talks about making the road east of Elkland Township Cemetery passable.

The story implied that Main Street was in good condition. Good condition in those times meant a gravel road. Many persons in Cass City can remember the gravel Main Street and the cobblestone gutters.

It was the responsibility of each property owner on Saturday morning to clean out his gutter.

Present Rotarians New Scout Charter

Bernard Toland, Tuscola County representative of the Valley Trails Council of Boy Scouts, presented the Cass City Rotary Club with their 15-year charter as sponsors of the Cass City troop of scouts.

The presentation was made Tuesday noon at the club's meeting at the New Gordon Hotel.

In addition to the charter, commitments from the Rotary Club were given cards. Receiving the cards, according to Scoutmaster Keith McConkey, were: H. M. Bolen, George Clara, C. R. Hunt, Arthur Holmberg, R. M. Hunter, Dr. D. E. Rawson and Mr. McConkey.

Several other persons in the area who are not Rotarians will also receive cards. Mr. McConkey said. They include: Ed Baker, Dr. K. Ivan MacRae, Ray Fleener, Fred Auten, Rev. Floyd Porter and Dan DeLong.

Mr. McConkey pointed out that much credit to the scouting

Honoring Dr. F. L. Morris

Expect Large Crowd At Dinner Tuesday

A capacity crowd of around 300 persons is expected Tuesday when members of the Cass City Community Club and their wives, guests of the club, and others gather at the Cass City High School gymnasium for a dinner honoring Dr. F. L. Morris, 69, of Cass City.

The meeting will be the first of the new season for the club and the first time that wives have been invited for other than the traditional ladies' night in the spring.

The program will be under the direction of Jack Esau who will act as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Tickets for the special event for persons who are not members of the club have been placed on sale at Mac & Scotty and Wood's Drug stores.

Dr. Morris has been serving the Cass City area since May 1, 1915, when he moved to the community from Owendale where he practiced for three years.

He can recall practicing in the horse and buggy era. For three years, it was the only means of transportation available.

Roads at the time weren't so good, Dr. Morris recalled. The rutted and semi-cleared roads were hard on buggies... he wore out two during the first year he practiced.

Before coming to Owendale, Dr. Morris spent about a year and a half at Harper Hospital, practicing there immediately after graduating from Detroit College of Medicine (now Wayne University) in 1910.

Dr. Morris was born in Everett, Mich., and married the former Harriett Lee in Sincere, Ontario, in 1911. They have four children. John W. and Frank operate a drug store in Dearborn and Fred, who lives in Wayne, works in the Romulus office of the Ford Motor Co. A daughter, Nancy, lives in Chicago.

Dr. Morris started the new familiar Cass City Hospital in 1926 when he converted his home of that time into the hospital.

Tour Slated for Farmers in Area

A tour of The Michigan Vitri-fied Tile Company in Cornua has been scheduled for Sanilac County and Cass City area farmers Monday, Oct. 17, according to the Sanilac County Extension office.

The tile company will furnish transportation and dinners to farmers attending. Persons wishing to attend are asked to make reservations by Thursday, Oct. 13, at the extension office in Sandusky.

Plans call for the group to meet at the fairgrounds in Sandusky and board buses at 8 a. m. The tour is expected to be completed and visitors returned to Sandusky by 5 p. m.

A study of land drainage, soil and water relationship, quality of tile and quality of installation will highlight the tour.

Also slated is a short program, including a film, followed by discussion.

Boy Escapes Serious Injury in Crash

Eight-year-old Patrick Herholt, who lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Herholt, in an apartment on Main Street, escaped serious injuries when hit by a truck driven by Arthur Trathen of Ublv. The accident occurred Thursday, Sept. 29.

Patrick was riding his bike to school on North Oak Street at noon when the truck came out of the alley behind Bigelow's Hardware.

The youth suffered only minor bruises and a damaged bicycle. Village Constable Steve Orto investigated.

Stars Elect New Officers for Year Wednesday

Thirty-four attended the October meeting of Echo Chapter OES Wednesday evening. According to the annual report, the chapter has a net loss of three members for the past year. The retiring worthy matron, Mrs. Stuart Merchant, presented gifts to her officers. Installation of officers, which will be open, will be held Nov. 2.

