Thousands Expected At Nativity Pageant

First Sugar Beet Payment Set At $9 Per Ton

Gilbert Smith, manager of the Michigan Sugar Company plant in Caro, announced this week that the first payment to growers served by the plant has been distributed.

The first payment this year will be $9 per ton as compared to $10.25 per ton last year. However, Mr. Smith points out, this year's yield will be the second highest in the history of the area covered by the plant, averaging 13 tons to the acre. This figure represents an increase of 1.35 tons to the acre over last year's average of 11.65.

Total gross payment to farmers on the first payment is $1,082,281. From this amount a total of $494,308 will be deducted for advances made for harvesting seed and other expenses of growing beets. A net total of $587,972 will be distributed.

A total of 120,254 tons were handled at the Caro plant, Smith said.

This is the first of three payments to farmers. A secondary payment will be made in April, with a final clean-up payment scheduled in September, 1958.

Sugar beet payments are made under a participating contract in which growers and processors share in the net return for sugar and by-products, pulp and molasses, over a sales period from Oct. 1, 1957, to Sept. 30, 1958.

With a cast of nearly 180 persons and the cooperation of hundreds more in the village, the Cass City Nativity Pageant group held its final rehearsal Wednesday, preparing for the two scheduled performances Saturday and Sunday.

Much of the work has been done. On tape is the narration and the music that makes the pageant distinctive. All of the costumes have been made and, of course, the Bethlehem scene has been erected for several weeks.

Changes have been made in the lighting and sound system to assure that the tremendous crowd expected will be able to hear the entire performance.

In the featured role of Mary this year will be Barbara Irner, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Irner.

Joseph will be played by William Wisenbaugh. The Three Wise Men are Bernard Frelburger, Robert Schuckert and Forrest Walpole. Shepherds include James Milligan, Walter Goodall, Tommy Craig, Robert Walpole, Werner Schulz, Jimmie Champion and Sam Champion.

Playing the innkeeper will be Richard Eria. Returning again as the angel is Mrs. H. O. Paul.

Handling the important narration again is Jack Esau.

Pageant authorities announced that there will be a limited number of special parking permits for the aged, crippled or incapacitated available for each night of the Nativity Pageant.

Those who qualify are asked to pick up a permit at the Cass City Municipal Building before Saturday noon.

The first scene of the play shows Joseph and Mary traveling towards Bethlehem. The second scene shows that there is no room in the inn.

Scene three depicts the birth of Christ while scene four shows the star over the manger and the angel speaking about the new Babe.

Succeeding scenes show the shepherds coming to worship Christ and returning to their flocks and the story of the Three Wise Men following the star to bring gifts to the Christ Child.

All of the scenes are highlighted with appropriate music by the Cass City Christmas Choir.

The entire pageant was staged under the sponsorship of the Cass City Area Pageant Association. General chairman was James Wallace.

Producer and director of the show was Mrs. James Bauer. The important music portion of the pageant was handled by Roger Parrish, music director and organist; John Sommers, choir director, and Ralph Dorney, audio director.

The complete cast and names of persons who helped produce or take part in the pageant are listed elsewhere in today's Chronicle.

Authorities for the Elkland Township Community Chest announced this week that a total of $3,400 has been collected in the township drive for funds that started Nov. 12. A total of $6,000 is needed to reach the goal set by authorities.

Persons in charge estimate that about two-thirds of the solicitors have turned in reports. On the basis of present receipts, it is likely that the drive will fall a little short of its quota this year.

Supervisors Okay Sewage Contract in Monday's Session

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors approved an agreement with the village of Caro to handle sewage disposal for the Tuscola County Infirmary, now under construction. The action was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the board held Monday at the courthouse in Caro. The agreement will become effective when the prosecuting attorney approves it.

Supervisors took the action because Caro's system is better than the private disposal system originally planned, while the cost is expected to be very little more.

John B. McIntyre, chairman of the board, appointed Supervisors Shuford Kirk, Charles Woodcock and Laverne Draper to a committee to receive bids for the sewer work.

In another action concerning the new facility, Supervisors granted a right-of-way to Consumers Power Co. across the new hospital's land.

After hearing a report concerning the Seventh District of the State Association of Supervisors, the board approved Tuscola County's participation in a new legislative committee. The committee will have seven members, one from each county, and will meet between each quarterly meeting of the association.

Shuford Kirk was appointed to represent the county at the meetings. He was voted mileage and per diem for the special meetings. The board also approved $10 for expenses of the committee. Each county participating is expected to grant an equal amount.

Other Business

Future of Community Club Still in Doubt

Fifty-five persons attended the December meeting of the Cass City Community Club Tuesday evening at Cass City High School. The meeting had been advertised as the one to decide the future status of the club in the village.

