

From the Editor's Corner

James A. Lewis, vice-president at the University of Michigan, who addressed the graduating class at Cass City High School, taught in the village for just three years.

In that time he must have made quite an impression on residents who came to know him. Despite the fact that it has been over 25 years since he was a teacher here, the Chronicle has had at least five or six inquiries as to when he was scheduled to arrive and where he could be located.

Judging by this reaction it is easy to understand why he advanced in his career in education to his present eminent post.

When school is out and vacation periods begin we always feel as if summer has finally arrived. Again this summer, as has been the custom for several years, the Chronicle will be closed each Saturday afternoon.

Honor Mrs. Knapp At Convention Held in Detroit

Mrs. A. J. Knapp of Cass City was honored on two occasions during the 67th annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs held last week in Detroit.

Every state in the union and 39 foreign countries were represented at the convention. Nineteen foreign delegates attended.

Monday evening was Michigan Federation night. A banquet was held at the Masonic Temple. Greetings were extended by Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Louis C. Miriani, mayor of Detroit. Mrs. Knapp was asked by the General Federation president to give the invocation.

Sunday a tea was given by Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson of Meadow Brook, honoring General Federation officers and past presidents of Michigan State Federation.

At Meadow Brook, considered to be one of the finest baronial mansions in the world, Mrs. Knapp, an honored guest, was invited to partake.

Mrs. Robert Prout, General Federation president from Wakefield, Michigan, presided at the convention and is the only lady from Michigan ever to have the honor.

The Cass City Woman's Study Club members are proud of the honors the club received as reflected by the courtesies extended to Mrs. Knapp.

Four members of the Junior Woman's Club of Cass City also participated in the convention, serving as pages. They were: Mrs. Calvin MacRae, Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. H. O. Paul Jr. and Mrs. James Champion.

Two other top state officers are from the Thumb area. Mrs. John Ritsma, Schewaga, is state president and Mrs. John Updegrave Jr., Port Austin, is Junior state leader.

Capacity Crowd Sees Seniors Graduate

Speaking to the 96 members of the 1958 graduating class of Cass City High School, Dr. James A. Lewis, vice-president of the University of Michigan, praised the great contribution that America has made to the democratic ideal of education. He emphasized that, although we must constantly strive for improvement, we should no more exchange our educational system for one such as Russia's, than adopt that nation's economic or political system. He urged as many of the graduates as possible to take advantage of the many fine schools offered by our own state for almost every type of training. Dr. Lewis was a member of the local school staff 1927-30, and spent a few hours in Cass City renewing old acquaintances.

Jack Laurie, class president, served as program chairman. Edwin McConkey gave the valedictory while Mary Kathryn Gauer served as salutatorian. Other students who took part in the program were Nadene Winters, who furnished a saxophone solo, a boys' trio composed of Tom Hulien, Mike Fritz and Gary Deering and a vocal solo, also by Gary Deering.

In presenting honors and awards to the class, Principal Arthur Holmberg recognized the class officers and the 15 members named to the National Honor Society. A number of scholarships were announced. Jack Laurie, Arthur Severance and Janet Peters received 4-H scholarships to Michigan State University. Raymond Fox was awarded a Freshman Entrance Scholarship to the same institution. A State Board of Education Scholarship went to David O'Dell. Dr. Lewis made the presentation of the University of Michigan Regents-Alumni Scholarship to Edwin McConkey. The annual award of the Thelma J. Hunt Memorial Scholarship, provided by the Student Council, was given this year to Evelyn Surbrook. The graduating class had set up a scholarship award of its own and the recipient of this grant was Gerald Pelton.

Superintendent Willis Campbell landed the diplomas to the graduates as they left the platform. He also presented the Paul Smarke annual athletic award to Jim Johnson, named as outstanding athlete of the class.

In services held Sunday evening, the seniors had been addressed by Rev. L. A. Wilson, pastor of the Nazarene Church. Using as his Baccalaureate theme, "Taking Advantage of Life's Opportunities," Mr. Wilson urged the seniors to distinguish clearly between life's more permanent values and those of more temporary nature. His text was taken from the gospel of St. Luke, including the passage, "For lo, the kingdom of God is within you."

Other pastors assisting in the service included Rev. C. L. Hundley of the Assembly of God, Rev. Lewis Surbrook, United Missionary Church, and Rev. Robert G. Weckle, pastor of the Baptist Church. Music was by the School Band and Mixed Choir, under the direction of Band Director Ronald Phillips and Vocal Instructor Roger Parrish.

