Four persons narrowly escaped serious injury Sunday morning when overcome by gas fumes from a faulty coal furnace. Rendered unconscious in their sleep were Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson, their two-year-old daughter Mary Ellen and Judy Spencer, niece of Mrs. Peterson. The two girls were taken by ambulance to Cass City Hospital where Mary Ellen was released a few hours later after being given oxygen. Judy was held in the hospital until Monday. Mrs. Peterson was aroused by the ringing of the telephone. A few minutes later she was able to call her brother, Russell Deane, who sent a physician and came to the Peterson home himself.

The Michigan Department of Conservation may add 66 acres of public hunting land in Tuscola County, it was announced this week. The proposed site is northwest of Unionville at the Fish Point Wildlife Area. The department is also considering six other land purchases under the Pittman-Robertson program, cooperative state-federal program for wildlife restoration. If acquired, the land will add some 375 acres for public use. A final decision will be reached at a meeting of the conservation commission Jan. 10-11 in Lansing.

Coming Auction

Saturday, Jan. 26—Harvey Perry will sell cattle and machinery at the farm, two miles east of Marlette on the north side of the road.

A meeting of authorities of Cass City Public Schools and districts which are considering consolidating with Cass City has been scheduled for Monday, Jan. 21, at the Cass City Elementary Building, Supt. Willis Campbell announced this week.

Purpose of the meeting will be to answer questions and discuss the various aspects of the proposed consolidation. Each school district must decide whether to open its own school or consolidate by July 1, according to state law.

Districts that have been asked to participate are: Brown, Dillman, Winton, Heron, Dickout, Byrd, Wright, Sand Valley, McConnell, Hillside, Sunshine and Remington. Consolidation with Cass City for all of these districts, except Remington, Sunshine and Hillside, has received the informal approval of the State Department.

The three districts that have not received unofficial approval are still under consideration by the department. High on the list of important topics to be considered will be the financial situation of the school which compares favorably with any in the Thumb area and is better than most.

Financial Status
At the present time, Cass City Schools has a 6.6-mill operating tax and 3.3-mill debt retirement tax for a total tax of 9.9 mills. The valuation of the school plant is set at approximately one million dollars and there is $53,628.20 in the building and site fund. There is a total of 1,115 students in the school. Of the 41 teachers, 24 are in high school and 17 in elementary school. Ten of the 41 have Master of Arts degrees. Cass City is on the university accreditation list, a member of the College Agreement and North Central Association. If the school districts decide to annex to Cass City, the local school board must vote to take them in, the district electors must vote to annex and the state must approve the consolidation. This action must be completed within 90 days after the annexation machinery is put in motion.

Presbyterians to Hold Meeting

The 79th annual meeting of the First Presbyterian Church in Cass City will be held in the church dining room Monday evening. A potluck dinner is planned under the direction of the wives of church elders. It will start promptly at 7:30 p. m. A business session will follow when printed reports of the organizations and departments of the church will be presented. Also slated is the election of officers. In the rotary plan of the church, an officer is ineligible for re-election for one year after having served two consecutive three-year terms.

Officers whose terms expire are: Dr. H. T. Donahue and Arthur Holmberg, trustees; James King, deacon and chairman of the board; Donald Reid, deacon and treasurer; Clifford Martin, deacon, and James Colbert, elder. Leonard McLean rotates from the chairmanship of the nominating committee after a three-year term. Also up for consideration is the recommendation that the church sponsor the bringing of a Hungarian family to Cass City where a job and a house have already been arranged. The program will conclude with a film strip and recording, "Remember Your Church."

New School Would Affect 50 Pupils In Cass City

Some 50 students in Cass City High School would be affected if the proposed plan to merge Owendale and Gageton School districts is realized. These students from the Gageton area would attend the proposed new consolidated school. The plan to consolidate was first revealed at a meeting held Thursday, Jan. 8, at Gageton and was to have been further discussed at a meeting Thursday, Jan. 10, at Gageton school. At yesterday's meeting, representatives of local districts were to have met with advisors from the Michigan Department of Public Instruction.