In the business meeting, members voted a contribution to the coming Community Chest drive.

Drive for Best Use of X-ray in County Continues

The mobile X-ray unit will be in Cass City Wednesday, Nov. 2, as part of a county-wide drive to reach every adult in the county for free X-rays, authorities of the county medical department said this week.

Although the X-ray is primarily used for the detection of TB, authorities say that it also is very valuable for finding lung cancer and certain heart conditions.

Actually, according to medical leaders, the X-ray simply takes a shadow picture of the inside of the chest. There is no undressing and no money to pay.

Plans are continuing to see that every adult in the county is contacted.

Wayne Whittaker a senior student at Cass City High School, will represent the Cass City Chapter of the FFA at the 23rd annual convention in Kansas City starting Saturday, Oct. 8.

The program at the convention includes special events, outstanding speakers, entertainment and a sight-seeing tour.

The busy schedule also calls for an important meeting when elections are conducted, awards given, regular business discussed and progress reported.

These lovely Tuscola County girls model the work they completed in the 1954 4-H clothing project. They were the county 4-H winners. County 4-H Agent

Bill Muller says that there is plenty of room in projects now being organized for all girls in the Cass City vicinity.

More Pine Posts From 18-Year Stand But Farmer's Needs Dictate Cutting Time

Your own needs will tell you when to start cutting in your pine plantation.

But foresters at the Dixon Springs, Illinois Experiment Station cut three times as many fence posts from the first thinning of an 18-year-old pine plantation as from a 13-year old stand.

F. W. McMillan, assistant in forest research at the station, says the greater returns from the 18-year-old plantation in terms of labor involved in thinning the stand. However, total wood production may not differ greatly between the two, he says. The 13-year-old has already been thinned a second time and will soon be ready for the third cutting.

Most profitable thinning method is the one which provides the best trees with ample growing space, despite fact that most farmer's needs dictate time of cutting.

These two shortleaf pine plantations were established at the station in 1937 on Grantsburg silt loam soil. The plantation thinned when it was 13 years old in 1950 yielded 150 posts an acre. This year the first thinning from the stand that is now 18 years old yielded nearly 500 posts an acre.

McMillan says the 13-year old stand yielded less because those trees produced only one 7-foot post per tree, while those cut five years later produced at least two posts. Post quality was better in the later thinning than in the earlier one.

New Perennial Forage Developed for South

Progress in the development of a new perennial forage plant for the South—a cross between sorghum and Johnson grass—is reported by cooperating scientists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station. In this year's field tests demonstrate the value of one or more of the selected crosses, they will be considered for release to growers as soon as seed supplies can be built up.

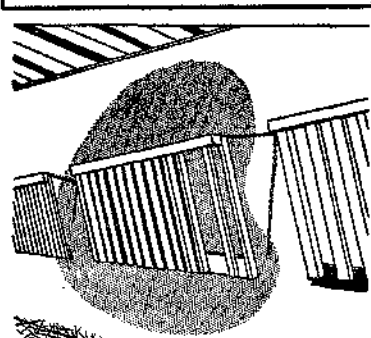

These crosses, some of which yield more than 30 tons of forage per acre, combine the valuable carbohydrates of sorghums and the perennial growth habit of Johnson grass. Especially important, they produce good forage during August and September, when most Southern pasture crops are on the wane.

According to H. W. Bennett, State-USDA agronomist at State College, Miss., who has directed this research, three important types of plants have resulted from thousands of crosses; plants resembling sorghum, plants resembling Johnson grass and intermediate plants.

Each has its advantages, Dr. Bennett explains. The sorghum types, growing as high as 18 feet and producing as much as 32 tons per acre, make excellent pasturage. Cows break over and eat nearly all of the above-ground portions of the plant. The intermediate and grassier types, which produce as much as 14 tons per acre, are suitable for grazing and for silage.

All crosses have been made by applying the pollen of Johnson grass to sorghum flowers. Plants were selected for compact rhizomes in contrast to the type of root growth of Johnson grass.

