By H. M. Buleen

For several years now, the automobile manufacturers have had a new headlight ready to install on their cars.

And it's about time, you might say—and quite correctly—because there hasn't been an essential improvement in auto headlights since sealed-beams were introduced in 1940.

The new headlight gives brighter light but with less glare for oncoming drivers. The catch is that under present laws the new light is illegal. All the different motor vehicle codes are designed to fit the 1940 sealed-beam light and no other.

The auto manufacturers had planned to introduce the new light in 1955 when, they hoped, all the motor vehicle codes would be changed. Some legislatures have acted, but not enough, and the light can't be introduced until every legislature has passed the necessary laws.

Many of the other improvements in automobiles have been developed slowly over the 50 or more years that people have been trying to make smoother, safer and more comfortable cars.

This slow but steady progress is one of the reasons a car three or four or five years old can often give you many of the latest luxury inventions at a used car price that won't land you flat on your back.

We often get this sort of used car on our lot—a dependable car that has given its first owner good service, has been looked after by our factory-trained mechanics—and is now ready to be passed on for many years of useful service.

To all my Well-Wishers—Note: My Wife has her "dog-house," insulated with everything but "Air Conditioning." To all who answered our advertisement: Thanks.

Remember your present license expires the end of this month. We have the best stock of good "OK" Used Cars in the Thumb, and WE'LL BUY YOUR LICENSES (any thing over $300.00). Come in and try George Dillman's 1952 Pontiac. You'll never see a cleaner car.

The "second round" of the City League ended last Monday evening with the Kettlewell Keglers tied for 1st place with the Wallace Pin Spillers. In a roll-off to determine a winner of the second round, the Kettlewell Team scattered enough pins to Wallace's bid for top honors. This assures the Kettlewell Team, (providing they do not repeat in the third round) of meeting one team for the City League Championship come the end of the season.

City Association Tournament time is fast approaching. As in the past, team entry fees and bowling expense are paid. Check your regular League schedule cards for date and time your team bowls. There will be no postponements or "switching" around of teams. You know far enough in advance when you bowl and can make arrangements accordingly.

You will also find doubles and singles entry forms at the alleys and our suggestion is that you pick your partner for the doubles and sign up now for the doubles and singles. This will aid your tournament secretary with setting up and conducting the tournament.

Set Thumb Corn Institute in Akron

Farmers are asking questions like "what causes barren stalks in corn, and can anything be done about it?" "Are the new seed treatment materials effective on corn in Michigan?" These and other topics will be discussed at the Thumb Corn Institute Day by specialists in farm crops from Michigan State University, according to Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agricultural agent.

There are some new developments concerning early planting of corn and the effect on yield and lodging which are of interest. The best available information on method-of-planting and rate-of-planting will be presented. What are the guides to follow when deciding on the best number of plants for any particular field? And what's just as important—"What's involved in getting a uniform stand of the right number of plants?"

Chemical control of weeds in corn is new to many corn growers. Spraying corn with 2,4-D at the last cultivation is probably the common practice at the present time. Results of experiments concerning test various systems of spraying corn indicate that pre-emergence spraying has much merit and on many fields is probably the best way of controlling weeds.

Colored slides dealing with seedlings in corn will be shown. Included are results obtained over a period of several years. The best methods of seeding, how and when to make the seedings, and the place in crop production for this practice will be discussed. This will be an all day meeting starting at 10:00 a. m. Included on the program will be a panel of five farmer growers and the county agricultural stabilization and conservation office manager, said Ballweg. The meeting will be in Akron Mar. 8.

Elkland FB Group Holds Meeting

The Elkland Farm Bureau gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard McConkey Monday evening, Feb. 13, for the monthly meeting.

An interesting report was given by Alfred Goodall on the legislative program.

Mrs. Edward Golding, Sr., reported on the Farm Bureau women's activities and outlined the program for the year.

