

Third Class Graduates from Caro Hospital

That training for better understanding and care of epileptic patients at Caro State Hospital has become an important part of the hospital's nursing program was again shown at graduation exercises for the third class in Attendant Nurse Training at the hospital Tuesday night.

A group of 24 attendant nurses was honored by relatives, friends and members of the hospital staff. The event, attended by over 300 persons, marks the completion of the Advanced Attendant Nurse Training Course, offered by the hospital on a voluntary enrollment basis. This is the third class to graduate since the course was first started in 1953.

Dr. Philip N. Brown, superintendent of the Northville State Hospital, was speaker for the occasion. Dr. Brown said that the attendant nurse group is the core of the hospital's treatment program. He summarized the changes that have taken place in attitudes toward mental illness from ancient times to the present, and stressed the importance of keeping the hospital patient from being isolated from the community. He outlined the nature of the community relations program at the Northville State Hospital.

In congratulating the graduates, Dr. Brown urged them to seek further opportunities for study and growth.

The training course, requiring more than six months for completion, represents many hours of class room instruction, lectures and demonstrations. Professional personnel and department heads at the hospital have an active part in the success of the course. Subjects studied include methods of medication, hygiene, pre and post operative care, food and nutrition, first aid, housekeeping and sanitation, psychological, legal and social problems of the patient, occupational therapies, mental health, psychoneurosis, and special patient problems.

The purpose of the course is to better equip attendant nurses with the specialized knowledge and skills required to meet the increasing needs of patients under the hospital's care.

Dr. W. W. Dickerson, Caro State Hospital superintendent, has expressed much satisfaction with the progress made since the special in-service training was started. The program, initiated and conducted under his direction, has met with widespread interest among the hospital employees. Over 100 attendant nurses are still waiting to be enrolled in the course.

The graduation ceremonies on Tuesday night included the awarding of certificates and achievement pins to 24 graduates. The awards represent the official recognition and approval of the State Department of Mental Health and the Civil Service Commission. Edna Bowles Taylor, vocalist, added to the occasion with her presentation of two solos: "Charity" and "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied by Frank B. Campbell at the piano.

Storm Wrecks Lines Difficulties Reported In Phone Switch

Telephones in Cass City were switched to the common battery system Saturday at 11 p. m. when subscribers threw the switch previously installed to make the transfer.

Many subscribers reported difficulty in using the phone when they first went into operation. A common complaint was that it was hard to secure the operator.

A severe electrical storm north of Cass City Sunday may have caused some of the difficulty. Authorities for General Telephone Company said that heavy rain, together with high winds, damaged a 50 pair telephone cable.

The storm hit about 7 p. m. and caused 35 major telephone lines to go out of service. A total of 69 telephones were out of service.

Emergency repairmen were alerted and were at work early Monday morning repairing the damage. Full use of the system was restored Monday evening, officials said.

Meanwhile, crews began removal of magnet telephone from subscribers' homes early Monday morning.

Farm Problem Here to Stay Says Expert

The "farm problem" is here to stay and will probably get worse, says a University of Michigan business expert who has just written a book on "The Future of American Prosperity."

Prof. J. Philip Wernette of the School of Business Administration explains his gloomy prediction this way: "Almost every other commodity has an expansive market—as prosperity advances you can buy several cars, homes, TV sets, washing machines, toasters, etc.—but the farmer's ultimate market, the human stomach, just can't absorb all that increasing farm productivity is making available."

The long-range outlook for the country's prosperity is "fabulous," the professor maintains, but although most farmers' incomes will go up gradually, they'll continue to lag behind urban incomes. And if experimentation with a wide range of synthetic foods comes to fruition, things will be even worse for the farmers, he adds.

"America is suffering from a reverse of the Malthusian proposition," Professor Wernette declares, because the food supply is multiplying more rapidly than the population.

As for world markets as an outlet, "We sell as much abroad as the people can afford to buy at the prices we can afford to ask," he states.

Speaking specifically of Michigan farmers, Professor Wernette points out that they have a much better time of it than farmers in the South—"where the real farm problem lies"—though they're not as productive as their kin in other Midwest states or California. "But income level varies greatly from farmer to farmer throughout the country."

United States To Probe Milk Prices in State

A long fight by Harold Fritz, Romeo dairy farmer, for a reduction of the spread between prices paid by consumers and the amount received by farmers may result in lower milk prices.

