

From the Editor's Corner

At a meeting Wednesday night in Caro, representatives from Cass City, the Hill-Burton federal funds administrators and Caro doctors discussed the proposed Cass City Community Hospital.

The reason for the meeting was to discuss the hospital as an area venture with Caro doctors sending patients to the new facilities.

On the decision of the Hill-Burton representatives of whether or not patients will come from Caro, the size of the hospital will depend.

The Hill-Burton fund pays up to 55 per cent of hospital construction costs. With the cooperation of Caro, a 50-bed unit is proposed here.

Why Caro participation in a hospital built with Cass City area funds? The answer is simple. The larger the hospital, the more of the needed specialized services can be made available and the cheaper the cost per bed for construction.

But a 50-bed hospital could be an unprofitable proposition if not reasonably filled.

The Federal representatives are now considering the problem and will have a decision in a few weeks... possibly when they come to the village to look over the available sites here.

Marlette Widens Loop Lead Tuesday

Cass City's hopes of at least a share of the Thumb B Conference basketball title were shattered Tuesday night at Cass City High School when league leading Marlette won a convincing 78-63 victory before a capacity, turn-away crowd.

The victory kept Marlette undefeated this year, while Cass City has an 8-2 conference record.

The loss gave the Hawks an even split during the week. Friday they easily whipped Bad Axe 60-41.

Cass City was hampered in the game with the Red Raiders through the loss of Jim Johnson, who was forced to leave the game in the opening minutes because of illness.

Even with the clever center, it is doubtful if Cass City could have whipped Marlette Tuesday. Paced by the deadly playmaking and accurate shooting of their two fine guards, Dick Caister and Ron Willis, Marlette moved into the lead in the last half of the opening stanza and were never in danger of losing after that rally.

They spurred into a 21-15 lead at the end of the first period and were comfortably ahead, 46-38, at the intermission.

After a big third quarter, the Raiders were 22 points in front 68-46. Cass City fought back in the last period to post a 17-10 margin but by then it was much too late to do anything but make the final score more respectable.

Dick Caister led all scorers with 23 points. John Meininger led the Hawk attack with 23 points and played a very good defensive game.

Cass City's second team continued unbeaten in conference play by edging Marlette 45-43. The Hawk reserves have won eight games by a grand total of 11 points.

Coach Irv Clasen used a zone defense for the first time Friday against Bad Axe and it proved to be very successful on the Hawks' small court. The 41 points scored by Bad Axe was the least scored against the Hawks this year.

Cass City was off to a slow start in the first half as they netted only 21 points but Bad Axe was able to count just nine points in each of the first two periods and Cass City led at the halfway mark, 21-18.

In the third period, Cass City salted away the victory. With Jim Johnson connecting for 10 points they poured 21 points through the hoop while holding the Hawks to 12.

The Hawks' defense continued to operate effectively in the last half and they held Bad Axe to 11 points while counting 17 for their winning 60-41 victory.

Johnson led the attack for Cass City with 24 points. Meininger picked up 15. J. Blackstock was high for Bad Axe with 20 points.

The Cass City reserves won 43-37 with a last half rally.

Announce Change of Ownership at Service Station

Formal announcement of the purchase of the half interest of Stanley McArthur in Mac and Leo Service Station by Leo Ware was announced this week. Effective date of the transfer was Jan. 1.

The two men had been in partnership since they purchased the former Burgess Gas and Oil Station, Sept. 1, 1944. The purchase marked the first business venture of both men and came in the middle of gas rationing and gas stamps.

In May of 1950 they purchased the Deford Gas & Oil Co. from Jacoby Brothers and became wholesalers for Leonard products. They continued their expansion in the fall of 1954 when they built an entire new building around the former gas station.

The change in ownership will not affect the name which will continue to be Mac and Leo Service.

Although no longer a part owner in the business, Mr. McArthur will continue to work for the concern.

Just 17 Attend Annual Village Caucus Tuesday

A total of only 17 voters attended the annual village caucus Tuesday evening at the Town Hall in Cass City to nominate village officers for the spring election.