However, no decision was reached by the members present. Instead, a committee was appointed, after considerable discussion, to investigate all possibilities of disbanded or continuing the organization. Meeting in January will be Fred Auten, M. B. Auten, Luke Tuckey, Jack Esau and John Haire. The men were appointed by President Eli Hoies, who will serve as chairman of the group. They are expected to discuss the club's future early in January.

After several persons expressed the belief that there was no longer any use continuing the club and others said that they would like to see it continued, Fred Pinney made the suggestion that was finally adopted.

He recalled the original purpose of the club was for farmers and businessmen to have an opportunity to meet together. "Perhaps this purpose is outmoded," he continued, "but there may be another purpose that the club can adopt that will fill the void."

Mr. Pinney said that he felt the club should not be abandoned until careful consideration of all facets of the problem had been explored. "After that is done,"

A resolution passed by the Cass City Village Council at a special meeting Thursday, Dec. 5, will eventually result in parallel parking in the village.

The move followed a meeting with L. J. Mikulich, district traffic engineer of the State Highway Department, and John Gee, a member of the highway department from Caro.

The decision to change to parallel parking was caused by the position of the department in regards to State and Federal aid. The representatives said that no money would be allotted to Cass City for improvement until the change in parking was made.

The village has requested State and Federal money for widening and curb and gutter for the parts of Main Street that do not now have these improvements.

To become eligible for the needed money, trustees passed a resolution saying that parking would be changed.

Cass City is one of the remaining few communities where angle parking is still allowed. The switch has been delayed for many years.

The same situation faced the council a few years ago when Main Street was resurfaced. At that time a compromise agreement was reached when the State agreed to furnish funds if the angle of parking was changed so that the degree of the angle was lessened.

However, at the Thursday meeting, representatives of the State were adamant and the council passed the parallel parking resolution.

There will be no immediate change in parking in Cass City. It is not likely that any work will be done on Main Street until 1959, The State stipulated only that the change must be made before work begins.

Parallel parking will accentuate the parking problem in the village as several spaces will be lost when the change occurs.

It is highly probable that parking meters for the village will be reviewed again due to the loss of parking space.

The council seriously discussed Concluded on page 10

Apply Now for New Farm Corn Acreage Allotment

Any producer who intends to plant corn in 1958 on a farm where there was no corn acreage during the years 1955, 1956 or 1957 must apply for a corn allotment if he desires price support or if he wants to participate in any other phase of the Soil Bank program other than the Acreage Reserve program for corn in 1958.

Charles B. Eckfeld, county office manager of the Tuscola County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, said today.

Marketing quotas do not apply to corn, the county office manager explained. However, under the present program, the production of corn in 1958 on a farm which has no corn acreage allotment would make the corn produced on such farm ineligible for price support in 1958 as well as affect his participation in the Soil Bank program.

Application forms for a corn allotment are available at the Tuscola County ASC office. January 31, 1958, is the last day such applications may be filed.

Frosty Fruit Salad Offers Ideal Fare For Light Dessert

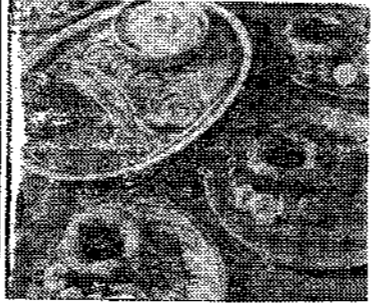

LIGHT, frosty fruit salads have many wonderful uses, especially during warmer weather. They're perfect for that salad-dessert course in one, but they do well with meat or cheese finger sandwiches for lunch, as a meal-in-one.

To add to your reputation, here are two recipes which have lightness in the form of whipped instant non-fat dry milk and texture in the way of fruits, pecans and celery.

Cherry-Banana Chiffon Salads
(Serves 8)

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot pineapple juice
2 medium-sized bananas, sliced
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup maraschino cherries, chopped
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped pecans
½ cup mayonnaise
2½ cups whipped instant milk crystals

Dissolve gelatin, pineapple juice. Chill until thickened. Brush bananas with lemon juice. Add bananas, cherries, celery, pecans and mayonnaise to gelatin mixture. Blend. Mix with whipped instant milk. Spoon into individual ring mold.

Cherry-Banana salads made by molding fruit and whipped dry milk crystals are attractive but not nearly so caloric as those made with whipped cream. Fluted banana slices, maraschino cherries and curly endive make an attractive garnish.

Chill until firm, unmold and garnish with salad greens.

