Spray Cattle Now To Destroy Lice

If you want to keep your cattle free of lice this winter, the time to spray them is now—before freezing weather sets in. Pick a warm day this month, suggests Don Kebler, Tuscola County agricultural agent, and make sure the spray covers the entire body of the animals.

Michigan State University entomologists recommend methoxychlor for dairy cows—eight pounds of the 50 per cent wettable powder per 100 gallons of water. Never use DDT for dairy cows, they say, because a slight amount can make milk unsalable. For beef animals that are not being finished for slaughter, DDT is a cheaper insecticide for the control of lice. The recommendation is eight pounds of the 50 per cent wettable powder per 100 gallons of water. Or one and one-half pounds of the 25 per cent wettable lindane powder can be used.

But if the animals are being finished for slaughter, methoxychlor is the insecticide to use. For small amounts of spray, you can use tablespoonfuls of insecticide per gallon of water to get the right proportion. For example: eight tablespoonfuls of the methoxychlor powder in one gallon of water would be equal in strength to the eight pounds in 100 gallons of water.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Political embarrassments to Gov. Williams in the past year have created the first worry lines on the Democratic facade since he took office in 1949.

Some have been accidents, others have been the eruption of growing crises and still others were contrived by his political enemies.

A new factor is the responsibility Williams must assume for fellow Democrats in office.

Time was when the governor had a capitol full of Republicans he could attack at will. One Democrat, following the 1954 election, quipped:

"It's a tragedy. We don't have enemies any more and our targets are gone."

Contained in that statement is the irony of political success. Williams obtained a full slate of elective sidekicks in the triumphant sweep in 1954, but he also got the responsibilities.

His latest embarrassment was the spectacle of his secretary of state, James M. Hare, ordering his attorney general, Thomas M. Kavanagh, to take a new driver's license examination.

The details are well-known, but whether the episode of an attorney general—the chief law enforcement officer in the state—being told to ignore a traffic summons by an enthusiastic underling in Hare's office, will hurt Williams, only 1956 will tell.

The original disclosure about Kavanagh's driving record came from Sheriff Ferris E. Lucas, in St. Clair county, conveniently a Republican.

Lucas wasn't especially interested in embarrassing Williams, but was concerned because Hare was proposing that driver licensing be taken away from the sheriff's and turned over to a state system of driver examiners.

Lucas, secretary of the Michigan Sheriff's Association, displayed a shrewdness in politics far above that of local office.

There was also difficulty in the case of Dr. Julien D. Feiler, of Flint.

Feiler was a member of the State Board of Examiners in Optometry, appointed by Williams, who was working with State Police and attorney general investigators to trap a bribe-giver.

Feiler, for reasons of his own, concealed a $500 payment from Benjamin D. Ritholz, of Chicago, an optical manufacturer. When Williams found out, Feiler was suspended, then fired.

Williams was obviously angry at Feiler and distraught at the situation when Feiler was ousted.

Mistakes by appointive officers are understandable, but when the public starts shooting it all becomes a reflection on Williams' judgment in appointing the officer in the first place.

The governor, normally careful and discreet in his public announcements, is still getting reactions to the Eisenhower "too old" episode in Chicago last summer.

There is evidence that Williams didn't sound as bad as some Republicans painted the statement, but the effect is the same.

He was almost trapped again at Mackinac Island when Mayor Cobo, of Detroit, was too old to become a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket.

When he realized what was happening, he came out with a statement denying everything.

Paul Weber, Williams' press secretary, was credited with the now-familiar statement he said he would hold in readiness if Williams ever again were trapped into a statement embarrassing to himself or the Democrats: "We must all leave immediately. The joint is afire and there isn't a second to lose."

Republicans have charged that state officials are holding back information from the legislature so that Williams can announce it with all the fanfare of his office.

The rhubarb which developed when he was invited to speak at a segregated political gathering in the south was embarrassing to a governor whose state was just giving birth to FEPC.

Organization of a group of CIO workers in Washtenaw County as a "Republican Labor Organization" is a delicate subject.

There have been others, most of them inevitable with the law of averages being what it is.

