Livestock Profits Lost to Robber

Cattle Grub Gets More Than His Share

The big question for American livestock farmers is worth more than $64—it adds up to $100,000,000 plus; and one little insect—the cattle grub, is responsible for it all. That's why the Livestock Conservation, Inc., asks why the industry tolerates the insidious insect that scientists long ago proved could be controlled, if not exterminated.

The pest travels under various aliases such as the Ox Warble or Heel Fly, wreaking a loss that eventually is borne by the cattle

wanted... ROBB GRUB

The lowly cattle grub takes a big share of profits away from careless livestock producers.

raised in reduced income from sale of his cattle.

Here's what happens when Robb Grub is at work:

The cattleman finds that his cattle aren't doing as well as they should if he is a feeder, or if he is a dairyman, milk production isn't quite as good as it should be.

The tanner sees numerous holes in the hide too smooth and often too large to have been made by bird shot. Also he has to trim and discard for glue stock the most valuable part of 30, 40, 50 and at certain seasons as high as 60 per cent of the hides he tans.

Here's why it happens: Cattlemen are reluctant to spend the few dollars and the time and trouble it takes to spray or dust at an unfavorable time of year when they can see no immediate profit therefrom. Yet, it's a safe bet that over a given area a premium of at least $5.00 per head could be secured for cattle certified to be "grub-free."

Too Much Nitrate Can Affect Cattle

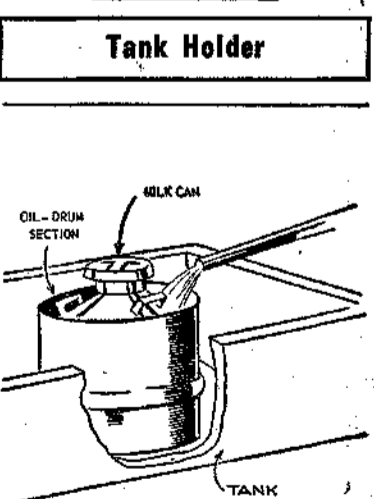

Excessive nitrate content of certain plants on which livestock graze is an increasingly important cause of poisoning in farm animals, according to a report to the American Veterinary Medical Association.

"Forage plants such as oats, sorghums, corn, and certain weeds have long been known to cause losses, especially in cattle, because of nitrate concentration in the plant during adverse growing conditions," Dr. Arthur Case of the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Missouri, reported.

The combination of heavy fertilization of these crops and drought conditions brought about many cases of poisoning by plants usually considered safe for forage, Dr. Case reported. Corn has caused heavy losses of cattle which grazed in drought-stricken fields, he said.

Symptoms of this type of poisoning vary from abortion and decreased production to severe intoxications that soon end in death. Severity of symptoms depends upon the amount of nitrate in the ration, as well as the quality of the entire ration.

To prevent losses, Dr. Case said the entire soil fertilization program should be re-evaluated and if possible,

To keep milk cans from overturning when set in cooling tank, one farmer sets his cans in a section out from an oil drum. The drum section is set directly under the water-supply pipe so that the can of milk is submerged long before the cooling tank is filled. Drum keeps the can from tilting more than a few degrees.

The number of rattles on the rattlesnake's tail indicates the number of times the snake has shed its skin—not necessarily its age in years. Depending on food supply and living conditions, a rattler may shed its skin one to three times a year. Also, rattles often are broken off between sheddings.

There's more than one way to skin a cat—or to skin the rubber right off your tires, too.

The average motorist can get 20,000 miles of wear from a set of tires, but a bad driver can wear them out in 10,000 miles. A really expert driver can make tires last for 30,000 miles.

So good care of tires can mean real savings, which makes it worthwhile for anybody to cut their tire costs by two-thirds.

Do you know, for instance, what it really means when your tires squeal? You'll probably say "Tires squeal when you go around a corner too fast."

That's true, but there are lots of other ways to make tires squeal. It's bad for tires because it means they're sliding against the direction of the tread. Under-inflation, rough roads and such unwise practices as applying the brakes around a corner all lead to squealing.

Speed is bad for tires, and not just because the tire is moving faster. High speeds make the tire walls flex more and this movement produces heat. The heat softens the rubber, and soft rubber will grind off like an eraser.

I've written quite a bit in these columns about tires, because they're one of our major concerns when a used car comes on to the lot. A used car that won't need tires for many months is obviously a good buy and I always make sure all our cars are good buys.

Don't forget to look over the tires when you're shopping for a car, and don't forget to take care of them once you have the car.