The area under consideration for consolidation includes the Gageton grade school district, the Owendale high school district, seven rural districts and parts of three other rural districts. According to Supt. Henry Moes of Owendale and Supt. Charles Mayer of Gageton, who have spent months studying the proposal, some 765 students, with 250 high school pupils, would be in the new school. Some 30 teachers would be hired. If the consolidation is effected, members of the school boards see a new high school building on the Huron-Tuscola county line, between the two communities. Present school buildings at Owendale and Gageton would continue to operate as grade buildings. Any plan for consolidation will have to be approved by the State Department of Public Instruction and then each of the school districts involved would have to vote on whether they would join. The proposed district would have a valuation of some $9,000,000 and would result in a class "C" school, exceeded in size only by Caro, Cass City and Bad Axe in the Upper Thumb area.

Caro Sells School Bonds for Less Than 4 Per Cent

Caro School District sold a $900,000 bond issue to finance construction of a new high school building Tuesday, in its second letting of the bonds. The bonds were sold to Braun and Boswick Co. of Detroit for 3.97349 per cent, a favorable rate in today's tight money market. The highest bid received was 4.1406 per cent. In the first attempt to sell the bonds Dec. 5, an interest rate ceiling of four per cent was established and the district received no bids. This time the interest limit was five per cent and the bonds sold for less than four. The new high school will be built on Hooper Street as an addition to Kern Hall, an 11-room school built two years ago.

From the Editor's Corner

The Tuscola County Social Welfare Board and the Board of Supervisors must have been pleased to learn that Caro sold its school bonds for less than four per cent.

With the grant bond issue for the County Infirmary due to be sold sometime this year, they can reasonably expect to sell the bonds for something under four per cent as the county is in a remarkably good financial status with no outstanding major obligations.

We tip our hat to Roger Parrish and the boys' chorus that performed Tuesday night at the Cass City Community Club. It was the first public performance (outside of school) for the group and the boys sang remarkably well. According to Mr. Parrish, the group sings on a voluntary basis during noon hours and after school. The chorus is steadily growing and the community will be seeing more of the group as they enlarge their repertoire of songs.

Hawks Top Sandusky In Close Game 60-58

In a game marred by incessant whistle blowing, the Cass City Red Hawks won their fourth conference victory in five starts with a basket by Fred Leeson in the last six seconds of play. The score was 60-58.

By the time the game was over, three Cass City and four Sandusky players had been sent to the bench by the overzealous referees from Midland. The game-winning basket was scored when Dick Hanby took the ball after Sandusky registered the tying basket with the clock running out. Hanby tried a shot about three-quarters of the length of the court and Leeson alertly grabbed the rebound to dunk the winning bucket. Sandusky had time to hurriedly bring the ball down the court and be fouled as time ran out. With a chance to tie the game by sinking two shots, Sandusky missed on the first attempt and Cass City walked off with the victory.

The first quarter was very close. Each team scored three field goals. Cass City converted 10 of 10 free shots for a two-point advantage at the end of the period. In the second quarter it looked as if the Hawks were going to score an easy victory. They poured in 20 points while holding the Redskins to 10 for a 12-point half-time margin. In the third quarter Sandusky came roaring back to take the lead. They scored 25 points in the period, more than any other Hawk opponent except Marlette, which netted 30, to take a two-point edge at the three-quarter mark, 49-47. The rally set the stage for the nip and tuck final period already described. Jim Johnson led the Hawk scorers with 18 points. John Meininger followed with 13 points. Coach Irv Claseman singled out Meininger for the outstanding job he did defending against Duane Cubitt, the league's leading scorer. The Hawk second team overcame a first half Sandusky lead to chalk up a 47-41 victory. The preliminary boys have lost only to Mt. Pleasant this year. Friday night Cass City is scheduled to play at Crosswell Lexington.

