Plastic Concern Eyes Gagetown For Plant Site

The possibility of a new industry in Gagetown was revealed this week by A. J. Mosack of Gagetown, who reported that he is negotiating with the Plastics Division of M. J. Hirtlen Co., Inc., an eastern manufacturer.

The small plant would be built in Gagetown to manufacture "Hi-Impact Styrene," a television audio modulating and control device on which A. J. Mosack and Sons have received patent rights in the United States and Canada.

The results of a labor survey and the availability of a suitable site are expected to be among the determining factors of the location of the new plant. No local capital would be required and both men and women would be employed.

Vincent Hirtlen, president of the concern, has visited the Gagetown area twice during 1957 to investigate the possibility of locating in Gagetown.

From the Editor's Corner

A new Cass City Community Hospital is just a step away from realization at this time. Treasurer M. B. Auten revealed this week that the community is now just $8,796 away from its goal.

Biggest boost in recent weeks was the raising of the pledge of the Lions Club from $3,000 to $5,000.

Some of the additional funds that have lowered the amount needed from $19,000 have come from individuals, who have raised the amount of their pledge or donation.

As practically all sources of revenue have now been tapped, it is the feeling of the board that those in a financial position to do so will have to dig a little deeper if the hospital is to be realized. With this thought in mind, some of the individuals who have already subscribed are again being contacted to push the drive over the top.

As has been pointed out previously, it's now or never for the hospital here. With the government's participation of 50 per cent and the $25,000 Kresge donation depending on the area raising its share of the funds, we must have the money now.

Council Discusses Police Procedure

The resignation of Steve Orto, former village marshal, and the search for his successor brought considerable discussion of the way the police department has been handled by the council in previous years, Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the council at the Cass City Municipal Building.

Trustee Cliff Ryan asked that all important activities concerning the police department be brought before the council as a whole.

Trustee Warren Wood said that at one time, not when the present committee was functioning, the first he knew of the activities of the department was when he learned of it from citizens on the street.

C. R. Hunt said that the time has come for a change in the hours of the police department. He wants a man to work during the daytime hours, as well as at night.

"In addition," he said, "I feel that problems of the department should be aired in front of the council at large."

His suggestion of police protection during the day brought the discussion to financing another policeman. The majority of the council feels that it is not possible without parking meters in the village.

The council will make no decision on a new man on a permanent basis until after the annual caucus which is slated Monday, Feb. 10, at the town hall. Applications will be accepted until that time.

Tuesday, three men who have already applied for the position were interviewed. They were: Fred L. Cubberness of Bad Axe, Frank Krosowek of Unionville and Carl Palmateer of Caro.

New Truck

The H. O. Paul Company was awarded the contract for a new truck for the village. It will be a two-ton vehicle at a cost of $2,511.48. The village, of course, does not have to pay taxes on the vehicle.

Plastic Concern Eyes Gagetown For Plant Site

The possibility of a new industry in Gagetown was revealed this week by A. J. Mosack of Gagetown, who reported that he is negotiating with the Plastics Division of M. J. Hirtlen Co., Inc., an eastern manufacturer.

The small plant would be built in Gagetown to manufacture "Hi-Impact Styrene," a television audio modulating and control device on which A. J. Mosack and Sons have received patent rights in the United States and Canada.

The results of a labor survey and the availability of a suitable site are expected to be among the determining factors of the location of the new plant. No local capital would be required and both men and women would be employed.

Medical Care Costs Up for Farmers

Farm families are spending more for medical care than they did a few years ago, points out Mrs. Frances T. Clark, county home demonstration agent. U. S. Department of Agriculture research reports show that medical costs for the typical American farm family were about as much for each person in 1955 as they were for the whole family in 1941. In 1955 farm families spent about $240 or $63 per person, but in 1941 they spent only $60 or $15 per person.

The general rise in prices accounts for a large part of the increased spending for medical care. But farm families have increased medical spending more than their other general expenditures. This may be due in part to hospital building programs in rural communities and other advances which have helped make medical care available to more rural people.

