1. Be sure your car is in good operating condition at all times.
2. Obey all traffic laws.
3. In planning a trip, don't schedule more miles per day than you can comfortably and safely drive.
4. On long drives, stop now and then to rest and relax.
5. Never pass on a hill.
6. Courtesy and patience are two very necessary ingredients of safe driving.
7. Don't follow too closely the car ahead of you.
8. Accident statistics continue to rate speed as the number one cause of automobile accidents—so keep it down.

Be Careful When Applying Nitrogen

This is the time of year that nitrogen fertilizers are being applied to lawns, grass pastures and to dead materials being plowed under, relates Tuscola County assistant agricultural agent, Don R. Kebler.

Weather and soil conditions can help determine how much good plants can get from fall applications of nitrogen.

Nitrogen is held in the soil in two forms: that which plants can use, called available nitrogen, and the unavailable form plants cannot use. Under conditions ideal for best plant growth, nitrogen will be found more available. These conditions are warm soil and air temperature, excellent drainage, near neutral soil, adequate lime phosphate and potash supply, and high organic matter level. These same conditions are required by some of the small soil organisms so they can change plant materials to humus and available nitrogen. Adverse conditions will slow down these organisms, so less available nitrogen is produced.

Available nitrogen, called nitrate-nitrogen, is sold in such forms as ammonium nitrate and other nitrate mixtures. The unavailable forms are ammonium sulphate or other ammonia mixtures, which are changed by soil organisms, under ideal conditions, to available nitrogen. Little change occurs during the winter on soil nitrogen except the available forms will leach more readily from the soil than the unavailable forms. During the growing season the soil organisms compete with plants for nitrogen. The plants get what is not used by these organisms.

There is no quick soil test in use for available nitrogen so recommendations can best be given from the amounts of phosphate and potash and the acidity of the soil.

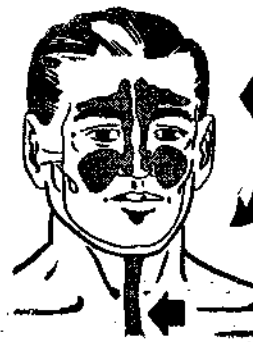

Good practices to follow, for most efficient plant use of nitrogen, are: good drainage, follow soil test recommendations, use legumes in rotation, and apply nitrogen to the plants at the time they need it.

Living will be much simpler when politicians learn to live within our income.

Choose your words well—you can never tell when you will have to eat them.

Watch for Bloat In Late Fall

Watch out for bloat when you turn your cattle on late fall legume pastures. This warning comes from Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agricultural agent.

Cattle can bloat on the young juicy growth of fall legume pastures just as easily as earlier in the season, according to C. F. Huffman, of the dairy department at Michigan State University. There's no prevention for bloat, he emphasizes, and dairy-men should keep a watchful eye on cattle when they are turned in on any new growth. Check the herd several times a day, he adds.

If a case of bloat does develop, Agent Ballweg urges taking the herd off the pasture immediately. He recommends barn feeding rather than taking a chance on more cases of bloat and possible loss of animals as a result.

County 4-H Plans Fall Achievement

Approximately 80 youngsters will receive county award medals in achievement, canning, food preparation, clothing, general agriculture and dairy achievement to mention a few.

County winners at the 4-H State Show held at Michigan State University on August 30 to September 2 will present their winning demonstrations and relate their experiences on award trips to Washington, the Nation's capital, and Chicago to the International Dairy Show.

Both Cars Feature Advanced Styling

The daring, ultra-modern "Flight Sweep" body styling concept of the new 1956 DeSoto and the new aerodynamic 1956 Plymouths are now on display at Rabideau Motor Sales, according to an announcement made by Lee and Wayne Rabideau.

The DeSoto combines the "Flight Sweep" body styling concept with the beautiful sweeping lines of the "Forward Look" with high-sweep fin-type rear fenders to provide an even more dramatic, low slung, taut, eager and striking forward thrust appearance.