Williams was elected to his fourth term, eight years as Democratic governor in a Republican state.

Now the question remains: What will Williams do in 1956?

The experts say that his refusal to go into the south and appease the militant segregationists hurt his chances on a national scale and they are looking for him to run for a fifth term as governor.

Some are going a step farther: that Williams will try for another term, then go against Senator Potter in 1956.

Williams isn't talking, waiting for the shifting political winds to change again.

As a rule the only person who thinks twice before speaking once is the one who stutters.

CARS Line

By H. M. Buleen

With winter upon us, and temperatures beginning to drop, the most common sound along any residential street is the grind, grind, grind of engines that are hard to start.

Mixed with this melody is the sound of muffled grumbling from drivers who are slowly, and systematically wearing down their batteries with this early-morning grind.

The battery, more than likely, can be blamed for most hard winter starts. When the temperature drops to zero, a battery in good condition will deliver only 40 per cent of its normal power.

All the more reason, then, to have us check your battery, remove the corrosive deposits around it and make sure you have large enough electrical cables. (Smaller cables put up more resistance to the flow of current.)

Loose, frayed or corroded cable that you may not be able to see with a quick look under the hood can suddenly make a car hard to start in winter when it has been acting perfectly all summer. All these things rob the electrical system of voltage—and in winter the battery voltage may drop to 4 or less, instead of 6 or slightly more (on most cars).

Under these circumstances, your engine may be turning over when you press the starter, but there's not enough voltage left to produce a spark.

There are lots of reasons for hard winter starts, of course, some of which I'll discuss in later columns, but the electrical system is usually at the heart of it. The thing to do is come in and talk it over, we'll go over all the trouble spots with you.

We're trying something new on USED CARS. Instead of taking our surplus to Owosso Auction, we are pricing them at "Wholesale" for local consumption.

Elsewhere in this paper you will find four good examples of our new pricing policy. We have 60 others, including a Carryall and two Pickups. And, every car over $300.00 is guaranteed in writing.

If you need good transportation, you owe it to yourself to check our prices and stock (largest in the Thumb).

Sheep Raiser Checks On Wool Program

Sheep raisers who sell lambs for slaughter must get the proper certification of sale if they want to qualify for incentive payments for their wool. That's the advice of Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agricultural agent. Sellers should ask the selling agency or the buyer for the information needed to comply with the certification requirements of the new wool program.

Graydon Blank, extension animal husbandry specialist at Michigan State University, points out that wool payments may be applied for only when lambs are being sold slaughter.

Also, the seller must have owned the lambs for at least 30 days before slaughter to be eligible for payment. Owners of shorn lambs sold for slaughter are also eligible for payment if the fleeces are at least 1 1/2 inches long. The wool incentive payment program is set up to encourage the production and use of wool in the United States.

Here it is for '56— Best Buick yet

When better automobiles are built Buick will build them

IT COMES upon the heels of the most successful Buick in history—and beats it on every score. In shimmering steel and solid sinew, it's Buick for 1956—and there's never been anything like it for pure automobile.

You get a good hint of what we mean when you take in its sweep-ahead styling—from the air-splitting prow of its V-front grille to the robust rake-of-its cantared rear profile.

You get an even better hint when you open the doors and see the dazzle there.

But it's when you put this beauty to the city streets and the open highways that you learn the best of it.

For here is performance without parallel. A new advance in Variable Pitch Dynaflow* goes airplanes one better—steps up your getaway in normal driving without switching the pitch. But when you do need that extra surge, it's there instantly—and in extra abundance. The might of big 322-cubic-inch V8 engines in every Series brings new record high power to all Buicks—ROADMASTER, SUPER, CENTURY, and the bedrock-priced SPECIAL. And to handle such dynamic driving power, the whole rear end has been endowed with extra brawn and heft and solidity.

We could spread before you an acre of blueprints on the engineering gems that spark the spectacular performance and ride and handling and roadability of these great Buicks for 1956.

But you can get the full and magnificent story right now, at our showroom, in a face-to-face meeting with the best Buick yet—now on display, and setting a dazzling new pattern for 1956.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.