To make whipped instant non-fat dry milk crystals, mix ½ cup of the crystals with ½ cup ice water. Whip for 3 to 4 minutes until soft peaks form. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice and continue beating 3 to 4 minutes longer until stiff peaks form.

Sugar Plum Salad
(Serves 8)

1 large can plums
1 package orange-flavored gelatin
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ cup mayonnaise
2½ cups whipped instant milk crystals

Drain plums; reserve 1 cup syrup. Heat syrup to boiling point and add gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Pit plums and cut in half. Add plums, celery, walnuts, lemon rind and mayonnaise to gelatin. Blend and fold in whipped milk. Spoon into 1½ quart mold. Chill until firm and then unmold on greens.

Barbecue Sauces Add Zesty Touch

Meat balls can become party fare if you cook them in a zesty barbecue sauce. This sauce is tangy with horseradish, chili powder and mustard plus extras like celery seed and ripe olives to make it extra good.

This main dish when rounded out with scalloped potatoes, green salad and crusty hot garlic bread or rolls gives an appetizing meal. Serve fresh fruit, berries or melon for dessert.

Barbecued Meat Balls
(Serves 6-8)

Sauce:
1 No. 2½ size can tomatoes
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon celery seed
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish sauce
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1 cup chopped ripe olives

Meat Balls:
1 egg
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 cup milk
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons cooking oil

To make the sauce, heat tomatoes, then chop or mash them. Add all remaining ingredients except olives and simmer while browning meat balls.

To make the meat balls, beat egg slightly. Add crumbs, milk, salt, pepper and onion and let stand for 2 minutes. Blend in beef. Shape into small balls. Brown them in oil. Add to sauce and let simmer for about 30 minutes. Cut olives into large pieces and stir into sauce a few minutes before serving.

BULEN TALKS Cars

WE CAN HAVE IT BOTH WAYS!

You offer to take in any car as a trade-in, and yet you claim that your used cars are only of the very best quality. How about that? You can't have it both ways!

The customer who said that to me a few days ago was really laying it on the line. And I'll admit the two claims seem contradictory. But they aren't—when you know the rest of the story.

You see, we are "having it both ways" in another sense, for we're not only sellers of cars; we're buyers, too—buyers of the cars we take in as trade-ins.

Naturally, we have to know cars pretty well, to buy them as well as sell them. But we don't turn around and try to sell all these used cars back to the public. Instead, we pick out only the cream of the used car crop. And they're the ones we put on our used car lot—after our mechanics have gone over them thoroughly, made the necessary repairs and satisfied themselves—and us—that the cars are in tip-top condition.

The rest of the cars—the beat-up jalopies that will spell grief for anyone who buys one of them—are the ones we get rid of by selling to firms that handle nothing but used cars or just junking them. (That, incidentally, is how used car dealers get the great majority of their cars—by buying trade-ins that the new car dealers don't want.)

So you see we CAN guarantee the tip-top condition of every one of the used cars we offer publicly.

And yet we CAN offer a liberal allowance for any used car traded in on a new Chevy or Olds.

So if it's a car you want—either this year's Chevs or Oldsmobiles, or a good, reliable used car, drop around and see us. You'll be glad you did.

I have told Stu Atwell, Kelley and Greenlee that we won't refuse any reasonable offer for one of our "OK Used Cars." Frankly once again, WE HAVE TOO MANY with more coming in all the time on our popular 1958 CHEVROLETS AND OLDSMOBILES. So, we have to move them which is all to your advantage. Make an offer. We won't refuse if we can possibly come out ahead of the Sheriff.

Suggestion: We have nearly a dozen 1955 Chevrolets. This was one of our greatest models. If you want a good car see them. Both V-8's and 6's for your selection.

We are open until 9:00 p. m. evenings except Thursday for your convenience. Won't you come in?

Mrs. Peter Kessler

In a nine o'clock nuptial High Mass Saturday, Nov. 30, at the St. Pancratius Church, Miss Hedy Klopp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Klopp of Cass City, became the bride of Peter J. Kessler of Detroit. Rev. I. J. Mikulski officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kessler Sr. of Cass City are the groom's parents.

The main altar of the church was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and white mums. Kenny Kessler served at Mass for his brother, assisted by Johnny Herhalt. Mrs. Clara Toohy of Gagetown was soloist.

Miss Frances Kessler of Detroit, the groom's sister, was maid of honor. Her ballerina-length gown was of pale blue lace and she wore a light blue velvet cap. Her bouquet was of pink carnations.

Alex Kessler Jr. of Utica, brother of the groom, was best man.

Michigan Mirror News in Brief

Republicans will fight to keep their last elective stronghold, the Michigan legislature.

