

April Session Opens

Supervisors Elect VanPetten Chairman

Nickolas VanPetten of Reese, veteran supervisor from Gilford Township, was the unanimous choice of the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors for chairman of the board for 1956-57.

Electing Mr. VanPetten was the first order of business for the supervisors in the April session which opened Monday.

Much of the time in the opening session was spent in reviewing the equalization of taxes with representatives from the state, Dale Campbell, Ray Paff and Charles Tarrell.

The men from the state showed the supervisors how they figured the assessed value of property and discussed the township's assessment with the supervisor concerned.

Other Business

The supervisors okayed an appropriation from the general fund of $600 for the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Fund.

A request by Supervisor Conrad Muellex of Denmark Township for a bounty on crows was referred to the agricultural committee.

Mr. Mueller asked that a bounty set at a minimum of 10 cents per crow be established.

Hawk Nine Posts Easy Win Over Akron

Cass City High School's baseball nine tuned up for the coming "B" title chase by easily defeating Akron, Tuesday, 13-0.

Coach Irv Clasenman used 16 players in the game, including three pitchers. Big Ron Behr pitched the first five innings and limited Akron to three hits while fanning seven and walking only one.

Bob Martus pitched the sixth inning and retired the side in order. And Ray Fox was equally as effective in the final inning that he pitched.

The Hawks sewed up the game in the first inning when they scored twice without a hit. Akron hurlers were unable to find the plate all afternoon and in the first inning four walks and an error accounted for the runs.

A long double by Behr was the key blow in a two-run rally in the second for Cass City and in the fourth the Hawks added an-

SCOUT TRIP—Tom Hulien, front, and Fred McConkey, one of a group of Explorers, take off in their canoe on the start of a two-day trip down the Cass River, Saturday.

The trip was the third the Explorers have taken. Plans called for the group to go as far as Frankemuth, a 75-mile trip which was completed on previous trips in two days.

Adverse weather conditions held up progress over the week end and the boys were forced to leave the river Sunday afternoon in Vassar.

The water was high and a continuous rain and snow hampered progress all during the day. Portaging around the dam at Caro was a much bigger job Saturday than it has been on previous trips.

Because of the high water, the boys were forced to move all of their supplies and equipment more than a block further than anticipated.

Cold and wet, the boys spotted a farm house on the river near Wahjamega and decided to stop for the night. Glen Ashburn, who lives on the farm, made the boys welcome and consented to the use of his barn for the night. The boys bunked down in the hay.

That evening the scouts were entertained by Mr. Ashburn with selections played on the guitar and violin.

Sunday at 2 p. m. the scouts were picked up by parents at the Vassar dam.

Making the trip were Fred McConkey, Tom Hulien, Chuck Reed, Jim Hutchinson, Lynn Albee, Fred Tyo, Stuart Little, Bob Johnson, Chuck Patterson and Jack Perry. Mr. Reed was the group leader.

Unusual Case Heard in Tuscola Circuit Court

An unusual case was heard in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro Friday before Judge T. C. Quinn.

Catherine Hartz Gray sued Howard J. Bueche, administrator for the estate of Vera Hartz, for support money.

The case stems from a divorce proceeding in 1948 when Mrs. Gray was to receive support money for dependent children from her former husband, Clare Hartz.

Immediately following the decision, Mr. Hartz disappeared and has never been found. Mrs. Vera Hartz was the mother of Clare Hartz and his share of her estate amounts to about $8,000.

Mrs. Catherine Gray is suing the estate for the $8,000 for support for her children she never received.

Mr. Hartz has not been found to claim his share of the estate. Judge Quinn ordered briefs to be filed.

Slate Fair Share Meeting In Cass City

A meeting of the Fair Share Bargaining Association has been scheduled for Saturday, Apr. 14, at 8 p. m. at Cass City High School, Harold Deering, local leader for the organization, announced this week.

Leading the discussion will be Homer Martin, who recently was elected official advisor for the group with power to sign contracts and negotiate for the FSBA.

Also present will be Sam Bailo, FSBA president.

The Cass City meeting is one of a series throughout the state. Saturday, Martin, a former minister and former organizer of the CIO, spoke in Bad Axe and said that the next goal of the FSBA is $5.50 per hundred pounds of milk by September.

He told the group that "if we don't get $5.50 by the time snow falls, we will strike."

He also said that keeping milk prices high can't be done without controls. He says that shipping lists must be frozen and no new milk producers added.

Large Crowd Hears Band Play Tuesday

One of the largest crowds of the season attended the annual "Chum Night" of the Cass City Community Club, Tuesday at Cass City High School.

Drawing the interest of local residents was the performance of the high school band. The members presented a varied program which included a solo by Jim Jezewski, division one winner at the recent State Festival.

President Ray Thorpe announced that the club will meet the second Tuesday in May for the final time before adjourning for the summer. The traditional ladies' night meeting is held in May.

Minor Fined for False Fire Alarm

A Cass City minor youth discovered that turning in false fire alarms can be an expensive proposition.

The youth was fined $50 and costs this week by Justice C. J. Striffler for turning in the false alarm Saturday.

Girls Glee Club To Sing in Bad Axe Saturday

A full day of musical entertainment is in store for fans Saturday, Apr. 14, when the Thumb Choral Festival will be held at Bad Axe.

Twelve different glee clubs will sing. The Cass City Girls' Glee Club is scheduled to sing at 10:40 a. m.

They will present "The Prayer Perfect" and "Oklahoma," Roger Parrish, vocal instructor, said this week.

The program will be presented in the Bad Axe elementary school gym.