A group discussion followed a report on the milk in schools program presented by Mrs. Clare Carpenter. It was stated that during the month of December 92,865 half pints of milk were served in 35 Tuscola County schools out of the 75 operating schools. The schools not participating are rural schools. It is the hope of the county dairy council that more schools will take advantage of the milk program set up by the Department of Agriculture.

The main topic for discussion led by discussion leader, Mrs. Carpenter, was "Farmer Cooperatives Fighting for Survival." Cooperatives are an honorable form of business that rural families have built up over the years. They came because the farmer needed them to bring price, quality and service into line. Cooperatives are constantly being attacked by some organizations that wish to gain control of the business operations of the rural area.

With the aid of slides Mr. Lyle Clark gave a very interesting talk on various activities of the agriculture department at the Cass City public school.

A cooperative lunch was served by the McConkeys.

HELP EISENHOWER pass the new farm program

You will benefit this year if Congress acts before spring planting time

"Although agriculture is our basic industry, farm families find their prices and incomes depressed amid the nation's greatest prosperity. . . . An oversupply of commodities drives down prices as mounting costs force up from below, generating a severe price-cost squeeze. . . . Remedies are needed now, and it is up to the administration and the Congress to provide them swiftly. As we seek to go forward, we must not go back to old programs that have failed utterly to protect farm families. . . . I recommend, therefore, the following nine-point program. I urge the Congress to pass this program with maximum speed, for delay can only aggravate and multiply the difficulties already sorely harassing millions of our rural people."

Dwight D. Eisenhower
From the President's special farm message to Congress.

The Eisenhower-Republican 9-Point Farm Program

1. A VOLUNTARY, 2-POINT SOIL BANK to take 40 to 45 million acres out of production of your problem crops, get rid of the surplus, raise prices. An Acreage Reserve which uses the surplus to reduce the surplus. A Conservation Reserve to prevent future surpluses and to build back soil for future needs.
2. LAWS TO PERMIT FASTER SURPLUS DISPOSAL especially in foreign markets. Selling, not storage, is the answer.
3. STRENGTHEN COMMODITY PROGRAMS on wheat, corn, dairy products, soybeans, cotton and rice. Ease production controls wherever possible.
4. PROTECT FAMILY-TYPE FARMS by limiting the size of price support loans made to large corporate-type farms.
5. EXPAND RURAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM to help low-income farm families live better, own more.
6. PUSH FORWARD THE GREAT PLAINS PROGRAM to stabilize income in drought-stricken areas, and to prevent another dust bowl.
7. INCREASE FARM RESEARCH APPROPRIATION to find new uses and new markets for farm crops, lower production costs and increase farm profits.
8. ASSURE ADEQUATE CREDIT TO FARMERS to meet capital needs of present farmers, help young farmers get started, tide farmers over emergencies.
9. REFUND GASOLINE TAX TO FARMERS on motor fuel used in farming operations.