Only one new person was nominated for office. B. F. Benkelman Jr. will seek the president's post in place of incumbent James Bauer.

There was some doubt in the voters' minds as to whether Mr. Bauer would accept another term of office. He was nominated to succeed himself and was defeated seven votes to six.

Mrs. Wilma Fry was nominated for the posts of secretary and treasurer without opposition.

Three trustees were nominated Tuesday.

Warren Wood and Andrew Bigelow were named without opposition. Cliff Ryan won the nomination for another two-year term in close balloting with Edward Baker and Bill Jolly. Mr. Ryan received seven votes, Mr. Jolly six votes and Mr. Baker, four votes. All of the trustees nominated are now serving on the council.

Harold Jackson was nominated without opposition for another term as assessor.

Edward Rawson served as chairman of the caucus and Mrs. Fry was the caucus secretary. Tellers were William Schram and Ed Golding Jr.

80TH BIRTHDAY—Mr. and Mrs. John Sandham prepared to cut the cake after the program in honor of Mr. Sandham's 80th birthday was completed Tuesday night at the New Gordon Hotel. He was honored by the Cass City Rotary Club with Rotary Anns as guests.

John Sandham Feted On 80th Birthday

John Sandham of Cass City was honored on his 80th birthday by members of the Cass City Rotary Club Tuesday night before some 80 persons that included club members, Rotary Anns and special guests.

His life history was portrayed in humorous sketches by Willis Campbell, Bob Schuckert, James Bauer, John Haire, William Profit and Keith McConkey.

Mr. Sandham's early years were traced by Mr. Campbell, who recounted his early years in Argyle and life in northern Michigan woods. Mr. Sandham was born in Tilsburg, Ont., and came to live in the Argyle area when three years old. He spent four years in the woods and on the rivers of Michigan from 1898 to 1901.

Mr. Schuckert recalled Mr. Sandham's early days as a Rotarian. He is one of the three charter members of Cass City's club and is still active in club affairs.

Mr. Bauer described the accomplishments of the village while Mr. Sandham served as a member of the council for 25 years. Mr. Bauer pointed out the many improvements made while Mr. Sandham was connected with village affairs... included in the long list were the first sewage disposal system, new wells and water softener, purchase of fire truck and tractor and sanitary sewer system. In two of the years, 1932-33, no taxes were assessed by the village.

To commemorate this service, the guest of honor was made an honorary president of the village for life by the present council.

Mr. Haire told of Mr. Sandham's 15 years on the school board from 1929 to 1944. He recalled that it was during Mr. Sandham's tenure on the board that the present high school was paid for.

Mr. Sandham served as president of the board during his entire 15 years.

Mr. Profit exemplified Mr. Sandham's career as a Republican and Mr. McConkey kidded him about his financial status. Mr. Sandham has been a member of the board of directors of the Cass City State Bank since it was organized as a state bank in 1921.

M. B. Auten read a short skit describing some of the guest's characteristics and two letters from the Lincoln Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Sandham has been connected with the company since May 28, 1908, and is the oldest active agent and has the second longest service record of any person in the company.

The life insurance company sent roses for every lady present in honor of Mr. Sandham.

Junior High Boasts Top Cage Team

Coach Irv Clasen is enthused over the potential shown by this year's Cass City Junior High basketball team. The future Hawks are currently in first place with a 5-1 record and if they defeat Vassar tonight (Friday) they will be champions of the northern division.

The champions of the northern division will play the southern division titleholders Feb. 27, at a site to be selected, for the league crown.

According to Clasen, the junior high team boasts several players who have shown signs of coming greatness... just as the junior high football team did this fall.

German Lass Likes Cass City Atmosphere

Miss Irmgard Dugge, 22, of Cass City is in the enviable position of being able to become a citizen of the United States or of Germany... whichever she prefers.

Miss Dugge is living in Cass City under the sponsorship of M. B. Auten, on an immigration visa. Under the visa she can become a naturalized citizen or return to Germany to live.