The local Girls' Glee Club has 40 members who are expected to sing in the festival.

In the afternoon, a concert will be presented by the A Cappella Choir of Alma College, E. Sullivan, director. The concert will start at 1:30 p. m.

The program will close with a massed girls' glee club chorus directed by Mr. Sullivan. The chorus will sing "Grant Us Thy Peace."

Investigate Home Mail Delivery Board Defers Action On Friday Opening

At a unique 6:45 a. m. breakfast meeting, held at the New Gordon Hotel Tuesday, the board of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce discussed the controversial Friday evening opening of stores and postal delivery in Cass City.

After considerable discussion, members agreed to take no action on Friday opening of stores. They said that it was not clear that enough members were in favor of the switch.

They felt that a petition from members, signed by about a third of the owners of business places, should be submitted before they arranged for a formal vote by the membership-at-large.

It was brought out at the meeting that Elktion had tried Friday evening hours and switched back to Saturday when the experiment proved unsuccessful.

Postal Delivery
The board also discussed home delivery of mail within the village. Keith McConkey, chamber president, will write the proper authorities for an investigation. Whether or not mail can be home delivered in Cass City will probably depend on the condition of streets and sidewalks in the village, as Cass City has met volume and population requirements of the post office department.

Value Days
The board went on record as favoring the continuation of value days, the village-wide special sale days. The annual event is slated for Friday and Saturday, May 11-12.

Committees Appointed
President McConkey also announced the standing committees for the new year.

Handling the flower committee will be Basil Bigham. Responsible for the distribution of closing cards for Good Friday and other events will be John Bayley. Mr. McConkey and Dr. Edwin Fritz will be in charge of the finance committee.

On the industrial committee are Joe Riley, Clifford Croft, John Haire and Herbert Ludlow. President McConkey appointed a special committee Tuesday to investigate an air strip for Cass City. On the committee are Mr. Bayley and Warren Wood.

The pair will examine facilities at Marlette and present a cost estimate for consideration by the board.

President McConkey also announced that memberships are coming in daily and that it looks as if the Chamber of Commerce may surpass last year's record membership.

John Feikens, state chairman for the Republican party, will be the featured speaker at the Republican County Convention to be held in the courthouse in Caro, Wednesday, April 18.

Mr. Feikens has just returned from a meeting of state chairmen and national committeemen in Washington and is expected to have important information to tell the elected delegates and other Republicans attending, Gilbert Smith, county chairman, said this week.

The delegates attending will

elect 13 delegates and 13 alternates to the state convention.

After the convention, members of the county finance committee will meet to plan a county-wide drive for funds.

All Republicans are urged to attend.

Bullis Trailer Demolished by Michigan Tornado

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bullis, formerly of Cass City, were one of the families that suffered loss in the recent tornado that struck western Michigan.

The couple now lives in Grand Rapids and their trailer home was completely demolished. Left standing was a side room built onto the trailer.

Mr. Bullis saved his clothes which were in that building. Most of the rest of the property was in the trailer and was lost.

The Bullis family left the trailer before the tornado and spent the crucial period in the basement of a friend's home where they escaped personal injury.

Mrs. Bullis is the former Ruth Ewald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ewald of Cass City.

Zinnecker Male Student of Month At Northeastern

A last minute switch in his choice of fields for higher education is working out well for Bob Zinnecker, who was named male student of the month at Northeastern School of Commerce in Bay City.

All through high school in Cass City Mr. Zinnecker was preparing for a career in journalism. With an eye set for a sports editor's job on a metropolitan daily, Bob was editor of the Cosmopolitan in high school and followed a journalism course at the school.

But after graduation an interview with an executive officer of a fairly large daily newspaper changed his mind.

The man suggested that Mr. Zinnecker go into accounting and drove him to Northeastern where he is now enrolled.

According to the school paper, "Student Life," Bob is showing the same enthusiasm for accounting that he formerly showed for journalism.

He qualified for the school's work-study program and spends each afternoon as a bookkeeper in a car agency in Auburn.

He believes that he receives a wealth of practical knowledge in accounting and has a chance to apply some of the things learned in commercial law, business organization and business psychology.

Besides his job and studies, Bob finds time to be a member of the school's basketball team, the school paper reported.

Slate Annual Spring Clean-up Drive April 23-24

Residents of the community are reminded that the annual clean-up, fix-up days in Cass City have been set for Monday and Tuesday, Apr. 23-24.

During these two days the village will make free pick up of brush, cans and other junk for residents. Home owners should have the trash placed in containers and placed beside the alleys or curbs.

The village will not pick up garbage during clean-up days. Village authorities stressed a regulation this week that requires all persons to keep garbage in covered containers while awaiting disposal.

They said that some residents are not complying with the ordinance that requires garbage to be covered. For the health and safety of all persons in the village, authorities said, the garbage must be covered.

Fire chief Howard Ellis pointed out that attic, basements

Ralph Partridge Dies After Heart Attack Tuesday

Ralph Partridge, 51, well-known Cass City farm machinery dealer, died Tuesday afternoon after suffering a heart attack while resting on a couch at his home. The sudden death was unexpected by relatives and friends as Mr. Partridge had not suffered from heart disease prior to his death.

Mr. Partridge became widely acquainted throughout the area with his machinery business. He and Burne Wilding of Pigeon were the first persons in the area to build pick-up beaners. He established a business of converting Avery and Bidwell threshing machines into the popular pick-up beaners.

Mr. Partridge was born in Flushing, Mich., Aug. 21, 1904, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Partridge. He married the former Norene Goodall, June 18, 1929, in Woodstock, Ont.