Jacoby Claims Fraud In $750 Damage Suit

Saturday in Tuscola Circuit Court, Judge T. C. Quinn took under advisement a motion for a summary judgment by the Equity Discount Corporation against George Jacoby of Deford for $750 the company said is owed for three trade acceptances. The case started when Mr. Jacoby signed the trade acceptances with the Sterling Materials Company which sold them to the Equity company.

Mr. Jacoby claims that the trade acceptances were signed by fraud. He said that he was told he was signing accounting papers and not commercially transferable papers.

He also claims that the representative of the Sterling company promised him an exclusive franchise in the Thumb area for the products and then sold the roofing material to several other dealers in the Thumb.

Other Cases
Raymond Downing of Caro was granted a divorce from Donna Downing of Caro. A dollar was given Mrs. Downing in lieu of dower. Johnnie Landram was found guilty of contempt of court for failure to pay alimony. His sentence was suspended on his promise to pay regular weekly alimony payments until he receives full time employment. When hired full time, the court ordered him to pay $10 extra weekly until arrear payments are caught up.

Reduce Price of Village Trailer Park in Court

Judge James E. O'Neill of Saginaw, agreed to a consent agreement between David George Davy of Cass City and Stanton F. March of Cass City that resulted in a reduction of $8,000 for the amount paid for the Walnut Trailer Park in the village.

The amount was agreed upon in an out-of-court settlement Tuesday. Mr. Davy had originally paid $36,000 for the property. He claimed that the property was misrepresented to him. The settlement reduced the amount paid from $36,000 to $28,000. However, Mr. Davy will continue to pay the same amount on the contract for the revised figure.

SHORT STORY

Leap Together

By Allen Wishert

WHEN a young man and a young lady discover they are in love, and neither have the courage to mention it, that little fellow with the bow and arrows is misplacing his shots.

21 years ago this morning at 2:03, Charlie Norwood made life's first touchdown. A couple of years later, Lillian Collins was in the line-up as the girl of his dreams.
For years Charlie had looked forward to this day, the day he was to become junior member of his father's firm. He would have a private office. And, of course, a private secretary. It would not be Lillian Collins, she served his father in that capacity, but at times, surely she would enter his office, imparting wisdom from the senior member.

This morning he stepped off the elevator onto the sixth floor, walked to the door of his father's office.
The lettering on the glass panel read: "Whenever I make the leap, I'll not make it alone."

read: "Charles M. Norwood, Sr., Oil Wells, Inc." He stepped inside.
The office was vacant of human habitation, otherwise it was the most elaborate set-up he had ever barged into.

His father couldn't be far away,
probably to the cooler for a drink, or, possibly to the other end of the hallway.
An open window invited him, he went over, lifted a foot and let it rest on the sill. Leaning forward, he looked down upon the street six stories below.

"Don't attempt it, a body draped on the sidewalk disrupts traffic." Lillian Collins, his father's pretty secretary, and the woman he loved, was standing at the desk with a fistful of legal documents and she was smiling. It wasn't the first time he had been thrown completely off balance by the horizontal lengthening of those enticing lips. However, he had never arrived any closer than speaking distance.

"You have the wrong impression," said Charlie. "Whenever I make the leap, I'll not take it alone."

"One never knows," replied Lillian. "A few customers make their exit in that manner."
"As bad as that, eh?" asked Charlie.

"Investors select queer landing fields, some jump from windows, others leap into marriage."
"The last mentioned is the leap I had in mind."

"Does any of the stock in the Charles M. Norwood, Sr., Inc., offer inducements?"
"It does." The effort of keeping his arms dangling at his side, was painful. "I'll make an investment when the other party is agreeable and ready to transfer legal possession."

"Shall I make a few notations?"
asked Lillian, poised with stenographers note book and pencil.
"How long will we be alone?"
"Probably the entire afternoon.
Your father, when he left, advised me not to put in any over-time waiting on him."

Charlie went to the desk, seated himself in the swivel chair behind it. Lillian did likewise at the end.
He clasped both his hands back of his head, leaned back and stared at the ceiling, a mannerism his father often adopted while concentrating.