A special committee has been set up to concentrate on a 1958 campaign in the "swing" districts, those where the Democratic-Republican vote was 20 per cent apart, or less.

Main concentration will be to keep the 59 Republican House seats. Democrats now have 51, enough to block two-thirds votes on some major issues.

Republicans are less fearful that the Democrats will take the Senate, where they hold a 23 to 11 edge.

The committee, however, has singled out the 18th district of Senator John B. Swainson (D-Detroit), minority leader, for special attention along with other close Detroit districts.

Superimposed over the contests is the automatic vote in 1958 on a proposal to call a constitutional convention.

Technically, a convention could re-write the entire state constitution — last re-written in 1908 — and upset the 1952 reapportionment of the legislature now in effect.

Republicans contend that present reapportionment plans create "a balanced legislature", basing House membership on population of the state and the Senate on geographical areas.

Democrats contend that the plan was devised especially to keep the House in rural Republican hands. They would like to change this. GOP leaders fear a new plan would permit Wayne and Oakland counties to control the entire state.

The issue has split the parties with Republicans opposed to a convention which could upset present apportionment; Democrats favoring a convention for the same reason.

Under present law, the convention membership has three members from each senatorial district. This maintains the ratio of senatorial votes each party has in the legislature.

Universities and colleges, facing their biggest financial crisis in years, will go before the legislature again with a plan to finance construction with student fees.

The fees were increased 10 per cent last year at legislative insistence but a last-minute maneuver killed a plan to use the money for bond issues to finance new buildings.

Financial experts in Lansing predict the plan will again clash head-on with a Republican pledge to hold the line on spending for another year to wait for completion of two tax studies.

Another attempt will be made to tag the state's farm products with a "seal of quality" or a "Michigan's Best" label this year.

Most major farm groups already have supported the idea, which has been offered annually since 1949.

It will be part of a big farm program to be presented to the 1958 legislature, following a series of conferences with agricultural leaders.

Controversy from a number of new sources is worrying Democrats as 1957 nears its end.

Gov. Williams replaced the state labor commissioner, John Reid, with a UAW official from Lansing, Russell White, Reid immediately charged the UAW forced his resignation.

He charged that the union wanted to use the department to harass employers. Two weeks after replacing Reid and a week after Reid made his charges, Williams still had not answered them.

Still another controversy involves a letter written by Alfred Pitt, the governor's legal advisor, to the state parole board asking that Pete Mahoney, prison inmate, be released.

The letter argued that Mahoney, sentenced for armed robbery, was given a stiff term—25 to 40 years—because officials felt he knew something about the murder of former State Senator Warren G. Hooper.

Prof. John G. Childs, of Teachers' College, Columbia University, received the Wayne State University Education Award at public ceremonies on Wayne's fourth annual Education Day, Nov. 14.

SHORT STORY

Cowardly Angel

By B. O. McAfee

VERNIE KING was grateful for the early morning rain drizzling against her face, as she hurried down Main Street. The trickling raindrops camouflaged her tears. It was silly to cry. She and Don had often quarreled before about her job at the dress shop—but somehow, this was different. Never, in their eighteen months of marriage, had Don slammed out of the house as he did last night.

3-Minute Fiction

returning long after she'd gone to bed without a word of explanation. This morning being Saturday, Don didn't have to work, but he always used to get up and have breakfast with her, just because they enjoyed each other's company. Not so, today. He pretended to be sound asleep. Hurt and angry, Vernie dressed and decided to eat downtown.

The drug store coffee was bitter. Vernie sipped it absently, her mind reviewing last night's quarrel. It had all started because they had to decline an invitation to join the Bentley's on a weekend spree in New York.

"How do you think I felt," Don asked, "telling them we couldn't go because my wife has to work? Peg Bentley gave up a darn good job when she married Tom. She was tickled pink to stay home and—"

"Darling—" Vernie cut in, "how many times must I tell you—mine is more than just another job. It's—"

Emerald had scrawled a note on the calendar pad.

"I know—I know. It's a career!" Don said in exaggerated tones. "A golden opportunity!"

"Well, it is! Any girl would give her right arm to be junior partner. In The Emerald Ames Shoppe, Emerald's been like a mother to me—taking me along on that buying trip to Paris, encouraging my talent for fashion designing—"

"Don! That's not fair. Emerald wants to be your friend as much as mine. Why, she's down there right now slaving over the accounts just so I could be home in time to get your dinner. Poor dear, said she hasn't anyone to go home to and since I have a husband, my place is with you in the evenings. She'll probably work half the night."