Surviving besides his parents and widow, are two sons, Douglas and Donald, of Cass City; three sisters, Mrs. Mildred Neil of Flint, Mrs. Jack Amidon of Davison and Mrs. Gene Bowler of Mt. Morris; two brothers, Roger Partridge of Mt. Morris and Ronald Partridge of Clio, and a grandchild. A son, Tim, preceded him in death.

Mr. Partridge will be at Little's Funeral Home until 2:00 p. m. Friday when services will be held. Rev. Melvin R. Vender, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

Burial will be in Elkland Cemetery.

SHORT STORY

Moral Contest

By Lyle Pace

CHARLES PORTER was a big man. He'd always been big, swaggering and boastful ever since most people in Stantonville could remember. He'd come to town with his mother when he was only ten and they had settled in the old Spenser house on Maple Street where Porter lived alone now, a lonely man in his late forties.

He'd done well, too, and was president of the local bank and owned the lumber yard. But he'd acquired those possessions at the expense of every honest man in Stantonville. Everyone hated him, children shunned him and worst of all, the people feared him.

The day the Carnival came to town was one of those wet, spring mornings that told you that the long winter might be at an end. It set up just on the outskirts of town in back of Porter's lumber yard.

It was quite an affair, almost like a circus. There were Side

Shows, Barkers, hot dogs and even a couple of elephants to show off for the kids. That night the lights blazed up into the clearing sky and everybody who could walk turned out.

About eight o'clock Charles Porter paid a visit. He strolled through the Midway, swinging his stick, his eyes staring straight ahead and his back as stiff as a West Pointer on parade.

But soon the crowd understood why he had come. He stood, his stick swinging, before a raised platform with a large canvas drop behind it that proclaimed: TORSO—THE STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD—MEETS ALL COMERS—$500 TO THE MAN WHO PUTS HIM DOWN.

The small tent was soon packed. The sharp smell of the dampness of the ground mixed with the smoke from the cigars of the paid customers. A portable ring had been set up in the center. Standing in the middle of it was the Barker, raising the arm of an unbelievable figure of a man, stripped to the waist, his biceps flexing, his face a mask of bruises and a three day growth of beard.

Porter had removed his coat and shirt. He was not as tall as TORSO but his arms were larger and there was nothing in his dark eyes that would indicate he was afraid. Any more than he had ever been afraid of the little people of Stantonville.

"One fall to a finish, ladies and gentlemen!" the Barker shouted. He stepped out of the ring and Porter climbed into it.

TORSO grinned, flexed his arms, ducked his head and came slowly toward Porter. He was a man who enjoyed his work.

But TORSO could not know that his opponent was not the people's champion, that they were rooting for him to win, that they hoped Charles Porter would be taught a lesson. That this was exactly the thing most of them had hoped some day would happen.

They circled the ring. Finally they came together, their bodies clashing. There was a brief struggle and then it was over. TORSO lay on the floor of the ring not moving. Porter stepped over him, took his coat and shirt and walked slowly out of the tent. There were no cheers, only a dead silence as the Barker revived TORSO and helped him out of the ring. It was something neither of them could understand.

The next day the Carnival moved on. So did Charles Porter. He resigned from the bank and put his lumber yard up for sale. Some people said he was a fool to just go like that, now that he'd finally proved what a mighty man he really was.

But I say he was not a fool, and I should know. Before I finally settled down here in Stantonville I travelled with a Carnival under the name of TORSO, and I made my money not from the show itself, but from men like Porter who paid me to take a dive. But he could have saved himself that money he gave me just before our match.

You see, Charles Porter beat me fair and square, but I'd never tell him so. Now that I know what kind of a man he really was.

CARS ARE MY LINE

By H. M. Swen

It's funny how things start. In 1492 Columbus set out to find India and discovered a useless place called North America instead.

In 1900, when automobiles were progressing nicely, an American engineer decided he should have a rear vision mirror on his steam car. (No one had ever thought of having a mirror to look backwards.)

So he installed the first rear vision mirror—but the purpose was to help him look backwards at the water level gauge, an important thing to watch in the steam car, of course.

A lot of automobile innovations had a hard time catching on. The first cars steered with a tiller, something like the "stick" in an airplane. One brave manufacturer tried to introduce the steering wheel in 1901, but the public reaction was so bad he went back to the tiller.

It was another three years before the steering wheel came into popular use.

Today, we expect the gear shift lever to be on the steering post. It's comparatively a new innovation. (That's what you think.)

In 1904, the wonderful old Pierce-Arrow introduced the steering post gear lever—but it took another 40 years before the idea really caught on.

The luxuries and the easy-driving aids we have on our cars today have been tried and proved through the years. That, we think, is what you should keep in mind when you're shopping around for a used car, a new car, or for a service garage.

As a franchised new car agency, we, too, have been tried and proved through the years. We'll be here tomorrow, next week and next year to make sure you get the most out of your car.

I never realized the power of TV till all the kids started coming in to sign up for the "Kiddie Corvettes" that the Detroit Chevrolet Dealers were giving away.

We hated to disappoint them. So, now we have a Kiddie Corvette, too, which we will give away.

To Win: A Child between three and six need only come in with one Parent (or Guardian), sign a slip which we will place in a sealed box. On Saturday, May 5, we will draw the Winner's name from the box.

Check Stomach Worms If Cattle Don't Gain

Stomach worms may be at fault if your cattle aren't gaining as fast as you think they should, says M. E. Mansfield, extension veterinarian at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station of the University of Illinois.