"Take a letter, please."
"I'm ready, sir," said Lillian, placing pencil to pad.
"To whom it may concern . . .
Got it?"
"Got it."
"Scratched it."
"Scratched."

"Let me think." Once more Charlie leaned back in the chair.
"A business letter should contain an element of—er—well—business.
What is the name of that client?
Oh, yes, I have it. Ready?"
"Ready."

"My dear Miss Lillian Collins," he dictated.
"Just how do you spell that last name?"
"With a capital C. Paragraph;
I love you, will you marry me?"
He signed the statement, wrote the word; "Yes," below his signature. She signed, making the deal authentic.

"Now," he said. "We will make the leap together."

Cultivation of good habits soon weeds out the bad ones.
Many a man is content to pave the way with his good intentions.

The only way to win on a sure thing is to bet on something that has already happened.

the look on its face!

Wouldn't you say that most of the '57 cars look good from 50 feet away, but what about from 50 inches away?

What does a close-up of the grille tell you, for example? Is it solidly made like the new Chevrolet grille? Or, in comparison does it look less rich in design—feel less strong and solid? Compare the quality and construction of the bumpers and headlights, the fit of the chrome trim.

The more closely you look all around the car, the more clearly you'll see that Chevrolet has the edge in the way it's put together. You'll find, for instance, that Chevrolet is the only car in its field with a lacquer finish . . . that only Chevrolet Bel Air models give you foam rubber cushions in front and rear seats as standard equipment. These are just a few of the advantages of Body by Fisher. And Chevrolet, you know, is the only low-priced car that has a Fisher Body.

We'll be glad to give you a close-up, comparative look at this new Chevy any time
you care to come in.
This week, maybe?

Free Tax Guides Ready for Farmers

The 1956 farmers' tax guides are available to any interested individual from the County Cooperative Extension Office in the courthouse, Caro, according to Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent. This booklet is written especially for farmers. It explains in plain, non-technical language most of the income tax rules which concern them. Numerous examples are used throughout the booklet to show how the rules apply in actual situations. Booklets on social security for farm families are also available, said Ballweg.

Full employment schedules in Michigan industry may make it profitable to find part-time or full-time work off the farm as a way to boost net income, say MSU farm economists.

Room For Two

By Shirley Bauer

ED HARPER couldn't help feeling miffed when his wife Madge took a job selling cosmetics door to door. Because she certainly didn't need a job. Here the children were grown and married, Ed ran a flourishing hardware store, all free and clear. Madge could have anything she needed without working.

Ed tried to tell her. He pointed out that folks might think she had to work or that he was stingy with her.

Madge just laughed. "Anyone can tell you're solvent, Ed, and everyone knows how generous you are with me. But I like my job. I meet so many new people. Besides," she said wistfully, "the house is awfully empty with the children gone—I need to keep busy."

Ed didn't see why she had to go out and sell soaps and cremes to keep busy, but he could see there was no use talking any more.

Still, it wasn't bad at first. Nobody acted like they thought it funny for Ed Harper's wife to be out selling door to door. Fact, Madge handled a line of things that women seemed very pleased to be able to get right at home. Madge took it easy and Ed soon got used to the whole idea.

She needed a job like he needed a lingerie counter in his hardware store.

But when the weather cleared in Spring, things changed. Madge expanded her route; spent longer hours. Then her company started a contest plan. The agent in each district who sold the most each month would win some sort of prize. Madge worked like crazy that month—and fell twenty dollars short of winning an electric roaster.

Ed told her not to be silly—he could have bought a roaster cheaper than she could have earned it, but Madge couldn't see it. Next month she worked twice as hard for two all wool blankets, and won, though only by the skin of her teeth.

Ed was peeved. Not about the blankets; they were fine, a worthwhile prize—for someone who needed them, or needed a job. Madge needed a job like Ed needed a lingerie counter in his hardware store. And yet she was as proud as if she'd won a gold-plated Cadillac. No logic at all.

There wasn't any contest the next two months and Madge (and Ed) relaxed. Maybe by Fall, he thought, she'll be ready to give it up.