CARS ARE MU Line

By H. M. Bulen

The automobile business is an industry where the design of every last doorknob and push button is charted by engineers from start to finish. Accountants figure the cost of every blob of paint. It's the most efficient and organized business we've got.

It's funny, though, how many improvements in the automobile have happened through pure blind chance.

When the air cleaner was added to cars, engineers thought of it as an efficiency device. Turned out, though, that the air cleaner was a perfect backfire trap and has practically eliminated this kind of fire from automobiles.

The vacuum-operated windshield wiper came along and it suggested the idea of power brakes.

They started to use soluble oils as rust inhibitors in anti-freeze and this made the self-lubricating oil pump a success.

And so it goes. The automobile has progressed through planned engineering, and also by just plain luck.

It's much the same with many of our steady customers. When they first came, some of them thought it all out beforehand; they figured, and rightly so, that a new car dealer has a franchise to protect and a lot of money tied up in a complete sales-and-service center.

They knew we were geared to volume, and therefore to low cost for the purchaser. But they also knew that we weren't so big that we'd become just a machine. If anything went wrong, they knew they could tell me about it personally.

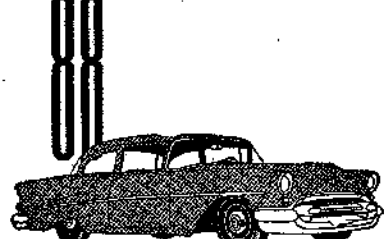

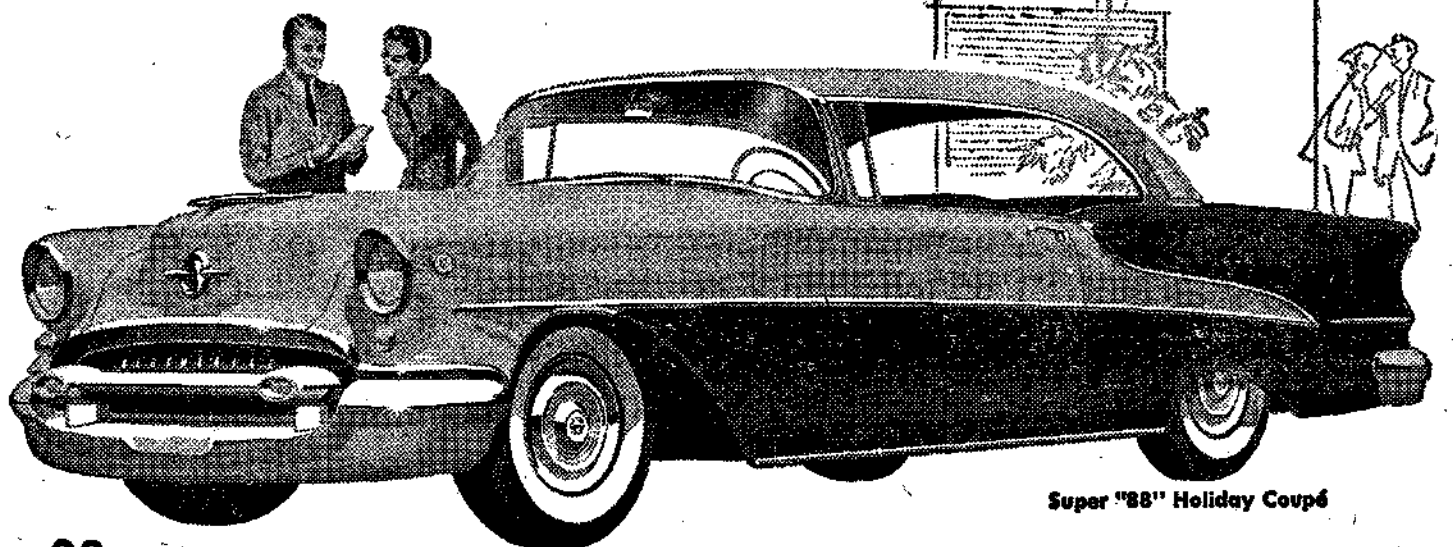

And then there are those who just happened along the street, liked our clean, smart appearance, and dropped in. No matter how they first came in, we're proud of the fact that so many have stayed for so long.