It's hard to tell if your cattle have stomach worms, he adds. If all the cattle are infected you will not be able to compare individuals because they'll all show the same symptoms of slow gain.

Other symptoms include rough hair coat, loss of weight, usually diarrhea and loss of appetite. Stomach worms usually do not cause death in cattle, but the animals may die if you neglect them.

If you suspect stomach worms in your herd, call your local veterinarian and have him check the manure for worm eggs.

Worm eggs pass in the manure and hatch into tiny worms that develop for about two or three weeks on the ground. Grazing cattle then pick up the worms. Egg-laying adults mature in another two or three weeks inside the animal and the cycle starts again.

Dr. Mansfield recommends phenothiazine for treatment. Your veterinarian will be able to advise you on a treatment schedule and periodic manure checks.

SHORT STORY

Best Job

By F. L. Rowley

PAUSING to catch her breath, Bonnie Keegan tucked a wisp of gray hair under her heavy shawl.

The big man to whom she'd been speaking slapped the desk hard to emphasize his disgust. "But why didn't Tim tell me this himself?" he bellowed. "All these years your husband has done nothing but brag about retiring; now that he's eligible to do so you tell me he's in love with the railroad. Well, he'll be winding up his run in a few minutes—for the last time. I have the necessary papers all ready for him to sign."

Bonnie jumped to her feet. "Please don't tell him! Not yet at least. You and the road owe him that much, Mr. Summers. Tim loves his job—and—"

"It's a good pension, Bonnie. Besides, his engine—old number 9 herself—will be sidetracked in a few years; these diesel jobs are coming up fast, you know."

Bonnie's eyes sparkled. "Then why not let Tim stay on until that happens? He'll be glad to retire when all the steam engines are gone. It's not the difference in pay, Mr. Summers. It's—It's—"

An understanding gleam momentarily warmed his stern features; he leaned across the desk to pat her hand. "I think we all hate to see the end of monsters like number 9, Bonnie. But I guess that's progress. But if Tim does stay on do you think he'll be able to swallow all that big talk about retiring?"

"Just say that the road needs him," replied Bonnie with a smile as she closed the office door.

Once on the platform her smile faded. All she had told Mr. Summers was true, yet how would she ever get that stubborn husband of hers to admit he'd been wrong? She sank wearily onto the nearest bench.

"What's the matter, Mrs. Keegan, don't you feel well?" She turned to see the anxious face of twelve-year-old Bobby Johnson.

"I feel fine, Bobby." Then, encouraged by the boy's concern, she poured out the whole story.

"Gee, that's tough," sympathized Bobby when she had finished. "I think Mr. Keegan has the best job in the whole darn world. If I was an engineer I'd never quit—even if I lived to be a hundred!"

He grew a full inch on the spot. "I had the lead role in our school play," he announced proudly.

The two of them had their heads together when old number 9 moaned in the distance. They watched from the shadows a few minutes later when Tim Keegan himself jumped down from the cab to head for Mr. Summers' office.

"Now!" she tapped Bobby's shoulder. He crossed to the door, entered without knocking. She listened breathlessly.

"Mr. Keegan, I'll bet you got the best job in the whole world!" cried Bobby in a strained, high-pitched voice.

"Glad you think so," Tim replied flatly.

"Yes, sir, I bet you got the best job in the whole world!" The boy's voice was higher now—almost a scream.

Outside, Bonnie groaned. "Mr. Keegan, I bet you got—" "Oh, shut up!" That was Mr. Summers' voice. "Who is this lad, Keegan? Is he daff?"

Bonnie gave up. Opening the door, she smiled weakly. "I'm sorry," muttered Bobby, almost in tears.

Bonnie looked at Tim as she stood with her hands on the boy's shoulders. "I'm sorry too. This was our clumsy way of telling you that we'd like to have you stay on old number 9."

"You mean—?" There was wonder as well as hope in Tim Keegan's eyes.

"You owe the road something after all these years," said Mr. Summers gruffly.

Tim's voice was heavy with emotion when he spoke, and he was looking straight at Bonnie: "You're right. I got the best job in all the world. I'm staying on!"

He's there yet—on old number 9.

Boxelder Bugs Can Be Controlled

Within the last two weeks many inquiries have been made as to controlling boxelder bugs, reports assistant county agricultural agent, Don Kebler.

Now and in the late fall is when these half-inch long, red and black bugs bunch together in large masses. These masses will be common for several weeks and then the individual bugs will go to their favorite food.

The favorite and most common food of these bugs is the flowers and seed pods of the female boxelder tree. They may also feed upon ash, maple and many fruit trees, but with these trees the situation is not serious.

Other than being annoying by staining curtains, clothing, wallpaper, etc., they do not destroy clothing or other property.

The control of these bugs is not easy. The first thing to do is to cut down your boxelder trees, especially the females. However, as long as there are any of these trees left standing in your neighborhood, everyone will have the bugs around. To be successful, a community-wide removal of all boxelder trees must be done. If the removal of all trees is impossible, the following treatments can be used:

(1) In the cool mornings, scrape the clustered bugs into crankcase oil or hot water. (2) Spray boxelder tree trunks with a mixture containing 4 level tablespoons of 40% wettable powder chlordane in 1 gallon of water. This is the same as 4 lbs. in 100 gallons of water, and can also be sprayed on stumps, sidewalks foundations where discoloration will not matter. Use a non-staining oil-type where stains are not desired. Repeat treatments will be necessary.

