

From the Editor's Corner

Here's a stunt for all Cass City strong men. Think you can carry $500 in silver dollars for a mile? According to a story in the Huron News at Bad Axe and a Detroit grocer, it just can't be done.

The grocer offered to let anyone who could carry a sack of dollars with one hand for a mile have the money. A pressman for the Bad Axe paper took printing metal weighing the same amount as 500 silver dollars, about 35 pounds, and made a test run.

Here's what the News reported: "VanCise started his trek in front of the Huron News, going strong. After a quarter of a mile or so, he was still going strong, but he had dropped the sack."

The difficulty in carrying the weight is that the hand gets so tired it can't keep a grip on the sack any longer.

If anyone in the area thinks that they can do better, try it and let us know how far you went before dropping the sack.

One thing that Dr. Frank Suggitt pointed out Tuesday evening in his address at the Chamber of Commerce banquet that most folks heartily agree with is that Cass City is a wonderful place to live.

Nearly every visitor says that he would like to move out of the urban "rat race" to a community like Cass City. It is this very feature that may change Cass City. Its park and pool, good school, wide street and other advantages are as attractive to new industry and citizens as they are to all the residents who have enjoyed them through the years.

Many Cass City stores have announced this week that they will be open Friday nights instead of the traditional Saturday nights for the convenience of customers. The announcement is accompanied with special Friday night values at participating stores to attract shoppers to the change in hours.

The stores that are changing hours will stay open both Friday and Saturday for two weeks so that area customers will have ample advance notice of the change.

Owners of the stores making the change said that after the two-week period they will be open only on Friday nights. Beginning Saturday, April 19, these stores will close at 6 p. m.

The new hours do not include all area stores. Many are not making the change in evening hours.

Owners making the switch said that the Friday factory pay days in the community and the success reported by other communities prompted them to switch to Friday evening opening hours instead of Saturday evening.

Most surrounding cities and villages are open on Friday night, including Bad Axe, Caro and now Marlette which is in the process of changing.

Those who still favor Saturday evening report that Saturday night is one of their busiest times of the week.

Stores who made a formal announcement of a change in hours this week are: Gambles, Ben Franklin, Little's Furniture, Patterson Market, McConkey Jewelers, Bigelow Hardware, Prantz IGA Market, Foodtown IGA Market, H. J. Smith Store, Townsend's 5c to $1, Cass City Oil & Gas Appliance Store, Federated, Gross and Maier, Riley's Foot Comfort and Hulien's.

Baseball Squad

Prospects are bright this spring for championships in both track and baseball as coaches greeted a primarily veteran squad in both sports as spring practice started in nearly ideal weather.

If Cass City can record championships in baseball and track, it will mark the first time in the history of the Thumb B Conference that one school has swept all major crowns in the eight team league.

Despite loss of some key players, Cass City must be regarded as the favorite for the title in both sports.

Baseball Squad

Sixty-seven boys reported for baseball practice, including 12 letter winners from last year's championship nine.

Of the 12, five held regular positions last year. Bob Walpole anchored the outfield in center field. A ball hawk, he clubbed his way to a .360 average. In left field, Gary Deering, who hit .340 in 1957, is expected to be back at the same position this spring. In right field, Jim Johnson, probably the Hawks' best stickman, is a fixture. He boomed out enough hits for a sparkling .390 average season. Perry Hoagg is the only regular infielder back this season. He is regarded as a good gloveman and hit .230 while covering second for the Hawks last year. Dave Wilson will be the catcher for the team again this year. Last year he hit .320 for Cass City. ## Ask for Planning Commission for Area

In a letter written to the village council, authorities of the Cass City Development Corporation and the Cass City Chamber of Commerce requested that an area planning commission be appointed by the council.

After discussion, President B. F. Benkelman Jr. said that he believed that a commission should be appointed. However, he said that he would delay making any appointments until he had studied the situation and conferred with members of the organizations making the request.

He appointed Cliff Ryan, Warren Wood and C. R. Hunt to meet with him and other authorities to discuss the appointments.

The letter also stated that the sponsoring group would like to see a consultant hired at a later date to advise the group in steps to take in planning.

Members of the Development Corporation and Chamber of Commerce have been working for some time to establish a planning group here.

They cite the expanding population and trend of persons working in the city to move to rural areas as principal reasons for a planning commission.

Meeting with other planning groups and at regional conferences, authorities have learned

Trustees Discuss Curb and Gutter For Seeger Street

Mrs. H. T. Donahue appeared before the village council to learn the necessary procedure for securing curb and gutter in front of the Donahue home on Seeger Street.