From the all new full swept perforated mesh "floating" grille, bumper, parking lights and safety beam headlamps, to the smart new upswept color sweep and rear fenders with three-tiered turreted, body-integrated and highly decorative tail lamps, these cars are lithe, clean-lined and uncluttered. They will be recognized immediately as the smartest, longest and lowest-looking ever produced by DeSoto.

New Plymouth Plymouth has a wholly new engine for 1956. It is a more powerful Hy-Fire V-8 with a polysphere combustion chamber design and an 8 to 1 compression ratio.

Equally new is the push button drive selector for Plymouth's PowerFlite automatic transmission, the only one in its field.

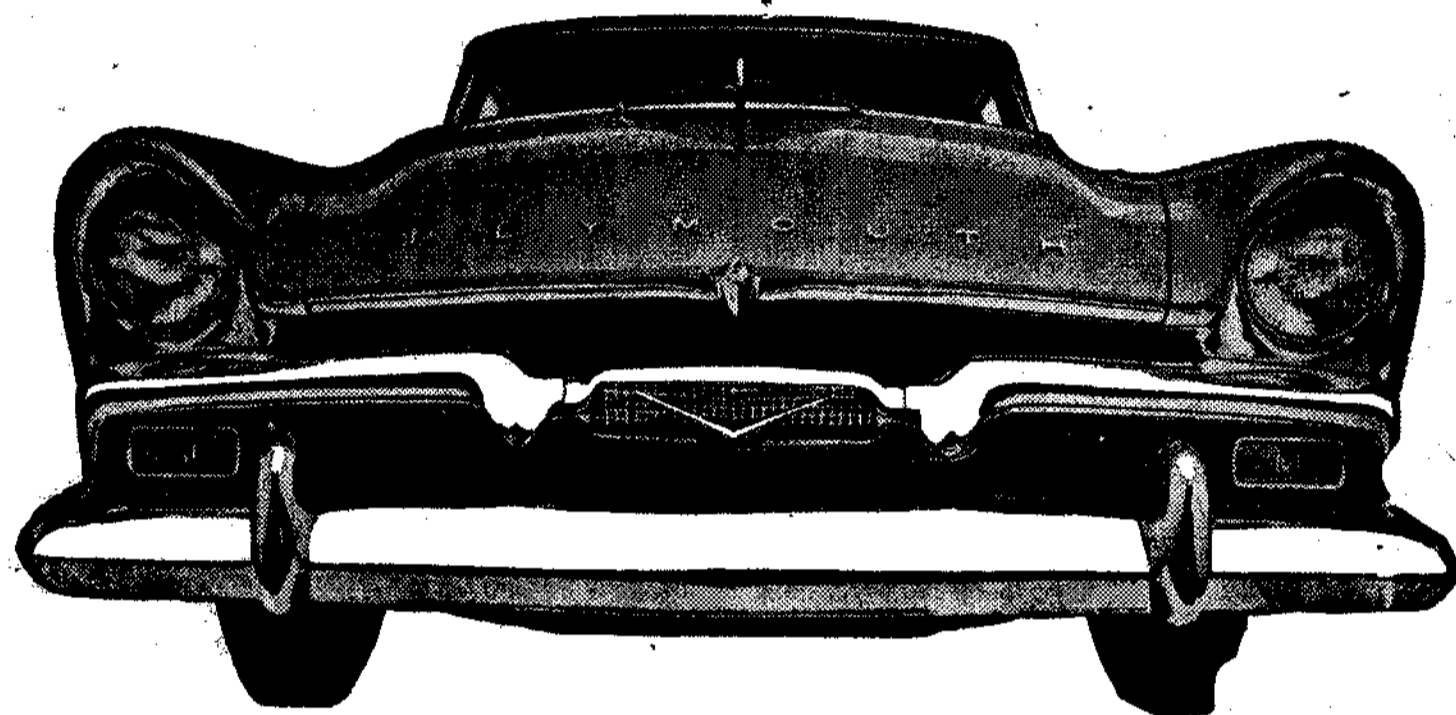

Come in and see them on display today at Rabideau Motor Sales in Cass City.

Push buttons, which control the driving range of the PowerFlite transmission on the 1956 Plymouth, are lighted as an aid in night driving.