Capacity crowds greeted the graduates at both commencement programs, which were held in the school auditorium. The juniors, under the direction of Mr. Cardew, their sponsor, had charge of floral decorations, the professional march for the Baccalaureate service and the ushering at both programs.

Rev. Robinson To Serve Third Year in Cass City

Rev. Ernest Robinson was re-appointed to The Cass City Methodist Church at the Detroit Annual Conference held in the Court Street Methodist Church in Flint.

It will be Rev. Robinson's third year in Cass City.

Rev. Robinson reported that there were fewer changes than usual in the 400 churches covered by the Detroit Conference. Most pastors, he said, were returned to their churches for another year.

The pastor reported that one significant action taken in Flint was admitting two Negro churches into the Methodist Church, the first in its history in Michigan.

Rev. Robinson said that the title of his first sermon in his third year is "Any Word from God Yet?"

Mrs. Robinson accompanied Rev. Robinson to the conference.

Marshal Bill Wood, who is conducting the classes, said that there is room for as many more children with bikes as care to enter. He urged all parents with children who own bikes to have them at the park Saturday, June 14, for the second meeting. The courses will be held every Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

The boys and girls who joined the club were signed by William Muller, county 4-H agent.

Perfect Records

Mrs. Marie Murray, grade principal at Cass City School, said that eight grade students were presented perfect attendance certificates at an assembly held Friday at the school.

She said that the number of students with perfect records was smaller than usual this year because of the flu and other sickness that occurred early in the school year.

The students honored and their grades are: Tommy Guinther and Jill Siltson, first grade; Kenneth Hayes and Melvin Trencott, third grade; John Kostanko and Judy Spencer, fourth grade; and Beverly Guinther and Melvin Laming, fifth grade.

Dr. Savage New Tuscola County Finance Chairman

We know that a fighting campaign requires adequate finance and hope that the Republican and independent voters of our county will do their bit."

Find Author Of Anonymous Letters Here

Marshal Bill Wood and State Police Trooper Richard Richter of Bad Axe last week solved a series of obscene, anonymously written letters to persons in the Cass City area.

Marshal Wood said that Douglas Bird of Cass City admitted writing the letters.

Police had been working on the case for over a month and finally traced the letters through the handwriting.

Mr. Bird is at his home waiting for postal authorities, who will determine if there is a charge for sending obscene literature through the mails.

In another case last week, Gary Piffard of Decker was arrested by Marshal Wood in Cass City. He pleaded guilty before Justice Harry Balhoff of Sandusky. He was ordered to pay fine and costs and make restitution for 20 gallons of gas taken from Russell Hayward of Hemans.

Supervisors Nix Tri-County Clinic

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors dealt the proposed Tri-County Health Clinic in the new Cass City Community Hospital a crippling blow Monday when they voted 18-6 against joining with Huron and Sanilac counties to form the clinic.

Joe Homminga of the office of Hospital Survey and Construction appeared before the supervisors to explain why he felt that the counties should agree to the tri-county service.

If supervisors in the three counties had agreed to the proposal, space in the new hospital would have been allotted for the clinic and rented to the counties. The Federal government would have given an extra $25,000 for building the facility in the hospital.

The hospital is scheduled to be completed Dec. 31, 1959.

Other Business

Sheriff William Tomlinson had requested a boat and motor for use in dragging rivers and other details in connection with his work.

Monday the supervisors granted his request. The purchase of a 16-foot boat, 10 horsepower outboard motor and related safety items were authorized at a total cost of $675.

The board also okayed expenditures involved in building a trailer to haul the equipment.

All county officers were authorized to attend their respective conventions with necessary expenses paid by the county.

Mrs. Gummel, public health nurse for Tuscola County, submitted her resignation to the board. She said that she wanted to spend more time at home than her position would allow.

Colberts Leave For New Colorado Home

The James Colbert family left Cass City Tuesday to make their home in Denver, Colo.

Mr. Colbert had been a Cass City businessman for 12 years. He moved here from Caro in 1946 and opened a real estate office. Originally operating from his home, in recent years the firm has had its quarters in an office on Main Street in the village.

Both of the Colberts are natives of Michigan and were born near Prescott. Mr. Colbert married the former Cecile Palmer at Prescott in 1926.

