From the Editor's Corner

Your editor received a call from Basil Shurlock, from Howard Engineers of Detroit Thursday morning. Mr. Shurlock has been the ramrod on the drilling for zinc and lead south of Cass City. Mr. Shurlock said that his company would definitely be back to Cass City in the spring. The company has several plans under fire now, he said, but will not release them at this time.

First sign of the coming speed control law in Michigan appeared in the Thumb area recently when a sign stating the control law was erected on M-81 between Caro and Cass City. Many traffic authorities feel that the speed control law will not materially reduce accidents... they say that the maximum speed law tends to induce drivers to drive at the upper limit regardless of conditions and that at times 65 miles per hour can be deathly dangerous.

In any event, by next year at this time traffic authorities will have an accurate check of the law's effectiveness... if any.

In a joint statement, officials of the two companies said that under terms of the marketing agreement, unique in the elevator industry, all grain and beans received from farmers by Frutchey Bean Company at its 19 local elevators will be marketed cooperatively through the combined processing and marketing facilities of the two companies.

James R. Bliss, general manager of Michigan Elevator Exchange, a state-wide cooperative marketing agency, said that "the marketing agreement with Frutchey Bean Company will make available the advantages of cooperative marketing to thousands of additional farmers now served by the elevators of Frutchey Bean Company in a period when the farmer's share of the consumer food dollar is at its lowest point since 1940."

A. D. McIntyre, president of Frutchey Bean Company, said he looked on the agreement with Michigan Elevator Exchange as "an opportunity for our company to improve its marketing service to our farmer-customers and to strengthen the farmers' bargaining position at a time when agriculture is the only segment of

CARS ARE MY LINE

It's no wonder that what used to be called "trailers" are now advertised as "mobile homes." Few innovations have caught on so fast, and the trailers that started out as a convenience for holidayers in the 1930's are now 30 to 45-foot giants with all the comforts of home.

You get a good idea of the trailer's new role from the name of one of the trade organizations, the Mobile Home Manufacturers' Association. There are now 700,000 people owning trailers in the U. S., some 15 per cent of them retired families who can move with the weather, or visit relatives without imposing on them, or just stay put in Florida or California and enjoy the sun.

I know of one retired man who moves his home to the south for the winter and spends the time making shell jewelry. Then in the summer he moves north and travels around selling it. Another man solved his financial troubles by making plugs for fishermen and selling them in the same way.

A trailer can provide a substantial-sized home for much less than the cost of a house, but some people have spent as much as $75,000, for fancy, two story jobs.

Today there's a trailer for every taste, in the same way that a used car lot like ours can offer used cars for every taste. When you have a lot the size of ours you can afford to handle the newer model trade-ins and older bargain cars as well. And when you sell more cars, of course, you can sell them for less. Like we do.

And, we are selling so many new CHEVROLETS and OLDSMOBILES that we are overstocked on good OK Used Cars. And, when we are "overstocked" is the time for you to buy, because we hate to turn down a deal. We have to make room for more coming in all the time, and, we have to get our money off the "Lot" and into the Bank.

With License time coming up and Spring just around the corner, now is a good time to buy. And, remember WELL BUY YOUR 1956 License. Come in and look over the finest selection of Used Cars in the Thumb.

Smartest Buy in the fine-car field

You've probably noticed that more and more people seem to be stepping into the upper circle of fine cars.

And there can be no doubt that "good times" have a lot to do with this.

But all by itself, it doesn't explain the sudden spurt in sales of the finest of Buicks—the 1956 ROADMASTER.

For it has always been our experience that folks with the wherewithal to buy any car they choose are apt to be the choosiest of all.

So it seems quite clear that the marked and increasing preference for ROADMASTER is in the fineness of the car itself.

We can tell you why very simply.

ROADMASTER starts off with all the virtues that have vaulted the full line of Buicks to soaring popular favor—then caps that acclaim with a worthiness all its own.

You sense this especial eminence at once—in the individualized styling of this gracefully proportioned car.

You recognize it again—in the quiet elegance of its custom appointments—and in the good taste of its luxurious fabrics and color harmonies.

But you know it for sure in the lift and thrill and spirit of ROADMASTER performance.

For here is the obedient might of the highest-powered V8 engine in Buick history—coupled to the flash-fast response and absolute smoothness of an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflo—most modern transmission in motoring today.

And here is Buick comfort, Buick handling ease, Buick roadability, and the great Buick ride—each brought to its peak in this Buick of Buicks, ROADMASTER.

In all truth, no man who puts true merit above mere symbol could ask for more than is his in ROADMASTER.