A chlordane emulsion can be more effective than the wettable dusts, but care must be used so as not to spray it on tender foliage of plants—it will injure or kill them. This emulsion can be applied as a mixture of 2½ teaspoons of 72% emulsion concentrate in one gallon of water.

Dieldrin and toxaphene may be used in place of chlordane. Use the same kinds of materials and same amounts as suggested for the different mixture of chlordane, even though the % of concentrates may differ. Dieldrin is preferable to the other two.

As a word of precaution, all of these sprays should not be used where children play, and by all means read the label on the container. Further information can be obtained at your County Agricultural Agent's office.

The man who insists on exceeding the speed limit is always on the verge of a smashup.

Success sometimes comes to the man who has the ability to use other people's brains.

SHORT STORY

Hand Tailored

By Hak Borden

TO JOHN BURTON, the drunk didn't make sense. Mainly because he didn't conform to the usual conception. But the topcoat he wanted to sell for half a dollar was real class and should be very warm. It looked like a tough winter.

While debating the purchase, the words of the house doctor came back to him.

"A dry climate Mr. Burton. Yours is an arrested case, but your lungs are still weak. Mountain or desert air should be beneficial. Let us hear from you."

John nearly smiled when he recalled the advice. And here he was carrying everything he owned on his shoulders.

He dropped the two quarters into the drunk's unsteady hand, swung the satin lined coat on with a flourish and jammed his hands into the deep pockets.

That's when he felt it. The thin piece of cardboard in the left pocket. He walked along toying idly with it without removing it. A few blocks away from the clinic his curiosity won out and he looked down at the green pawn ticket.

Seven families were represented Monday evening when the Cass Valley Farm Bureau group met with Mr. and Mrs. John Koepf, Sr. In the absence of the chairman, Mack Little presided over the meeting. Rinerd Knoblet led the discussion on the monthly topic, "Problems of school finance are growing."

Farm Bureau at Law Home Monday

The Elkland Farm Bureau met Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Law.

Reports were given on various activities of the group. Mrs. Edward Golding, Sr., reported on the women's group and plans were made for several to attend the district women's meeting to be held in Lapeer, April 17.

Alfred Goodall, responded as minuteman for the legislature. Ellwood Eastman gave a report on his work as representative of the county dairy division on the commodity committee.

Working with Michigan State University on the plans for future research, Mr. Eastman, assisted by Clare Carpenter, Richard Carpenter, Clarence Merchant and Lyle Clark, completed a study and made decision on research most needed in the dairy industry.

Harold Perry and Arlington Huffman spoke on behalf of the Junior Farm Bureau and explained the project now under way.

The group is composing a plat booklet showing all townships of the county with all farms marked off, including owner's name.

Members who visited in Lansing March 27, as guests of the Tuscola Farm Bureau, related their experiences. One hundred and six persons from Tuscola County toured the new office building and visited the House of Representatives and the Senate.

The discussion, "The Problems of School Financing," was conducted by Mrs. Clare Carpenter.

A cooperative lunch was served.

Elkland Farm Bureau meets each month on the second Monday and all members are invited to attend.

Tait Stands Mute Before Justice Boag

Boyd Tait of Caro appeared before Justice Avon Boag Monday on a charge of disorderly conduct. He stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered. Date for the trial is to be set.

Mr. Tait is alleged to have used abusive language in the Eat Shop in Cass City, according to a complaint signed by E. A. Calka of Cass City.

Once outside he paused, started in the direction of Penn station, then turned and headed back toward the neighborhood of the clinic. If he hurried he might still catch up with the drunk and pay the final installment on the coat.

After all, it was hand-tailored and well worth $100.00. And the money could help two guys get started in the right direction.

Any man can offer excuses, but only the more convincing stories are accepted.

It appears that the American people are doing their presidential shopping early.

It is not at all uncommon for the heady individual to have a head-on collision.

Marlette Recluse Holds Police at Bay For Three Hours

Clarence Chase, 77-year-old recluse from Marlette, was outwaited by State Police Tuesday after he had refused to leave his home or let police enter during a three-hour siege.

Standing by the door armed with a double-barreled shotgun, he finally was overcome by curiosity about a conversation of police with his spinster sister, Florence Chase, 73, and opened the door to join the conversation.

Officers had gone to the farm to serve warrants on the Chases, charging failure to bury the carcass of a dead animal and cruelty to animals.

The Michigan Humans Society had complained that livestock on the farm was starving and had received no feed through the winter.

A tour of the farm revealed emaciated carcasses of livestock and several skeletons. A cow lying in the barn beside her dead calf was near death and shot by officers.

Inside the home officers found waist-high stacks of old magazines, tin cans, rags, bags and varied refuse. There is no electricity and no piped water on the farm.

All of the farm buildings are weather-beaten and gray and rotting in places.

The chronic kicker finds that as time goes on that even his legs go back on him.

Michigan Mirror News In Brief

Different ideas on a "report card" for the 1956 Legislature are being expressed as the lawmakers draw close to the April 6 closing date.

Democrat Gov. Williams calls it a "do-nothing" Legislature. Members of the Legislature, Republicans dominating both House and Senate, list achievements they consider impressive.

They increased appropriations for 1956-57 by $12,000,000, with heaviest boosts going for mental health, higher education and public health.

"It does not live up to the program that the people of Michigan want," says Gov. Williams.

No increase in taxes are involved in the larger appropriation, claim Republicans. This is because of a surplus in the treasury and increased collections of existing taxes.

Unless the tax yield reaches an unprecedented pace again next year, the Legislature expects trouble, and probably the need for a new tax or increases in the old ones.

Final budget, after Williams signs the bills, will be between $325,000,000 and $330,000,000.