The Department of Justice revealed Monday that dairy prices in the Detroit area would be probed by the Federal Antitrust Division.

Fritz is a spokesman for a group inside the Michigan Milk Producers' Association who are fighting for what they claim to be price tyranny of the big dairies.

The group has charged the MMPA may have acted in collusion with some dairies in prices of milk to farmers.

The Department of Justice has ordered the MMPA to produce its records and correspondence before a Federal grand jury Nov. 29.

Howard Simmons, secretary-manager of MMPA, said Tuesday that the organization was "more than willing" to co-operate with milk price investigation by the Justice Department.

Besides the MMPA, books and records of Detroit Milk Dealers, Inc., the Borden Co., the National Dairy Products Co. and the Detroit Creamery Co. were subpoenaed by the Justice Department.

Mr. Fritz said again this week that Michigan dairy farmers are getting less for their milk than it costs to produce it and the housewife is paying more than she should.

The Justice Department pointed out that the investigation of milk prices in no way implies that those subpoenaed are guilty of violating the antitrust laws.

Schedule Meeting Of School Officials

The biennial meeting of the school officers of Tuscola County will be held Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the Caro High School. W. A. Scott, county superintendent of schools, announced this week.

Plumbers to Assume Village Sewer Work

The plumbers in Cass City will take over the installation and cleaning of sewers in the village Nov. 1, according to a decision reached Tuesday evening at a meeting of the village council at the Cass City Municipal Building.

Present plans call for all the work to be done by the plumbers. When cleaning sewers, the property owners will be charged for the service except when the trouble is found to be on village property.

If a sewer main is clogged, the village will make necessary repairs.

Attending the meeting at the request of the council were Leonard Urquhart, Dave Mathews and Avon Boag. Absent from this meeting was Walter Finkbeiner, who attended a previous meeting and expressed his opinion to the council.

The plumbers agreed with the opinions expressed earlier by Mr. Finkbeiner when he said that much of the trouble in the village is caused by 90-degree bends in sewers and three-inch soil pipe instead of four-inch that should be installed.

The plumbers unanimously agreed that when such cases are found the sewer would have to be dug up and the proper installation made so that sewer equipment could be used.

The plumbers will cooperate with each other. When digging is necessary, digging machines owned by Ideal Plumbing and C. R. Hunt will be made available to concerns needing them.

The group discussed a plumbing code in the village. Although no action was taken, it was definitely decided that no installation of sewers, with improper angles or too small pipe would be allowed in the future.

From the Editor's Corner

The story of the drilling for lead south of Cass City a few weeks ago has stirred interest in unexpected places.

A week or so ago, a representative of a large lead manufacturing concern called at the office and picked up the issues concerning the operation.

He visited Howard Engineers of Detroit the following day and called the Chronicle to say that the tests he picked up from that company looked favorable.

He said that he was sending the samples "through channels" of his company for further study.

Then this week, C. A. Hargrave of Northville, who ran a store six miles south of Cass City, dropped into the office to ask exactly where the drilling was done.

Mr. Hargrave said the story had special interest for him. He recalled that when he was a small boy, an Indian woman came into his store with a large hunk of lead bearing ore.

In exchange for the ore, the Indian lady was given all the tea she could carry from the store. She left with a promise to come back very soon and tell where the "mine" was. Mr. Hargrave said, but that was the last anyone in the area saw of her.

Predictions of the Michigan Department of Conservation that pheasant hunting would be the best in years were proved accurate opening day when nearly every hunter came back with at least one bird and many bagged their limit.

After opening day, results were not quite so good as the pheasants that survived the opening day barrage went into hiding and nimrods were forced to work for their catches.

Play at Vassar Tonight

Hawks Nip Sandusky In Conference Tilt

The Cass City Red Hawks kept their title hopes alive in the Thumb B League Friday with a 13-7 victory over Sandusky at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Fumbles played a vital role in the Hawk victory. Both Cass City markers were collected after the fired-up Redskins dropped the ball.

Cass City marched 35 yards after the first Sandusky miscue to score. After Jim Johnson was smeared behind the line for a 16-yard loss trying to pass, he came back on the next play to hit Jack Clara on a toss that netted 27 yards and a first down on the Redskins 20.

Dick Hanby bucked for eight yards and Ron Behr picked up a yard on the next play. Clara hit for two and a first on the 10.

Two more carries by Clara, picked up six yards and Behr added two more to make it fourth and two to go for a touchdown. Hanby took the ball and crashed over for the first touchdown. Clara's kick split the uprights and Cass City led 7-0.

