160 Attend Initial Home and School Council Meeting

About 160 persons attended the first meeting of the Home and School Council Monday evening in the grade gym at Cass City School.

Mrs. W. E. Walpole presided in the absence of President Jack Essau. She introduced Supt. Willis Campbell who told the group the history of the school.

He exhibited photographs of the six known schools in the district since it started.

He also told members that attendance in the grades is up about 50 pupils this year and that the school's total enrollment is 1,115.

Principal Arthur Holmberg introduced new high school teachers on the staff and Mrs. Marie Murray, grade principal, introduced the grade staff.

After the meeting, the grade teachers retired to their rooms and were available for discussion periods with parents.

Entertainment included songs by a girls' trio and a solo by Roger Parrish, music instructor at the school.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

The car's top and two sides were crushed by the impact.

It is your duty: Register by October 8 so you can vote November 6.—Adv. 9-14-4

Dr. Ira D. McCoy, Bad Axe physician, is back in the political spotlight in the Seventh District today after being appointed Wednesday evening to replace Jacob Theut as the Democratic nominee for Congress. Dr. McCoy was appointed in a special session at Imlay City.

Mr. Theut recently withdrew because of ill health. He had defeated Dr. McCoy by some 800 votes in the primary in the five-county district of Sanilac, Huron, Tuscola, St. Clair and Macomb counties.

Dr. McCoy was an unsuccessful nominee for the congress post in 1952 and 1954. He opposed Rep. Jesse Wolcott and was defeated by 8,000 votes two years ago and 35,000 votes in 1952.

Rep. Wolcott is not running for re-election this year. Dr. McCoy will be opposed by Republican nominee Robert McIntosh of Port Huron.

The sudden change in Democratic candidates has caused some confusion in Tuscola County. The general election ballots have already been printed as required by law. Whether or not they will have to be destroyed and another ballot printed with Dr. McCoy's name on it is not known at the present time.

County clerks are waiting for official word from Lansing on the unusual situation.

Pageant's Fate Will Rest With Churches

In a special meeting held Tuesday morning at the New Gordon Hotel, the Cass City Chamber of Commerce board designed a plan for settling whether or not a pageant will be held in the village this year.

A member of the board has been designated to contact every church in the Cass City area, including those in the immediate surrounding vicinity, to see whether the churches are interested in the pageant.

"The Chamber of Commerce will support the pageant financially," President Keith McConkey explained, "but they will not have time to do the labor or the directing of the pageant at Christmas time."

The Chamber president said that the increased work on Main Street and the handling of the home decorations contest precluded any effort for members with the pageant.

A definite decision will be reached Monday, Oct. 8, when the Chamber of Commerce board, delegates from churches and other interested persons will meet at 7:30 p. m. at Cass City High School.

Mr. McConkey emphasized that initiative for the pageant this year must come from the churches if the affair is staged in Cass City after being abandoned in 1955.

From the Editor's Corner

Village councilmen, members of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce and this newspaper have been deluged with unsigned postcards criticizing a public official of the village.

That letters of this type receive no consideration whatever goes without saying.

This paper, the council and the Chamber of Commerce are ready at any time to listen to legitimate complaints properly presented either by signed letters or in person, but point out again that unsigned complaints are totally ignored.

Through the cooperation of genial Walt Rummel, publisher of the Sebewaing Blade, the Chronicle was published this week. With a breakdown in the typesetting machine in the Chronicle office Monday, the staff was unable to work on the paper.

Tuesday, the machine was still out of order and Mrs. Charles Ballard spent most of the day in Sebewaing using a machine in the Blade office.

Tuesday evening Mrs. Ballard and James Moore returned to Sebewaing with news and advertising copy and worked after the Blade back shop crew were finished with their day's work.

Meanwhile, a hurried call Monday to Chicago for a new part for the machine resulted in its arrival Tuesday morning. However, it failed to correct the difficulty and another call was placed to the Flint Journal where a machinist agreed to come Tuesday evening. He arrived and finally the Chronicle was back in operation.