The couple spent 15 years in Flint and ran a store in Shabbona from 1937 to 1946 before moving to Caro for six months.

The Colberts have two daughters, Suzanne, 16, a junior in high school, and Mrs. Buford (Sally) Fouts of Denver.

Mr. Colbert said that he probably will open a real estate office in Denver.

Surplus Food Program to Cost $1,000 A Month

The Tuscola County supervisors authorized Federal surplus food for low income groups Monday when they okayed food for all county residents, whose incomes are below 60 per cent of the maximum Federal scale.

It has been estimated that the new program will boost expenditures of the county from an average of some $150 monthly to $1,000 to $1,250 monthly.

The measure was adopted by a 16-7 margin.

Tuscola County Director of Social Welfare Irl Baguley said that he has no idea how many persons the new regulation will include.

It will be July, he explained, before the new program can be originated.

Surplus food under the former program was handled from the welfare office in the courthouse. The new program will be too large to be accommodated there and a distribution point will have to be secured.

Additional help to administer the distribution will also be necessary, Mr. Baguley believes. The new program will include many persons drawing unemployment compensation, old age security and similar benefits, Mr. Baguley said.

New Pink Tomato Wilt Resistant

Pinkshipper Variety Thoroughly Tested

Pinkshipper, a new wilt resistant, pink-fleshed variety of tomato for fresh-market, is announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It was developed by scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service to meet growers' demands for a pink-fleshed shipping and fresh-market tomato highly resistant to fusarium wilt.

Some seed is available this year

Adapted to greenhouse or field, pinkshipper tomato is highly wilt resistant.

from commercial seed sources. The Department has no seed for distribution.

Designated as US 351 during 5 years' greenhouse and field testing at the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., the new tomato has also been thoroughly field-tested in the wilt-infested soil of southeastern Arkansas.

Pinkshipper is adapted to greenhouse or field culture, and will give good yield on wilt-free soil as well as on wilt-infested soil. It is an excellent variety for commercial growers and home gardeners in any area where pink tomatoes are desired.

The new variety was developed from a cross of Gulf State Market and Pan America varieties, outcrossed to a line derived from a Marvelosa and Marglobe cross. William S. Porte, USDA plant pathologist at Beltsville, continuously tested and selected lines of this cross for plant type, fruit uniformity, and wilt resistance through many generations before the Pinkshipper emerged as a fixed variety. It received much favorable comment from cooperating investigation when it is grown for three years in the Southern Cooperative Tomato Trials under the designation STEP 202.

Blueberries Becoming Popular Fruit Crop

Blueberries — native to North America—are on the move as a cultivated fruit crop. And that's of special importance to North Carolina — which ranks third in U. S. commercial blueberry production acreage. New Jersey and Michigan rank first and second, respectively.

In 1955, an estimated 12,500 acres of cultivated blueberries yielded an estimated $11 million, marketed fresh, canned and frozen. However, the total value of blueberries in the U. S. is much greater when you add the wild blueberries harvested.

Melvin H. Kolbe, horticultural specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that selection and breeding of superior varieties are enabling growers to put a better product on the market. Hybrids are being developed from some of the large fruit varieties and some of the drought-resistant species which may prove useful in erosion control.

Since different species vary in their climatic requirements, it's possible to grow blueberries from Maine to Florida. A common characteristic of all blueberry varieties, however, is their need for an acid soil. Also, even though some varieties are native to swamp and moist lands, cultivated fields should be well-drained.

Rat Trap

Ticklish job of setting steel traps for rats gets more action, is safer when system above is used. Pour wheat or oats in pail and leave until rats begin to help themselves to the grain. Without moving pail, set trap in pail and cover lightly with grain.

Tip to motorists: Death works overtime on holidays—see to it that you don't pay the bill.

The man who always sees his duty sometimes takes advantage of the fact and dodges it.

Gossips are people who have a habit of going around stabbing reputations in the back.

All most people ask is justice, but each individual wants to define it in his own way.

The hardest work in the world to do is that which should have been done yesterday.

Sometimes the man who insists he has an open mind should have it closed for repairs.

A good many people who never do anything on time, buy all their things that way.