"Big of her," Don said with sarcasm. Those were his last words before slamming the door and leaving Vernie in exasperated tears. The drug store clock said 8:45 when Vernie left her half-eaten breakfast and crossed the arcade to Emerald's shop. Walking through the plush-carpeted salon, she turned on the lights in her small office. Emerald had scrawled a note on the calendar pad:

"URGENT BUSINESS ON TAPE RECORDER. PLEASE EXPEDITE! BACK SOON. E.A."

Now what? thought Vernie, hanging up her coat. Her head had begun to ache and she was in no mood for business—urgent or otherwise. She wanted to phone Don and set things right between them, but she didn't quite know what to say. Hoping he'd call her, she uncovered her typewriter, adjusted the tape recorder and prepared to transcribe whatever urgent dictation Emerald had left.

"Vernie, dear—" said Emerald's calm voice. "I am selling the shop next month." Vernie's eyes widened in amazed disbelief as the tape unwound. "Your husband came to see me, last night," Emerald continued slowly. "He was terribly upset about your quarrel. We had a long heart-to-heart talk. Vernie, that's a wonderful man you married. Hang onto him!"

"This will come as a surprise to you," said Emerald, "but I, too, have a very wonderful man—or will have—as soon as I get back to Kansas and accept his proposal. For twelve long years, he's been trying to convince me that no career can make up for a happy marriage. But it took your Don to really open my eyes. Forgive me, dear, for telling you like this. I just hadn't the courage to say it all in person."

"I'm a coward," she said. Vernie leaped up and hugged her. "You're an angel!" she cried, blinking back the tears.

"She's a cowardly angel," said Don, popping into the room and hugging them both.

Stan Danosi, who coached the Hungarian Olympic fencing teams in the 1948 and 1952 competitions and who fled his native Hungary during last year's revolution, has been named fencing coach at Wayne State University.

Groups' Special Activities

The women of the Elmwood Extension group are going to omit their annual Christmas gift exchange and donate the money usually spent towards gifts for the Cass City Hospital Fund.

The women of the Moreland extension group met with their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pike to hear about the Cooperative Extension Farm and Home Development program. Mr. Quentin Ostrander, township Agricultural Agent for Denmark Township, and Mr. Don Kebler, Assistant Agricultural Agent, were guest speakers.

Children's Figures for the Holidays

I find that women with children or grandchildren are interested in making an extra something for the children's Christmas stockings; so I have collected a few ideas for popcorn or cereal figures.

Follow your recipe for popcorn balls or cereal balls, but tint the syrup with red or green food coloring. Press the mixture into greased molds, cookie cutters, or shape by hand. (Grease the hands first).

If you would like a wreath shape, use a ring mold. A star can be made in a star-shaped cookie cutter, or a Christmas tree can be made by hand shaping the popcorn into a cone shape. You can decorate the tree with small gumdrops. To do this, first heat a pan until a drop of water on it sizzles; then hold the base of the gumdrop to the pan a few seconds to melt the bottom, then stick onto the popcorn tree.

I think the children will love a cereal or popcorn snowman. To make a snowman, first make a popcorn or cereal ball. Use a large marshmallow for the head. Use two dots of chocolate for the eyes. A cinnamon candy for the nose, and a strip of red candied cherry for the mouth. Then you can use whole cherry on top of the marshmallow for a top hat. Be sure to fasten the head and hat on, using a tooth pick stuck into the ball and extending out far enough to go all the way through the marshmallow head and cherry hat.

I hope these figures will help you and your family to have a happy holiday season.

SHORT STORY

Last Chance

By Vesta M. Kelly

I NEEDED this job. I wanted it more than I'd ever wanted anything in my life before.

The ad said one o'clock. I'd come early hoping to be the first. Two men were there before me—a middle-aged, jovial man, and a younger, super-salesman type. They both looked pretty sharp. I crossed my fingers and thought, there probably goes the old ball game.

The office was hot. The clock's hands crept toward one. The receptionist came in and tilted the blinds against the sun's glare. There were several more applicants now.

The girl smiled at us and said, "Mr. Bryant has been delayed. He should be here soon. In the meantime, just make yourselves comfortable, gentlemen."

The sun touched the west windows. The heat increased. Men mopped their faces. Coats came off. By twos and threes they struck up conversations. I stayed apart. Tense. My hands shaking a little. This job was important to me. My last chance, so to speak.

I was glad that I'd splurged a little when I bought this tropic weight suit for our wedding and honeymoon three years ago. It was the kind that didn't wrinkle and wilt. I'd never worn it much up north. It looked good. My last white shirt was frayed on the collar and cuffs. It didn't show much. Jeanne had trimmed it with the scissors when she washed and ironed it. My shoes were thin on the soles, polished to look, I hoped, comfortably old and well cared for.