With Mr. Moore taking the early shift at 6 a. m. Wednesday and Thursday and Mrs. Ballard working far into the night and Eldred Copeland working overtime on the composing floor and assisting the machinist, the paper again reached Chronicle readers at the usual time.

Final Rites for William A. Simkins

Diamond Anniversary of St. Agatha Church

Thanksgiving Mass to Mark Progress

St. Agatha Church in Gageton will celebrate its 75th anniversary Wednesday, Oct. 3, when the Most Reverend Stephen S. Woznicki, Bishop of Saginaw, will preside at a Solemn Mass of Thanksgiving at 11 a. m.

While there has been a resident Catholic pastor in Gageton since June of 1879, the first church in Gageton and in Tuscola County was dedicated just 75 years ago.

A host of pastors and church officers will gather in Gageton to help with the Diamond Anniversary observance, serving as officiators for the Thanksgiving Mass.

The dinner will be held in the newly redecorated parish dining room and served by the ladies of the St. Agatha Altar Society.

Hawks Held to Tie By Marlette Friday

For the second straight week time ran out on Cass City's football team and they failed to score with the ball less than a yard from the touchdown that would have produced at least a tie and a certain victory in their opening two games.

Friday the Red Hawks were held to a scoreless tie at Marlette in their opening conference game.

They moved to the one-foot line with about four seconds to play and hurriedly lined up for a final plunge at the line and took the ball across. But an offside penalty nullified the play and the game was over. The rule reads that if the penalty is called against the team with the ball, another play is not allowed. If the defense had committed the infraction of the rule another play would have been mandatory.

Actually, Cass City did not deserve anything better than a tie. For the first three quarters they were outplayed by Marlette. Marlette racked up a total of 11 first downs to Cass City's seven in the game and made more yards rushing. Principal Marlette threat was their hard-driving right halfback who was good for yardage nearly every time he carried the ball.

There were few real scoring threats in the game before the Hawks' late fourth quarter drive. Cass City started on its own 35-yard line, with Forrest and Bob Walpole sweeping the ends and Dick Hanby driving through the line, the Hawks moved to the Marlette one-foot line in 15 plays only to have time run out for the second frustrating week.

The Hawks will try to get their offense rolling and the team into the win column tonight (Friday) when they travel to Caro with the Tigers.

On the showings of the clubs in the first two games, the affair will probably be rated a tossup. When the two schools meet in their traditional rivalry, previous records usually mean very little anyway.

Coach Mike Yedinak is hoping that the team will start to jell and play up to the potential that he still believes the squad is capable of.

Gavel Club Sees Local Grid Film

Members of the Cass City Gavel Club saw a film of the Cass City-Clio football game Tuesday night at their regular meeting at Parrott's Dairy Bar.

Coach Mike Yedinak was introduced by Toastmaster Lambert Althaver and said that the films would be used to try to improve the play of the boys in future games.

The films will be run and stopped on important plays so that the griders can see their mistakes and try to correct them.

Although the pictures were good, Coach Yedinak said that the school is experimenting with lenses and film speeds to be used in future games.

The club voted to hold its annual picnic Oct. 19 before the homecoming game with Bad Axe.

No further discussion on the project at the track at the park was held.

WSCS to Meet

The WSCS of the Methodist Church will meet Monday, Oct. 1, at the church. The meeting will start with a 6:15 prayer circle and 6:30 dinner.

Group II, with Mrs. Ed Fritz and Mrs. Harry Miller, co-chairmen, will serve the dinner.

The program, "The UN, A Good Trustee," will be presented by Mrs. Fritz Neitzel.

Trustees Boost Salaries of Two Village Employees

Trustees of the village of Cass City voted an increase in salaries Tuesday for Village Engineer William Schram and Village Clerk Mrs. Wilma Fry. They voted the raises in the regular council meeting at the Cass City Municipal Building.

Mr. Schram was boosted from $334 a month to $375 per month. Mrs. Fry formerly received $184 a month and will now average about $50 per week.