BULEN TALKS Cars

SMOKE SIGNALS OF THE AUTO AGE

Years ago, Indian tribes living on this continent sent messages to one another, often covering great distances, by means of smoke signals. Nowadays, we don't use smoke signals to send messages across the country, but we can learn something about the modern automobile by watching the exhaust smoke.

Smoke from the exhaust of a car is not necessarily bad. Black smoke or smoke with a brownish tinge usually means that the carburetor needs adjusting. The mixture is too rich. Oil additives and special oils often cause smoke for a short time.

Smoke that is blue, or tinged with blue, can be a danger signal. Lubricating oil burns with a distinctive blue smoke. When the exhaust shows blue it means that oil is being sucked up into the cylinders and burned. More often than not that means a ring job is necessary.

We haven't any oil-burners on the lot. When we take one in, we either do the ring job before it goes on the lot... or wholesale the car to the city lots.

When you are shopping for a used car, have the salesman start the car up and race the motor for a minute. Watch for the tell-tale blue smoke. That's one safety check you should always make.

To be sure of a really good used car, you are always safe when you come to Buleen's. You may pay a few dollars more... but you'll be certain of a good buy... there's more miles of economical, trouble-free driving for you in a Buleen Motors used car.

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association

Michigan's treasury is solvent as 1957-58 enters its last days. It is a temporary respite from poverty that can be attributed to Rep. Rollo G. Conlin (R-Tipton) whose talents as chairman of the House Taxation committee are sometimes not appreciated by all. With his plan to postpone payments for liquor purposes, Conlin has again stymied Gov. Williams and the Democrats, and has given a special research project on revenue time to act.

Williams predicted in January and in March that the state would go broke again this year. Conlin's idea was to extend the normal 90-day payment for purchases by the state's liquor monopoly to 90 days. In effect, the state would pay its bill as it sold the goods.

It went into effect almost unheralded after stiff debate in the legislature. There were dire predictions that the plan would open the gates wide to bootlegging from states adjoining Michigan; that distillers would demand extra compensation and other benefits.

"These people are doing a favor for Michigan by waiting for their money," said one expert. "They will want something in return." Up to this point, there have been no unusual overtures by distillers and, Conlin said, the plan works like a charm. Conlin has carved a niche for himself in Michigan's financial picture with other ideas and other plans.

Michigan's schools remember him for his "Conlin Plan" in 1954. Until then, state school aid was based on collections two years before. His plan put school aid on a current-year basis. It wiped out the "time bomb" created by fluctuating sales tax collections. Conlin's latest idea helped wipe out the threat of poverty this year. It will give a special revenue study a year in which to revise the state's tax structure and achieve permanent reform.

Republicans realize that the new Conlin Plan is not alone responsible for the rare feat of governmental solvency. Williams weeks ago passed down an order to the dozens of state agencies to cut financial corners wherever possible to save money. The highway department alone reported that it had saved more than $1,000,000. Others agencies are leaving positions vacant and curbing travel which they considered necessary in other years. State government is trimming its sales to weather the economic storm.

Progress, too, brings its economic crises. The more than 900 miles of limited access superhighways are leaving businesses stranded along the "old routes" being replaced. Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie has established a policy to protect, as much as possible, the businesses being bypassed while building highways designed to save lives.

Businesses placed in peril by the changes are allowed restricted advertising on the nearby expressways. No others can compete. Mackie is asking only for patience to give his policy a chance. He is certain that, when the five-year $1,250,000,000 building program is completed, Michigan will be a better place in which to travel—and to do business.

Michigan will take official cognizance of its greatest engineering feat June 26-28. Thousands will gather for the official dedication of the $98,000,000 Mackinac Straits Bridge, opened to traffic last Nov. 1 to link the state's two peninsulas. They have been linked economically for years, the mines and forests of the Upper Peninsula pouring forth their bounty for the Lower Peninsula in exchange for industry and business. It is the first major improvement in the link since the Toledo War settlement more than a century ago gave the Upper Peninsula to Michigan in exchange for a narrow strip of land along the southeastern boundary of the state.

Ferguson Active In CMC Dramatics

According to a report from the secretary of Tau Alpha Upsilon fraternity at Central Michigan College, Ronald C. Ferguson has completed a busy year at the school. He has been a member of the ROTC drill team for two years and is under consideration for appointment to advanced ROTC. He has been active in dramatics at Central, participating in three productions. One of the shows was "Brigadoon," the only play in the history of the school to receive a standing ovation.