What she will do, the attractive Miss Dugge isn't sure yet herself. Right now she has tentative plans for returning to Germany within a couple of years for at least a visit with her mother, three sisters and brother.

Of course, if the right man comes along that will all be changed. But the right man for the German lass will truly be the "man of the family and the head of the house." When she was in Germany, Miss Dugge said, she was told that American women ruled the roost... "I couldn't marry a man like that, I'm not cut out to be the boss of my household."

Regardless of her sentiments about men, Miss Dugge has proved to be extremely adaptable and is adjusting rapidly to life in Cass City. Now steadily employed as a secretary at Walbro Corporation, she lives in an apartment on Main Street.

Her work in Germany as a secretary for the United States Army Dependents Schools has proved invaluable to her. She

Fire Completely Destroys George King Home

Fire completely destroyed the home of George King, Greenleaf Township, Friday evening at about 11 p. m.

The fire started when the Kings were away from home at Bad Axe. When they returned and saw the smoke they turned in the alarm to the Elkland Township Fire Department.

When the department fire fighters arrived, the fire was raging beyond control... part of the roof had already collapsed.

The Kings succeeded in saving most of the kitchen furniture and a few pieces from the rest of the house. The remainder was lost in the fire.

The amount of damage was not available, but the loss was only partially covered by insurance. The Kings are temporarily making their home in a neighbor's home which had been vacant.

Time to Sign for Acreage Reserve

Agreements signed under the Soil Bank's 1957 Acreage Reserve program for corn will be entered into on a "first come, first served" basis, Chas. B. Eckfeld, county office manager of the Tuscola County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, reminded farmers today.

Allocations of funds for payments under the corn Acreage Reserve program for Tuscola County is $189,352.00. Acreage Reserve payments will be in the form of negotiable certificates, redeemable in cash.

Producers on farms which have corn acreage allotments are eligible to take part in the 1957 corn Acreage Reserve program unless the allotment is a "New Farm" allotment for 1957.

County Office Manager Eckfeld explained that at the time farmers file applications to participate in the program, they may put up to the maximum acreage in the Acreage Reserve. This maximum, for corn, is 20 acres or 30% of the allotment whichever is the larger. In no case, however, may this maximum exceed the farm acreage allotment.

Should a farmer wish to enter an acreage larger than the maximum in the program, he should indicate this on the original agreement. The additional acreage will be accepted and a new agreement signed if the necessary funds are made available through reallocation after the program sign-up has closed.

The deadline for signing a corn acreage reserve agreement under the 1957 program is March 8.

Profit Possible In Farming Today

It is possible to make a profit from farming today. At least some farmers are doing it, points out assistant county agricultural agent Don R. Keblor. Some of the Michigan State University farm account cooperators are not only making a profit but have improved their financial position in the last few years.

Here are some of the ways profits are being made when farm prices have been down as much as 50% in the last few years.

About one-third of the farmers with favorable income took on more land and worked it with no increase in their labor supply. Labor expense accounts for 30% to 50% of farm operation costs.

Most of the high earning farmers did not increase the acres farmed but grew higher value crops and increased the yields. Beans, beets, corn, potatoes and truck crops paid good returns.

Also the use of good production practices as tilling, irrigation, once-over tillage, green manure crops, following soil test recommendations and weed spraying paid off greatly.

The successful livestock farmers began producing better livestock and raised more of it. They reduced the number of kinds and then expanded the major one or two to the limit. These farmers found that enough power, good equipment and well arranged, satisfactory buildings saved labor, the highest farm cost item. About a $50 investment in power and machinery per tillable acre seemed average on these successful farms. Most labor costs remained the same even though the size of operation increased.

Most of the farmers reduced costs in some of the practices followed. Getting the greatest production returns for unit of cost helped them to do this.

No farm business is efficient unless a proper set of farm records are carefully kept. Good records soon will show whether an operation costs or makes money on the farm. Then by all means analyze these records, use them to help find good buys or sales, then make operational changes to the best advantage.