Sign Agreement The council appointed Mr. Schram supervisor for the maintenance work on Main Street and signed the annual contract with the state for the work. The village netted about $2,000 for the work last year.

Nelson Willy appeared before the trustees and explained the progress at the sewage plant. He said that about 85 per cent of the solids are now being removed and no pollution enters the Cass River from Cass City sewage. Landscaping of the area around the new plant has been completed and only the erection of a fence around the property remains to be done.

Appointment Committee President James Bauer appointed a committee to look into a project to use the money left to the village in a bequest by the late Miss Lura DeWitt. Serving will be Mrs. K. I. MacRae, Andrew Bigelow and Cliff Ryan.

High on the list of projects for the funds is the erection of public rest rooms in the picnic area at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Trustees instructed Mrs. Fry to write to the Michigan Municipal League for advice on cooperative insurance for village employees.

Bernard Freiburger was given the village structure over the well on Pine Street if he dismantles the building, caps the well and cleans up the area.

Judge T. C. Quinn Denies New Trial For Mrs. McBurney

Judge T. C. Quinn denied the petition of Mrs. Elsie McBurney for a new trial in her suit for damages from Dr. F. L. Morris of Cass City.

A jury had previously returned a no cause for action verdict in the case.

Tuesday, a jury took only 22 minutes to find Clyde Presley guilty of breaking and entering in the nighttime.

Presley broke into the George Mosher store at Richville Sept. 5 taking change from the cash register and meats and groceries.

Judge Quinn ordered a presentence investigation and will pass sentence Oct. 1.

Members of the jury were Fred Crawford, Ellis VanConnett, George Taggett, Yula VanWinkle, Mrs. Arthur Schaffer, Nina Rohlf, Winfred Brinkman, Arthur Freeman, Rollo Darbee, Viola Orr, Charles Seddon, Sr., and Mrs. Howard Harrison.

Wednesday a jury trial for Edward Ray Colston was scheduled for allegedly breaking and entering the Bennett store in East

In Cass City at 2:45 Cobo Slated to Tour County Saturday

The Republican party will make its bid to the voters of Tuscola County Saturday, Sept. 29, when Albert E. Cobo, Republican candidate for governor, will tour the county and speak at a banquet at the Coffee Cup Restaurant in Caro.

Mr. Cobo is scheduled at the New Gordon Hotel in Cass City at 2:45 p. m. The public is invited to come and meet the Republican candidate at this time, county Republican spokesmen said.

Following his visit here he is scheduled at Mayville at 3:20 p. m. and at Vassar at 4 p. m.

He will arrive at the Coffee Cup at 6:30 and go to the courthouse after the banquet where a parade will form. High school bands and marchers will proceed to the triangle near the Montague Hotel and from there to Caro High School where Mr. Cobo will speak.

An estimated 200 persons are expected at the banquet. Included will be State Senator Arthur Dehmel of Unionville and State Rep. Allison Green of Kingston and all county officers.

Others include Robert J. McIntosh, candidate for congress, and members of the Tuscola County Republican Committee.

Meanwhile, the County Republican Committee said that most townships in the county expect to raise their quota in the drive to raise funds for the party, according to reports submitted at a finance meeting in Caro Thursday evening, Sept. 20.

Republican women are expected to meet for the first time Monday at the courthouse in Caro. They will be organized under the direction of Mrs. James Green and all interested women are invited to attend the 2 p. m. meeting, they said.

Junior Hawks Post Easy Win Over Caro

Although the varsity griders are having trouble denting the goal line this year, Cass City's Junior High team did not suffer from a similar lack of punch in their season's opener Monday when they defeated Caro 26-0.

The Junior Hawks rolled for 20 points in the first half and reserves took over for the majority of the final two periods and held Caro scoreless and added another marker.

Quarterback Tim Anthes scored from the two to climax a 54-yard drive and then converted the extra point with a sneak through the line.