And, if you want a really nice car, come in and see Scotty McCullough's '54 Chevrolet Club Coupe. This car has less than 15,000 actual miles. Equipped with Automatic Transmission, Radio and very good tires. This is the Two Door with Washable Vinyl upholstery, perfect with children. See and drive this car.

Eats like a hummingbird!

Like all the new '57 Fords, that sleek Sunliner up there lives on a mighty lean diet of gasoline. Big reason? Look underneath the new front-hinged hood of this over 17-foot long dreamboat. There you'll find a magnificent V-8 engine... an all-new, easier "breathing" power plant that measures fuel and air more efficiently than ever before to give you fuller combustion, greater economy. There you'll find a completely new brand of Ford TNT that's the proud result of Ford's many years of V-8 leadership. Yes, "Six" or "Eight"... the going's never been so great!

Goes like a Thunderbird!

For a car that "eats" like a bird... just watch this new kind of Ford devour the miles! That's its new Thunderbird V-8 power* for you. Michigan Mirror News in Brief

By Elmer E. White

What happens to a town when a major highway is routed around its limits instead of running "down the main street?"

This question will be raised with increasing frequency during the next three years when some 800 miles of new multiple-lane, divided highways are constructed across Michigan.

"Limited access" highways will form a large part of this construction program outlined last week by Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler. These roads offer unequalled safety with divided multiple lanes, a controlled number of entrances, and bypasses around many towns and cities.

But merchants and villages depending on transients for much of their business are already beginning to voice fears that a by-pass would endanger their economic structure.

Fears may be unfounded. While Michigan's limited access highway program is still in its infancy, (there are 169 miles of fully limited or controlled highways in the state) other areas have made exhaustive studies on towns bypassed by major routes.

A survey made by the United States Chamber of Commerce suggests a town is improved in every way by having a highway routed around it rather than down the main street. Reports from California and Texas confirm the results.

Highway Department experts point out that no new businesses can be built along roads having limited access. Motorists must turn off at some point to eat, find lodging and purchase gasoline.

An example of the added boom to business recently occurred in Sturgis when the Indiana Turnpike opened just south of the Michigan state line. According to officials, even though Sturgis was four miles away from the turnpike, motel and hotel business increased 25% from persons who had to drive off the main highway to find lodging for the night.

Other advantages accrue to the bypassed town. The reduction of motorists and truckers who are just "driving through" should eliminate many accidents. The "home town" folks find they can once again go shopping without facing congested traffic and the long hunt for a parking place.

The picture isn't completely glowing. Several towns in Michigan are now bypassed and report differing experiences. On the one hand Parma lost 25% of its business when a highway bypassed it two years ago. On the other, Chelsea, bypassed some nine years ago, grew beyond the most optimistic hopes.

The biggest factor seems to be adjusting to the new situation. Planning ahead can ease the "shock" that accompanies any sudden change.

For example, in Chelsea merchants worked as a group. "We decided we had to become as efficient as the new highway," says Chelsea president Anton Neilson. "Everybody decorated their restaurants and stores. Then when we were looking our best, we spent $1,600 a piece for two big signs out on the highway. We told people how to find us and what they would find."

Learning through experience, the residents of Parma now have a Community Improvement Group. To back up their plans they have the friendly advice of the Consumers Power Community Development Department headed by James Coates.

The highway of the future will probably by-pass many towns. Experts advise: if it's your town, the time to start planning is now.

Michigan's one-man grand jury may come in for some close scrutiny from the present state Legislature. Latest to urge repeal of the controversial statute vesting grand jury power in one man is Attorney General Thomas M. Kavanagh.

"The system itself is contrary to the original principles of justice in this country," Kavanagh recently told the state Legislature. "It concentrates in a single judge more power than was intended when we turned to English common law and the Bill of Rights as a foundation for our system."

Primary purpose of any grand jury is to obtain evidence and testimony that cannot be compiled under normal courtroom procedures.

The key to success lies in the power to grant immunity against prosecution to persons who testify. In many instances when it is hard to obtain evidence, a grand jury is the only means of reaching the "top men." Persons who criminally involved only in a minor way can be granted immunity or "traded off" so that a strong case can be built against major offenders.

Michigan law provides for both the one-man grand jury and also a panel of 23 citizens to sit as a grand jury. However, only the former is given the power to grant immunity. Kavanagh suggests that the immunity power be vested in the multiple-man grand jury. He hopes that a system patterned after federal court procedures can be established. This would call for a citizens' panel to sit regularly four times each year.

At present, the one-man grand jury is only called in special cases. This results in a great deal of publicity for the particular case.

Kavanagh stresses that he is not critical of grand jurors now sitting to hear cases in Wayne and Macomb Counties. Abuses were abundant in the past, but he asserts that present judges are working "skillfully and impartially."