He was elected to Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatics fraternity. He has been a member of Tau Alpha Upsilon since the spring semester of 1957 and is the first student from Cass City to belong to the fraternity. He is now sergeant-at-arms of the group.

Leave things to chance—and the less chance you have.

FHA Expands Farm House Loan Program

More farm construction, with better homes for farm families, better shelter for livestock and improved storage facilities for machinery and grain. That's the prospect in coming years, says Robert B. Abbott, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration. Recently, as an antirecession measure, his agency expanded its farm housing loan program to the fullest extent possible under existing laws set up by Congress. Mr. Abbott reports that inquiries from interested people in the area are increasing. To be eligible now, an applicant must own a farm that is in agricultural production and must plan to produce at least $400 worth of commodities for sale and home use, based on 1944 prices. Many part-time farmers who previously were ineligible can qualify for loans under the expanded program.

Bruce Ruggles, chairman of the Tuscola county FHA committee, said that applications are being reviewed for eligibility by his committee and are being processed for loans. The construction work can start after the loan is closed.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Looks like they're having a heap of trouble with them teenage mobs and school kids in Brooklyn. I come along in a day when a feller called his own cigarettes and his old lady rocked her own baby and I reckon I ain't fitten to comment on the matter. But in my time a stout switch from the nearest tree cured most of them teenage diseases. From all the publicity they give it, I reckon that tree that grew in Brooklyn was the only one they had around the place. Their teenage mob trouble is probably on account of the shortage of trees they got there.

It was a sad day for American youth when they invented the safety razor and quit selling strops.

I see by the papers where

Dulles is getting a little worried about all that money Russia owes us and ain't paying. He says he's "considering bringing up the subject with Khrushchev in an effort to hasten the start of talks about repaying."

Now that's a system for collecting debts that would suit even ole Ed Doolittle. Next to our system of giving money away to them foreign countries, our debt collecting system with Russia is the best thing we got.

It shore would help relations, for instance, if the feller that owns the hardware store, instead of sending me a bill and hinting about gitting himself a lawyer, would invite me out to dinner and mention off-hand something about gitting together one of these days and talking about the bill.

And them fellers at the courthouse that sets the tax rate could stay in office from now on with that system. Instead of sending me a tax notice they could introduce negotiations leading up to a series of talks concerning the matter.

I'm in favor of putting our debt collecting system here at home on an international level. What's good enough for them Russians ought to be good enough for me and you.

I was reading in News Week magazine where some feller was predicting a heap of strikes and labor trouble this spring and summer. He allowed as how it could "upset the nation's economy." Now that's something I ain't worrying about. Most farmers operates—all the time with their economy broke down. Mine has been broke down for years.

This feller goes on to say that we might be "facing a crisis." I can't recall a time in 30 years I ain't been facing a crisis. If I got a good price for my stuff it don't do me no good. Some farmers is tickled pink to get fifty dollars for a ten dollar calf, but the fourth time I did it and didn't git home with no money, I seen through it. When you git high you pay high. What I'm looking for is the feller that started this dad-burned merry-go-round.

Another thing that's tending to upset the nation's economy is that we got a few folks scattered around the country that is trying to live within their income. The way the Government has got things geared today, all them folks is doing is just trying to mess up prosperity.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Herd Improvement Program Is Growing 10 Per Cent Now Keeping Records

More than 2 million dairy cows, 10.3 per cent of the Nation's total, are now enrolled in three record-keeping plans making up the National Cooperative Dairy Herd Improvement Program, the U. S. Department has announced.

This cooperative program between USDA and the State Extension services has been an important factor in herd improvement for more than 50 years. Currently the program offers three different ways for keeping records of individual cows in participating herds. Dairy record keeping has repeatedly proved its value as a means of increasing the efficiency and lowering the cost of milk production.

Better than 10 per cent of the nation's dairy herd is now enrolled in herd improvement program.

The Jan. 1, 1958, survey shows that 1,548,884 cows were in the Standard Improvement Association plan; 490,001 were in the Owner-Sampler plan; and 79,489 were enrolled in the new Weigh-A-Day-A-Month plan. This latter plan was started in the fall of 1956.