In the second period Fullback Bob Wright went 16 yards to score to put the Hawks in front 13-0.

Later in the same quarter Anthes went through the middle for 62 yards and the third marker. Paul Holmberg took a hand-off for the extra point.

After the half, Bob MacAlpine scampered 16 yards for the final touchdown to make the score 26-0.

Caro made only one serious scoring threat. In the fourth quarter they moved to the Cass City 11 only to lose the ball on downs.

Defensively, Dick Albee, Ed Grayberhill, Anthes and Wright were outstanding.

The Junior Hawks will play Vassar at the Cass City Recreational Park Tuesday.

No Non-Partisans On Election Boards

A ruling from the attorney general's department of the State of Michigan received by Fred Mathews, Tuscola County clerk, requires all persons who wish to serve on an election board to name their political party when making application for the job.

It is no longer permissible, the attorney general said, to list yourself as non-partisan and still serve on the board. . . every person working on an election board must be labeled Democratic, Republican or Prohibition party member.

The ruling also says that not over 50 per cent of the board can come from any one party. As there are usually five members on an election board in Tuscola County townships, township authorities will either have to try to find a Prohibition party member in their area or change the number working on the board.

BULEN TALKS Cars

One of our friends was asking the other day whether he should use regular or premium gasoline in his car. It struck me then how few people really look into what regular and premium means before deciding.

There are many cars that are just as well off using regular gas and you won't suddenly get better mileage and less knock by switching to premium. As a matter of fact, it's never a good idea to switch back and forth. Let us know which gas you're using and we'll do the important job of setting the spark to take best advantage of that fuel.

The main difference in the two gasolines is, of course, their octane rating and the addition of anti-knock compounds in the premium fuel. And what is the octane rating?

Well, if you really want to know, the octane rating is the percentage of pure hydrocarbon called iso-octane as compared to heptane. Octane ratings can run from 0, which is pure heptane, and would knock badly, to 100 which would be pure iso-octane and has high anti-knock qualities.

That still doesn't decide which gas to use, though. A good rule of thumb is that if your car has a compression ratio of 7 to 1 or less (an older car) you might as well use regular gas. With higher compression ratios in newer cars, you're better off with premium fuel.

If your car is set to burn regular, though, and you switch to premium, you're just burning up money. To take advantage of the better performance, better mileage and anti-knock qualities of premium, the spark has to be advanced.

We'll do this for you if you'll drop by. If you're already a regular customer we've been checking your timing automatically as part of our bumper-to-bumper inspection.

Like the Pitchman at the Auction said "Going, Going, - -" and soon gone. Our stock of 1956 Chevrolets is getting slimmer and slimmer. Still time however, to save that big dollar and get yourself a new car at great savings. Selection at this time is rather slim, but the savings effected on a purchase of a new car will more than make up for it. Bring your car and title and let's get together!

Our guess is you probably think you know how to park your car, but it isn't just women drivers who slip up on an obvious little detail we'll talk about next week.

Order Forage Seed Now for Spring

Tuscola County farmers who can figure their forage seed needs now for next spring's planting would be wise to order now and take advantage of present prices. That's the advice of county agricultural agent Alfred Ballweg. He points out that the supply of grass seed is down from recent years. And, he adds, there is good reason to believe that the supply of red clover and alfalfa seed won't be any higher than during the past year.

With the supply situation on grass seeds below normal and no increase in legume seed, all indications point to future higher prices, suggests Leyton Nelson, farm crops specialist at Michigan State University.

One of the main reasons, he says, is that seed probably will be in great demand by farmers who will put land in the soil bank. Forecasts have indicated that the supply of alsike clover is the smallest on record, the supply of bromegrass seed is the smallest in eight years—59 per cent below the 1945-54 average; and the timothy seed supply is 23 per cent less than a year ago—29 per cent below the 1945-54 average.

The only turn some folks could make would be for the better.