"It's the system that is wrong," he explains.

ELECTRICITY--AND YOU

You use electricity in increasing amounts to do the monotonous, the tiresome, the time-consuming household tasks. It makes life more enjoyable. But there is a problem related to this growing trend.

4 out of 5 homes, including the newest, have electrical systems incapable of supplying all the electricity needed for daily living. The solution is wiring modernization—fortunately, neither a costly nor an involved process. Benefits: a home that operates smoothly and effortlessly because electricity becomes available in efficient abundance. And a house that has greater re-sale value too.

There are electrical contractors especially well qualified to do this sort of work, the HOUSEPOWER Services Contractors. They tailor the mechanics of electrical distribution to your individual needs and living habits.

You seek plenty of horsepower in your car for maximum comfort, convenience and safety. For the same reasons you need plenty of HOUSEPOWER in your home.

HOUSEPOWER is a simple, one-word way to say : : :
plenty of electricity in the home, wherever and whenever needed, now and in the future

Any HOUSEPOWER Services Contractor will be glad to survey your home's electrical needs with you. The service costs nothing—doesn't obligate you.

Tile Drainage Can Pay Big Dividends

Money invested in tile drainage can pay off better than three to one, according to agricultural economists, relates Don R. Kebler, assistant county agricultural agent.

Returns from drainage investment, Kebler says, come from a combination of improved drainage, use of more fertilizer and production of higher value crops. Crop yields have been increased as much as 20 to 100 per cent by installing good tile drainage.

Investment in a complete tiling system in the Saginaw-Thumb level land area, for example, will range from $80 to $150 per acre. And recent studies show that tiling investments have been paid off in six or seven years from the increased returns resulting from higher crop yields.

In some cases, it may be more profitable to invest in tile drainage than to purchase feed for extra dairy cattle. Tiling 80 acres of poorly drained crop land could make it possible to keep more cows on a 150-acre dairy farm in southern Michigan. This would raise the net income about $1,900 for tile investment, eight more cows, additional housing and equipment.

Buying feed for these cows instead of growing it would add only an estimated $500 to net income.

Agent Offers Tips For Baking Bread

There's a right way to do everything, even making and baking quick breads. This right way may solve some of your problems, suggests Mrs. Francis T. Clark, county home demonstration agent.

For example, if your quick breads seem to lump up in the center it may be due to overmixing which causes toughness. It may also be due to baking at incorrect temperatures. If the oven is too hot, the sides and edges of the loaf will bake too soon and the unbaked portion will expand upward in a hump.

If your muffins are tough and full of tunnels, chances are you have overmixed the batter. Muffin batter should be stirred gently and only enough to moisten the dry ingredients, cautions Mrs. Clark. When it is properly mixed, muffin batter should appear rough or a little lumpy, not smooth. When you spoon the batter into the muffin tins, handle it as little as possible.

If muffins and biscuits have tiny brown spots in the crumb and crust, it may be caused by incomplete blending of the soda or baking powder with the flour. The tiny bits of leavening will appear as the brown spots.

Perhaps you think your biscuits are not flaky enough. Then consider your shortening, advises Mrs. Clark. Solid shortening ought not be allowed to melt during mixing if biscuits are to be flaky. For this reason you might be better off to use knives or a pastry blender to cut in solid fat than to use your fingers, especially if your fingers are warm. Then, too, light kneading and folding of the biscuit dough for several minutes before rolling and cutting tends to develop sheets or layers in the crumb of the baked biscuit or roll.

entering the home of John Hendrickson in Akron Township Feb. 1.

Judge Quinn set his bond at $500 and ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Sentence will be passed Feb. 23.

Vivian Wesley pleaded not guilty when arraigned for non-support. His bond was continued and date of trial is to be set.

Bud McKerring, Inc. of Flint was granted a default judgment against Ben F. Hudson of $829.15 plus costs of $22.

Domestic Cases

Bert Burkel of Caro was ordered to pay a $58 hospital bill while his divorce from Delores Burkel is pending.

Sarah Jane Smith of Caro was granted a divorce from Roland A. Smith of Caro. Mrs. Smith was granted custody of a minor child and alimony was set at $15 weekly.

Leroy Ford was brought from Rochester for failure to pay alimony. He was found guilty of contempt. His sentence was suspended when the court learned that he had given the money to his present wife to make payment. The present Mrs. Ford admitted that she failed to send the money from his pay check.

Judge Quinn said for this reason he would not jail the defendant, but warned that if he was brought before the court again that a jail term was in prospect.

He ordered Mr. Ford to make $5 weekly payments on the back alimony and regular payments of the weekly amount due.