The Legislature has been more generous than ever before in coming within $9,000,000 of the governor's recommendations and without asking taxpayers for more money to pay the bills.

The Governor was less successful in other fields.

This year he proposed a "Michigan Best" label for products grown in Michigan, a fresh version of his "Seal of Quality" proposal when he first took office in 1949.

Farm groups supported the idea in public hearings before legislative committees but it failed to get to the Senate floor after passing the House.

Republicans reasoned the program of marketing is being carried out satisfactorily under a state-financed program at Michigan State University and by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

The Legislature also killed Williams' request for a $1.25 an hour minimum wage, reorganization and more power for the state department of labor and other items.

Williams vetoed his first bill before the legislature was out of the Capitol.

He rejected the bill designed to make it harder on aliens to collect inheritances in Michigan. He said the bill, as drafted, was too general and would hurt desirable aliens in other parts of the United States.

The bill was originally drawn to prevent Iron Curtain countries from confiscating property inherited in Michigan by Europeans.

Politicians are still trying to figure out the meaning of two appearances of Detroit's Mayor Cobo before the Legislature.

He came to Lansing to argue for money to expand a Detroit airport, but members of both parties saw hints in his visits that he still might be drafted for the Republican candidate for governor.

Cobo was invited to address both the House and Senate.

One Republican legislator, who wanted to introduce him to the Senate, said he would use the phrase "the next governor of Michigan." Someone else made the introductory remarks.

Politicians were left deeper in the dark a few days later when Cobo left for Arizona and a prolonged vacation.

Both parties are setting up campaign machinery for 1956.

State Chairman John Feikens has called Republican precinct delegates to meet by county and district April 18 and State Chairman Neil Staebler has picked April 26 for Democrats.

Republicans will select 1,602 delegates to the state convention in Detroit May 5 and Democrats 1,380 to their state convention in Grand Rapids June 2.

At the state convention, Republicans will pick 46 delegates to the national convention in San Francisco August 20 and Democrats 88 delegates for the Chicago convention August 13.

Republicans will lose Rep. Wade Van Valkenberg (R-Kalamazoo) as speaker of the House next year.

Van Valkenberg said he would return to his private law practice, thus opening the way for a battle over the choice position in the House of Representatives.

Candidates for the post, assuming re-election as legislators, include Rep. George Van Peursem, of Zeeland; Rep. Andrew Bolt, of Grand Rapids. Rep. Ar-

Today's trend in automobiles is to the V-8 engine. That's because today's car buyer demands performance. And sales figures show that Ford V-8 with its power-packin' punch is the largest-selling eight in the world! Official figures for 1955 show that 346,373 more people bought Ford V-8's than bought the two other low-price eights combined!

But now Ford is setting an even hotter V-8 pace by making available the biggest engine ever offered in the low-price field. It's the Thunderbird Special V-8—and you can order it now in Fairlane and Station Wagon models. With a displacement of 312 cubic inches and 225 horsepower, it whisks you from "whoa" to GO as you've never gone before!

Bad Axe Publisher Buried Thursday

Funeral services were held at 2 p. m. Thursday for Calvin C. Shoemaker, 66, of Bad Axe, publisher of the Huron County News, who died unexpectedly early Monday morning in Evergreen, Alabama.

Born in 1889 in Temperance, Mich., he graduated from Albion College and Lawrence College of Appleton, Wis., and was an ordained minister.

He founded the Huron News in 1932 and served as mayor of Bad Axe from 1947 to 1951.

Before becoming a publisher, he was a Methodist minister and editor of the Huron County Tribune.

At the time of his death, he was president of the Verona Hills golf course, chairman of the Huron Selective Service Board and a past president of the Bad Axe Lions Club.

Addition to Huron Hospital to Cost Estimated $352,000

Authorities estimated the cost of an addition to the Huron County Convalescent Hospital in Bad Axe at $352,000 and will ask the federal government to provide $140,800 of the money.

Jordan J. Popkin, director of the Office of Hospital Survey and Construction, notified Harvey Krug, director of the Huron County Social Welfare Department, that it is the intention of his office to grant the assistance.

Huron voters have already okayed a tax levy for the remainder of the funds.

Popkin said that the county's share of the funds must be available before federal aid money can be granted.

and closets are important spots to remember for clean-up week.

According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, an increasingly frequent cause of fires is combustible rubbish. In addition, it often causes small fires to spread and do greater damage.

Therefore, Chief Ellis said, this year check those catchall spots in your home during clean-up week for a home and a community safer from fire.

LAND JUDGING

Members of the FFA will do actual judging of soil under the and Soil Conservation Service personnel.

This contest will give Future Farmers an opportunity to study features of soil and its use, which will be of value to them when they are actually operating their own farms. After determining supervision of District Directors the physical characteristics of the land, students will decide what the best use of the land would be. This might be for cropland or some form of permanent vegetation. They will pick out a cropping system that will best fit the area being studied.

Finally, these Future Farmers determine what additional conservation practices will be needed to provide proper soil and water management.

After the judging has been completed, the work of the students will be evaluated and awards will be made to the school and students who have done the best job by the Soil Conservation District.

Power Dusting Has Advantages

Plant Disease Can Be Stopped Quickly

When you turn to power dusting machines for seasonal crop protection, there are some real advantages to prove you're on the right track.

To begin with, your duster handles a comparatively light weight of pesticide materials, which can be a great advantage. On field crops, 10 to 40 pounds of dust per acre often gives all the coverage you'll need. Dusters are strongly made and will last a long time, but they are also light in total weight and easily handled.