Good Storage Space Aids in Housework

The reason many homemakers are asking for good storage space in their new homes, as well as remodeled ones, is to save themselves housework. When there's a place for everything and everything's in its place, then there's no huge picking up chore to be done before embarking on window washing, furniture and floor polishing.

However, if you go into a room and have to put away things left to clutter furniture and space this takes around 15 minutes, maybe more, occasionally a little less. Add this to your cleaning time, and it's no wonder you never seem to get finished.

It's smart to use your ingenuity in finding storage spots and then having them built. Above all, make storage space easy to reach and put it in its proper location.

Poorly situated closets, ceiling-high shelves and floor level drawers can be as maddening as no space at all.

How to Start Before you start creating storage space, have an idea of what you need. Make an inventory of family belongings as well as those of each individual. Figure out where each of these things belong and then start the actual plan.

Bookshelves? Make certain that some of these are tall enough to take care of high books such as dictionaries, atlases, etc. Perhaps some of the book cases should be in bedrooms for some reading is done in bed. Others should be in the reading corner of the living room or library or den.

Do your magazines and newspapers scatter everywhere? Why not have a rack made for these? Nothing else can keep them neater and more accessible.

Musical instruments need shelves, playing cards and games need shelves or cabinet space, while cameras, projectors and phonograph records need rather large cabinets to protect them from dust. Perhaps a recreation room will house them.

Materials Important Any storage space should be easy to keep clean. Clothes closets, for example, should be mothproof while the laundry hamper needs to be moisture proof. A painted surface which has a high gloss is easier to keep clean than one with a rough surface that catches and holds dust.

Michigan Mirror News In Brief

After one false start it looks like the two-year study of higher education in Michigan is now under way. This is the $161,000 survey of the state's college and university facilities. Money was approved by the Legislature with added financing from the Kellogg Foundation. Main purpose: To determine how higher education in Michigan should be co-ordinated and controlled. Trouble arose in finding a qualified assistant for Dr. John Dale Russell, director of the survey. Dr. Russell, chancellor and executive secretary of educational finance in New Mexico, plans to spend about one-third of his time on the Michigan study.

The full-time assistant actually will be in charge. * * * The first assistant, Dr. Albert F. Scribner, vice-president of Valparaiso (Ind.) University was forced to resign in July after his university governing board belatedly refused to grant him leave of absence. Dr. Scribner's resignation delayed the study's start by two months. Now Dr. Orvin T. Richardson, professor of education at Washington University, St. Louis, is named full-time assistant. * * * A preliminary report on the general survey will be ready for the 1957 Legislature, Dr. Russell says. A final report with recommendations is scheduled a year later. * * * One of the first problems the group will tackle is the present control of the state's universities. Dr. Russell commented that the state now has "a hodge-podge pattern of control," with various and unco-ordinated boards which often compete with each other. * * * Cost of sending your children to college continues to increase. According to estimates given out by the University of Michigan and Michigan State University, the approximate cost for a student will be $1,385 for the 1956-57 year. And this is only for the bare essentials. * * * Part of the increase comes from higher tuitions. Resident tuitions at the U of M are now $200, or $50 more than five years ago. At MSU the basic tuition is $204, a five-year increase of $63.

Conflicts in road laws, no construction during the five years of World War II and the great surge in automobile buying after the war all played prominent roles in outmoding present roads, he states. * * * Unlike politicians who attribute blame for poor roads to any single factor, Graves cites three important factors involved in the present road situation. * * * The state's road system is now 15 years behind the needs they are expected to serve, Graves comments. * * * Of these three factors, only the first can now be changed. According to Graves, some 262 road laws are in direct conflict with each other. * * * Grave's remedy: A completely new codification of laws. The alternative—continued confusion. * * * "Local industry is not indestructible." This is the most important thing people should remember when thinking of community progress, says Don Weeks, director of the Michigan Economic Development Department. * * * Weeks says that in some cases plants close or move regardless of the local conditions. But, he adds, other Michigan areas have lost their industries when good community relations could have prevented it. Merchant and civic groups, particularly in one payroll towns, are very wise to work with local industries, making the management feel welcome and wanted, encouraging industry personnel to take active part in community affairs. * * * High taxes in some states cause industries to move out and new industries not to consider locating within their boundaries, says Weeks. He lists several eastern states as specific examples, and expresses the hope that Michigan residents will weigh the value of an industry to their communities when voting on issues which affect it. * * * Wars will end when nations find they have no more money to burn. * * * The man with a hot temper gets into a big stew about nothing.