Neither team could put together a sustained drive in the second and third quarters. Early in the fourth period, the Hawks cashed in on a break to collect what proved to be the winning touchdown.

Polio Shots for One to 14 Age Group

Local Supply Problem Hinders Program

Although the Michigan Department of Health has announced that polio vaccine is now available for all children from one to 14 years old, distribution of the vaccine in Tuscola County prohibits administering the serum to everyone at the same time.

A check of local doctors revealed that they now receive enough vaccine at one time to vaccinate six children. When this supply is gone, they send in cards showing who has received the supply and it is replenished.

The serum is supplied through Dr. Gilbert of Mayville, in charge for Tuscola County. It usually takes two days to receive additional vaccine.

The vaccine is supplied free for persons in the designated age group and the only cost to families is the doctor's fee for administering the shot.

The polio shots, now available are for the first in a series of three shots. None of the serum can be used for second and third dosages.

The Department of Health said that the polio season is about over and that "this is the best time to start immunization" which will give protection against paralytic polio next year.

State Health Commissioner Dr. Albert E. Heustis termed results from the use of the vaccine so far "most encouraging, both in Michigan and country-wide."

Mr. Rabideau, 30, was born in Tuscola County Feb. 1, 1925, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rabideau of Colwood.

X-rays Scheduled at Rabideau Motor Sales

The committee in charge of adult X-rays in the county said today that they hoped that the mobile X-ray unit would be used to its capacity of 100 chest examinations an hour when it arrives at scheduled stops in Tuscola County.

Nearing completion is the most extensive drive in the history of the county to have all adults avail themselves of free service.

Cass City area residents will go to the unit in front of Rabideau Motor Sales Wednesday, Nov. 2, for their free X-rays.

Scheduled stops for the unit in the remainder of the county are: Friday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. at Vassar; Monday from 12 noon to 3 p. m. at Fairgrove; Monday from 5 p. m. to 8 p. m. at Akron; Tuesday from noon to 4 p. m. at Unionville, and Thursday, Nov. 3, from 2 to 3 p. m. and Friday from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. at Caro.

The committee pointed out again that detecting tuberculosis in early stages is the best way to protect yourself, your family and the community. They also reminded county residents that the chest X-ray also detects lung cancer and certain heart diseases.

CARS ARE MU Line

By H. M. Bule

It's mighty annoying, sitting there on a winter morning, grinding away on the starter. You know your battery is in good shape, and you've had the electrical system checked for loose connections and big enough cables (something I pointed out here a little while ago).

Your battery is in good shape—but it soon won't be with much more of this kind of starting.

So, let's see what happens when you're grinding away on a winter morning. The battery is less efficient in the first place, and congealed oil puts an extra load on the starting system.

The valve stems may get sticky and not close properly. As a result, compression is lost. And the compressing of gas and air into a tight space within the cylinder does the vital job of heating the mixture up an extra 400 or 500 degrees. At that heat, you don't need much spark to set it off.

Even with compression lost, the mixture may ignite, and then you find it hasn't enough power to keep the engine turning over.

Two things need to be done. It's here that the importance of using the right weight of oil comes in. Come around to see us—before trouble sets in if you can—and we'll troubleshoot for winter starting headaches and put in the right grade of oil.

Secondly, this is the time of year when it's sometimes a good idea to put in some top cylinder oil through the spark plug holes or intake manifold to free those sticky valve stems. We'll do it for you, too.

Yesterday's first snow of the season is a warning to have your car checked for winter. A filling of permanent anti-freeze (barring leaks) will protect you all season long. If your battery has lost its zip, we'll check it. Maybe it only needs a charge for "six bits." We'll gladly analyze your car's performance, estimate needed repairs, without charge.

The man who is good at making excuses is very seldom good for anything else.

As a general rule the person who runs down other people can manage to get in a few words of praise for himself.

Some people would be terribly broken up if their left hand ever found out what their right hand was doing.

WELL WISHES?
Self pity causes some men to wish they had never been born—and everybody else joins them in their wish.

QUESTIONABLE
One half doesn't know how the other half lives—but suspects it is living on borrowed money.

Many men with ability fail to reach the top because it is much easier for them to slide than to climb.