Trustees informed her that the council was waiting for a petition from home owners which is necessary before the village can act.

Mrs. Donahue had suggested that the curb be installed in front of their home at the Donahue expense and that reimbursement be made when the remainder of the street was completed.

This plan was vetoed because of the cost of placing isolated curbing on any street. Trustees said that they would be happy to receive a petition from property owners on Seeger Street for curb and gutter. A majority vote is needed before the work can start.

Curb will cost owners $1.75 per foot. The price was established some two years ago when plans were formulated by the village.

Mrs. Donahue also asked that some 67 feet of cement in the driveway in front of their home be repaired. It was removed when work was done on Seeger Street.

The village has been waiting until curb and gutter is installed before replacing the cement. If it were replaced before the curb is installed it would be necessary to remove it again.

A discussion of dirt on Main Street was held by the council. Members felt that it needed correction. A casual discussion of a machine that will pick up dirt as it sweeps was held, but no action is planned at this time.

Expert Tells Chamber of Commerce

Look for Rapid Change in Village

Be prepared for a rapid change in Cass City and know what you are going to do about it, Dr. Frank W. Suggitt, head of the Resource Development Department at Michigan State University, told some 200 Chamber of Commerce members and their wives Tuesday evening at the Chamber's annual banquet at Cass City High School.

The time for residents to decide whether or not they are to dictate the future or be dictated to is now, he said. Without adequate planning and area zoning a "prince" in a tarpaper shack can dictate the kind of community Cass City will have in the future.

When he buys his acre for $5 down, erects his shack and possibly starts a junkyard next to your $20,000 house, you'll be powerless to stop him or remove him, Suggitt warned, and nothing you do then will keep your property from rapidly deteriorating in value. Only planning and zoning will stop it, he said.

Most Valuable

The most valuable export in Cass City is not beans, wheat or corn, Suggitt claimed, but the young people who leave the community for urban areas because there is no place for them to earn a living in the village.

These people are trained in Cass City's fine schools, nurtured by parents and trained in the community and in their productive years between 21 and 55, the fruits of the training are utilized by other areas. When they are ready to retire they often move back to the "home" town where they do not help produce for the area they live in.

Dr. Suggitt said that the strides that Cass City has made with industry has helped the situation and he predicts that the start will have a "snowballing" effect and that more and more plants will locate in the area.

In fact, Cass City is now in the midst of transition from a primarily agricultural society to an industrial society, Dr. Suggitt suggested.

The community is one that characterizes the growth of America. A little before the turn of the century the area was largely uninhabited. Some 60 years ago lumbering supported the area. It was followed by primitive farming which in turn gave way to commercial farming. Industrial farming followed and now an industrial society is on its way.

As a student of this change and growth, Dr. Suggitt said, he was happy to be able to make the study of Cass City with its change, progress and growth.

Prior to the address, the Cass City Community Choir presented two selections under the direction of John Sommers and yearly reports were submitted.

Herbert Ludlow told of the work of the Cass City Development Corporation and Bill Johnston reported the successful activities of the Chamber of Commerce.

Retiring President Bernard Ross introduced the new Chamber officers and acted as toastmaster for the evening.

Village to Buy New Water Pump For $3,150

The Cass City Village Council Monday evening authorized the purchase of a new water pump rated at 400 gallons a minute from the Peerless Pump Co. of Detroit. Cost was estimated at $3,150.

The pump will replace one that has been in use for 11 years and was also purchased from Peerless. The pump was out of commission briefly last week and examination disclosed that the condition of the well makes it probable that the shaft may break under present arrangements at any time.

The purchase will include a new motor, new line and new pump, except for the head which is made of cast iron and is "practically indestructible," a representative of Peerless said.

With the purchase goes a guarantee of six years of trouble-free service.

Other Business.

Trustees approved the installation of a street light at the corner of Third and Brooker Streets.

President Benkelman set Monday and Tuesday, April 28-29, for the annual clean-up, fix-up days in the village.

Trustees discussed stray dogs in the village. On the suggestion of Trustee Warren Wood, members of the village maintenance crew were authorized to pick up stray dogs. They will be paid $1.50 for each one picked up.

Standing Committees

President Benkelman appointed standing committees for the year Monday. They are: finance, Andrew Bigelow and Wood; streets and walks, C. R. Hunt and Bigelow; sewer and water, Cliff Ryan and James King; parks and pool, King and Mrs. K. I. MacLae; police, Benkelman, Wood and Mrs. MacLae; building, William Schram, Hunt and Ryan, and president pro tem, Bigelow.