This means you can quickly stop the spread of certain plant diseases which develop fastest in wet, humid weather. With power dusters you thus have the time element in your favor.

You won't have a big extra labor bill with your power dusters either. Row crop field dusters and pasture dusters, when the multiple nozzle types, seldom require more than one tractor driver to run them. Orchard dusters do often require one man to direct the dust stream, besides the tractor operator—although they have few machines for orchards which deliver a broadcast dust cloud so that the driver alone is sufficient for the job.

Power dusting has definite advantages under a number of circumstances.

Dusting machines have low maintenance and upkeep costs and horsepower is relatively low for the job to be done. Field crop dusters range from one to 15 horsepower, orchard dusters from 5 to 20.

Another great advantage is that you can successfully use power crop dusters in either very dry or wet and sticky weather.

10,000 MILES FROM THAILAND. Four senior officials of the Thailand State Railways point out their homeland to Francis A. Gaffney, vice president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad, of Detroit. The four visitors are participating in a three-month training program arranged by the International Co-operation Administration of the United States government. They are studying the operating techniques of various U. S. railroads and will use the information to improve the Thailand railway system. Left to right: Major Seng Chulacharita, chief operating officer of the Thailand railways; Achava Kumjara, superintendent of motive power; Mr. Gaffney; Chamroon Rattakosol, superintendent engineer, construction department, maintenance of way; and Anna Rattayandana, chief of the administrative department. There are more than 2,000 miles of railways serving the 20,000,000 people of Thailand. The modern railroad system has generally replaced primitive forms of transportation, but there are still several thousand working elephants in the country.

4-H Club Week Successful

Alice Bradley, 14-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradley from Fairgrove, and Mary Jane Young, 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Young from Gilford were selected to represent Tuscola County at 4-H Club Week to be held at Michigan State University on July 10-13.

Alice is a club member from the Wisner 4-H Club where Mrs. Fred Black is leader and Mary Jane is a member of the Gilford Community 4-H Club where her mother is the leader. This is a repeat performance for Mary Jane who was selected as the 1955 delegate to the Club Week dress revue program. Alice and Mary Jane were selected from a total of 292 girls who participated in the three-district 4-H achievement programs held here in the county on April 2, 3 and 4.

County dress revue pins were awarded to the finalists as selected by the judges: Mrs. Patricia Steele, home economics teacher from Akron; Mrs. Don Peterhans and Mrs. Iva Cross of Caro; and Miss June Wilkinson, assistant state 4-H leader from MSU. Girls receiving dress revue pins were: Carolyn Laking, 14, from the Van Pelton 4-H Club; Mary Lee Seuryneck, 11, and Charlene Beckett, 15, from the St. Agatha 4-H Club; Linda Vollmar, 11, from the Lewis 4-H Club; Judy Rupert, Annette Causley, Barbara and Alice Bradley from the Wisner 4-H Club; Ruth Karr from the Gagetown 4-H Club; Judy Reif from the North Vassar 4-H Club; Sandra Whalen from the Akron 4-H Club and Mary Jane Young from the Gilford Community 4-H Club.

Eleven-year-old Sherry Westcott's striped skirt was selected to go to 4-H State Show on August 28-31, as were Nancy Rossman's suit and Gloria Volk's formal. Sherry and Gloria belong to the 4-H clubs in Akron while Nancy is a member of the Kingston 4-H Club.

Kay Scott of the Akron 4-H Club will send her clothing exhibit to the Michigan State Fair held in Detroit Aug. 31 to September 9.

James White of the Dayton Clover 4-H Club and Gail Wallace of the Kingston 4-H Club were selected as achievement booth winners and will be the county's delegates to club week next July.

State Show exhibits were selected from the several hundred electrical and handicraft projects at the three achievement centers. Those selected for handicraft were: Dale and Gary Janks of the Thane 4-H Club; Roger Vollmar from the Lewis Club; and Hugh Milligan from the Gagetown 4-H Club. Electrical exhibitors will be Caylos Johnson from the West Mayville 4-H Club; Hugh Milligan and David McGrath from the Gagetown 4-H Club; Roy Wightman from the Connor Junior Farmers; John Tulloch from the North Vassar Club; and Jim Janks of the Thane Club.

Many other youngsters received county honor roll recognition for their work in the 23 winter project areas where over 1,000 exhibits were judged. Listed according to projects they are:

Visitors to Michigan's 58 state parks annually lose hundreds of items, then fail to place claims at park offices.

Market Healthy Birds On Less Protein

It is probable that turkeys can be fed to healthy market weight with less protein in the latter part of their growth period. This was reported at the University of Minnesota's Experiment Station.

A. M. Pikey, station poultryman, said that a group of 100 turkeys, fed a 34 per cent protein ration on a restricted basis—that is, allowing only 15 pounds of mash per 100 birds per day with free choice corn and oats—developed market weight turkeys at a feed cost of 10½¢ a pound, more than a cent a pound below four other unrestricted feeding plans.

The restricted ration produced turkeys at a feed cost of $2.10 per bird—lowest of all five groups—and gave up 24¢ more profit per bird over feed costs than the four other plans. The 34 per cent protein, restricted-fed group also had a lower feed requirement per pound of gain than the other groups—taking three and a quarter pounds of feed to gain a pound weight, in comparison to about three and a half pounds feed needed by birds on other rations.

Here's what the groups got: Lot 1 was fed all they wanted of the Minnesota Standard 25 per cent protein ration; Lots 2 and 3 got a 28 per cent protein ration and were fed all they wanted; Lot 4 got 34 per cent protein ration and were fed all they wanted, and Lot 5 got the 34 per cent protein ration, with mash restricted to 15 pounds per 100 birds per day, but full-fed corn and oats.