Not Madge. She was just gathering ammunition for a new campaign.

So of course, there was Madge, tearin' around the county in the hottest weather, selling cremes and lipsticks to women who were too hot to get out from in front of the fan.

Ed figured he had to put his foot down, so one September evening when he came home, he decided to lay it on the line to Madge before another day.

She was on the phone, and when Ed heard his name mentioned, he couldn't help listen. She was talking to Alice Evans, her company supervisor. "Yes, Alice," she said, "I've decided to quit. Right away . . . yes of course I like the work . . . But I'm neglecting Ed. . . . Oh, I have enjoyed it! I haven't felt so alive since the children were home. But I'm not being fair to Ed. . . ."

Ed slipped outside then, and went and sat down in the garden. "Maybe," he thought, "maybe I am being selfish." He remembered how much his store meant, and how unsettled and jumpy he got if he had to be away from it a few days. Maybe Madge felt the same way; only she was willing to give up her job for him.

Ed went back in to find Madge saying, "Ed, you can relax now; I've given up my job. Now I can be a wife again."

"Quit! You can't! I won't let you!"

Madge was stunned. "But, Ed, you were the one who said . . ."

"Ah, you misunderstood. Honey—you want people to think I couldn't stand your success and made you quit? Noisire, you can't quit now. There's room in this family for two salesmen."

Sprinkle icy walks with finely ground salt mixed with sand. This mixture will break up the ice and prevent slipping while the ice is melting. Fine salt will be diluted quicker and not as injurious to nearby shrubs as concentrated rock salt.

Farm Production Hike Predicted

Population Increase To Expand Market

In sizing up the production job ahead of farmers during the next 20 years, economists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture point out that sizable adjustments may be needed to balance farm output with changing market demand.

The magnitude and nature of the job is analyzed by Dr. Glen T. Barton and Dr. Robert O. Rogers, agricultural economists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, in the publication Farm Output—Past Changes and Projected Needs.

There probably will be about 210 million persons in the U.S. to feed and clothe in 1975—a fourth more than the 165 million in mid-1955.

Economists predict a bigger market for farm products in the years ahead.

Based on that and other assumptions, the USDA economists see a need for one-third more agricultural products in 1975 than in 1951-53. They say the past record of farmers would indicate that future needs can be met relatively easily. A marked increase in the need for livestock production is the dominating feature of the future production pattern. About 45 per cent more livestock production than in 1951-53 will be needed. Production of cattle and calves may need to be increased by about 50 per cent, hogs about 40 per cent, and sheep and lambs about 25 per cent.

If projected production requirements for 1975 were met solely through increases in area of cropland, an additional 150 million acres would be needed. But trends during the last 15 years indicate that only about 25 million additional acres might be put to use. That means five-sixths of the job would have to be done by increasing yields, or by other advances in technology.

Football Coach Turned Rancher

Jesse Harper Owns Spread in Kansas

Jesse Harper will long be remembered for his contributions to the sports world. He not only started the Army-Notre Dame games but he gave Army a thorough trimming in the 1913 game when he sent the combination of Knute Rockne and Gus Dorais on the field to teach the East a lesson in forward passing.

country where Jesse's Herefords graze over 20,000 acres of rolling land. The ranch had Herefords on it when Jesse took over its management and he says, "Our Herefords are just like our Notre Dame football players, they are smart enough and rugged enough to be able to take care of themselves and do a good job. Our calf crop is running from 93 to 95 per cent. We are having no troubles with eye disorders or milking difficulties."

"Naturally," Jesse said, "the Herefords we are running today are far better than those we had in 1913. The reason for their improvement is easily traced to our use of purebred bulls and, of course, our replacement heifers sired by these bulls. We ran some registered cattle for awhile and they further impressed us with the necessity for top quality in our commercial cattle."

New Income Tax Forms Available

As a result of surveys and studies conducted by the Internal Revenue Service, several million taxpayers who last year filed their returns on Form 1040 are now receiving in the mail the simplified punch-card Form 1040A, which makes possible easier preparation of a return and can be more readily processed by the Service.