Cass City Loses In Cage Tourney At Bad Axe

Cass City, champions of the regular season in the Huron Independent League, lost an opportunity to add the championship of the annual March of Dimes tourney last week at Bad Axe when they were defeated in the opening round by Sandusky, 72-58.

Cass City lost the game in the second half. Playing with only five men, the team lost a player via the foul route and played nearly all of the last half with only four men.

At the half, Sandusky was ahead 32-29. But the Sandusky five posted a 28-11 margin in the third period to win going away. Dick Hanby counted 24 points for Cass City.

Consolation Champs

After their initial loss, Cass City bounced back Friday and Saturday for victories to win the consolation championship.

Friday the team topped Bay Port 99-81 in a free scoring game. Keith Emerson hit for 29 points. Dick Hanby collected 14 and Dick Donahue followed with 13. Other Cass City scorers were: Clare Comment, 10; Elwyn Helwig, nine; Don Tuckey and Eugene Kloc, seven each; Alden Asher, six, and John Meininger, four.

In the final night, Cass City played with only five men again. This time they lost no one via the foul route and turned the tables on Sandusky, 72-68.

Emerson poured in 31 points for Cass City. Other scorers were: Donahue, 16; Kloc, 14; Helwig, seven, and Asher, four.

Track Team

Although Coach Mike Yedinak won't admit that his charges should be favored for the Thumb B Conference track crown, he has a sparkle in his eye when he talks about prospects of this year's squad.

Two mainstays of last year's squad, Bob Martus and Ed Freeman, have been lost by graduation. But Yedinak has 14 lettermen back to help in the drive for the championship. Biggest problems will be in the low hurdles, shot-put and medley relay.

Forrest Walpole and Chuck Anvil will be back in the dashes and Clayton Nelman and Ron Parrott will give Cass City strength in the mile.

Fred Leeson will be the only four-event man on the squad. He is expected to pick up points in the pole vault, high jump, broad jump and high hurdles.

Bob Tuckey will run the half mile. Concluded on page 12.

Poor Quality Alfalfa Seed Expensive

Don't be fooled by price tags into buying poor quality alfalfa seed for this year's plantings, cautions Alfred Ballweg, county agricultural agent.

Even though recommended varieties cost more, they are still better buys. They are higher producing, disease resistant and winter-hardy.

Vernal alfalfa is the first choice for longer rotations. Supplies are down some and demand has pushed prices up. But when seeded at six pounds per acre with brome the cost is only around $1.30 per acre more than Ranger.

Tests at Michigan State University show that you'll get your money back the first year. Vernal consistently yielded half a ton more hay per acre over Ranger.

Also, Vernal alfalfa plants are fine stemmed, leafy and disease resistant.

Another high yielding variety is Narragansett. The price is up because of a limited supply. It is winter-hardy and leafy but is susceptible to bacterial wilt. It is recommended for two-year rotations.

For shorter rotations, and depending on comparative prices, either Grimm, Canadian or Ranger are good varieties for Michigan.

Alfalfas not recommended include DuPuits, creeping or pasture types and blends.

Tests indicate DuPuits is neither winter-hardy nor winter-resistant. Under Michigan conditions creepers such as Nomad and Rhizoma do not creep. And yield is lower than recommended varieties.

Farm crops specialists do not recommend blends. A blend of seed cannot possibly be better than the best variety in the mix. If one variety is superior, then it would be better to use seed of only that variety.

You can expect alfalfa from Michigan-produced seed to yield well in short rotations or where winter-resistance is not needed.

When buying named varieties such as Vernal always get certified seed. Extensive research has proved that certified seed is best for Michigan.

It's easy to figure out why some people never had a show in life—they've never even saved the price of admission.

SHORT STORY

Best Reflections

By Melissa Anderson

META gave the kitchen clock a satisfied glance—five thirty—she still had half an hour to make herself pretty before dinner. She wanted to look especially nice to-night, even though only the family would see her. After all, she thought, a woman's fortieth birthday wasn't something she really wished to celebrate; looking her best would remove the sting of crossing that Rubicon.

3-Minute Fiction

Pausing a moment in the dining room, to check the table setting, Meta surveyed herself in the dim old mirror above the buffet. She didn't look her age at all, she thought complacently. Only a thread or two of grey was visible in her dark hair; her complexion was good; she had kept her figure through twenty years of marriage and mothering three children. Not bad, not bad at all.

Her dressing table mirror, aided by its twin, rose-shaded lamps, told her she looked very nice.

After brushing her hair until it gleamed, Meta carefully applied powder and a touch of lipstick.