This is the time of year when the "Sharp Traders" make their appearance, and they're so right. We still have nine brand new 1955 Chevrolets which we must move this month. Accordingly, nine Smart Buyers will get a lot of car for little money.

Remember these are brand new, and carry a full 12-months' guarantee or (12,000 miles whichever comes first), extending even to mufflers and tail pipes. Ask for our deal, you'll be pleasantly surprised.

SHORT STORY

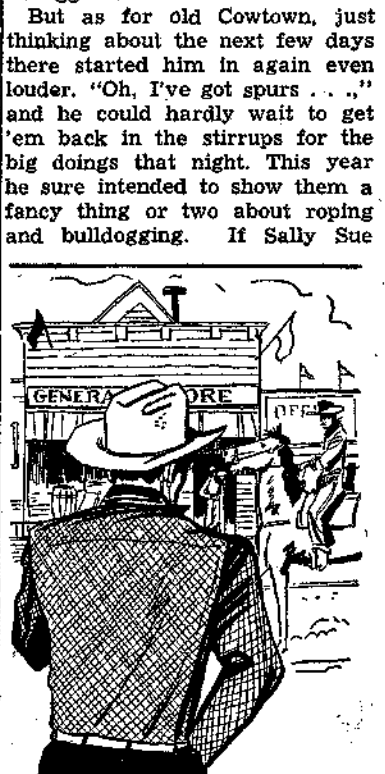

Perhaps Someday

By Inez G. Locke

"I've got spurs that jingle, jangle, jingle, as I go riding merrily along," sang Slim Tucker as he drove the big truck along in the humming traffic. It was opening day of the Southwestern Exposition and Rodeo, and he was burning in leather for Fort Worth. Well, maybe not leather exactly, more like rubber on the big double wheels. Anyway, there before him as he reached the crest of a hill coming in from the West was once again the skyline of them all.

Oh, he'd seen bigger and fancier places during his rodeo tours, but they didn't seem to count. Nor was he impressed with New York; except with a frantic desire to get out of the golden place as quick as his two long legs and a fast train could carry him. No humans in their right minds could live like that, he figured.

But as for old Cowtown, just thinking about the next few days there started him in again even louder. "Oh, I've got spurs..." and he could hardly wait to get 'em back in the stirrups for the big doings that night. This year he sure intended to show them a fancy thing or two about roping and bulldogging. If Sally Sue asked him, might join in a few extra quadrilles, too.

As he pulled into a lane leading to the stock barns near Will Rogers Coliseum, he was thinking how good it all looked. Guess seeing so many people all at once was a pretty fair change from mesquite, rattlers, gophers and bawling cows; especially the pretty fillies in their bright finery. Yep, it was a smiling, howdyin' place, and it was gonna be some ten days. He sure hoped his boss wouldn't keep him so busy with the Flying R stuff that he didn't have plenty of time.

The sun was bright, the sky was blue and cloudless as Slim, in fresh blue jeans, red silk shirt, green tie, second best boots and battered Stetson, set out for town a couple of hours later. At the corner of Seventh and Houston, he absently rubbed his leathery cheek and sighed. What a sight for sore eyes. Bright flags and banners waving everywhere, and some of the finest looking fifteen and twenty gallons he'd seen in many a day. Maybe he could manage a new one to go with the fancy stockman's suit and splashy boots he intended to use his prize money for this time. That is, if...

"Jim! Wake up! You wanted to get down to the office early this morning. That Alston contract is due today."

"Wh... what, pardner?"

"Pardner? Jim Fisher, the book of western trash you stayed up reading has you dreaming again. That Texas rodeo last year didn't help any, either, except to put more impossible ideas into your head. Come on now, wake up. Remember this is New York, not the wide open spaces, and you mustn't forget your appointment."

Jim Fisher rolled over, looked around at the sumptuous furnishings of the room, and sighed regretfully. How could he help remembering that instead of an irresponsible cowpoke, he was a prominent advertising executive, complete with fashionable home, ambitious and beautiful wife, pace killing schedule—and too dumb to quit.