Jute, mastic deadeners, fiber, cotton, wood pulp, carpeting, and fiberglass are among the many products used to shield the Plymouth car body interiors from vibration, road noises, and weather.

Only fabrics which have passed rigid tests for color stability, strength, and resistance to abrasion are used in the color-keyed interiors of the 1956 aerodynamic Plymouth cars.

Eighty feet of additional low-beam seeing distance along the right side of the roadway is provided by the new Sealed beam unit in the 1956 Plymouth. Light intensity, too, has been increased by five watts for each beam. At the same time, glare for the on-coming motorist has been reduced.

Plymouth Offers New Safety Features

Wide Selection Of New Models

Plymouth offers a wider selection of body types and models in its 1956 line than were available in 1955.

There are now four separate lines and 15 models. Added to the Plymouth line-up are a four-door hardtop in the Belvedere line and a two-door hardtop in the Savoy line. The Suburbans are now a separate line of cars.

Plymouth is building three types of Suburbans—the four-door Sport Suburban, two-door and four-door Custom Suburban and two-door Deluxe Suburban. The four-door models are available with a third seat which increases passenger capacity to eight.

There are five models in the Belvedere line—four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, two-door club sedan, two-door hardtop and convertible.

Plymouth's middle line, the Savoy group, is made up of a four-door sedan, two-door club sedan and two-door hardtop. The Plaza group, priced lower

The 1956 Plymouth cars have new safety door latches which minimize the possibility of doors opening under impact.

The new latch is designed so that interlocking pieces of heavy gauge steel on the door and striker prevent separation and keep the doors safely closed. The new latch is standard equipment on all Plymouth models.

Plymouth continues to offer safety seat belts anchored directly to the frame of the car.

New safety beam headlamps provide as much as 80 additional feet in seeing distance on the right side of the road.

Other "built-in" safety features include the safety rim wheels, a hand brake independent of the regular braking system, dual cylinder front wheel brakes, a wide-visibility wrap-around windshield and electric windshield wipers.

than the Belvedere and Savoy, is composed of a four-door sedan, two-door club sedan and three-passenger coupe.

Plymouth convertibles are powered by V-8 engines. All other models are available with V-8 or six cylinder engines.

Plymouth Airfoil Fender

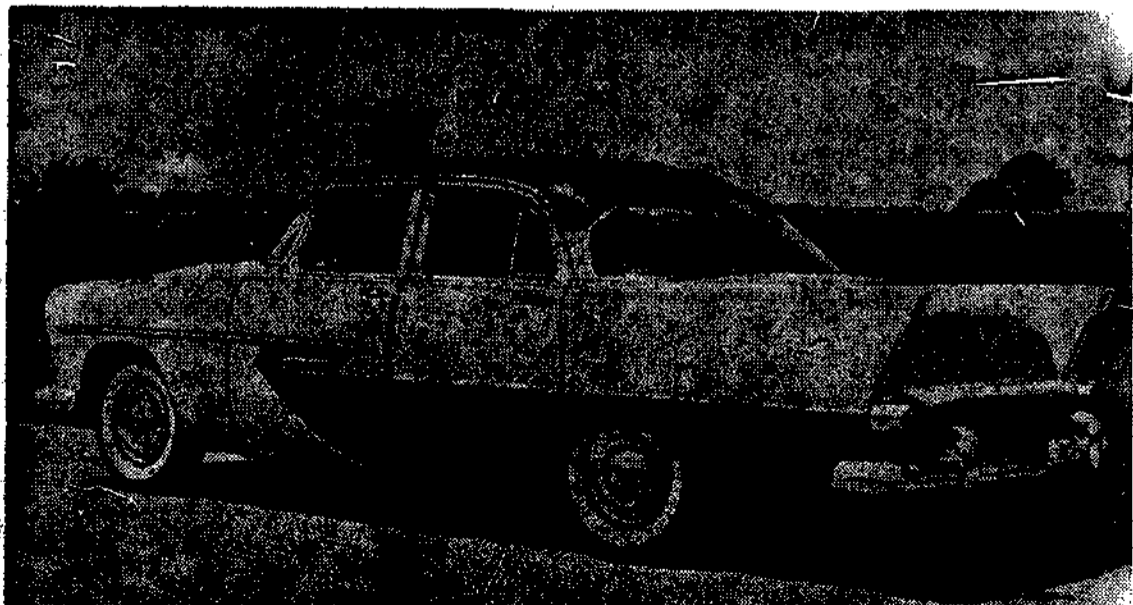

Bold new airfoil rear fenders contribute to the aerodynamic feeling of 1956 Plymouth cars. Plymouth has 15 models, including an all new Belvedere four-door hardtop, in its new line.