Her dressing table mirror, aided by its twin, rose shaded lamps, told her she looked very nice. Smiling at her reflection she quickly dabbed rose carnation perfume behind her ears, on her neck and wrists.

A few minutes later the fresh young voice called, "Aren't you about ready, Mother? We're all starving!"

"Coming." Meta called back and hurried down the stairs. Fred greeted her with a husbandly kiss, and Johnny beamed as he said, "Happy birthday, Mom." Jean came to the kitchen doorway to add her good wishes.

"Where's Jamie?" Meta asked. "Oh, I forgot! He said to tell you he was staying for football practice, but he'd try to get home by dinner time. He said not to wait for him, though," Jean said. "Shall I dish up now?"

"Yes, I guess so. If we wait for Jamie, dinner will be spoiled," Meta replied. "Till help, dear." She started toward the kitchen, slowed to steal a sideways glance in the buffet mirror and stopped short. "Fred! You bought a new mirror for the buffet!"

"Sure did. Do you like your birthday gift?"

"Oh, it's lovely!" Meta exclaimed. It is a lovely mirror, she thought ruefully, but it tells the truth too plainly; every single grey hair, every tiny wrinkle, even the little sag under her chin were faithfully reproduced and thrown back at her.

"Thank you, my husband, it's a very nice gift—the old one was losing its youth—like me." She stepped lightly back, peeked a kiss on Fred's cheek and hurried out of the room.

Jean was bringing in the cake, its candles gayly alight, when the front door was jerked open and violently closed. Jamie's "Happy Birthday!" was punctuated by a crash. The new mirror lay on the rug—shattered.

"Sorry Mom," Jamie grinned, "but Dad bought you a new one." "That was the new one, young man! Why can't you ever come into the house without—"

"Never mind," Meta interposed. "Let's not make things worse by losing our tempers. It's a shame the mirror is broken—but it is broken—nothing can change that."

To the now crestfallen Jamie she said, "Go wash, son, and come to the table, we'll wait dessert a little. In the meantime I'll pick up the pieces."

"I'll get you another one, Mom," Jamie promised as he hurried upstairs.

"You do that, Jamie, when you can afford it," Meta answered. "For the present, though, we'll put the old one back up. I'll have to do for awhile."

Meta blew out the candles, then put an arm across her husband's shoulders. "Don't feel bad dear, it was thoughtful of you to buy the mirror, but Jamie didn't intend to break it."

"I know," he answered. "Johnny and I put it up in a hurry, we probably didn't get it fastened—"

The successful man doesn't wait for opportunity to knock—he is on the job when the main chance comes along.

The baseball season will soon be here—and the umpires will be undergoing their annual martyrdom.

Michigan Mirror News In Brief

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association

Education is at another crossroads in Michigan.

Increased costs are being weighed against the American principle of an education for all who can benefit from it and turn their talents to the betterment of the nation.

Students find it more difficult to make ends meet, with increased fees and mounting costs of living. The taxation field to support education is nearing saturation.

The legislature has become the focal point of the issue. It is required by the constitution to raise by taxation the money necessary to support state government.

dropping?

Start with elementary and high schools.

For years, it was certain that the schools' share of the state sales tax would be more than adequate to cover state aid payments. That certainty ended two years ago.

At that time, local schools said they wanted state aid at the rate of $190 per pupil. To make the formula work, the state advanced $20,000,000 from money due the next year.

To cover the same shortage in 1957-58, the legislature passed increases in the liquor and cigarette taxes. These are still in effect.

The legislature has again promised $190 per pupil for 1958-59 but, with 70,000 more students entering the system, another $16,000,000 will be needed.

Some schoolmen estimate they will need even more state aid—up to $210 per pupil.

Just to stay even with the level of the past two years, the state is in deep financial trouble. The major issue is where to find the dollars to stay afloat.

Higher education is generally in the same position. The first proposed state budget for colleges and universities for 1958-59 totaled $87,000,000 a cut-back of 2.8 per cent or $3,500,000 from current expenditures.

Educators were shocked at the reductions which failed to even consider their requests for a total of $110,000,000 in the face of scientific progress in the Soviet Union.

They said that if the proposal stood, there would be no money for entire programs which were authorized and financed by the legislature over the past three years.

College administrators found it hard to believe the legislature would cut back when it is so important to prepare for the "tidal wave" of students at college level which has been passing through lower grades. They are trying to deal with the greatly increased number of high school graduates in the knowledge that a greater percentage than ever will be seeking advanced training.

Some legislators feel that expansion of college programs has not always been in the most important areas. They have criticized some extension programs and night courses. But educators remind that adult education courses are designed to pay for themselves; that federal monies pay up to 40 per cent of the cost of extension programs.