As his wife vanished into her room again, he whispered half aloud, "I'll get the new contract as usual. You and the children will have another pile of money to spend. And I'll go on doing something I hate, seeing people I don't like, ruining my health, because I am James Fisher, III. But even you and Fisher, Incorporated can't stop one thing. I can dream, can't I? And some day, maybe someday... what's that, Margot? Yes, dear, I'm coming."

Slate Tour for Teachers Friday

Tuscola County teachers will participate in a "Know Your County" institute tour on Friday, October 7, according to Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent. The teachers will assemble in three groups and travel by bus to cover the tour from Mayville, Fairgrove and Caro. The tour is so planned that the groups will stop at the three starting points for lunch.

The following stops and points of interest along the tour route are as follows: Caro—Michigan Sugar Company and Clark Canning Company; Tuscola Game Area; Mayville Glove Factory; George Foster dairy farm; Forestia; Anderson gravel pit; Core Sand Pit; Fairgrove Bean Elevator; and Caro State Hospital.

A brochure giving details of interest along the tour will be available for each teacher participating in the tour.

This will be the first time such a tour has been held in Tuscola County and among one of the first of its kind to be held in the state, said Ballweg.

The over-all committee in general charge of the tour are: William Scott, county superintendent of schools; Wes Raven, Detroit Edison Company; Clark Montague, Tuscola County Farm Bureau; Harold Tubbs, conservation department; William Jewell, department of land and water conservation, Michigan State University; Don Keblar, assistant county agricultural agent; Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent.

SHORT STORY

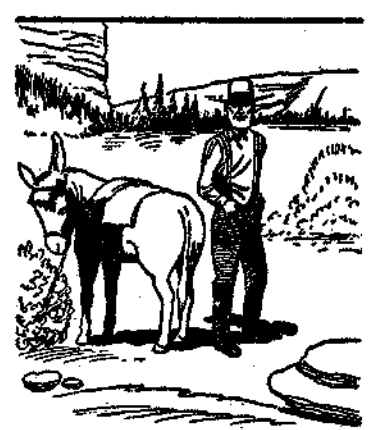

Pyrites For Gold

By D. L. Alexander

IT WAS mid-afternoon, and old Jim Watkins raised up from his sluice box and stretched to banish the cramps from his aching body. He had spent years prospecting for gold, and his muscles and nerves had begun to protest the strains put upon them. But Jim wouldn't give up.

He didn't look at the yellow specks in the box before him. Instead, his eyes were watching his donkey, Nancy, who had suddenly stopped cropping grass and was regarding something in the bushes on the far side of the hollow.

Jim didn't look that way, but stomped from the water and walked to his log shack, a few steps away. Once inside he placed his eyes to a hole in the chinking. He could see the hats and foreheads of two men above the bushes.

He turned and went to the rear of the room and picked up a sack, after which he left the cabin, bridled the donkey and rode away.

Jim didn't ride far. He tied the animal to a bush and made his way cautiously to the top of the hill. He reached it in time to see the two men enter the cabin. Then he stole through the bushes until he reached the door.

He heard the two men moving about inside. They had closed the door after them. Jim grabbed the chain, put it over the staple and snapped the padlock home.

He chuckled to himself as he made his way swiftly around the hill to where his donkey stood. There was no other opening to the cabin, and the men were securely trapped.

It was five miles to his nearest neighbor, Joe King, and he made it in record time. He explained the situation to King and asked him to summon the state police.

"What're you laughing for?" King asked, when he had put the call through.

"Jest thinkin', Joe. Them fellers has been hangin' round fer a couple o' days. I 'lowed they was up ter somethin', so I set a trap fer them. I had some iron pyrites in a bag which I hid under a board I pried loose from th' floor. Didn't put th' board back good so's it was bound ter be noticed. Reckon we'll find th' pyrites on them when we git back."

"Yes. And maybe they'll find your real gold, too."

"Taint likely. It's in th' bag I brung along."

Two state troopers drove up fifteen minutes later. Jim explained the situation to them, and he and King accompanied the officers to his cabin. They went to the door.