The number of cows in the Weigh-A-Day-A-Month plan is a 73.2 per cent increase over the total of a year ago. The number of cows enrolled in the Standard Plan is 4.7 per cent higher than the total on Jan. 1, 1957, and the number for the Owner-Sampler Plan is 21 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The Weigh-A-Day-A-Month plan is a simple, low-cost system of weighing the milk output of each cow in a herd, morning and night, one day a month. Each dairyman weighs the milk himself. No milk samples or butterfat tests are required.

Dwarf Cattle Not Highly Recommended

This is the age of miniatures—pocket radios, miniature golf courses and dwarf corn.

But the University of Illinois veterinarians are putting their feet down when it comes to miniature beef steaks.

Dwarf cattle are easy to recognize, but the seemingly normal animals that carry this inherited characteristic are hard to identify. Much work is being done to find a way to spot these carriers so that they can be culled from breeding herds.

Dr. H. J. Hardenbrook says that taking X-rays of calves between one and 10 days old is one of the best ways to spot carriers. X-rays show vertebral abnormalities characteristic of many animals that carry dwarfism. X-rays of long bones and of certain head bones are also of value.

Examining the blood lines of breeding stock is another method. Dr. Hardenbrook says the best approach is to buy from breeders who are making special efforts to produce dwarf-free stock.

A recent round-up of test results shows how effective X-ray can be. The results also point to some of its limitations as a detection method. Of 186 known carriers at all the cooperating stations X-rays showed that 167, or 90 per cent, had abnormal vertebrae.

Movable Wallow

Wooden hog trough constructed on runners can be towed to any location, may be used for lime-sulphur dip, or just to cool young pigs in hot weather. Bolted construction allows the wallow to be easily dismantled if such is necessary.

Tips for Buying Wash and Wear Fabrics Reported

During the last year or two there has been an increasing number of fabrics put on the market, in piece goods or ready-to-wear, that have such labels as drip-dry, wash and wear, no-iron, minimum care, or easy care. According to Mrs. Frances T. Clark, Tuscola County extension agent in home economics, labels have caught the eyes of busy homemakers who are glad not only to have some of the labor taken out of routine jobs, but also to have a means of coping with increased costs of commercial laundering and dry-cleaning.

The first wash and wear fabrics, says Mrs. Clark, were made of some of the newer thermoplastic man-made fibers like nylon, dacron, orlon and arnel. These absorb very little moisture, resist staining, and dry quickly. As a result, they tend to wrinkle less in washing and take little if any pressing. Mrs. Clark adds that in blends with non-thermoplastic fibers like cotton or rayon, there must be a high per cent of the thermoplastic fibers before "wash and wear" qualities are improved. One example is the blend of 65 per cent dacron with 35 per cent cotton.

A second approach in the development of wash and wear fabrics is the use of chemical resin finishes on non-thermoplastic fibers like cotton and rayon. These finishes not only improve handling of the fabric and appearance, but also cut down absorption, which means less drying time, and increases wrinkle recovery. These last two qualities help give the fabrics wash and wear properties.

There always seems to be some give and take in textile improvements. For example, the same resin finishes which can improve laundering ease and wrinkle-recovery of fabrics, tend to weaken the strength of the fabric and may cause yellowing of white fabrics. This means the manufacturer must use highly skilled judgment and know-how in trying to balance greater ease in washing against less in strength, and also yellowing possibilities.

Yellowing, especially in white fabrics, may be caused by chlorine retention after repeated bleaching. The chlorine also may cause tendering of the fabric.

The yellowing effect becomes apparent after heat is applied in ironing. So, unless the label says it is all right, the best advice to you is to omit the use of chlorine bleach. If bleaching is necessary, a stain for example, use sodium perborate bleaches obtained at grocery stores, or hydrogen peroxide which can be obtained at drug stores. If a garment has become yellowed by chlorine, use a color remover to restore whiteness. Another precaution against yellowing is to avoid the use of high temperatures in drying or ironing.

Agent Tells Ways To Improve Silage

Putting up silage at the proper moisture content is the best way to avoid trouble from spoilage, states Don Kehler, assistant county extension agent, in agriculture. Silages that are either high in protein, high in water or low in sugar are apt to ferment poorly. The result may be smelly silages which are low in acids that are necessary for good preservation and palatability.

Too wet legumes spoil easily because of their high protein and lime content.

Here are several ways to handle the problem:

One - Wilt to the proper moisture content (65 to 70 per cent). At the proper moisture content, preservatives do little or no good in improving fermentation. Adding ground grain will help improve feeding value.