Between 1941 and 1955 health insurance became common among farm families. In 1941 nearly all farm families paid for medical care as they received it, but by 1955 half of them either belonged to pre-payment plans or carried health insurance. This has probably encouraged greater medical spending. Earlier surveys show that families with hospitalization insurance use hospitals more than those without it. Families probably find they can spend more for medical goods and services when expenses are portioned out in regular payments.

Physicians' services took the largest part of the health-care dollar in both years - 38c in 1941 and 38c in 1955. Hospital care nearly doubled its share of the farm health-care dollar, taking 15c in 1941 and 27c in 1955. Medicines and drugs took about 17c in both years, but dental care dropped from 15c to 12c and eye test and glasses from 8c to 6c.

Don't argue with the man who talks loud—you couldn't convince him in a thousand years.

Little Red AND THE Wolf

When Little Red was stopped by the wolf the conversation went something like this:

WOLF: What'cha got in the basket Little Red? (drooling).

LITTLE RED: Goodies for Granny... I used to spend hours in the kitchen preparing sweet meats and goodies for Granny. Now I take advantage of the profuse variety offered by SOMMERS' BAKERY every day. Another thing Wolf—they are BAKED FRESH every night so I can get an early start for Granny's every morning.

The wolf didn't eat Grannie — He ate the goodies.

MORAL: Smart "Little Red" pacify their wolves with "Sommers' Goodies".

Be Safe-Cook All Pork Thoroughly

Broilers and other meat timers work miracles for the busy modern homemaker. But, time saving is strictly taboo when it comes to cooking fresh pork, warns Mrs. Frances T. Clark, county home demonstration agent. You may poo-poo the idea of never broiling those inch-thick pork chops, but the fact remains that you are not only losing much of the flavor, but are endangering your health.

Pork is one of the tastiest of meats, but it requires long, slow cooking to develop that taste. A low cooking temperature also keeps the meat juicy and cuts down on shrinkage. You must also cook pork thoroughly to destroy and trichinae that might be present in the meat. This parasite can only be detected with a microscope, so it passes the meat inspectors unnoticed. If it is not killed, it will find its way into muscle tissue and cause severe pain.

You can be sure the parasite has been destroyed only if you cook pork until no trace of pink color is left — cut into the middle of the meat to make sure it's grayish-white in color. If you have a meat thermometer, cook to an internal temperature of 185 degrees F.

Take advantage of the low prices this winter. Buy pork and enjoy it, knowing that you have cooked it properly.

BULEN TALKS Cars

QUEER BIRDS

If you've ever shopped around for a car, you know there are a lot of different kinds of salesmen, and some mighty queer birds among them, too.

No one has ever tried to classify them before. So, like the Audubon Society that protects our birds of the field, I'm forming an Auto-bon Society to classify the queer birds of the car lots. Here are some types you may recognize!

SHARP-EYED PRICE PUSHER: Distinguished by rapid chatter, eliminating possibility of asking questions; on clear spring day can be heard repeating price incessantly; avoids mentioning cracked engine block, tattered upholstery.

QUICK-FLAPPING MANAGER-CHECKER: Recognizable by confidential conspiracy he forms with client to outwit great enemy known as sales manager; confides he will attempt to blackjack the ogre into letting you buy his precious little car.

BACK-SLAPPING BUDDY (TAN): Usually distinguishable by yellow shirts, check jacket, mid-winter tan; can be heard in next county telling of last holiday, golf game, fishing trip, traffic tie-ups, coming storm, wife's toothache, kid's bruise—anything but automobile being inspected. Client buys car in order to change subject.

You will notice that none of these varieties of birds know the slightest thing about cars. That's why we don't hire them.

But I think customers should know about these amazing birds, and should meet some of them personally! Then, after you've shopped around at other places, come see us. Our salesmen have to know the facts of the cars they're demonstrating; they give you frank answers on trade-in and price.