They point out that these activities are pursued to help meet the complex needs of a complex society.

No matter who looks at it, the problem boils down to the old question faced by lawmakers: Shall the expenditure be made to properly fill the need; or shall we do the best we can with the funds available, without increasing the tax load?

Education is just one of many identical problems with the dollar shortage.

The state needs money to complete construction of prisons, to meet the needs of Boys Vocational School, to expand mental health facilities and fit the functions of all agencies to the age.

Finance experts in the legislature are poking through every function of government to find extra money.

The Conlin Plan, authored by Rep. Rollo G. Conlin (R-Tipton) to extend the 30-day payment of the state's liquor bills to a 90-day credit period has been signed into law. This maneuver is expected to bring in $9,000,000 by May and a total of $16,000,000 to $18,000,000.

Another $60,000 has been requested from the World War II and Korean veterans bonus fund.

The struggle to handle the state's financial problem will continue, probably until the final day of the legislative session. Plans to adjourn in mid-April may have to be changed. Whatever the decision regarding this year's program, it will be made after numerous near irresistible forces have reckoned with numerous near immovable objects.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

Five Years Ago

Thirteen men from the Cass City area were recently released from the armed forces. They are: James Connolly, James Moore, Kenneth Matthews, Clayton Wernette, Hugh Bogart and Richard Little, all of Cass City; John Sefton and Walter Ann, both of Deford; William Johnston, Thomas Phelan and Ronald Russell, all of Gagetown, and Wilfred Randall and William Browning, both of Kingston.

Cass City bowlers in the Women's State Bowling Tournament placed high among the leaders in many events. Charlotte Patterson placed the local legions when she placed second in all events, 12th in singles and 15th in the single game competition.

Leonard Smith was re-elected president of the Cass City Council of Churches Tuesday night. Other officers named were: Robert Hunter, vice-president; Mrs. Horace Bulen, secretary, and Stanley Kim, treasurer.

The senior class of Cass City High School will sponsor a program featuring Bertrand Elliott, hypnotist, at the high school Friday night.

A fire detection system was installed last week at Stevens' Nursing Home. With the system, an alarm will sound outside and inside the home whenever the temperature reaches 150 degrees anywhere on the premises.

Ten Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd O'Rourke, who have conducted the Home Restaurant on West Main Street for four years, have sold the business to Mr. and Mrs. Peter DeBlais.

The last schedule of the City Bowling League ended March 25 with Doc Miller's team winning the schedule with 29 points. Reid's team was second with 28.

John H. Kercher, 88, died Sunday night in an Owosso hospital, where he had been a patient four days.

Mrs. P. A. Koepfgen celebrated her 92nd birthday Friday with her family at the Lytle Koepfgen home. She has just returned to her home here after spending the winter with her daughter, Miss Beryl Koepfgen, in Midland.

Two foreign students from the University of Michigan will be guests of Rev. and Mrs. M. R. Vender during the spring vacation. They are Edward Stephen Yanne from South China and Mahmud Sajjadi from Teheran, Iran.

Twenty-five Years Ago

Ninety-nine will vote "yes" and one will vote "no" to the question of national prohibition repeal when the constitutional convention meets Monday. Thus Michigan will become the first state to ratify the repeal amendment to the federal constitution. The one dry delegate is from Barry County.

Cass City won Class A honors in the Thumb district volleyball tournament at Elkton last week. Members of the championship team are: Kenneth Kelly, C. M. Wallace, Ben Benkelman, Frederick Pinney, Frank Reid, Curtis Hunt, M. B. Auten and James A. Milligan.

Returns from Monday's election indicate that Democratic candidates on the state ticket were elected by majorities of 100,000 and better. In a record breaking off-year vote, they swept Republicans out in nine

Plan 4-H Barbecue To Raise Money

A major activity to raise funds to maintain the Wilber Memorial 4-H Building during the coming year was planned by the Tuscola County 4-H Council at their last meeting, reports Bill Muller, County 4-H Club Agent.

The Council has set the date of Sunday, June 22, for their chicken barbecue and Quentin Osterander, Denmark Township Associate, County Agricultural Agent and Master Chef in his own right, will barbecue 1500 chicken halves over an open pit at the Fairgrounds.

Peter Campbell, leader of the Fairgrove 4-H Club, is in charge of ticket sales and Mrs. Frances Clark, County Home Demonstration Agent, and Mrs. Harry Forshoe, President of the 4-H Mothers' Club, head up the food committees.

