Someone has estimated the average driver wastes, just throws away uselessly, 34 gallons of gasoline a year, enough to keep a car on the road for a month or six weeks. Studies over a number of years have shown that motorists are averaging 18 miles to the gallon when they should be getting 19. Silly driving habits, we might as well be blunt about it, are mainly to blame. There are so many "rules for drivers" that one person can't possibly keep them all in his head. But these six rules come from the head of

> According to Bob Maddex, ex-Michigan State University, that's Mr. and Mrs. James Britt and the experience some Michigan heated air.

One of the most important advantages of this harvesting and ear dropping.

after October 15, a bushel per Mr. and Mrs. Jack Leitch and acre will be lost, so at least 7 a 60-bushel crop this would be a The Grant WSCS was invited saving of slightly over 4 bushels Two carloads of young people William West and son William of to hear Miss Myrtle Smith tell per acre, worth about $4.50. The 60 bushels.

If you're not sure you would like heated air drying in the long run, you might give it a try this fall by hiring a custom operator. Some farmers who own dryers and corn combines have been doing the work at about the cost of owning and running your own rig. If you have a small acreage of corn, hiring a custom operator may be the cheapest every year.

If you are planning to feed your corn and want to use a dryer, dry the ear corn with unheated air. This system takes less investment and has lower operating costs. Total cost of ear corn drying will run around 3 to 4 cents a bushel However, ear corn drying doesn't work out well if you plan to sell corn in winter or can't depend on fall temperatures to stay warm enough to get the job done on time. With feed corn you can remove enough water so it won't spoil during the winter and then finish the drying in the spring when the air warms

Some other advantages of drying with either method are: better working conditions because the crop can be harvested before fall rains begin; more acres can be handled with the same number of men and one set of machinery; machines operate better when corn is at 26 to 28 per cent moisture than when it is below 22 per cent.

Farmers can expect hog prices during the first half of next year to average at least as high as they were during the same period this year, say Michigan State University farm econo-

Editor's Note: This is the third in the series of articles about Edith Gwilliam's trip to Florida. By Edith Gwilliam

The next day we drove to Lake Wales and Winter Haven where we enjoyed the Cypress Gardens.

The Sanctuary and Singing Tower are located at Mountain Lake, near Lake Wales. It has 48 acres, situated on the highest spot in Florida, 324 feet above sea level. The Sanctuary is primarily for humans-its motto by John Burroughs describes it: "I came here to find myself, it is so easy to get lost in the world.' The world famous Daytona Beach was a highlight of our stay in Florida. The beach is 24 miles long and you can drive along it for 17 miles, as the sand packs solid when wet.

All accommodations motels for miles along the beach and you can drive your car right down to the water while you go in for a swim or sun bathe. We drove to Silver Springs on our return journey from Daytona. Among the sights were Ross "Reptile Institute", Village and Seminole Indian