Two - Adding ground grain to soak up some of the water will improve fermentation a little and may increase feeding value.

Three - Adding molasses helps fermentation and improves acidity. But it may cause increased seepage in silage that is already too damp.

Four - Adding bisulphite is helpful only with moderately over-damp silages. Here it decreases the offensive odors, and may improve palatability somewhat but it has little effect on feeding value.

Five - Other chemical preservatives act much like bisulphite. Use of these on extremely damp silage is futile. Drainage is excessive, and fermentation is poor in spite of the preservatives. Very offensive silages generally result.

Corn silage generally ferments without trouble. It is high enough in sugar, low in protein and is rarely excessively damp as long as it has partly ripe ears.

Let me tell you what I saved when I drove a new Plymouth...then bought one!

Just like a lot of other people, I was putting off buying a new car... even though we sure needed one. Then I found out what my Plymouth dealer was offering in the way of low prices and really big trades.

Mister, when I saw what I saved I knew there was no use putting off any longer! Got more for my old car than I believed possible. (Plymouth dealers need used cars and can sell all they get!) Got a terrifically low price on the new Plymouth... and choice of models besides... hard-tops, sedans, convertibles, wagons.

And I saved a cool $140 on the ride alone! Plymouth's top-luxury ride, Torsion-Aire Ride, is standard at no extra cost, while you have to pay up to $140 for the top ride of competing "low-price 3" cars.

What's more, I got the car that proved it can save me gasoline, by winning the 1958 Mobilgas Economy Run. A car with Silver Dart Styling that is so far ahead right now it will still be worth more when I trade. With the kind of easy handling that makes every minute of driving a downright thrill! The stamina to stand up without nagging adjustments and big repairs... a car as much better built as it is better looking!

Any wonder I quit waiting? Take my tip... get your Plymouth bargain right now.

Today's best buy...tomorrow's best trade...

Frances T. Clark
 County Home Demonstration Agent

I am writing this week's corner in one of the rooms at Kellogg Center. As I look out across the Michigan State University's campus, I again realize how beautiful Michigan is in the early part of June. The different shades and tints of green blend so beautifully with the bright splashes of color from many flowers and flowering shrubs.

Since it is almost dinner time, my mind goes to the grocery store back in Caro, and I wonder if you have ever thought about the five steps to your grocery store. Here are the five steps: Step 1 is quality. You should look for the quality you want, for the price you want to pay. Some stores offer different levels of quality, poor, good, better and best. This will give you the opportunity of shopping for quality that exactly fits your cooking needs. For an example, you can buy firm smooth apples for baking and eating whole, and in the same store you can buy slightly damaged apples for your sauce making. Some grocery stores specialize in only one standard of quality. This practice allows you to choose the store that has the quality you always want, and you are assured of the same quality standards throughout the store.

Step 2 is price. You will look for the price that gives you the value you want. High quality need not mean high price; you must remember it is the cost per serving of food (not cost per pound) that determines "expense."

Step 3 is the store's "personality." You should look for the store where service is cheerful and courteous. In these days of self-service, you still like some attention when you shop. You want courteous assistance with your food shopping problems.

Step 4 is service. You should look for the store that offers service you like, provided quality, price and "personality" suits you. "Your store" may be one that accepts orders by telephone, extends credit and has a delivery service. "Your store" may have other services such as someone to collect your order for you, etc. You may choose a self-service market where you shop at leisurely or as quickly as you like.

Step 5 is convenience. You may look for a store you can conveniently reach again, provided you like the other "steps." Your choice depends on whether you walk and carry groceries from the store to your home or if you drive to do your marketing. If you drive, you should consider the available parking situation at the grocery. Last but not least, the number of items you buy at one time and how often you shop should also be considered.

An extra step is the trading stamps: Are they a shopping bonus or bogus value? You are the person who can decide for you.

Study your "steps" to your grocery store wisely and then decide which store is for you.

Tired Homemakers Can Reduce Fatigue

Do you feel tired 'long about supertime? If you do, you're no different from other homemakers, says Mrs. Frances T. Clark, county extension agent in home economics.

According to a survey by Dr. Elizabeth Wiegand, now of Cornell University, and Dr. Irma Gross, home management professor at Michigan State University, homemakers reported being tired between 4:30 and 6 p.m. on week days. These homemakers suffered the greatest fatigue on week ends between 12:30 and 1 p.m.