When we'd married three years ago, Jeanne and I had come to Miami for a honeymoon. To a small town boy and girl, Miami had seemed such a fabulous place that we'd promised ourselves to save a nest egg and come back to Miami one day to live.

We'd worked hard for two years and saved every penny. The first winter in Miami, I'd found a seasonal job. In the spring it had disappeared with the tourists. We'd gone on, every day believing that I'd surely find a job. I hadn't.

It was almost two, when a small, cool-looking man in a neat, gray tropic suit came into the office. With one keen glance, he took in every detail of the outer office. He spoke to the girl at the desk and went into the office marked president.

Several men began to struggle into their coats. The girl said, "Mr. Bryant will see you now. Who's first?"

The stout, jovial man got to his feet. Too late to put on his coat, he hung it over his arm. He came out soon, an enigmatic smile on his face. The super-salesman went in. He came back immediately, looking irritated.

The interview was crisp and businesslike. I liked Mr. Bryant. He knew his business. I relaxed a little. I knew my line. He was friendly, but no nonsense. He wanted a salesman and I knew I could sell.

After a little, he sat back in his chair and smiled.

"I think you'll do very nicely," he said, "if you can start right away."

I wanted to shout. To throw something into the air. To tell Jeanne. I said the right things, I hope. We shook hands, and he said, "There'll be details to arrange. I'll just tell the others they needn't wait."

When he came back, he said, "I knew, when I came through the outer office, that if you could sell, you were the one I was going to hire, because you were the only one with respect enough for the job to keep your coat on."

As soon as the details were arranged, I headed for a phone to call Jeanne.

I touched the two crisp five dollar bills in my pocket. Courage money, I'd called them this morning when I'd taken them out of our last forty dollars. Now, as soon as I'd called Jeanne, I was going to buy myself two new white shirts. There was no reason for Mr. Bryant to know that I couldn't have taken off my coat if I'd wanted to, because my last white shirt was split down the back.

Don't bet on the sincerity of a man's enthusiasm unless he is financially interested.

There are two sides to every story—and some people can improve several more.

One of the tricks of the oil stock promotion trade is to turn hot air into cold cash.

This job was important to me. My last chance, so to speak.

Traffic Deaths Still Less than in 1956

Up through December 5, Michigan traffic deaths this year have totaled 1,394 as compared with 1,617 in the same period of 1956, a reduction of 223 or 13.8 per cent, according to provisional figures compiled by the Michigan State Police.

While these figures are subject to readjustment downward with the receipt of delayed reports for November and the first five days of December, the reduction is well ahead of the 1957 goal to save 174 lives, or 10 per cent under the death toll of 1,747 last year.

Provisional figures for November show 129 deaths compared with 145 in the same month last year, a saving of 16.

Final figures subject only to minor revision list 136 persons killed in October, a reduction of eight, or five per cent under 144 in the same month of 1956.

Injuries totaled 4,480, also five per cent, or 234 less than 4,714 in October last year. There were 14,418 accidents, a decrease of 299, or two per cent.

The accumulated final record for the first 10 months of the year shows 1,226 persons killed and 47,540 injured in 153,401 accidents. These are reductions under last year of 15, two and three per cent, respectively.

Injury and accident figures for November and the early part of December are not yet available.

Estimated travel for the first nine months, the latest figure compiled, is 22 billion miles, an increase of four per cent over the same period a year ago. The death rate of 5.0 per 100 million miles of travel was down 18 per cent.

Forty-five American students this autumn began a year's study in Germany under the fifth annual Junior Year in Munich program which has been sponsored since 1953 by Wayne State University in cooperation with the University of Munich.

Plan to Avoid Christmas Rush

Start planning for the Christmas holidays now so you'll have time to enjoy yourself then, suggests Mrs. Frances T. Clark, County Home Demonstration Agent.

If, when the holidays come, you're busy doing last minute jobs, you may not have time to enjoy your guests, family or holiday goodies.

You can start getting ready now. Make cookies, rolls and other baked goods and put them in the freezer. Use moisture-vapor proof wrappings for freezing.

Make a list of things that need to be done. Check off items as you do them. Look at the table linens to make sure they're clean, pressed and ready to use. If you're planning on a large group be sure extra table leaves are handy and that your table pad is large enough. If you need to borrow card tables and chairs for serving, get them located so all you'll need to do is pick them up at the last minute.

Plan the menu, keeping it as simple as possible. Include salad and dessert that can be made ahead of time. Your food shopping list will be easy to make out from your menu. You'll probably want to do the main food shopping about a week ahead of time. Look over your glassware, china and silver. Make sure everything is in order for serving the foods in your menu.