BULEN TALKS Cars

OUR OWN PRICE CONTROL

During the war when price controls were on, one of our mechanics went into a men's wear store to buy a shirt he needed for a high fallutin' affair.

"This very fine shirt," said the clerk, "is $3.95."

"Well," he said, "I'd like something better, a $5 shirt."

"This," said the clerk icily, "WOULD be a $5 shirt if it wasn't for those so-on-so price controls."

Prices in cars can be very confusing these days, I suppose—more confusing than those price-controlled shirts. But I must admit we have always had a simple approach here to prices: We take the best LEGITIMATE deals we hear of and we better them.

And it stands to reason we can do this, do it to the customer's advantage, and still run a business that will be here at the same stand next year and the year after when you come back to trade-in.

As you know, people come from many towns around to trade and buy and sell here. They do it with other things, rompers and drugs and food, and they do it with cars too.

So we are able to build up a volume of car sales that is larger than you would think from the size of just the town itself. And volume means only one thing for the customer: lower prices.

It also means better trade-in cars on our used car lot, because we get the cream of the crop from a long way away.

This volume and free competition is its own kind of "price control." Why pay $5 when the price control of volume and competition keeps our price down to $3.95?

FREE 1957 LICENSE. We have already given away quite a few plates in response to last week's column. We'd like to buy yours too! We have the nicest stock of Used Cars and Trucks in months for your consideration. Won't you come in?

Who Says Farming Only Man's Work?

Successful Ohio Farm Indicates Otherwise

Notwithstanding the fact that mechanization has taken much of the back-breaking toil out of the business of farming, there are still many who firmly contend that you can't run a successful farm without a broad-shouldered man around the place.

Folks around Delaware, Ohio might agree this point, and justly so. Miss Hazel Clark, 34, and 115 pounds, has (since the death of her father five years ago) carried out an entire farming operation on a 143-acre farm in Delaware and Morrow Counties.

Miss Clark lives on the farm

The Clark farm in Ohio is doing very nicely, thank you, without any men about the place. Hazel Clark stops working to accept lunch being offered by her mother.

with her widowed mother, Mrs. W. S. Clark and Hazel does all the work there is to do around the place. She sows her own corn, does her own combining, corn picking and hay baling. She likes to keep the farm looking neat and prosperous, so she mows weeds and fence rows with a scythe. She uses a Caterpillar Diesel D-2 tractor to pull a four-bottom plow and uses the same D-2 with dozer for removing small trees and for grubbing stones out of fields.

Miss Clark has built and repaired fences as well as taking care of all other outside work. She does housework, too, and makes her own clothes. She has been managing the farm since the death of her father. In addition to her mother, the family includes one brother who is in military service and plans to stay until retirement in 1961.

Coccidiosis Is Often Difficult to Spot

Intestinal coccidiosis sneaks up like a thief in the dark and it takes a sharp poultryman to spot it in his flock, note Michigan State University extension poultrymen.

The disease commonly strikes between seven and 16 weeks of age, but poultrymen are seeing more of it at advanced ages, up to the time chickens come into production. It does not have many of the symptoms of cecal coccidiosis. There is usually some diarrhea and many pale birds may huddle in small groups around the house.

The symptoms are not striking, and the only way that the disease is spotted in many cases is when the healthy birds become noticeably larger than infected ones.

The coccidia are difficult to destroy with disinfectants, but the first method of control should be thorough cleaning, disinfection and sanitation, the poultry specialists insist.

Most of the preventive medications that control the cecal type will aid in holding back the intestinal type of coccidiosis, but some are less effective. Treatment with sulfa drugs is recommended, and all moist and caked litter should be removed.

Tractor Seat

Spring-cushion tractor seat consists of suitable metal seat welded to a piece of pipe which telescopes into a second piece of pipe, the latter being welded to a plate for attaching to the tractor frame. Large coil spring is slipped over the pipe assembly to hold the seat a few inches above the lower pipe. In this way, weight of the drivers is carried on the spring, the second piece of pipe serving only to keep the seat in position.