If that applies to you, we'll be happy to arrange an introduction. Will you phone us—or come in—for a demonstration soon?

Ice blue themed the wedding of Miss Elaine Brown of Lansing when she repeated her wedding vows Saturday afternoon, January 14, in Peoples Church to William D. Bell of Saginaw.

Accompanied by organ music the church soloist sang beautifully "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

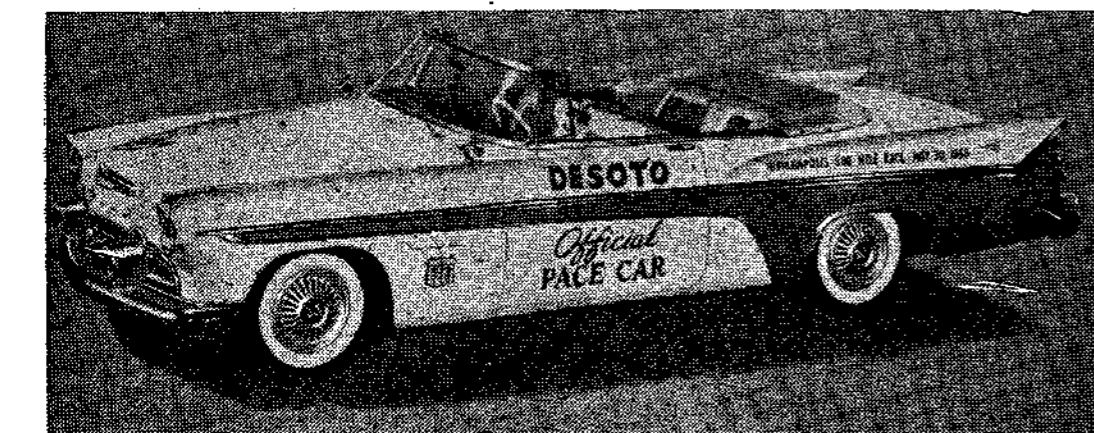

The bride, a graduate of Cleary college, Ypsilanti, and Harper Hospital School of Nursing, Detroit, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil U. Brown of Cass City, and her bridegroom, a graduate of Albion College and former graduate student at Wayne University, is the son of Mrs. James Renwick Bell of Birmingham and the late Mr. Bell.

Given in marriage by her father, ice blue bridal satin fashioned Elaine's wedding gown which was made for her by her aunt, Mrs. Nila Laidlaw of Dearborn. It was accented with a bolero of Chantilly lace with portrait neckline. Her veil of ice blue illusion fell from a Chantilly lace tiara trimmed with seed pearls and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid. A string of cultured pearls, a gift of the groom, completed her adornment.

SHORT STORY

Change Of Mind By Allen Wishert

HOWARD CLARK came within three hours of being a married man. Mary Bradford and he had been engaged almost a year. In his bachelor quarters, Howard was nervous and fidgety, this was to be his first venture, and he vowed that it would be his last. He loved Mary, she loved him. Hearing a faint rustle, he turned quickly, stood staring in amazement at a piece of paper being slipped beneath his door. Rushing over, he threw open the door open, no one there, however, the paper was unfolding, it read: "Having changed my mind, am eloping with Tom Barrett. It was love at first sight. Try it sometime." He knew Mary's writing. Superman couldn't have delivered a more stunning blow, he spun around and sat on the edge of the bed. Hardly realizing his action, he had taken a bag from an upper shelf and was packing. Far up in the Ozarks, Arkansas range, he owned a cabin. He must get away, far from civilization all to himself. This was something he must battle alone; far up in those hills he would try to forget.

At the moment he would have given anything for just one tiny, gentle clap of thunder.

Awakening the next morning, he arose, went to the cabin window and looked out upon a world of glorious sun-shine and peacefulness, while within his heart raged a storm breaking and strewing shattered fragments over a wounded soul.

Mary had mentioned, "Love at first sight." He doubted that such a condition ever existed, at least, it had never happened to him.

From out of the wilderness came a long, drawn out: "Hello-o-o." Then into the clearing stepped a girl. Hallucinations wasn't in his line, yet this one was approaching, waving arms and smiling. He closed his eyes, shook his head, upon opening them he saw the hallucination stepping over the threshold into the cabin. He managed to gasp: "Wh—what are you do—doing here?"

"I'm lost," she replied. "What'd you mean, lost?" "Just plain old everyday lost. You know, like the ad you see in the papers: reward for its return."

This was no imaginary being, this girl was real, pretty, too, in hiking tops and stringy hair. "Who are you?" Howard asked. "Mildred Sheppard," she answered. "You—you are old man Sheppard's daughter?"