The card form enables the taxpayer to provide all pertinent information on his income and exemption status, if his income was less than $5,000 during 1956, consisting of salary or wages from which tax was withheld, and he had no more than $100 total of other wages, dividends and interest, and if his deductible expenses were less than the standard 10 per cent calculated as part of the tax table for incomes up to that figure.

For those taxpayers with less than $5,000 income but with allowable deductions exceeding 10 per cent, the regular Form 1040 should be used to obtain a refund or reduce the balance of tax due.

Persons who qualify to use the card form but who did not receive it may obtain a copy from the office of the District Director.

SHORT STORY

Problem For Men

By V. T. Inglish

I HAD a hangover. Not an alcoholic hangover—it was a people hangover—too many people inudiciously mixed. Sally who was adorable was trying hard to be a good wife. And Mom was really trying to be a good mother and mother-in-law, but not succeeding very well at either. And there was Pop. How was I ever going to get Sally and mother to quit pulling in two directions at once?

Take that morning. Sally hated to spend Sunday afternoon with the folks, and I knew it, but Mom expected us to come to dinner and stay. We'd had a spat this morning, and finally I telephoned Mom I wanted to stay home.

We were determinedly gay all through the main part of the meal, with no reference to the early morning quarrel. Until the lemon pie. My favorite.

"Gosh," I said. "I used to think I'd never get enough of Mom's lemon pie."

Sally's face began to cloud up. "I suppose now you're going to tell me about your mother's cooking again," she blurted. "I suppose you wish you were over there eating her lemon pie!" She dropped her fork and fled from the table.

How well Dad understood. I hadn't realized it was obvious.

I just stared. Presently I pushed back my chair and went outdoors. I picked up the snow shovel and went to work. It must have been half an hour later that a voice behind me said: "Looks pretty good."

"Hi, Dad. What're you doing here? Anything wrong?"

"Nope. Just out for a walk. Mother laid down with a headache right after dinner. She gets better faster if I don't stay around. So I thought I'd see how you made out." He grinned slyly.

"I could feel my face getting red. I don't know what you mean, Dad."

"Fiddlesticks," said Dad. "Let's sit down in the garage and talk." I glanced up at the house window. "She ain't lookin' no better," I chuckled. "I wondered what might come next."

"I haven't ever given you much advice, Paul, but son, you're up against something that takes handling." We each lit a cigarette before Dad continued.

Right now you're between two women who are over-exercising their motherly instincts on you, and they'll crush you if you let 'em."

How well Dad understood. I hadn't known it was so obvious.

"Oh, I went through it, too. Fortunately, we left the town where my mother lived a year after we were married. By that time your mother had got the habit of bossing. She got to where she had attacks of something when she didn't get her own way. I called a doctor once, and that was the smartest thing I ever did. I guess, that doctor was a busy man, and he diagnosed the case right away. Told me what I'm telling you now."

"Funny thing about women, son. Long as they think they can aggravate somebody, they'll do it. When they know they can't bother you, they find something else to do or somebody else to aggravate. The thing to do is ignore 'em both for awhile, Sally and your mother, and do what you want to do. It's the only way you'll ever get any respect in your own home, and it's the only way your Mom will ever let you alone." He pulled himself out of the chair.

"Well, son, now you know as much about women as I do. What you do about it is your affair. Good luck," and he sauntered down the drive.

I sat thinking, and suddenly I realized I'd left the wedge of lemon pie.

As I entered the kitchen, I saw the sink was cleared of dishes. The table, too, had been cleared and the kitchen straightened up. Sally came to the kitchen door.

"Where's the pie?" I asked. "I'm hungry."

"And afterward I'm going to have a long nap," I continued. Sally blushed as she replied, "Yes, dear."

Well, boys, that was a few years ago, and do you know what? It works. At least it did for me.

Many people pray for things they wouldn't think of working for.

More Profits With Good Swine Housing

Faster gains and feed savings up to 10 per cent are results of providing good housing for pigs, comments Don E. Kehler, assistant county agricultural agent.