Service Club members will help with ticket sales, publicity, and serving of foods at the barbecue. Tickets will go on sale approximately three weeks prior to the event and they will be priced at $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for children.

BULEN TALKS Cars

AGE OF THE STATION WAGON

As anyone can see, the station wagon is having a boom. In two years they've jumped from 5 per cent of auto production to around 11 or 12, a popularity you can notice on any Sunday drive.

And they're not so new as all that, you know. The first car that looked like a station wagon was the 1928 Star. The station wagon is popular in Russia, too, where the wood-paneled Moskvitch totes four people around with its little four-cylinder engine.

The Moskvitch looks very much like American station wagons of the 1939-40 period, which isn't surprising since the Russians carried off the dies and jigs for it from an American-owned factory in East Germany.

The great attraction of the station wagon, of course, is that it fills the need to carry around the whole family and their summer-time equipment, stuff for the cottage, new plants for the garden or practically anything you can name.

One big advantage that the manufacturers never thought of is that the rear area makes a wonderful play pen for the kiddies. It's roomy and flat and keeps them (and their lollipops) off the upholstery and Grandma.

You don't have to worry about taking a great whacking loss in depreciation with a station wagon, the way you used to. They're popular, and therefore, depreciate at about the same rate as any car.

Buying a station wagon is buying a car to fit a particular need or yen. Any of our people will tell you all about them when you drop in.

They can show you the best values around here in snazzy new ones or economical used ones, too.

SHORT STORY

Trail's End

By D. L. Alexander

SHERIFF LEE DAWSON left the shelter of the over-hanging cliff where he had spent the night, and looked down the long mountain slope. At first he couldn't see anything but the white expanse of the knee-deep snow, but as his searching gaze became used to the glare he detected a thin wisp of smoke in the valley beneath him.

His grunt of satisfaction was followed by a look of grim determination. Con Watson was wanted in half a dozen counties for robberies, and after Dawson had taken his trail there had been no thought of quitting it. Lack of food and a sleepless night beside a meager fire had only built up resentment against the fugitive for the hardships he was enduring. He had watched the glow of Watson's fire throughout the night. He had been too tired to close in on the fleeing man. Besides, throughout the preceding day the distance between them hadn't lessened, and until Watson tired there wasn't much hope of overtaking him.

The fugitive had also left his fire early. Dawson could see his form, only a dark speck on the snow, moving toward the valley beneath. He started after him.

The valley forked and the fleeing man had turned to the left. Dawson stopped and studied the landscape for a moment, hoping to discover a shortcut that would enable him to head Watson off. But there seemed none and he turned to the tracks again.

He came to a place where Watson had sat down on a fallen tree to rest a few minutes. He hoped the wanted man was tiring out. It meant precious minutes of time saved.

He came to a place where Watson had stumbled. He grinned and tried to increase his speed. The valley was getting narrower, and the snow deeper.

The valley suddenly thinned and became a gorge. The mountains on each side rose steeply, and he felt the chase must somehow end soon. He eyed the slopes with misgivings and shook his head.

He turned a corner and stopped suddenly. Watson stood ahead of him, covering him with his rifle.

"Law man," the outlaw called. "Drop your gun and start back where you came from." Dawson dropped his rifle.

"Go easy, Watson," he answered. "You're tired out and hungry, the same as I am. It'd be common sense for you to surrender and go with me to find some chow."

"Says you," Watson replied. "You can go where you came from. I'm going my own way."

"Listen to reason, man. I'll follow you wherever you go. You know you can't go on like this forever."

"Say, Bud, are you going to do what I told you?" Watson's voice showed anger.

Dawson laughed grimly. "I'm not giving you up," he said.

"Then take this." The rifle in Watson's hands exploded, but Dawson fell a split second before and wasn't hurt.

A low rumbling filled the gorge, growing louder each moment. Dawson scrambled to his feet, his rifle covering the other who had turned to look up the slope on his left. A huge avalanche of snow and boulders was coming toward them.

"Run, Watson," the sheriff yelled. But neither man moved.

The gorge behind Watson filled rapidly, and the other slope began to disgorge its load. The rumbling grew louder, and then began to subside as the snow settled.

Watson had turned to look behind him. Further escape was impossible, and he turned to face the officer. "You've got me," he said dispiritedly.

"Drop your gun, then."

When Watson had done so, Dawson directed: "Walk ahead of me. We've got time to reach Bill Haines' cabin and something to eat before dark if we hustle."

"Then let's hustle. I'm completely tuckered out," Watson answered.

Some people take so long proving they are right that they never find time to go ahead.