"Old lady Sheppard was in on the deal, too." "You're the daughter of Stephen J. Sheppard, the multi-millionaire?"

"Yes," said Mildred. "But banish the thought; no ransom for my release." "Hum-m-m, not a bad idea," mused Howard.

A black cloud from the Northwest swarmed overhead, a blinding flash of lightning, a terrific crash of thunder, Mildred screamed and leaped into the arms of Howard.

He held her close, for protection, of course. She made no effort to release herself, he was looking into her eyes, she was looking into his, slowly, very slowly he knew she wasn't the only lost human. At the moment he would have given anything for just one tiny, gentle clap of thunder. It failed to materialize. The rains came, and each drop struggled on the window pane for a passing glimpse at a man who was fast forgetting the past.

Howard pondered; the note had said: "Love at first sight!" Well, why not? Also, it stated: "Try it sometime!" Again, why not?

Months passed slowly; within three weeks Howard Clark would be a married man. In his bachelor quarters he was nervous, fidgety. It would be his first venture. A faint rustle, a slip of paper was sliding beneath his door. Unfolding it, he read: "Having changed my mind, instead of waiting, let's marry today." Also, he knew Mildred's writing.

Experience is a good teacher, but it never pats you on the back after a hard learned lesson.

Special Services

The Howard Brennemanns Rev. Gordon Guiliat, pastor of the Greenleaf United Missionary Church, announced this week that a series of evangelistic services will be held at the church nightly, except Saturday, from Jan. 30 through Feb. 12.

Special speaker for this revival crusade will be Rev. Bruce W. Pearson from Brown City. He will speak nightly at 8 o'clock.

The musical program will be in charge of the well-known singers, Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Brennemann of Kingston.

PLEASANT HOME HOSPITAL Births: Jan. 21 to Mr. and Mrs. Steven Kish of Caro, a five-pound, eleven-ounce son, Mark Wayne.

Other patients in the hospital Wednesday forenoon included: James Osborn of Deford; Joseph Osentoski of Tyre; Mrs. Fred Bouck of Elkton; Mrs. Mary McDonald of Caro; Miss Hazel Roller of Unionville and Chester Graham, Harry Miller of Cass City.

Patients recently discharged included: David Gray of Shabbona; Mrs. Velma Bradley of Memphis; Karen Brown of Snover; Mrs. Chester Pettinger of Tyre; Ruth Ann Green of Sandusky; Mrs. Earl Hutchinson of Caro; Mrs. Clinton Law and Mrs. Ralph Youngs of Cass City.

Some people jump to conclusions because they want to know how the story ends.

The few seconds you save by speeding may be the first you spend in eternity.

It's a safe bet that when a woman asks a man for advice she's trying to get him in wrong.

If students lived up to their baccalaureate sermons no graduate could possibly fail.

The man who takes his own time often robs another of his.

People who struggle too hard to make both ends meet sometimes have an empty middle.

Pluck generally wins—a man's success sometimes depends on his ability to pluck others.

Quack Grass Control With Dalapon

Quack grass is one of the most serious weeds in the entire Northern Section of the United States. This weed is continually found in most cultivated fields, pastures, meadows and grain crops. Quack grass is particularly objectionable in grain crops that are to be used for seed purposes. Any seed that has even a trace of quack grass in it is prohibited from sale in the State of Michigan.

There are several reasons as to why quack grass is such an objectionable weed. To begin with, any weed that offers competition with a crop for water and soil nutrients will definitely reflect upon the final yield of the crop, and quack grass can offer some very stiff competition. There are a few weeds that have the ability to grow through the regular process of seed germination and through their underground root system. Quack grass is one of these weeds that can grow either way. This has meant that in the past, it has been very difficult to control quack grass by common cultivation methods alone.

Recently, a new product has come into use that does a good job controlling this noxious weed. This particular product is called DALAPON. DALAPON has several advantages over other chemicals that have been used to control quack grass. To begin with, it is easy to use. Dalapon is a wettable powder that you mix with water and spray in the same manner that you would with any other weed killer. This material can be easily cleaned from spray tanks. Dalapon is safe to use because it is relatively nontoxic to livestock and other warm blooded animals. Above all, Dalapon can control quack grass for as low as $8.00 per acre.

Dalapon should be applied when the quack grass is growing rapidly. It is very important that all the quack grass be completely covered with the solution. To do this, it will be necessary to use 35-70 gallons of water depending on the density and height of the quack grass. If the grass is tall and thick, then the higher dosages of water will be necessary.