"Hey, you fellers in there," Jim called. "They's two state policemen coverin' th' door. I'll unlock it an' you come out with your han's up."

There was a brief mumble of voices behind the closed door.

"We're coming out, old timer," one of them said, after a minute. "Drop your guns on the floor first," a trooper advised.

They complied, and Jim unlocked the padlock and gave the door a shove. Both men walked out with their hands raised.

One of the troopers went forward and searched them. He brought out the sack of pyrites and then snapped the handcuffs on them.

"Fools' gold," old Jim chortled. "I got fooled by that stuff a few years back, when I fust began prospectin'. Sort o' kept it fer a souvenir. Glad ter git it back."

One of the troopers had been eyeing the two outlaws intently. He now spoke to Jim.

"Give me your name and mail address," he said.

"What fer?"

"These two men are wanted badly, and there is five hundred dollars reward coming to you for apprehending them."

Jim's jaw dropped in amazement. "Fer th' love o' Pete," he exclaimed. "That's what I call tradin' pyrites fer real gold."

Wheat Yields Prove Fertilizer Value

How much is fertilizer worth in boosting wheat yields?

The plant food's value was shown in dollars and cents in a demonstration with wheat by Louie Webb, a township agricultural agent in Calhoun County.

Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agricultural agent, said the wheat was planted on September 21 and topdressed on April 1. Here are the yields with their value above the cost of the fertilizer.

Where no fertilizer was used, the yield was only 18 bushels per acre, worth $23.40. Where 270 pounds of 0-20-20 was used, the yield went to 19 bushels, worth $27.70.

Where 350 pounds of 4-16-16 was applied, the yield jumped to 30 bushels, worth $43.50. The yield went up to 36 bushels when 350 pounds of 4-16-16 and 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate were applied. This amount of wheat was worth $49.80 above the cost of the fertilizer.

And the yield was 45 bushels, worth $63.00 above the cost of fertilizer, when 450 pounds of 4-16-16 and 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate were applied.

Republicans are hopefully juggling four candidates for governor, convinced whichever gets the nod will have to go against Gov. Williams.

Plans of State Chairman John Feikens, who said both Gov. Williams and President Eisenhower will run in 1956, may be changed if the president announces his intention not to run.

The illness of the president will have a bearing on his availability for a second term. But Democrats are looking for Gov. Williams to try for a fifth term, regardless of the national situation.

Williams is in the habit of breaking precedent. He won his first term in 1948 in a nominally Republican stronghold and his popularity with the voters is still at a high pitch.

Because of an early primary in Michigan, Williams will have to cast off from hopes for a fifth term if he wants to go for a spot on the national Democratic ticket.

"Most governors can go into the convention and keep a grip on the job back home," said one top Michigan Democrat. "If Soapy wants to try it, he has to abandon Michigan."

Republicans have one question now: Who can beat Williams? Separate groups have rallied support for the nomination behind Mayor Cobo, of Detroit; Congressman Ford, of Grand Rapids; Congressman Bentley, of Owosso, and Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University.

The two congressmen appear to be most eager for the nomination, with qualifications.

Rep. Ford's condition is that he could be the candidate with full party support, a rare circumstance in the light of past Republican primary battles and the existing four-man situation.

He is personable, 41, and available. Party regulars, however, feel he hasn't spent enough time in Michigan.

Rep. Bentley also is popular and carries an appeal to the conservative branch of the party—figuring it has been neglected in the campaign to outdo Williams and the liberals.

Mayor Cobo is reluctant to get into the melee.

In the past, he has been a willing candidate in non-partisan Detroit city politics when he had the odds.

Cobo said he would like to see a good, strong, willing candidate appear on the scene so he could forget the boom that has been created for his own candidacy.

His main drawback is his relatively small area of operation. In Detroit, he is known as a top administrator, a planner.

"There are a lot of people in outstate Michigan who don't know me from a bale of hay," he said.

Republican legislators, who launched the trial balloon for Cobo, figure he could cut into Williams' Detroit vote. They also predict that outstate areas, as usual, will go Republican.