Any man would a lot rather be knocked down by a stranger than be double-crossed by a friend.

For a taste perk-up, stuff a pocketed pork chop with drained sauerkraut, brown the chop slowly, cover with more sauerkraut and simmer for 45 minutes.

Blend with a smooth sauce to prevent curdling; should the cheese curdle in the middle of making a sauce, remove it from the heat and beat it with an egg beater.

Corn King Was Also 1947 Winner

Credits Fertilizer, Soil Management

Walter J. Harpel, a Crawfordville, Indiana hybrid seed grower who won the Corn King championship of North America for the second time at the International Grain and Hay Show in Chicago, says good soil management, good seed and plenty of fertilizer helped bring him victory. He won the title before in 1947.

The championship corn came from a 150-acre leased field adjoining Harpel's 300 acre farm in Montgomery County, Indiana. The land was in a soil-building legume-grass crop last year. It was plowed

The soil has had a steady input of plant food based on soil tests and recommendations by Purdue University agronomists. It regularly receives a plow-down application of 500 to 600 pounds per acre of a mixed fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash, such as 4-16-16.

Last spring, Harpel added 200 pounds of 4-16-16 in the row at corn planting time.

Harpel's winning 104-ear exhibit was Indiana Certified 844-D, a hybrid strain developed at Purdue University. The corn yielded better than 100 bushels per acre. One 5-acre plot checked out at 150 bushels per acre.

The value of the soil's high organic matter supply, good structure and drainage was demonstrated during the 1956 growing season. Heavy spring rains—12 inches in one 10-day period in May—might have threatened disaster to many a corn crop. But the soil soaked up the moisture and retained much of it for the corn crop's use during the dry summer months.

During this cold weather a poultryman shuts his poultry house to keep in the heat. But, this sets up a problem of too high humidity. So, you'll need a litter cover that is absorbent.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

By Elmer E. White
Elimination of diseased poultry from Michigan Markets is the aim of a program under way in the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

At present there are no Federal laws requiring inspection of poultry. Many of the chickens and turkeys eaten in Michigan come from Southern States where there are few quality controls.

To combat the problem, the agriculture department is offering Michigan poultry producers an inspection service which guarantees the consumer that the "chicken in the pot" is entirely wholesome and free from disease. It is voluntary, for the farmer, and its success can only be insured if "Mrs. Housewife" demands the protection.

Any producer can avail himself of the service. He contacts the department of agriculture, which sets the machinery in motion. A veterinarian (usually local) is hired by the department to inspect the birds during processing for market. The inspector removes diseased birds and assures that the processing is conducted under sanitary conditions.

The healthy poultry is tagged by the veterinarian with a special green and white metal wing clip provided by the Agriculture Department guaranteeing the wholesomeness of the produce. This clip identifies the inspected birds in the markets and grocery stores.

The producer's only cost is payment for the veterinarian's time.

However, many poultry men are reluctant to add to their costs when they must compete with cheap, uninspected poultry coming from Southern states.

The key to the success of the program is consumer "demand." If the consumers want a better product, they can have it. Unless they do, it is easier and cheaper to provide uninspected poultry.

Here's a knotty problem: design a hollow metal ball capable of being shot 300 miles through space; able to attain speeds of 18,000 miles per hour without disintegrating; strong enough to withstand the pressures of outer space, and light enough to carry delicate measuring equipment without harm.

Brooks and Perkins, a Michigan metal fabricating company located in Detroit, is now working on this very problem. Last July the firm was awarded the government contract to manufacture the "earth satellite" sphere which the United States hopes to launch as its part in the international Geophysical year, beginning July, 1957.

Part of the ultimate success or failure of the proposed earth satellite weigh on the shoulders of this Michigan company.

"Perfection is our primary problem," says E. Howard Perkins, president of the company. Personnel connected with the project can only estimate some of the difficulties that may arise when the launching is accomplished.

The sphere is made from magnesium, a metal known for its combined lightness and strength. The manufacturing process includes machining the hollow globe to a three-hundredths of an inch thickness. The outside is then polished to perfection to minimize possible friction. Finally the globe is taken to the firm's Livonia plant where gold plating is applied to deflect the sun's heat rays and keep the recording instruments cool.