Answers to some of your questions

- Q: Why will it work?
A: Because this is a program for farmers by farmers. We asked for, and got, sound advice from hundreds of farm leaders and thousands of farmers everywhere. This program gets at the root of the problem on a practical, non-political basis. It contains no double-talk or bureaucratic theories. It is the most business-like, down-to-earth approach to the business of farming and marketing of farm products this country has ever had.
- Q: Why is it a more practical program than others that have been offered?
A: Because it is especially tailored to today's peacetime conditions. It hits right at the problem of price-depressing surpluses built up because of wartime policies too long continued. These surpluses hang over your farm like a hidden mortgage.
- Q: Will all farmers benefit?
A: This program will directly benefit all farmers everywhere: producers of food grains, feed grains, oilseed and fiber crops, dairymen and livestock producers. It recognizes the special problems of regional groups and producers of certain crops.
- Q: Will this program help strengthen farm prices?
A: Yes. The present mountain of surplus, and the threat of future surplus, now holds down prices. Every farmer realizes that "a government warehouse is not a market." As surpluses are used up prices will inevitably rise. (Marketing people have estimated that net farm income would have been $2 billion higher in 1955 if it were not for the surpluses.)
- Q: How much will it help?
A: Hundreds of millions of dollars in payments to farmers can be made this year under the Soil Bank plan alone if passage is not delayed. This is in addition to its effect in strengthening farm prices. Farmers would also get $60,000,000 a year tax refund on gasoline used in their farming operations.
- Q: How big is the surplus?
A: The government now holds an $8-billion stock of farm products. We can't shut our eyes to it, throw it into the ocean or plow it under. It costs about a million dollars a day for storage and carrying charges alone.
- Q: Why do surpluses drive down livestock prices as well as grain prices?
A: Continued overproduction of grains not only clogs the grain markets but forces continued expansion in an already over-expanded livestock production. Livestock prices as well as grain prices would be higher today if it were not for the surplus.
- Q: Why is the new Soil Bank Plan the most sensible approach to the surplus problem?
A: It will get rid of the surplus and prevent future surplus from piling up. It will stop the shift of another farmer's problem crops to your problem crops.
- Q: How does the Soil Bank "Acreage Reserve" use the surplus to reduce the surplus?
A: In exchange for placing a portion of their allotted crop acres in the Soil Bank (removing them from production entirely for an agreed period), farmers will receive certificates. These certificates will be good for cash at the bank or for commodities drawn from surplus government stocks. In this way farmers will be using up the surplus instead of adding to it. This part of the program applies to corn, wheat, cotton and rice.
- Q: How will the Soil Bank "Conservation Reserve" keep future surpluses from building up?
A: It will take 25 million acres out of all crop and livestock production for several years. This land will be put into grass, trees or water storage. It is voluntary and provides generous incentives for wide-spread participation. It, too, will help livestock producers as well as grain producers since it will reduce the surplus of feed grains that put more and more people into the livestock business.
- Q: Are these programs entirely voluntary?
A: Yes. President Eisenhower and the Republican Party believe it is a basic right of every farmer to be free to plan his own farm program and make the best use of his land that he knows how. They also believe that farmers should have the chance to build up their soil without loss of income. The well-being of all Americans, as well as the future prosperity of farmers themselves, depends on maintaining productivity of our soil resources. Farmers who participate will no longer feel that they are forced to farm every acre to the limit, producing crops that aren't needed, in order to keep their income up.
- Q: How do I benefit if I put some of my acres in the Soil Bank?
A: You get an opportunity to restore the fertility of your soil and at the same time you are assured of an income from the land you retire. As surpluses are reduced, prices will increase on crops you do produce.
- Q: Why will Soil Bank participation help insure my income?
A: It will strengthen your cash position by giving you a guarantee—in effect, income insurance. The acres you take out of production will provide income regardless of drought, flood or other disaster.
- Q: How will the Soil Bank help livestock producers?
A: With less feed grains being produced, fewer farmers will feel that they have to raise more livestock to "piece out" their income due to surplus-depressed prices of grain. Participants in the Soil Bank plan will sign an agreement not to graze their diverted acres.
- Q: When does it start?
A: Just as soon as the necessary legislation can be enacted. The President has urged all possible speed so farmers can plan their plantings and benefit fully during the present crop year. Your Republican members of Congress are behind the President. They believe the more you know about the program, the more you can help. You can help by writing members of Congress urging immediate action.

The State's battle to provide education for its youth is changing arenas. Soon after World War II, grade school districts faced tremendously increased enrollments, causing sizable problems.

Now, some ten years later, educators and interested lay people are bracing to deal with the student increase at college levels. They do this in the knowledge that preparation must be made now if today's youngster is to have a fair chance for a college education.

A partial solution is now under consideration in the legislature. It involves the adoption of Detroit's Wayne University as a third state university.

For years Wayne was operated by the Detroit Board of Education. It has grown rapidly until it now offers courses to more than 30,000 people, 18,000 of them full time, degree-seeking students.