The safety rim wheel, standard equipment on all Plymouth models, affords greater protection by holding the tire to the wheel in case of a blow-out. Safety rim wheels are exclusive with Plymouth in the low priced field.

The roughest roads will not affect the operation of the Highway Hi-Fi record player, exclusive with Plymouth in the low priced field. Records used with the record player offer a minimum of 45 minutes of hi-fidelity music on a single side of a seven inch disc.

1956 Plymouth Belvedere

Belvedere four-door sedan is one of 15 attractive models in Plymouth's 1956 line of cars. Aerodynamic styling, push button driving and powerful new Hy-Fire 277 engine are among outstanding features. Safety door latches and other safe driving items are standard equipment.

School Notes—

The kindergarten is studying about vegetables. On Tuesday everyone brought a potato which was baked for their lunch that day. They smelled good.

The first and second graders made Indian canoes from birch bark.

The fifth and sixth grades, under direction of their teacher, Mrs. Gray, are preparing a short play and some music for the next Community Club program at Shabbona Hall October 20, at 8:15 p. m. Everyone is welcome.

In the seventh and eighth grade room, George Ferguson has strep throat.

On Wednesday, October 12, Mr. Emerson, the magician entertained us and several neighboring schools. Starr, Pidd, Wilson, Wheeler and Fox. He did several amusing tricks—baked a cake on a red-headed girl's head; put two silk scarves in Butch Morell's belt and when he took them out there was a pair of red shorts between the scarves.

We had only three days of school this week. Our teachers are attending Teachers' Institute at Saginaw.

We hope that some of our older boys are getting pheasants.

4-H Meeting—

The first 4-H work meeting will be held on Tuesday, October 25, at Evergreen Township school at 1:00 p. m.

We urge the parents of children enrolled in 4-H to come on that day, meet with the leaders and help choose materials, projects, patterns etc. and get a list of material needed for your child.

We still need clothing leaders and will welcome any one who could possibly help us out.

Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freshney were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Chard.

Mrs. Fred Steel and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freshney were in Bad Axe Saturday.

Visitors at the Fred Steel home were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Martin from McAllister, Okla., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin and family of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Good and Marilyn Joyce of Elmira, Ontario, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Caister. Joanne Caister was also a week-end guest at the home of her parents.

Mr. George Caister spent Canadian Thanksgiving at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kirkley of Brussels, Ontario.

We are proud of one of our girls, Janet Caister, of Evergreen who was chosen queen of Cass City High School for 1955.

Farm and City Families Much Alike

There's not much difference between farm and city families after all, according to a recent University of Michigan survey on rural family relations. Although farm families are on the whole much older—a quarter of the wives in the families studied had been married more than 40 years—some of the family problems, their patterns of decision-making, and their ideas about children are very much alike.

For answers to their questions the U-M sociology researchers interviewed 178 southeastern Michigan farm families, and compared their findings with those of a similar study made in the Detroit area.

Because the farm families turned out to be much older 31 per cent of the farm women already had four or more children, and only 18 per cent of the urban women reported as many. But in their ideas about the number of children desired, both replied "three or four."

And despite popular notions about huge farm families vs. small city families, only 6 per cent of the farm husbands and wives have as many as six children, and the highest number of children reported—by only one family—was 12. Figures for city parents are almost exactly the same!

When asked the "good" things about having children the farm wives tended to stress "strengthening the home," or "giving purpose and meaning to life" rather than "emotional satisfaction."

On the "bad" side both rural and urban parents mentioned children's health problems but a vast majority in both groups emphasized that there was "nothing bad!" Less than 10 per cent in either group were disturbed by problems of discipline or limitations on their own freedom.