He reports that tests of solar housing for hogs at Michigan State University have shown that this design can produce these results for Tuscola County hogmen. Solar housing provides a hog house with a dry floor and well-lighted surroundings—two essentials for profit-making hog production.

Large areas of glass in solar houses make use of the heat and light from the sun to provide these conditions. Insulated glass cuts heat losses. A complete ventilating system is also part of the design for this type structure.

He also points out that, working conditions are better in a solar house. The dry floors reduce the amount of bedding required, the number of changes in bedding and the labor of bedding and cleaning.

Plans for constructing a solar-designed hog house are available from the department of agricultural engineering at Michigan State University. Also available to assist interested hogmen in learning more about solar housing is a special bulletin just published by MSU called "Solar Housing for Swine." Copies are available from the Bulletin Office, Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Many people are inclined to do good, but they keep putting it off until tomorrow.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Foreign Flavor Adds Appeal To Main Dishes

ADVENTUROUS eating is the key to keeping the family eating happily and an occasional meal with a foreign accent is guaranteed to keep menus in high favor. Many familiar foods can be used in this experiment with flavors. Take, for instance, this one which uses spaghetti and combines it with chow mein.

Cubed beef and a flavorful variety of vegetables are blended together for an appetizing chow mein served with spaghetti. If you have small bowls, serve tea in them for variety in Chinese fashion.

Chow Mein with Spaghetti
(Serves 4-6)
2 tablespoons butter
1 pound beef round steak, cubed
2 cups beef bouillon
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 cups thinly sliced celery
1 cup sliced onion
1 1-pound jar Chinese vegetables
1 4-ounce can mushrooms, drained
Salt and pepper
8 ounces spaghetti

Melt butter over low heat; add beef and brown well. Add 1 1/2 cups bouillon and soy sauce. Cover and cook until meat is tender, about 28 minutes. Combine cornstarch and 1/2 cup bouillon, mix until smooth. Add cornstarch mixture to beef, and cook, stirring constantly until thickened and clear. Add vegetables; cover and cook 15 minutes or until meat and vegetables are tender. Season with salt and pepper.

Meanwhile, cook spaghetti in 3 quarts of rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon of salt has been added. Cook, uncovered, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve chow mein over spaghetti.

Yorkshire Lamb
(Serves 4)
1 1/2 pounds boned lean lamb, cubed
Salt, pepper and garlic salt
1/2 cup flour
3 tablespoons butter
Hot water
4 small white onions, peeled
1 1/2 cups canned mushrooms, drained
2 medium potatoes, pared and halved
1/2 cup cut green beans
1 cup light cream
Add seasonings to flour in paper bag. Shake meat in it until well coated. Brown meat in butter, add 2 cups hot water, cover and simmer 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Add vegetables during last half hour of cooking time. Blend in cream, stirring constantly, heat through and serve.

Proper Cleansing Makes Skin Glow

If you want to present a lovely, glowing complexion to friends whom you'll be seeing during holiday time, start now with care that will make complexions glow. A daily cleansing can be fast, but it should be thorough. It should also be aimed at the type of skin which you have so you can use the cleansing that will do the most for the skin.

Skin Type
How does one decide what type of skin she has? That's easy. Does the skin chap easily, feel tight and flake easily? That's typical of dry skin problems.

Does the skin seem to be cloudy and are you bothered with blemishes such as blackheads and enlarged pores? These usually are problems found with oily skin.

If you don't fit in either category but occasionally have some problems in either, the chances are your skin is normal. This is especially true if you're under thirty.

How to Clean
If you have oily skin, select a non-greasy cream which does not liquefy when you put it on. For dry skin, select a good lubricating cleansing cream. Smooth the cream over the face generously, but include in it your neck. Wisk it off with tissue and apply again. Isn't this a waste of cream? On the contrary, the first application removes the dirt. If you smooth this into the face, you simply push the dirt in farther. The second application is for creaming the face more thoroughly. This application can be left on during your bath to sink into the face while the heat of bathing opens the pores.