Slate Meeting to Promote Use of Milk in Schools

Members of Tuscola County dairy foods promotional committee, school superintendents, creamery operators, farm bureau, grange and artificial breeders' association will discuss the school milk program. The meeting will be held in the courthouse, Caro, Thursday, November 3, at 8 p. m., says Don Kebler, assistant county agricultural agent.

The main topic of discussion will cover the ways in which more milk can be made available to school children, at a lower price. Many schools have realized the benefits of the United States Department of Agriculture's national school lunch program, begun in 1946. Other schools which do not have facilities for lunches have not taken advantage of this milk program. In 1954, the special milk program was authorized, which made available at a lower cost, any amount of additional milk used over the amount already being served in school lunch programs. Schools not serving milk before will get all their milk at a lower cost.

These are the two programs which these groups are interested in and will be working on plans whereby more milk can be made available to school children. For further information, contact your county agricultural agent.

Inspect Results of Metal Roofing

Anyone in the vicinity of South Kirk and Van Geisen roads is invited to stop at the Arnold Mosser farm and inspect the results of the roofing demonstration held Tuesday, October 18. A section of the metal roof was given a coat of metallic zinc paint and proper ground wires attached for lightning protection. This is a good way to see if the paint will stand up and how long and also to see the principles of good grounding. This demonstration was sponsored by the American Zinc Institute, working with Michigan State University and the county agricultural agent's office. Further information can be obtained from your county agricultural agent's office.

SHORT STORY

Mahomet's Advice

By William L. Roper

"WHAT on earth is the matter with you, Grady?" Shirley exclaimed. "You look as if you'd just received word the end of the world was due in fifteen minutes."

Grady Monroe smiled grimly. "Oh, it's not quite that soon. In fact, I've got six days."

"Six days?" Shirley's big blue eyes studied him with a puzzled expression.

"Shirley, your Uncle Dave has told me I must sell that stock of frozen Red Head hammers by the first of September, or look for employment elsewhere. He said he was testing my judgment last spring when he let me act as buyer. Oh, he's really burned up about certain items that are clogging the shelves."

"Then we won't dare get married unless—"

Grady nodded. "Not unless I sell the hammers or find another job."

"We might consult a horoscope," Shirley suggested, her face brightening. "That's what I usually do when I'm undecided about something."

Grady frowned. "Yeah, I remember. That's where we got that screwy tip to stock up on hammers."

Shirley opened her handbag and took out a slip of paper. "Look."

Grady shook his head dubiously. "Whoever heard of peddling hammers door-to-door?"

Grady, she said. Her eyes sparkled. "I just got this horoscope at Carter's newsstand. Let's see if it offers a clue."

Grady smiled and took the slip of paper. Unfolding it, he read solemnly:

"When the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain."

"Don't you get it?" Shirley said. "It means if customers don't come in and buy your hammers, you must go out and sell them."

"You mean peddle 'em?"

"Sure, you and I can go out in the country and sell hammers to the farmers every evening after the store closes. Why, Grady, it'll be fun and—"

Grady shook his head dubiously. "Whoever heard of peddling hammers door-to-door? Besides your Uncle Dave may not approve."

"We won't tell him," Shirley said.

That evening Grady and Shirley gave the horoscope-inspired idea a try.

"Well, we didn't sell a single hammer," Grady said as they drove home. "But it's been fun."

He paused and sniffed the fresh odor of a newly mowed meadow.

"You discovered that Tony Bottaro needed a new cream separator, and that Omar Jones was in the market for a tractor," Shirley said.

But at the end of the week, they had to admit their hammer-selling project had been a failure. Out of the dozens of calls they had made, they had succeeded in selling only six hammers.

"Looks like we're licked," Grady said, as he stopped his roadster in front of Shirley's home. "Guess I'll have to start looking for a new job in a few days."

The next morning he was counting the hammers in the show case, when he heard old Dave Crossett's shrill voice, calling him.

"Yessir, Mr. Crossett," Grady said, trying to swallow the lump in his throat. He hurried to the proprietor's office at the front end of the store.

"Come in, Grady." The old man peered at him sharply over his dark plastic rimmed glasses. "How many of the Red Head hammers do we have left?"

"Approximately five dozen, sir."

Old Dave Crossett's high pitched voice interrupted him. "You don't need to explain, Grady. Forget everything I said about them Red Head hammers. That getting out and calling on the farmers was a real smart idea. It's already brought us in over a thousand dollars in increased business, and I've decided to raise your salary fifty dollars a month and give you a five per cent commission—that is, if you'll stay with me."