But Democrats, with a "state farm program" in the making, are going after outstate votes, too.

Dr. Hannah carries the idea of close association with President Eisenhower, having been assistant secretary of defense for manpower.

His potential candidacy has been launched by a group of "Young Turks" from the legislature.

It happened at a Sunday afternoon picnic at the home of Rep. George Sallade (R-Ann Arbor) and the news stirred political thinkers.

Dr. Hannah immediately refused the bid of the Young Turks, stating that he could better serve Michigan as the president of a great university.

Republicans backing him, still insist he could be drafted to go against a Democratic candidate for governor. He has built the university into a powerful force in the state.

Republicans are making history with their activity during an off year. Democrats have campaigned the year around since 1948.

Williams' weekly schedule is as strenuous as any campaign. Wherever he stops, he shakes hands with everybody in sight and spreads the word. People like him.

Whoever the Republicans pick will have to outdo the governor, who already is about 5 million handshakes ahead of the game.

Republicans are counting on the latest merger of the national and state ballots to give them the pull of Eisenhower at the top to elect a governor halfway down.

The President's illness may make a difference, but that's the way the tune is going now, eight to the bar.

Cull Out Infected Birds In Flocks
Tuberculosis Problem Reported in Study

A survey reported at the annual convention of the American Veterinary Medical Association indicates that tuberculosis is a serious problem of poultry flocks. Dr. C. D. Lee, Iowa State College, reported that in a survey of 488 flocks, 45.08 per cent had birds that were positive to tuberculosis tests. In pullet flocks, the number of positive flocks was slightly over 13 per cent but in flocks where pullets and hens were housed together, 63.34 per cent were infected with tuberculosis positive birds. "The procedure of marketing all birds at the end of their production year has merit in eradicating avi-

It's wise to keep old birds away from chicks, say the experts, since one infected bird endangers the entire flock. Tuberculosis is reported a bigger problem than most farmers realize. an tuberculosis but one must bear in mind that pullets also may have tuberculosis and be a source of dissemination of the disease to pen mates or to swine. The threat of tuberculosis remains as long as a single infected bird remains on the farm," Dr. Lee said. He outlined the following control program:

1. Cull birds daily, destroy and burn birds with possible symptoms of tuberculosis.
2. Abandon old buildings and equipment if disease is extremely prevalent.
3. Brood chicks in clean houses at least 400 yards from old birds.
4. Sell old birds in late summer, or at the end of production year.

Yearly Livestock Losses Two Billion

An estimated total loss of over two billion dollars per year is caused due to mishandling, diseases and parasites of livestock, according to a report made to the Annual Convention of the American Veterinary Medical Association. Reporting to the convention assembly, Dr. Harry E. Kingman, Jr., the AVMA's official representative to Livestock Conservation, Inc., said the annual loss amounts to about one-fifth of the nation's annual income from meat, milk, hides and wool.

Several research studies and action programs sponsored by Livestock Conservation, Inc. are now in progress. These include the National Bruise Survey; the U.S.D.A. survey on non-skid flooring; the internal ham bruise study at the University of Minnesota; research into liver condemnations by Colorado A&M College; an age of bruise study at Ohio State; a state wide campaign against cattle grubs in Oklahoma; 4-H demonstrations and the work of several standing committees of Livestock Conservation, Inc.

Dr. Kingman also reported that regional offices of Livestock Conservation, Inc. were active during the past year in helping reduce these serious livestock losses.

Big Businessmen

Strange as it seems, recent figures show industry has taken a back seat to agriculture in capital investment per worker. Average investment of $14,000 per worker in agriculture indicates that back of each of the 8.5 million farm operators, hired hands and family workers is a sizeable investment in equipment and materials.

It takes plenty of big, full heads of wheat or barley to make profitable yields, when growing costs eat up 15 to 20 bushels per acre. Many Midwest growers make big profits on grain by using ARCADIAN 12-12-12 to turn out 40, 50 and even 60-bushel yields. Here's how it's done:

Full-feed your wheat this fall with 400 to 600 pounds of ARCADIAN 12-12-12 per acre drilled in at seeding. Free-flowing ARCADIAN 12-12-12 spreads easily, dissolves quickly in the soil, feeds your fall grain fast and full-feeds it right through to ripening a big crop. Use ARCADIAN 12-12-12 now to supply all the nitrogen, phosphorus and potash your crop needs for a strong start, good wintering over, and big yields of plump grain.