For Spring applications, recommendations call for 8-10 pounds of Dalapon per acre to be put on as early as grass growth allows. This should be followed by plowing in 7-10 days. The ground can be worked up after, if you want to, but PLANTING SHOULD BE DELAYED FOR AN ADDITIONAL 4 WEEKS AFTER PLOWING. Crop injury may occur if this delay in planting is not made.

May we suggest that you contact your Gagetown, Bach, North Branch Elevators or Elevator Manager for more details on the use of Dalapon? He can help you in this and all other weed killing problems.

Politicians are winding up for the Battle of the Ballots in 1956. Both sides are carefully polishing issues and grooming slates of candidates, the better to put together a campaign machine sometime in the spring and summer.

Republicans, convinced he will try for a fifth term, are still hoping for a candidate to go against Gov. Williams.

At a kickoff dinner in Lansing some weeks ago, Mayor Albert E. Cobo, of Detroit, a favorite of many party leaders, got a standing ovation when he started and ended his speech.

Rep. Bentley was on hand and received polite applause when he was introduced. Donald S. Leonard, former state and Detroit police commissioner who lost to Williams in 1954, also attended.

Behind the scenes works the party organization, headed by State Chairman John Feikens.

Feikens has been criticized by some elements for not putting a Republican in the executive office and for letting Democrats put in a full slate in 1954.

Observers around the Capitol and the state believe Feikens has been doing a good job. Without a governor, a party tends to lack unity on a number of issues. A thousand ideas are hard to crystallize against a single, forceful one from the governor's office.

Friends of Feikens also point to the fact of Williams and the Democrats: No one has beaten them since 1946, even before Feikens was state chairman.

The story of the Democrats for 1956 is pretty well known and politicians are awaiting the final, climactic developments before making a move.

It will be either Williams or Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart for governor and the same slate now holding office.

Some believe Williams will try in 1956 for national office because of his speechmaking on national issues and his travels. But he made similar trips and talks before announcing in 1953 for governor.

The issues will be finely drawn this time, bearing overtones of the last campaign.

There will be highways (last time, Republicans accused Williams of running against Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler), mental health, higher education, and others.

Republicans would like to bear down on the campaign contributions battle which started after the last election.

At that time, Feikens said a number of CIO union members complained that their union dues were being used for Democratic campaigns against their own political beliefs as Republicans.

Feikens and the State Central Committee asked for an investigation, which still is in progress. Some information has been made public, and Republicans are promising much more.

August Scholle, president of the Michigan CIO Council, counters with the statement that each local union must vote under a democratic process before money is turned over to a candidate.

They vote to make the money available to a party or candidate before it is used that way," he said.

"That would be all right," Feikens replies, "if a worker were not forced to join a union to keep his job.

Carefully pointing out this is not an issue against unions, Feikens stresses the issue is for individual right. He tells the story of a rural union member who ran for county office on the GOP ticket. Not only did he fail to receive union support, but his money which he was forced under union rules to pay in dues, was used against him.

Feikens says that union support is a desirable thing for any party, but it must come from individual donations.

Republicans have gone a step farther to organize a Republican Labor Committee, composed of a number of CIO members in southeastern Michigan.

Republicans, whose support has long come from outstate Michigan, insist that they are not opposed to organized labor.

Democrats, who have had the power of labor unions behind them for years, claim they are the only political friends the working man has and that is why they continue to be elected.

The situation has given rise to an interesting switch:

Democrats have taken a keen interest in the farmer and plan to push for a better marketing system. They are plumping for help for small business, networks of highways and other ideas.

Republicans are taking a covetous look at the jammed precincts around Detroit and are working on ways to make the party more attractive to labor.

Feikens has a monumental job cut out for himself in 1956.

Three of the candidates arrived for the kickoff dinner in Lansing. Counting on the shock of a quick question, a reporter asked Feikens who would be the party candidate in 1956.

Not blinking an eye or faltering, Feikens answered:

"He'll be here tonight." Over in the capitol a half block away, Democrats don't have that problem. It will be either Williams or Hart.

Largest Selling "8"

the FORD V-8

Just look at these official registration figures for the first 11 months—January through November, 1955

Here's why!

People just naturally go for 8 cylinders in the FORD package!

And to a world record extent!

Just think, in the first 11 months of 1955 alone, 344,498 more people bought Ford V-8's than the two other low-priced competitive eights combined!

Of course, the reason the Ford V-8 is the largest selling eight-cylinder car in the world is that more people like its brand of performance—the kind that comes with the car!

These people aren't amateurs in judging engines. Nearly 24 years of building Ford V-8's to supply their demand is convincing proof of that.

And the Ford V-8 of today is the best yet... by a country mile!