Biggest factor in the rise is the continued general increase in the cost of living. * * * And officers in colleges around the state foresee a continuing rise, offset only by the fact that larger number of students each year are taking advantage of scholarships available. Scholarships usually pay tuition, although a few also provide some money towards living expenses. For many years scholarships often went begging. Last year nearly 100 per cent of these grants were awarded to eligible students. * * * There's plenty in the horn of plenty says the federal-state crop reporting service in their estimate of 1956 output of Michigan's major field and fruit crops. * * * Expected field crop yields are 7 per cent above the 10-year state average. SHORT STORY

Incurable Case

By Max Elmo

I HESITATED in front of the Morris home a good while that evening. Somehow, what I planned didn't seem the most honest thing. Then, Mr. and Mrs. Morris might not understand my intentions. They might think I was jealous because Arty was making time with Linda, while I was washed up.

From the time Linda Morris was a plump rascal of seven, and I'd first carried her school books home, till the day at nineteen she'd gone off the deep end for Arty Howard, she was the only girl for me. It never mattered to me that she tipped the scale at 160. Rosy, rotund, bright-eyed was Linda.

I'd almost turned away from the house until I remembered Linda's droopy eyes and figure when I'd met her that afternoon.

"Sorry, Dave," she said when I asked for a date.

By then she'd been going with Arty five months, and dieting the same length of time. She wore a size twelve suit instead of a twenty. But, as I said before, all the lightness and brightness were gone. Her eyes were lethargic, her cheeks sunken. Her curls looked dull.

When I recalled how she looked, I steeled myself to my task, stepped up the front walk, and finally rang the bell.

Mrs. Morris answered, "Howdy, Dave!" she beamed. "Do come in."

"What's on your mind, boy?" Mr. Morris asked, his voice kind. The whole place oozed abundance, good will.

"It's this Arty Howard," I blurted. "Now I don't want you to think I'm jealous. Even though I did plan to ask Linda to marry me some day. Well, soon's I got a better job."

"We always liked you," Mrs. Morris patted my hand.

"We once had hopes for the two of you," Mr. Morris sighed, sinking deeper in the overstuffed cushions.

"But girls these days don't listen to their parents," Mrs. Morris shrugged her chubby shoulders.

"I guess not," I said. "Yet, when it's a case of an incurable disease—"

"Incurable disease?" they both stared.

I gulped. "Didn't you ever notice how thin and pale he is?" They exchanged shocked glances. "And since she's been going with him, you notice how scrawny Linda looks?"

"But that's her di—" Mrs. Morris started to say. Then I knew that Linda's dad hadn't been told about Linda's diet.

"Yes, I've noticed," he said with concern. He was sitting up like a roly polly bulldog now.

"You saw that show, Camille,—you know what happens. No, I'm not jealous of Arty. Poor wretch, I pity him. But I'd do anything to save Linda from such a fate."

When I said goodnight and turned down the walk, I put my trust in him.

A few afternoons later, as I sauntered by, I saw Linda, looking more like herself, on the steps in the shade of the maples.

"Hi, Linda!" I called.

"Hello, Dave. Come up." She extended a plate of cheese and crackers. I can't begin to describe how cute Linda looks when she nibbles a piece of cheese.

"Guess there's no use asking for a date?"

"Why not?" Her white teeth bit off a dainty fragment, and she chewed with devastating charm.

