Wheat Not Hurt by Correct Fertilizer

Fertilizer damage to seed doesn't hurt wheat yields at rates below 270 pounds of plant food per acre, reports assistant county agricultural agent Don R. Kabler. Greater stooing of the plants makes up for germination loss due to fertilizer burn.
Soil scientist John Guttay planted wheat at three fertilizer levels on several Michigan State University plots around the state last fall. After harvest this summer he found the most economical rate application to be at about 135 pounds of plant food per acre.
The increased stooing with fertilizer rates heavier than 270 pounds of plant food failed to make up for the increased germination. If the heavier fertilizer applications were made to the side of the seed row, the result was severe lodging.
So, on the basis of only one year's results, it appears that planting wheat in contact with the optimum fertilizer rate is still the most practical method.
Heavier applications with the seed produces seed damage greater than the stooing will make up for. Heavy application in a band beside the seed resulted in lodging to the extent that the increased yields could not be harvested.
As a result of the experiments, a maximum of 200 pounds of plant food per acre is advised.
For example if soil tests show a fertilizer ratio of 1-2-2 is required on your soil, to get 200 pounds of plant food you might use a 10-20-20 analysis. One hundred pounds of 10-20-20 would make 50 pounds of plant food, so a 400 pounds per acre application rate would give you the 200 pounds of plant food per acre suggested by Guttay.
Because of last fall's dry conditions, Guttay thinks his experiment shows the maximum amount of germination damage, so if fertilizer-with-seed planting was going to show a loss, last fall's conditions would have produced them.
The damage done to the seed does not affect the seeds that germinate; if the seed grows at all, it is all right; if it is damaged, it doesn't grow.
Calling a guess a prophecy doesn't increase its value.
A good reputation, like good health, is never fully appreciated until it is lost.

BULEN TALKS Cars

WATCH THAT DIP STICK!

Most of us let the garageman take out the dip stick from the engine block, wipe it off and put it back in again to check the oil level. It's a messy job and an easy way to mark up a clean white shirt.

I usually "leave it to George" too, but in looking over a used car, the oil on the dip stick and the dip stick itself can tell you a lot about what the car looks like inside.

Here's one simple test that's effective; wipe the oil off the dip stick (after getting your shirt sleeves out of the way) and notice if the surface of the stick is pock-marked or etched on the part that is normally below the surface of the oil.

If it is, that's a sign of acid. Most fuels contain a trace of acid and if the engine is running cold, or a cylinder is missing, unburned fuel, with this acid, makes its way into the crankcase and will eventually attack polished steel surfaces, such as the crankshaft journals, the cams, the links and pins in the timing chain, and, of course, the dip stick.

And while we're about it, this is the time to point out the importance of changing oil frequently. This acid action against the car's vital insides is the penalty of letting old oil work its worst against your engine.

These are some of the simple tests anyone can perform when shopping around for a used car. Before a car comes on to our lot, of course, trained people make sure that it's a good buy for the owner to whom we'll pass it on.

But while you're shopping around, we want you to satisfy yourself about the car you're looking at. Look it over, have the kids jump up and down on the seats if you want, then take it out for a test drive.

Trucks anyone? This is the truck season, and, we have new trucks on hand, no Used Trucks in stock. So, if you've been considering the purchase of a new unit, let us figure with you. You may be surprised at how little it will cost. And, we know you'll like Chevrolet. There are over 700,000 more Chevrolet Trucks on the roads of the United States today than our nearest competitor, according to latest available registrations. Let us show you why.

William Periso Sr. Dies In Saginaw

William Periso Sr. died Thursday, Aug. 8, at Veterans Memorial Hospital in Saginaw, where he had been a patient for three months. He had been in ill health the past three years.

Mr. Periso was born in Tyre, April 23, 1890. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Periso. He married Miss Flora Lintner in Cass City April 13, 1920. Following their marriage, they made their home in this community, where he lived until his death. He served with the Army in the Infantry during World War I.

Surviving are: his wife; seven sons, Ernie of Pontiac and Jadis, William Jr., Charles, Raymond and Edward, all of Deford; four daughters, Mrs. Myron Mays of Detroit, Mrs. William Voliovek of Richmond and the Misses Clara and Eva Mae Periso, both of Deford; two sisters, Mrs. Laura Osentoski of Uby and Mrs. Jack Whyman of Port Huron, and 17 grandchildren.