Leave time for making a centerpiece. Most Christmas centerpieces can be arranged a few days ahead of time.

Include house cleaning and laundry in your plans, too. Do them ahead so there'll only be last minute picking up before company comes.

Christmas Tree Production

Long before your Christmas tree brightens your home it requires plenty of attention and care, including pruning to provide the proper shape. Growing and harvesting of these trees is a $5,000,000 industry. Michigan residents use an estimated 1,300,000 Christmas trees annually, of which about a million are grown in the state.

County 4-H'ers Take Chicago Trip

Five Tuscola County 4-H Club members chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wells, leaders in the North Vassar 4-H Club, visited Chicago during November 30-December 4, relates Bill Muller, Tuscola County 4-H Club Agent.

The five youngsters had earned their award trip in the following manner: 4-H King and Queen at the Tuscola County Fair, 4-H Achievement Booth competition, and the annual Fall 4-H Crops Show. Bonnie Turner of Akron selected as the Tuscola County 4-H Queen was awarded her trip by the Tuscola County Fair Association, Jeanette Sharp of Unionville as Achievement Booth winner was awarded her trip by W. N. Clark Canning Company, and Melvin Rupprecht of Richville and Leland Irish of Caro earned their trip from the Crops Show sponsored by Wallace & Morley Company of Bay Port.

Sponsoring the 4-H leader chaperones are the following Ford Dealers: Rademacher-Lyons of Caro, Elbers Sales of Reese, and Auten Motor Sales of Cass City. While in Chicago the group visited the Chicago Board of Trade, International Livestock Show, Union Stock Yards and Don McNeil's Breakfast Club.

The University of Michigan will offer a concentration program in music composition for students next fall.

Tuscola Dairy Herds Increase in Size

Many Tuscola County dairy farms are undergoing a revolution, according to county agricultural agent Alfred Ballweg.

Ballweg explains that much of the revolution involves changes in size and operating methods of the dairy farm. Ten to 12-cow dairy herds are rapidly disappearing, while more and more dairy farmers are milking herds of at least 30 cows. Although dairy herds of 60 to 100 cows are still few in number, they are on the increase.

Upping the size of the dairy herd multiplies the decisions the farmer has to make. He's got to cope with problems of supplying feed, maintaining herd health and high production per cow beside finding and keeping good help.

Bigger herds don't necessarily mean more net income. The extent to which net income increases with larger herds depends on how well the dairy farmer selects profitable production alternatives. One such decision that has to be made is whether to buy feed or use additional land to produce more feed for the extra cows. Sometimes, as on an actual 100-cow dairy farm recently studied by Michigan State University agricultural economists, buying roughage can be more profitable than growing it. This is likely to be the case especially if farming more land would divert attention from the dairy herd and cause average production to go down.

In making such decisions, the entire farming operation must be taken into consideration, Ballweg says.

Apply for Wool Incentive Payment

Sheep raisers are missing a bet to increase their income from the flock if they don't apply for incentive payments under the wool program, says Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent.

But to make the application for the payment, you've got to have records of all purchases and sales. Records must include name of buyer, his original signature, date of the transaction and the number and live weight of the lambs with the description "unshorn" showing. Payments are made only on lambs that have not been shorn, regardless of whether they are sold as slaughter or feeder lambs.

Lamb feeders should also keep accurate records of the length of time they have owned a specific lot of lambs. Lamb payments are made only when one feeder has owned the lambs for at least 80 days.

Ballweg says the final date for applying for 1957-1958 marketings is April 30, 1958. But applications may be submitted to the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office any time before that date. The office is in Caro.

Last year in some areas of Michigan, less than half of the eligible sheep raisers applied for the incentive payments.

Plans Available for Low Cost Buildings

Tuscola County farmers are developing an interest in low-cost, one-story buildings without interior poles or posts.

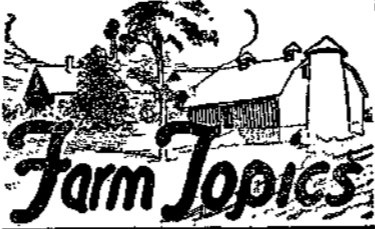

Don Kebler, Assistant County Agricultural Agent, remarks that trusses made with ring-bolts or glue-nail joints for clear span buildings cost a little more than the conventional rafters. But the total construction bill is no more because of savings in poles or posts and roof purlins needed with conventional design.

Michigan State University Agricultural Engineers have tested gable trusses with spans of 24 feet, 30 feet, 36 feet, and 40 feet and have developed plans for farm use. They also have single slope trusses for building additions of 24 feet using either the ring-bolt or glue-nail design.