Amateur Inventors Still Productive

The home handyman, working alone in his own shop, still is a prime source of new inventions despite the growth of research laboratories.

A survey by a Michigan State University economist reveals that about one-third of patented discoveries are made by persons not trained in science or technology, and nearly one-half of all inventions are made by persons without college degrees.

"The prevailing view that invention today is the exclusive stamping ground of expert scientists working in laboratories of large corporations . . . does not stand up under close investigation," reports Dr. Jacob Schmoekler, assistant professor of economics at MSU.

"But continued public belief in this erroneous view may make it true," Dr. Schmoekler warns.

"Potential independent inventors, if they believe the field has been taken over completely by persons hired to invent, may be discouraged and fail to do what they otherwise would have done—invent."

The want ads are newsworthy too.

Corn Men Aim for Efficient Stalk

Tall Corn May Not Be Top Producer

Cornbelt farmers no longer sing the praises of tall corn, says Dr. George N. Hoffer, a nationally known consulting agronomist.

They have learned instead to produce higher yields of corn by growing highly efficient stalks, he reports. Instrumental in this switch have been the new high-yielding hybrids, bred for the efficiency of the stalk rather than for tallness.

The outlook for the American corn farmer, Dr. Hoffer believes, is for progressively higher yields per acre and even more efficient operations as science and technology reveal more of the secrets of plant reproduction, nutrition and growth.

Corn was grown in Colonial America, but from those times when so-called "calico" or "flint"

YOU MAY BE TALLER BUT I'M MORE EFFICIENT.

It's the efficiency of the stalk, not its height that's most important.

corn was planted until 1900 there was little progress in increasing yields. A series of developments by leading plant breeders, corn growers and extension agronomists led the way to today's high-yielding double crossed hybrids.

The chief ingredients in producing high yields, says Dr. Hoffer, are perseverance, good climatic environment, proper nutrition, and hybrid seed, as exemplified by a Mississippi teen-ager, 16-year-old Lamar Ratliff, who grew 304 bushels of shelled corn per acre to set an all-time world record.

Minerals Important In Good Dairy Ration

Proper mineral content in the dairy ration is one of the most important considerations in herd health, the American Veterinary Medical Association reports.

Minerals are important in many vital body processes such as digestion, growth, reproduction, milk production and body maintenance. The lack of minerals may cause such deficiency symptoms as loss of appetite, poor feed utilization, goiter, soft or brittle bones, low milk production, stiffness of joints, rough hair coats and general unthriftiness.

However, the most of these symptoms may also occur in other conditions not related to mineral deficiency. If one of these symptoms does not appear, it's best to have a veterinarian examine the herd so an accurate diagnosis can be made.

When mineral needs of a herd are considered, the following points should be remembered:

Dairy cattle are heavy users of minerals and they're known to need 12 different mineral elements. Many dairy feeds are short in sodium, calcium, phosphorus, and iodine. Salt is an essential in any dairy feeding program.

Trace mineralized salt is a convenient way of guarding against most trace mineral deficiencies.

Minerals will not replace proteins or other food nutrients needed in the ration and they should never be forced, because in large quantities some minerals are harmful.

Zmierski Bowls In Army Tourney

Pfc. John Zmierski, 23, son of Mrs. Cecelia Josephine Zmierski, Route 1, Cass City, recently bowled for Phillips Barracks in the Army's European men's championships in Germany. Zmierski, a construction specialist in Company B of the 499th Engineer Combat Battalion, arrived overseas last March from an assignment at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He entered the Army in October 1954. Zmierski was graduated from Cass City High School in 1951.

Freshen Dairy Cow In Fall, Winter More Milk, Profit Says Specialist

Have your dairy cows freshen during the fall and winter and you'll be in line for more milk and more profit, says L. R. Fryman, dairy specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. Cows calving in the fall and winter are in heaviest production when milk supplies are lowest and prices highest. Illinois DHIA records show that cows freshening in the summer months of June, July and August made an average of $258 over feed costs. Compare this figure with $284 over feed cost brought in by cows calving in September, October and November or the $288 profit for cows that came fresh in December, January and February. Feed costs may be up a little in fall and winter, but the increased production more than makes up for it, Fryman says. Besides the heavy milk flow after calving, production levels of fall-freshened cows go up again when they're turned out to spring pasture. Fryman suggests that you start making the change to more fall freshening by breeding your replacement heifers to calve in the fall. You can make some change in the freshening dates of mature cows, too, but remember that they should calve about every 12 to 14 months with a six to eight weeks' dry period before each calving.

Plan Carefully Before Remodeling Farm Home

Before you remodel your farm home, check to see if your old house is really worth fixing up, says James S. Boyd of the Michigan State University agricultural engineering department. First, he says, the frame should be sound, and the foundation strong enough to support any new section you may add. Location near the road, the outbuildings, and the garden is important. Draw a complete plan, to scale, showing just where you are going before you start, as mistakes can be costly. Also, make sure that the cost isn't too high. Talk with a builder who has done some remodeling. Remodeling should save at least half of the cost of a new house. Boyd explains that it is hard to put plumbing, electrical conduits, etc., into an old house. Easier repairs include: putting in insulation, laying new floors, putting on a roof, and resurfacing walls and eellings. Many people could save by wiring before the walls are closed in with new surface material, Boyd stresses, adding that the plumber should also be careful to avoid doing things that will have to be done over later.