Happiness depends wholly on knowing when you have enough.

Extravagant people are thrown out into a cold world when creditors start making it hot for them.

One thing a man never realizes is how much fault is found with him for finding fault with others.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Political embarrassments have been taking the play away from the campaign to improve the chances for long life for those who drive cars on Michigan highways.

It's been a hectic autumn for Secretary of State James M. Hare.

He proposed his "14 steps to highway safety" at a point when the public was generally concerned about the slaughter on the highways.

"This has got to be non-political," he said.

Insiders figured Hare was sincere in his proposals. Many of them had been projects of Republican legislators in the past, but Hare had them in a package attractive enough to sell.

It contained a proposal for a state system of driver license examiners, supplanting local officers who for years have issued licenses.

Sheriffs, under fire before from reformers who believed a politician could never adequately enforce the law, were incensed.

At a meeting in the capitol, they pinned Hare's ears back, demanding that he prove that incompetence in licensing was killing people on the highways.

Hare worked for weeks and came up with statistics to prove the sheriffs and other local officers were ill-trained for issuing licenses to hunt a three-ton projectile across the highways.

At a second meeting with the sheriffs, Hare had them on the run with his statistics, case histories. His point was that with state control, Michigan "would have better—or fewer—drivers."

At this point, Sheriff Ferris E. Lucas, secretary of the Michigan Sheriff's Association, said:

"Maybe the state officials, too, have been doing out favors for their friends in licensing."

Sidney Woolner, Hare's deputy, insisted on proof and Lucas slowly pulled out of his pocket a photostatic copy of an order to report for a license hearing that was ignored.

It bore the name of Thomas M. Kavanagh, of Carson City, who now is the state's attorney-general, the chief law officer in Michigan.

Hare immediately ordered an investigation, another examination for Kavanagh. Republican politicians leaped on the episode, promising that Hare's program would be junked.

Hare was embarrassed. Rep. Herb Clements (R-Deerfield), said that "in view of the disclosures of Kavanagh's driving record, you can be sure that Hare's program will never be enacted."

He admitted that Kavanagh was only one of 3,000,000 drivers in Michigan. Others said it would be "just too political" to scrap protection for the other 2,999,999 because of Kavanagh's record.

Then, due to the misunderstanding, a parking ticket affair at first seemed to involve Hare. This brought out more political spears.

He was either impersonated by a violator in Ionia of a traffic cop misunderstood. But the first report was that Hare was fined for a parking violation, identified himself and the ticket was torn up. The time was 3:08 p. m. on a Friday.

Hare said at that exact minute he was talking with a reporter in his Lansing office, 35 miles from Ionia.

The incident made the headlines, of course, and the chances of Hare's program—an accumulation of ideas gathered over the years by legislators—was again under a cloud.

"I certainly hope this very important program, whoever gets the credit for it, can survive these embarrassments which seem to be political, at least on the surface," he said.

Farmers became the focal point of Governor Williams' most recent announcement.

He ordered the state agricultural commission to change its emphasis from quality and production to marketing and research.

"Times have changed since I first came into office," Williams said.

For the last year, Gov. Williams has been pointing out the plight of the farmer—too few dollars for the work put into a crop.

Quality has been reached, he said, and now the emphasis should be placed on convincing the buying public. He has ordered the commission and the state agricultural marketing council to come up with a plan.

In the next few weeks, they are expected to develop a program in cooperation with State Treasurer Sanford A. Brown, who is drafting a new "state farm program" for Gov. Williams.

Don Tuckey Makes CMC Varsity Squad

Don Tuckey, 20-year-old junior at Central Michigan College, has been moved up the varsity on Coach Bill Kelley's champion Chippewa football team, after a stint as captain of the JV squad last season.

Although a six-foot, 180-pound powerhouse at the center position, Don has seen limited action due to the rough competition at that post. Captain Dick Kackmeister, named by some as Central's all-time center, holds down the spot. However, Kackmeister is a senior and is now in his last season of eligibility which should provide a spot for Tuckey in next year's starting lineup.

Don is a graduate of the 1953 class of Cass City High School where he played football for Coach Jerry Raymond. While at Central, he will study pre-medical courses before entering medical school.

Tuckey also has a brother enrolled at Central, Fredric, who graduated from Cass City in June of 1955.

Mr. and Mrs. Luke Tuckey of Route 2, Cass City, are the boys' parents.