Five spheres are already completed. Plans are now scheduled for a launching sometime after January, 1958 from a Florida site.

And what does the firm of Brooks and Perkins think about the role they are playing in the history-making event? They couldn't be happier. As they point out, before the satellite contract came to Michigan, they were practically unknown in Detroit. The contract changed that and brought them a host of new friends.

If Michigan were suddenly cut off from the rest of the country for food supplies how well would we eat?

Michigan's diversified agricultural economy provides a pleasant "burp" of satisfaction in answer to this question once each year at an annual "All-Michigan Dinner."

This unique banquet is sponsored by the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Michigan Press Association every January for newspapermen from all parts of the state. Purpose: to show that Michigan food products lead the way in quality and "tastefulness" that Michigan's farms produce many different kinds of crops. Only Michigan food is served. And from the variety presented, no one should expect more.

This year's menu included such tasty items as half of a "golden fryer," spiced tomato juice, fresh rhubarb pie and cheese, buttered peas and mushrooms, fresh lettuce and cottage cheese, whipped potatoes, celery, carrot sticks and radishes.

Every bit was grown right in Michigan. Every year the menu is changed to include some of the many other products available.

Not only is a delicious dinner provided, but additional Michigan foods are introduced to the newspapermen. Michigan beans, sausage, apples (fresh and spiced), pickles, salt, cherries, onions and other products all demonstrate Michigan's agricultural diversity.

High productive efficiency—not high wages is what brings about our high living standards.

stantly killed Sunday evening in an automobile collision on M-53 near Burnside.

"The Citadel of the Lakes," a book written by Myron David Orr, a former Cass City resident, is receiving national attention and appears certain to become the book of the month.

Two entries from the Cass City area were among the winners at the Fat Stock Show and Sale during Farmers' Week. Carl Buehly's Hereford steer had the best rate of gain with 2.86 pounds per day. He also won the Hereford senior steer championship, Hereford reserve championship and placed second in the senior division, all breeds. Bill Zinnecker won third place among Angus senior steers and sixth in senior steers, all breeds.

Twenty-five Years Ago
An article regarding the activities of Clarence V. Howell, 1906 graduate of Cass City High School, against racial, national and religious prejudice, appears in the February Reader's Digest. School bus drivers, milk haulers and rural mail carriers were hampered this week by drifted roads and many families living on side roads were isolated because of the weather conditions. Dr. H. L. Nigg of Caro told Rotarians of his experiences in overseas army service in hospitals in New Guinea, the Philippines and Japan, at their regular Tuesday meeting.

Harrison Stine, Don Koepfgen, Keith Little and Bill Zinnecker will exhibit steers at the annual fat steer show at Michigan State College Feb. 13.

Work was started Tuesday morning to raze the Tuscola County courthouse at Caro, which was built in 1872. It will be replaced by a new building which, with its equipment, will cost about $162,000.

Thirty-five Years Ago
Arthur Ricker Jr. was accidentally shot in the movie theater owned by his brother at Owendale Sunday night. Mr. Ricker was fingering a revolver in his pocket when it discharged. The bullet entered the abdomen. Doctors say Mr. Ricker will recover. Dr. Charles N. Race, Caro physician, has discovered a process by which x-ray pictures can be made more rapidly and at less cost on ordinary paper by rays passing through a chemical mixture and the paper dipped into another chemical mixture and then dried. The process is patented.

Mrs. Frederick Vatters, resident of Argyle Township since 1859, died at her home at the age of 88 years. Cass City's boys' basketball team was defeated by Croswell 22-16 in the five-minute overtime Friday night. The girls' team was also defeated by Croswell.

SHORT STORY

Headline Hunter

By H. N. Ferguson

LATE afternoon shadows crept slowly up the sides of the buildings and the sun bathed the rooftops with a mellow, golden softness as cub reporter, Tod Seburn, stepped from the door of the Daily Argus into the dusk of the canyon-like street. Tod was young and bored; it had been a quiet day.