Knowing that everyone else is tired may be some consolation—but what can you do about it?

For one thing, says Mrs. Clark, don't worry so much about the work you don't finish. The survey showed that more homemakers who were "very tired" were upset about unfinished tasks than those who were less tired.

Another way to avoid that overly-tired feeling is to be realistic—know what you can do without becoming too tired—and try not to do more than that. A gain "very tired" homemakers were more apt than others, to have unfinished tasks during their most tiring period of the day.

A helping hand is a temper-saver when you are tired. The survey bears this out; twice as many "less tired" as "very tired" homemakers got some help from hubby or one of the children during their most tiring period.

Learning to like your job can ward off fatigue, too. Most homemakers in this study were either preparing meals or looking after the children during the most tiring time of their day. Of the "less tired" homemakers, 90 per cent gave caring for children as their first or second preference of household tasks and 50 per cent listed preparing meals equally high.

On the other hand, only two-thirds of the "more tired" women ranked child care as first or second choice and food preparation was a favorite task among only 40 per cent of these "more tired" homemakers, points out Mrs. Clark.

Living will be better in this world when people learn to bear others' burdens as cheerfully as they air others' faults.

Legumes Will Give High Protein Forage

The starting place for good hay is to get a good field of high protein plants, preferably legumes. The next problem is preserving the high protein quality that is produced from good seedings of alfalfa and clover, and managing them to avoid excessive weeds and grass, pointed out Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

Putting such early-cut hay, after wilting, in a silo or mow-drying to avoid field damage is an effective way to save protein. Rapid field curing is also favored by hay crushers.

All legumes are high in protein, even when the hay plants are in bloom. They are slightly higher in protein content when they are somewhat immature. Mixtures of grass and legumes are decidedly lower in protein than are straight legume hays.

Protein requirements of an ordinary dairy cow can be met with a good quality hay that is about half legume. Cutting legumes in early bloom stage or reducing the grass content will raise protein content considerably. If the forage gets rained on, however, it may end up a poorer hay than if cut a little later when weather is warmer.

Most of the grains that are produced for animal feed on Michigan farms are comparatively low in protein. All mature grass hays are decidedly low in protein. All immature pastures are high in protein but such materials are difficult to harvest and store for winter feeds.

Success comes to the man who makes the greatest profit from the fewest mistakes.

The man who refuses to work when offered a job is usually ready to work a friend.

It often takes some nifty side-stepping for a politician to make himself popular.

Spray Pines Again To Control Moths

Michigan's cold spring weather may have reduced the effectiveness of a single spray application for control of the European pine shoot moth. Larvae of the moth have been slower about coming out of their overwintering places, reports Don Kehler, county extension agent in agriculture.

This makes it important for Christmas tree plantation owners to use the recommended double spray treatment in June. The first treatment should be made June 20 and the second one on June 30.

DDT is the recommended chemical for shoot moth control. If knapsack or compressed air sprayers are used, mix one gallon of 25 per cent DDT emulsion with 100 gallons of water. Or use eight teaspoons for one gallon of water. Be sure that coverage of each tree is thorough.

For airplane applications, buy only DDT oil formulations ready to use. Each gallon of oil should normally contain one pound of DDT. Apply the one gallon of oil and the one pound of DDT to each acre of Christmas trees. If two gallons of oil containing two pounds of DDT are applied to an acre, apply one gallon along the rows and one gallon across the rows.

The two June sprays are controls to kill newly hatched caterpillars before it enters the tree tissue.

Good Pasture Needs No Supplements

Dairy cows grazing top quality grass-legume pastures this summer don't need extra hay or silage. In fact, according to research at Michigan State University, milk production isn't kept enough higher to pay the cost of the supplemental feeding, said Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

In recent tests feeding of silage appeared to have a greater influence on milk production than feeding hay to groups of dairy cows. Both the silage and hay groups produced slightly more milk than the control group which got only pasture and grain.

The increased production was so slight that it was considered unimportant by the researchers.

There may be some advantage in terms of staving off the usual summer milk production slump by supplementing lower-quality pasture with hay or silage.

Where pasture is poor, hay fed free-choice in the pasture or silage fed after milking will provide additional vital nutrients needed for top milk production.

Plenty of clean fresh water available to cows while on pasture will also help keep milk production up.