Rosary devotions were held Sunday evening at Little's Funeral Home with prayer services at 10 a. m. Monday. Rev. I. J. Mikulski officiated. Committal services were under the auspices of the Tri-county Post No. 507, American Legion, and burial was in Novesta Cemetery.

Actions speak louder than words—but not so often.

A little praise goes a long way, but it's the little morsel of scandal that really travels.

The world would be better off if there were fewer busy-bodies and more bodies busy.

Caution is thrown to the wind when it comes to advancing schemes to risk the other fellow's money.

Hot weather politics in this off-year is creating as much stir this early in the season as the urgent kind of campaigning when an election is a few months away.

Republicans are uncertain what political direction they took with House Speaker George M. Van Peursem.

Legislators thought it would be a good idea to send him on a speaking tour around the state to describe the virtues and accomplishments of the House and Senate.

The key word is money. Gov. Williams, contending that people want to pay more for more services and to handle the increased population load of existing services, continues to seek higher budgets.

Republicans, insisting the people want less spending and lower taxes, want to maintain present services, take care of the increased loads and keep the budgets down.

Van Peursem insisted when he started the tour in mid-July that he wanted only to work with the legislature; that he was not seeking a higher office.

Reports indicate he has been well-received around the state and that Republicans look to him as a candidate for governor in 1958 or 1959.

He is the second legislator to cast covetous eyes on the governor's chair for his party.

The other, who said "I might be a candidate," is Rep. George Sallade (R-Ann Arbor), who in two two-year terms in the house has made his presence felt as a leader of the "Young Turks," a group of young members who rebel against the majority occasionally.

Van Peursem is a young lawyer who cut his teeth in the legislature as chairman of the house labor committee, which started the campaign against Gov. Williams two years ago.

From this committee came the charge that Williams' tax proposals were frightening industries out of Michigan.

The campaign was revived last spring and Democrats are quoted by the experts as admitting it hurt Williams and the Democrats politically.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

Five Years Ago
After several weeks of remodeling and repairing, Keith McConkey announced this week that the doors of the McConkey Jewelry Store will be open to the public at the new location Friday and Saturday.

John Adam Benkelman, 96, well-known Cass City businessman and civic leader, died Friday afternoon. He had been in failing health for almost a year.

Russell Kullberg, biology and general science teacher at Cass City School, has resigned to accept a position teaching general science in the Whittier School in Flint.

Jean O'Rourke exhibited the Grand Champion sheep in the 4-H Livestock Show at the homecoming Thursday. Beatrice Leslie's Angus steer was the Grand Champion beef animal.

Ten Years Ago
Mr. and Mrs. John Clark of Detroit will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday with open house at their home.

Billy Zinnecker exhibited the grand prize steer, an Aberdeen Angus, at the fourth annual 4-H Beef Cattle show in Cass City Saturday. Among the other winners were Shirley Loomis, first place Hereford, and Jim Turner, first and second place Shorthorn.

The C & D softball team won the Cass City Recreational Softball League title Monday night by defeating Beulah 7-3 for its 12th consecutive win.

Mrs. Walter Schell fell and broke her right arm while down town shopping Saturday. Mrs. J. D. Brooker sustained a broken left arm in a fall at her home and four little girls were treated for broken arms at one of the local hospitals last week.

Twenty-five Years Ago
Governor Wilbur M. Brucker dedicated the new receiving hospital at the Michigan Farm Colony for Epileptics Thursday in services held at Murray Hall, the community center at Wahjamega.

The management of the Caro fair has invited the eighth grade honor students from each township in Tuscola County to be their guests for one day at the fair. Those from this area who will attend are: Marjorie Schwieger and Harold Crawford, Elkland; Isabel Hendrick and Norman Silvernail, Elmwood; Eva Hiser and Erwin Hellatz, Novesta, and Weltha Balch and Milton Keilitz, Ellington.

Plans are being completed for the fourth annual Shabbona homecoming celebration to be held Aug. 20.

A dramatic trial, "Who Killed Earl Wright," will be enacted at the M. E. Church in Cass City Sunday evening. It is a reproduction of part of an actual trial of a young man in Iowa for the murder of his best friend while intoxicated. Included in the cast are: Fred Bigelow, Lyle Koepfgen, Donald Schenck, Mrs. W. E. Curtis, Mrs. A. A. Ricker, Cecil Brown, Earl W. Douglas, Bruce Brown, Mrs. Earl Douglas and Phyllis Lenzner.