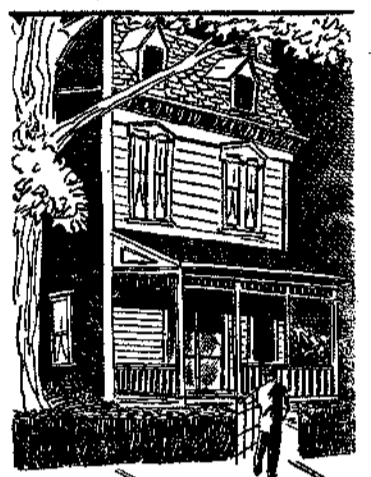

"Oh, Arty—" She dismissed that subject with a shrug.

But I had to know.

"Did your dad forbid you to go with Arty?"

"Forbid?" She echoed the word, then laughed. "Dad never forbids. No, I got tired of that sad sack. Besides," she laughed again, taking a bigger bite. "I got awful hungry, Davy!"

I helped myself to a handful of crackers, and several chunks of cheese. I watched Linda eat, the sun sitting through the maples. I was completely happy.

I almost turned away before I remembered how Linda had looked.

There's more to religion than getting people into churches.

Wars will end when nations find they have no more money to burn.

The man with a hot temper gets into a big stew about nothing.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION

New Dairy Record Plan Available

Tuscola County farmers have an unusual opportunity to boost the efficiency of their dairy herds under the new "weigh-a-day-a-month" plan, believes county agricultural agent Alfred Ballweg.

N. P. (Pat) Ralston, head of the dairy department at Michigan State University says the new record-keeping plan offers these opportunities.

A simple way to analyze cows in the present herd as a market for feed and labor. A low-cost guide for culling out the low producers. An accurate basis for feeding according to production. A valuable yardstick for selecting herd replacements from the better cows, to improve the production level of the entire dairy herd.

The plan, which begins October 1, will cost about five cents a month per cow. For this low cost, the farmer will get total monthly and yearly milk production figures for each cow and for the entire herd.

Under this plan, the farmer weighs each cow's milk, night and morning one day per month, and submits the records to the county extension office for calculation. The extension office will return the calculated records along with suggestions on feeding according to production.

Dairy farmers not already under dairy herd improvement association or owner-sampler testing can make good use of the "weigh-a-day-a-month" plan, says agent Ballweg, and he suggests they contact the county extension office for full information.

Sharon Elaine Burgess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burgess, became the bride of Dale W. Groth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Groth of Cass City, at a lovely candlelight ceremony on Saturday evening, September 16, at 8:00 at the United Missionary Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown. The lace over satin bodice of her gown had a boat neckline trimmed with sequins and the long sleeves came to points over her hands. The full skirt was made of alternating rows of lace and nylon tulle. Her veil fell from a tiny hat decorated with seed pearls and she carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations centered with an orchid.

The bride's mother wore a rose dress with rose and black accessories and a white carnation corsage. The groom's mother wore a navy dress with white and black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

Acting as maid of honor for her sister was Miss Gail Burgess, who wore a rose-colored ballerina length dress of lace and net with a tiny lace jacket and a narrow matching headband. She carried blue and white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Della Hiron, friend of the bride, Miss Sharon Snow, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. Helen Hartwick, friend of the bride, who wore dresses and headpieces identical to those of the maid of honor except that they were of cotton blue. Their bouquets were of pink carnations.

Best man was Mr. Elwyn Hartwick of Cass City. Other attendants of the groom were John McCormick, Cass City, friend of the groom, Dale Clink, Yale, uncle of the bride, and Gerald Whittaker of Cass City. Seating the guests were Gene Burgess and Joe Dann.

Mrs. Virginia Burgess, cousin of the bride, sang "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied by Mrs. Eveis Baldwin, who also played the wedding march.

The reception was held following the ceremony in the Brown City Community School.

When the couple left on their wedding trip to northern Michigan and Mackinac Island, the bride wore the orchid from her bouquet on her blue dress.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Groth are making their home at 6657 Huron St. in Cass City where the bride is employed by General Telephone Co. and the groom by Walbro Corp.