You can get additional information on these types of construction in Farm Building Series Circulars. Copies are available at the county extension office in the Caro Courthouse.

High protein feeds, such as soybean oil meal and 48 to 55 percent protein dairy concentrates, are good buys for dairymen, say Michigan State University dairy specialists.

Dr. J. Stuart Johnson, formerly chairman of Purdue University's School of Electrical Engineering took over the deanship of Wayne's College of Engineering this autumn, replacing Dr. Rex Schoonover, now emeritus dean.

Specialize for Sure Farm Profit Efficient Operation Insures Production

Thousands of punch cards emerging from Farm Census IBM machines every five years are clicking out a story—and a warning—to live stock farmers everywhere says National Live Stock Producer. The story is: Specialization. The warning: Comply or die.

Farm life today is too complex for any farmer to be "jack of all trades and master of all." The old cow-sow-hen operation is gone or is going. The same holds true for owners of small, inefficient herds and flocks. The trend is toward keeping enough animals for an efficient and productive unit or none at all.

Census data tell the story. In 1920, 4,851,000 U. S. farms reported hogs. By 1940, the number was down to 3,767,000 and in 1954, the farm census revealed only 2,365,000 farms raising hogs. This 34-year reduction amounted to 51%.

Although cattle numbers have increased, fewer farmers are engaged in cattle production. The 5,358,000 cattle farms reported in 1954.

Tests in Oregon showed no appreciable difference in yield when different spacings of gas and liquid fertilizer were used on wheat crops.

1920 were down 32% to 3,651,000 in 1954.

The number of sheep farms plummeted from 539,000 in 1920 to 361,000 in 1954.

Why are these trends occurring and what do they mean?

First, the disappearance of small, inefficient units account for most of these decreases. The one and two cow, sow and some chickens type of farmer is being eliminated by the vital force of economics which makes it unprofitable to spend the time and trouble on a sideline enterprise.

Second, efficiency has been stepped up to a point where 35% fewer farm workers are now producing 60% more farm products than was possible 30 years ago.

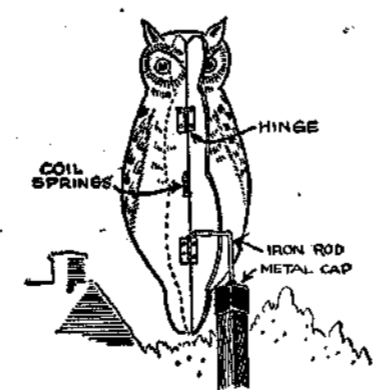

Disease-Free Pigs Curb Disease Cycle

A practical means of checking diseases in certain swine herds by breaking the chain of infection to the young animals has been reported in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The plan involves obtaining "disease-free" baby pigs, either by Cesarean operation or by catching the pigs in sterile bags during normal farrowing, and then removing them to isolated quarters immediately.

Experimental evidence reported by veterinary medical authorities shows that baby pigs can be raised successfully even if they are deprived of colostrum, provided they can be protected from natural environmental factors. The pigs, at birth, are essentially free of infectious disease.

Fruit Saver

Realistic own assembled from light sheet metal will keep birds out of fruit trees. It consists of three pieces, one cut to full body contour and two pieces cut to half body shape without the ears. Hinges and coil springs allow for slight movement with the wind.

Three new public school buildings, located respectively in Detroit, Madison Heights, and Oak Park, Michigan, are each named after the late Dr. Waldo E. Lessinger, who was dean of Wayne State University College of Education for the 25 years preceding his death in 1955.

Rabbit Stew Coming Up

Hunting seasons on game birds and deer are completed, but rabbit hunting provides plenty of sport—and good eating—for Michigan nitroheads. Statewide seasons on cottontail rabbits and snowshoe hares continue through March 1. The rabbit hunting season formerly ended January 31 in the southern lower peninsula, but has been extended.

New Farmers' Tax Guide Available

Farmers Tax Guides concerning Income and Self-Employment Taxes are now available through the County Cooperative Extension Service Office, Courthouse, Caro, according to Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County Agricultural Agent. This is the 1958 edition and is written especially for farmers. It explains in simple language most of the income tax rules which concern them. It is intended for use in preparing Federal Income Tax returns for calendar year 1957 and fiscal years ending in 1958, said Ballweg. Copies may be obtained by calling or writing to the County Cooperative Extension Office, Caro.

A laboratory of chemicals, books, fixtures and modern equipment totaling $8,000 in value was donated this autumn to Wayne State University for use of the College of Pharmacy by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Klopp, a Detroit engineer and his wife.

Michigan's 1957 sugar beet yield is averaging 13 tons per acre, about two tons over last year, according to Michigan State University farm crops specialists.