Jonathan Whale Dies After Long Illness
Funeral services for Jonathan A. Whale, 84, who died Thursday at his home following a long illness, were held Sunday at two p. m. in the Douglas Funeral Home. Rev. Ernest Robinson officiated and burial was in Novesta Cemetery.

Son of the late John and Isabel Whale, he was born in Wellington Township, Ont., Sept. 1, 1872. He came to the Cass City area when 21 years old and married Miss Lillian Sweet at Caro March 11, 1901.

Surviving are his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Edna Bushong of Birmingham; five grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren, and a brother, A. B. Whale of Detroit. A daughter, Mrs. Inez Geister, preceded him in death.

Committal services in Novesta Cemetery were in charge of Decker Masonic Lodge.

Keep Carpets Clean For Longer Wear

If rugs and carpets are to wear well and stay attractive, they must be kept clean. Dirt on the surface dulls the color of the rug; embedded grit wears and cuts the fibers.

Damage from clothes moths and carpet beetles is less likely to happen when rugs are kept clean, cautions Mrs. Frances T. Clark.

county home demonstration agent. The time to spray rugs against these insects is after they have been thoroughly cleaned.

If you vacuum the traffic lanes daily, you will add years to the life of your rug. A vacuuming will pick up much of the soil before it works down and becomes embedded in the fibers. Less frequently, give the rugs longer, more thorough vacuuming.

Anything spilled on the rug should be removed at once. Blot up as much as possible with a soft cloth or absorbent tissue. Then sponge the area with a soft cloth wrung out of clear water. Or, perhaps you will need to use a mixture of a teaspoon mild synthetic detergent to one cup lukewarm water. Use a circular motion, beginning at the outer edge and working in. Blot up the solution and rinse with clear water. Be sure the rug is free of cleaning agent and that it isn't soaked. Water can damage the backing on the rug and it invites mildew.

Water should not be used at all on twist broadloom rugs; it takes out the twist, says Mrs. Clark.

Remove grease spots with a grease solvent or "cleaning fluid". But use cautiously if the rug has a rubber backing, because the fluid may dissolve the rubber.

Surface soil can be removed from rugs with an absorbent cleaner or shampoo, but such home cleaning does not remove embedded soil. Professional cleaners today are equipped to clean rugs thoroughly at the plant or to do on-location jobs for most wall-to-wall carpeting.

Conscience soon plays out if one expects it to work overtime.

Start Rebuilding Soil Now, Says Tuscola Agent

A soil rebuilding job is badly needed on a lot of Tuscola County farm land after all the washing and leaching we've had from the unusually heavy rains in July, reports assistant county agricultural agent Don R. Kebler.

Repair of damaged soil is going to take a little time but the sooner you start the sooner you'll have crop yields back to normal. You can start that job now by putting in a green manure crop.

Either clover or rye seeded this summer and plowed down next spring will give you a good start to improve tilth on damaged land.

If you plan to seed any of the damaged fields to winter wheat, you can add some of the organic matter by applying barnyard manure. This will also help develop better tilth.

Plant food, especially potash, may have been leached by the rains. It's a good idea to test the soil on damaged fields and replace the needed elements before the next crop is planted. That means if it's going into wheat you'll need to get those samples in soon.

Storms like these can also teach a good lesson about what should be done to protect land from such damage, says Kebler. This might be the time to take inventory and see what conservation practices you need so costly losses like this won't happen again.

The damage can point up the weak-spots in your drainage system. It will show where tile, ditches or drains need repair and where you may need more of these facilities to handle large amounts of water. Much of the damage from rain this year came because drainage systems couldn't handle the load.

On sloping land the damage will show where practices to slow run-off are needed. For example you can see where you should have a sod waterway. August is a good time to get that seeded.

By checking now you can plan ahead on which fields will need to be planted to the contour or in strips next spring. You may also want to talk to some of your neighbors about where wooded watersheds should be planted to protect the whole area from gushing water.

Minimum tillage at all times will go a long way to protect soil tilth during such heavy rains.

An optimist has the ability to spot the silver lining on the other fellow's cloud.