According to Wayne figures, we can expect this load to increase to more than 24,000 by 1960.

There is little argument to the idea in general. The Michigan Council of State College Presidents, (which includes both MSU and U-M) has expressed itself in favor of the move. Democrats and Republicans, the governor and the legislature are in general agreement.

The problem seems to be when and how, rather than if. Wayne officials point out that this move, while it will lift a terrific financial burden from the Detroit school system to place it where it properly belongs, will also provide Michigan with a $40,000,000 educational plant, fully paid for and in sound operating condition. This will reduce future expenditures to be made at other institutions.

Wayne people are most anxious to be considered by "outstate" people as a university anxious to educate their youth. Changing the status of Wayne University is not expected to solve all of the problems of higher learning in Michigan, by any means.

Senator Don VanderWerp (R-Fremont) has been working on an over-all plan for making increased use of junior colleges in several Michigan localities. He too favors the Wayne proposition. "We want to give the people in Detroit the same kind of advantages enjoyed in other colleges and universities in the state," he states.

Providing higher education for the youth of this state will be a problem of increasing importance during the next few years. Michigan citizens will continue to hear of it until sound solutions have been developed.

Increasing interest is taken in one of its major industries—tourism and resorts. The situation has been getting away from worried state and local officials for years.

Other states have been pouring money into their tourist industries, luring travelers from all over the country with advertising schemes that make Michigan pale by comparison.

So the worry in Michigan has filtered up to top state officials. Gov. Williams delivered a special message to the 1956 legislature and legislators started to work on the problems.

They discovered, for instance, that the tourist industry in Michigan is a $500,000,000 a year business and that a huge chunk of the money left in the state goes for taxes.

Michigan—with its 11,000 inland lakes, its resorts and beaches along the Great Lakes—has slipped from third to fourth among the tourist states.

As a starter, the legislature is working out an appropriation bill to give each of the state's four regional tourist councils an advertising shot in the arm.

Each received $25,000 during the past few years. The bill raises it to $30,000.

The experts say it is little enough with the higher costs of advertising in national areas, but it's a starter toward getting the state back up among the leaders.

Water shortage is a problem for parts of Michigan.

Williams sounded the alarm with the old quote: "Water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink." At least, not enough where it is needed.

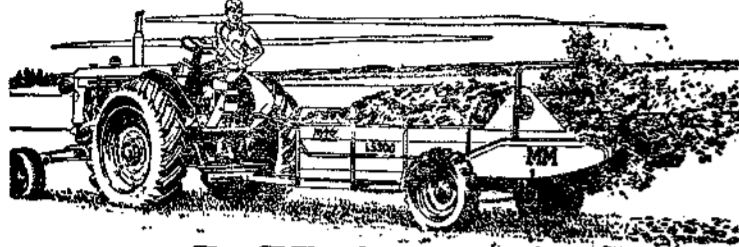

Southeastern Michigan communities which annually go through a water shortage are behind a proposal to start a pipeline from either Lake St. Clair or Lake Huron.

It would create a new set of duties for the state Water Resources Commission, set up a $500,000,000 fund to back up local bond issues and start water flowing into parched communities.

"The problem is more serious than many realize," said Senator William S. Bloomfield (R-Royal Oak.) He said his studies have developed evidence that towns now depending on fresh water wells will sooner or later need new sources. "This will be a statewide thing in a few years and we want to be ready for it," he stated.

Most of the major inland areas of the Antarctic continent are named for females, while most mountain ranges and peaks, glaciers, bays and islands are named for males.

Calves Are Lost in First Twelve Weeks

The greatest danger of losing a dairy calf comes before it is 12 weeks old, says R. E. Brown, dairy specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. Most of the losses, he adds, are due to infections brought on by poor management and unsanitary handling.