Almost inevitably, it's the best deal for miles around. Take the 1955 Buick Hardtop Coupe we have on our lot right now, for example. A handsome car for family service and only $1850.00

Put A Wide-Awake Want Ad To Work For You

Meat Prices Up 17% This Year

With today's meat prices roughly 17 per cent higher than a year ago, the family "meat buyer" is in something of a quandary. This makes wise shopping mandatory. The average cost of feeding one person three meals a day is around $1.20 and that means the average family is spending about 25 per cent of the disposable income on food. Most families spend better than 25c of every food dollar on meat. Now with the rising meat costs, the wise food buyer will pause and consider the present situation. How can you buy the meat your family must have for adequate nutrition without wrecking the food budget?

Wise buymanship is the only order of the day. Economy in meat buying is measured by the cost per serving and not the cost per pound. You should look to boneless, well trimmed, lean cuts for those "most-for-the-money" main dishes. Ground beef, liver, tongues, heart and other variety meats, stew meat, rolled roast and boneless hams give more servings per pound than meat cuts with bone and their waste items included in their price tag.

Since you and I cannot squeeze up the month or the week to fit the grocery money, why not rely on the old stand-by, ground meat? It is economical, liked by almost everyone and can be used in dishes ranging from plain burgers to dishes fancy enough for the gourmet.

Have you ever wondered why you see so many different prices for ground beef? Ground beef may come from chuck, neck, brisket, plate shank, flank or the heel of the round. Usually, the lowest priced ground beef has the highest percentage of fat. The most expensive ground beef is usually prepared from the choicest cuts. Chuck makes tastier and juicier ground beef than the round and the chuck is a more economical cut.

The more grindings the beef gets, the more compact it becomes. A single grind is best for making patties. For your meat loaves, meatballs and similar uses, the more compact ground beef is the better.

Ground beef, pork, veal or lamb, or a combination of two or three of these provide a meat dish for every taste. With the meat as a foundation, countless other ingredients can be added for flavor variety.

Here is my favorite Chili Meat Deluxe: (serves 6 to 8): 1 1/2 pounds ground beef, 1 cup chopped onion, 2 cups tomatoes, 1/2 cup chopped green pepper (if desired), 1 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoon paprika, 4 cups cooked spaghetti or macaroni, 1/2 pound cheddar cheese, grated.

Cook ground beef slowly until crumbly but not hard. Add onion, tomatoes, green pepper and seasonings. Cover and simmer 45 minutes. Alternate layers of cooked spaghetti or macaroni in a large greased casserole so the top layer is meat. Sprinkle grated cheese over mixture and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) 20 to 30 minutes or until cheese is melted and lightly browned.

Michigan Mirror News in Brief

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association
Fringe issues before the 1958 legislature have developed an importance all their own while the state's finances form the core of knotty problems. While the budget will need extra millions to keep the state from bankruptcy, other issues are multiplying.

There is a chance that labor legislation -- the right to work issue -- will become one of the hottest of the session. Senator Robert E. Faulkner (R-Coloma), chairman of the Senate labor committee, already is planning a bill to require unions to incorporate.

The bill is simple, as are most of the vocal issues of the day. But it would place unions under the same restrictions that manufacturing and business corporations have. Regular audits, government controls and taxes all are part of the controls.

The toughest would be the ban against any corporation making a contribution to a political party or candidate.

Republicans, Democrats and union leaders all predict this would mean the end to the CIO-PAC and other labor groups.

Significantly, labor has generally favored Democrats. Republicans claim further that Democrats and unions used each other to gain power in Michigan and share control of State government.

The right-to-work law, now in effect in Ohio and other states, would end the union shop.

No man could be required to join a union to keep his job.

Labor leaders call this the ultimate in "union busting." Its advocates call it a "right." It is certain to develop a sizzling battle in Michigan, if introduced.

Democrats will work to get a $90-a-week minimum benefit for unemployed workers and those injured and incapable of working.