As regards internal structure of the family, farm wives are apt to have a little more power and take an active part in making more decisions than city wives, the studies indicate.

In both groups the husbands most typically decide what cars to buy, and what jobs to take, and both groups of wives usually decide how much should be spent on food. Decisions on vacations, doctors, homes to rent or buy, health and life insurance, are generally shared equally by husbands and wives in both cases.

As might be expected the farm families raise more of their own food, do more of their own baking, canning and dressmaking. But despite their many occupations at home, the farmers tend to have just as many or more formal outside group memberships.

This social participation was also the biggest bone of contention among farm husbands and wives, with more than twice as many farm as city families reporting this their major disagreement.

When urbanites were questioned on how well they got along in the family 60 per cent of them said "better than most." Farmers, say the researchers, tended to be more realistic and said "about the same as others." However, most families of both groups reported that they "are closer than other families."

Rural and urban wives want the same things from marriage: companionship, the chance to have children, understanding from their husbands, and the husbands' expression of love and affection—in that order.

A big difference did show up in percentages relating to the wives' abilities or inability to help their husbands get ahead. Twenty-seven per cent of the city wives felt they could do nothing at all, while only 2 per cent of the farm wives felt this way. Naturally enough, 40 per cent of the farm wives said they could most help their husbands by working on the farm.

Researchers, headed by U-M Assistant Prof. Robert O. Blood, Jr., with operations financed by a grant from the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies, theorize that farm and city families are so much alike, in interpersonal relations because mass media, like newspapers and radio, allow both groups to have similar experiences in learning what other people are doing.

A GOOD THING FOR A RAINY DAY

Announcing the Fabulous '56 Pontiac

Introducing A BIG AND VITAL GENERAL MOTORS "AUTOMOTIVE FIRST"!

A new Strato-Flight Hydra-Matic—coupled with Pontiac's 227-H.P. Strato-Streak V-8—results in performance so new and dramatic it must be experienced to be believed!

With all that's newest in glamour—and all that's greatest in "go"—the fabulous '56 Pontiac, now on display, awaits your hands on the wheel.

And when you drive it, you will get the biggest thrill in all your motoring experience—because this car is really loaded!

The big and vital General Motors "First", which heads its long list of look-ahead features, couples the two most advanced high-performance developments in the industry:

1. An all-new, big-bore Strato-Streak V-8 engine that puts 227 blazing horsepower at your toe-tip.
2. A completely new Strato-Flight Hydra-Matic* that delivers this terrific "go" with a smooth surge of power at any speed.

You now sweep from take-off to top performance with the ease of a sailplane. You slow down for traffic, speed up for passing, or gun for a high hill with the changing pressure of your toe on the accelerator the only sign of effort.

You may have had it smooth before—but never like this! It literally must be experienced to be believed.

That's plenty—but there's much more to make this a date to be long remembered.

There's smart, new beauty and luxury for America's most distinctive car. There's the safety of big brakes and road-hugging length... the security of a smooth new ride and sure-footed cornering.

There are many, many other things which mark this beauty as the glamorous pattern for tomorrow's cars. But come in and see for yourself. Take a long look at the six luxurious new Four-door and Two-door Catalina hardtops. Sample the results of its fabulous General Motors "First".

Sure as you enjoy thrilling action, here's your next car!

Highways are embarrassing Republicans. And forcing them to turn against one of their own. The target is Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler, whom the legislature insisted help with the Turnpike Authority and the Mackinac Bridge Authority.

At last glance, he seemed against both, though he has not said so publicly.

Senator Haskell L. Nichols (R-Jackson), fearing that Ziegler was being ignored in the rush to build toll roads two years ago, rammed through an amendment making him a member of the authority.

Ziegler went along for a year, waiting for plans to develop. Then, when a 118-mile Flat Rock to Saginaw turnpike was planned, he disclosed he already was working on a parallel free route.

This caught the authority by surprise. It angered the new authority chairman, Ex-Senator George N. Higgins, of Ferndale, who went along with the idea that Ziegler should be a member.