The frosted glass door of a neighborhood lounge beckoned invitingly and he pushed it open, easing his lanky frame into the perpetual dimness of the interior. There were few customers at this hour and Tod slumped into a booth against the wall. The juke box blinked its garish red and blue light as it blared a worn-out tune. It was too loud.

"Man, that was a sight—all of 'em stretched out there cold and dead; all the fight gone out of 'em!"

The voice, harsh and rasping, came from the booth behind. Tod set his glass carefully on the table.

The reply, when it came, was high-pitched, tense. "Yah, but you couldn't 'a done it without Big Boy and the Cisco Kid." The infection was shifty, like a man talking out of the side of his mouth.

"Umm," agreed the raspy one. "And don't forget Pluggin' Shorty."

The juke pitched to a twanging roar.

Tod's eyes widened in wonderment. Curious remarks. Trigger man, maybe. He pushed the idea aside.

The tense voice spoke again. "Things were gettin' pretty hot out there for awhile." Tod raised an eyebrow, pursed his lips.

There was silence for awhile from the back booth. Tod wiped his forehead. An idea, forming in his mind, seemed to reflect itself in the polished table top. He was seeing headlines, big, bold: "REPORTER CATCHES CRIMINALS."

The music ground on.

Nice guys to meet in a dark alley, thought Tod.

"Blue Suede Shoes" swelled into a crescendo and Tod fretted. "That racket could cost me my story," he muttered to himself.

Over at the bar a bland unsmiling face heard orders for drinks and automatically tossed them to the waiter. The place was filling up. Furtive laughter and loud talk poured through the thick curtain of tobacco smoke. But none of the drama unfolding in the back booth—thugs, their tongues loosened by drinks, spilling the lurid details of a crime to the listening ears of the press.

Tod was bubbling inside. These were wanted men; dope runners probably. Most likely members of a Chicago gang hiding out in this winter resort area. Those names! He hadn't heard 'em since Damon Runyon's Guys and Dolls.

"Man, that was a fight . . . but we got him, didn't we? That boy won't see the cool green anymore!"

Ah, a robbery job. Tod nodded his head. "It all figures," he mumbled softly.

Someone dropped another coin in the juke box. For a moment the tiny music drowned out the voices.

Tod shuddered. For a moment he thought of getting scared. Criminal madmen! Suppose they realized he was listening! The headline took a gruesome turn: "REPORTER DIES GETTING STORY."

Then he heard them yell for their check. Tod quickly signalled for his, also.

Trying to be nonchalant, he slid out of the booth and eased along behind the two. They were dressed in baggy pants, rumpled sport shirts and floppy hats. At the cashier's cage Tod paid and dismissed the change, hurrying after his quarry.

In the darkening twilight of the street, he watched the gangsters approach a battered, mud-splattered car. They pushed some rod-aside as they got in.

Then Tod saw the victims—six bass and trout—bedded in a box of crushed ice. As the car pulled away from the curb, gravel voice held up a barred lure. "Good ol' Pluggin' Shorty!" he chortled triumphantly.

It sometimes pays to bluff—if you can't have your way, pretend the other fellow's is yours.

New Chemical Weed Killer Will Last All Season

Prospects are good that farmers will have a chemical weed killer that will have effect from planting time to harvest.

So close, in fact, that one such chemical is adapted specifically for corn, says S. K. Ries, horticulturalist at Michigan State University.

He said there is a trend in weed control, research towards this end.

Only a few years ago most researchers felt that chemicals should be selective post-emergence control.

But recent tests have shown that this is probably not the most practical method.

Newer types should be applied at planting time, or near emergence time of the seedlings. Then, for the balance of the growing season, effective weed control should be assured without added expense of extra control methods such as cultivation or hand weeding.

Aim is to have a residual toxicity—long lasting poisonous effect to newly sprouted weeds.

Then with such an effective means of weed control the weed pest can almost be forgotten once weed killer is put on soil.