FOR THE MANY Education wasn't meant to be a way of raising geniuses—just a way of raising averages.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

We used to have just three kinds of business. It was good, or it was bad, or we were having a panic.

Now we got recessions, depressions, booms, high plateaus, low plateaus, and middle plateaus, just to name a few. It's hard for a country feller to know exactly what kind of fix he's in with all that going on.

Right now, for instance, the papers is saying we're having a slight recession. I reckon that means things is getting more plentiful and money getting more aint. Unless it gits too aint, the situation might not be as bad as we think.

Back during the war when we was having one of them booms, when things was scarce and money plentiful, things was pretty bad. I remember going to town one day with Ed Doolittle to buy himself a pair of pants. I'll never fergit seeing him coming down the street in his underwear. He not only didn't git no pants, but they was so scarce the feller in the store traded him out of the pair he had on.

When things wasn't so good, the one-pants feller could drive up to a pressing place, toot his horn and somebody would come out and git his pants, press 'em and be back in a jiffy. Right after the war, when we was having one of them "high plateau" things, the same pressing place had a bounce, and when you finally did git in, you'd git throwed out if you caused any undue commotion.

And it was a mighty big relief to the farmer needing help when we descended from the "high plateau" to the middle one. I'll never fergit when we made that change-over. I stopped a feller I knowed and asked him if he'd like to do some work fer me. He stood still until I got plum through talking to him afore he said "no" and walked off. Back in the "high plateau" days he wouldn't even have stopped to listen.

So I ain't too shore, Mister Editor, if this "slight recession" is going to be bad or good fer us.

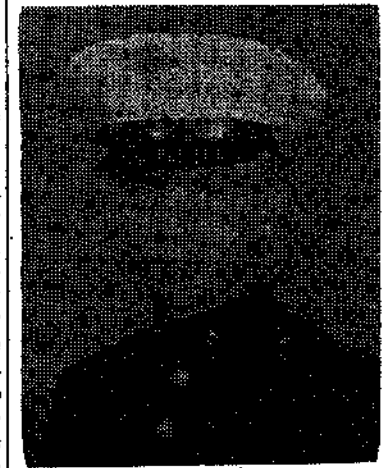

I see where a feller from Chicago is so disgusted with the way Congress is running the country that he aims to try to cross Lake Superior over to Canada in a barrel. Somebody ought to give this feller a good talking to, appeal to his patriotism. In the first place, we're short on barrels in this country, and in the second place, he ought to stay here and take his medicine with the rest of us.

The best writers in the country, Mister Editor, ain't working on newspapers. They is working as press agents fer resort towns in Florida. I saw a picture of a bathing beauty in the paper Sunday, and under the picture they was just these words: "Brown, Bare, and Beautiful." Now that's what I call sharp-shooting with a typewriter.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

In time honesty proves to be a boomerang—it has a habit of coming home to roost.

Rev. S. E. Wurtz performed the seven o'clock ceremony.

The church was decorated with palms and white gladioli in beauty baskets. The bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin with a fitted bodice. The portrait neckline was outlined with a wide band of lace embroidered with pearls and sequins. The gown featured short sleeves with matching gamlets. The bouffant skirt of tulle was styled with a band of lace over an underskirt of tulle ruffles. A coronet of pearls and iridescent sequins held her veil of silk illusion.

Miss Kathy Schuckert of Cass City was junior bridesmaid. The bride's attendants wore aqua-colored gowns of iridescent taffeta styled with fitted bodices, scooped necklines and wide cummerbunds. The bouffant ballerina-length skirts were caught with shirring which formed a scalloped hem line. They wore matching crowns with veils. Flower girl Molly Bee Butler wore a yellow taffeta dress with a scooped neckline, puffed sleeves and a hooped skirt. A headband of baby mums on a yellow ribbon completed her costume.

The groom's attendants were Willis Witherspoon of Milton, brother of the groom, and Merritt Ender, a cousin of the groom. Larry Rae of Akron, the bride's cousin, was junior groomsmen. Ushers were Robert Stoll, brother-in-law of the bride, Jack Witherspoon of Kinde, the groom's brother, and Jim Hinds.

A reception was held at the VFW Hall in Elkton after the ceremony. About 500 guests attended.

Falconry Legalized

A goshawk perches on its trainer's hand while not hunting and the leather hood over the bird's eyes acts as a "quieter." Falconry, the training of hawks to hunt game, recently was legalized by the state Conservation Commission, but native Michigan hawks may not be used. Large hawks can be trained to hunt rabbits, crows and other game.