Smoother and quieter—you can scarcely hear it, even with the hood up!

Sassier—just ask the highway patrol officer who drives one. He knows it takes a Ford to catch a Ford!

And, for the very practical question of durability—ask a Ford cab driver. He knows how Fords take it day on end.

So, if it's performance that you want—and wrapped like a gift—the '56 Ford V-8 is your baby.

Come in... try it today!

The joint statement issued by the two companies involved said that "the marketing agreement, by pooling the large volume handled by each company, will provide more efficient and economical marketing service for farmers of the Saginaw Valley and Thumb areas."

The combined volume of grain and beans and processing facilities brought together by this marketing agreement to work in a common cause will create a bulwark of strength and stability in the grain and bean market by maintaining a healthy, vigorous competitive marketing atmosphere and farmers of the areas involved will be the principal beneficiaries," the joint statement declared.

Frutchey Bean Company operates elevators in Auburn, Cass City, Clare, Clifford, Deford, Gaines, Greenleaf, Kawkawlin, Kingston, Lennon, Linwood, Mayville, Montrose, Oakley, Pinconning, Shepherd, St. Charles and Vassar, as well as terminal grain and bean facilities and general offices in Saginaw.

Michigan Elevator Exchange, with general offices in Lansing, is owned by 102 local farmer-owned cooperative organizations which operate 145 elevators in Lower Michigan. These include 28 local cooperatives in the Saginaw Valley and Thumb districts at Bad Axe, Bay City, Breckenridge, Caro, Cass City, Chesaning, Coleman, Colling, Elkton, Hemlock, Kinde, Marlette, Middleton, Minden City, Mt. Pleasant, Pigeon, Pinconning, Reese, Ruth, Saginaw, Sandusky, Sebawaing, Snover, Sterling, Unionville, West Branch, Wheeler and Yale. Michigan Elevator Exchange is also the marketing and processing agent for the Bean Pool marketing program operated by Michigan Cooperative Bean Marketing Association. As a result of the marketing agreement between Michigan Elevator Exchange and Frutchey Bean Company, bean growers in the areas served by Frutchey elevators will be eligible to participate in the Bean Pool marketing program of the Michigan Cooperative Bean Marketing Association.

Corn Picker Is Deadly Machine

Few Safety Measures Will Prevent Harm

How many times recently have you noticed shocking newspaper headlines? Newspaper headlines are often shocking, but they strike closer to home when we associate ourselves with them. Every farmer will turn his attention to a story when the headline reads: "Farmer Fatally Injured in Picker Accident," or "Farmer Loses Hand in Corn Picker."

These headlines, so often seen in the fall, always report a story that should never have happened—and would not have happened had a few simple safety rules been followed.

How can you lose fingers or a hand to a picker? It's easy, just reach into it while it is running or try to remove stalks that lodge in the snapping or husking rolls without shutting off the power. Using a stalk or a stick is a good way to get hurt, too. The rolls grab so quickly they can jerk your hand and stalk in before you let go.

If you want to be safe, develop the habit of shutting off the power each time you leave the tractor seat. Keep the guards in place and never operate without the shields. If any part of your clothing touches an unguarded shaft or coupling, you can be drawn in without warning.

The corn picker is perhaps the most dangerous of all farm machinery. The picker won't actually chase you as it does the farmer in the above illustration, but it should be considered the dangerous threat that it is.

Watch Shipping Fever When Moving Cattle

Moving feeder cattle from range country to feedlots is one of the most hazardous activities in the livestock industry from the standpoint of animal health, the American Veterinary Medical Association warns.

Shipping fever, a respiratory infection which the animals are made more susceptible by the excitement and exhaustion that goes with the transportation of cattle, takes a heavy toll in death losses and dollar-and-cent losses in the form of lost weight.

Lowered resistance brought on by changes in water, feed and climatic conditions, along with crowded travel and not too gentle handling favor attacks of this disease. Shipping fever often is compared with flu in human beings. It strikes quickly causing a soft cough, high temperature and a general depression in the animal; appetite is lost, there's a nasal discharge and watery, reddened eyes. If not treated early, pneumonia often develops.

Treatment is usually very effective but it varies with the secondary infections involved in the outbreak. Veterinarians prescribe treatment only after thorough examination of the herd.

Lamb Dryer

You can dry out lambs quickly by putting an old half-barrel under a heat lamp. Fill the barrel only part way so the ewe can see lambs over the side and won't refuse them later.

Practicing what you preach would be easy if it wasn't so easy to get out of practice.

Most people are willing to be on the level, but most of them want to set their own level.

The want ads are newsw too.