High team game: Gremel and Kettwell 823, Kettwell 819, Walbro Jets 802.

High individual game: Andrus 222, C. Wallace and Fredericks 211, C. Wallace 203.

Only three other members were able to hit the "500" three game series. Kettwell rolled 513, Gregory 512, Gremel 505.

The week of Sept. 26 ten members rolled a three-game "500" series. Dillman leads the group with a total pin fall of 623 on games of 213-223,192 followed by Gremel with 578, Wallace 558, Musall 556, Gregory 550, Fredericks 549, Asher 543, Kettwell 522, M. B. Auten 521 and H. Copeland 516.

Have any of you right-handed bowlers ever considered bowling left-handed? Supposing you injured your bowling hand. Would you call it "quits" until it was healed? We bet you would, but not Jim Wallace. Jim injured a finger or fingers on his bowling hand. This didn't stop him from bowling on his father's team in the City League. He promptly bowled left-handed Sept. 26. He is not doing as well as his left-handed partner (Dad) but must be given due credit for his interest in the game and effort put forth to bowl.

We wonder how many of you read in the Detroit Free Press under date of Sept. 29 the article headed "ABC Cracks Down on Detroit Bowling Alleys." The story in part is that sanctions have been taken away from more than 50 establishments. As you know, the ABC sets up Alley Specifications and other conditions regulating bowling. We never know when a field man from ABC will visit a bowling alley. This is the reason your Association Secretary seems to be throwing his weight around at the Cass City Bowling Alleys and insisting that certain practices be stopped such as the placing of chalk and powder on shoes and approaches, lofting the ball out on the soft yellow pine part of the alleys, making a depression in the alley bed.

So far we have been on the right side with ABC, let's keep it that way.

HANGS HIMSELF

Give the four-flusher all the room he wants—the more he spreads the less he deceives.

Advertise it in the Chronicle.

CLAD IN A freshly-cleaned uniform, helmet in perspiring hands, the muscular young player sat in front of his locker and gulped nervously as he waited for the signal to call the team onto the playing field.

He glanced at other players, also in varying attitudes of waiting, some of them first-year men like himself and nervous but most veterans of other campaigns and visibly composed over the contest that was only a few minutes away.

No, this wasn't a high school youngster awaiting his first game or a collegian about to make his big debut but a professional football player, with eight solid years of gridiron experience behind him, as jittery as a schoolboy ready to play before mom and dad for the first time.

The cause of the young player's nervousness was the realization that once again he was a freshman, this time on the most competitive level of football, the intensely rugged professional level.

Using Will Power

I well remember how upset I was during my first year as middle guard with the Lions in 1943. I was fearful that I was playing poorly and that every game would be my last. It took me a long time to get over that feeling.

With the competition so keen and the threat of unemployment always a factor, why do most of the topnotch collegians graduate into pro football instead of immediately embarking on a business or professional career?

There are several answers. One is the pay, which for an established star of the first rank can run up to $20,000 for six months' work. Others are the glamour, the opportunity to make contacts for business positions later and the strong desire to prove worth as one of the best 400 players in the country.

In addition, there is love for the game, which I still have, well over 300 pounds of it. It takes a lot of will power for me not to get on the field with the Lions again, but I'm going to limit my football to assisting in broadcasting the games and writing this weekly column on pro ball and the Lions. I'll have a lot to tell in the ensuing weeks.

Select Society

Where thousands of players annually land berths on college teams, and an even greater number plays on high school squads, the opportunity is diminished tremendously in pro football.

Less than 400 players are actively engaged in the National Football League, 33 players on each of 12 teams, or a total of 396 to be exact. And most of these 396 are veteran performers, the most talented, durable and clever in the land. Only half a dozen to a dozen rookies make the grade on any team in any given season.

Thus, to join this select society,