Use common sense plus nature's own protective measures to help calves through those critical first weeks. Be sure each calf gets milk from its dam for the first three or four days after birth, either by nursing or hand feeding. This first milk, or colostrum, contains antibodies and a large amount of vitamin A that helps calves fight off infectious diseases.

Build calf pens so that you can clean them easily. Thoroughly clean and scrub the pens before you put calves into them. A one-pound can of lye in five gallons of water makes a good cleaning solution.

Recent experiments have shown that calves can stand severe cold if they are dry and free from drafts. They need plenty of no-draft ventilation, too.

No-Freeze Tank

One farmer, having trouble with exposed stock tanks freezing in severely cold weather despite a tank heater going full blast all day and most of the night, built a tightly boarded roof shelter over his concrete tank. One side of tank has swinging doors, open by day to give stock access to the tank, closed by night to prevent freezing in severe weather.

Seed and Soil Make Best Corn

Good seed and careful soil management were key factors in helping win top corn growing honors for America's latest Corn King and Corn Prince at the International Grain and Hay Show in Chicago.

Willard C. Kirk, 58, the new Corn King, who operates a 335-acre farm near Jeffersonville, Ohio, has won the championship three times in the past five years.

Thomas Halterman, 18, of Rushville, Indiana, new Corn Prince, was following a family custom in winning corn honors. His brother

Lair, 20, was Corn Prince at the 1948 show. His father Newton, 84, operator of a 227-acre farm, won the title of Corn King at the same show, to repeat an honor he won in 1948.

Kirk says four steps were particularly important in bringing him the 1955 championship: 1—The use of a high quality single cross hybrid seed; 2—Feeding the soil a well-balanced supply of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer, and liming as needed; 3—A rotation that gives him a two-year laydown of legume-grass sod; 4—Returning manure and crop residues to the soil.

Tom Halterman's junior championship corn was produced on a 20-acre field he tilled as a 4-H Club project. The seed was a parent of Indiana hybrid No. 844.

ACP Program Aid to Farmers

Ever since the word, soil-bank, came out, many questions and ideas on this new proposed farm plan have developed. This soil-bank program is still in the development stage and no workable plan has yet been approved by our federal government. If approved, a lot more time may need to be spent before approval, remarks assistant county agricultural agent Don Kebler.

However, there are many other agricultural programs now in effect to assist the farmer. One of them is the "agricultural conservation program," and it was set up to encourage and assist with farm conservation practices. The government will give all farmers both technical and cost-share assistance on any county approved practice the farmer completes.

The two most used practices in Tuscola County are tile drainage and field liming. Recently however, a developing interest is being shown for establishing permanent pasture. There are 11 county approved practices which assist farmers in drainage problems, forestry, and other land improvements.

The program is designed to minimize the amount of work, time and cost the farmer must spend for each project. However, certain requirements and specifications must be followed before a project is completed and the farmer receives cost-share monies. These requirements are not stumbling blocks but are designed for the purpose of establishing a practice that will remain effective the longest time. Also they are the best that long years of development can give to do the job for the longest time. The initial cost may seem big but ten years depreciation is a lot better than a shorter period.

Any farmer can qualify if he has a conservation problem on his farm which is covered by one of the approved practices. He should go to his county ACP office for direct assistance. Questions can be answered by the county agricultural agent or the Soil Conservation Service. Now is the best time to inquire and sign up for the practice needed.

His father Newton, 84, operator of a 227-acre farm, won the title of Corn King at the same show, to repeat an honor he won in 1948.

Kirk says four steps were particularly important in bringing him the 1955 championship: 1—The use of a high quality single cross hybrid seed; 2—Feeding the soil a well-balanced supply of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer, and liming as needed; 3—A rotation that gives him a two-year laydown of legume-grass sod; 4—Returning manure and crop residues to the soil.

Tom Halterman's junior championship corn was produced on a 20-acre field he tilled as a 4-H Club project. The seed was a parent of Indiana hybrid No. 844.