Weed Control Will Improve Pasture

A one-shot dose of 2,4-D will help boost the amount of forage you can get from native pastures. Assistant agricultural agent Don R. Kebler explains that the forage yield is reduced because cows will eat only so close to a bull thistle. All forage near and under the thistle is wasted.

In April, spray with 2,4-Damine at one pound per acre. This will control bull thistles as well as many other weeds. But don't use this material on alfalfa-brome pastures as the 2,4-D will damage the alfalfa.

A fellow can hardly expect to get very far ahead if he is continually looking backward.

One man earns a living that he never gets, and another gets a living that he never earns.

Two Insect Pests Under Control

Other 'Invaders' Are Under Attack

Like brush-fire fighters, U. S. department of Agriculture and late pest-control workers at year's end were stamping out the last signs of two destructive foreign insects in the U. S., and starting a long watch for isolated flare-ups.

In the 2-year war on the Mediterranean fruit fly in Florida and the 17-year fight in California against the stone-fruit pest known as Hall scale, intensive Federal-State control measures have brought eradication almost in sight, the Department pointed out today.

The last Medfly caught was on November 26—the first find in 20 days. Trapping for this insect continues, however, to protect against any new outbreak. All known infestations of Hall scale are under fumigation.

In the 3-year battle against the grain-destroying khapra beetle in Arizona, New Mexico, and Calioutlook for eradication remains encouraging. USDA pest control workers believe, although occasional farm-building and commercial storages continue to turn up infested and require fumigation.

Keeping foreign pests out—and controlling those that get in—is a constant and important job.

An intensive campaign got under way to eradicate the imported fire ant, which affects animals, crops, and man, and infests more than 20 million acres in 9 southern States.

Two new threats to U. S. crops, the soybean cyst nematode and witchweed of corn, are under quarantine restrictions to halt spread, and intensive survey and valuation programs are in progress.

The nematode has been found in about 14,000 acres in six States. Witchweed occurs on more than 700 farms in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Winter Forage Low In Vitamins

Sunshine and green vegetation are the richest natural sources of vitamins for animals, particularly vitamins A and D. During the winter months, warns the American Veterinary Medical Association, cattle should be closely watched for signs of vitamin deficiencies.

A slow down in weight gain, and an increasing incidence of chronic infections such as colds are early signs of vitamin A shortages in calves, the Association said. Night blindness may be noticed in some severe cases and economic losses may become heavy, especially in younger animals, as the deficiency persists.

Feeder and breeding herds are affected in much the same way as the calves, though breeding herds are likely to suffer reproductive failures, or the birth of weak or dead calves, if their condition is ignored, according to veterinary authorities.

Rickets is the disease most commonly linked with Vitamin D deficiency. Lack of this vitamin prevents animals from utilizing bone-building phosphorus and calcium, veterinary authorities say. Well-cured, green, leafy hay and silage are excellent sources of Vitamin D and A.

Top Price

A record price of $30 a pound was paid by Arthur Godfrey for the grand champion Hereford steer named "Honeymoon" at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. Godfrey is shown shaking hands with Sue and Pete Secondino of West Terre Haute, Ind., who first won grand champion of the junior show and later on to the top spot of the International.

Most people imagine their troubles would end if they were paid all the money they are worth.

It seems that the things that make life worth living are always the things other people have.

Expect More Funds For Soil Bank

Farmers who were unable to take part in the 1958 acreage reserve of the Soil Bank because available funds were exhausted will apparently be able to enter the program, Charles B. Eckfeld of the Tuscola County ASC office, said this week.

Congress has approved a supplemental appropriation of 250 million dollars and the money will be available as soon as a few detailed program provisions are ironed out in House-Senate conference.

It is expected that all farmers on the waiting list at the county office and possibly others where there is evidence that an attempt was made to participate during the sign-up period, will be accepted in the program.

Corn will be an exception to this rule, Eckfeld said, because corn applications on file will exceed the annual legislative limitation of 300 million dollars for corn acreage reserve.

Public notice will be promptly given when the county ASC office is ready to sign additional acreage reserve agreements, Eckfeld said.

Charles L. Hall Dies in Florida

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Little's Funeral Home for Charles L. Hall, who died Thursday in Lockhart, Fla. Rev. C. L. Hundley officiated and burial was in Elkland Cemetery. Mr. Hall had been ill two weeks.

He was born in Burnside, Sanilac County, Dec. 29, 1886. He moved to the Cass City area with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Israel Hall, when he was a child. He married Miss Orinda Stock in Caro Dec. 23, 1908. They lived in Evergreen Township until moving to Lockhart, Fla., six years ago.

Attempting to leave footprints in the sands of time is the cause of many people getting stuck in the mud.