Since his appointment as chairman last spring, it has been Higgins against Ziegler. It didn't help Republican tempers when Gov. Williams also took out after Ziegler who now, at least nominally, is the target of sharpshooters in both parties.

Ziegler says he can see no value in toll roads when money is available to start a free route. Higgins is accusing Ziegler of sabotaging the idea.

Senator Nichols, chairman of the Senate highway committee, is ready for a fight.

He has asked Ziegler to stop obstructing Higgins and the toll roads.

"What we need in Michigan is roads, not political maneuvering," he said.

Quick action by Nichols in the last legislative session staved off death of the toll road idea for Michigan. A bill abolishing the turnpike authority was killed in his committee.

When the House passed a bill giving local communities a veto power over toll road routes, it also died in Nichols' committee.

With all the bickering in Michigan about toll roads versus free highways, New York financiers are reluctant to invest in bonds.

They reason that it would be a trifle insane to invest more than $185 million in a system that may be abolished at any moment and, at least, is not solidly supported in the state.

Suspicious lawmakers have hired a Chicago research organization to make a $20,000 survey of Michigan's mental health and tuberculosis hospital facilities.

They want a complete report by March 1, 1956, in time for action during the 1956 legislative session.

The investigation was ordered after tuberculosis and mental health spokesmen turned in conflicting reports on the number of beds available.

The whole business started last year when, needing more mental hospital space, the state looked longingly at tuberculosis hospitals at Howell and Gaylord—knowing both had empty space.

In the waning days of the 1955 legislative session, plans were made—and later discarded under pressure—to transfer a tuberculosis sanatorium to a mental health hospital.

Tuberculosis officials stated with some heat that they would need all the space they could get if they could find and hospitalize those who were suffering from tuberculosis.

Mental health officials pointed to the empty beds and said that patients could be congregated in the other hospitals, and one could be converted to a mental hospital.

The battle raged for months. Finally, a call was sent out for a survey by state agencies of the number of empty tuberculosis hospital beds. Figures were different.

At one point, the tuberculosis people reduced the capacity of their state hospitals, claiming that care could not be adequately given if the capacities remained at the higher figure.

Senator Elmer R. Porter (R-Blissfield) rammed through his proposal for an outside agency to make the survey.

There was opposition from both Republicans and Democrats to spending $20,000 for the investigation when the Citizens' Research Council of Michigan, privately endowed, offered to do it free.

"We could do it, but some people think we are taking sides," said Loren B. Miller, director of the council. Legislators insisted on a "good" survey and an "accurate" count of beds by the Chicago organization and its representative here, John D. Corcoran.

"We don't make any other kind of survey," he snapped.

A Michigan woman, Winalee Gentry, is author of "One More River to Cross," her first book, which came off presses this week.

She did not start out to write a story—merely an account of her colorful and adventuresome experiences with her husband, Howard L. (Dux) Gentry, for family consumption. But the record of his climb from an oil and pipeline worker to their present prosperity made such fine reading, she decided to publish it.

Today the Gentrys live in a spacious Jackson home, own a sizeable oil and pipeline business. "One More River to Cross" is the intimate, spirited and rollicking story of their ups and downs, spiced with local color for those who find Michigan stories fascinating.

Our hope for the future lies in the hands of the nation's school teachers today.

People are not equal and never have been—but they do have equal opportunity.

Corn Field Day Slated October 25

Tuscola County farmers will get a chance to see many hybrids growing in the same field and to compare their performance record at a meeting on October 25. The field meeting is slated at 1:30 p. m. on the Walter Reinbold farm near Saginaw.

The hybrid corn trials are conducted each year by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station. Around 25 hybrid seed corn companies and seed agencies supply samples of seed which they sell to farmers.

Elmer C. Rossman, corn breeder at Michigan State University, says that farmers, seedsmen and others find the comparisons helpful in selecting and recommending the right hybrids for each area of the state.

Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent, indicates that farmers will have a chance to hear production problems discussed at the meeting also. Information on yield, maturity and lodging resistance of the many varieties will be presented at the meeting. The meeting is one of ten held in Michigan this fall.