Speed limits on county roads will be another issue this session. The 65 mile-an-hour speed limit during the day and the 55 mile-an-hour ceiling at night in effect for two years is too high, some say.

When the original law was passed, officers said it would not be adequately enforced on county roads.

Now, with the accident and death rates climbing each month on county roads, the demand for a speed limit is growing.

License plates will be another issue, this one touching only indirectly on the financial issue.

Secretary of State James M. Hare is proposing that, starting in 1959, the state issue a plate good for three years, with metal tags for the next two years.

Hare said the program would cost an extra $70,000 the first year, but over the three-year span, would save something like $800,000.

The money would be both spent this year and saved over the three-year span from highway construction money -- a separate matter from the problems with the deficit-bound general fund.

Republicans and Democrats are racing the clock and each other on the civil rights issue.

Michigan now has the Fair Employment Practices Commission to work against discrimination based on race, creed, color, religion, and national origin in job-finding.

The state also has a series of laws prohibiting discrimination in public places, restaurants, hotels, motels, taverns and other businesses and services.

Republicans proposed last summer that the commission be expanded in scope to also handle the civil rights program.

Gov. Williams, in his message to the legislature, proposed the same thing.

Education has its champions on both sides of the aisle this year.

Rep. Willard L. Bowerman (R-Lansing) has proposed a $100,000,000 bond issue for college and university buildings. Rep. George W. Sallade (R-Ann Arbor) proposed a $250,000,000 bond issue for the same purpose.

Senator John B. Swainson (D-Detroit) proposed a $250,000 fund for college and university scholarships, to help needy and deserving students meet the soaring costs of education.

Three Extension Folders Available

Three new extension folders about dairying are now available to Tuscola County farmers, according to county agricultural agent Alfred Ballweg.

"Feeding Dairy Cows" is the title of extension folder F-252. Producing feed for dairy cows, using roughage in the ration, best feed buys, minerals and vitamins are all discussed in the publication. Feeding programs are suggested for use with either excellent, good or poor roughages.

A second folder, F-253, offers tips on managing dairy heifers and dry cows to make the dairy operation more profitable. Feeding, management and health are topics covered. The folder points out that heifers ready to go to work at freshening time are an asset to any milking herd.

In the third folder, F-254, "Raising Calves to Improve the Dairy Business", dairymen will find suggestions on preparing the cow for freshening, handling her at calving time and feeding the young calf. Successful calf raising results in more calves to choose from for up-grading the herd, greater income from calf sales, herd replacements when they are needed, no cash layout for herd replacements and no danger from buying disease troubles.

All three folders were written by Don Hillman, extension dairy specialist at Michigan State University.

Dual Purpose Cutting

A logger tells an aspen in one of Michigan's state forests and serves a double purpose. Revenue from the sale of state forest timber products goes to the public treasury and is used for reforestation programs. In addition, winter forest cuttings supply food for Michigan's large deer herd. Whitetails feed on tree tops left by cutting operations and on new growth which springs up when mature trees are removed.

TB Explained by Speaker at Rotary Theodore J. Werle, executive secretary emeritus of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, explained the association's activities in the fight against TB Tuesday noon at the New Gordon Hotel before the Cass City Rotary Club.

He said that the immediate Cass City area was fortunate to be relatively free of TB. He pointed out that TB is regarded as a plant and not a virus and that most of the organization's funds for the continuing fight against the disease were derived from the sale of Christmas seals.

Mr. Werle was able to speak with authority about the TB program. He was one of the pioneers in the fight against TB. He directed the state voluntary association for 35 years. Prior to joining the Michigan TB association, Mr. Werle served on the Wisconsin association, which he joined when 19 years old.

For many years, he was a lecturer at the University of Michigan School of Public Health and is recognized throughout the state as an outstanding speaker.

Mr. Werle is an advocate of education as the key to tuberculosis control and under his direction Michigan has won nationwide recognition as a leading agency in the field of health education and has the lowest TB rate of all industrial states in the Union.

Mr. Werle holds an honorary doctorate from Grand Rapids University.
